"The effect of Mr. Martin's story would have been heightened if it had been told entirely through Selma's eyes and also if it had been shorn of the forced similes which pepper the beginning. But these are minor defects. After he gets into the swing of his story he writes warmly, sincerely and with an effective understatement." Page Cooper

+ — Books p12 S 22 '40 500w

"The book is a very pleasant, modest story with at least one incident of little-girl generosity that is tremendously touching." B. S.

+ N Y Times p23 S 29 '40 480w

"A very likable little girl, and a likable and tender book."

+ New Yorker 16:102 O 12 '40 60w

"Here is a book for those readers who yearn occasionally for a cheerful, pleasant story that is not insipid or saccharine." R. A. C.

+ Sat R of Lit 23:22 D 21 '40 210w

Wis Lib Bul 36:138 O '40

MARTIN, GEORGE WINSTON. Modern camping guide; il. by E. Modrakowska. 349p $2.50 Appleton-Century

796.54 Camping (W) 40-27529

Practical information on different kinds of camping trips in the United States: automobile camping; camping afoot; and canoe camping. Partial contents: Tents and shelters; Packs;

Bedding and sleeping equipment; Camp stoves; Open fires; Provisions; Cooking utensils; Camp cooking; Clothing; First-aid; etc. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 36:396 Je 15 '40
Boston Transcript p1 Jl 13 '40 190w
Cleveland Open Shelf p11 My '40

MARTINDALE, CYRIL CHARLIE. Towards loving the Psalms [Eng title: Sweet singer of Israel]. 308p $2.75 (8s 6d) Sheed

223.6 Bible. Old Testament—Psalms—Criticism, interpretation, etc. 40-14926

The first and shorter section of this book is made up of essays on how to read the Psalms; the second part examines individual Psalms or verses in the light of the principles developed in the first part.

"The author does not pretend to offer an erudite and documented piece of work; but it is obvious that he has not neglected to consult excellent sources. The ascetical and practical suggestions are excellent. The book not only instructs others stimulatingly, but if they follow the leads given, it will enable the readers to live and pray the Psalms devotionally." J. Cragmyr
+ America 63:360 Jl 6 '40 150w
Cath World 152:125 O '40 200w
Reviewed by Richard Flower
Commonweal 32:473 S 27 '40 230w
Times [London] Lit Sup p343 Jl 13 '40 50w

MARTING, RUTH LENORE (HILEA BAILEY, pseud). Give thanks to death. 270p $2 Doubleday 40-7859

Detective story.

"A disarming concoction of deadly deeds and artless prattle." Will Cuppy
Books p20 My 5 '40 180w
Reviewed by Marian Wiggin
Boston Transcript p2 My 4 '40 70w

"The story is a bit confused in spots, but reference to the cast of characters printed in the front of the book will dissipate some of the confusion." Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p27 My 5 '40 220w

"Hattie Pelham, beautiful and mad; Hans, the limping dog; and sinister Lavinia scare Miss Bailey more than they do the reader in this mystery of the little-did-I-know-then school."
New Yorker 16:100 My 11 '40 60w

"Drammer laid on with trowel but not so thick that it fogs sound plot and some ultrasmart deducing. Worthwhile."
+ Sat R of Lit 22:18 My 4 '40 40w

MARTYR, WESTON. The wandering years. 275p $3 Dodd [7s 6d Blackwood]

B or 92 Voyages and travels 40-4760

The author has been in turn sailor, miner, buccaneer, merchant, soldier and author. Now settled in his native England, he looks back over his life and records his experiences.

"Quite the most exciting autobiography of the year. Exciting because it is the story of a crowded life of action, but more exciting because this man has learned as he lived, because he has acquired in a hard school a good, manly philosophy which is entirely lacking in clerical collars, old school ties, or false whiskers."
+ Atlantic Ap '40 140w

"Mr. Martyr has led a remarkable life and he writes about it, in the first two parts of his book, in a straightforward manner. The last section, devoted to inspirational tips on how to get ahead, lead your own life, etc., proves an unfortunate anticlimax." Fred Feldkamp
+ — Books p16 Mr 24 '40 750w

"The adventures run a bit thin towards the last, and the incidental figures are mere shadows except for Mr. Martyr's partner, Sam. The style of the book, though forceful, does not excel in pictorial vividness. The philosophizing is of a homely sort, best when the author is commenting on the first World War." J. D. Gordan
— + Boston Transcript p1 Mr 16 '40 120w
Reviewed by G. Irwin-Carruthers
Manchester Guardian p5 Mr 8 '40 330w
N Y Times p26 Mr 31 '40 330w

"Weston Martyr writes with a seeming ingenuousness that conceals the wisdom of his book. All he has learned is included here, and his learning is wide. If you would know how to eat dynamite, or prove the superiority of mules to horses, or outwit your wily fellow, the instruction is here, but oddly enough you can learn as well how one man may mate pride to humility and love a life which his mind detests." Hassoldt Davis
Sat R of Lit 21:6 Mr 23 '40 410w

"This is a book of descending interest; but almost two-thirds of it offers good entertainment with a fair amount of information of the globetrotting variety."
+ — Springf'd Republican p10 Je 7 '40 600w
Times [London] Lit Sup p184 Ap 13 '40 500w

MARWICK, BRIAN ALLEN. The Swazi. 320p il map $4.25 Macmillan [18s Cambridge]

572.96834 Ethnology—Swaziland

"An ethnographic account of the natives of the Swaziland protectorate." (Subtitle) "Much of the information for this book was collected in the field during July and August 1934. The remainder was culled from the scanty literature on the subject, and from nine years' experience of the Swazi as a government official." (Pref) Index.

Reviewed by W. D. Hambly
Am Soc R 5:796 O '40 290w
Boston Transcript p2 Jl 20 '40 70w

"Mr. Marwick, who has the advantage not only of some years experience as an administrative official, but also has spent some time in the field in intensive inquiry among native informants, has thus produced the first account of Swazi ethnography to approach anything like completeness... His conclusions deserve the most careful consideration."
+ Nature 146:381 S 21 '40 550w
Reviewed by Beryl de Zoete
New Statesman & Nation 20:264 S 14 '40 550w
Times [London] Lit Sup p384 Ag 10 '40 120w

MARX, MILTON. The enjoyment of drama. 242p $2 Crofts

808.2 Drama 40-13377

"This book is written for those who wish to enhance their appreciation of the drama. It is at once a summary of dramatic principles and the various types of drama, and an introduction to the study of drama, the plays discussed or mentioned serving as a basis for further study... The emphasis throughout is on modern drama... The chapter on how to judge a play is an application of the material presented in the rest of the book. Topics for discussion are included at the end for those who wish to make use of them." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

Springf'd Republican p10 Ag 15 '40 700w
Theatre Arts 24:764 O '40 20w

MARX, MILTON—Continued

"It would be difficult to imagine a more admirable first guide to the appreciation of drama than Milton Marx has written. The purpose and appeal of drama, the ingredients and structure of a good play, dramatic forms, historical types and critical criteria are presented clearly and in an easy, confident style."
+ Theatre Arts 25:78 Ja '41 70w

MARY ELEANORE, SISTER, originally KATHERINE MARY BROSNAHAN. Mary. (Religion and culture ser) 192p $2 Bruce pub.

232.931 Mary, Virgin 39-23883

"A popular manual of Marian theology, history and devotion. With Genesis, Isaias and St. Luke as guides Sister Eleanore gives us the Scriptural basis of the Church's teaching with regard to the Blessed Virgin's divine motherhood her Immaculate Conception, her absolute sinlessness, her part in our redemption. The author outlines in brief the many feasts and churches dedicated to Mary, mentions the chief shrines devoted to her cultus, and records the countless hymns of praise the centuries have sung to her." Cath World

"The simplicity of the title, in a sense, indicates the simplicity which governs this beautiful story of Mary. It is the sort of book that would appeal quite as much to one who knew little about Our Lady, as to a devout client or to the liturgical student." W. H. Dodd
+ America 63:52 Ap 20 '40 180w
Cath World 151:637 Ag '40 210w

MARY THERESE, SISTER, originally FLORENCE MAE LENTFOEHR. Now there is beauty, and other poems. 82p $1.25 Macmillan

811 40-4966

"Like Sister M. Madeleva, whom she resembles somewhat, this poet seems particularly at home in the sonnet form, but there are lyrics also of rare beauty and grace. Again like Sister M. Madeleva, she is Wisconsin born, and is now teaching English in St. Mary's convent in Milwaukee." Wis Lib Bul

"In Now There is Beauty, Sister M. Therese not only sustains her reputation but enhances it." J. J. R.
+ Cath World 151:252 My '40 270w
Wis Lib Bul 36:65 Ap '40

MASEFIELD, JOHN. Basilissa; a tale of the Empress Theodora. 307p $2.50 Macmillan

Theodora, consort of Justinian I, emperor of the East—Fiction 40-27654

"The Empress Theodora, whom history describes as bloodthirsty and depraved, was, according to Mr. Masefield, nothing of the sort. In a fictional biography, he portrays her as clever, talented, beautiful, and a good Christian." New Yorker

Atlantic N '40 150w
Booklist 37:36 O 1 '40

"The plot is as full of action as a Lone Ranger episode and far more glamorous; the action is swift and the chief participants drawn clearly and recognisably." Iris Barry
Books p6 O 27 '40 600w

"The book is interestingly written, if you are not too critical about its historical accuracy, or of its imaginative portraits of Theodora and Justinian. . . Praise is due Masefield for his reticence in a theme, which a Russian or a Frenchman would have treated with little respect for the sixth commandment, either in speech or action." B. L. C.
Cath World 152:246 N '40 440w

"No doubt this novel will take its place among the important imaginative studies of one of the most powerful and capable women in history. But as a novel it can well stand on its own merits. It is a breathless tale, taking in the whole life of sixth century Byzantium, with its fierce political factionalism, its impoverished multitudes and insatiable aristocracy, its artistic and intellectual life and its superficial Christianity—epitome of a civilization as fragile as our own."
+ Christian Century 57:1178 S 25 '40 280w

Reviewed by Harold Hobson
Christian Science Monitor p10 D 14 '40 700w

"In no sense a great historical romance, but a thoroughly delightful and engaging glimpse of a world too often buried under the jewelled splendor of its own mosaic-like luxuriousness." H. C. White
+ Commonweal 33:331 Ja 17 '41 410w

"The love story of Justinian and Theodora is slight, developed against a background of the struggle between two political factions, the Greens and the Blues. For adult readers, but might be used on a senior high school list." E. S. Brown
Library J 65:709 S 1 '40 110w

Reviewed by Wilfrid Gibson
Manchester Guardian p6 S 27 '40 180w

"It is psychologically interesting to inquire why on earth Mr. Masefield should have imagined that he needed Byzantium for the spinning of this kind of yarn. Even if the crude accusations of Procopius' 'Anecdota' be disregarded, there is plenty of evidence for believing that the real Theodora was anything but the gentle young governess that Mr. Masefield's heroine suggests. The recent boom in historical novels has evidently exerted its attractive force on Mr. Masefield. If this be Byzantium, well, all one can say is that it has been annexed by Ruritania." V. Nabokov
— New Repub 103:808 D 9 '40 950w

Reviewed by John Mair
New Statesman & Nation 20:360 O 12 '40 360w

"Masefield tells the story in his own economical prose, a poet's prose, made up of phrases, lines and chiseled sentences, rather than paragraphs with filling matter. It doesn't flow, is oddly gaited; but it is attractive for those who catch the way of it. . . It is a sly and engaging tale intended and succeeding as intelligent entertainment." F. T. Marsh
+ N Y Times p6 S 22 '40 950w

"A lively and readable tale."
+ New Yorker 16:81 S 21 '40 50w

"It is readable, informative and graceful, and should prove interesting to a large public." Kate O'Brien
+ Spec 165:452 N 1 '40 40w

"Mr. Masefield brings out very well Theodora's realistic and piercing feminine mind and the stumbling decency of the scholar and lawgiver that Justinian was as a young man, but for the rest he has denied himself opportunity for his story-telling art. In place of what one habitually looks for from him—the salute of epic adventure or a note of contemplative and humane philosophy—there is here a dryness of mood and humour that seems to indicate an unspoken comment on the times we have lately lived through."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p481 S 21 '40 800w

Reviewed by Robert Littell
Yale R n s 30:xii winter '41 30w

MASEFIELD, JOHN. Some memories of W. B. Yeats. 35p $1.25 Macmillan

B or 92 Yeats, William Butler

"Offers brief glimpses of Yeats's home in Woburn Buildings, with their 'kind of blackguard beauty,' where gathered on Monday evenings in the early years of this century 'all who made our little world,' as Masefield has it, and of Coole, with its swans and its waters, sometimes 'talking underground.' . . The casual reminiscences have a hint of the flavor of Yeats's own prose and are interspersed with passages of verse, some of which were spoken in Yeats's memory at a festival of plays and poetry which had been founded at Oxford through his influence." Books

MASEFIELD (māz'fēld)

"This slight book is to be treasured as a moving tribute from one poet, now laureate of England, to another, an Irishman, perhaps the greatest who has written in English in our time. . . The verse, like the prose, is simple, direct and quiet, and the occasional lapses into a more rhetorical style diminish, but cannot seriously injure the stirring and intimate quality of these recollections."
+ Books p19 N 24 '40 160w

"It is of some interest to read one modern major poet's impressions of another (they are favorable and kind) but this particular book is of no great value. One wonders why it was not five times as long and a great deal more passionate and useful." John Holmes
Boston Transcript p9 D 16 '40 60w

"Mr. Masefield's tributes in verse match the simplicity and dignity of the prose memories. All those who care for Yeats' poetry will deeply enjoy Mr. Masefield's quiet little book." Horace Reynolds
+ Christian Science Monitor p10 D 28 '40 500w

New Yorker 16:80 Ja 18 '41 20w

MASON, GREGORY. South of yesterday. 401p il maps $3 Holt

913.72 Mayas. Tairona Indians. Yucatan—Description and travel. Colombia—Description and travel (W) 40-30171

Popular account of the author's archeological expeditions to Central America and the northern coast of South America. Bibliographies. Index.

Booklist 37:67 O 15 '40

"'South of Yesterday' is a timely and much needed book, from an archaeologist's as well as from a layman's point of view. The combination of a scientific yet readable approach has so seldom been presented in the field of American archaeology, that the appearance of a book possessing these qualities is a welcomed innovation. The book is a successful attempt to make Americans conscious of being Americans, of the heritage that belongs by right to the New World. The reading of it is another good step taken in the direction of a better understanding of our neighbors." Doris Stone
+ Books p9 S 1 '40 480w

Reviewed by Lewis Gannett
Boston Transcript p3 Ag 17 '40 950w

"This book is absorbingly interesting from beginning to end, with not a few flashes of humor, and with countless bits of information scattered through it." P. A. Means
+ N Y Times p5 O 27 '40 950w

New Yorker 16:64 Ag 17 '40 20w

"The book is entertaining and informative, although it is often not clear as to chronology. It seems as though the writer would begin writing for the lay reader, and then, carried away by his absorption in his work, would lapse into the drier style of a technical treatise."
+ — Springf'd Republican p7e S 1 '40 700w

MASON, MARY GERTRUDE. Western concepts of China and the Chinese, 1840-1876. 288p $2 The author, 416 W. 118th st, N.Y.

915.1 China 39-2700

"The purpose of this monograph is to state the Western concepts of China as a country and of the Chinese people during the years from 1840 to 1876. The year 1840 marks the outbreak of the first Anglo-Chinese War which is a turning-point in the history of China as well as for Chinese and Western relations. This war is the beginning of the end of China's isolation and aloofness. . . By the decade of the seventies, the general descriptive works on China indicate that foreigners have more accurate information and no longer express some of the more absurd notions about the Empire and its people." (Foreword) Indexes.

Reviewed by Knight Biggerstaff
Am Hist R 45:942 Jl '40 270w

"Fundamentally the work is a valuable reference book and guide to Western opinions about China for the period indicated in the title. According to its foreword it is 'largely a summary of the curious and absurd generalizations of a large number of badly informed writers and also of many shrewd and intelligent missionary and lay scholars, consular officials and travelers.' It is, however, a most intelligent summary. For the opinions have been carefully collected and set in order, topically as well as chronologically." Clarence Hamilton
+ Christian Century 57:320 Mr 6 '40 290w

"The present reviewer is not qualified to point to possible shortcomings in Miss Mason's summaries; he can only admire the brevity which she has achieved without loss of definiteness, and be grateful for a most useful handbook in a field of knowledge which previously required enormous erudition or access to one of very few sufficiently well-stocked libraries." Bruno Lasker
+ Pacific Affairs 13:105 Mr '40 300w

MASON, PHILLIPS. The X of psychology; an essay on the problem of the science of mind. 216p $2.50 Harvard univ. press

150.1 Truth. Intellect. Knowledge, Theory of. Psychology 40-4796

"This work is a philosophical discussion about psychology. The author states that his position is based on the philosophy of Kant, modified by influences from Cohen and Natorp of the Marburg school. The result is an idealism, neither subjective nor ontological, which, with care, may be called logical idealism. 'The problem of the problem of psychology' is to place this science in its proper metaphysical setting, and this involves a survey of the nature of truth, of mind, and of the relation of mind and truth." J Religion

Reviewed by W. R. McNutt
Crozer Q 17:137 Ap '40 230w

"Ineptitudes of style and lack of precision in phrasing render many passages of this book well-nigh impossible of comprehension." O. F. K.
J Philos 37:698 D 5 '40 310w

Reviewed by E. S. Ames
J Religion 20:416 O '40 400w

MASON, VAN WYCK (GEOFFREY COFFIN, pseud). The Bucharest ballerina murders; a Major North intrigue novel. 304p map $2 Stokes

(W) 40-34427

Tale of international intrigue.

Booklist 37:242 F 1 '41

"Fast, picturesque international intrigue of standard pattern." Will Cuppy
+ Books p18 N 3 '40 130w

"This is as lively an adventure as Hugh North has ever encountered in his long and colorful career." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p22 N 3 '40 200w

"This story, centred in Cernauti, Rumania, combines authentic sounding atmosphere with weakish melodrama."
New Yorker 16:88 N 2 '40 70w

Sat R of Lit 23:20 N 16 '40 40w

Time 36:84 D 2 '40 50w

MASON, VAN WYCK (GEOFFREY COFFIN, pseud). Stars on the sea. 720p maps $2.75 Lippincott

(W) 40-8422

Companion volume to Three Harbours (Book Review Digest, 1938) altho not a sequel. The story is of privateering in the early days of the American revolution, the backgrounds being Newport, Rhode Island; South Carolina; and the Bahamas. The hero is Timothy Bennett; a young privateersman; the heroine is Lucy, the girl he loves, who remains faithful to him thru any number of vicissitudes. The period covered is the two years beginning with the siege of the British in Boston by the Colonial army.

MASON, V. W.—Continued

"Mr. Mason has peopled the narrative with a racy assortment; we admire his versatility, applaud the deft touches with which he brings a minor character to life, and only regret that the hero, the heroine, and her plotting parents all do what is expected of them, with an obedience that makes them seem puppets rather than the less predictable flesh and blood."

+ — Atlantic Jl '40 230w

Booklist 36:384 Je 1 '40

"Mr. Mason's second big novel of the American Revolution is worthy of an accolade from the past, and ranks with the best of its contemporaries. It is fine story-telling, and the historical background, for what it attempts, is sound and pretty sure. He has the eighteenth-century touch, a talent for the eighteenth-century picaresque, a gift for indicating without dialect or literal transcription eighteenth-century idiom, and a nice way with Colonial manners. I dare say you could catch him out. But not as easily as either J. Fenimore or Sir Walter. His eighteenth century seems to me as good as, for example, Thackeray's." F. T. Marsh

+ Books p1 Je 2 '40 1700w

"All in all it is an impressive job that Mr. Mason has done. One objects now and then to the stock in trade of the historical novelist—the inevitable and often interminable brawls, the archaic colloquialisms the characters are made to use, the many type characters—but after all it is hard to imagine a vast historical romance without these things, and in managing them, Mr. Mason's hand is always a sure one. If he can bring his ambitious project to a successful conclusion, he will stand head and shoulders above the other recent historical novelists. And, what's more, he will have produced the classic novel of the American Revolution." G. K. Smart

+ — Boston Transcript p1 Je 1 '40 850w

Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Jl '40

"Mr. Mason is at his best in the telling of swift, fierce action. Long as the novel is, it needs its full reach for the gallant and intricate central drama; consequently, this reviewer regrets the subplots with their repeated and artistically doubtful coincidences and the not always sea-worthily stowed ballast of antiquarian and sociological information. . . It is not for young readers, who would naturally revel in its vigorous drama. The age was coarse, war is brutal, men can sink into depravity—we all accept these facts. Unfortunately, Mr. Mason seems too often to be making cold-blooded demonstration of vice and bestiality for their own sake." O. B. White

+ — Commonweal 32:214 Je 28 '40 260w

"The novel is almost too rich in its ingredients, for against a carefully drawn historical background, action is heaped on sensation with an occasional shock sprinkled in for good measure. The writing is skilful, the appeal is to a wide audience, but the conservative reader will be displeased by the frank treatment of certain incidents. The hero's sister is repeatedly sacrificed to make a reader's holiday." H. A. Wooster

+ — Library J 65:397 My 1 '40 200w

"The yarn is not only packed with historical material but is also enlivened with vivid characterisations and exciting incidents. Though somewhat long and rambling and, as a whole, a trifle shapeless, it never ceases to hold the attention." Wilfrid Gibson

+ Manchester Guardian p7 D 20 '40 160w

"As history, better than the texts; as a yarn, a little tall; but throughout as fresh and readable as if it were the first historical novel of the year."

+ New Repub 102:834 Je 17 '40 70w

"The novel is melodramatic. No doubt the author would retort, with some justice, that the times he writes of fairly bristled with melodrama. It is vital and highly colored in spirit, solidly realistic in detail—as if Mr. Mason had borrowed with both hands from whatever school of fiction writing suited his purpose at the instant. It is part, in short, of what looks like being—when Mr. Mason gets his four huge volumes assembled—a very remarkable contribution to American romance." Margaret Wallace

N Y Times p5 Je 2 '40 850w

"Mr. Mason is a good historical researcher; he is not prudish; a number of things can and should be said for him. Yet, at bottom, his book, like others of its kind, is unsatisfactory, primarily because its characters are storybook people and secondarily because the story, with all its cleverness, is just a yarn. It's not a bad yarn, but my point is that it's not presented as a yarn but as 'the major novel of the year.' . . A book is major if its view of life is major, if its author is major. A page of Thomas Mann is major; 720 pages of Mr. Mason's amiable, pleasantly instructive storytelling are minor, and if the episodes and characters of 'Stars on the Sea' were multiplied a thousandfold, the book would still be minor." Clifton Fadiman

— + New Yorker 16:80 Je 1 '40 350w

Pratt p24 autumn '40

"The Battle of Charleston is the high spot of the book. This vigorous novel stops somewhere short of the borderline between good craftsmanship and art. Mr. Mason is a shrewd literary alchemist. His produce is not pure gold, but it is excellent alloy. Plot and action are his first and great commandment. This method has its obvious disabilities. There is no room for subtle shadings of style or character. Not once or twice, but many times, the heavy hand of circumstance and false motivation intervenes so that the show may go on. Yet what a show it is! For vim and sustained interest, for scope and excitement this book is one of the best." Holmes Alexander

+ — Sat R of Lit 22:7 Je 1 '40 550w

Springf'd Republican p7e Je 23 '40 600w

Time 36:72 Jl 8 '40 100w

"The sentimental passages are spiced with a somewhat florid candour, but much of the descriptive detail seems to be well studied and gives the story a measure of historical sobriety."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p641 D 21 '40 310w

Wis Lib Bul 36:127 Jl '40

MASSINGHAM, HAROLD JOHN. Country relics; drawn by Thomas Hennell. 240p $4.75 Macmillan [15s Cambridge]

609.42 Great Britain—Industries and resources. Tools. Farm life. Agricultural machinery [40-7328]

During a long illness which prevented his leaving his own home, the author collected old tools and other properties of English craftsmen and farmers, storing them in a thatched building in his orchard. This collection made up of such articles as the biddle, jad, fromard, topper, plume, hedge-maul, costrels, forms the basis for these stories of the objects and their owners. Index.

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Books p10 My 19 '40 750w

"'Country Relics' is good reading for those interested in craftsmen and their tools. It is not primarily a book for collectors—although the author is one—but a book to be read for the pleasure of it. There is nothing encyclopedic about it, but one cannot read it without adding to his store of information." L. L. Thwing

+ Boston Transcript p6 Mr 9 '40 550w

"Mr. Massingham introduces us, aided by some excellent drawings from Mr. Thomas Hennell, to every sort of gadget, from a barley-hummeler to a mud-scoop; and he succeeds, by reason of his literary skill, in making his technicalities fascinating." Eric Forbes-Boyd

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 D 9 '39 150w

"Mr. Hennell's charming illustrations help to complete a notable record." A. W. Boyd

+ Manchester Guardian p3 N 21 '39 350w

"Country Relics might so easily have been sentimental and oldy-worldy, but was completely redeemed from such accusations by being so practical and well-informed. . . I liked Mr. Massingham's book very much." V. Sackville-West

+ New Statesman & Nation 18:722 N 18 '39 370w

N Y New Tech Bks 25:8 Ja '40

"This book will find a secure place side by side with Change in the Farm, to whose author Mr. Massingham, like us, owes a very considerable debt of gratitude for some enchanting illustrations." H. E. Bates

+ Spec 163:654 N 10 '39 850w

MATHER, EDWARD. See Mather Jackson, E. A.

MATHER, KIRTLEY FLETCHER, and MASON, SHIRLEY LOWELL. A source book in geology. 702p il map $5 (30s) McGraw

550.8 Geology—History—Sources 39-15687

A volume of excerpts from representative writers "for the most part arranged in chronological order according to the dates of birth of the contributors. . . Contributions originating since 1900 have not been considered, nor has the work of living geologists been included. The aim has been to provide the material which must serve as the basis for a picture of seventeenth, eighteenth, and nineteenth century geology. . . In each instance the style of the original article has been retained, even though frequent inconsistencies in punctuation and spelling have resulted. Footnotes, unless otherwise indicated, are from the original publications. Our own comments, whether in the text or in footnotes, are enclosed in square brackets." (Authors' pref) Index.

"A good, though inevitably limited, book of reference and supplementary reading. Each contributor is treated separately and without comment from the authors other than a perhaps too brief biographical note. The thread of development of the science would have been easier to follow if the authors had accompanied the excerpts with a few comments of their own and had arranged them according to the dates of their appearance and influence rather than chronologically according to the birth dates of the contributors." L. B. Freeman

+ — J Geol 48:107 Ja '40 230w

"The literature on the early history of geology has been greatly enriched by the publication of [this book]." V. A. Eyles

+ Nature 145:480 Mr 30 '40 800w

N Y New Tech Bks 25:7 Ja '40

Pratt p9 autumn '40

Scientific Bk Club R 10:4 Ag '39 220w

MATHER JACKSON, EDWARD ARTHUR. Nathaniel Hawthorne, a modest man. 356p il $3.50 Crowell

B or 92 Hawthorne, Nathaniel (W) 40-34977

This new and interpretative study of Nathaniel Hawthorne, written by an English biographer, contains some unpublished letters and other new material. "Unlike the work of a good many psychographers from Strachey on, however, Mr. Mather's pages focus their brilliance, not on advertising the author at the expense of the subject, but on achieving the maximum of disclosure with the minimum of language." (Atlantic) Bibliography. Index.

"If a great imaginative writer can ever be said to need the comprehension of posterity as a human being merely, Hawthorne can be said to need this life, which for the first time persuasively extricates the baffling truth about him as a man strangely locked away from himself, progressively more and more paralyzed by self-distrust, and unable for years on end to recover the slightest conviction that the words his pen poured out by the hundred thousand had any connection with what it and he had always been meant to accomplish."

+ Atlantic D '40 160w

"Mr. Mather has made good use of special sources of information about Hawthorne's years abroad and his perspective is perfect. Probably no better account of this period in the novelist's life has ever been written. He also knows adequately, and not merely from books, the setting of Hawthorne's sojourns in Salem, Concord and Boston. His picture of the social maneuvers of the Peabody clan into which Hawthorne married is inimitable, and the light thrown on Emerson, Alcott and Thoreau, from the standpoint of their un-Transcendental Concord neighbor is fresh and sometimes startling. But in a sure and profound understanding of the New England past Mr. Mather is deficient." G. F. Whicher

+ — Books p4 D 22 '40 750w

"Edward Mather, in real life E. A. Mather Jackson, is an Englishman with many American associations. His biography of a great American is vivid, and if iconoclastic in respect to some traditional figures of the Golden Age, is not so toward Hawthorne."

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 D 21 '40 600w

"Well-written and built on a solid foundation of unobtrusive scholarship, this biography of Hawthorne the man makes him really understandable. The fact that the author, in spite of his name, is not a New Englander but an Englishman doubtless makes for his objective approach. . . This is a book which the general reader can enjoy and the student will appreciate."

+ Nation 151:540 N 30 '40 70w

"Mr. Mather has written an important and interesting book about Nathaniel Hawthorne and certainly one that should be on the shelves of every lover of the author of 'The Scarlet Letter.' It is an unassuming volume and perhaps a part of its strength lies in that very fact." Herbert Gorman

+ N Y Times p3 Ja 5 '41 1350w

"Why one should bother to write or read a biography of a literary man, which does not in some way relate the man's life to his work is puzzling. One would hardly gain from Mr. Mather's account much idea of such a relationship, or even of what Hawthorne wrote. . . A life is a life, however; and Hawthorne's is worth writing about. He has been written about often—and will be. Mr. Mather's biography follows tradition, and will make precedent. Hawthorne's body may lie a-mouldering in the grave, but his biographers go marching on." N. H. Pearson

Sat R of Lit 23:10 D 21 '40 900w

Social Studies 32:47 Ja '41 10w

"In the new book Mr Mather shows a true interest in Hawthorne and some biographical puzzles of his life, but he adds little to known facts, and his knowledge of the American scene is meager. References to places (such as Brunswick, Me.) and persons (such as Longfellow and Sam Ward) are conveyed in summarizing phrases that do not summarize exactly." E. N. Jenckes

Springf'd Republican p6 O 19 '40 1250w

MATHEWS, SHAILER. Is God emeritus? 93p $1.50 Macmillan

231 God (W) 40-34098

"[Dr Mathews] sees God as personality-producing cosmic activity, and yet having the character of a loving Father, and the life lived in cooperation and harmony with cosmic force is man's highest and truest life. How he relates this to Jesus, God and the will of God, is clear and convincing as well as scientifically inescapable. Dr. Mathews knows what it is to be emeritus and he knows that though it may seem so to the great multitude God is not emeritus." Churchman

Reviewed by A. B. Hulen
+ Christian Century 57:1514 D 4 '40 550w

"On reading this book one almost wants to shout out that the century long struggle between science and religion has come to an end. Shailer Mathews, with his clear young mind writes with a profound understanding of modern scientific thought as well as religious and shows how they complement and supplement each other." H. J. Simpson
+ Churchman 154:17 D 1 '40 150w

"Those who are satisfied with the old formulæ will only be irritated with it, but ministers who are trying to mediate faith to persons whose education has been conditioned by a modern scientific world view will find the discussion very helpful." Gordon Poteat
Crozer Q 18:79 Ja '41 110w

MATSCHAT, MRS CECILE (HULSE). American wild flowers. [28p] il 50c Random house

582.13 Flowers (W) 40-35974

Illustrations in color of eighteen wild flowers native to the eastern part of the United States. Each picture is accompanied by a brief, non-technical paragraph describing the plant and its habits.

"With its beautiful color plates and clear descriptive captions for each, this book provides the best possible method for teaching children (and even adults) the characteristics of the commonest wild flowers. Only objection; too few are included."
+ Churchman 154:34 D 1 '40 40w

Reviewed by Marian Herr
Library J 65:1092 D 15 '40 70w

"The color-printing is poor, but the book is well worth the price. Useful, inexpensive." Raymond Holden
+ — Sat R of Lit 23:5 N 16 '40 30w

MATSCHAT, MRS CECILE (HULSE). Preacher on horseback. 429p $2.75 Farrar

(W) 40-14424

A story of mid-nineteenth century days in western New York and Michigan. The chief characters are Janos Sandor, an immigrant from Hungary, who studies medicine, then becomes a minister, and his wife, Rica, daughter of a wealthy Long Island family, who becomes in time a true pioneer woman. In part the novel is based on reminiscences of the author's mother-in-law.

Booklist 37:68 O 15 '40

"This is a leisurely, feminine chronicle of a robust land, of roistering logging camps, lumber bandits, good scarlet women and dogged settlers wrestling land from the forest. The material is authentic. The author has based it on memories of her husband's mother who was the circuit rider's wife. The folksongs are transcribed as Rica remembered them." Page Cooper
+ Books p12 S 29 '40 450w

"There's all the flavor of the early settlers' lives running through this novel, plenty of action, plenty of pathos, plenty of disillusion. Readers who like this sort of thing will like this vigorous book." E. S. H.
+ Churchman 154:38 D 15 '40 100w

"It is [the] sense of continuity and growth, more than anything else, which turns a competent and colorful story of frontier life into a more than usually interesting and moving novel. Mrs. Matschat, by any system of reckoning, is a new writer worth watching." Margaret Wallace
+ N Y Times p6 S 29 '40 850w

"'Preacher on Horseback' is fresh and original as well as fashionable. . . What Janos lacks in religion is amply compensated for in genuine, uncalculated goodness; he is a lovable as well as an interesting hero."
+ Sat R of Lit 23:20 Ja 4 '41 360w
Wis Lib Bul 36:138 O '40

MATSUI, HARU. Restless wave; my life in two worlds. 272p $2.50 Modern age

B or 92 Japan—Social life and customs (W) 40-27167

"This book is the autobiography of a Japanese girl who loves her country and cannot, now, return to it. In America, she is trying to speak for those Japanese who do not want to invade or conquer China, who have worked and hoped for a liberal progress within their own land." N Y Times

Booklist 36:263 Mr 1 '40

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Books p15 Ja 28 '40 70w

"There is a rich and yet womanly warp of imagery which binds the book together—a sensitiveness to landscapes, people and inner moods which reminds one of the short imagistic poems that are Japan's best contribution to the world's poetry." Bradford Smith
+ Books p4 Mr 31 '40 850w
Cath World 151:243 My '40 400w

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin
Library J 65:856 O 15 '40 20w

"A history as delicate as the restless wave which gives it a title. It is compounded of the elusive memories of emotion recollected, not in tranquillity, but in crisis. . . It does not purport to be a sociological treatise or an exhaustive history of the feminist movement in Japan. In lyrical, poetic terms it tells the story of a single individual who lived at a turning-point of history and of her response to new social forces." Elizabeth Mc Causland
+ Nation 150:604 My 11 '40 420w

Reviewed by Isidor Schneider
New Repub 103:391 S 16 '40 350w

"Her book is sincere and suggestive, as well as being an interesting autobiography from 'two worlds.'"
+ N Y Times p3 Ja 21 '40 480w

"Quaintly intuitive writing."
+ New Yorker 15:64 Ja 27 '40 30w

"An extraordinary and very moving document. Of this there can be no question, whether or not one agrees with the author's fiercely-felt convictions about the social and political problems of Japan. . . 'Restless Wave' is frankly propaganda—propaganda for the people of Japan and fiercely against its present government. Like all propaganda, it must be tested for honesty and bias. The honesty is here, and while bias is here also, it is bias that has been honestly and naturally arrived at. The book is an important one for all who are in any way interested in Japan—or in human nature." Harold Henderson
+ Sat R of Lit 21:6 Ja 27 '40 550w

MATTHEWS, ISAAC GEORGE. Ezekiel. (Am. commentary on the Old Testament) 189p $3 Am. Bapt.

224.4 Bible. Old Testament—Ezekiel 40-6283

"The bulk of the book consists of biblical text with running commentary. . . In the Introduction Matthews leads us on through a sketch of the course of critical study of the book of Ezekiel, in particular the revolutionary work of the last fifteen years, to his own solution of questions of authorship and analysis, and to a view of the prophet and his message as these then emerge. It is his conclusion that 'most if not all of Ezekiel's ministry was in Jerusalem.' . . The greater part of the chapters 1-39—if one may so generalize Matthews' careful analysis—is the prophet's genuine work; but the 'Babylonian editor' had a hand in these as well as in chapters 40-48. . . Chapters 1-39 also continued to receive scribal additions 'from 500 to 400 B.C. or later.' " J Religion

Reviewed by W. P. Lemon
Christian Century 57:575 My 1 '40 390w

"Matthews has set the high-water mark of our attainment in criticism of Ezekiel; but equally clearly he has shown that we are only well started on the problem. Of the person and message of the prophet we are still grossly ignorant. And our darkness can be lightened only by a more thoroughgoing study of the text in order to separate the genuine Ezekiel from the pious accretions of later centuries." W. A. Irwin
+ — J Religion 20:397 O '40 700w

MATTHEWS, WALTER ROBERT. Following Christ. 84p $1 (2s 6d) Longmans

248 Christian life

"The new Bishop of London, Dr. Fisher, is continuing the annual practice of his predecessor in sponsoring a book for Lenten reading in the diocese. The first to appear under the new diocesan is this brief but singularly helpful little study by the Dean of St. Paul's, whose object is to suggest in simple language some of the fundamental marks of a Christian as one who is a disciple of the Saviour and Master." Living Church

Christian Century 57:219 F 14 '40 20w

Reviewed by James Van Zant
Churchman 154:18 F 15 '40 70w

"A sound theological background, felicity of style, and a discriminating understanding of the minds of men and women of today make this an ideal little book for Lenten reading." W. N. Pittenger
+ Living Church 102:11 F 21 '40 70w
Times [London] Lit Sup p68 F 10 '40 550w

MATTHIAS, ARTHUR J. How to design and install plumbing; materials and methods of standard practice; with self-help questions. 388p il $3 Am. tech. soc.

696.1 Plumbing (W) 40-27228

"The author of this comprehensive work is Circuit Instructor of Plumbing, Wisconsin Vocational Schools. He deals primarily with the practices, materials, and principles of sewage disposal and water supply as applied to buildings. It is intended both as a guide to the aspiring novices and as a source of information to the laymen, architects, and members of associated building trades. There are more than 300 illustrations." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Booklist 36:277 Mr 15 '40
N Y New Tech Bks 25:10 Ja '40
Wis Lib Bul 36:64 Ap '40

MATTOON, CHARLES STEPHEN. Your career in aviation; the how, when, why and where of finding your place in aviation. 146p il $1.50 Foster & Stewart

629.13 Aeronautics as a profession (W) 39-29462

Concise information on the vocational opportunities of aviation. Outlines the requirements for different positions in the industry, and contains directories covering schools, engine manufacturers, airplane manufacturers, and air lines and air line repair bases.

Booklist 36:171 Ja 1 '40
Cleveland Open Shelf p7 Mr '40
N Y New Tech Bks 25:3 Ja '40

MAUGHAM, WILLIAM SOMERSET. Books and you. 107p $1.25 Doubleday [3s 6d Heinemann]

028 Books and reading (W) 40-5802

Three essays on books and reading, which first appeared in the Saturday Review of Literature, have now been brought out in book form with an introduction. The essays contain discussions of literary masterpieces of English authors, Continental authors in translation, and American authors.

"Everything that Somerset Maugham writes has to an extraordinary degree the quality which he praises in the great books of his present consideration, that of being readable. . . You can read these essays with both the pleasure and the profit which he hopes we shall all find in some of the books he is recommending to our attention." Lorine Pruette
+ Books p21 Ap 14 '40 600w

"[Maugham's] little book about books is like his bigger books, that are books in their own right, excellent."
+ Cath World 151:754 S '40 400w

"A handbook that is useful for the uninitiated, but not very exciting for others, who may, however, be interested in his comments by the way—on, for example, the advantages of 'skipping,' and of reading half-a-dozen books together." Eric Forbes-Boyd
+ — Christian Science Monitor p11 My 11 '40 200w
Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Jl '40

"Written in a highly popular style." L. R. Etzkorn
Library J 65:209 Mr 1 '40 160w

"In the preface the author apologizes for what may at first thought seem to be cursory treatment of a large subject but hopes that he makes up for this by the care of his selections and the conciseness of his remarks. He does. . . It is a sound and conventional basic reading list containing no surprises. Only the first-rate authors have been named and only their best works. The only surprise in this book is the audacious proposition, not to be dismissed too quickly, that since great numbers of the classics of literature cannot now be read with enjoyment we should no longer bother ourselves with them but should send them packing to the scholars and the historians of literature." Austin Stevens
+ N Y Times p2 Mr 31 '40 900w
New Yorker 16:75 Mr 30 '40 20w
Pratt p3 autumn '40

Reviewed by Derek Verschoyle
Spec 164:562 Ap 19 '40 1450w
Times [London] Lit Sup p148 Mr 23 '40 250w
Wis Lib Bul 36:111 Je '40

MAUGHAM, WILLIAM SOMERSET. France at war. 111p $1 Doubleday [pa 6d Heinemann]

940.5344 European war, 1939—France (W) 40-7961

Survey of wartime France in which the author attempts to foster good will and understanding between France and England, and to bring to the attention of the English certain facts which they may have overlooked.

"In 'France At War' Mr. Somerset Maugham has done a piece of important news reporting which the news reporters in France could have done only if they had all been Mr. Somerset Maugham. In his little book, heavy with vital human information. Mr. Maugham gives American readers what millions of them have been waiting for. . . It is a penetrating picture which Maugham was able to assemble in six weeks of official survey and facilitated travel in which he was aided by the French government and his own painstaking curiosity." Janet Flanner

MAUGHAM (môm)

MAUGHAM, W. S.—Continued

+ Books p4 My 12 '40 650w

Christian Science Monitor p10 Ag 24 '40 300w

Foreign Affairs 19:255 O '40 20w

Manchester Guardian p3 Mr 19 '40 180w

New Repub 102:737 My 27 '40 70w

"I think that there should be a vast public eager to read France At War. . . Mr. Maugham has a reputation for cynicism: believing that very few of us have the right to throw the first stone, he likes to expose the weaknesses that we try to conceal even from ourselves. In any case, he is congenitally incapable of the unctuous complacency that made civilian writers in the last war so frequently disgusting. He does not pretend that the French and the English have hearts that beat as one, merely because they are allies." Raymond Mortimer

+ New Statesman & Nation 19:402 Mr 23 '40 900w

"This book which is addressed to the British public ought indeed to be read by every American who does not already know France and its people." Katherine Woods

+ N Y Times p6 My 19 '40 700w

New Yorker 16:91 My 4 '40 40w

Pratt p21 autumn '40

"What possessed the author of 'Rain' to offer the public this nauseating dose of concentrated saccharine? It reminds one of nothing so much as a goody-goody book written by a pious lady for Sunday school scholars and Mr. Maugham even affects the style of such publications. It is the worst kind of propaganda, for few people will believe that the French are the plaster saints that the author represents them as being and fewer still would like them the better for it if they were. It is a pity that Mr. Maugham has spoiled so good a case." Robert Dell

— Sat R of Lit 22:6 Je 1 '40 700w

Springf'd Republican p7e My 5 '40 130w

"Mr. Maugham knows his Frenchmen—and his Frenchwomen—inside out. Not a national trait of character escapes him. He can be entertaining about the probable colour of the women's hair if war outlasts the dye, as he can be equally serious over the rebirth of religion in the hearts of Frenchmen ready to serve or lay down their lives for their country. His description of a visit to the Church of Our Lady of Victories, is poignant in the extreme."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p142 Mr 23 '40 650w

MAUGHAM, WILLIAM SOMERSET. The mixture as before. 310p $2.50 Doubleday [8s Heinemann]

(W) 40-12740

A new collection of short stories, concerning which the author says: "I have now written between eighty and ninety stories, I shall not write any more; I am quite satisfied if the readers of this collection, should they remember any of those I have written in the past, agree that I have not been overbold in giving it the title I have." Contents: The three fat women of Antibes; A man with a conscience; The treasure; The lotus eater; The lion's skin; Lord Mountdrago; Gigolo and gigolette; The voice of the turtle; An official position; The facts of life.

Booklist 37:13 S '40

"As with all books of short stories, precautions should be taken with this one so that its contents are not swallowed whole; there should be a law against reading such a book right through and thus spoiling it. But even consumed in that greedy fashion, it still leaves the reader hoping that Mr. Maugham's publishers will not seriously abide by the threat which its preface contains. The stories are perfect mid-summer nights' fare, and it would be a pity not to have more of that." Iris Barry

Books p4 Jl 14 '40 750w

Reviewed by Ruth Searles

Boston Transcript p1 Jl 13 '40 1000w

"As usual, Mr. Maugham shows himself a brilliant storyteller; and he invariably has a story and not merely a character sketch, a mood, or an atmosphere, to give. . . He can be tragic, pathetic, droll, or frankly gruesome, but he cannot be dull." Eric Forbes-Boyd

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 Jl 27 '40 600w

"There are signs of age in this book, which Mr. Maugham says will be his last of short stories. He is bored with style and gives only the essentials, not always in the most artistic and subtle manner. He is somewhat preoccupied with decadence, neither excusing nor approving it. He is a little tired. But he was once a very great writer and if other great writers do this well when they are sixty-six, they should be more than satisfied." Harry Sylvester

+ — Commonweal 32:313 Ag 2 '40 390w

Reviewed by Harold Brighouse

Manchester Guardian p2 Je 21 '40 170w

Reviewed by V. S. Pritchett

New Statesman & Nation 19:750 Je 15 '40 1750w

"Smoothly, more competently written, these tales are remarkable chiefly for their presentation of character and their basic situations. Though slow paced when compared to many of the best stories of today, they do their primary work in that they pose questions that rouse in the imagination a demand for an answer." Robert Van Gelder

+ N Y Times p6 Jl 14 '40 550w

"For me, the best story in the collection is 'Lord Mountdrago,' a curious, dry tale. . . This is Maugham's last book of short fiction; it may well be his last book. If so, it provides a good note for him to end on—a note of perfect craftsmanship, literary conscientiousness, modest reasonableness. No swan songs, no feeble last-minute explosions; just a sound collection of diverting, ingenious, well-told tales—pure Somerset Maugham." Clifton Fadiman

+ New Yorker 16:64 Jl 13 '40 850w

Pratt p24 autumn '40

"At his best he is an admirable observer; at his worst he is apt to spread on color too lavishly and thicken the dramatic values. But he is one of the few who can deal with sex honestly; and he is both sophisticated and astute." W. R. Benét

+ — Sat R of Lit 22:6 Jl 27 '40 450w

"The bitterness is actually not bitter enough; the highest values are never fully assaulted and the lowest are sometimes mocked a little too gently; personal passion is so much eschewed as almost here and there to threaten formality with silliness. However, here certainly is what the author claims: the mixture as before, which, since it is indeed so carefully mixed, will undoubtedly in these days of violent change be welcomed with an added warmth by the author's countless admirers." Kate O'Brien

+ — Spec 164:788 Je 7 '40 600w

Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 14 '40 600w

Time 36:84 Jl 22 '40 40w

"In a collection of ten stories, even by Mr. Maugham, the level of performance necessarily varies. But every item in this volume contains much to be admired. His choice of types and social background, no doubt, is restricted; he hovers on the brink of a too resolute worldliness; he frequently conveys, as the saying is, a low opinion of women. Yet he turns honesty of mind to fiction with incomparable art. In a foreword he declares he will write no more short stories. If a protest that his admirers are still far from turning from him in weariness can make any difference, one hopes he will change his mind."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p277 Je 8 '40 700w

"Mr. Maugham, with his air of alert weariness, appears to be a man who has lost his zest for life but not his zest for telling about it. This helps to give the mixture a cool but by no means unpleasantly bitter taste." Robert Littell
Yale R n s 30:x autumn '40 210w

MAULE, FRANCES. Selling—a job that's always open. 314p $2 Funk
658.85 Salesmen and salesmanship (W) 40-35758

Practical book on selling for the beginner. Chain stores, advertising, merchandising, writing copy, handling real estate, all come in for a share of attention. The author's theme is that with imagination, ingenuity, and initiative, the salesman cannot lose.

Booklist 37:237 F 1 '41

"A fast-moving style, backed by the authority of the leading personnel managers, sells the reader this volume." N. J. D.
+ Boston Transcript p2 Ja 4 '41 50w

"The psychology is sound and its success stories are confidence-inspiring, but the book producer has not exemplified its principles. Cheap paper and narrow inner margins prejudice the reader in advance against an otherwise desirable book." Maude Adams
+ — Library J 66:85 Ja 15 '41 90w

MAURER, DAVID W. The big con. 300p $2.50 Bobbs
364 Swindlers and swindling 40-32315

A study of the methods and technique of those criminals known as "confidence men," the elite of the underworld of America. The author, a professor of English at the University of Louisville, became interested in his subject by way of research into the jargon used by confidence men and his book ends with a twenty-page glossary of the "lingo."

"This book is one of the ablest, most thorough, most readable and judicious expositions of the Bad Life ever written. The author is neither journalist, prosecutor, detective nor criminal, but merely a professor, an expert in the field of linguistics, who happens to have become fascinated with the confidence game. It is a rich field. The Maurer findings represent the last word in this amusing and sinister branch of skullduggery." Stanley Walker
+ Books p16 O 20 '40 900w
New Repub 104:94 Ja 20 '41 80w

"Professor Maurer's book has a threefold value—as a warning to those who have larceny in their veins, as entertainment for crime literature addicts and as education in the use of picturesque English. It might even be considered as a textbook for prospective confidence men." E. F. Allen
+ N Y Times p8 D 8 '40 440w

MAURIAC, FRANCOIS. Christ's image. See Mornand, P.

MAUROIS, ANDRE. The art of living; tr. from the French by James Whitall. 323p $2.50 Harper
170 Conduct of life (W) 40-27338

Book of counsel on how to live reasonably and profitably, without asking too much of life. Contents: The art of loving; The art of marriage; The art of family life; The art of friendship; The art of thinking; The art of working; The art of leadership; The art of growing old; The art of happiness.

Booklist 36:318 Ap 15 '40
Reviewed by Albert Guerard
Books p2 Ap 14 '40 1150w

" 'The Art of Living' is tolerant, urbane and suggestive in its defense of a way of life. As a guide to conduct it suffers inevitably from the banality of much that must be said when the maxims of common sense are to be reinforced. Fortunately the literary skill of Andre Maurois flavors and redeems the whole, giving savor even to the wisdom of the copybook." N. W. Mattis
+ Boston Transcript p2 Mr 30 '40 230w
Christian Century 57:482 Ap 10 '40 270w
Cleveland Open Shelf p10 My '40
+ Forum 103:200 Ap '40 500w

"The author's wit and charm enliven the book, and his recollections of books read is at once impressive and challenging." H. P. Bolman
+ Library J 65:299 Ap 1 '40 120w

"The book is full of 'quotables'—many of them platitudes. But it is fast, easy reading, the pace set by the dynamic quality of the philosophy itself. Still the biographer, Maurois has drawn freely from his wide reading of classic literature, from his intimate knowledge of the lives of the men who made it. He quotes incidents from novels much as a social worker refers to case histories." Sylvia Leibovit
+ Living Age 358:292 My '40 330w
Manchester Guardian p7 Jl 16 '40 200w
Reviewed by Eileen Holding
New Repub 103:93 Jl 15 '40 420w

"The highbrow, midbrow and lowbrow will all find something to interest them in this sensible book." John Cournos
+ N Y Times p9 Mr 24 '40 1000w

"Conventional and often second-hand, but suavely written."
+ — New Yorker 16:87 Mr 23 '40 30w
Pratt p4 autumn '40

"Here is indeed a pleasant volume. In these days of stress it is a relief to turn to a book that contains neither argument nor anger, no statistics and no diagrams. Even the facts are very few and of a nature to be now beyond controversy or contradiction such as Napoleon's opinion on geometry and Goethe's treatment of afternoon visitors. . . M. Maurois is not quite happy in his discussion of old men, in his chapter on growing old. He himself is still too young to deal with them." Stephen Leacock
+ — Sat R of Lit 21:5 Ap 13 '40 900w

"In this gaily malicious and wisely charming book one of the most famous of contemporary Frenchmen writes of the art which, for the moment, but for the moment only, his great country has lost. . . The Art of Living is neither a Blue Book nor a blue book. It is not dull, and it is certainly not depressing. . . If one is to find fault with him at all it is that, on some occasions, he is almost unreasonably reasonable."
+ Spec 165:44 Jl 12 '40 270w

"There is a particularly helpful lesson in a period of much literary screeching, in the calmness and grace with which the author lures the reader to meditate on the basic values of the personal life. . . Mr Maurois shows that exhortation about the art of living can be beguiling."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 24 '40 800w

"The Art of Living is such a neglected art in these tense times that it is refreshing and invigorating and at the same time infinitely restful to lose oneself in 'Art of Living.' . . The translation of this book has been admirably done by James Whitall, for one feels the exquisite, flowing style of M. Maurois running through it." D. F. Leet
+ Survey G 29:304 My '40 310w

MAUROIS (mō'rwä)

MAUROIS, ANDRE—Continued

"Occasionally, as in the essay on old age, genuine feeling transcends the overlying complacency. But on the whole, the level of art M. Maurois recommends for living and the level he achieves in this book are of a piece: cautious, servile, opportunistic, rationalized, smug."

— Time 35:100 Mr 25 '40 300w

Times [London] Lit Sup p352 Jl 20 '40 60w

Wis Lib Bul 36:95 My '40

MAUROIS, ANDRE. Fatapoufs and Thinifers; tr. by Rosemary Benét; il. by Jean Bruller. 93p $2 Holt

40-34734

"Two brothers, Edmond and Thierry, find the subterranean world where the Fatapoufs and Thinifers live (the first, of course, being round and easy-going, and the second being thin and rigorous). The boys' efforts to bring about a Pan-Subterraneanism make up the plot of the story, but the interest lies largely in the inevitable contrasts in the two countries and their customs." Library J

"I am reviewing this as a book for children, who do not look for hidden meanings, especially if these are of a satirical turn. They will find a book different from 'The Country of 36,000 Wishes' or 'Mape,' but with the same sure sense of a child's dream world, especially in the matter of humor... Adults may find what they please in this book. Children will find amusement." M. L. Becker

+ Books p10 N 10 '40 350w

Boston Transcript p2 Ja 4 '41 250w

"Jean Bruller's illustrations for this typically French tale, so well translated by Rosemary Benét that it even seems to lose some of its Gallic flavor, fit into the text admirably. It is . . . written as might be expected with much finesse, with sly satire, and with implications that do not immediately meet the eye. Youngsters will revel in the novel adventures, while their elders will sense the underlying significance so adroitly suggested."

+ Cath World 152:635 F '41 140w

"Written for the author's own children this unusual fantasy will appeal, peculiarly at this time, to certain children and grown-ups who can seize the significance of its humor." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk M 17:30 Ja '41 150w

"Here is a book for which we should be particularly grateful, for it is full of a spirit which we have come to look upon as characteristically French. It has humor, and light satire; it is easy to see why this story has been a favorite in France... Rosemary Benét's translation is admirable, and the original illustrations by Jean Bruller are just right. Children of eight to twelve especially will enjoy this book." Josephine Smith

+ Library J 65:1092 D 15 '40 150w

"'The Silence of Colonel Bramble' was a book for adults and this gay and delightful fantasy, translated into smooth and vivacious English by Rosemary Benét, is designed for children but it has the verve, the pleasantly disguised commentary on wartime incidents that made the earlier book such excellent reading... Younger children will read Mr. Maurois's tale with eager interest in its exciting incident and imaginative detail but older ones, and parents who may read the story, will recognize in its sprightly dialogue and cleverly devised situations a pungent satire on persons and happenings of the day."

+ Sat R of Lit 23:40 D 7 '40 330w

"This quaint story has a happy ending, for many of the Fatapouf customs on being sampled by the Thinifers were found to be good ones and so were adopted. And vice versa. But most amusing of all were the elements that emerged from the melting pot of Fatapovian and Thiniferian culture and folkways. The translation from the French of Mr Maurois's humorous exploit has been admirably done by Rosemary Benét. Adult readers will find many analogies between Fatapoufs and Thinifers and the conflicts of Europe."

+ Springf'd Republican p10 D 12 '40 650w

MAUROIS, ANDRE. Tragedy in France; tr. from the French by Denver Lindley. 255p $2 Harper

940.5344 European war, 1939—France. France—Politics and government

(W) 40-27735

During the early months of the present war, M. Maurois was a liaison officer between the French and British forces. He viewed the British defenses in Belgium, held conferences with Reynaud, his friend and leader, lunched with British statesmen in London. From these vantage points he attempts to portray the reasons for France's tragedy.

Atlantic N '40 300w

Booklist 37:87 N 1 '40

Bookmark 2:7 Ja '41

"The books describing the great tragedy of France, written by those who witnessed or participated in it, are already crowding our publishing houses and beginning to pour from the presses. Among them there will doubtless be more detailed and more titillating accounts than this, but there will be few of more poignant sincerity and dignity. Briefly, and with that sensitive simplicity of which he is a master, André Maurois gives his personal 'testimony.' Whatever wealth of detail others may supply, I doubt that they will reach much closer to the essentials of the vast moral and material disaster in which France has been overwhelmed." Walter Millis

+ Books p1 S 29 '40 1500w

"His record of disaster is a curious document: it contains no word or phrase which will make Mr. Maurois persona non grata to the German-dominated French government at Vichy." Lewis Gannett

Boston Transcript p11 S 26 '40 500w

"This is a book written by a deeply unhappy man, indeed by a man who has quite lost his bearings. He does not see historical forces very clearly in the political field, and in the economic field he shows no trace of seeing them at all. Hence, while he helps us to discover how things happened, he cannot tell us why they happened, and he travels somewhat on the surface of things, a surface, however, which is still of absorbing interest. . . Nevertheless, the book is well worth reading, both for what it says and also for the things that are left unsaid. The translation is excellent." G. M. A. Grube

+ — Canadian Forum 20:287 D '40 600w

"This book combines the readability of fiction with the authenticity of an acute and first-hand appraisal of one of history's most tragic and most curious disasters." C. W. M.

+ Christian Science Monitor p22 O 9 '40 600w

Cleveland Open Shelf p17 O '40

"The intense readability of this book need not mislead anyone as to its underlying value. There is a lesson in it for all lovers of democracy and in it, too, a hope for a revival of the French Republic." Eleanor Van Alen

+ Current Hist & Forum 52:4 F 13 '41 300w

Reviewed by L. B. Bloch

Living Age 359:287 N '40 360w

Reviewed by Albert Guérard

Nation 151:367 O 19 '40 500w

Reviewed by P. J. Philip

N Y Times p9 N 10 '40 370w

New Yorker 16:103 O 12 '40 60w

"André Maurois has probably given as vivid, accurate, and satisfying explanation of the broad outlines of the French debacle as has yet appeared. He brings to a work that was written under the most harassing circumstances (he and his wife are both refugees from France and escaped by different routes to America) his familiar literary qualities of smoothness, clarity, and wit." W. H. Chamberlin

+ Sat R of Lit 22:5 O 12 '40 1500w

Reviewed by Lindsay Rogers

Survey G 29:626 D '40 90w

Time 36:82 O 7 '40 230w

Reviewed by Leo Gershoy

Yale R n s 30:405 winter '41 210w

MAXTONE GRAHAM, MRS JOYCE (ANSTRUTHER) (JAN STRUTHER, pseud). Mrs Miniver. 288p $2 Harcourt [7s 6d Chatto] (W) 40-27553

A collection of story sketches filled with the sayings and doings of Mrs Miniver, a contented, happily married, humorous middle-class Englishwoman.

"This is mandarin writing, beautifully selected, with hardly a superfluous phrase. Anglophobes won't care for it. But those who wish England well will rejoice that, of the ever-dwindling quota of new books from across the water, this reached us here and now." Edward Weeks

+ Atlantic S '40 110w

Booklist 36:429 Jl 15 '40

Bookmark 2:14 Ja '41

"Reading Mrs. Miniver is like sitting next to a charming, witty lady at dinner who touches amusingly on all subjects. She is in fact, that ideal lady, always sought and hoped for, but seldom found, who is sprightly yet sensitive, intelligent yet gay, humorous but sympathetic. You quote her afterward. . . Mrs. Miniver may be compared with 'The Provincial Lady,' but she has a warmer side, a more human sympathy and a less brittle wit." Rosemary Benét

+ Books p3 Jl 28 '40 1000w

"Much of the fun of parenthood, Mrs. Miniver says—and you can't help quoting her—lies in watching the children remake, with delighted wonder one's own discoveries; and much of the fun of reading 'Mrs. Miniver' lies in the delight of sudden recognition. Mrs. Miniver is beautifully aware of the profundity and universality of trivialities. . . There isn't much war in 'Mrs. Miniver.' But you can't help thinking of bombs falling in Kent, and on London, as you read it. (In fact, Jan Struther has just brought her children to America). The book wasn't written for America; there isn't a word of propaganda in it. Yet reading it, you understand why the poets have written so many of their loveliest lines about 'this England'." Lewis Gannett

+ Boston Transcript p11 Jl 25 '40 650w

Reviewed by Charlotte Bassett

Boston Transcript p2 Jl 27 '40 500w

"This is the work of a rare literary artist, who in a series of very delicately etched vignettes creates one of the most charming characters in present-day fiction and presents a way of life which in its respect for fundamental human relationships, its practical idealism, its essential rightness, must surely have contributed much to the greatness of England."

+ Cath World 152:122 O '40 270w

Christian Century 57:1115 S 11 '40 160w

"They are lightly and entertainingly written, although they read a trifle like a fairy tale that happened once upon a time in a golden age; but the Minivers themselves are not really too good to be true, and you can escape with them without feeling that you have wasted your time." Eric Forbes-Boyd

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Ja 27 '40 130w

"Charming little book of intimate observations on the things that make up everyday life. Read leisurely and appreciatively, its serene calm will infuse your whole mind." E. S. Hertell

+ Churchman 154:20 S 1 '40 90w

"This little book continues as a header on the best seller lists everywhere and the first edition is now both rare and valuable. It is a masterpiece in miniature by a charmer and craftsman who relieves daily life of its tedium and sting, by making a choice game of it."

+ Current Hist & Forum 52:4 N 26 '40 50w

Manchester Guardian sup xv D 1 '39 70w

Reviewed by E. M. Forster

New Statesman & Nation 18:648 N 4 '39 1500w

"Tears do not fall in this book; laughter is above the collar, and the heart beat is sublimated. But it passes one sure test of art: when at the end of the last chapter (a letter written after the war) we feel a thrill of added intimacy to find for the first time that her name is Caroline, we know that we are pervaded by the endearing charm of Mrs. Miniver." N. S. Colby

+ N Y Times p5 Jl 28 '40 1000w

"Jan Struther's 'Mrs. Miniver' is a small book of sketches about very small things. But it is not trivial. She is sentimental, playful, domestic, as was Charles Lamb. . . I do not deny a certain oversweet gentility about Mrs. Miniver, a too comfortable delight in the prospect of a good tea, complete with 'honey sandwiches, brandy-snaps, and small ratafia biscuits.' But underneath this domestic sentiment, this ladies' home journalism, lie perceptions, not at all original but deeply humane and humorous. Mrs. Miniver, like Charles Lamb, will place a gentle hand on your elbow and bid you stop to observe something quite insignificant, and lo! it is not insignificant at all." Clifton Fadiman

+ New Yorker 16:65 Jl 27 '40 460w

"Mrs. Miniver is a Barrie woman in disguise and brought up to date. There is the same sentimentality masquerading as sensibility, the engaging foolishness, the sprightliness, the knowingness about men, bless their hearts, the same turn for a phrase, the motherly shrewdness, the delicate malice." Rosamond Lehmann

+ Spec 163:660 N 10 '39 750w

Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 28 '40 650w

Time 36:68 Ag 5 '40 650w

"Mrs. Miniver is one of those rare characters of fiction whose hold on life is so strong that one daily expects to meet her in the street, and is prepared to argue hotly about her disposition and the likelihood of her acting in this or that particular way. She leads a pleasant, prosperous and ordinary life; and, aside from financial differences, might be almost any woman writing about her husband, her children and her friends—except that any woman who tried to write as she does would have to have her powers of expression, her humour, and her gift of intense observation of all the little things that make life interesting and amusing."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p626 O 28 '39 300w

Wis Lib Bul 36:112 Je '40

MAXWELL, BALDWIN. Studies in Beaumont, Fletcher, and Massinger. 238p $3 Univ. of N.C. press [14s Oxford]

822.09 Beaumont, Francis. Fletcher, John. Massinger, Philip 39-31058

Seventeen studies on the works and times of Beaumont, Fletcher, and Massinger. Some of the articles are reprinted from professional journals, among them Philological Quarterly, which has been edited for the past twelve years by the author, who is also professor of English at the University of Iowa. Index.

"These studies are pointed in a useful direction. They would be more useful if the author had made some attempt to integrate his conclusions. . . Professor Maxwell is at his best when he is questioning the conjectures of other scholars in his field. Necessarily, any attempt to untangle the technicalities of early English drama offers an intolerable deal of conjecture to a rather modest half-penny-worth of evidence." Harry Levin

MAXWELL, BALDWIN—Continued
+ — Boston Transcript p2 F 10 '40 150w

"The studies are excellent examples of modern exact scholarship." W. T. Hastings
+ Sat R of Lit 21:18 F 3 '40 190w

MAXWELL, BERTRAM WAYBURN. International relations. 663p maps $3.75 Crowell

341 International law and relations. World politics 39-23546

"This is primarily a textbook, written with the realization that in the maze of world affairs today the average undergraduate is frequently lost in the erudition of professorial treatises on the subject. Therefore the author has at all times kept before him the needs of college students and has tried to make the text simple and clear, yet at the same time present the subject in all its complexity. . . No attempt has been made by the author to solve current problems or pass final judgment on recent events; but rather to record the most important developments in international affairs since the World War. . . Complete objectivity in a work of this kind is impossible, but an attempt has been made to give a fair analysis of contemporary world affairs." (Pref) Index.

Reviewed by G. B. Noble
Am Pol Sci R 34:366 Ap '40 600w
Reviewed by P. S. Peirce
Ann Am Acad 208:201 Mr '40 490w
Christian Century 56:1211 O 4 '39 60w

"A well organized textbook, written shortly before the war. On account of its rich documentation and lucid analyses, it is also valuable as a reference book on world affairs during the last two decades."
+ New Repub 102:221 F 12 '40 30w
Reviewed by K. C. Frazer
Social Forces 18:602 My '40 600w

"As a compilation this textbook has real merit, as an analysis of international relations it leaves much to be desired." J. A. Perkins
+ — Social Studies 31:94 F '40 240w

MAY, EARL CHAPIN. Model railroads in the home. 248p il $2 Funk

625 Railroads—Models (W) 39-28962

Chapters on model railroad building, containing information on such subjects as scale and gauge, planning and layout, scale model system, model railroad clubs and toy train railroading. Model club directory. Short bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Books p15 F 18 '40 80w
N Y New Tech Bks 24:59 O '39

"Mr May's book reveals some excess of enthusiasm, but it contains an abundance of elementary information, and it is meant for enthusiasts."
Springf'd Republican p8 F 2 '40 480w

MAY, ROLLO. The springs of creative living; a study of human nature and God. 271p $2 Abingdon-Cokesbury

201 Psychotherapy. Psychology, Religious. Mental hygiene 41-934

The author of The Art of Counseling (Book Review Digest, 1939) considers the function of religion in promoting mental health. He approves of the trend in modern therapy to turn the patient's thoughts to things outside himself, and says that it is here that religion performs its essential function. Bibliography. Index.

"Few intelligent readers will agree with everything the author says. They will want to argue with him about this or that minor detail. They may doubt whether he is as well informed in the field of theology as he is in the field of psychotherapy. They may wish that his discussion of the depth of psychology were balanced by an equal consideration of the views of the social psychologists of the Dewey-Cooley-Mead school. But most of them will agree that his major contentions are sound, and that the book is a valuable contribution to the discussion of an important subject." C. T. Holman
+ — Christian Century 58:23 Ja 1 '41 750w

"Thoughtful, well written, well documented." H. J. Simpson
+ Churchman 154:17 D 15 '40 350w

MAYER, HARRY HUBERT, ed. The lyric Psalter; the modern reader's book of Psalms. 370p $3 Liveright

223.5 Bible. Old Testament. Psalms. Poets 40-10008

This volume contains modern interpretations and paraphrases of the Psalms. Among the contributors are Shane Leslie, R. P. T. Coffin, Padraic Colum, Theodore Maynard, Lord Dunsany, S. T. Warner, and many others. Biographical index; indexes to first lines and titles.

"This book has been done in all seriousness and with proper reverence. Now and again there is a rather fine paraphrase, or expansion, or interpretation of the original, as in the case of the 18th and 104th Psalms. . . But, as a whole, this collection seems to me a specimen of colossal presumption. When it becomes advisable to rewrite Shakespeare's Sonnets into the Ezra Pound style, or recast Shelley's lyrics into the new verse forms of T. S. Eliot, or ask Eugene O'Neill to rewrite the Book of Job, this 'modern readers Book of Psalms' may be in place. But not before!" J. H. Holmes
— + Books p29 N 17 '40 280w
Reviewed by Eugene Jolas
Living Age 358:494 Jl '40 110w

"It takes a brave man indeed who will try to improve on the Psalms or even translate them into our own idiom. For sheer beauty they are on a pinnacle far removed from any transcriptions or explanations. . . Lord Dunsany, Douglas Hyde, Padraic Colum and Theda Kenyon have kept nearer the Psalmist's words and simple expressions, and their verses have a fine musical flow. However, the radiance of the book is not that of stars." E. L. Tinker
N Y Times p20 S 8 '40 120w

MAYER, JACOB PETER. Alexis de Tocqueville; a biographical essay in political science; tr. by M. M. Bozman and C. Hahn [Eng title: Prophet of the mass age]. 233p il $3 Viking [8s 6d Dent]

B or 92 Tocqueville, Alexis Charles Henri Maurice Clérel de. Political science 40-8183

Biography and critical interpretation of the French political philosopher, author of Democracy in America, and "the great prophet of the Mass Age." Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by F. A. Ogg
Am Pol Sci R 34:828 Ag '40 340w
Reviewed by Florian Znaniecki
Am Soc R 5:836 O '40 300w
Reviewed by G. W. Pierson
Ann Am Acad 210:149 Jl '40 650w

"For Mr. Mayer's private views I have only respect, but I am bound to say that they have produced a political philosopher whom I do not recognize at all points to be de Tocqueville. Nevertheless, because it introduces a great thinker and a noble soul, and because also it contains quotations of some of the most eloquent words ever written on democracy and against tyranny, it is to be hoped that this book will be widely read." Lewis Galantiere
+ — Books p17 My 26 '40 1200w

"Somewhat colorless and one-sided; the reader would like to learn far more about Tocqueville's person and the background of nineteenth-century France. But Mayer gives a valuable survey of Tocqueville's writings and illustrates it by many well-chosen quotations." F. E. Hirsch

+ — Library J 65:209 Mr 1 '40 160w

"This book is a rare contribution to the fields of letters and political philosophy. Mr. Mayer has painted a moving picture with authenticity and keen understanding." L. B. Bloch

+ Living Age 358:388 Je '40 1500w

New Repub 102:552 Ap 22 '40 70w

"Mr. Mayer's book is a careful portrait of the man built upon a full knowledge of his writings. . . He has written a really interesting volume, made the more significant by the fact that he sees the profound relevance of Tocqueville's prophecies to the grim events of our own time. It is a very useful book which should revive interest in a great man who tends to be forgotten." H. J. Laski

+ — New Statesman & Nation 18:862 D 9 '39 210w

Reviewed by Simeon Strunsky

N Y Times p9 My 5 '40 800w

New Yorker 16:87 Mr 23 '40 30w

"The author's enthusiasm for his hero is commendable, but his judgment is not convincing. De Tocqueville's keen and penetrating mind, his sound and careful scholarship, and his 'frozen logic' combined to make him a first-rate analyst of political and social conditions. But a first-rate thinker he was not." J. S. Schapiro

— + Pol Sci Q 55:620 D '40 480w

"This was a task that needed doing, for although all the manuals paid their respects to Tocqueville, and though Bryce, Faguet, and a few others have written illuminating essays about his work, there was no long study available in any language. Mr. Mayer has now supplied this want very satisfactorily." Crane Brinton

+ Sat R of Lit 21:10 Ap 13 '40 340w

Social Studies 31:328 N '40 160w

Time 35:72 Ap 1 '40 650w

"Mr. Mayer's essay comes as the modest herald of a larger enterprise which is on the way from Paris, a complete edition, under his editorship, of De Tocqueville's writings. Mr. Mayer is rightly impressed with the insufficient appreciation of De Tocqueville as a thinker."

Times [London] Lit Sup p727 D 16 '39 800w

MAYERS, LEWIS. Introduction to the law of business corporations. 213p pa $1 Longmans

658.1145 Corporations. Corporation law

39-19483

"The first three chapters deal with the function of the corporation, answer briefly the question, What is a corporation, and trace the development of American corporation law. The next five chapters develop the principles of corporate organization and control. Chapter IX is entitled 'Problems in Corporate Management.' . . The last six chapters consider special corporate problems also. Among the topics discussed are transactions with directors, the corporation in court, and the corporation in insolvency." Ann Am Acad

"The author's approach to his subject is that of the lawyer who understands something of business policies. The book should be of interest to both students of business and lawyers, particularly if the latter are not corporation lawyers and need only 'perspective and not elaboration.'" H. E. Hoagland

+ Ann Am Acad 206:195 N '39 300w

Reviewed by J. G. Plank, Jr.

Social Studies 31:142 Mr '40 50w

MAYFLOWER COMPANY. Homes in the wilderness. See Mourt's relation

MAYLON, B. J. The corpse with knee action. 256p $2 Phoenix

Detective story.

40-30104

"The puzzle here is about average and the narrative style might be smoother. Still, there's a lot of rough and ready excitement." Will Cuppy

Books p10 Jl 7 '40 120w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin

Boston Transcript p2 Jl 13 '40 70w

"Action and excitement are the keynotes of this story, but it does not make much more sense than the book's jacket, which makes none whatever." Isaac Anderson

— N Y Times p14 Jl 7 '40 160w

"Rather well worked-up surprise ending doesn't make up for completely improbable melodrama of earlier chapters."

— + Sat R of Lit 22:18 Jl 6 '40 40w

Time 36:72 Ag 5 '40 20w

MAYNADIER, GUSTAVUS HOWARD. The first American novelist? 79p il $1.25 Harvard univ. press

B or 92 Lennox, Mrs Charlotte (Ramsay)

40-10043

"Only ten years after . . . Samuel Richardson's 'Pamela,' a book appeared 'in which for the first time in English fiction American scenes were presented by one who knew them at first hand.' It was called 'The Life of Harriot Stuart,' and its author was Charlotte Ramsay Lennox, who, although she was living in England and brought out her books there, had almost certainly been born in America. She came to be a person of some eminence in the London of her day. . . Her story, with the stories of her principal books, makes odd and interesting reading." N Y Times

"In his pleasant and informative little book Mr. Maynadier summarizes what is known about Charlotte Lennox and gives an entertaining account of her work."

+ Boston Transcript p1 Je 29 '40 170w

N Y Times p3 Je 9 '40 550w

"Professor Maynadier's outline of the American scenes and of her largely obscure and unhappy life is pleasantly done, but provides much less detail than Professor Miriam Rossiter Small's five-year-old monograph, and adds little more than one or two unverifiable and not very important conjectures."

Times [London] Lit Sup p499 S 28 '40 100w

MAYNARD, MRS LORRAINE, and MISCALL, LAURENCE. Bellevue. 280p $2.50 Messner

362.11 New York (city). Bellevue Hospital

40-32927

The avowed purpose of this book is to replace the usual picture of horror and fear that the name of New York city's hospital for the poor raises, by the truer picture of a first class hospital, clean, scientifically managed, and manned by doctors and nurses who treat their patients not as cases but as human beings deserving of the best they can give. In manner the book is largely anecdotal and popular in tone.

"The authors are at their best in their stories of individuals and in showing, in very human terms, how the wheels of a great hospital go around. When occasionally they stop to generalize or justify, the narrative slows down as in a few vague injected pages on 'the newly proposed State System' and 'Health Insurance.'" Mary Ross

+ Books p33 N 24 '40 400w

"Besides the human and sociological interest, the reader obtains a very good picture, well illustrated in much detail, of the inner workings of a great modern hospital. What Bellevue really is and does is presented to offset the obsolescent prejudice and fear that its name

MAYNARD, L., and MISCALL, L.—Continued
unfortunately connotes for many people, largely for historical reasons, the shadow of a vague tradition that still surrounds the 'Ritz for the bums.' The frankly journalistic style of the book detracts in no way from its effect or purpose, which is that of honest reporting." B. D. Lewin

+ Sat R of Lit 23:12 N 30 '40 460w

Reviewed by Gertrude Springer

— Survey 77:28 Ja '41 320w

MAYNARD, THEODORE. Queen Elizabeth. (Science and culture ser) 399p il $4 Bruce pub.

B or 92 Elizabeth, queen of England 40-33518

Biography of Elizabeth by a Roman Catholic. "It is very greatly to Mr. Maynard's credit, as a Catholic historian, that he steers his way carefully and good-humoredly between the Scylla of those Catholics who hold that Elizabeth was a species of monster, a Gorgon, and the Charybdis of those non-Catholics who maintain that she was simply the most wonderful and admirable woman in history. In spite of her faults, as he says himself, 'he likes and admires her.' " (Commonweal)

Cath World 152:366 D '40 400w

"Mr. Maynard's 'Queen Elizabeth' is almost a model of what the study of such a figure ought to be and seldom is—careful, scholarly, humorous, neatly written, refreshingly devoid of eloquence and frills." Cuthbert Wright

+ Commonweal 33:28 O 25 '40 900w

"Mr. Maynard does not miss much. Indeed, it is doubtful whether any one, reading these pages, will be prompted to develop a severe case of 'H. M. worship.' For this is not always a pleasant tale. Moreover, the Catholic point of view, strongly pronounced, will meet with ardent objections from many quarters. . . Aside from points of difference, this is an interesting and a thorough book. It is not entirely hostile to its subject." L. W. Eshleman

+ — N Y Times p18 F 2 '41 900w

MAYO, CLAUDE BANKS. Your navy. 372p $3.50 Parker & Baird co, 241 E. 4th st, Los Angeles

359 U.S.—Navy. Military art and science. Naval art and science 40-1127

"Organizations, customs and traditions, strategy, tactics, the nine principles of war, and the place of the United States navy in national security." (Subtitle) The book is based upon lectures given to naval reserve officers of the Eleventh naval district. No index.

Booklist 36:230 F 15 '40

"Aside from one or two bombastic bits, the style is straight to the point, terse and informative. Captain Mayo's aim is to teach and indoctrinate Reserve officers rather than to make a wider appeal, and in his limited aim he has been quite successful."

+ Boston Transcript p5 Ja 6 '40 70w

"Some of the collection is highly technical. But there is much that merits the attention of citizens interested in the political evolution of their navy." H. T.

+ Christian Science Monitor p18 F 9 '40 550w

Foreign Affairs 18:753 Jl '40 20w

MAYORGA, MARGARET GARDNER, ed. The best one-act plays of 1939. 389p $2.50 Dodd

812.08 Dramas—Collections (38-8006)

Contents: Air raid, by Archibald MacLeish; A world elsewhere, by Lynn Riggs; That's Hollywood, by Florence Ryerson and Colin Clements; Gold is where you don't find it, by E. P. Conkle; The hungerers, by William Saroyan; "The captains and the kings," by Channing Pollock; Hospital scene, by L. J. Dugan; Haunted water, by Alfred Kreymborg; The devil is a good man, by William Kozlenko; One-car wedding, by Seyril Schochen; Of time and the blizzard, by John Kirkpatrick; Day's end, by W. R. Benét. Bibliographies.

Booklist 36:341 My 1 '40

Reviewed by W. P. Eaton

Books p13 My 12 '40 50w

"Miss Mayorga's material is, on the whole, not so rewarding as Mr. Mantle's and, since there is little check either by counter-opinion or audience reaction, her selection is more subject to whim. In the present volume her taste ranges widely, and so does the quality of the short plays." R. L.

Sat R of Lit 21:20 Mr 9 '40 220w

MAYORGA, MARGARET GARDNER, ed. Twenty short plays on a royalty holiday (1940 to 1943). (V 2) 486p $3 French

812.08 Dramas—Collections (W)

"These plays, never before published, are offered royalty-free to amateurs until July, 1943." (Subtitle) The producers of the plays must, however, purchase one copy of the play, in separate form, for each member of the cast. Separate plays are published at thirty-five cents per copy. Volume one was published 1937.

Booklist 37:32 O 1 '40

"Although the types are varied, the majority do have a love interest or a sophistication which makes them too mature for the younger teens. Dramatic teachers would consider many rather flippant for senior high school or college use. But withal such a collection is needed by the public library in either the older boys' and girls' department or the adult." Miriam Snow

Library J 65:769 S 15 '40 100w

MAZOUR, ANATOLE GRIGOREVICH. An outline of modern Russian historiography; with an introd. by Robert J. Kerner. 130p $1.25 Univ. of Calif. [7s 6d Cambridge]

947.007 Russia—History—Historiography 39-34151

A survey of the works of Russian writers on Russian history from the eighteenth century to the present. The author is assistant professor of history in the University of Nevada. General bibliography. Index.

"This slender and unpretentious volume is a valuable addition to Slavic studies in America if merely because it represents the first account in English of the development of Russian historical writing. But it is in fact considerably more than that; it is a reliable and impartial handbook of Russian historiography, indispensable to the scholar. . . Although the author makes an occasional enlightening reference to the continuing agenda of Russian historical science, limitations of space and construction have prevented him from following out this theme consistently. As a result the reader is sometimes left in contemplation of largely unrelated facts about historians and their work." P. E. Mosely

+ — Am Hist R 45:966 Jl '40 300w

"It is well designed for its main purpose as an initial guide for students of Russian history, but the bibliographical references, which are admirably up to date, will in addition be found most useful by all scholars in this field." B. H. S.

+ Eng Hist R 55:513 Jl '40 440w

Foreign Affairs 18:574 Ap '40

MEAD, EDWARD SHERWOOD, and GRODINSKY, JULIUS. The ebb and flow of investment values. 513p $5 (25s) Appleton-Century

332.67 Investments. Securities. Corporations. Corporations—Finance 39-33422

"This study represents an effort to explain the movements of investment values in terms of the influences which produce changes in corporate profits. The changes come largely from fluctuations in demand. This volume, therefore, is primarily an examination of the effect of the demand factors upon corporate income and so upon investment values. The effects of the forces of supply upon earnings are also presented." (Pref) Index.

Reviewed by F. F. Burtchett
Ann Am Acad 212:264 N '40 400w

Booklist 36:230 F 15 '40

"This study of Drs. Mead and Grodinsky, written with the sprightliness and wit that have characterized their previous writings, is not a mere device to assist security speculation. It has important social implications that institutional investors such as insurance companies, investment trusts, banks, financial houses and trustees will quickly appreciate." Bernhard Ostrolenk
+ N Y Times p20 Mr 31 '40 900w

MEADE, CHARLES FRANCIS. Approach to the hills. 265p il $2.75 Dutton [10s 6d Murray, J]

796.52 Mountaineering. Alps. Himalaya mountains 40-33577

Twenty-three essays on mountain climbing, by an English enthusiast who has had a wide experience in the Alps and the Himalayas. The book is in two sections: the first devoted to experiences in the Alpine regions; the second, to the climbing of the author and others in the Himalayas. Eight of the essays have appeared previously in English periodicals. Index.

"Nearly all mountaineers' books, it seems to this reviewer, are marked by the best human qualities of sportsmanship: not merely courage and resourcefulness but fairness, modesty, consideration, community spirit, good sense. Those characteristics are in this excellent book, and further enrich its variety of adventure."
+ Books p26 S 29 '40 270w

"Mr. Meade writes admirably, in an easy and unforced but elegant way, like a good climber on sound rock; his judgments are finely and sympathetically considered." P. J. M.
+ Manchester Guardian p3 Mr 21 '40 300w

N Y New Tech Bks 25:50 O '40

"This is a most excellent book of mountain exploits."
+ N Y Times p5 Ag 25 '40 350w

"These stories are dramatic in themselves, and they are told with accuracy and understanding, but they lack the liveliness of Mr. Meade's first-hand impressions. . . One is inclined to wish that the author had been a little more precise in his dates, but to the 'professional' Mr. Meade's book will be valuable for its account of his attempts on Kamet; to the general reader it offers a useful summary of modern climbing."
+ — Spec 164:696 My 17 '40 260w

Springf'd Republican p7e D 29 '40 1550w

"Mr. Meade has at least the technical skill which entitles him to appraise their exploits, edifying or the reverse, a sense of beauty which ensures him from regarding the Alps as a mere gymnasium, a long experience both in Europe and in mountains in other continents, and a literary skill, both innate and acquired, which makes the path pleasant for those whose approach to the hills is in his company."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p196 Ap 20 '40 600w

MEADE, JAMES EDWARD. The economic basis of a durable peace. 192p $2 Oxford [6s Allen, G]

330.9 Economic policy. Peace

"This book suggests the basic principles upon which a new international economic order should be built at the close of the present war. Particular attention is paid to the possibility of constructing such an international order on the basis of divergent national economic systems—whether liberal or planned, capitalist or socialist. . . As a member of the Secretariat of the League of Nations the author is at present responsible for the World Economic Survey. . . He was formerly Fellow and Lecturer in Economics at Hertford College, Oxford." (Publisher's note) Index.

Am Econ R 30:597 S '40 30w

Reviewed by V. A. O'Rourke
Am Pol Sci R 34:1045 O '40 290w

Reviewed by E. M. Patterson
Ann Am Acad 211:202 S '40 340w

Boston Transcript p2 Jl 20 '40 120w

Canadian Forum 20:156 Ag '40 260w

Foreign Affairs 19:255 O '40 20w

New Repub 103:94 Jl 15 '40 40w

"The chief fault of Mr. Meade's stimulating little book is that he has crowded his material into too small a space—sometimes at the expense of clarity in exposition. He is also perhaps too much disposed to work on the assumption that the economic systems of the democratic countries will emerge from the war substantially unchanged by the experiences of wartime control; and this causes him to overemphasise the economic liberalism of the framework into which the various countries will need to fit their systems at the making of the peace. His book is, however, an exceedingly interesting little essay, and salutary in its insistence on certain plain economic truths which the makers of paper-constitutions for the post-war world are very prone to forget." G. D. H. Cole
+ — New Statesman & Nation 19:506 Ap 13 '40 650w

"To all who seek ways of establishing peace and international justice this book may be commended as a very gallant attempt to aid their endeavours." Lionel Robbins
+ — Spec 164:418 Mr 22 '40 950w

Times [London] Lit Sup p322 Jl 6 '40 500w

MEADE, JULIAN RUTHERFORD. Bouquets and bitters; a gardener's medley [il. by John O'Hara Cosgrave, II]. 271p $2.75 Longmans

716 Gardens 40-7338

Excerpts from the author's garden diary for the space of a year, during which time he visited gardens of distinguished persons from Maine to Hollywood. The book is spiced with wit and philosophy about both gardens and personalities.

"If you have a garden—and that means a window box in the city or an acre in the country—you're bound to like Julian R. Meade's new book, 'Bouquets and Bitters.' And even if you do not have a garden, you'll enjoy reading the things, serious and otherwise, he says about people who have gardens. For this young man is an observer and student of humans as well as flowers and has an engaging way of combining his interests." Rose Feld
+ Books p4 Mr 3 '40 700w

"Since Mr. Meade is a garden gossip rather than a technician, the book wanders away lightly and pleasantly down so many varied pathways that one need never have handled a hoe or damned a cutworm to enjoy his accounts of gardening. . . By and large, the book is delightful reading, bearing the same relation to genuine garden books as a popular magazine love-story does to the novels of someone like Hardy."
+ Boston Transcript p13 Ap 11 '40 270w

Reviewed by Clare Leighton
Forum 103:265 My '40 280w

J Home Econ 32:566 O '40 50w

"The sketchy quality of his book may be either strength or weakness—it depends on what you are looking for—but it is a human record of pleasant ramblings. And its clear blue-and-white drawings add their own charm."

MEADE, J. R.—Continued
+ N Y Times p5 Mr 3 '40 360w
New Yorker 16:91 Mr 9 '40 30w
Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 31 '40 1050w
Wis Lib Bul 36:97 My '40

MEADE, JULIAN RUTHERFORD. Peter by the sea; il. by Grace Paull. 146p $1.50 Doubleday 40-32984

A small boy with a desire for a blue automobile and a puppy learns to garden and to swim, and in due time the blue automobile and the puppy are his.

Booklist 37:221 Ja 15 '41

"A delightful story for little boys, with the same charming naturalness and sense of fun which has made Teeny and the Tall Man a household favorite with little girls. Small boys who love dogs and are learning to swim can identify themselves with Peter in his happy summer by the sea." Lena Barksdale
+ Horn Bk M 17:61 Ja '41 70w

Reviewed by R. A. Hill
Library J 65:848 O 15 '40 20w

"There is the same humor and spontaneity as in Teeny and the Tall Man. For eight to ten-year-old boys." Florence O'Gara
+ Library J 65:1044 D 1 '40 120w

"A story with humor and natural charm for small boys." Lena Barksdale
+ Nation 151:455 N 9 '40 20w

Reviewed by E. W. Steele
New Repub 103:843 D 16 '40 20w

"Well planned and executed." Z. C. Durrell
+ Sat R of Lit 23:9 N 16 '40 20w

MEADER, STEPHEN WARREN. Clear for action! il. by Frank Beaudouin. 323p $2 Harcourt
(W) 40-27736

In the spring of 1812 Jeff Robbins, a Maine boy of seventeen, shipped before the mast in the schooner Abigail, bound for the West Indies. On the way the Abigail was stopped by a British frigate and Jeff and some of his shipmates were impressed for service. There followed an adventurous few months before the boy escaped and returned to his home.

Booklist 37:94 N 1 '40

"Well told, well illustrated, this is an honest tale of a turbulent time." M. L. Becker
+ Books p14 N 10 '40 320w
Churchman 154:4 D 15 '40 10w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk M 16:440 N '40 70w

"There is more diversity in this sea story than is usually found in most stories of its kind and there are less blood curdling and harrowing details of misery and suffering." Claire Nolte
+ Library J 65:814 O 1 '40 140w

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin
Library J 65:855 O 15 '40 20w

Reviewed by Lena Barksdale
Nation 151:456 N 9 '40

"Although 'Clear for Action' is not Mr. Meader's best work, it is a vigorous story with the interest well sustained, and an authentic background. We have few stories about the War of 1812, so this one is the more welcome." A. T. E.
+ N Y Times p26 N 10 '40 240w

"Meader has written better books, but boys from ten up will gallop through this one, nevertheless. All the proper ingredients are there—the War of 1812, two New England boys impressed from a cargo schooner into a British frigate, their escape to an uninhabited Caribbean island, buried treasure, countless battles at sea, their safe return."
+ — New Yorker 16:130 D 7 '40 60w

"No particular merit."
Sat R of Lit 23:38 D 7 '40 30w
Springf'd Republican p7e D 15 '40 180w
Wis Lib Bul 36:172 D '40

MEADOWCROFT, MRS ENID LAMONTE. Along the Erie towpath; il. by Ninon MacKnight. 227p $2 Crowell
(W) 40-32438

The background of this story for young readers is the building of the Erie canal from Albany to Buffalo; the time is from 1823 to 1825. Stephen and Emeline Davis from New York city, orphaned during the yellow fever epidemic, travel to Albany to stay with a widowed aunt and her children. They find their aunt kindly but poor, the house overcrowded, and life a bit difficult, but the children all help, even to working on the new canal.

Booklist 37:123 N 15 '40

"The historical material has been well studied, the story is lively and the illustrations are better than good. For children of twelve, plus or minus about two."
+ Christian Century 57:1251 O 9 '40 50w

Reviewed by F. B. Sloan
Christian Science Monitor p9 Ja 27 '41 120w

"The children are lifelike and individual, especially David, whose different jobs on the towpath brought him in contact with strange and surprising characters. In the well-drawn pictures with their careful detail there are many sidelights on the customs of the time." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk M 16:439 N '40 110w

Reviewed by R. A. Hill
Library J 65:850 O 15 '40 20w

"The book is filled with fascinating and authentic details of the everyday life of the period. Not only will it be popular with boys and girls of ten to twelve, but valuable in connection with the social studies. Good print and makeup. The numerous illustrations in black and white and color by Ninon McKnight make the book attractive, but are a bit too 'pretty.'" Marian Herr
+ Library J 65:927 N 1 '40 200w

"Though all this is told attractively with lively good spirits, the narration seems to me to resemble the style of the illustrations—gentle tints and slender lines and perhaps a little too much detail. My nine year old son said that the story was pretty neat, which is high praise; but I should have liked it better (and I think he would have) if there had been more compactness and more of a suggestion of the reality of life. . . But 'Along the Erie Towpath' is better than the average. It is far more informative than most of its kind I have seen, and its three or four errors of fact are unimportant and would not trouble anyone but the present writer anyway." W. D. Edmonds
+ — Sat R of Lit 23:7 N 16 '40 750w
Social Studies 31:380 D '40 20w
Wis Lib Bul 36:154 N '40

MEALY, ERASTA MELVINA. The exceptional child: your responsibility and mine. 78p $1 Chapman & Grimes

136.76 Children, Abnormal and backward. Children, Gifted. Child study 40-10360

By "exceptional child" the author means the child either above or below the normal fifty percent. She argues that mothers, teachers and social workers should be taught ways for detecting abnormalities early in life and that the children thus discovered should be sent to special schools, segregated in institutions, or otherwise cared for. Bibliography.

"Miss Mealy's plea for exceptional treatment of the exceptional child is hardly new. Educators have been working toward this end for a good many years. But with the numbers of sub-normal children increasing and the child of superior mentality being held back and down throughout our educational system, that the inferior may not feel his inferiority, it is high time such a book were written and brought to the attention of the layman for which it is intended. It is clear, practical and easy to read." R. G. Cook

+ Boston Transcript p2 Jl 27 '40 210w
School & Society 52:64 Jl 27 '40 20w

MEANS, MRS FLORENCE (CRANNELL). Across the fruited plain; with il. by Janet Smalley. 113p $1; pa 50c Missionary educ. movement

40-11704

In fictionized form the author tells the story of the migrant fruit-pickers of the United States. From their Philadelphia home, sold for taxes, the story follows the Beecham family to the Jersey cranberry bogs, to Florida, to Texas, to Colorado, to California, and at last to the comfort and security of a cooperative farm. Almost the only bright spots in the tale are the results of finding Christian Centers where some help is cheerfully given to the wanderers by nurses and teachers.

"A book more different in every respect from 'The Grapes of Wrath' would be hard to imagine, but this little story 'for children from nine to twelve' offers them the same subject, so presented as to touch their sympathies rather than their indignation. . . The work of the Centers is described as missionary effort, but this is not what we used to mean when we spoke of a missionary story; it is a sympathetic report, to children, on efforts of our churches to meet a contemporary situation in America. Indeed, it is so sympathetic that it is pretty rose-colored in spots." M. L. Becker

+ — Books p6 Ag 11 '40 290w

"A juvenile (and completely expurgated) Grapes of Wrath with a happy ending."

Christian Century 57:676 My 22 '40 20w

MEANS, MRS FLORENCE (CRANNELL). At the end of nowhere; il. by David Hendrickson. 232p $2 Houghton

40-32069

A small Colorado town in the year 1904 is the scene of this story for girls from eleven to thirteen. A Kansas City minister in search of health brings his family to this remote settlement, and gradually they fit into the life of the community, to the profit of both Apache and themselves.

Reviewed by F. B. Sloan
Christian Science Monitor p9 N 14 '40 160w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk M 16:443 N '40 80w

"Wholesome fresh picture of family life and life in Colorado in the early twentieth century. Rather an unpleasant portrayal, however, of unsympathetic grown people and unfortunate children. Pleasing make-up with fine illustrations in black and white by David Hendrickson. Ages eleven to thirteen." Sonja Wennerblad

+ — Library J 65:927 N 1 '40 160w

"The plot has an uncertain pattern because of slack threads. It lacks the straight dramatic interest of 'Penny for Luck' and some of this author's best stories. But the character drawing and the local color have an unusually realistic quality and the whole has a liveliness and sense of fun that will hold young readers. The illustrations deserve special mention for their fidelity to the times and people." I. S.

+ — N Y Times p41 N 10 '40 280w

Reviewed by Gladys Graham
Sat R of Lit 23:25 N 16 '40 40w
Wis Lib Bul 36:154 N '40

MEARNS, HUGHES. The creative adult; self-education in the art of living. 300p $3 Doubleday

374 Education of adults. Self culture

(W) 40-27098

Professor Mearns, a leader in progressive education and chairman of the Department of Creative Education at New York university, applies, in this book, to the teaching of adults, the principles which he has learned during a long experience in child training. Here is told the story of creative abilities discovered in adults as his earlier books Creative Youth and Creative Power (Book Review Digest, 1925, 1929) told of the creative abilities of youth. The method aims at building up a resourceful and independent personality, the banishment of fear, the cultivation of honest judgments and discovery of the causes that prevent the development of the free spirit.

Booklist 36:230 F 15 '40
Bookmark p4 My '40
Boston Transcript p2 Jl 27 '40 80w

" 'The Creative Adult,' if every one on earth read it, agreed with it and acted upon it, would stop the war, democratize Germany and Russia, knock a rib or two out of Mr. Chamberlain's umbrella, and make an extremely pleasant new kind of world. . . It must be admitted that there is a disproportion between the simple grandeur of the plan and its demonstrable results. . . Yet one can't doubt that Mr. Mearns is on a right and beautiful track. To see the 'dumb class' come to life because somebody strikes the spark of self-trust and self-expression and then stands aside is to see a miracle." R. L. Duffus

+ — N Y Times p3 Ja 21 '40 1300w
Pratt p7 autumn '40

"Unlike many theorists, [Mr. Mearns] has consistently put his beliefs to the test of practice, and this book is an honest, if enthusiastic, account of what he has found. . . This is a stimulating book. It is optimistic, frequently dogmatic, as biassed, at times, on its own side as the formal educationists were on theirs. It has 'you, too' touches in it that I don't like at all. It has many extremely penetrating remarks, on the teacher as well as the taught, on children as well as adults. It won't make you over. It may make you think at least one actual thought. That is what a good teacher does, even on the printed page." S. V. Benét

+ — Sat R of Lit 21:12 Ja 20 '40 600w
Springf'd Republican p7e F 25 '40 220w

"This is a splendid, inspiring book for teachers especially. And every inquiring adult with the hearing ear and the seeing eye should find here that which will add a cubit to his inner stature." Ordway Tead

+ Survey 76:309 O '40 410w
Wis Lib Bul 36:63 Ap '40

MECHEM, KIRKE. John Brown; a dramatic poem in three acts. 113p $2 Kan. magazine pub. assn, box 237, Kan. state college, Manhattan, Kan.

812 Brown, John, 1800-1859—Drama 40-4162

"A three-act verse tragedy treating John Brown's life, from his first participation in the free-state troubles to the gallows, in terms of personal and national significance." New Repub

"Probably for practical stage purposes the play has too many characters and too many scenes, and the scenes are in historical progression at the expense, sometimes of dramatic progression in the central figure. Nevertheless, the play is written in a harsh, nervous, colloquial verse form which has both reality and power. Even the minor characters come to life, and that 'angry man of God' who is the hero rises at times to a hint of the ferocious fanaticism depicted in Curry's portrait. If Kansas can go on turning out indigenous dramas of this quality, it might become in time independent of Broadway." W. P. Eaton

+ Books p11 F 18 '40 120w

MECHEM, KIRKE—Continued

"The characterization, though forceful, is not entirely convincing. The verse is a competent approximation of everyday speech."

New Repub 102:189 F 5 '40 30w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 11 '40 270w

MEDARY, MARJORIE. Edra of the islands; il. by Dorothy Bayley. 280p map $2 Longmans

(W) 40-13170

The islands off Nova Scotia form the background of this story for boys and girls from twelve to sixteen. Edra was glad to leave her island home, ruled by a stern father and a scolding older sister, and help in a summer hotel on Foss Island. There her dependability brought good luck to herself and her whole family.

Booklist 37:19 S '40

"This is a lively, happy story of a summer camp, but it is also an object lesson in getting along together." M. L. Becker

+ Books p7 D 29 '40 250w

Reviewed by F. B. Sloan

Christian Science Monitor p13 O 31 '40 200w

Cleveland Open Shelf p20 O '40

"Besides being an engaging story, this novel offers vocational background for a 'hostess' and shows an appreciation of the sturdy characters in its village setting. Desirable for its study in family affection and adjustment. By far this author's best." Maude Adams

+ Library J 65:715 S 1 '40 120w

"The narrative moves along casually without much apparent sense of direction, but the problems which seem individually to be minor ones mount up to a significant sum total. This is an understanding study of an untried girl tackling life with real grit, set against a background which has its own tonic flavor, ably portrayed." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p10 Ag 25 '40 440w

"Nice change of surroundings." Gladys Graham

+ Sat R of Lit 23:25 N 16 '40 40w

Social Studies 31:336 N '40 10w

Springf'd Republican p7e D 8 '40 120w

Wis Lib Bul 36:142 O '40

MEDITATIONS in Wall Street; with an introd. by Albert Jay Nock. 148p $1.50 Morrow

818 Aphorisms and apothegms 40-6168

These anonymous "meditations" purport to be the reflections on human life of an American business man, typically a New Englander, with an office in Wall Street, who had "a gift for aphoristic utterance." In his preface Mr Nock tells the story of his acquaintance with "A.B.," gives a picture of the man as far as he knew him, and reviews their mutual interests in the writings of the philosophers, ancient and modern.

Booklist 36:379 Je 1 '40

Reviewed by Lewis Galantiere

Books p16 Mr 17 '40 1400w

Boston Transcript p2 My 18 '40 50w

Reviewed by T. F. Woodlock

Commonweal 31:494 Mr 29 '40 600w

"'Meditations in Wall Street' is an amazing little book which belies the common associations of the second part of its title by the fullness with which it lives up to the suggestion of the first word. It is a book of meditations on life and humanity and the individual, and if they are terse and pithy they are also farseeing and wise."

+ N Y Times p23 Mr 31 '40 400w

"Mr. Nock's verdict on A. B.—'one of the most acute, powerful, original, and interesting minds that I had ever encountered'—is justified by these aphorisms and gnomic utterances, many of them worthy of Joubert or Emerson. . . In Mr. Adler's sense of the word, he knew how to read. From his reading grew reflection of that grave and impartial variety so seldom to be found today." Clifton Fadiman

+ New Yorker 16:87 Mr 9 '40 340w

Time 35:103 Ap 15 '40 210w

MEEK, LOIS HAYDEN. Your child's development and guidance told in pictures; 101 photographs, 62 line drawings by Lucia Manley. 166p $2 (10s 6d) Lippincott

649.1 Children—Care and hygiene. Children —Management (W) 40-8067

Series of photographs and drawings with simple explanatory text, showing the development of the child from birth to six years. Practical advice for parents on the care and management of children at different periods is given. Short bibliography. No index.

"The language is simple and direct, without superfluous words or technical phraseology. One feels that the author has comprehensive technical knowledge of her subject, tempered by a very flexible philosophy. Practical, common-sense advice is given with a very real understanding not only of child nature and needs, but also of 'parent' nature and needs." Ethel Gordon

+ Am J Pub Health 30:1130 S '40 400w

Booklist 36:378 Je 1 '40

Cleveland Open Shelf p10 My '40

J Home Econ 32:565 O '40 70w

"The book is much more than a manual of instructions: it interprets the child's actions and moods, leading the parent to a better understanding of the child's nature and needs, and cultivating mutual adjustments that make for better, happier development through the years. It can be recommended to all parents, and indeed to all who have anything to do with young children." S. M. Gruenberg

+ Survey 76:340 N '40 170w

Wis Lib Bul 36:95 My '40

MEESE, MRS MILDRED FOULKE. Star light, star bright; il. by Marjorie Lee Ullberg. 316p $2 Bobbs

40-31386

Continues the story of Mary Carstens, begun in The Wagon to the Star (Book Review Digest, 1939). It is an account of Mary's senior year at Sherman University, where she works part time as a laboratory assistant. Dormitory life, sororities, parties, and a hint of romance make this book of interest to older girls.

Cath World 152:380 D '40 80w

"Less mature girls of adolescent age will overlook its confused, slightly melodramatic plot and far-fetched adventures in their keen enjoyment of its wholesome, fast-moving story." Dorotha Dawson

+ — Library J 65:814 O 1 '40 60w

MEIER, FRANK. Up for air; diving for a living. 287p il $2.75 Dutton

627 Diving, Submarine (W) 40-27554

Story of the author's thirty-five years as a diver, both in the Navy and in commercial work, on many types of assignments and under many conditions.

Booklist 36:408 Jl 1 '40

Bookmark 2:5 Ja '41

Books p9 Jl 21 '40 150w

"It is, as one would expect, a chronicle of excitements. It teems with definite information, too, about apparatus, and safeguards, and oddities of the diver's experience. And yet the most surprising thing about this record of a master diver's career is not its adventure nor its scientific particularities, but its day-by-day, close-at-hand, matter-of-fact variety."
+ N Y Times p10 Je 9 '40 500w

"A ghost writer may have taken a hand in the narrative, but it is absorbing stuff, nevertheless. Much of it has come out in the magazines."
+ New Yorker 16:71 Je 22 '40 50w

MEIGS, CORNELIA LYNDE. Call of the mountain; il. by James Daugherty. 258p $2 Little (W) 40-33591

Story of the struggles of a Vermont youth in the 1830's to clear and work a mountain farm, to keep his dog from reverting to type, and to win the trust of the valley people when one man's malice had brought him into disrepute. For older boys and adults.

Booklist 37:140 D 1 '40

"Here is Cornelia Meigs's best book. Do not waste it on children so young that all they ask is smash-bang action. What goes on here is stirring and something is always going on, but the story has more than mere sensation hunters can take in. . . These are rugged individualists, yet their community spirit is strong; they are Vermonters through and through. High schools and academies in the state should keep the book at hand and Vermonters in absentia should see that their boys and girls get it. Mr. Daugherty's pictures are in the right key of strength, especially the smaller ones." M. L. Becker
+ Books p8 N 10 '40 350w

Boston Transcript p2 Ja 4 '41 100w

"There is a vital, satisfying quality about Miss Meigs' writing and James Daugherty's strong pictures have the essence of those virtues exemplified in Nathan Lindsay's earnest striving in the wilderness." F. B. Sloan
+ Christian Science Monitor p9 D 19 '40 240w

"Here again Cornelia Meigs has drawn a boy with vision and integrity. The vigorous pictures by James Daugherty are well suited to the rugged Vermont scene in the second quarter of the last century." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk M 17:31 Ja '41 130w

"Although the setting of the story is 1830 in Vermont, that is only incidental. The story is timeless and has something of the flavor of Dorothy Canfield Fisher's Seasoned Timber." M. R. Lucas
+ Library J 65:1045 D 1 '40 200w

Reviewed by E. W. Steele
New Repub 103:845 D 16 '40 30w

"The best element of this fine novel for young people is its portrayal of a New England community with heart-warming friendliness pitted against the suspicion of people less malicious than bored. It is an inspiring story of courage for youth to read in a troubled period." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p10 N 10 '40 290w

New Yorker 16:130 D 7 '40 40w

Reviewed by Robert Van Gelder
Sat R of Lit 23:7 N 16 '40 20w

MEIGS, CORNELIA LYNDE. Mother makes Christmas; pictures by Lois Lenski. [28p] 50c Grosset 40-27462

Story of Christmas on a Vermont farm, and the part played by a little girl named Sally.

Booklist 36:370 My 15 '40

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Books p6 My 26 '40 110w

Reviewed by R. A. Hill
Library J 65:849 O 15 '40 20w

"There are real characters lightly sketched in this story, and a sense of well-being which does not have its basis in material things. The New England background, the holiday bustle, is portrayed in lively fashion in some of Lois Lenski's gayest pictures." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p10 Je 16 '40 130w

Wis Lib Bul 36:171 D '40

MELAND, BERNARD EUGENE. The church and adult education. 114p $1; to members gratis Am. assn. for adult educ.

374 Education of adults. Church and education. Religious education 39-30199

"A nation-wide survey of various types of adult education in Protestant and Roman Catholic churches and Jewish synagogues, with appraisal and with comparison with general adult education." (J Religion) Index.

J Home Econ 32:42 Ja '40 20w

Reviewed by W. C. Bower
J Religion 20:211 Ap '40 30w

"This compact and readable little book is the result of a rather unusual study in which an investigator with a nose for facts gathered material and put it through a philosopher's mill. Thus, an important principle of evaluation was recognized—that the gathering of data requires objective scrutiny, but the significance of facts can be discovered only as they are assimilated to meanings that have emerged in history." F. E. Johnson
+ Library Q 10:614 O '40 550w

MELLAN, IBERT. Industrial solvents. 480p il $11 Reinhold [66s Chapman]

660 Solvents. Chemistry, Technical. Chemicals—Manufacture 39-18437

"A wealth of information concerning the characteristics of solvents is here presented largely in tabular and graphic form. The first seven chapters, more or less general, deal with theories, solutions and solvents, plasticity, vapor pressure, evaporation rate, boiling point, viscosity, volatility, inflammability, toxicity, and the use of solvents in industry. The rest of the book deals in detail with hydrocarbons, halogenated hydrocarbons, alcohols, aldehydes, acids, ketones, ethers, esters, and plasticizers. There are literature references at the chapter headings." N Y New Tech Bks

"In reading this book, the reviewer is impressed with the familiarity of the author with the literature on solvents. Voluminous data from most of the important papers published in the periodical literature, as well as liberal contributions from the manufacturers of solvents, have provided a quite comprehensive work, although it suffers somewhat from lack of critical interpretation. . . This book should prove useful to formulators and others who have occasion to refer to technical data on this subject. Its value as a compendium of the literature on solvents published prior to 1935 cannot be overemphasized." A. K. Doolittle
+ — Chem & Chem Eng N 18:207 Mr 10 '40 200w

Reviewed by L. B. Pope
Chem & Met Eng 46:786 D '39 130w

N Y New Tech Bks 24:62 O '39

MELLEN, IDA M. The science and the mystery of the cat. 275p il $2.75 Scribner

636.8 Cats 40-27496

"Its evolutionary status, antiquity as a pet, body, brain, behavior, so-called 'occult powers.' and its effect on people." (Subtitle) The book is composed of the history, physiology, and behavior of cats, and is enlivened with anecdotes from cat owners. Selected bibliography. Index.

Booklist 36:378 Je 1 '40

"Put largely into anecdotes, with statements that can be proved and any number of photographs that help to prove them, the result is something that will be for some time to come the last word on the subject. It will be hard to make a better one." M. L. Becker

MELLEN, I. M.—Continued
+ Books p18 Je 30 '40 390w

Reviewed by M. E. Prim
Boston Transcript p2 Ag 17 '40 190w

"Miss Mellen's interest in the cat family is of lengthy standing, and her book is based both on her informal and her formal study, as a prominent zoologist, of Felis Domestica and of the entire family of Felidae. . . Her pages are so laced with anecdote, illuminating and amusing, that those who do not care for the more recondite passages can ignore them and still have a rollicking good time if Tom and Tabby play any part in their lives." Percy Hutchison
+ N Y Times p22 Ap 21 '40 950w
Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 7 '40 550w
Wis Lib Bul 36:124 Jl '40

MELLON, MELVIN GUY. Chemical publications; their nature and use. 2d ed 284p il $2.75 McGraw

016.54 Chemistry—Bibliography. Chemistry —Study and teaching 40-10067

"Follows the plan of the first edition [Book Review Digest, 1929] but the field has been extended to include agricultural chemistry, biochemistry and metallurgy." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 37:120 N 15 '40

"'Chemical Publications' is recommended as a fairly comprehensive reference book. When supplemented by lecture material, the valuable library problems should make it a good basis for a college course in the chemical literature." M. C. Molstad
+ Chem & Chem Eng N 18:598 Jl 10 '40 850w

"The revision consists mainly of addition of new publications, omission of a few that were unimportant or out of date, and some changes in descriptive material. The process of elimination might have been carried somewhat further to omit references which are no longer published and which are out of print."
Chem & Met Eng 47:580 Ag '40 170w

MELONEY, FRANKEN, pseud. See Franken, R. D., and Meloney, W. B.

MELVIN, BRUCE LEE. Youth—millions too many? a search for youth's place in America; foreword by Eleanor Roosevelt. 220p il $2 Assn. press

362.7 Youth. Unemployment. U.S.—Economic conditions (W) 40-27555

A summary of the position of youth in American industry and agriculture and the general economic life of the country. With several million young people in the ranks of the unemployed, the author points out, the country is faced with a problem similar to that in other countries where fascist regimes have found a solution.

Reviewed by P. V. Young
Ann Am Acad 211:238 S '40 600w
Booklist 36:406 Jl 1 '40

Reviewed by Mary Ross
Books p11 Je 2 '40 600w

"Palliation rather than cure is offered. The problem is defined, and that is a useful service. But there is a wide difference between defining a problem and solving it."
Christian Century 57:826 Je 26 '40 90w
Cleveland Open Shelf p18 O '40
New Repub 102:770 Je 3 '40 60w

Reviewed by Rose Feld
N Y Times p16 My 26 '40 1200w

Reviewed by Eli Ginzberg
Sat R of Lit 22:18 Je 22 '40 360w

Reviewed by O. R. Lovejoy
Survey 76:307 O '40 500w

MENCKEN, HENRY LOUIS. Happy days, 1880-1892. 313p $2.75 Knopf

B or 92 (W) 40-27046

This autobiography recalls the memories of a safe and happy boyhood in the Baltimore of the comfortable '80s. The narrative closes in 1892, when Henry Mencken had reached his twelfth birthday.

"A book to be read twice a year by young and old, as long as life lasts."
+ Atlantic Mr '40 50w
Booklist 36:213 F 1 '40
Bookmark p11 My '40

"One of the merriest boyhood records that has ever spilled from the presses." Richardson Wright
+ Books p1 Ja 21 '40 1500w

"Those whom 'Happy Days' will most enchant are the very ones whose blood-pressure was once raised to an alarming degree by the mere mention of Mencken's name. . . The book is bound to be compared to 'Life With Father.' . . When such comparison is made, 'Happy Days' will not suffer. It contains the universal truths of an honest and accurate chronicle of childhood; it has, in addition humor and lightness and charm." Charlotte Bassett
+ Boston Transcript p1 Ja 27 '40 700w

"A very happy and amusing book." T. M.
+ Cath World 150:761 Mr '40 450w
Manchester Guardian p7 N 22 '40 200w

Reviewed by M. D. Zabel
Nation 150:312 Mr 2 '40 1400w

Reviewed by Otis Ferguson
New Repub 102:250 F 19 '40 1900w

Reviewed by V. S. Pritchett
New Statesman & Nation 20:584 D 7 '40 600w

"He has written a chronicle of childhood for which truth and a sense of balance have long been clamoring. To say that it is a readable book is almost an impertinence in the case of Mr. Mencken." Simeon Strunsky
+ N Y Times p1 Ja 21 '40 1000w

Reviewed by Clifton Fadiman
New Yorker 15:59 Ja 27 '40 300w

"The basis of the book's delight is that the Baltimore of the days when Cleveland was President and soft crabs sold for two and a fraction cents a piece and the Confederates hated the Yankees and the colored folks were afraid of the body-snatchers who served the advance of medical science, is miraculously seen again through the eyes of a secure young savage of the more fortunate bourgeoisie." Jonathan Daniels
+ Sat R of Lit 21:6 Ja 27 '40 700w

"Happy Days is not to be compared with the greatest of books about a boy, the greatest glory of American literature, but it has in it some of the golden liquor that overflows from Huckleberry Finn." D. W. Brogan
+ Spec 165:446 N 1 '40 800w

"Mr Mencken's narrative is written with humorous vitality and frequently with charm. There are minor lapses from good taste and good style. These are relatively few, however. In temper and in style, as well as in subject-matter, 'Happy Days' is one of Mr Mencken's most engaging and most substantial achievements."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 21 '40 700w

"Probably no man alive more guilelessly enjoys hearing himself talk on paper, or is better able to infect others with the pleasure, than Henry Louis Mencken. Happy Days is a set of 20 essays. They are as rosily extrovert a record of a human being's first twelve years as ever transcended fatuousness. They are also (with occasional slackenings) museum pieces in the good old Mencken bravura at its brassiest. For all its mannerisms and unsubtleties, the Mencken vernacular is extraordinarily vigorous and fine U. S. prose."
+ Time 35:72 Ja 29 '40 400w

"In one chapter he confesses his abiding admiration for 'Huckleberry Finn,' his childish discovery of which he terms 'probably the most stupendous event of my whole life.' Perhaps it is then no accident that this book, too, should exude a Mark-Twainish robustness, even earthiness. Mark Twain was a man of prejudices too, using them creatively to give individuality to familiar things. This book lacks the final magic of the best of 'Huckleberry Finn,' but it may well stand on the same shelf."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p520 O 12 '40 800w

Wis Lib Bul 36:48 Mr '40

"A warming, pleasing book, this 'Happy Days' of a happy boyhood." H. F. Pringle

+ Yale R ns 29:617 spring '40 1100w

MENDELSOHN, SIMON. Embalming fluids; their historical development and formulation. 166p il $4 Chemical pub. co.

614.64 Embalming 40-9144

"'In this volume, the author has brought together from many accredited sources, an exhaustive fund of material of a type never having previously appeared in book form. The history of embalming, its chemistry, the formulation of embalming fluids, etc., analytical methods, patent digest, and jurisdictional regulation, together with a wealth of other valuable and interesting details, have now been made available through this work.'" N Y New Tech Bks

"Despite pompous diction, this book consists mainly of quotations and paraphrases, with contradictions unreconciled and incongruities rampant. . . . Your reviewer knows of no group to whom he is willing to recommend this book." Jerome Alexander

— Chem & Chem Eng N 18:600 Jl 10 '40 700w

N Y New Tech Bks 25:21 Ap '40

MENDERSHAUSEN, HORST. The economics of war. 314p $2.75 Prentice-Hall

330.19355 War—Economic aspects (W) 40-34133

Outlines the various economic problems presented to a country in wartime, and attempts to "provide a general theoretical survey of the war economy coupled with short accounts of the practical experience which major wars have provided up to our own day." (Pref) The author, who was formerly of the University of Geneva, is now at Colorado College, and on the National Bureau of Economic Research. Index.

"It would be petty to put too much emphasis on the minor errors of an author who has done such an outstanding piece of work. There will be hardly a critic who can accuse Mendershausen of any major mistake. There may be some who blame him for his distribution of emphasis and for the things he did not include in his treatise. The book is one of the best popular works on war economics, and it deserves careful consideration by social scientists of all disciplines." H. S. Bloch

+ Am J Soc 46:608 Ja '41 1500w

Reviewed by H. M. Gray

Ann Am Acad 213:194 Ja '41 600w

"Dr. Mendershausen has written an exceptionally readable and thoroughly sound general survey of our present knowledge." J. D. Norton

+ N Y Times p10 D 22 '40 700w

"As a historical review of past problems and past solutions, as a statistical compilation of basic data and as a popular description of some of the technical problems encountered by the defense program, the book has many merits. It is well written, simple, non-technical, and lucid. It contains an excellent bibliography for those who want to study the subject further. Yet the lay reader, for whom the book is written, could hardly obtain from it the understanding of the economic problems of present-day warfare and defense which the author promises." P. F. Drucker

+ — Sat R of Lit 23:7 N 30 '40 1300w

MENNINGER, MRS FLO V. (KNISELY). Days of my life; memories of a Kansas mother and teacher. 310p il $2.50 Smith, Richard R.

B or 92 40-27100

"Old enough to have been present (as an infant in arms) when Lincoln made his Gettysburg speech, a migrant from Pennsylvania to Kansas in the next decade, Mrs. Menninger has seen great changes. The record of her own experiences and observations is a case study of American life in the middle west from then till now." Christian Century

Booklist 36:237 F 15 '40

"It's the simple modest history of a useful life, written for her boys, that they might know something of their antecedents; with no idea of publication. But it comes from the printing press a fine piece of Americana at its very best, and in its pages a woman comes to life and gives actuality to a great and dramatic period in American political and economic history—the settling of that prairie country which stretches from the Missouri River to the Rocky Mountains. And she is a woman fitted to write beautifully and understandingly the Saga of the Eldest." S. L. White

+ Books p14 F 11 '40 1150w

"Mrs. Menninger's life-story was written merely as a family record for her children. Because it is the counterpart of the record of so many American families, it inspires in the reader the kind of homely respect and affection one has for the old family Bible." Regina Madden

+ Boston Transcript p1 Ja 27 '40 140w

Christian Century 57:147 Ja 31 '40 50w

"Interesting as the homely record of an American life."

+ New Repub 102:254 F 19 '40 30w

"Here is a book of clear, full-bodied and even valuable Americana."

+ N Y Times p5 Ja 21 '40 480w

MENZIES, WILLIAM GLADSTONE. Period furniture for everyman; a handbook for the amateur. 155p il $2.75 Scribner [7s 6d Duckworth]

749 Furniture [39-29829]

"Mr. Menzies' little book is by way of being a primer for the amateur collector of English antique furniture. It is chiefly concerned with the period that begins with the accession of James I in 1603, and ends with the death of Thomas Sheraton, last of the great English eighteenth-century furniture designers. Text and pictures give information on furniture of various types—together with mirrors, fire screens, silverware, clocks and other decorative accessories, and there are valuable hints as to how to tell a genuine antique from a faked one." Books

"While the chapter on auction rooms and a list of prices realized at recent English auctions will probably be of interest only to the English collector, the main body of the text, the photographs, a glossary of furniture terms and a list of the woods used in cabinet making should be valuable."

Books p14 Mr 3 '40 150w

Times [London] Lit Sup p109 F 18 '39 280w

MERCER, CECIL WILLIAM (DORNFORD YATES, pseud). Gale warning. (Minton, Balch bk) 280p $2 Putnam [7s 6d Ward, Lock] 40-2118

Romantic adventure novel in which four secret avengers after a thrilling chase across Southern France, finally get their man.

Booklist 36:307 Ap 1 '40

MERCER, C. W.—Continued

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p9 D 31 '39 150w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin
Boston Transcript p6 D 30 '39 20w

Reviewed by Anthony West
New Statesman & Nation 19:146 F 3 '40 300w

"There is never any mystery in the story or any complication of double-crossing or uncertainty. It is a straightforward tale of adventure, lightened only by its ever-present love interest, but given a fillip of novelty by the scenes and conditions of its wild drive across France. It piles excitement on excitement and exploit on exploit. It has a really modest and likable hero. It should be heartily enjoyed by adventure fans." Kay Irvin
+ N Y Times p12 D 31 '39 440w

"Lighthearted and amusing."
+ New Yorker 15:61 Ja 6 '40 40w
Sat R of Lit 21:20 Ja 13 '40 40w

MERITT, BENJAMIN DEAN; WADE-GERY, HENRY THEODORE, and MCGREGOR, MALCOLM FRANCIS. Athenian tribute lists [pub. for the American school of classical studies at Athens]. v 1 605p il map $15 Harvard univ. press

938.5 Finance—Athens. Inscriptions, Greek (39-6671)

"This work constitutes a corpus of all the documents bearing directly or indirectly on the tribute paid by the subject states of the first Athenian Empire: the tribute quota lists, the assessment lists, relevant Athenian decrees, and literary references. The second volume, which scholars will await with impatience, is to supply the historical interpretation of this evidence." Am Hist R

"The book is an important contribution to the study of the quota lists, to which is appended an admirable gazetteer of the Athenian Empire. Its form and price, however, justify much greater expectations, and these it fails to satisfy." Robert Schlaifer
+ — Am Hist R 45:369 Ja '40 600w

"It remains to add what may have been obscured by trivial criticisms, that this is a work of fundamental importance, planned on a most generous scale and executed with rare success. The historian of the fifth century has had no richer offering in this generation, and he will await impatiently the second volume, of historical commentary." R. Meiggs
+ — Eng Hist R 55:104 Ja '40 950w

MERRIAM, CHARLES EDWARD. Prologue to politics. 118p $1.50 Univ. of Chicago press

320.4 Political science 40-27047

Four lectures given in April, 1939 in a series conducted by the Division of Social Sciences of the University of Chicago. Contents: The organization of violence; The organization of consent; The ideal state; The tasks of politics.

Reviewed by C. J. Friedrich
Am Pol Sci R 34:347 Ap '40 550w

"Few books of far larger proportion so challenge the imagination, and the will, of expert and layman alike. Here is one of the more trenchant specifications in our time for a blueprint of the task—and the opportunity—of a reoriented and regenerative political society." Phillips Bradley
+ Ann Am Acad 209:210 My '40 420w
Booklist 36:208 F 1 '40

Reviewed by Reinhold Niebuhr
Nation 150:216 F 10 '40 800w

"A primer that digests the encyclopedias, and sets down the base lines for the new calculus of democracy. Here is the open-mindedness and faith of wisdom rooted in knowledge. The keynote is a sense of time and an awareness of the need for change." Leon Whipple
+ Survey G 29:124 F '40 280w

MERRIAM, CHARLES EDWARD, and GOSNELL, HAROLD FOOTE. The American party system; an introduction to the study of political parties in the United States. 3d ed 476p map $3.50 Macmillan

329 U.S.—Politics and government. Political parties—U.S. (W) 40-30006

"During the eleven years since the publication of the second edition of this volume, many important changes have taken place in American politics and many new studies of political behavior in the United States have been made. In line with these changes the present edition is a thorough revision of the entire text from beginning to end, with the addition of four new chapters. A large proportion of the book is made up of entirely new materials." (Pref. to the 3d ed) For first edition see Book Review Digest, 1922. Index.

"There is no doubt that in some respects it is superior to other current textbooks on political parties, but whether or not it is as well-rounded as one or two of them may be reasonably questioned. Relatively too much space, perhaps, is still devoted to bosses, patronage, spoils, and the peculiarities of politics in large urban centers at the expense of some other topics of equal importance in a general text on American political parties. The chapters dealing with the formulation of party issues, the economic and social bases of party politics, and party leadership are excellent, but those describing nominating and electoral organization and procedure are too sketchy to be altogether satisfactory." O. D. Weeks
+ — Am Pol Sci R 34:1237 D '40 180w

Reviewed by E. M. Sait
Ann Am Acad 213:234 Ja '41 550w
Booklist 37:72 O 15 '40
Social Studies 31:378 D '40 10w

MERRILL, BOYNTON. From whence cometh my help. 127p $1.25 Harper

252 Sermons 40-2212

A pastor of West Newton, Massachusetts, has selected fifty sermons from ten years of preaching and condensed the essence of each into two pages.

"A choice book of chastely wrought-out talks in about 500 words each."
+ Boston Transcript p7 Mr 30 '40 50w

"Would you believe that the essence of fifty vigorous sermons could be crowded into a little book of 127 pages? This beloved New England pastor has shown that it can be done, and with great effectiveness."
+ Christian Century 56:1609 D 27 '39 40w

"They are boiled down but not boiled dry. The vital juice is in them, in concentrated form."
+ Christian Century 57:250 F 21 '40 40w

MERRILL, DICK. See Merrill, H. T.

MERRILL, HENRY TINDALL, and DAWS, GEORGE. How to be an aviator; with an introd. by E. V. Rickenbacker. 192p il map $2 McBride

629.13 Aviators. Aeronautics as a profession (W) 40-983

"Companionable advice on requirements and training. The career of Mr. Merrill, the senior author, includes several transatlantic flights as well as a captaincy in the Eastern Air Lines. The work is illustrated by numerous halftone illustrations." N Y New Tech Bks

"A good part of the book will interest everyone. It gives an inspiring picture of this newest method of transportation. It should give future passengers a feeling of confidence to read of the care and money being spent to build good ships and to train aviators. Excellent photographs, maps, and diagrams." Sonja Wennerblad

Library J 65:214 Mr 1 '40 100w

N Y New Tech Bks 25:3 Ja '40

"Although intended primarily as instructive to air-minded youth, 'How To Be An Aviator' . . . is interesting to adults. It is written in an easily-understandable style and gives an excellent outline of the practice of flying."

+ Springf'd Republican p6 S 2 '40 330w

MERRY, MRS FRIEDA (KIEFER), and MERRY, RALPH VICKERS. From infancy to adolescence; an introduction to child development. 330p il $2 Harper

136.7 Child study 40-11661

Study of the various aspects of child psychology, in accordance with the trend toward the study of the child, and based on observation of children from infancy to adolescence. Contents: Historical background and methods of studying children; Origin and development through the neonatal period; The development of motor abilities; The development of language; Intelligence and its measurement; Learning and motivation; The development of emotional behavior; The development of play; Graphic and musical expression; The child and his reading; Children's interests in the radio and the movies; Personality and social development; Character and religion. Selected bibliography. Subject and author indexes.

"One entire chapter is devoted to children's interests in the radio and the movies. So far no textbook has devoted as much space to these subjects. . . From the viewpoint of new secondary source material, this is the most outstanding chapter. For the most part the materials of the remaining chapters have been discussed at length in any five of the more recent textbooks of child psychology. This book, however, would be of value to laymen who are anxious to glance hastily over descriptions of recent methods of child study and major problems of child development, from the prenatal stage to adolescence." Livingston Welch

+ N Y Times p22 N 24 '40 360w

School & Society 51:752 Je 15 '40 30w

MERRYMAN, WILLIAM N. Yankee caballero; introd. by Earl P. Hanson. 317p il map $2.75 McBride

918 South America—Description and travel. Chavante Indians 40-32712

Narrative of the personal history of a North American adventurer in South America. His experiences ranged from driving fourteen mules and five hundred sheep over the Andes, to hunting for lost Inca treasure, and while he lost money on almost every deal, he had his reward in a series of unusual adventures.

Booklist 37:151 D 15 '40

"There is no doubt that in this vast continent there should be gold and diamonds and savages who have never seen a white man, and rivers that have never been mapped and jungles that have never been explored. Everything Mr. Merryman describes might easily be true and may be true, and Earl P. Hanson, who writes the introduction goes on record as believing it to be true. At any rate, it is entertaining." Agnes Rothery

Books p41 N 10 '40 500w

"The episode of the treasure hunt is the best in the book. The author has a gay humor which he turns engagingly, here, upon himself. To the dashing character of the half-Indian servitor Carlos is added another outstanding member of the dramatis personae in the persuasive, infuriating and only three-quarters dishonest rogue Mendez. And in the journey into the interior and back by another route Merryman not only ran the gantlet of peril from headhunters but had an unusual and illuminating encounter with an Indian agent and found various matters for observation. . . The book's photographs are numerous, but they have apparently been lifted without exception from the McBride files, complete with instructive captions. Their interest is in ratio to their fortuitous relevance as illustrations for Mr. Merryman's story." Katherine Woods

+ — N Y Times p9 D 22 '40 1150w

Social Studies 31:379 D '40 10w

MERSCH, EMILE. Morality and the mystical body; tr. by Daniel F. Ryan. 292p $3.50 Kenedy

171.1 Jesus Christ—Mystical body. Christian ethics 40-2570

"Emile Mersch [is] professor of theology in the Faculté Notre-Dame de la Paix, world famous as the author of The Whole Christ. . . His thesis is that the church is the mystical body of Christ and, from this thesis, he proceeds to deal with moral and ethical implications. Among the subjects discussed are humanity, poverty, love, marriage, children, prayer and spiritual obedience." Christian Century

"For many years Father Mersch has been one of the foremost European writers on the Mystical Body. He has written upon the dogma and the history of the dogma, and has contributed articles upon the subject in which he has developed valuable and most suggestive thoughts for the sanctification of the Faithful. Father Ryan has translated for us in excellent, smooth-running and accurate English one of Father Mersch's ascetical treatises, and our American Catholic library is richly benefitted thereby." W. J. McGarry

+ America 62:499 F 10 '40 490w

Cath World 151:636 Ag '40 70w

"This book will introduce ministers and students of religion to a vital and seminal mind and also provide them with a door through which to pass into the atmosphere of contemporary French Catholic theology." H. D. McKeehan

+ Christian Century 57:317 Mr 6 '40 260w

MERSEREAU, JOHN. Murder loves company. 260p $2 Lippincott

40-5224

Detective story.

"Mr. Mersereau has something to sell—really likable light fiction, and mysterious enough for any reasonable reader." Will Cuppy

+ Books p12 F 18 '40 160w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin

Boston Transcript p2 F 10 '40 20w

"The book provides pleasant entertainment." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p23 F 18 '40 170w

"Good background and well handled talk cover up deficiencies of yarn that has habit of rambling all over lot. Average."

+ — Sat R of Lit 21:18 F 10 '40 30w

MERWIN, SAMUEL, 1910-. Murder in miniatures. 265p $2 Doubleday

40-5951

Detective story.

"You'll find no lack of action, some of it furious, in Mr. Merwin's first full-length thriller, a volume dealing in secrets, surprises, villainy of the blackest, love and international relations. . . Mr. Merwin never pulls a punch, and the result is honest excitement, lurid and unabashed." Will Cuppy

+ Books p14 F 25 '40 100w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin

Boston Transcript p3 F 3 '40 40w

MERWIN, SAMUEL—Continued

"This is Sam Merwin's first full-length mystery story, and it reveals a genuine talent for the complicated crime puzzle with a logical solution and plenty of thrills." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p26 F 11 '40 170w

"Toy soldiers, intriguing Muscovites, and avaricious slayer chief ingredients in high-tension tale. Payoff just a bit too unexpected. Colorful."
+ — Sat R of Lit 21:18 F 3 '40 40w

METCALF, CLELL LEE, and FLINT, WESLEY PILLSBURY. Destructive and useful insects; their habits and control. 2d ed 981p il maps $7.50 (70s) McGraw

632.7 Insects, Injurious and beneficial 39-24203

This new edition of a reference work first published in 1928, has been "completely revised and partly rewritten, especially in the chapters on insecticide control, and life histories and physiology of some important insects." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 36:114 N 15 '39

"New features of value in this edition are the cross-references given to those insects whose damage lies in more directions than one, the keys for the identification of young as well as adult stages and the additional matter relating to modern aspects of chemical control. The book contains a wealth of valuable practical information. Omissions are, however, inevitable. . . Following a discussion on page 161 on the need for scientific names instead of 'nicknames', it is remarkable that each species is recorded under its 'nickname' in bold type, the scientific name being relegated to a footnote and in some cases omitted altogether, as on p. 483." L. E.
+ — Nature 145:405 Mr 16 '40 350w

METCALF, JOHN CALVIN. De Quincey; a portrait. 210p $2 Harvard univ. press

B or 92 De Quincey, Thomas 40-8100

"Long familiar with De Quincey's life and writings, Professor Metcalf has added a charming study to recent books about the opium-eaters. He uncovers no new facts, but he writes easily, as of a friend, and with sympathetic insight. Here is no frenzied search for detail. Those who wish to abandon academic 'impedimenta' and to share in the author's enthusiasm for a wayward, though brilliant, genius will be amply rewarded." Boston Transcript

"Instead of a 'researcher' we have in Mr. Metcalf a most sympathetic 'psychographer' who portrays the personality of a man of genius who possessed exceptional charm. The story of De Quincey's life is swiftly told, without the interruption of quoted letters and documentary evidence and with just a sufficiency of pauses to estimate the worth of his achievement as a writer in various fields." S. C. Chew
+ Books p14 Jl 14 '40 550w

Reviewed by E. L. Griggs
+ Boston Transcript p2 Ap 13 '40 380w

"The style is polished, sympathetic, and delicately humorous—admirably suited to the subject."
+ Nation 150:521 Ap 20 '40 60w

"By a scholar who enjoyed his task and who has successfully recreated an exceptional man and appraised him as a writer."
+ New Repub 102:585 Ap 29 '40 50w

"This 'portrait' of Thomas De Quincey is obviously a labor of love, and it should have its own small but definite place in the gallery of such studies. . . It is a lenient portrait, but deep-toned and vivid nevertheless."
+ N Y Times p17 Ag 25 '40 440w

METZ, DICK. The secret to par golf. unp $2 Macmillan

796.352 Golf (W)

In 308 action pictures and short descriptive text a golf professional shows every detail of the correct grip, address, and other fundamentals of the game.

Booklist 37:214 Ja 15 '41

"Anyone seeking to improve his golf game and hoping to find more enjoyment will benefit greatly by reading Secret to Par Golf." Ben Hogan
+ Current Hist & Forum 52:2 Ja 23 '41 250w

Springf'd Republican p7e N 24 '40 20w

MEYER, ADOLPH ERICH. The development of education in the twentieth century. 406p $2.75 Prentice-Hall

370.9 Education—History. Educators 39-30200

"This book is frankly an account of the development of education in the twentieth century. . . In essence this book is the outcome of an undergraduate course in the history of twentieth-century education, a course conducted for more than a decade at the New York University School of Education. It has been written primarily to meet the needs of these students, and those who might be pursuing similar courses elsewhere. It is intended principally as a teaching instrument to enable teachers and prospective teachers to have in a single volume a bird's-eye glimpse of the recent educational past." (Pref) Index.

"Practically all general histories of education leave the reader, at their conclusion, very much in the grip of the past. Here, in a volume of reasonable size, is supplied a satisfying final chapter, as it were, which rounds out the picture by presenting to the undergraduate student in compact form a vast range of current materials otherwise available only to practiced observers and advanced students of specialized fields. At its conclusion the reader is definitely immersed in the present. . . There is, on occasion, suggestion of disproportion and unbalanced emphases in the sympathetic narratives of some of the experimenters and their schools. This is only in a measure traceable to the fact that such materials are new or otherwise not easily obtainable." Solomon Bluhm + — School & Society 51:584 My 4 '40 700w

"While many topics are touched upon, there are far too many generalities. In its description of the American scene, little definite information is provided concerning the state and education, the administration of education in any of its aspects, the work of the educational foundations, educational associations, or curriculum-making groups, rural education, libraries, or the radio. The volume has more than its share of inaccuracies of one kind or another. . . All in all, there is little depth in this poorly proportioned book. Some effort, however, is made to relate educational history to its political, economic, and social background. It would prove useful to those looking for a convenient compilation of some of the twentieth-century educational ideas and experiments." R. E. Thursfield
— + Social Educ 4:146 F '40 850w

Survey 75:391 D '39 40w

MEYER, JEROME SYDNEY, ed. The big fun book. 800p il $1.98 Greenberg

793 Amusements. Games (W) 40-6054

Omnibus volume of forms of entertainment. Some of the games, etc., are for adults, some for children. Partial contents: Word puzzles; Picture puzzles; "Breaking the ice" games; Written games; Games of action; Your handwriting and your character; Charades and "the game;" Treasure hunts; Quizzes; Three-minute plays; Your hand and your character;

Tricks, stunts and magic; Bridge problems; Plays for older children; For the very young. No index. Contains answers.

Booklist 36:362 My 15 '40

Springf'd Republican p10 My 15 '40 90w

MEYERS, ALBERT LEONARD. Modern economic problems. 311p $2.50 Prentice-Hall

330.1 Economics 39-30919

A textbook presenting some of the problems of modern American economic conditions. The author is senior economist, United States Department of Agriculture. Contents: The state and economic policy; Principles of taxation; Shifting and incidence of taxation; Government borrowing and creation of national income; Problems of transportation; Problems of agricultural policy; Forms of business ownership organization; Large-scale organization, combination monopoly, and unfair competition; International economic policy; Problems of organized labor; Social security; Economic planning in a socialist state; Economic planning in a totalitarian state; Economic planning in a capitalistic democracy. Index.

"Mr. Meyers has tried to write a kind of text which is all too seldom attempted; and if his path from the ivory tower to the market place is somewhat bumpy, he may have stimulated other road builders." Max Millikan, 2nd
Am Econ R 30:358 Je '40 850w

Foreign Affairs 18:748 Jl '40 10w

Wis Lib Bul 36:45 Mr '40

MIALL, STEPHEN, ed. A new dictionary of chemistry. 575p $15 (42s) Longmans

540.3 Chemistry—Dictionaries

"With the cooperation and assistance of a number of well-known British chemists, the Editor of Chemistry and Industry, (London), has produced a book which is intended to supplement the existing treatises by providing in one volume a mass of miscellaneous information on chemical matters in general. The material in the dictionary covers a broad scope and the definitions are well written and easily readable. Many structural formulas are included which aid in presentation of data on organic compounds. A number of short biographical sketches are also included." Chem & Met Eng

Reviewed by Grinnell Jones
Am Chem Soc J 62:2888 O '40 450w

"In his introduction, the editor states that there has long been a need for a one volume dictionary. He is apparently unaware of the existence of two such dictionaries published in this country; one edited by Hackh and Grant, the other by Bennett. Compared with these two books, Miall's has fewer pages and fewer entries. Definitions in the new book, however, are more complete. This is particularly true of organic compounds."
Chem & Met Eng 47:657 S '40 160w

"The information in the inorganic and organic sections is surprisingly complete and up to date, and although the sections on physical chemistry are very brief they give much useful information to non-specialists. The book is one which is likely to prove very useful in libraries and to those wishing to obtain information rapidly, and it may be recommended with confidence." J. R. Partington
+ J Phys Chem 44:954 O '40 90w

"Dr. Miall and his collaborators have produced a very handy and attractive chemical dictionary, which by reason of its simple and concise style, interesting presentation, and neat format will be welcome to a great variety of users ranging from teachers and students, engineers, pharmacists, medical men, and the intelligent layman in general, to chemical technicians and specialists." John Read
+ Nature 146:281 Ag 31 '40 500w

MICHELANGELO BUONARROTI. Paintings [all the master's paintings; 170 reproductions and two folding plates]. (Phaidon press art bk) unp $3.50 Oxford [10s 6d Allen, G]

759.5 Paintings

This volume of photographic reproductions of Michelangelo's paintings includes many photographs of details of the principal works. The volume is supplied with a short introduction, notes on the paintings, a chronological table of the events of Michelangelo's life, and a bibliography.

Booklist 36:327 Ap 15 '40

Bookmark p7 My '40

"Dr. Goldscheider not only writes an informative foreword to 'The Paintings of Michael Angelo' but supplies a particularly effective feature in a chronological table of the artist's life, including significant historical events of his time. He adds, too, a concise bibliography. But the plates are the main thing, plates beautifully executed, and they bring to us the very genius of Michael Angelo." Royal Cortissoz
+ Books p11 Je 30 '40 230w

Reviewed by Lewis Gannett
Boston Transcript p11 Ap 23 '40 50w

"Besides making available these vividly accurate reproductions of all the paintings thought ascribable to Michelangelo, Mr. Goldscheider has written a good biographical sketch, this followed by a chronology and a bibliography. The principal paintings are described succinctly, with quotations of opinions, unfavorable as well as favorable to them." F. W. Coburn
+ Boston Transcript p6 My 18 '40 190w

Reviewed by Jerome Mellquist
Commonweal 33:149 N 29 '40 110w

"The photographs are wonderfully clear, especially the details from the Sistine Chapel paintings which reveal the scratches on the wet plaster which Michelangelo used to guide his brush."
+ Manchester Guardian p3 Mr 19 '40 70w

New Yorker 16:92 Ap 27 '40 20w

"This admirable quarto is one of the best of the Phaidon Editions. All its illustrations are of fine quality, but what gives it its peculiar value are the clear detail reproductions, in particular those of the Sistine chapel frescoes. These are quite superb, enabling one to appreciate the quality of the brushwork with remarkable exactness."
+ Spec 164:538 Ap 12 '40 100w

Springf'd Republican p7e My 5 '40 200w

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p151 Mr 23 '40 250w

MICHELANGELO BUONARROTI. Sculptures [complete ed; 145 reproductions and 55 il. in the introduction]. (Phaidon press art bk) 33p $3.50 Oxford [10s 6d Allen, G]

734 Sculpture

Descriptive catalog of the sculpture of Michelangelo, arranged chronologically. The catalog is followed by one hundred and forty-five plates, including many detail photographs.

Booklist 37:217 Ja 15 '41

Bookmark 2:6 Ja '41

Reviewed by Royal Cortissoz
Books p6 N 24 '40 1000w

"Another low priced 'must' for amateur and professional alike; and a dramatic reminder of the power of the human spirit to transcend national and temporal boundaries."
+ Commonweal 32:475 S 27 '40 80w

Reviewed by Jerome Mellquist
Commonweal 33:149 N 29 '40 140w

"Another Phaidon Press book, and beautifully done, as always. The photographs, large in scale and precise in detail, make the sculptures look almost more magniloquent and melodramatic than they are in actuality."
+ New Yorker 16:80 S 28 '40 40w

MICHELANGELO BUONARROTI—Continued

"It is a full, thorough book, replete not only with striking full-figure shots, but also with incisive close-ups which, in the unfinished sculptures, reveal every tool mark. All are from significant angles, and though there are inferior plates among them, they are, in the main, of a very high standard. . . Far more than a picture book, it is a work in which text and photographs combine to produce a penetrating analysis of a great man's great work. Through it readers will surely acquire a deepened understanding and a heightened appreciation of both." Frank Caspers

+ Sat R of Lit 22:12 S 14 '40 340w

"When it is all finished it is like a lovely collection of programme notes on a super-classical symphony. The book will, as the saying is, give pleasure to thousands. But much of the pleasure will be of the kind derived from a performance of the 'Art of Fugue' by the town band—pleasure at hearing a noise that you know is by a genius. One Alinari photograph of 'David' in a passe-partout frame over the mantelpiece would give me more fun." John Piper

— + Spec 165:448 N 1 '40 230w

Springf'd Republican p7e D 8 '40 120w

"The merit of this complete collection of the sculpture of Michelangelo lies in the fact that all the photographs have been newly taken for the book and thus have a clarity which only modern methods of photography can give; this is particularly apparent in the numerous details which follow the reproduction of each important work. As the great bulk of Michelangelo's work is now quite beyond the reach of anyone in this country, this book should be especially welcome at the moment."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p370 Ag 3 '40 230w

MICHIE, ALLAN A., and RYHLICK, FRANK. Dixie demagogues. 298p $2.50 Vanguard

923.2 U.S.—Politics and government. South —Biography. Statesmen, American 39-33069

Chapters on some of the present-day Southern politicians. Among them are: Vice-President J. N. Garner, Congressman Martin Dies, Pat Harrison of Mississippi, "Tom Tom" Heflin of Alabama, Senator Rush Holt, Senator R. R. Reynolds of North Carolina, Boss Ed Crump of Memphis, and South Carolina's Senator Cotton Ed Smith. The concluding chapter, The New South, outlines a program for the South.

"Bringing to their task the indefatigable industry which is the best trait of American journalism, the authors have documented the careers of a score of Southern politicians." H. N. Smith

+ Boston Transcript p13 Ja 5 '40 650w

"At best, second-rate journalese." Hamilton Basso

— New Repub 102:185 F 5 '40 700w

MIDDLEBUSH, FREDERICK ARNOLD, and HILL, CHESNEY. Elements of international relations. 498p maps $3.25 McGraw

341 International law and relations. Political science 40-11201

"[This] text is intended as an introduction for the elementary student to the whole field of international relations as a political science subject. An effort has been made to define terms and to organize the material in such a manner as to lead the student gradually into the more difficult aspects of the subject. . . It is not a treatise and does not attempt to give encyclopedic information or to give an answer to every question in this complex field. . . At the close of each chapter readings are suggested which amplify the text." (Pref) Index.

"The Elements of International Relations may perhaps find its greatest vogue in the junior college. It is lucid. It is concise. Indeed, in many places it reads almost like a very complete syllabus. Its few tables will not burden the student with indigestible figures. Above all, it has a painless introduction to definitions and distinctions which is the best and the clearest of any text the reviewer knows." J. T. Watkins

+ Am Pol Sci R 34:806 Ag '40 270w

Boston Transcript p1 Ag 24 '40 170w

Reviewed by J. A. D. Haas

Harvard Business R 19:243 winter '41 160w

MIDDLETON, ARTHUR RENWICK, and WILLARD, JOHN WESLEY. Semimicro qualitative analysis. 446p il $3.50 Prentice-Hall

544.8 Microchemistry. Chemistry, Analytic—Qualitative 39-30739

"Hitherto the general adoption of small-scale analysis has been retarded by lack of reliable procedures. If the average student is to remain interested and enthusiastic, he must be furnished laboratory directions which are precise and which he finds work in practice. This book is planned to furnish such directions and, at the same time, to teach the maximum amount of inorganic chemistry that can be absorbed in the allotted time. The methods prescribed in the text have been gradually evolved during a period of six years. They have been thoroughly tried out on large classes and found to give exceptionally good results. Two features are, so far as we know, entirely new. These are analysis for anions by elimination, and analysis both of cation Group III without removal of arsenate and phosphate and of cation Group IV without use of the rather unsatisfactory reagent, ammonium carbonate." (Pref) Index.

Reviewed by A. A. Benedetti-Pichler

Am Chem Soc J 62:235 Ja '40 250w

"This text gives remarkably accurate and reliable procedures. Many new views in the field of chemistry are included, but in a manner completely within the limited knowledge of the beginning student."

+ Chem & Met Eng 46:787 D '39 40w

N Y New Tech Bks 24:53 O '39

MIKESELL, WILLIAM HENRY. Mental hygiene. 456p il $2.50 Prentice-Hall

131.3 Mental hygiene 39-6827

In textbook style the author shows how the principles of psychology can be applied to problems of everyday living. He stresses particularly the powers and achievements of suggestion. Indexes.

"This book is in no sense an important contribution to either psychology or mental hygiene. The publisher's claim that it is well-documented is hardly borne out by the 125 footnote references of which 56% (including duplication) were to works published earlier than 1920. It cannot be recommended for use as a college textbook. It might have real possibilities as a trade book if its title were made more attractive—and if the book were more accurate. As a trade book it would be a great improvement over the self-help manuals now available." C. M. Louttit

— + Am J Psychol 53:161 Ja '40 380w

"Mikesell's book is written in the dogmatic, hortatory, 'pep-talk' style of the American business man. On this level it presents rather thoroughly the major concepts and principles of mental hygiene. Professor Mikesell has freed himself from at least one of the burdens of our traditional culture. He does not believe that effort and hardship are ultimate values, and he preaches 'doing things the easy way' rather than by 'will power.' There is another hurdle, however, which he has not cleared. He is still rather naively optimistic about the possibilities of simple suggestion, of making oneself think the 'right thoughts,' about 'ideas as the real springs of action.' " J. K. Folsom

+ — Am Soc R 4:878 D '39 140w

MILHOUS, KATHERINE. Lovina; a story of the Pennsylvania country; pictures by [the author]. unp $1.50 Scribner

(W) 40-27405

Picture-story book for young readers, about a little Amish girl, Lovina, in whose home there were seven beautiful old plates dating back to George Washington's time. The story shows what became of the plates, ending with Lovina's own plate bearing the motto:

This dish and heart
Shall never part.

Booklist 36:348 My 1 '40

"This [story] is told in some of the most brilliant and striking pictures with which a child's book has been lately enriched. They are so true to the principles of this regional art that the book is being snapped up by collectors; a bookshop I know filled a window with objects d'art such as it represents, grouped around its open pages. The book itself brightens any room by its presence." M. L. Becker

+ Books p7 My 5 '40 250w

"To parents who strive early to imbue in their children a feeling for the antique and a sympathy for different cults and customs we recommend 'Lovina.' Miss Milhous, through her work on the Index of American Design for Pennsylvania and her posters of Pennsylvania Dutch life, authoritatively illustrates her own book with handsome design and striking color. This so-called 'picture' book is a real experience for children and adults as well." Bess Cook

+ Boston Transcript p3 Ap 6 '40 220w

Reviewed by F. B. Sloan
Christian Science Monitor p9 S 30 '40 190w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk M 16:165 My '40 50w

Reviewed by Marian Herr
Library J 65:454 My 15 '40 70w

"Lovina is not only authentic as to manners and customs, but also as to the careful reproduction of interiors and furniture. It represents much research by the artist. Both story and illustrations have caught the spirit of these interesting people who have a distinct place in the history and background of our American people." D. M. MacDonald

+ Library J 65:544 Je 15 '40 130w

"This is a bright and appealing picture-book to add to the small but excellent store of books about the Pennsylvania Dutch country." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p10 Mr 17 '40 270w

"It is an attractive volume with bright, postery pictures and a story with the qualities of a folk tale." K. S. W.

+ New Yorker 16:96 My 18 '40 50w

Wis Lib Bul 36:101 My '40

MILINOWSKI, MARTA. Teresa Carreño, by the grace of God. 410p il $3.50 Yale univ. press

B or 92 Carreño, Teresa 40-30329

Biography of a Venezuelan pianist, who began her long career as a child of eight at a concert in New York in 1862. The author, professor of music at Vassar, was a pupil and friend of Carreño.

"Professor Milinowski presents [Carreño] skillfully and carefully, merely stating the fact, excusing little, letting the story tell itself, with the result at the end the reader has a picture of a woman of genius, of explosive temperament, of fantastic imagination, and yet at the same time intensely human. One gains the feeling, probably illusory, of really understanding Carreño; and one gains an admiration of her that is not illusory at all. This is good biography." G. W. Johnson

+ Books p16 S 15 '40 1100w

"It goes without saying that a well-studied and well-written biography of Mme. Carreño must be an interesting book; and Marta Milinowski's work is well done from every point of view. To travel and research in the long accumulation of material she adds a quiet skill which can give balance and vitality even to a mass of detail. She is Professor of Music in Vassar College and was Teresa Carreño's pupil and friend. . . It is an admirable addition to the library of musical history."

+ N Y Times p 34 D 8 '40 320w

"This is truly an excellent biography and should be read by all who wish to have recreated for them a past musical epoch and one of the greatest personalities in it." T. S.

+ Sat R of Lit 22:20 S 14 '40 400w

MILLARD, RUTH TRACY. Road to the stars. 300p $2 Penn

40-10445

In her senior year at college Melissa Jordan was offered a chance to go to New York for a screen test, as a possible prelude to Hollywood. Forsaking her friends and family Melissa rushed off to New York, but it was a long, hard road she traveled before she found success.

" 'Road to the Stars' would have been more interesting if it had departed occasionally from the stage formulas." Lisle Bell

Books p8 Je 2 '40 100w

Boston Transcript p2 Je 22 '40 70w

N Y Times p12 Je 16 '40 170w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 4 '40 160w

MILLAY, EDNA ST VINCENT (MRS E. J. BOISSEVAIN). Make bright the arrows; 1940 notebook. 65p $1.75 Harper

811 (W) 40-27815

Collection of poems for a world at war. They are dated October 1940, July 1940, May 1940, and record her thoughts on England and France and world affairs in general in the present. Includes There Are No Islands, Any More.

Booklist 37:150 D 15 '40

"Make bright your arrows, Miss Millay. A poet should use her art to save the world, if she can. But it must be poetry, first, and through and through. That is not true of most of these sincere but sputtering verses." Irwin Edman

— + Books p5 D 1 '40 800w

"Edna St. Vincent Millay brings to her notes all the intensity of anger, fear, contempt and love of which she is capable; her sincerity is unmistakable. Written 'in passion and deep concern' they have the merits and defects of timely verse. . . The very desperation of the cause makes Miss Millay too desperate to discriminate very clearly; she has decided to throw her laurels into the ring, and herself after them. This book will be loudly and widely hailed as strong, timely, and so true; but." John Holmes

Boston Transcript p9 N 25 '40 160w

"Edna St. Vincent Millay is still the finest lyric poet in America but her 1940 notebook . . . is too full of the confusion and bitterness of 1940 to be her finest poetry. Here she reprints 'There Are No Islands Any More' . . . which seemed such good newspaper poetry last May, and is still just that. . . Occasionally the old Millay bursts through the contemporary emotion in such a line as that which recalls Holland when 'not a tank had crushed the tulips there' or in the ballad asking, 'Where are the towns of yesteryear?' " Lewis Gannett

— + Boston Transcript p9 N 26 '40 250w

"Although the workmanship is uneven, the poet speaks with fire and beauty of phrase. The verses throb with emotional intensity written in a white heat of deep feeling concerning world conditions." E. H. Crowell

+ Library J 65:1041 D 1 '40 150w

MILLAY, E. ST V.—Continued

"Poetry such as Miss Millay has written owes little to imaginative insight; it depends therefore on a minute accuracy in the statement of emotion. That we have the right to demand of her. In urging us to make bright the arrows, she has weapons in mind. It is only the martial arrows she has sharpened here. The arrows of Apollo lie neglected, tarnished, blunt." J. P. Bishop

Nation 151:563 D 7 '40 1000w

"Except for a few of the sonnets with which the volume concludes, the more conventional verses are written in a kind of poetic journalese that sounds as little like the voice of Miss Millay as it does like that of the Hebrew prophet. A number of pieces are written in an attempt at a more modern, conversational style, the effect of which is faintly Audenesque, with a dash of Ogden Nash, though the poet is neither so penetrating as the one nor so witty as the other. . . Nor is it credible that Miss Millay should have confided even to a notebook, much less published, an apostrophe to Jesus which makes Him look like a tinsel figure. . . It is the very significance of her subject matter, and the proclaimed intensity of her feeling . . . that bring out her inadequacy to manage either. Few poets can hope to do more now than scribble Jeremiads in notebooks; but all who are honest with themselves and their public will admit that hysteria is ersatz prophecy, and notes a poor substitute for poetry." Babette Deutsch

New Repub 103:761 D 2 '40 600w

"Miss Millay's new book is subtitled a '1940 Notebook' and that is exactly what it is, written by a well-trained poet who has not thrown her training out of the window but is relying more and more on thematic material. Miss Millay was compelled to write this book. Her readers will be compelled to read it. . . Here is the realism of present living in the words of a poet who will be better remembered for her 'stronger meat' than for her prettier hors d'oeuvres. Miss Millay may have written more nicely, but she has never written more strongly, with absolute belief and accuracy." P. M. Jack

+ N Y Times p6 D 1 '40 650w

"That it is a sincere book goes without question. What strikes the reader is that here is a new war, different in almost all respects from wars which have preceded it, being urged upon people in exactly the same way that it was urged in 1914. The noble tone, the stock sentiment, which post-1918 poetry, in all European languages, depreciated and made tiresome and unreadable, reappear. That this sentimentality should at this particular moment appear in full force in American writing is a cause for concern and regret." Louise Bogan

+ — New Yorker 16:62 D 28 '40 240w

Time 36:90 D 9 '40 400w

MILLAY, EDNA ST VINCENT (MRS E. J. BOISSEVAIN). There are no islands, any more. 10p 50c; pa 25c Harper

811 (W) 40-30668

" 'Lines written in passion and in deep concern for England, France, and my own country,' by a poet who was once a pacifist. Miss Millay's generosity is as strong as her warlike feelings. No profit will accrue to either author or publisher; all proceeds will go to an established war relief." New Yorker

"Poetry may not necessarily be 'emotion recollected in tranquillity,' but epigrammatic journalism, even of a high order, must be transmuted into art if it is to be poetry. The white heat of emotion does not suffice to burn dross away, or to turn widely distributed copper coins of verse into potable gold:

Dear isolationist, you are
So very, very insular.

So begins Miss Millay. It gets better, but not enough better to be poetry." Irwin Edman

Books p6 S 8 '40 300w

Cleveland Open Shelf p17 O '40

"I cannot say that Edna St. Vincent Millay's poem There Are No Islands Any More approximates in the slightest degree to poetry. We may dismiss it as the expression of a poet whose conviction and sincerity are obvious, but whose creative spirit has burned out." Eugene Jolas

Living Age 359:192 O '40 40w

New Yorker 16:67 Ag 24 '40 60w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 11 '40 280w

MILLER, MRS ALICE (DUER). White cliffs. 70p $1 Coward-McCann

811 40-32472

Short novel in verse. It is the narrative of an American girl in England in 1914, who marries a young Englishman. She makes friends with his family, bears his son, and as his widow stays on in Devon—a loyal American, loyal to the memory of her English husband and his son. And when it comes to a new war she relinquishes her son to his country.

"It is told with understanding, incisiveness, deep feeling, and a pretty satiric wit. . . The emotional tone of the various episodes is skillfully matched in the movement of the verse, and the conclusion gives a poignant stab."

+ Atlantic D '40 180w

Booklist 37:134 D 1 '40

"I should imagine that even a Hottentot, providing he had a reasonable knowledge of the English language, could not fail to be impressed and touched by the sincerity, quality and charm of this book, but, I am an Englishman and as such obviously prejudiced, very prejudiced indeed, and very grateful." Noel Coward

+ Books p3 S 22 '40 850w

"The story moves swiftly, a whole novel being compressed in a sequence of verses which moves confidently toward the climax. This will probably be a very popular book." John Holmes

+ Boston Transcript p11 S 23 '40 60w

"This poem may not be set aside as mere 'propaganda.' Beautiful in its music and moving in its appeal, it can even stand the test of being read quietly alone, after having first been listened to as rendered by Lynn Fontanne,— a memorable experience."

+ Cath World 152:509 Ja '41 220w

Cleveland Open Shelf p19 O '40

Time 36:88 O 7 '40 60w

MILLER, CONRAD. Small boat engines; operation and care of marine gasoline engines; il. by Nels J. Gerlufsen. 285p $3 Rudder pub.

621.43421 Motor boats. Marine engines 39-17517

"The author 'has attempted to construct a book not merely to tell that marine engines exist, run, and break down, but one which explains in readable English what makes them run and break down, and how to take care of them. Much practical information is given, but at the same time an endeavor is made to present sound accepted engineering theory. . . Beside chapters on the understanding of the marine engine, there is presented much material on the upkeep and maintenance of them; trouble shooting, tuning up, and overhaul are all discussed in a practical manner.' " N Y New Tech Bks

Booklist 36:426 Jl 15 '40

N Y New Tech Bks 25:6 Ja '40

MILLER, HAROLD BLAINE, and MILLER, MRS JEAN DUPONT. Bob Wakefield's flight log. 240p il $2 Dodd

40-32439

"One of a series about a young naval aviator. This time about adventures in line of duty up and down the Pacific Coast and in Alaska and doing preliminary work routing foreign agents who don't want to see an American airline running from the U. S. to Australia. The author is a Lieut. Commander in the Navy." Sat R of Lit

"Will receive a warm welcome from the older boys. . . Since Blaine Miller is a Lieutenant Commander in the United States Navy, the technical details in his book are accurate." E. T. Dobbins

+ Library J 65:929 N 1 '40 80w

"Solid heroics with real background." Raymond Holden

+ Sat R of Lit 23:5 N 16 '40 50w

MILLER, MRS HELEN (TOPPING). Dark lightning. 258p $2 Appleton-Century

40-31039

The dark lightning is the discovery of oil, which strikes the Mason family ranch in Texas, and involves the whole family in difficulty, especially Adelaide, and Gary Tallman, the engineer whom she hopes to marry.

"Mrs. Miller knows the background, and she shows her readers the heartaches and the distrust and bitterness which the gamble for oil can create. Romance is almost destroyed in the mire and vile smell of oil, but the author sees it through to eventual supremacy. 'Dark Lightning' ranks high among Mrs. Miller's regional novels." Lisle Bell

+ Books p17 S 22 '40 160w

N Y Times p26 S 22 '40 180w

MILLER, MRS HELEN (TOPPING). The mulberry bush. 244p $2 Appleton-Century

(W) 40-5535

Tho it was against her better judgment, Virginia Warfield married charming, adventurous Mike Paull just before he left for a South American trip. During the next six months she learned more about his character and ways of living, but when she tried to make him over, she had her own shortcomings revealed to her. And on this basis of love plus understanding Virginia at last was able to build a true happiness.

Reviewed by Lisle Bell

Books p15 Mr 24 '40 140w

"One of the best of Helen Topping Miller's many romantic novels."

+ Boston Transcript p2 My 25 '40 40w

Reviewed by Charlotte Dean

N Y Times p26 Mr 24 '40 150w

MILLER, HUGH. History and science; a study of the relation of historical and theoretical knowledge. 201p $2 Univ. of Calif. [12s Cambridge]

501 Science—Philosophy. Knowledge, Theory of. Evolution 39-28850

"The term 'science' in the title of this book stands for Theoretical Science, in contrast to Historical Science. But the word 'History' stands for more than the historical science of human society, since human history is understood here as but one part of the larger history of nature, including biological and other evolutions. As there is theoretical sociology and a history of society, so is there a theory and history of life, and a theory and history of inorganic nature. Our theme is that theory and history are everywhere two complementary approaches to natural knowledge, and that each is, accordingly, of general applicability." Pref.

Reviewed by H. E. Barnes

Am Soc R 5:284 Ap '40 340w

"While Mr. Miller's book contains many sound observations, his main contention as to the central importance of genetic analysis for a sound theory of nature seems very dubious to this reviewer." E. N.

+ — J Philos 37:412 Jl 18 '40 800w

N Y New Tech Bks 25:26 Ap '40

MILLER, MAX. Harbor of the sun; the story of the port of San Diego. (Seaport ser) 329p il $3 Doubleday

979.498 San Diego, California (W) 40-33311

The author of I Cover the Waterfront (Book Review Digest, 1932) relates the history of the port of San Diego from the days of the Spanish conquerors in the sixteenth century down to the present time. Index.

Booklist 37:114 N 15 '40

" 'Harbor of the Sun' is a useful and amusing book as it stands, and many a visitor to that port of perpetual sunshine will be grateful to Mr. Miller for telling its story." J. H. Jackson

+ Books p6 N 10 '40 500w

Christian Science Monitor p20 D 19 '40 600w

New Repub 104:158 F 3 '41 80w

"A book that is well got up, well illustrated and fascinating to read." K. W.

+ N Y Times p12 D 1 '40 550w

New Yorker 16:87 N 2 '40 40w

MILLER, PERRY GILBERT EDDY. The New England mind; the seventeenth century. 528p $3.75 (19s) Macmillan

917.4 Puritans. Religious literature. American literature—New England 39-22760

For descriptive note see Annual for 1939.

"This book deserves a wide audience not only of scholars but of intelligent general readers as well. Unfortunately, to all but the narrowest of specialists Mr. Miller's academic and frequently repetitious style may well prove insurmountable. A Teutonic ponderosity, which at times makes the book read like a translation of Mommsen, often obscures the sweep and poetry of a truly magnificent conception. . . And yet, as the Bible was the ultimate authority of the Puritans, so The New England Mind must be a Sibylline Book for students of American history, literature, and thought." Carl Bridenbaugh

+ — Am Hist R 45:887 Jl '40 750w

Reviewed by Ellis Freeman

Am J Psychol 54:146 Ja '41 700w

"One has the feeling that the real mind of seventeeth-century New England is not touched. What the author gives us is a sketch of a decadent Puritan theology. This may be due in part to the author's method. . . Not until chapter xii, an interesting discussion of the Puritan sermon, and the following chapters on the economic and social implications of the doctrine of the covenant, does the reader feel that his feet are on the ground. The Index of the book is inadequate." J. M. Mecklin

— + Am J Soc 46:110 Jl '40 350w

"A truly distinguished book." R. K. Merton

+ Am Soc R 5:271 Ap '40 420w

"Professor Miller wisely chose first to explain the thought categories and system of logic employed by the Puritans, with the result that his exposition of the content of their thinking becomes not only more intelligible than hitherto, but also indicative of the gap between their mental processes and those of modern Americans. All in all, this is a very distinguished book and a major contribution to Colonial and intellectual historical writing." C. F. Strong

+ Ann Am Acad 208:215 Mr '40 600w

Atlantic Mr '40 50w

Cath World 151:116 Ap '40 600w

"Here is a study of unprecedented thoroughness of the religion, the logic and philosophy, the church polity and political practice, of the first generation of American Puritans." W. E. Garrison

+ Christian Century 57:575 My 1 '40 200w

MILLER, P. G. E.—Continued

"The New England Mind is a model of research. It shows wide reading, great learning, and deep intellectual brooding. The argument is not always easy reading, but it is always meticulous and lucid. Professor Miller has illumined many difficult matters with insight and with careful statement of the insight. Scholars who feel that he has exaggerated the unity in the New England mind or failed to evaluate properly minority opinion will nevertheless find this a thought-provoking volume." G. L. Abernethy

+ — Ethics 51:109 O '40 400w

Reviewed by W. W. Sweet

J Religion 20:290 Jl '40 900w

"This present work stands as a preliminary survey—a map of the intellectual terrain of seventeenth-century New England. It defines and classifies the principal concepts of the Puritan mind and attempts to account for origins, interrelationships, and significances of ideas. If the subsequent volumes, in the solidity of their scholarship and in the soundness of their interpretations, attain the promise of this initial work, the reviewer is convinced that the completed treatment will rank as a definitive contribution to the history of American ideas." J. H. Shera

+ Library Q 10:302 Ap '40 1800w

"Dr. Miller's book is the product of profound learning, and it is not light reading. But it is excellently planned and admirably clear. He pays the seventeenth century New Englanders the compliment of trying to see them in their own light, as children of the age of Bacon and Descartes, skilfully and perilously balanced between Arminian and Antinomian heresies, unconscious of more dangerous doctrines rising across the sea. This is a masterly contribution to intellectual history."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p115 Mr 2 '40 320w

MILLER, REX. I, Paul. 210p map $2.50 Duell

227 Paul, Saint 40-29541

The life story of Paul, "the apostle to the Gentiles," told in the first person, and omitting any interpretations of the gospels.

"It is natural to test this book by studying the treatment of certain climactic episodes. . . The Damascus episode might well, perhaps, have been more dramatically and elaborately described, but the speech in Athens is splendidly done. The shipwreck, of course, writes itself. What is lacking in the work as a whole is the background of the times—the landscape of the Empire, the life of the people, the conditions of travel, so admirably portrayed, for example, in H. V. Morton's 'In the Steps of St. Paul.' But this book has its own merits." J. H. Holmes

+ — Books p34 N 24 '40 240w

Cath World 152:636 F '41 160w

"It is an attractive narrative of adventure, an attempt at autobiography which is probably as effective as such an effort could be in which accounts of the incidents and adventures of the speaker are set forth entertainingly. What the reader will miss, however, is any elucidation of the doctrines set forth in the Epistles, which have given Paul first place as the most potent expounder of the Master's teachings." A. F. Gilmore

+ — Christian Science Monitor p13 D 7 '40 440w

MILLETT, FRED BENJAMIN. Contemporary American authors. 716p $3.75; text ed $2.85 Harcourt

810.9 American literature—History and criticism. Authors, American. Authors, American—Bibliography (W) 40-27229

Handbook on American literature since 1900, based on Manly and Rickert: Contemporary American Literature (Book Review Digest, 1929). It is composed of an introductory critical survey of the various types of literature; 219 bio-bibliographies of contemporary American authors; select bibliographies; and classified indexes.

Booklist 36:288 Mr 15 '40

Boston Transcript p2 Mr 30 '40 60w

"Probably the one best and most comprehensive handbook of modern American literature. . . The amount of classified information in these 716 pages is enormous."

+ Christian Century 57:321 Mr 6 '40 50w

"In a day when slipshod bibliography seems all too often the rule one feels especially grateful for this work. For it is certainly the finest large-scale bibliography of contemporary American literature to be issued within the covers of one volume. . . The book unquestionably belongs in every library and on the desk of every student of contemporary literature." T. G. Ehrsam

+ Library Q 10:446 Jl '40 200w

Pratt p19 autumn '40

Wis Lib Bul 36:65 Ap '40

MILLETT, JOHN DAVID. British unemployment assistance board; a case study in administrative autonomy [Eng title: Unemployment assistance board]. 300p $3 McGraw [8s 6d Allen, G]

331.25444 Great Britain. Unemployment assistance board 40-12849

"Inasmuch as the principal object of this discussion throughout is the Unemployment Assistance Board, the first two chapters recount the story of its creation and its early history. The third chapter introduces the debate between ministerial responsibility and administrative autonomy as the basis for organizing governmental activities. Chapters IV and V portray the 'independence' of the Board in practice, while Chapters VI and VII examine the case in favour of this 'independence.' The last chapter contains some general reflections upon the topic of administrative autonomy, with some suggestions how the central administration of unemployment assistance might have been more satisfactorily organized." (Pref) Index.

Social Studies 31:335 N '40

Times [London] Lit Sup p352 Jl 20 '40 300w

MILLIS, WALTER. Why Europe fights. 277p maps $2.50 Morrow

940.5 Europe—Politics. European war, 1939—Causes (W) 40-27530

A review of Europe's economic and political history during the twenty-one years which intervened between the close of one Great war and the beginning of the second. In his Foreword the author says: "[This book] endeavors to be objective. It does not attempt, however, to conceal the author's conviction that certain tendencies and national policies were more definitely retrograde, more immediately responsible for the new war, than others. All studies of this kind must be written from some point of view. It is the author's view that the rise of totalitarian absolutism, particularly in its German form, was the major disaster of the period . . . but that this 'cause' can only be considered against the backgrounds of economic dislocation, bitterness and defeat out of which the totalitarianisms arose." Index.

Reviewed by D. P. Myers

Am Pol Sci R 34:1023 O '40 240w

Reviewed by V. J. Puryear

Ann Am Acad 212:235 N '40 380w

Atlantic Ag '40 700w

Booklist 36:396 Je 15 '40

Bookmark p7 N '40

"The breathless interest of the work lies not in tricks of construction or style but in the facts themselves, aptly chosen and simply told. I do not see how the story could have been made more lucid. I do not see either how it could have been more fairly presented. A brilliant young man, twenty years hence, may denounce this book as propaganda, rousing the martial spirit, paving the road to war. And he will not be wholly wrong. Facts are the most irresistible of propagandists; and the facts marshalled by Walter Millis do not lead us to think that a world under Nazi rule would be sane and happy." Albert Guerard
+ Books p1 Je 16 '40 1750w

"Walter Millis, of the editorial staff of the New York Herald Tribune, wrote hilariously (in 1931) of 'The Martial Spirit' with which we went to war with Spain in 1898, the year before he was born. He wrote ironically (in 1935) of the 'Road to War' we followed in 1918, when he was a Yale undergraduate. Now he writes with an almost incredibly cool and balanced objectivity 'Why Europe Fights.' I know no better primer on the background of this war." Lewis Gannett
+ Boston Transcript p11 Je 12 '40 1000w

"Whoever reads Mr. Millis's book will have a better understanding of the story of the last 25 years than he had before. He will have some idea of primary and secondary causes and of the consequences which are bound to follow. Mr. Millis did not tell us anything we did not know, true, but he has related for us facts in a way in which many of us fail to relate them." J. A. C. F. Auer
+ Boston Transcript p1 Jl 20 '40 500w
Cath World 151:635 Ag '40 100w
Christian Science Monitor p10 Ag 17 '40 360w
Cleveland Open Shelf p13 Jl '40

"Mr. Millis has written a book which will save you a lot of time and trouble if you are looking for a concise, compact, not-too-deep history of Europe since 1919. It manages somehow to compress into one volume a story which you might have thought could not be told—and before Millis it has not been told—in less than a dozen books." Norman Cousins
+ Current Hist & Forum 51:1 Jl '40 1800w

"Mr. Millis has performed a masterly job in fitting together the myriad pieces in the gigantic jig-saw puzzle that was postwar Europe." Eleanor Van Alen
+ Current Hist & Forum 52:3 F 13 '41 290w
Foreign Affairs 19:254 O '40 40w

Reviewed by A. B. Lindsay
Library J 65:541 Je 15 '40 350w

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin
Library J 65:854 O 15 '40 40w

"If you are looking for a volume that gives a comprehensible cause-and-effect narration of the reasons underlying the bloody tragedy overseas, and leaves 'to the reason all final questions of moral justification,' Mr. Millis' latest volume is probably the most intelligible and readable account you will find." Philip Eagan
+ Living Age 359:291 N '40 460w

"Walter Millis, to whom we owe some of the excellent editorials on foreign policy in the New York Herald Tribune, has given us the best short history of the two decades between the two world wars that has yet appeared. It is an unpretentious book; it does not attempt to reveal any new facts or to throw any new light upon old ones. But even a reader fully conversant with the history of the last twenty years will read the book with sustained interest. So great is the art of the author—the balance of his judgment and the clarity of his approach—that he has succeeded in weaving out of well-known facts a brilliant and fascinating book." Hans Kohn
+ Nation 151:16 Jl 6 '40 750w

Reviewed by F. L. Schuman
New Repub 102:861 Je 24 '40 550w

"'Why Europe Fights' is a readable and well-arranged primer on major trends in Europe since 1919 and Versailles. It does not compare in scholarly achievement with Mr. Millis's previous works. There is nothing new in the volume... . It is the familiar story, judiciously interpreted." Shepard Stone
+ N Y Times p2 Je 23 '40 650w

"Smooth and well-informed writing, not too deep."
+ New Yorker 16:115 Je 15 '40 60w
Pratt p21 autumn '40

Reviewed by A. W. Dulles
Sat R of Lit 22:5 Je 22 '40 900w
Wis Lib Bul 36:125 Jl '40

Reviewed by Hajo Holborn
Yale R n s 30:163 autumn '40 700w

MILLS, CLARENCE ALONZO. Medical climatology; climatic and weather influences in health and disease. 296p il maps $4.50 Thomas, C.C. [25s Bailliere]

614.42 Climatology, Medical 39-30349

"Dr. C. A. Mills, professor of experimental medicine at the University of Cincinnati and the foremost American student of the influences of weather and climate upon the human organism, demonstrates at length the importance of the effects of climate and weather upon the fundamentals of human existence. Nearly half the book is devoted to the general effects of climate and weather; the remaining chapters deal with the relation between variations in weather and climate and variations in the susceptibility of man to various diseases and organic disturbances, and with the place of climate in medical therapy." Social Forces

---

Reviewed by H. E. Meleney
Am J Pub Health 30:438 Ap '40 700w
+ Scientific Bk Club R 10:3 S '39 480w

"This book, with its many graphs, should be read not only by all physicians but also by students of sociology, history, and geography, and by persons interested in artificial air conditioning and in the effects of such air conditioning upon human activity." J. J. Spengler
+ Social Forces 18:447 Mr '40 550w
Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 10 '40 370w

MILLS, PHOEBE. Hints to business maidens. 44p $1 Meador

174 Woman—Employment. Applications for positions 39-17066

Brief treatment of the subject of job getting for women, either a first job or one offering better opportunity. Contains hints on dress, manners, methods of approaching possible employers, etc.

Cleveland Open Shelf p3 Ja '40
Springf'd Republican p7e F 18 '40 200w

MILLS, MRS WINIFRED (HARRINGTON), and DUNN, MRS LOUISE M. The story of old dolls and how to make new ones; il. by Corydon Bell. 234p $2.50 Doubleday

649.55 Dolls. Handicraft (W) 40-34577

The first section of the book presents a history of dolls from the wooden dolls of Egypt, in 2000 B.C., to the dolls of the twentieth century. The second section on the art of doll making has directions and patterns for twenty-four kinds of dolls from different kinds of materials. Brief bibliography. Index.

Booklist 37:237 F 1 '41

"As a Christmas present, it suits older people who have taken to this fascinating form of collecting: its chapter on Christmas crib figures being especially valuable. This part of the book has an unusual number of photographs of specimens, clear and well chosen. The second part also has line drawings making processes clear." M. L. Becker

MILLS, W., and DUNN, L. M.—Continued
+ Books p7 D 22 '40 160w

"The historical part, invaluable for reference, covers about half of the book. . . Clear and detailed instructions for making different kinds of dolls are given in the second half. . . An index and a short bibliography make it a very useful book for libraries and collectors." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk M 17:36 Ja '41 80w

"The authors are thoroughly familiar with their subject and both young people and adults will find the book of great interest. It will also be useful for reference." E. D. Briggs
+ Library J 66:34 Ja 1 '41 120w

MILNE, ALAN ALEXANDER. Behind the lines; a book of poems. 124p $1.75 Dutton

821 European war, 1939—Poetry (W) 40-33837

Verses on war themes written during the first nine months after September 3, 1939. The manner is light, sometimes flippant or humorous, but the content is serious.

Booklist 37:150 D 15 '40

"Mr. Milne is unquestionably sincere and articulate. These verses, to be sure, are not distinguished, and even their palpable sincerity, and the poignancy of some of the situations they casually record, cannot make them so. . . Some of the light verse is heavy-handed, not only in technique but in bluster. It would be one among many pities if that sense of humorous proportion, the hallmark of English life, should vanish. But there are other verses here that show Mr. Milne, once of 'Punch,' has not lost his genial cunning." Irwin Edman
+ — Books p8 Ja 26 '41 400w

Reviewed by John Holmes
Boston Transcript p9 N 4 '40 80w

"A. A. Milne, sees underneath the tragedy a time to laugh. If the laughter is a little wry at times, the meter a little uneven, the wit not so bright as we have come to expect, it is no time to complain." John Ritchey
+ — Christian Science Monitor p13 N 16 '40 210w

"A sort of diary of the present war as it was experienced by one Englishman in one English village, up to June of this year. Some of the verses are clever, pithy, and witty; others not so much so. The prose postscripts connecting the poems make of the whole a more composite reflection of the author's mind." L. N. Feipel
+ — Library J 65:873 O 15 '40 150w

Manchester Guardian p8 D 6 '40 150w

Nation 152:26 Ja 4 '41 110w

"Mr. Milne's graceful little muse, slightly disheveled and in a state of nervous tension, puts on her overalls and takes up her work: forty-three light and rather tripping pieces of Hitler, Mussolini, Ribbentrop, black-outs, the Athenia, butter, censorship, the RAF, etc. 'No, it's not getting me down,' she says, mopping her brow, 'but oh, what a change from Christopher Robin!' Mr. Milne's footnotes are for the most part very tea-in-the-garden."
New Repub 104:94 Ja 20 '41 90w

Reviewed by G. W. Stonier
New Statesman & Nation 20:582 D 7 '40 50w

Reviewed by Nicolas Bentley
Spec 166:20 Ja 3 '41 90w

"The entire volume is a refreshing contribution from England in the midst of war. A mature poet who can serve tonic like these verses in time of crisis ought to be recognized as a necessary part of the defense equipment of his country." A. M. J.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 12 '41 300w

Times [London] Lit Sup p594 N 23 '40 230w

MINER, DWIGHT CARROLL. The fight for the Panama route; the story of the Spooner act and the Hay-Herrán treaty [foreword by Allan Nevins]. 469p maps $4 Columbia univ. press [20s Oxford]

386.444 Panama canal. Colombia—Foreign relations—U.S. U.S.—Foreign relations—Colombia 40-8105

A critical study of the earlier phases of the negotiations and exchanges between the United States and Colombia which eventually led to the revolution in Panama and the acquisition by the United States of the right to build the Canal. Bibliography. Index.

"Aside from the rather inadequate first chapter and possible defects arising from inaccessibility of some of the sources, two other minor flaws may be mentioned. The maps are poorly executed, and the full names of some of the Colombian personalities are not supplied, even in the index. Moreover, in a work which reveals such alertness in the pursuit of all ramifications of the subject in hand it is somewhat disappointing to discover no reference to the ultimate cost of the Canal Zone to the United States in comparison with the price that would have satisfied Colombia in 1903. Balanced against the outstanding merits of the volume, such defects have small weight. This reviewer has examined few superior monographs in the field of American diplomacy." J. F. Rippy
+ — Am Hist R 46:437 Ja '41 700w

"On the whole, this is a thorough and well-written study. Aside from its illuminating account of politics and high finance in the United States, its most distinctive feature consists in the fact that it does justice to Colombia without doing an injustice to the United States. This is the kind of book that ought to be made required reading for the people of this country whenever they feel an attack of national Pharisaism coming on. At all times they would do well to read it for the light it throws on the great extent of the President's control of foreign relations." A. P. Whitaker
+ Ann Am Acad 213:206 Ja '41 800w

Reviewed by Paul Kiniery
Commonweal 32:154 Je 7 '40 270w

Reviewed by R. E. E. Harkness
Crozer Q 17:306 O '40 180w

"Dr. Miner's industry and acuteness deserve the highest praise; there are still dark places in the story but far fewer than there were. It is odd that one so sympathetic with Spanish-American attitudes and culture should translate from Spanish so stiffly."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p371 Ag 3 '40 550w

MINER, LEWIS S. Mightier than the sword. 225p il map $2 Whitman, A.

B or 92 Davis, Richard Harding 40-11362

Popular biography for young people, telling the story of Richard Harding Davis, war correspondent and writer of adventure stories. Bibliography.

Reviewed by F. S. Ambrose
Boston Transcript p2 Jl 6 '40 300w

"Richard Harding Davis was a person of high ideals and possessed the courage to follow his convictions. This book has grand material, but the presentation is poor; throughout the account, Richard Harding Davis remains a rather wooden character. The book will not have the appeal it would have had with more skillful writing." J. E. Stromdahl
Library J 65:661 Ag '40 100w

"A short, concise but thrilling biography of a man who participated in the stirring events of several wars and on their battlefields wrote captivating reports."
+ Springf'd Republican p8 O 9 '40 350w

MINER, LEWIS S. Pilot on the river; pictured by Christine Chisholm. 255p maps $2 Whitman, A.

40-32440

Historical novel for young readers describing the adventures of a fifteen-year-old boy who trained to be a pilot on the Mississippi River during Civil War days. Bill is finally put in charge of a transport carrying troops from the North to the South. The story is fictional, but is based on facts. For readers of ten to twelve. Glossary. Bibliography.

"While the book is not outstanding, it should prove useful especially with boys who are slow readers or who need thrilling deeds and daring rescues as stepping stones for other reading. Large type and attractive looking pages, but the paper is poor." A. M. Wetherell

+ Library J 65:1044 D 1 '40 150w

Springf'd Republican p7e D 15 '40 90w

MINNIGERODE, MEADE. The terror of Peru. 305p $2.50 Farrar

40-11556

A fantastic, romantic tale of an eighteenth-century "hero," told as it was resurrected and pieced together from dusty documents and court records by the twentieth century narrator. The "hero" is Jules Cotrel, a member of a merchant shipping family of Saint Malo, and the tale follows the course of his adventures in pursuit of a beautiful Spanish maiden.

"The book is a slightly bawdy and amusing piece with many a truth said in jest, designed for your vacation reading." F. T. Marsh

+ Books p8 Ag 11 '40 500w

New Repub 103:254 Ag 19 '40 60w

"Mr. Minnigerode tells [Jules'] story with plenty of spirit, a rough and tumble humor, a keen sense of contrast and irony. The result is an unusual book, robust, flavorsome, exciting." L. M. Field

+ N Y Times p6 Ag 4 '40 800w

New Yorker 16:56 Ag 3 '40 60w

"It is a rollicking tour de force of humor, this novel, compounded of two parts Balzac (of the 'Droll Stories'), two parts Dumas, and one part Cervantes. Satirical, lusty, absurd, but never irrational, it pokes fun not only at its characters but also at its smugness of romantic conventions. Its bawdiness is clean and earthy with no taint of nastiness in it, but its profanity is almost monotonous." C. D. Abbott

+ — Sat R of Lit 22:15 Ag 24 '40 440w

MINS, HENRY FELIX, and MINS, MRS EUGENIA (CHEROFF). Your house in the country; with illustrations, plans and diagrams by Eugenia Mins. 424p $1.96 Simon & Schuster

728 Architecture, Domestic. Country life (W) 40-8805

Practical advice for beginners who want a place in the country. Contents: Picking the site; Build or remodel? Remodeling; The house; Furnishing and decorating the country house; Mechanical equipment; Grounds and buildings; The garden; Closing the house: winter week ends and vacations; This new freedom: your double life; Country meals for amateur cooks; Country amusements and books; The country handy man; Perils of the country; Country etiquette. Bibliography. Index.

" 'Your House in the Country' is written in a way to intrigue the most timid person who has yearned for a pied à terre. The publishers call it a mine of information and one cannot improve upon that. Had this book been published two years ago, this reviewer would have known better how to deal with pump-pits, weather-stripping, dry wells and wooden gutters. Eugenia Mins contributes engaging drawings of people and houses to illustrate the text." Rose Feld

+ Books p16 Je 30 '40 850w

"The book is crammed with sound, wise advice. . . Old hands at the country home will enjoy it. The timid and helpless will feel more so and burrow deeper into their cozy apartments. The beginner should keep it under his pillow."

+ Boston Transcript p1 My 18 '40 200w

Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Jl '40

"All that the authors have to say is well and entertainingly written—and illustrated. Much of it is sound. The chapter on flower gardening is excellent. The warnings against over-exertion, over-exposure to sunlight, and the teeth of high-speed machine tools are well advised. But by the same token it is only too evident the authors themselves still have a lot to learn about sycamores and silos. . . Altogether an entertaining and highly readable book but to be taken by the neophyte magno cum very much grano." Henry Tetlow

+ — Commonweal 32:66 My 10 '40 330w

Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 28 '40 300w

MINTON, BRUCE, and STUART, JOHN. The fat years and the lean. 454p $3.75 Modern age

973.91 U.S. Politics and government. U.S.—Economic conditions (W) 40-10788

"The attempt in this book has been to gauge the predominant economic and political trends in the United States since the end of the First World War. We make no claim of recording the inexhaustible details of the period. The problem has been to sift a colossal body of evidence which in our estimation proves that capitalism, as it emerged after 1919, was moribund. The political patterns of this declining economic system in turn influenced the course of American economic life. And it is with the broadest strokes that we have pictured the peoples' struggles against monopoly and hunger, and for a freer and more abundant life—of the conscious and unconscious drive toward socialism. The omission, so apparent in this book, is the failure to discuss the cultural phases of the post-war years." (Foreword) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by John Chamberlain

Books p11 Ag 4 '40 900w

"On the whole I found it dull reading. The tone is monotonously bad-tempered, and the moralistic rhetoric becomes none the less tiresome when it is so often well justified. There is a great deal of useful economic analysis, and a great deal of what at first seemed to be useless political analysis of party platforms until one realized that all this was meant to show that the communist party was right at each election and all the other parties wrong or dishonest." F. H. U.

— + Canadian Forum 20:251 N '40 190w

Reviewed by Paul Kiniery

Commonweal 32:272 Jl 19 '40 330w

New Eng Q 13:757 D '40 250w

"An uneven and, at times, completely irritating book. Much of its history is a priori; it is the product of conclusions reached before the evidence was examined. The principle of historical selection is so strenuously employed that data which run counter to a particular thesis are frequently ignored. At its worst, therefore, the volume exhibits the less attractive characteristics of a propaganda pamphlet. . . There is much, however, on the credit side of the ledger. Some of the writing is sharp and sprightly, and there are several acute pen portraits of political figures. The first portion of the book, up to the election of 1928, is distinguished by astute and incisive political reporting, and in several instances the authors make fruitful use of earlier secondary work and periodical sources." Henry David

— + New Repub 103:455 S 30 '40 1000w

"To those unaccustomed to the rationalizations of communism in America [this book] should prove enlightening, if not entertaining. For while the youthful authors are in no way

MINTON, B., and STUART, J.—Continued
identified as Communists in the descriptive literature on the cover of the book, they leave the reader no choice but to catalogue them as 'fellow-travelers,' if not outright party members. . . Those who would like to know more about the groupings and feuding within the subway of American leftist politics may learn much from this book. But they must read it for what it is." J. H. Crider

N Y Times p9 Jl 7 '40 800w

"This book is a curious exhibit. Taking the form of a history of the United States from Great War to Great War (from 1918 to 1939) it is a prolonged and unrelieved Communist tract, so orthodox as to be quite suitable for distribution by Soviet foreign missionary societies. . . There is almost nothing in the book about American education, literature and the arts, religion, science, invention, engineering, or the changing conditions of marriage and family and social life. There is almost no suggestion that the American people ever enjoyed themselves. Not only is the entire story economic and political, as the authors themselves are the first to admit, but since the Marxians were not running things during this twenty-one-year period, almost everything that happened is presented as dismally wrong." F. L. Allen

— Sat R of Lit 22:10 Je 8 '40 850w

MIRIAM, SISTER. Woven of the sky; introd. by Odell Shepard. 71p $1.50 Macmillan

811 40-6403

As Odell Shepard writes in his introduction to this volume of religious poetry, "the poetry written by Catholic nuns is always and of course love poetry." Sister Miriam's is that—poetry of heavenly love.

Books p12 Ag 11 '40 130w

Cath World 151:252 My '40 280w

"The quantity of poetry produced by Catholic nuns is considerable and apparently increasing. Much of it is good. This is of the best. Peace and contentment are of the essence of it, and love finding its object in things divine, and beauty not to be seen with the eyes."

+ Christian Century 57:354 Mr 13 '40 50w

"Readers who have met Sister Miriam's work in various magazines during the past few years must have been increasingly aware that here was a real poetic talent, a real sensitivity to life and to beauty. So they will welcome this first collection of her verse." Katherine Brégy

+ Commonweal 31:518 Ap 5 '40 450w

MIRZA, YOUEL BENJAMIN. Stripling. 319p $2.50 Funk, W.

40-32085

"In the Hills of Persia nomadic tribes live in tents, guarding their herds of sheep and moving when the snows come. Not unlike the animals they guard, they live on the barest essentials. The stripling of this novel, Jalal, was exiled from his own tribe, and after wandering alone through the mountains, came on the tribe of Guzli Beg. Guzli Beg took Jalal into his own tent, and the boy's strength and bravery were useful to him. He raided neighboring villages and drove off their sheep. Under his growing though unacknowledged leadership, the tribe began to thrive again. . . By the time old Guzli Beg died, not many of them would have quarreled with his choice of the boy to be their next leader. The one who did was ruthlessly dealt with by Jalal, now known as Jalal Beg." Books

"The pleasant, simple way in which this story is told gives it a curious folk quality, like one of the old heroic epics. It is curious because actually there is no great stature to the tale. The growth of the tribe to strength and riches is important only as part of Jalal's own growth. And Jalal himself is no great hero, merely a strong, handsome boy who was like new life in a dying group of people. If such a highly personal account of a boy's growing up had been set in America and told with less poetry it would seem unimportant. But in this form and setting it has become a strange and pleasing novel." Anne Brooks

+ Books p14 O 6 '40 420w

"The great merit, and strong interest, of this story lies in the naturalness of its point of view. Writing with straightforward candor and simplicity, the author has not compared the tribesman's code with those of Western civilization. He has set down the tribesman's life as he remembers it. And thus he has written a good and unusual book." K. W.

+ N Y Times p26 O 27 '40 700w

New Yorker 16:103 O 12 '40 30w

"Mr. Mirza's story of a Persian stripling is so simply and charmingly told that one may very easily overlook the book's chief distinction. More than charm and lyrical grace, it possesses the unique faculty of bringing to us intact the special qualities of an alien culture." N. L. R.

+ Sat R of Lit 23:21 N 2 '40 270w

MISSIONARY EDUCATION MOVEMENT OF THE UNITED STATES AND CANADA. Children's committee. More missionary stories to tell [ed. by Nina Millen]. 182p $1; pa 50c Missionary educ. movement

266 Missions 40-6601

A collection of stories for leaders of children in church schools. The stories concern modern Christian missions in Asia, Africa and the Americas. The book is a companion volume to Missionary Stories to Tell, published in 1937.

"To those who question whether an audience awaits a book with such a title it should suffice to answer that a previous book, Missionary Stories to Tell, has gone into six printings. That, of course, is because the stories are good stories as well as an apologetic for modern missions in terms congenial to the minds of today's children."

+ Christian Century 57:83 Ja 17 '40 70w

Reviewed by H. E. Baker

J Religion 20:319 Jl '40 30w

MITCHELL, EDWIN VALENTINE. Anchor to windward; il. by Ruth Rhoads Lepper. 270p map $2.75 Coward-McCann

917.41 Maine—Description and travel. Maine seacoast mission 40-29574

In this book the author records his experiences with the Maine Seacoast Mission. He first learned definitely about the Mission in the fall of 1939 and almost at once applied for permission to make the winter cruise on its boat, the Sunbeam, among the islands off the coast of Maine. His story includes his own travel log as well as a history of the Mission, an account of its work, and anecdotes of the people visited. Index.

Booklist 37:269 F 15 '41

"Mr. Mitchell has written a book that should serve as an A-1 gift for people who have known the charms of this northeast corner of New England. The attractiveness of the book is enhanced by the pen drawings of Ruth Rhoads Lepper." Wilbert Snow

+ Books p5 D 22 '40 700w

Christian Science Monitor p16 D 28 '40 600w

"Mr. Mitchell takes us to many islands, brings us acquaintance with island people, and gives us a real knowledge of a fine work."

+ N Y Times p32 D 8 '40 320w

MITCHELL, LUCY (SPRAGUE) (MRS W. C. MITCHELL); BOWMAN, MRS ELEANOR (PEDERSEN), and PHELPS, MARY. My country 'tis of thee; the use and abuse of natural resources. 335p il maps $3.50 Macmillan

333 U.S.—Natural resources. Soils. Coal. Petroleum (W) 40-36224

This book concerns three natural resources of the United States—soil, coal and oil. It deals with the use and abuse of these resources in the present, with their past history—both economic and geologic—and with the social and political questions which are roused by these summaries. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 37:236 F 1 '41

"Thoughtful, and obviously honest, this book does not follow the conventional pattern of such books. Not for specialists but a good workable introduction to the subject for laymen, young and old. There is a bibliography and a good index." S. H. Holbrook

+ Books p26 D 8 '40 380w

"Many authorities on education tell us that teaching of American history has been sadly neglected in our schools. If this is the case, Mrs. Mitchell's book should be useful to the victims of that neglect. She rehearses the story of our country in textbook style and with emphasis upon our material resources and our careless use thereof. To readers who know our nation's story and have read the less tedious accounts of conservation work the book is slow going." A. R. Eaton

Library J 65:807 O 1 '40 80w

"Each section is followed by interpretation in effective verse. Pictures are abundant, and the collection of diagrams gives one of the best bird's-eye views of the American scene that is to be found anywhere in such brief space. The actual discussion is clear and factual." P. B. Sears

+ Sat R of Lit 23:16 Ja 4 '41 320w

Social Studies 32:48 Ja '41 20w

"To this reviewer, the most interesting section is the first, which deals with soil. . . The weakest part of the section on soil is the discussion of the agricultural program of the New Deal. . . Unfortunately, the literary qualities of 'My Country 'Tis of Thee' do not live up to the sociological, scientific, and economic content. The style is flat and often redundant, rhetorical questions are superabundant. Nor is the scheme of organization too fortunate." C. W. Collier

+ — Survey G 30:41 Ja '41 700w

MITCHELL, RUTH COMFORT (MRS W. S. YOUNG). Of human kindness. 359p $2 Appleton-Century

40-7354

The Grapes of Wrath showed one side of the picture of present-day ranch life and labor problems in California; this book shows the other side. The story is written from the point of view of the ranch owners, as opposed to the migrant workers. The central characters are Ed Banner, a substantial farmer, and Mary, his delicately bred city wife, whose courage was equal to Ed's brawn.

Reviewed by Lisle Bell

Books p19 My 5 '40 420w

Christian Century 57:581 My 1 '40 100w

Reviewed by Carey McWilliams

New Repub 103:125 Jl 22 '40 700w

"Sincerely trying to avoid bias [the author] evidently feels that the farmers have had a bad press and that something should be said on their side. Since there is no violence or fanaticism in her presentation, it doesn't make as exciting reading as a crusading tirade. But it has the quality of an honest book." Beatrice Sherman

N Y Times p12 Ap 21 '40 330w

Wis Lib Bul 36:127 Jl '40

MITCHELL, WILLIAM NORMAN. Organization and management of production. 417p $4 (26s) McGraw

658.5 Industry—Organization, control, etc. Factory management 39-29819

"Based on the author's Production Management [Book Review Digest, 1932] and using some parts of that book, with a large amount of new material added." Booklist

---

"One-fourth of the book is a working appendix which gives for each chapter an extended bibliography, questions for class discussion, and several problems. The author expects teachers to devote the classroom discussions to practical problems and concrete cases with the students preparing for these by reading widely among the suggested references. If this expectation is realized it will make for a much more intensive first course than is usually found in this field. As to specific points, there is little to criticize and much to commend. Especially noteworthy are the graphic portrayals of managerial concepts and equations." A. H. Williams

+ Am Econ R 30:167 Mr '40 180w

"If the reviewer were to make a criticism, it would be with reference to some of the chapter titles. Thus, Chapter VI, Product Design and Control, is really a discussion of standardization and inspection. Product design necessarily involves many other factors. However, this is a small matter in a book that contains so much good material. It is well written, the discussion is clear, and the book is well illustrated." D. S. Kimball

+ — Ann Am Acad 208:228 Mr '40 550w

Booklist 36:288 Mr 15 '40

Management R 28:455 D '39 80w

MOCK, JAMES ROBERT, and LARSON, CEDRIC. Words that won the war; the story of the Committee on public information, 1917-1919. 372p il maps $3.75 Princeton univ. press [22s 6d Oxford]

940.488 U.S. Committee on public information. Creel, George. Propaganda, American. European war, 1914-1918—U.S. 39-27871

For descriptive note see Annual for 1939.

Reviewed by Preston Slosson

Am Hist R 45:932 Jl '40 430w

"The authors have done such an excellent job that one hesitates to sound a critical note, and yet this reviewer, at least, was unpleasantly impressed with the naïveté with which the authors accept Mr. Creel and his associates as knights in shining armor. Had Mr. Creel set out to write an official apologia, it is doubtful whether even a little modesty would have allowed him to indulge in such unstinted praise of his work as he receives at the hands of Messrs. Mock and Larson. One gets the impression from reading the book that the intellectual and spiritual regimentation of a nation is truly glorious, if only it be accomplished by men of patriotic fervor and charming manners." P. H. Odegard

+ — Am Pol Sci R 34:133 F '40 480w

"There is no doubt that the authors have contributed a historical work of importance. It is less clear that they have added greatly to our knowledge of the propaganda process and the methods of propaganda analysis. But the volume is a notable contribution to a literature which is all too scant. . . The authors should be censured for the somewhat melodramatic title which they have chosen for a scholarly work." William Albig

+ — Ann Am Acad 208:213 Mr '40 800w

Bookmark p18 N '40

Reviewed by A. B. Lewis

Boston Transcript p2 F 10 '40 600w

Current Hist 51:8 Mr '40 30w

Foreign Affairs 18:567 Ap '40 50w

Reviewed by J. C. Malin

Pol Sci Q 55:298 Je '40 650w

"As the authors remark, their book is a timely one in the present world crisis, and they have told their story clearly and interestingly. They have not, however, proved the thesis, implied by the title of their book, that the words of the Creel Committee won the first World War." A. P. Whitaker

+ — Social Studies 31:183 Ap '40 600w

Reviewed by W. L. Whittlesey

Survey G 29:197 Mr '40 440w

MODERN shop practice; a reading course and general reference work; editor-in-chief, Howard Monroe Raymond, assisted by a corps of mechanical engineers, designers, and specialists in shop methods and management. 13th rev ed 9v il $34.80 c1940 Am. tech. soc.

621.9 Machine shop practice 40-4237

"The previous edition of Modern Shop Practice was reviewed in the Subscription Books Bulletin in April 1931 [Book Review Digest, 1934]. Like its predecessors this 13th edition consists of a number of elementary textbooks on various phases of machine shop practice, most of which have appeared separately. This edition contains eight volumes, one more than the previous edition. The authentic, plainly written information contained in this set is intended for the apprentice, mechanic and machinist. The authors and collaborators are well-known technical men who are connected with engineering colleges, technical journals and industrial concerns, many of whom have previously written one or more technical books. . . The 790-page supplementary volume, Machine Shop Operations, consists of a loose-leaf flexible binder in the same dark red fabrikoid as that of the 8-volume set but of a larger page, size 8¼ x 11 inches. The 267 'job tickets' which make up this volume explain typical operations on a lathe, milling machine, slotter, horizontal boring mill, shaper, drill press, layout work, etc." Subscription Bks Bul

---

"Modern Shop Practice should be useful as circulating material in libraries which have home students, trade school students and machinists among their readers. Libraries which own the previous edition can, and probably have, brought their sets up to date by purchasing the separates as they appeared. If duplication of a considerable amount of useful material is desired, or if a library does not own the previous edition, the set is recommended."

+ Subscription Bks Bul 11:32 Jl '40 1200w

MODERN wonder books. 150v, 25 for each grade reading level. 150v pa including metal container $16; 25v, including metal container $2.95; 10 or more, 10c each; per pamphlet 15c 1934-40 Am educ. press

808 Children's literature—Collections

"As Unit Study Books some of the pamphlets in the Modern Wonder Books have been known and used since 1934. The set is designed to present factual and recreational reading for children from grades 1 through 6, 25 pamphlets for each grade. The pamphlets for each of the first 3 grades are apportioned as follows: 5 are on fairy tales, 5 on natural science or nature study and 15 on social science. For each of the grades from 4 through 6, there are 10 titles on natural science and 15 on social science. The separate pamphlets, or volumes, average 32 to 36 pages in length. All of them have numerous black and white illustrations covering a wide variety of subjects. Many of the plates, however, are very poorly executed and the pamphlets are, on the whole, unappealing in format. They are saddle-wire stitched into stiff paper covers, the pamphlets are written by various authors, many of whom are teachers or in some other way associated with education." Subscription Bks Bul

---

"Individual titles on factual subjects are excellent and will prove useful to school and public libraries. The entire set, however, is not recommended for school and public libraries."

+ — Subscription Bks Bul 11:20 Ap '40 550w

MOEHLMAN, CONRAD HENRY. Protestantism's challenge; an historical study of the survival value of Protestantism. 286p $2.50 Harper

284 Protestantism 40-2583

"It could be truthfully said that Protestantism is confronted by many challenges, but the one with which Professor Moehlman is centrally concerned—and perhaps it can be viewed as comprehending all the others—is that presented by the better knowledge of the origin and history of Christianity which modern scholarship has made available. This more accurate knowledge of 'primitive Christianity' and of the processes by which Protestant orthodoxy and practice came into existence is itself a product of that free and critical research which Protestantism made possible. Now the question is, What is Protestantism going to do with the truths which its biblical and historical scholars have discovered?" Christian Century

---

"Professor Moehlman has an ample fund of sound historical scholarship and the conscientious historian's complete ruthlessness in subjecting popular traditional ideas to critical scrutiny in the light of the evidence." W. E. Garrison

+ Christian Century 57:282 F 28 '40 900w

"Comprehensive and exceedingly thought-provoking volume. The work is scholarly to a degree, serene and incisive, written in good temper, but nonetheless challenging." A. F. Gilmore

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Mr 16 '40 900w

Reviewed by Charles Lyttle

J Religion 20:302 Jl '40 800w

MOLDENHAWER, JULIUS VALDEMAR. The voice of books. 174p $1.75 Abingdon-Cokesbury

814 Religion in literature

"Essays on a variety of subjects. . . Among the matters discussed are: Poetry and Life, Shakespeare's Creed; some letters of John Keats which indicate a more robust character than the familiar graceful poet; there is a happy and just appreciation of Kipling, whom it has become the fashion to underrate, and there are pungent notes on 'improving' hymns." (Churchman) The work is chiefly addressed to preachers. The author is pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in New York.

Christian Century 58:26 Ja 1 '41 10w

"All parents and radical social reformers would do well to ponder the wise, common-sense pages on Property and Character. A gently shrewd humor enlivens the little book, and it is free from stale sentimentality and vague generalities." M. L. Eglinton

+ Churchman 155:20 Ja 15 '41 100w

MONROE, ANNE SHANNON. Sparks from home fires. 267p $2 Doubleday

814 40-35656

After her flight from Europe at war the author bought a small farmhouse near an Oregon lake, and settled down to a peaceful life. Gradually the affairs of her neighbors impinged on her consciousness, until finally their lives were as important to her as her own. These essays are full of her personal philosophy, and little anecdotes about her neighbors.

Booklist 37:239 F 1 '41

"The book is a modest preachment for these troubled times."

Books p13 D 29 '40 120w

"Sentiment oozes from every page. . . Anne Monroe loves nature and 'folks,' and writes as an Eddie Guest in prose. There is nothing unusual and no great literary value to the pretty stories of quaint characters, but it is a pleasing book to give some gentle soul for Christmas." H. R. Burdett

Library J 65:981 N 15 '40 130w

MONROE, PAUL. Founding of the American public school system. 520p il $3 Macmillan

370.973 Education—U.S. Public schools—U.S. 40-27340

"A history of education in the United States, from the early settlements to the close of the Civil war period." (Subtitle) "It seemed fair to assume that many students would be interested in an examination of this material; so an effort has been made in a second volume, Readings in the Founding of the American Public School System, to present enough of the quotations from this mass of documentary evidence to illustrate at least all the major conclusions made by the author. . . The film copy furnished as Volume Two is a positive microfilm on 35 mm safety base, made from a negative kept on file. The author's manuscript is used as a photographic copy." (Introd) Index.

Booklist 36:320 Ap 15 '40

Pratt p7 autumn '40

"Taken as a whole, there can be little doubt but that this undertaking will prove of great and continuing value to both the casual and the research student." J. S. Brubacher

+ School & Society 52:170 S 7 '40 550w

MONSARRAT, NICHOLAS. This is the schoolroom. 409p $2.50 Knopf [8s 6d Cassell]

40-32086

Character study of a young English college student who has wasted several years at Cambridge. On the night of his father's death he is in the midst of a drunken revel, which continues thruout the night. Morning finds him facing reality and financial bankruptcy. For the next five years he struggles thru existence: a Communist writer, a time spent fighting in Spain, a reversal of his political views, and finally a marriage to replace his promiscuous romances. On the eve of the second World war he is ready for whatever the future may bring.

"Mr. Monsarrat writes with a notably lucid and flexible style, transferring to paper far more readily than most, the impulses, ideas, moods, experiences, sensations of an able young Englishman during four crucial years." F. H. Bullock

+ Books p8 D 29 '40 800w

"Recommended for library purchase." M. E. Clark

+ Library J 65:1087 D 15 '40 90w

"This novel is an able performance, with sound character-drawing, with allusive and sometimes witty writing, and with a believable story of a young man's progress both in political awareness and writing for profit. Yet reality is intermittent and the trouble is the women. . . Otherwise 'This Is the Schoolroom' seems to me to give a true picture of life as it was lived and thought of at the end of the second pre-war period." Harold Brighouse

+ — Manchester Guardian p3 S 29 '39 450w

"As a story, 'This Is the Schoolroom' suffers somewhat by inadequacy on the score of romance. Through more than three-fourths of the book discussion of sex—with or without illustrative episode—takes the place of emotional preoccupation. . . Intellectually the book is probably more than a little autobiographical. It is written with thoughtfulness, vigorous clarity, and restrained imagination. And some of its pictures seeming historical already, stay in one's mind." Katherine Woods

+ — N Y Times p30 N 10 '40 700w

"With a good deal of Mr. H. G. Wells' earnestness and not a little of his narrative gift, Mr. Monsarrat leads his hero through a world of protest, privation, and ideas that he had not previously known and brings him to a solution for some of its ills that also has a Wellsian ring. A readable, thoughtful book."

+ New Yorker 16:63 D 28 '40 120w

"As the tale of the formative impact of the late '30s upon a disgruntled egotist, 'This Is the Schoolroom' has very considerable merits. The conversations are often trite . . . but the incidents are vividly described, the atmosphere is always fresh and often subtle, and the movement is swift." George Dangerfield

+ — Sat R of Lit 23:12 D 28 '40 470w

Reviewed by Kate O'Brien

Spec 163:386 S 15 '39 240w

"Marcus Hendryks is a sympathetic and attractive if not always entirely believable character. He is very young (21 when the book opens) and his abruptly changing outlook on life may be laid to his youth. If his final inner stability and outward prosperity seem rather quickly achieved, nevertheless the story of his progress is written with intelligence and sincerity and should interest a large circle of appreciative readers."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e D 29 '40 550w

Time 37:79 Ja 13 '41 260w

"Many will discard this novel because it reads, they will argue, too much like a political treatise. Certainly it is difficult to classify, but it is extremely well worth while. One gets the impression not of a political treatise but of a man writing himself out, attempting to convince himself as much as the reader. . . In a way it is a successful attempt to break away from the class novel, for it gives a cross-section of society, allowing each section an opportunity to explain itself, and the author is always generous towards his characters. It is also noteworthy, both for the intellectual force and the sincerity behind the pen. The main criticism is that the author appears a little too fond of his hero."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p561 S 30 '39 320w

MONSELL, HELEN ALBEE. Lucy Lou fights for her rights; il. by Paul Laune. 280p $1.75 Bobbs

40-30191

In the 1850s Lucy Lou, who was a perfect lady at fifteen, and her mother, who was even a more perfect one, had to go to live with Aunt Malvina, who was a champion of woman's rights. At first Lucy Lou shuddered at her work as Aunt Malvina's companion and secretary, but gradually she was won over to the cause. When her mother married again, Lucy Lou was glad to stay with her aunt.

Cath World 152:379 D '40 150w

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin

Library J 65:859 O 15 '40 20w

"A light, readable [story] with many amusing and some exciting incidents." Miriam Snow

+ Library J 65:880 O 15 '40 70w

"The theme is an important one at a time when all freedom is threatened, and it is woven deftly into an eminently readable and amusing story in which the fundamentals of feminine psychology do not seem to have changed very much during the past ninety years." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p10 O 13 '40 300w

MONTAGUE, LUDWELL LEE. Haiti and the United States, 1714-1938; foreword by J. Fred Rippy. 308p maps $3 Duke univ.

327.73 Haiti—Foreign relations—U.S. U.S.—Foreign relations—Haiti 40-11470

"History of Haitian-American relations, with emphasis on the use of the Monroe Doctrine, dollar diplomacy, naval strategy, and with no skipping of unsavory details. The author teaches history at Virginia Military Institute. . . Ten-page working bibliography; maps; an index." New Repub

---

"Mr. Montague has produced a valuable work of reference.",

+ Books p15 S 22 '40 130w

"A concise, scholarly study. . . If we accept the axiom that one must approach an understanding of Latin America through detailed study of one Latin American nation, Mr. Montague's book is most timely." W. E. Barrett

MONTAGUE, L. L.—Continued

+ Boston Transcript p2 Jl 6 '40 550w

"A scholarly, unbiased history."

+ New Repub 103:286 Ag 26 '40 50w

Springf'd Republican p7e S 8 '40 170w

MONTAGUE, SYDNEY ROBERT. I lived with the Eskimos. 222p il map $2 McBride

919.8 Eskimos 39-30057

A former member of the Canadian Mounted police recounts his life during the three years when he was stationed at Port Burwell, an island at the entrance to Hudson Strait on the edge of the Atlantic Ocean. Written for older boys. Glossary.

Christian Science Monitor p11 My 29 '40 190w

Springf'd Republican p6 Ap 29 '40 220w

"To those who have read Mr. Montague's 'North to Adventure' . . . the Eskimos of his new book will be familiar. But they would not be that but for his gifts for description and interpretation—for his having endowed with vitality and character the people of Port Burwell among whom he lived for three years as representative of the Canadian Mounted Police—and they are people one is glad to meet again."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p644 D 21 '40 360w

MONTAGUE, WILLIAM PEPPERELL. The ways of things; a philosophy of knowledge, nature, and value. 712p $4; to schools $3 Prentice-Hall

110 Philosophy 40-7911

"Professor Montague's book consists of a series of essays written over a long period of years, ranging from discussions of traditional problems in metaphysics and religion to current questions in science and social philosophy. It is rather unevenly divided into two parts: An introduction to Philosophy, given over largely to definitions and classifications of the main divisions in philosophy, and Experiments in Philosophy, containing papers on a variety of themes in which the distinctive position of the author is elaborated in greater detail." (Sat R of Lit) Indexes.

"One need not agree with the conclusion to find in this book the stimulation of a genuine speculative mind, a mind fertile in hypothesis and inventive in the arguments for maintaining them. The book is an introduction not only to philosophy but to a philosopher who has, for nearly forty years, been one of the most stimulating minds and personalities in professional philosophy. This book offers a good chance for the general public to share in his teaching." Irwin Edman

+ Books p5 Je 16 '40 950w

Reviewed by P. A. Bertocci

Boston Transcript p2 Jl 6 '40 290w

"A careful reading of the work leaves one with a sense rather of speculative ingenuity than of descriptive accuracy. Professor Montague is an indefatigable reconciler, and there is scarcely any type of theoretical conflict for which he is unable to construct a harmonizing formula. . . But in the field of general philosophy, where it is not so much a question of devising a scheme for future action as of laying bare the actual nature of things, the results are far more dubious." John Wild

Ethics 50:475 Jl '40 850w

"To appraise the quality of the thought of such a book is easier than to decide with regard to the truth of its fundamental assertions. That quality is on the whole excellent, although the author advances some dubious views in ethics and is in other matters occasionally superficial. He never fails, however, to be clear and stimulating and he seems always to present what he is discussing in the most attractive and readily comprehensive way." W. C. Swabey

+ — Forum 103:330 Je '40 650w

"Because of its range and its sense of discovery, the lay-intellectual, particularly if his interest is in literature, will find in the ideas discussed many that are primary interest and value. . . The sturdiness of his belief in the ability of the modern philosopher to deal with the specific features of the universe, his sense that such dealings are bound to be exciting and momentous, make Professor Montague's an invigorating book." Padraic Colum

+ N Y Times p2 Je 23 '40 1300w

"Despite the fact that Professor Montague's views are on many points questionable, indeed, precisely because of this, his book will be welcomed by all lovers of philosophy. Not merely for its contents but for its timeliness. For it is a stirring illustration of free philosophy—free of the dead weight of tradition and authority, and free of any desire to purchase popularity by catering to current myths in religion and morals. One need only to compare his conception and practice of philosophy with the dogmatic representatives of totalitarian creeds —whether political or clerical—to sense the difference between philosophy in chains and philosophy as vision. There is a high courage, devotion to truth, and generosity of outlook in Professor Montague's philosophy which make even those whom he criticizes grateful for these vigorous essays on the ways of things." Sidney Hook

+ — Sat R of Lit 22:12 Je 1 '40 1300w

MONTGOMERY, DORIS. The Gaspé coast in focus; with phot. by Mary Van Nest. 88p map $3 Dutton

917.147 Gaspé peninsula (W) 40-11629

This book consists of a series of brief chapters relating the quiet adventures of a trip around the peninsula and commenting on the ways of the people, the flowers and birds, the hills and the seaside villages. The photographs, full page black and white reproductions, show rural scenes, fishing boats, wayside shrines, sea birds and wild flowers.

"The book is written in a poetic key, and the author and the photographer traveled primarily not to dissect and analyze, but rather to enjoy the famous beauty of Gaspé. The numerous, full page photographs play a part as important as the writing." D. C. Hogner

+ Books p10 Je 30 '40 470w

"Both Miss Montgomery and Miss Van Nest, each in her own medium, have caught the poetic quality of the Gaspe countryside that is its greatest charm for urban travellers." Margaret Clark

+ Boston Transcript p1 Jl 13 '40 270w

"A charming reflection of a happy holiday."

+ N Y Times p4 Je 16 '40 280w

Springf'd Republican p8 O 2 '40 650w

MONTGOMERY, IONE. The golden dress. 295p $2 Doubleday

40-29468

Detective story.

"Though goofy in spots, this first mystery has puzzle interest." Will Cuppy

+ — Books p10 D 29 '40 230w

"A clever yarn and skillfully told." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p20 Ja 12 '41 150w

"Sins of fathers—also those of offspring—get thorough airing in sultry, speedily-moving, and well-plotted story. Tempestuous."

+ Sat R of Lit 23:19 Ja 4 '41 40w

MONTGOMERY, ROBERT HARGROVE. The brimstone game; monopoly in action. 94p $1.25 Vanguard

338.8 Sulfur. Monopolies 40-6759

A study of the power and origin of monopolies in the United States and particularly the monopoly in the sulphur industry.

Booklist 36:338 My 1 '40

Reviewed by J. B. Parrish

Churchman 154:21 Ap 15 '40 260w

"Professor Montgomery's little treatise is a model, both in its polemics and in its exposition. It deserves wide and thoughtful reading." H. L. B.

+ Commonweal 32:106 My 24 '40 310w

"Professor Montgomery has achieved a minor miracle in economic literature. . . He has written with such clarity, wit, and vigor that the reader is swept along as by a first-class detective yarn."

+ Nation 151:118 Ag 10 '40 160w

MONTGOMERY, RUTHERFORD GEORGE. The trail of the buffalo; il. by Kurt Wiese. 218p $2 Houghton

39-30070

Story of a young Indian brave's long hunt for a white buffalo. The skin of the animal brought to the Comanche medicine fire was to be the youth's price of admission to the councils of his tribe. For young readers.

Boston Transcript p2 Je 22 '40 90w

"The reader's interest does not center solely with the young Indian hunter, but with the wild life on the prairie and the wooded country. The style of vivid reality should appeal especially to older boys who enjoy animal stories or tales of the frontier." Alice Martin

+ Library J 65:37 Ja 1 '40 110w

MONTHERLANT, HENRY DE. Costals and the hippogriff [Eng title: Lepers] [tr. from the French by John Rodker]. 462p $2.75 Knopf [9s 6d Routledge]

40-14497

Continuation of the author's Pity for Women (Book Review Digest, 1938). Costals, a brutal, intellectual novelist, continues his pursuit of women, but endeavors to escape the hippogriff—which to him is marriage.

"This book is sophisticated to the point of destruction of all values; it makes hash of the naiveté which believes that a love story is one in which the physical act is consummated. There is consummation in plenty here; there is not one dram of mutual love." Rose Feld

— Books p2 S 15 '40 1050w

"As a single theme I found it very tedious, and I became progressively weary of M. Costals's and M. de Montherlant's cleverness. That, it is true, must be admitted, for this is the work of a considerable French writer. But it is a book to be avoided by sane and reasonable people." J. D. Beresford

— + Manchester Guardian p3 Ap 5 '40 220w

"I have never read a more brilliant or a more trenchant satire on man and woman in love than 'Costals and the Hippogriff.' Merciless and good-humored, devastating without the least trace of caricature, it castigates the sentimentalism, shortsightedness, and 'dolourism' of the one sex, while pillorying more subtly but just as uncompromisingly the incongrous bluster and self-deception of the other. M. de Montherlant is Cabell, Aldous Huxley, and Oscar Wilde rolled into one, with a liberal dash of Mephistopheles, for his book is wickedly clever and cleverly wicked." L. B. Salomon

Nation 151:250 S 21 '40 600w

"M. de Montherlant is certainly one of the best living novelists, and may, when his work is seen as a whole, be rated higher even than that. At present it is enough to say that Pity for Women and [this book] make a striking and felicitous work which will profoundly fascinate anyone who delights in wit, psychological analysis, and the noble or ludicrous spectacle of the intellectual caught, Laocoön-like, in the coils of his own emotions." John Mair

+ New Statesman & Nation 19:500 Ap 13 '40 700w

" 'Costals and the Hippogriff' is an infuriating and profound novel. . . Everything comes back to the strange hero, the center of the novel. It is because of his ugly but oddly fascinating character that the novel is first infuriating, then entertaining, and finally profound." Justin O'Brien

+ — N Y Times p5 O 20 '40 1400w

"An overlong, highly mannered, but fascinating novel, so mature in its point of view that its author and, let us say, Thomas Wolfe hardly seem inhabitants of the same mental planet. I recommend Montherlant with great caution; he is apt to repel many readers and attract only a few." Clifton Fadiman

New Yorker 16:80 S 21 '40 120w

"Montherlant unfolds his tale with a wealth of psychological detail that will fascinate most readers, and an abundance of physiological detail that will startle some. . . In short, it is all great fun, if not always clean. . . It is also pure Montherlant—c'est à dire, the queer product of an undeniably queer egg. But, however diverting, it is not important, and (despite its polemical Appendix) not to be taken seriously." B. R. Redman

+ — Sat R of Lit 22:15 O 12 '40 650w

"Monsieur de Montherlant is an important writer. He is intellectually exhilarating. He compels one's interest and attention. He is extremely original. He throws out numbers of acute and penetrating observations. The attacks he makes need making and he delivers them with boldness and skill. Yet he seems to me to provide no sustaining nourishment and curiously little illumination; the influence he exerts, though sharp, is short-lived. No doubt this is partly due to one's instinctive resistance to disagreeable aggressive characters, insisters on uncomfortable truths. . . There is in him a fundamental thinness, a touch, like frost, of the failure of the too-clever in human experience and emotional creativeness; and the conviction grows on one that his hero is a charlatan: that is, in the last analysis, a bore." Rosamond Lehmann

— + Spec 164:574 Ap 19 '40 650w

Springf'd Republican p7e O 27 '40 320w

"Does one need to take this gallicized brand of Byronism quite seriously? The thing is brilliantly done in its acute, egocentric, brain-spun way, though the continuous pressure of M. de Montherlant's irrationalism and of his inverted fastidiousness of sense makes for monotony. As for the artist-worship, the deluge in France, as in this country, surely grows menacing. Goethe says that the value of egotism depends on the value of the egotist. Costals's 'literary opus' would seem more significant if he had been capable of an honest job of work."

— + Times [London] Lit Sup p169 Ap 6 '40 390w

Reviewed by Robert Littell

Yale R n s 30:x winter '41 400w

MOONEY, JAMES DAVID, and REILEY, ALAN CAMPBELL. The principles of organization. 223p $3 Harper

658.01 Industry—Organization, control, etc. Association and associations 40-1713

In their Preface the authors state that the first edition of this work (with the title Onward Industry) was published in 1931 (Book Review Digest, 1931). "The former volume 'Onward Industry!', contained most of the material in the present book, but was lengthy and heavy reading. A brilliant job has been done in this volume by giving in brief compass an analysis of the principles of organization; a review of historical institutions exemplifying these principles in government, church, army and industry; an analysis of the present status of organization problems in in-

MOONEY, J. D., and REILEY, A. C.—Cont. dustry; and some interesting views on the challenge to industry to make progress in internal coordination, in dealings with labor unions and industrial associations, and in its relations with government." (Management R) Index.

Reviewed by W. P. Fiske
Am Econ R 30:876 D '40 90w

Reviewed by M. C. H. Niles
+ Management R 29:76 F '40 550w

Springf'd Republican p6 Ag 26 '40 280w

"Scholarship is blended with modernity and the reader constantly delighted with sidelights on the Jesuit order, on the job of an army staff, and on the complexity of organization in modern industry. And the point is that by such approaches to our social problems we get a set of axioms that may prove universal enough to serve our grave need." Leon Whipple
+ Survey G 29:124 F '40 210w

MOORE, CLEMENT CLARKE. The early history of Columbia college; ed. with an introd. by Milton Halsey Thomas. 41p $1 Columbia univ. press

378 Columbia university 41-2540

Facsimile edition of an address on the early history of Columbia university, delivered by the author of the famous poem, A Visit From St Nicholas. The address was to the Columbia alumni, and was given on May 4, 1825. Mr Moore was a member of the class of 1798. An introductory chapter gives the facts of Mr Moore's life. Index.

School & Society 52:672 D 21 '40 20w

Reviewed by E. N. Jenckes
Springf'd Republican p6 Ja 18 '41 1000w

MOORE, MRS ELIZABETH C. An almanac for music-lovers; decorations by Lyle Justis. 382p $2.50 Holt

780.59 Music. Almanacs. Musicians (W) 40-29672

Musical facts arranged chronologically by days from January first, thruout the year to December thirty-first. "Every important musician has been included for whom at least one definite date is authentically recorded. . . I have included comparatively few entries for the last twenty years, the emphasis being on dates further in the past." (Introd) Includes a very full index.

"This [book] deserves good marks on two counts: the spread of its information over so many subjects, and the rapidity with which a particularly wanted bit may be found."
+ Books p15 D 15 '40 110w

Springf'd Republican p10 D 17 '40 400w

MOORMAN, LEWIS JEFFERSON. Tuberculosis and genius. 272p il $2.50 Univ. of Chicago press

151.163 Authors. Tuberculosis. Genius 40-27737

Collection of essays on the relation of tuberculosis to genius, as evidenced in the lives of ten writers. Those included are: Robert Louis Stevenson; Friedrich Schiller; Marie Bashkirtseff; Katherine Mansfield; Voltaire; Molière; Francis Thompson; Percy Bysshe Shelley; John Keats; Saint Francis of Assisi. The author is a practising physician. Bibliography.

Booklist 37:83 N 1 '40

Commonweal 33:286 Ja 3 '41 70w

"It is the weakness of Dr. Moorman's book as the expression of a thesis that after the numerous quotations which dot his introduction, so much of his material shows nothing to do with tuberculosis. Can we say 'because,' or can't we? Anyway, here is some provocative suggestion of the idea."
N Y Times p3 O 13 '40 390w

Time 36:76 S 30 '40 550w

MORANT, GEOFFREY MCKAY. The races of central Europe; a footnote to history; with a pref. by J. B. S. Haldane. 163p maps $1.50 Norton [5s Allen, G]

572.94 Ethnology—Europe. Nationalism and nationality. Race [40-8650]

"Making use of a well-sifted mass of data, Dr. Morant, as a specialist in physical anthropology, takes as his main problem the question whether in Central Europe linguistic divisions correspond with racial divisions or not. For him the answer is wholly in the negative." (Times [London] Lit Sup) The book was completed before the outbreak of war in 1939. Index.

"This is one of the most sensible treatises on race which has appeared in recent years. . . Morant is a biometrician who has specialized in the craniometric characters of European peoples. His observations constitute the perfect answer to the 'racial' dogma of Mein Kampf." W. M. Krogman
+ Am J Soc 46:612 Ja '41 400w

Foreign Affairs 18:759 Jl '40

"Dr. Morant represents the older biometric school of anthropologists which holds that it is best to deal with samples of populations as units and to describe them by means of average values for the different physical characters; those who feel the weakness of this mode of approach are anxious to pay their tribute to the ability and sincerity of Dr. Morant's work."
+ — Nature 144:768 N 4 '39 700w

Reviewed by John Lehmann
New Statesman & Nation 19:284 Mr 2 '40 230w

Times [London] Lit Sup p582 O 7 '39 130w

MORDAUNT, ELINOR, pseud. See Mordaunt, E. M.

MORDAUNT, EVELYN MAY (CLOWES) (ELINOR MORDAUNT, A. RIPOSTE, pseuds). Return to spring. 324p $2.50 Greystone

40-7595

Caroline Ware's first marriage ended in her husband's death from over-drinking but because he was a minister the cause was concealed—and the village gossiped. Years later Caroline married again, this time a man dominated by an older sister who, when other means failed her, used the old gossip to wreck this second marriage. But her success not only restored her brother to her, but freed Caroline for a truer happiness.

"The author, always expert in the delineation of people you wouldn't like, surpasses herself in this chronicle. The suspense is adroitly built up, and the final clash of wife and sisters provides enough suspense for any one." Lisle Bell

Books p19 My 5 '40 290w

"Elinor Mordaunt knows life. She can most scaringly paint you the passion that is without tenderness or the sudden blazing and dropping to ashes of elderly passion. She knows that evil —undiluted evil—exists and that weakness is its stoutest ally. But she holds the scales in just balance." J. S. Southron
+ N Y Times p21 Ap 21 '40 850w

"This novel belongs to the 'Rebecca' school of fiction, but it is a far less able attempt to create an atmosphere of mystery than Daphne du Maurier's best seller, for not only does the style lack fibre, but the characters are puppets... When the author endeavors to strike deeper and to sustain an undertone of philosophy, her thought becomes as confused and devoid of reality as her characters. She is not without a certain talent. She has a responsive eye, and a facile pen as well, but her writing lacks freshness and bite." M. M.

MORDAUNT (mord'unt)

— + Sat R of Lit 22:20 My 4 '40 260w
Springf'd Republican p7e Je 9 '40 410w

MORELL, PARKER. Lillian Russell; the era of plush. 319p il $3 Random house
B or 92 Russell, Lillian (W) 40-27556

Biography of a famous American beauty and actress, "Queen of Comic Opera," who flourished in the eighties, nineties and the first decade of the nineteenth century, more or less reluctantly retiring thereafter, to appear now and then as a lecturer in the causes of woman's rights, patriotism, health and beauty, until her death in 1922. Index.

Booklist 36:411 Jl 1 '40

"I enjoyed the book thoroughly. It is as much a story of the time as it is of Miss Russell, a time seemingly as far in the past as that of Helen of Troy. There are numerous contemporary photographs. The format lends added nostalgic charm to this narrative of America's best known woman to date." S. H. Holbrook
+ Books p3 Je 9 '40 900w

"Lillian inspired thousands of staunch Americans, but not Mr. Morell. He writes of her coldly, more amused than enamored, and without the roaring gusto which filled his biography of Lillian Russell's friend, 'Diamond Jim' Brady. He is sometimes a little cynical about her glamour and her elfin beauty, though never about her business acumen. He doesn't seem to like [the] lady." Lewis Gannett
Boston Transcript p11 Je 7 '40 1100w

Reviewed by F. S. Ambrose
Boston Transcript p1 Je 15 '40 400w
Christian Science Monitor p11 Je 22 '40 440w
Cleveland Open Shelf p11 My '40

"A well rounded picture... Take Mr. Morell's word against that of the movies."
+ New Repub 102:866 Je 24 '40 50w

Reviewed by Charlotte Dean
N Y Times p5 Je 16 '40 800w

"The facts seem to be here, but the tone is 1928 American Mercury."
New Yorker 16:116 Je 15 '40 40w

Reviewed by Fairfax Downey
Sat R of Lit 22:11 Je 22 '40 650w
Theatre Arts 24:764 O '40 10w

MORGAN, ALFRED POWELL. Getting acquainted with radio. 285p il $2.50 (12s 6d) Appleton-Century
621.384 Radio (W) 40-13424

Describes graphically the principles of radio, its workings and the construction of simple transmitting and receiving sets. The author is an electrical engineer, who has simplified his text and line drawings so that the subject may be understandable to anyone, youth or adult, who is interested in radio. Includes abbreviations and definitions and an index.

Booklist 37:8 S '40

"Alfred Morgan is an electrical engineer who is skilled in translating scientific phenomena into language and illustrations the layman can understand... In addition to the interested radio listener and the prospective hobbyist, the parent who wants to be prepared to answer his child's inevitable questions on the functions of the family set will find Mr. Morgan's book a handy and easily digestible reference book." H. J. Rowe
+ Books p13 Jl 21 '40 380w
N Y New Tech Bks 25:39 Jl '40

MORGAN, ALFRED POWELL. Things a boy can do with chemistry. 288p il $2.50 (10s 6d) Appleton-Century
540 Chemistry—Juvenile literature (W) 40-10055

Elementary instruction in chemistry by a writer on scientific subjects, outlining some of the processes of chemistry met in everyday life. Includes over a hundred experiments, none of them dangerous, for the young chemist. List of elements and compounds, their symbols and an index.

"We know the book bears out the title because we found our thirteen-year-old deep in some of the experiments and it was pronounced a 'neat book.' At the end, the author assures us that there are no dangerous experiments described which makes presentation to some eager young scientist possible with a clear conscience."
+ Boston Transcript p5 Je 8 '40 180w

Reviewed by M. A. Whitney
Christian Science Monitor p13 S 26 '40 80w

Reviewed by E. W. Steele
New Repub 103:846 D 16 '40 30w

MORGAN, ALFRED POWELL. Things a boy can do with electrochemistry; il. by the author. 198p $2 Appleton-Century
541.37 Electrochemistry—Juvenile literature (W) 40-27847

Discussion of the principles, processes and products of electrochemistry, written in language understandable to boys of twelve to fifteen, but useful for older readers as an introductory textbook. Included are over thirty experiments. Index.

Booklist 37:178 Ja 1 '41

"The writing is clear and stimulating, as it has been in the author's books on electricity. The last third of the book consists of experiments which have been carefully planned and explained. Boys who have experimented with either chemistry or electricity will welcome this book." Josephine Smith
+ Library J 65:1093 D 15 '40 140w

MORGAN, CHARLES. The voyage. 508p $2.50 (9s) Macmillan
(W) 40-32622

A novel laid in France in the 1880's—in the vine-growing district of the river Charente, and in Paris. The chief characters are Barbet Hazard, a simple, kindly soul—something of a saint, and Thérèse Despreux, the unacknowledged daughter of a priest, who becomes a famous courtesan and diseuse. The story concerns the search of these two for each other.

"Despite the felicity of style, the lovely description of the wine country, and the evident delight in the old French way, this story seems to me arrested by prolixity, and that is a pity, for Mr. Morgan is a writer of quality, wanting only more emphasis and spirit to make this work stand out." Edward Weeks
+ — Atlantic D '40 230w
Booklist 37:91 N 1 '40

Reviewed by F. H. Bullock
Books p3 N 3 '40 950w

Reviewed by E. K. Brown
Canadian Forum 20:288 D '40 490w

"The narrative is cluttered with irrelevancies that any good craftsman, not to speak of master, would scorn... For most readers The Voyage would be unutterably dull if it were not for the unabashed frankness of its sexualism. Not that it is indecent; it is much worse than that. It is vicious, because it reiterates the ancient lie which assures the sinner that he shall be as God by following his senses, his baser appetites." B. M. K.
— Cath World 152:361 D '40 900w

MORGAN, CHARLES—Continued

"Mr. Morgan presents scenes and tells us things, even about Barbet, that some will find disturbing and untrue. But it remains a notable endeavor, a testimony to the vitality of contemporary English letters." Harold Hobson
+ — Christian Science Monitor p11 D 28 '40 800w

Reviewed by Mason Wade
Commonweal 33:210 D 13 '40 330w

"Mr. Morgan has again yielded to his gift of over-analyzing his characters, but has given us a book in which human frailties are forgotten and only the delicate charm is remembered." I. M. Turner
+ — Library J 65:808 O 1 '40 100w

Reviewed by Harold Brighouse
Manchester Guardian p7 O 18 '40 380w

Reviewed by L. B. Salomon
Nation 151:453 N 9 '40 700w

"Verisimilitude in fiction can be a vice as much as a virtue, but a minimum of credibility is imperative; and I do not believe in Mr. Morgan's characters, nor in his claims for them. They are no more than the wishful phantoms of a frigid and priggish imagination." Desmond Hawkins
— New Statesman & Nation 20:450 N 2 '40 470w

"Charles Morgan is at his best when he lets himself be simple and sharp, when he allows essential truth to communicate itself naturally through his story. His work loses substance as it loses clarity when he forces people and incidents into ways of symbolism or lets himself fall into recondite abstractions. Barbet, the vine-grower, could have been convincing as a good and natural man; he is not convincing as Parsifal. But Thérèse has a vitality and validity which he lacks, and in spite of certain exaggerations she seems to me much more real than Julie in 'The Fountain'; in fact, Thérèse herself interests me, and Julie did not." K. W.
+ — N Y Times p6 N 3 '40 1100w

"Mr. Morgan, in addition to being a novelist and a Womrath metaphysician, is a dramatic critic of considerable acumen. Some of the best things in the book have to do with acting in general, and with the tantalizing, subtle, evanescent, immeasurably poignant art of the diseuse in particular. Through the mouths of his characters . . . he gets said what seem to me many acute things and some very beautiful ones about the art of the music hall. . . Altogether, 'The Voyage,' though far less oracular and pretentious than Mr. Morgan's other novels, is still fairly fancy for gross tastes like my own. It is best in isolated scenes and passages." Clifton Fadiman
+ — New Yorker 16:84 N 2 '40 950w

"The reader, remembering 'Sparkenbroke,' is occasionally tempted to throw 'The Voyage' away in a fit of temper. But it would be unreasonable temper; for this time Mr. Morgan has created two characters in whom—and in whose predicament—it is quite possible to believe. While their spirits reach towards each other, they do not step out of their bodies. The ideas no longer hang above the novel like a fog; they are in their modest way an integral part of the action." George Dangerfield
+ Sat R of Lit 23:12 N 16 '40 400w

Reviewed by J. A. Smith
Spec 165:424 O 25 '40 700w

Springf'd Republican p7e N 24 '40 390w

"The progress of the voyage in spirit of these lovers is set down with all the intellectual refinement Mr. Morgan commands. His mind goes out continuously towards a symbolical and sacramental view of experience, and at his most distinctive he seems always to be trying to rend veils of one sort or another. The pattern of his narrative here is a little more intricate than usual and includes descriptive passages of a fine formal quality and minor character studies done with fastidious justice. Whether or not hero and heroine and their travail of soul in singleness of heart wake a deep response in one reader is very much a matter of what is called taste."
Times [London] Lit Sup p517 O 12 '40 800w

MORGAN, WILLIAM THOMAS, and MORGAN, CHLOE SINER. Bibliography of British history (1700-1715); with special reference to the reign of Queen Anne. v3 $8 Ind. univ. bkstore

016.942 Great Britain—History—Sources. Great Britain—History—Bibliography (35-27707)

"This massive volume is part of an ambitious work begun by Professor Morgan many years ago. The first volume appeared in 1934; the second volume in 1937, [Book Review Digest 1935, 1938]. . . The present volume contains source-material for the chosen period published after 1716. This is classified as correspondence, autobiographies, diaries, and journals; periodicals including newspapers and annuals from 1700 to 1715; plays and other dramatic works; and finally a list of secondary works dealing with the period." Canadian Hist R

Reviewed by Violet Barbour
Am Hist R 45:954 Jl '40 320w

"The work contains abundant evidence of the widest research, and of the most careful and laborious editing. . . The general arrangement of the bibliography is chronological for 'pamphlets and memoirs,' but also partly by subjects. . . In this arrangement there is the obvious difficulty of placing, and of finding, certain classes of sources. . . But no system of classification would meet every need or criticism, and the work will stand as a monumental achievement which few would have the courage to undertake, or the knowledge and perseverance to carry through." R. Flenley
+ Canadian Hist R 21:77 Mr '40 310w

Reviewed by Arthur Friedman
Library Q 10:295 Ap '40 1000w

MORISON, FRANK, pseud. See Ross, A. H.

MORLAND, NIGEL. Murder in Wardour street [Eng title: A gun for a god]. 287p map $2 Farrar [8s 3d Cassell]
40-10299

Detective story.

"Continuous action in a vigorous and mostly jovial vein." Will Cuppy
+ Books p10 Jl 21 '40 210w

"Plenty of excitement, lots of murders, and an unflattering American background." Marian Wiggin
+ Boston Transcript p2 Jl 27 '40 60w

"Mrs. Pym is as tough an old girl as you would care to meet on a Summer's day, or any other day, especially if you are a law-breaker. This story presents her at her best, or worst, depending upon one's point of view." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p14 Jl 21 '40 150w

"Forthright methods of muscular Scotland Yardress produce usual amount of fireworks, slightly dampened by plethora of plot. Average."
+ Sat R of Lit 22:18 Jl 20 '40 40w

Times [London] Lit Sup p473 S 14 '40 50w

MORLEY, ARTHUR, and HUGHES, EDWARD. Electrical engineering science; a second-year course; with diagrams. 256p $1.75 (5s) Longmans

621.3 Electric engineering

"Primarily intended for those students who have taken a first-year course in technical electricity or engineering science. The subject matter includes electric and magnetic circuits,

d. c. machines, inductance, a. c. circuits, transformers, measuring equipment, accumulators and, finally, for the benefit of those taking special examinations, a chapter on the electromagnetic system of units." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

N Y New Tech Bks 25:34 Jl '40

"It is almost entirely factual, although written in clear readable style, with numerous diagrams and sketches. . . The reviewer fears that he has been somewhat too critical of this book without taking full account of its purpose. As a text for use in a trade school it should prove to be very serviceable. Little use can be seen for the book in the American college or engineering school, unless as a source of problem material for the instructor or as a pony to aid in problem work or cramming for an examination by the student." F. G. Slack

— + R of Scientific Instruments 2:336 O '40 470w

MORNAND, PIERRE. Christ's image; introd. by [the author] with a foreword: What was the beauty of Jesus? by François Mauriac. 30p il 152pl $6 French & European publications

755 Jesus Christ—Art [40-3653]

The volume contains thirty pages of text, 128 plates in black and white, and 24 in color, showing artists' interpretations of Jesus. "M. Mauriac bases his brief text on this question: 'What was the beauty of Jesus?' and points out that 'like every living creature Jesus was transformed by the heart in which He dwelt.' . . The picture survey begins with the Roman period (fifth and sixth century mosaics), proceeding thence both chronologically and by school, ending with examples such as Delacroix's 'Agony in the Garden,' Carrière's 'Christ on the Cross' and the famous 'Yellow Christus' by Paul Gauguin." (N Y Times)

"The first in the French Library of Fine Arts edited by Pierre Tisné, this volume sets a standard that will be difficult to uphold."

+ Cath World 149:638 Ag '39 220w

"A truly engrossing volume." E. A. Jewell

+ N Y Times p19 Ja 7 '40 350w

Pratt p5 winter '40

MORRIS, HILDA. The vantage point. 311p $2.50 Putnam

(W) 40-10446

At forty-six gentle Amy Flint found herself forced out of the girl's school where she had taught for years. The necessity of earning her living with little capital or training made her decide on a boarding house. Her Westchester house soon become a refuge for disgruntled elderly relatives, and a few young ones. From the vantage point of her middle years and sympathetic understanding Amy viewed her household and succeeded in establishing a kind of peace in a warring world.

Booklist 36:430 Jl 15 '40

Reviewed by George Conrad

Books p8 Jl 7 '40 480w

"The outcome of the story is a trifle too neat—almost as though planned out by a blueprint. But it is not the actual plot in a book like this which is as important as the quality of the people and the absorbing reality of the small circle in which they move. Miss Morris's delicate imagery and keen sensory impressions give us a story which can be touched and tasted. To come upon a person of simple, homely goodness like Amy Trent in these days of nightmare and holocaust is a tonic." Ruth Blodgett

+ Boston Transcript p1 Jl 6 '40 1050w

"Although I do not mean to suggest any close comparisons, there is a certain flavor about 'The Vantage Point' which reminds one of Barry Benefield. It possesses both humor and charm. . . The awareness of shifting codes and credos, of the bleak, cruel conditions which modern youth must face, gives a certain validity to Miss Morris's new novel. . . Otherwise, 'The Vantage Point' is little else but a rather appealing fairy story, replete with happy endings and the most comfortable of solutions. There is something faintly Dickensian about the odd, casual household at Hickory Hill. . . Miss Morris, in short, is a thoroughgoing sentimentalist, who here for the first time has allowed her sentimentality full rein. The results are agreeable if not too adult." E. H. Walton

+ — N Y Times p7 Je 30 '40 750w

"Very mild and rather unreal."

New Yorker 16:71 Je 29 '40 60w

Sat R of Lit 22:19 Jl 27 '40 160w

MORRIS, JAMES M. Radio workshop plays. 322p il $2.25 Wilson, H.W.

792 Radio plays (W) 40-33748

Fifteen short plays which have been used in the radio workshop at the Oregon State college. The course is to acquaint students with the technique and literature of the radio. The plays range from a short version of Everyman to fairy tales and Ibsen. All are royalty free. Director's notes on casting and sound effects are included.

Booklist 37:214 Ja 15 '41

"The familiarity of the stories, simplicity of production, and non-payment of royalties are the best features. The common-place style with occasional lapses from good taste and the inclusion of 'Everyman' strike this reviewer as disadvantages. This book will be used until better books are written, because of the spurt radio has taken in schools." Dorotha Dawson

+ — Library J 65:1044 D 1 '40 80w

MORRIS, RICHARD BRANDON, ed. The era of the American revolution; studies inscribed to Evarts Boutell Greene. 415p $3.75 Columbia univ. press [25s Oxford]

973.3 U.S.—History—Revolution. U.S.—History—Colonial period 39-33070

A volume of essays on the American revolution inscribed by their authors to Evarts Boutell Greene, DeWitt Clinton professor of American history at Columbia University. Contents: The effect of the Navigation acts on the thirteen colonies, by L. A. Harper; Writs of assistance as a cause of the Revolution, by O. M. Dickerson; Labor and mercantilism in the revolutionary era, by R. B. Morris; The American balance of power and European diplomacy, 1713-78, by Max Savelle; The office of Commander in chief, by C. E. Carter; The royal governors in the middle and southern colonies on the eve of the Revolution, by L. B. Dunbar; The sons of liberty in New York, by H. M. Morais; Eliphalet Dyer: Connecticut revolutionist, by G. C. Groce, Jr; The patriot newspaper and the American revolution, by S. I. Pomerantz; America and the Irish revolutionary movement in the eighteenth century, by Michael Kraus; The Massachusetts conservatives in the critical period, by R. A. East; Index.

Am Econ R 30:144 Mr '40 30w

Reviewed by L. H. Gipson

Am Hist R 45:896 Jl '40 800w

Reviewed by V. W. Crane

Canadian Hist R 21:328 S '40 1300w

"Eleven superb scholars have written eleven superbly documented monographs, designed to warm the heart of the teacher of American history whose career inspired them. . . . In their generous purpose of bestowing honor upon their friend, the authors of these historical studies have brought honor upon themselves. Standards of objectivity and fairmindedness are evident on every page of this remarkable book. Under the skilled editorship

MORRIS, R. B., ed.—Continued
of Professor Richard B. Morris, the writing in these papers moves and advances along the field of American history with the precision of teamwork. His associates have a coherent point of view." D. S. Rankin
+ Commonweal 31:250 Ja 5 '40 400w

"The essays are more than the ordinary tribute. Together they make a significant book—one of the important works on the history of the Revolution—a vigorous, varied, penetrating treatment of a theme, the greatness of which is not obscured by the critical scholarship of the contributors." Curtis Nettels
+ New Eng Q 13:550 S '40 1150w

Reviewed by M. S. Malone
Social Educ 4:517 N '40 600w

MORRISON, CHARLES CLAYTON. What is Christianity? 324p $3 Willett

261 Christianity. Church 40-27788

This book contains the Lyman Beecher lectures delivered at Yale university in 1939. The author has been for many years editor of The Christian Century. Contents: In quest of a definition; What is history? Christianity a historical religion; The Christian church before Christ; The church of the remnant; The body of Christ; Revelation and ideology; The heresy of Protestantism; Consequences of the Protestant heresy; The great apostasy; Restoring the body of Christ. Index.

Booklist 37:131 D 1 '40

"In this book the editor of 'The Christian Century' presents the most important thinking of his distinguished career on the greatest of all subjects in Christendom. It is a fascinating, daring, even revolutionary work." A. C. Dieffenbach
+ Books p10 D 22 '40 650w

Reviewed by D. C. Macintosh
Christian Century 57:1375 N 6 '40 1950w

"Among the many new books dealing with some definite phase of religion and worship, now and again one stands out boldly, either for its clear exposition of the teachings of the Founder of Christianity or for some point of view arresting for its novelty, some exposition that instantly challenges commonly accepted doctrinal beliefs. Such a book is 'What Is Christianity?' written by the brilliant editor of The Christian Century." A. F. Gilmore
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 D 14 '40 1550w

Reviewed by W. L. Caswell
Churchman 154:18 N 15 '40 440w

MORRISON, HENRY CLINTON. The curriculum of the common school, from the beginning of the primary school to the end of the junior college; a fiftieth anniversary publication. 681p $4 Univ. of Chicago press

375 Education—Curricula 40-14064

"A comprehensive and thoughtful survey of the topic, drawing a distinction between education and instruction, with recommendations for changes in present practices, especially in the social studies." (School & Society) Bibliography. Index.

"The Curriculum of the Common School is a source book not only for curriculum-makers but also for writers of textbooks for all levels of education through the junior college. The intelligent layman will find the book informative, free from 'educational jargon,' and relatively easy to read." E. V. Hollis
+ Christian Century 58:21 Ja 1 '41 470w
School & Society 51:784 Je 29 '40 20w

"Curriculum workers who turn to The Curriculum of the Common School for help will encounter difficulty in the use of much excellent material it contains. Even if the internal organization of chapters and the overuse of capital letters are not found confusing, the reader will be fortunate if he is not distracted by unfamiliar schemes of classification such as 'set course,' courses which are 'part of the learning process in other courses,' and 'courses which are disciplinary in character.' . . The reader of The Curriculum of the Common School is likely to conclude his reading with the impression that the proposals presented are not for the common school at all, but instead for a school attended by scholars with interests approaching those of the author. Even as such, the proposals merit study. If, as some now think, curriculum makers need to turn more attention to subject matter, Dr. Morrison's outlines provide an excellent body of material for consideration." W. M. Alexander
+ — Social Educ 5:79 Ja '41 900w
Social Studies 31:334 N '40 30w

MORRISON, LACEY HARVEY. American Diesel engines. 2d ed 489p il $5 (33s) McGraw

621.436 Diesel engines. Gas and oil engines 39-24827

"Resetting and drastic revision of the 1931 edition bring this practical, comprehensive, and copiously illustrated work on the construction, operation, and maintenance of American Diesels strictly up-to-date. Mr. Morrison is the editor of the periodical Diesel Power." (N Y New Tech Bks) For first edition see Book Review Digest, 1931. Index.

Booklist 36:114 N 15 '39
N Y New Tech Bks 25:5 Ja '40

MORRISON, PEGGY (MARCH COST, pseud). The dark star. 428p $2.50 Knopf [8s 6d Collins]

(W) 39-30326

Psychological story of an Englishman whose one thought in life was the theater, to which he brought all his talent. He rescues a young girl, makes of her a peerless actress, and then drives her from him with his inhumanity and rudeness. Later during a dangerous illness, the girl foresees in a dream that she will marry the actor, and shortly thereafter will meet her death.

Booklist 36:214 F 1 '40

" 'The Dark Star' is both a 'different' novel and a distinctive one, in its quiet way exciting and often beautiful." Mary Ross
+ Books p5 Mr 10 '40 550w

"An exquisite and artistic story of the theater." O. O.
+ Boston Transcript p2 F 10 '40 270w

"It is now more than four years since we had her last work, 'The Dark Glass' [Book Review Digest, 1935], which with its immediate predecessor 'A Man Named Luke' [Book Review Digest, 1933] so greatly aroused the expectation of those who can appreciate the virtues of a creative imagination and inspired prose. 'The Dark Star' does not disappoint us in these particulars. . . [But] the inevitable question that presents itself when the book is done is a doubt as to whether Loring was a worthy subject for so much beautiful writing. We can, it is true, read the book with deep enjoyment for that alone, and yet regret that it should, in a sense, be wasted." J. D. Beresford
+ — Manchester Guardian p3 S 15 '39 430w
New Repub 102:286 F 26 '40 50w

Reviewed by Anthony West
New Statesman & Nation 18:405 S 16 '39 70w

"The story is hard to believe, but Miss Cost has movement and energy and keeps you going."
New Yorker 15:79 F 10 '40 40w

"March Cost is a meticulous writer. She falls short of a truly distinguished style because, though it may seem a paradox, she is overstylized. Moreover, she has developed mannerisms which militate against full enjoyment of her work. . . For those who can overlook the book's stylistic peculiarities it will be a significant novel, vibrant with life and searchingly interesting." Percy Hutchison

+ — N Y Times p7 F 11 '40 750w

"It may be that the theater in London is truly reflected by these swooning pages. . . This picture of the theatrical life sounds to me like moony nonsense, certainly; sounds like something which might be imagined as happening in the theater of a hundred and fifty years ago, and imagined incorrectly; sounds mystical and strange. . . There is much mystic talk of reincarnation in the novel and numerous slightly breathless descriptions of nature." Richard Lockridge

— Sat R of Lit 21:7 F 10 '40 450w

"Miss Cost has presented two interesting characters in Loring and Fanny, but it is less the characters than the mood of the book as a whole that remains with the reader at the end. The delicate approach to the problem of time and eternity, and the sensitive writing, writing that is often beautiful if sometimes almost too fine-spun, make the novel what it is."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e F 4 '40 280w

Time 35:80 F 12 '40 90w

"Miss March Cost is so definitely a writer in the first class that her work demands the serious criticism which is higher praise than facile compliments."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p513 S 2 '39 430w

MORROW, ELIZABETH REEVE (CUTTER) (MRS DWIGHT WHITNEY MORROW). The rabbit's nest [il. by Howard Willard]. 43p 50c Macmillan

40-33456

A "stocking-size" book telling the story of a particular kind of rabbit's nest which Mrs Tucker kept on a high closet shelf, and how its unmasking affected the Tucker children.

"Christmas is for givers first, and then for takers. This book is for both, and I hope it will go far, make friends, and give both sorts of readers the right idea about gifts. The pictures are little and funny." M. L. Becker

+ Books p10 O 27 '40 260w

Reviewed by F. B. Sloan

Christian Science Monitor p9 D 16 '40 120w

"There is humor and gayety and a fine relationship between children and grown-ups in this genuine and friendly little tale which young and old will enjoy and which will make excellent pre-Christmas reading." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p10 D 1 '40 190w

Springf'd Republican p7e N 3 '40 60w

MORSE, ALFRED HANDLEY CHIPMAN. A quiver of sunbeams. 183p $1.50 Cokesbury press

248 Christian life 39-21394

"Twenty-seven brief statements, averaging six pages, with a text. The book is concerned with the practical issues of religion in the conduct of life." Crozer Q

"These pungent and pithy chapters may be thought of as brief essays on religion and the conduct of life or as sermonettes. They would be (and perhaps have been) popular chapel talks. The author argues nothing. He makes his affirmation and proves it with an illustration."

+ Christian Century 56:927 Jl 26 '39 50w

Reviewed by E. W. Powell

Crozer Q 17:157 Ap '40 40w

MORSE, FRANK PHILIP. Cavalcade of the rails. 370p il $3.75 Dutton

385 Railroads—History 40-8262

Study of the pageant of railroad transportation in the United States from its earliest beginnings to the present age of streamlined locomotives and automatic safety devices. Includes many anecdotes of the building of the railroads and the men who backed them. Illustrated with photographs. Index.

"What Mr. Morse says about restrictive legislation, about the railways' competitors, and about government subsidy of those competitors is true enough, and should be said exactly as he has said it. I am not sure, however, that in presenting his facts he has not fleetingly lost his admirable sense of reality." R. E. M. Whitaker

+ — Books p5 Je 23 '40 550w

"Mr. Morse describes the well known shenanigans of the Erie gang with great gusto and treats the Credit Mobilier affair, but he hardly mentions those railroad policies which prepared the way for the agrarian discontent during the last thirty years of the 19th century. He has, however, collected some interesting Americana, and if one objects to his partisan statements on the current railroad crisis, the book's illustrations are splendid." D. A.

+ — Boston Transcript p1 Ap 27 '40 140w

N Y New Tech Bks 25:52 O '40

Reviewed by E. F. Allen

N Y Times p5 My 5 '40 600w

"Mr. Morse has done a useful book. If there is a writer dreaming today of the great American story, he should put this book on his shelf. In it many facts are assembled. . . Unfortunately the book is hard to read. Perhaps this is because it is so detached from the deep underlying social and human motives which, in fact, tie the whole railroad story together. The result is a collection of close-packed chapters connected to each other neither by historic sequence nor by the backbone of national growth. The reader who is familiar with the story can follow him here readily enough, but those to whom it is new must have much the sensation of a man of the 'fifties riding a train for the first time." Roger Burlingame

+ — Sat R of Lit 22:25 My 25 '40 550w

"While a volume many times its size could be written on the subject and its ramifications, the author has stuck to essential facts and a generous interweaving of human-interest incidents gives the work a reading appeal akin to that of popular fiction. By no means of least interest, although given but comparatively little space in the closing chapter, is the author's analytical review of the railroads' financial difficulties, together with suggestions toward rehabilitation. The text is freely illustrated with cuts and photographic reproductions along the lines of showing the development of American railroading from pioneering days up to the present modern equipment."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 28 '40 1150w

Wis Lib Bul 36:109 Je '40

MORTENSEN, WILLIAM. On the negative. 283p il $4 Simon & Schuster

770 Photography—Negatives 40-27848

"A manual of photography for the serious amateur who is willing to give some study to optics and sensitometry. Using many illustrations, the author demonstrates the relationships of light, exposure, and development, and recommends underexposure and overdevelopment." Booklist

Booklist 37:171 Ja 1 '41

Christian Science Monitor p10 Ja 11 '41 320w

MORTENSON, ERNEST. You be the judge; il. by Alain [written in collaboration with Sarah Paulding Ray]. 451p $3.75 Longmans

340 Law. Justice, Administration of (W) [40-6720]

An explanation of the workings of the law, written for laymen. The author includes analyses of some famous cases as well as a large number of fictional cases to illustrate his points. Contents: Initiation into the law; The judicial process; Torts; Property; Crime; International law; Domestic relations; Equity; Contracts, bills and notes, insurance; Wills; The Constitution and federal cases; Problems of proof; Conclusion; Answers; Citations. Bibliography. Index.

MORTENSON, ERNEST—Continued

"Packed with odd and useful knowledge, the book rates a permanent place on your most accessible library shelf."
+ Atlantic Je '40 120w

Booklist 36:394 Je 15 '40

"There can be no doubt that Mr. Mortenson has succeeded to an admirable degree in humanizing the law. I heartily recommend his work to laymen and lawyers alike, both for enlightenment and enjoyment." Alexander Lindey
+ Books p4 My 5 '40 1100w

Cleveland Open Shelf p9 My '40

"The principles of the law are presented in homely illustrative yarns. Even the current popularity of quiz games has not been overlooked. These devices, obviously designed to catch the reader of 'popular' books, or at least to cover up the 'serious' nature of the subject matter, are, however, not cloaks for superficiality. Notwithstanding its flippant style and anecdotes, the substance is sound." Chester Rohrlich
+ N Y Times p10 Je 9 '40 600w

Reviewed by J. R. Parker
Sat R of Lit 22:10 Ag 24 '40 330w

Wis Lib Bul 36:123 Jl '40

MORTENSON, WILLIAM PETER. Milk distribution as a public utility. 221p $2.50 Univ. of Chicago press [15s Cambridge]

338.1 Milk supply 40-30983

"The report of a study of the proposal to have milk made a public utility like water, gas, and electricity. The findings convince the author, associate professor in the department of agricultural economics at the University of Wisconsin, that to the disinterested observer and the consumer the advantages of a unified system of milk distribution are clear, but that it will meet strong opposition from distributors and organized labor; also that producers, especially organized producers, will not favor it at first, though they may be converted." (J Home Econ) Bibliography. Index.

"The book combines the thoroughness and clarity of an expert in the field with the wisdom and that mature doubt so essential to the adequate treatment of controversial subjects of public policy. It will undoubtedly exert a wholesome influence on the further debate of alternative courses of public milk policy to be adopted." Karl Brandt
+ Ann Am Acad 213:224 Ja '41 750w

J Home Econ 32:633 N '40 90w

MORTIMER, R. C. Origins of private penance in the western church. 194p $3.50 (10s 6d) Oxford

265.6 Penance

"The history of penance has been studied in recent years by many able scholars, English, French, and German. . . In the present volume the lecturer on early canon law at Oxford does not treat the subject generally, but discusses one of the important questions still open: Was there any private absolution in the Western Church before 600, or were the means of forgiveness for post-baptismal sin limited to public penance for serious offences, and prayer, almsgiving, etc. (aided by spiritual counsel) for venial sins? . . Fr. Mortimer proves his conclusion, I believe, even though such writers as K. Adams and Batiffol are on the other side: apart from death-beds, there was no private absolution in the West before the seventh century." Living Church

"In spite of detailed discussion of numerous sources, from Tertullian forward, the book under review makes no original contributions; nor does it show use of many sources and secondary works essential to the solution of its problems. The index is incomplete." T. P. Oakley
Am Hist R 46:378 Ja '41 600w

Reviewed by E. L. Pennington
Churchman 153:21 D 1 '39 180w

"Much of Fr. Mortimer's careful and well-presented scholarship is addressed to students of the Latin Fathers and deals with the technical questions involved in interpreting their writings. But his book is no dry study; it is an important contribution to a vital subject." E. R. Hardy, Jr.
+ Living Church 102:9 F 14 '40 360w

Times [London] Lit Sup p740 D 23 '39 550w

MORTON, ANTHONY. Blue Mask strikes again [Eng title: Versus the Baron]. 315p $2 Lippincott [7s 6d Low] 40-6703

Detective story.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p17 Ap 21 '40 220w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin
Boston Transcript p2 My 4 '40 40w

"A mystery thriller of the type that is dear to the hearts of those who demand unlimited action and who care little about plausibility." Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p18 Ap 21 '40 180w

"Although all blue Masks seem to be cut from same bolt, new variations on Rafflesque theme provide pleasant entertainment. Ennui chaser."
+ — Sat R of Lit 21:18 Ap 20 '40 40w

MORTON, ANTHONY. Blue Mask victorious. 312p $2 Lippincott 40-31184

Detective story.

Booklist 37:156 D 15 '40

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p18 O 20 '40 110w

"The story has action and suspense and will probably interest Blue Mask's friends among mystery readers. It is none the less commonplace." Kay Irvin
+ — N Y Times p16 O 6 '40 150w

Sat R of Lit 22:28 O 19 '40 40w

MORTON, HENRY CANOVA VOLLAM. Ghosts of London; il. from phot. and with drawings by James Macdonald. 197p $3 Dodd [6s Methuen]

914.21 London—Description. London—Social life and customs (W) 40-27230

Chapters on some of the age-old customs which survive in present-day London, or did before the present war. Partial contents: Horn-blowers of the temple; The herb shop; Hansom cab; The lamplighter; Yeoman of the guard; Royal waxworks; Bells of St Paul's; Bank guard; Lambeth dole; Shepherd market; Big Ben's cradle; Maundy money. Illustrated with photographs in sepia, and with line drawings.

Atlantic Ap '40 100w

Booklist 36:280 Mr 15 '40

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Books p10 Jl 21 '40 310w

"The casual reader will find the book both informative and entertaining; the highbrow will find it spiced with just enough minor inaccuracies to keep him on the alert." DeLancey Ferguson
+ — Boston Transcript p2 F 24 '40 150w
Cath World 151:249 My '40 360w

"Mr. Morton does reassure all who love their London. There may today be sandbags to disfigure the streets and a bewildering fleet of silver ships to crowd the sky, but beneath and behind it all London is unchanged. Mr. Morton's 'Ghosts' are startlingly alive." M. W.
+ Christian Science Monitor p10 Mr 23 '40 320w
Forum 103:205 Ap '40 150w

"H. V. Morton's latest book is a study in continuity. It is picturesque and lively, and it is also both winning and suggestive. And 'ghosts' is not really an indicative word, in the title. For many of these so-called ghosts flourish in their old time patriarchal vigor, scarcely lessened through the centuries; and only a few of them can rightly be called phantoms." Katherine Woods
+ N Y Times p6 F 18 '40 1200w

"Sometimes one wishes for more information. . . But he has found many excellent old customs . . . which ought to be more widely kept up. The only thing one would quarrel with is the title. Surely these are very hale ghosts, and long after Hitler is a wraith haunting Berchtesgaden, the Spirit of London will go on walking in flesh and blood." B. D.
+ Sat R of Lit 21:21 Mr 9 '40 270w

"Many native Londoners should find the book of value in pointing out and interpreting a number of interesting customs of which they probably know little detail. . . 'Ghosts of London' is sympathetically written throughout and the sensitive humor and insight of the writer help immeasurably in keeping the atmosphere of mellow enchantment that surrounds all good and healthy ghosts."
+ Springf'd Republican p10 F 14 '40 600w
Times [London] Lit Sup p697 D 2 '39 280w

MORTON, MRS ROSALIE (SLAUGHTER). A doctor's holiday in Iran; foreword by Hugh S. Cumming. 335p il map $3 Funk

915.5 Persia—Description and travel (W) 40-5345

The author of A Woman Surgeon (Book Review Digest, 1937) here describes her journey thru modern Iran. Among her topics of interest are the doctor's part in modern progress, missions, the part played by women in Iran's reincarnation, and education.

Reviewed by M. P. Ravenel
Am J Pub Health 30:1127 S '40 750w
Booklist 36:323 Ap 15 '40
Reviewed by M. B. Smith
— Books p12 Jl 7 '40 650w
Boston Transcript p3 Ap 6 '40 30w

"In her study of progress in modern Iran Dr. Morton has two illuminating chapters on medicine and doctors, writes with astuteness and sympathy of women veiled and unveiled, and surveys what she aptly calls the 'adventure of education.' She looks at such problems as oil markets, costume uniformities and substitutes for the opium crop. But she has by no means neglected the easier and more inviting aspects of travel."
N Y Times p3 Mr 24 '40 550w

"Although in her delightfully rambling pages, Dr. Morton presents a great deal of valuable information and intelligent observation of the country, her book never really comes into any focus until, in the last seven or eight chapters, she gets her teeth into subjects that really profoundly interest her as a woman, as a doctor, and as an intelligent observer of human society. . . Dr. Slaughter's constant praise for reborn Iran is generous, but to any one who knows the country, it glosses over a multitude of difficulties for the foreigner. Iran is not yet ready for the tourist." C. C.
+ — Sat R of Lit 22:22 Ag 17 '40 230w
Springf'd Republican p7e Je 23 '40 1700w

MOSER, MRS EDWA. The Mexican touch. 279p map $2.75 Duell

917.2 Mexico—Social life and customs (W) 40-27657

Chronicle of an American family's year's stay in Mexico. The author and her three children, Molly, Don and Ken, aged ten, twelve and fourteen, spent most of their time in a rented house in Cuernavaca. The boys learned carpentry and masonry, Molly learned pottery, their mother took courses at the university, and they all studied Spanish. At the end of the year they had discovered much about Mexican customs and ways of life.

Booklist 37:33 O 1 '40

"Mrs. Moser's charming, vivid little sketches of people and places add up to a surprisingly clear and sympathetic picture of Mexican life and the Mexican habit of mind, as one American family of intelligence and sensibility saw these things. It is because this is true that the reviewer hopes there will be another printing so that the publisher may correct frequent howlers. . . Even if Mrs. Moser's Spanish is not what it might be, she still has something to say and says it admirably. But the meat of the book deserves the proper trimming such corrections would give it." J. H. Jackson
+ — Books p18 O 13 '40 950w
Reviewed by N. M. Oliver
Living Age 359:292 N '40 100w

"A delightful and excellent book. . . From the first moment of humility in this ancient lonely land, to the last dismaying and ludicrous complications of getting the children and the car out of the country, these personal experiences pack chapter after chapter with good reading and suggestive memory. In this chronicle of one family's Mexican sojourn there is the quality of liveliest interest; and through it all there is laughter and wisdom."
+ N Y Times p8 O 20 '40 550w

"It is a moving and hilarious record, but without one touch of false sentimentality. Mrs. Moser was able to look clear-eyed at cruelties, to see the humor in quaint and difficult situations. . . Her book has much of the charm, tolerance and warm humor that animated that earlier classic, 'Viva México!' by Flandreau." Carleton Beals
+ Sat R of Lit 22:14 S 28 '40 500w

MOSES, ROBERT. Theory and practice in politics. 78p $1 Harvard univ. press [4s 6d Oxford]

342.73 U.S.—Politics and government 39-30206

Two lectures delivered at Harvard in 1939, by the Park commissioner of New York city.

"The thinness of these lectures may signify simply that Mr. Moses has been so busy as a political 'actor' that he has not had time to consider deliberately the meaning of his activity." Charles McKinley
— Am Pol Sci R 34:397 Ap '40 250w
Reviewed by S. I. Pomerantz
Pol Sci Q 55:625 D '40 370w

"Mr. Moses's lectures present forthright opinions, many derived from experience. In some of his criticisms he, like the 'theorists,' may assume an unattainable standard of perfection. But in his casual way he illuminates not a few problems of 'practical' administration." E. N. Jenckes
+ Springf'd Republican p6 N 25 '39 1100w

MOSHER, JOHN. Celibate at twilight, and other stories; il. by Mary Petty. 296p $2 Random house

40-10776

Collection of short stories and sketches, all of which made their first appearance in the New Yorker. They recount the adventures of Mr Opal in high society, the scene of his gentle adventures being New York.

"Mr. Mosher has observed well. His prose is deceptive, in a way. It comes out smoothly, pleasantly, apparently the product of a soul filled with all the good will in the world; nothing could be further from the truth. Underneath there runs a delicate undercurrent of well-bred irony, and when fifty such pieces are gathered together the effect is downright devastating. . . This is an excellent collection. These people, for all their artificiality, are so real that it hurts." Stanley Walker

+ Books p2 Je 9 '40 900w

Reviewed by John Holmes

Boston Transcript p1 Je 22 '40 330w

"It is a mood. It is a pose. Mr. Mosher does it very well. And you would become one of his very favorite characters if you solemnly argued with him that, after all, there is more to New York than that. . . Incidentally, it was an inspired editor who persuaded Mary Petty (also of the New Yorker) to illustrate 'Celibate at Twilight.'" Lewis Gannett

+ Boston Transcript p3 Je 22 '40 440w

"In the best of these pieces, Mr. Mosher combines a gentle irony with an ear for wistful, irresponsible chatter. In the worst and slightest, his subjects can't quite manage to get a firm grip on your interest."

New Repub 102:802 Je 10 '40 40w

"The drawings by Mary Petty are, as might be confidently expected, excellent. With the exception of Mr. Mosher himself, no one better understands these people on whom Mr. Mosher permits his mind to dwell. Lank, pale, with high, thin noses and eyes that, like the eyes of so many dogs, promise an intelligence though the promise cannot be fulfilled by anything more than grace, Miss Petty's beings perfectly decorate and at the same time point up the text." Robert Van Gelder

+ N Y Times p6 Je 9 '40 600w

New Yorker 16:79 Je 8 '40 70w

"As caviare to the New England boiled dinner, so are these subtly pungent little tales to the usual run of magazine fiction. There are dozens of them and six are enhanced by the sophisticated drawings of the delightful Mary Petty. . . The first taste like that of a good wine, may seem gentle and mild, but it is in the aftertaste that we recognize the richness of the flavor, and sense the wallop of irony that lies behind the seeming quiet of the author's humor." M. S. U.

+ Sat R of Lit 22:20 Jl 13 '40 290w

MOSLEY, LEONARD OSWALD. Europe downstream [Eng title: Down stream]. 330p $2.75 Doubleday [10s 6d Joseph, M]

940.52 Europe—Politics (W) 40-27168

An eye-witness account by an English newspaper reporter of Europe's drift down stream toward war during the two years prior to its outbreak. Accompanied by his bride he observed the Spanish civil war, went to Nuremberg to report the annual congress of the National Socialist party, toured the Sudeten area when the crisis was developing there and visited Poland on the eve of Hitler's invasion.

Booklist 36:261 Mr 1 '40

Reviewed by J. B. Phillips

Books p15 F 11 '40 450w

Foreign Affairs 19:252 O '40 20w

"Mr. Leonard Mosley's story of his travels about Europe in the past two years has two virtues to mark it out from some of its fellows. It is readable, for Mr. Mosley is a lively writer, confidingly personal about his experiences. And, within the limits of the superficial, he is a faithful observer, one who has opinions and expresses them with vigour, but does not let them cloud his sight or distort his narrative." J. M.

+ Manchester Guardian p3 D 8 '39 240w

"[Mr Mosley's] pleasantly written book adds many picturesque and interesting details to what we already know. Especially valuable are the chapters on Spain and the Nürnberg Nazi Congress in 1938."

+ New Repub 102:221 F 12 '40 50w

"Unobtrusively, cleverly, behind a screen of disquisitions on the Europe of our day—steadily drifting down-stream to war—he manages to project into his narrative the attractive personalities of himself and his young bride. . . It is all done casually and neatly. It is brought off without fuss or self-importance. Mr. Mosley and charming Isa, his Scotch wife, took everything in their stride. Through it all they remained human and likable." T. R. Ybarra

+ N Y Times p4 Ja 28 '40 650w

"Very readable and sometimes downright funny."

+ New Yorker 15:64 Ja 27 '40 30w

Reviewed by D. H. Popper

Sat R of Lit 21:20 F 17 '40 500w

Reviewed by Anthony Powell

Spec 163:876 D 15 '39 150w

"Fortunately for the reader Mr. Mosley is more concerned with events than with comments. He tells his story with a modesty which has been fast disappearing from the narratives and memoirs of foreign correspondents, and it is refreshing to find a journalist who observes the axiom that it is his job to supply not views but news. The result of this faithfulness to duty has been that Mr. Mosley has often been on the spot to see an event and describe it while many of his colleagues were in the nearest capital reporting the reactions—as they are called—of officials and Ministers to the news of the events."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p650 N 11 '39 480w

Wis Lib Bul 36:98 My '40

MOTHER GOOSE. Mother Goose; il. by Tenggren. 136p $2.50 Little

(W) 40-34871

"The text is the same old indispensable, it is the pictures that count. I can here give no idea of them; one of their distinctions is glowing colors, another large size. But a distinction even more important is that they are perfectly characterized. . . Any baby who ever heard of Jack Sprat, King Cole, Peter Pumpkin Eater brings down a delighted finger on these worthies and laughs aloud. Pippin Hill wakes up, Boy Blue sleeps, the little pig goes to market. Every one of these, even the spots, are right." (Books) Index to first lines.

Booklist 37:178 Ja 1 '41

"Not to mince words, this is the best Mother Goose I ever saw. . . The people of Mother Goose are as alive as I am and considerably better known. They should be pictured so that the smallest child, the oldest grandparent, knows each one at a glance without a label. Try these on either." M. L. Becker

+ Books p11 N 10 '40 120w

Cath World 152:511 Ja '41 150w

"Those who buy this for Christmas should buy it early so that the adults in the family may have a chance to enjoy the pictures before the children take possession."

+ Christian Century 57:1483 N 27 '40 30w

Reviewed by F. B. Sloan

Christian Science Monitor p9 Ja 27 '41 140w

"Versions of the Perpetual Old Lady come and go but this one is sure to stay for a very long time, and 'Tenggren's Mother Goose' become as familiar a reference as "Tenniel's Alice.'"

+ Churchman 154:4 D 15 '40 70w

"The selection of rhymes is fairly inclusive, and music for twelve of them is found at the back. The book is of large size, and is durably bound, with a bright cloth cover. Libraries wanting a new edition for exhibit purposes, or one to give out to discerning parents, will be interested in this." Josephine Smith
+ Library J 65:1092 D 15 '40 130w

"In the many illustrations Gustaf Tenggren has caught both the spirit of childhood and the humor and gayety of these old traditional rhymes. There are thirteen full-page pictures in clear, bright colors, and a large number of small ones sprinkled through the pages. The book is well bound, with a gay cloth cover. An excellent volume for the little child's own library and one for the picture-book corner of the public library." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p7 D 29 '40 120w

"Excellent."
+ Sat R of Lit 23:40 D 7 '40 20w

MOTHER GOOSE. The crooked man; pictured by Emily Barto. [56p] 75c Longmans 40-13275

Picture book illustrating the nursery rhyme about The Crooked Man Who Went a Crooked Mile.

Churchman 154:5 D 1 '40 20w

"This little volume with one word to a picture, and that word sometimes an 'a' or an 'and,' produces the effect of a stammerer trying to tell a story. To have to turn twenty-five pages while proceeding from the first word of an eight-line jingle to the last, might conceivably prove as irritating to a child as it must certainly be to the adult. . . Children, moreover, will miss the dramatic quality of the rhyme, in this slow motion version. The drawings introduce so many details extraneous to the original rhyme that small children may find them confusing." A. T. Eaton
— N Y Times p10 S 15 '40 240w

MOULT, THOMAS, ed. The best poems of 1939; with drawings by Elizabeth Montgomery. 128p $2 Harcourt [6s Cape, J]

821.08 English poetry—Collections. American poetry—Collections (A27-176)

Includes poems by Martha Bacon, Laurence Binyon, Maxwell Bodenheim, Witter Bynner, Robert P. Tristram Coffin, David Daiches, Walter de la Mare, Kenneth Fearing, Cyril Hume, C. Day Lewis, Alfred Noyes, Leonora Speyer, Humbert Wolfe, and others.

"There are some good poems in the collection, notably those by Oscar Williams, Ruthven Todd, Lilian Bowes-Lyon, W. H. Auden, and Marya Zaturenska. The rest sing 'of the earth and the bridal of spring,' or 'take ship for the isles of the spirit,' or lament man's homelessness and loneliness. But they do it in language and rhythms which have often carried the same messages before, and they will appeal to readers who like to be reminded rather than to those who like to be stirred."
— + Atlantic Je '40 120w

Booklist 36:396 Je 15 '40

Reviewed by John Ritchey
Christian Science Monitor p11 Je 29 '40 450w

Reviewed by Charles Powell
Manchester Guardian p3 D 22 '39 250w

Reviewed by T. C. Worsley
New Statesman & Nation 18:830 D 9 '39 50w

"Original experiments, either in form or theme, are hardly to be looked for in such a collection, but such poets as Mr. Charles Madge, Mr. Mallalieu and Mr. Soutar do break new ground in the sense that they image another dimension than that of the five senses and make real the mystery through which we move. The longest poem, too, in the collection, Marya Zaturenska's 'Century of Athletes,' dedicated in more than a heading to Franz Kafka, draws light from and directs light into that mystery."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p752 D 30 '39 420w

MOULTON, HAROLD GLENN, and others. Capital expansion, employment, and economic stability. 413p $3.50 Brookings

330.973 U.S.—Economic policy. U.S.—Economic conditions. Capital. Investments. Taxation—U.S. 40-10947

"Two years ago the Brookings institution of Washington began an investigation of factors responsible for the prevailing stagnation in American capital markets. The report of the investigators is published in full in [this] book of 413 pages, including about 60 pages of statistical data. One section of the analysis, dealing with the relation of taxation to investment, has been previously published and a general summary of the conclusions was presented in press dispatches at the time the report was released. . . The authors reject the view that this country has reached a stage of 'economic maturity' and that there is likely to be little further opportunity for private capital expansion. Changes in federal taxation to promote equity financing are recommended." Springf'd Republican

---

Reviewed by H. H. Villard
Am Econ R 30:838 D '40 750w

Reviewed by C. B. Hagan
Am Pol Sci R 34:1249 D '40 280w

Reviewed by E. M. Patterson
Ann Am Acad 213:230 Ja '41 500w

Booklist 37:30 O 1 '40

Management R 29:232 Je '40 20w

"The report is one of the clearest and most valuable of recent Brookings studies."
+ Springf'd Republican p10 Je 21 '40 270w

MOURT'S RELATION. Homes in the wilderness; a pilgrim's journal of Plymouth plantation in 1620, by William Bradford and others of the Mayflower company; il. with drawings by Mary Wilson Stewart. 76p maps $2 Scott, W.R.

974.4 Massachusetts—History. Plymouth colony (W) 40-27095

A re-editing of the journal of William Bradford and other members of the Plymouth colony. It describes the landing of the pilgrims on Cape Cod, exploring the land, building their settlement and their relations with the Indians. "First published at London in 1622 as 'A Relation or Journal of the Proceedings of the Plantation settled at Plymouth in New England.' The book is commonly called 'Mourt's Relation' because the preface is signed G. Mourt., and no other indication of authorship is given. . . For this edition the old language has been somewhat modernized." (Editor's note)

Booklist 36:241 F 15 '40

Boston Transcript p4 D 23 '39 70w

"Graphic drawings on somewhat gray paper relieved by excellent typography. Useful source material for special collections." Dorotha Dawson
+ Library J 65:124 F 1 '40 50w

New Repub 101:238 D 13 '39 40w

"Source material in the form of journals and diaries has a fascination for 12 and 13 year olds, so much so that they are not infrequently found trying to use such journals in their original form, as they seek additional information for a class project. Thus we may well be grateful for this very pleasing volume in which the Journal of William Bradford and others of the Mayflower Company is presented in such a clear and attractive fashion that boys and girls will find it as readable as a story, while it will, at the same time, prove invaluable as supplementary reading for classes in American history." A. T. Eaton

MOURT'S RELATION—Continued

+ N Y Times p10 Ja 28 '40 330w

Springf'd Republican p7e D 10 '39 130w

MOUSLEY, EDWARD OPOTIKI. Man or leviathan? a twentieth century enquiry into war and peace. 470p $4.50 Norton [15s Allen, G]

172.4 War. Peace. Sovereignty. International law and relations. Political science [39-22867]

"The author holds that the existence of the modern national state as a completely sovereign organism made it inevitable that the League of Nations should degenerate into a sort of 'holding company' for one set of Powers to be used by them as an instrument against an opposing group outside the League, and that this is why war is endemic in the world today. The only solution is the creation of a supernational state, he holds." (Foreign Affairs) Index.

"Mr. Mousley has a fluent command of words and allusions, and a dogmatic style; he discourses broadly of philosophy, of Christianity, of Marxism, and of Nazism. The result is to leave the reader somewhat overwhelmed beneath the flood of thought and words. But in general, the student of international affairs must agree with the author's analysis; the lessons which he teaches are solid ones." Clyde Eagleton

+ — Ann Am Acad 211:202 S '40 650w

"Mr. Mousley's indictment of the League of Nations is convincing enough, and his argument is logical, given his premises. But his argument leads only to another system; and every system depends on the readiness of man to make it work. . . Mr. Mousley, for all his singleness of purpose, has dealt with the symptoms rather than with the causes of the international anarchy." E. H. C.

Christian Science Monitor p18 Ap 14 '39 500w

Economist 135:138 Ap 15 '39 280w

Ethics 49:500 Jl '39 210w

Foreign Affairs 18:369 Ja '40 70w

Manchester Guardian p5 Je 2 '39 480w

"This [is a] remarkable and explicit book. It is not a work of vague theory, but is founded on the realities of recent history, of which it is very largely a careful and conclusive summary." H. W. Nevinson

+ Spec 162:640 Ap 14 '39 1350w

"Many years' thought and work lie behind this inquiry into the causes of war. Mr. Mousley's line of approach is partly legal and partly philosophical, and he is well aware that others have entered the same path before him and have arrived at a different goal. It is strictly germane to Mr. Mousley's purpose that he should interrupt his main argument in order to deal thoroughly with what he regards as obstructions to its progress. These digressions, which reveal a powerful critical faculty, are often stimulating reading, but they rob the book of its shape, and its unevenness is accentuated by the difference in the mood of the writing, which is sometimes almost a reverie and sometimes astir with moral fervour."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p198 Ap 8 '39 500w

MOZLEY, JAMES FREDERIC. John Foxe and his book. 254p il $3.50 Macmillan [12s 6d S.P.C.K]

B or 92 Foxe, John

"A scholarly and very readable biography of the celebrated Protestant pamphleteer and author of 'The Book of Martyrs.' Mr. Mozley's aim is the frankly partisan one of establishing Foxe's accuracy and honesty, and defending him against his attackers, who have been legion." Nation

"Mr. Mozley gives a full half of his book to a critical dissertation on the 'Book of Martyrs,' and in this he makes a real contribution to our knowledge of the period in which for some years he has been specialising. The other, the biographical half, is plodding work. Probably the pen of an angel could not touch with excitement the incidents of Foxe's life." R. L.

+ — Manchester Guardian p6 S 13 '40 200w

Nation 151:512 N 23 '40 150w

Times [London] Lit Sup p482 S 21 '40 2350w

MUDGE, EUGENE TENBROECK. The social philosophy of John Taylor of Caroline; a study in Jeffersonian democracy. 227p $2.75 Columbia univ. press [14s Oxford]

320.1 Taylor, John. Political science 40-4266

Presents in systematic form the political and economic theories of an early American political writer, one of the radical exponents of Jeffersonian democracy. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by C. M. Wiltse
Am Pol Sci R 34:176 F '40 240w

Reviewed by Herman Hausheer
Christian Century 56:1341 N 1 '39 470w

"A most useful book for the historian of American ideas."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p103 F 24 '40 100w

MUGGERIDGE, MALCOLM. The sun never sets; the story of England in the nineteen thirties [Eng title: The thirties, 1930-1940, in Great Britain]. 393p $3 Random house [9s 6d Hamilton, H]

942.083 Great Britain—Civilization. Great Britain—Foreign relations 40-8509

A survey of the history of England during the 1930s with portraits of the leading personalities of the decade. The style is not that of formal history, but resembles rather the impressionistic, journalistic surveys of American life such as Frederick Lewis Allen's or Mark Sullivan's. Index.

"A more blistering indictment of British political leadership, Labor and Tory alike, since World War I, would be difficult to find." Geoffrey Bruun

Books p4 Je 23 '40 700w

"The book crackles with wit, it outdoes earlier only-yesterday studies with its cutting, flashing style, its glittering satire. Its epigrams fairly cry for quotations. Beside it, an old-fashioned apologia like James T. Adams' 'Empire on the Seven Seas' lumbers along like a farm-horse on an upgrade. Read Mr. Muggeridge, then, for amusement, if you must. But his book can be less than amusing, if you see it as the mirror-image of a failing faith—of the pleasant, familiar faith in 'progress without tears,' in romantic-liberal materialism. . . If this is the last gasp of ironic liberalism, it is a fine, strong, last gasp." R. H. Phelps

+ Boston Transcript p2 My 11 '40 550w

Reviewed by J. A. Dewar
Canadian Forum 20:189 S '40 300w

Reviewed by J. R. Baldwin
Canadian Hist R 21:316 S '40 170w

"In effect this hustling style of rapid, neatly-pointed comment, taking everything in its stride from Rudolf Valentino to the royal abdication, is not designed for a calm weighing of the true significance of things. It is designed, like some of our popular news broadcasts, to which it bears a close family resemblance, to give a welter of surface facts in a sprightly, entertaining manner. Mr. Muggeridge fires off his facts with bewildering skill. While the show goes on the reader, if he can keep his breath, will thoroughly enjoy the experience." H. J. S.

— + Christian Science Monitor p10 Je 29 '40 650w

"Mr. Muggeridge's is a vignette technique which throws a spotlight on apparently insignificant and unrelated events or personalities, integrating them into the whole. The nearest thing we have to it in America is Frederick Lewis Allen's flavorful Since Yesterday or Only Yesterday, the histories of two decades in American life." Norman Cousins

+ Current Hist 51:5 My '40 250w

Foreign Affairs 19:261 O '40 20w

Reviewed by C. H. Grattan

New Repub 102:733 My 27 '40 400w

"The worst of assuming the mantle of Jeremiah is that, instead of achieving a wholesale conversion, you may cheer up the sinners by providing them with a hearty guffaw. The great satirist arouses our indignation because he contrasts good and evil. The writer for whom everything is a sour joke, may relieve his own feelings: but for the rest of the world he becomes mere entertainment. And that no doubt is the most ironical joke of all. Judged then as entertainment, [the book] is to be recommended; judged as a serious estimate of our age, it is clever, hysterical and defeatist, sacrificing truth for the sake of an epigram." R. H. S. Crossman

+ — New Statesman & Nation 19:313 Mr 9 '40 1150w

Reviewed by P. W. Wilson

N Y Times p4 Je 16 '40 1700w

"Tidy irony, and a nice sense of the particular in the large. A readable job."

+ New Yorker 16:91 Ap 27 '40 30w

"In 377 pages Mr. Muggeridge appears—though I may entirely misunderstand him—to celebrate the death of England. His method, however, is calculated to appease the censor and the critic; for he attacks everything impartially—the Right, the Left, the Centre. Politically, Mr. Muggeridge is non-existent, and such people are hardly dangerous. He is also a most amusing, and, on occasions, a most witty writer. . . However, Miss Rebecca West, Mr. Harold Nicolson, Mr. James Agate, and others have praised 'The Sun Never Sets'; so who is this reviewer to say that it is defeatist? Besides, it is most amusing—no doubt of that. Read it and laugh, and then go out and have a good stiff drink." George Dangerfield

Sat R of Lit 22:6 My 4 '40 650w

Spec 164:666 My 10 '40 150w

Time 35:90 Ap 29 '40 230w

"The principal defect of this otherwise admirable book is that the author has attempted the impossible. . . It is not possible in 1940 to see the pattern of the fourth decade of this century. . . The political parts of the book are the best. Mr. Muggeridge writes here with something more than card-indexes, but he might have written with greater effect if he had not over-worked his irony. . . The author's judgment cuts clean but not deep."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p118 Mr 9 '40 550w

MUIR, MRS EMILY (LANSINGH). Small potatoes [il. by the author]. 263p $2.50 Scribner

40-11891

Thru the medium of a sensitive small boy living in the Penobscot Bay region of Maine, the author shows the characteristics of the sturdy Maine farmers and fishermen. Nathan's reactions and thoughts are traced thru one summer of his life, from his graduation from grammar school to the beginning of high school.

Booklist 37:91 N 1 '40

Bookmark 2:13 Ja '41

"You'll find all the items [Mrs] Muir offers you quaint, delightful, amusing and be glad to have them, even though you realize that the antiquarian gets seriously in the way of the novelist. The decorations with which [Mrs] Muir adorns 'Small Potatoes' have a quiet strength of line and feeling that supports the tone of the novel admirably." F. H. Bullock

+ Books p6 Jl 28 '40 600w

"These are fine, hearty people, as authentic and enduring as the earth, and one meets Nate's kinfolk respectfully and greets with sympathy and laughter this small boy learning his way about a world full of adventure and beauty as well as of bewildering griefs." Iris Barry

+ Boston Transcript p11 Jl 30 '40 480w

"To dwell for an entire book in the limited dimensions of one child's mind and experience takes a courageous writer. It means a careful steering between the Scylla of too keen and articulate interpretation and the Charybdis of repetitiousness and dullness. In avoiding the first reef, Mrs. Muir has sometimes threatened her story on the second. But for the excellent food served, the beauty of sunsets over the Camden hills, autumn foliage on Isle au Haut, apple orchards in full bloom and shell-covered beaches this reader was grateful for the honest picturing of just folks." Ruth Blodgett

+ — Boston Transcript p2 Ag 3 '40 550w

"The novel will be of interest to people who know and love Maine and those who are anxious to read a book which does not concern itself with world problems. Both adult and adolescent readers will read it with pleasure." H. P. Bolman

+ Library J 65:592 Jl '40 250w

"No real story here, but a refreshing series of days outdoors—mowing and fishing and berrying and plain growing up. Read it for the smell of salt water and the tang of harvest and the taste of lobster caught within the hour."

+ New Repub 103:222 Ag 12 '40 50w

"Mrs. Muir writes with distinction and poetic insight, realistically and factually, but with a deep undercurrent of awareness of the underlying rhythm of life and its essential harmony. An artist as well as a writer, she passes from one medium to another, creating with words impressions as clear-cut as visual images." Anita Moffett

+ N Y Times p6 Jl 28 '40 950w

"The potatoes are undeniably small, and somewhat lacking in flavor; it can only be that in the last few years the Maine coast has from a literary point of view been worked almost to exhaustion. . . [The] speech has the leisurely quality of Maine country folk, but none of their occasional incisiveness." B. D.

Sat R of Lit 22:22 Ag 31 '40 330w

"Librarians may classify the book as a juvenile, but it is equally appealing to older readers."

Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 4 '40 320w

Wis Lib Bul 36:138 O '40

MUIR, PETER. War without music. 262p $2 Scribner

940.54753 European war, 1939—Personal narratives. European war, 1939—Hospitals, charities, etc.

40-29458

The author drove an ambulance in France for more than two years in the first World war; in the present war he took up his old job during the period when France was in the process of collapsing. As section leader of an ambulance corps in the American Field service he was present at Amiens and Beauvais, was instrumental in helping thousands of wounded, was captured by the Germans and escaped. This volume is a vivid account of his experiences.

Booklist 37:268 F 15 '41

"Mr. Muir's book, unlike the book of René de Chambrun, is untouched by any subtle propaganda. It is a straightforward account of a fantastic experience written with a vividness which takes you into the very center of burning Amiens and martyred Beauvais. The reader participates in the aimless, pitiful and tragic flight of the refugees, and from the book one gets the same impression of confusion and lack of all leadership which is in 'I Saw France Fall' and other accounts of men who participated in the battle and have since come to America." Louis Bromfield

MUIR, PETER—Continued

+ Books p8 N 24 '40 800w

Reviewed by W. V. C. Ruxton

Current Hist & Forum 52:1 Ja 23 '41 250w

"The best parts of this book are when Mr. Muir is writing a straightaway account of the workings of the section as it went from mission to mission. . . The shortcomings of Mr. Muir's writing may be overlooked for the service he performs in telling the story of Section One." Austin Stevens

+ N Y Times p8 D 1 '40 550w

"Mr. Muir's description of his experiences is graphic as war itself is graphic. Those who read his book will share his emotions: admiration for Nazi technical efficiency, mingled with hatred of Nazi methods and objectives, and a resolve to bend every effort toward destruction of the evil force behind the German conquest." D. H. P.

+ Sat R of Lit 23:21 D 14 '40 250w

"Like others who have written about the invasion, Mr Muir believes that the French army wanted to fight but that the soldiers were let down badly by poor staff work and the lack of proper equipment. His book is overly melodramatic at times, and he has felt it necessary to urge America's immediate entry into the war. Yet it makes interesting reading as an eyewitness account of the 'lightning war' in action."

Springf'd Republican p8 D 31 '40 430w

MULLEN, ARTHUR FRANCIS. Western Democrat [autobiography]. 360p il $3.50 Funk, W.

B or 92 U.S.—Politics and government. Nebraska—Politics and government 40-35491

"Mr. Mullen was an Irish Roman Catholic libertarian of the old type. . . He was brought up half a century ago in the great open space which was Nebraska; he became a sandhill lawyer; then the Irish instinct for politics led him into public life and finally made him a national figure; he made the final deal which got Mr. Roosevelt the nomination in 1932." Atlantic

---

" 'The wisdom which comes with death' made Mr. Mullen very gentle with the men who let him down and dishonored his ideals, but his gentleness is more excoriating than any amount of another man's invective would be."

+ Atlantic D '40 210w

"Written from fresh memory of many a battle and in articulate foreboding of death, the autobiography would hardly be expected to achieve more than moderate social distance from the subject. It has indeed a minimum of that fine air of esthetic contemplation which alone can really ennoble one's own appreciation of himself. With moderate political magnanimity, however, our hero points his prides and sounds forth his alarms in manly fashion." T. V. Smith

+ — Sat R of Lit 23:12 Ja 4 '41 550w

MULLER, SAMUEL; FEITH, JOHAN ADRIAAN, and FRUIN, ROBERT. Manual for the arrangement and description of archives; drawn up by direction of the Netherlands association of archivists; tr. of the 2d ed. by Arthur H. Leavitt. 225p $3.50 Wilson, H.W.

025.171 Archives (W) 40-4278

"Muller, Feith, and Fruin's Handleiding, since its publication in Dutch in 1898, has been considered a classic in its field. The principles set forth in it have influenced the development of archival economy in England as well as on the continent of Europe. Yet until Mr. Leavitt of the National Archives undertook this translation of the slightly revised second edition of 1920 nowhere were these principles available in English. English-speaking archivists had to rely on the German, Italian, and French translations which had all appeared by 1910. The Manual consists of one hundred rules defining archives and outlining their proper description and arrangement in the interests of preservation and availability. Each rule is explained and discussed with illustrations principally from the archives of the Netherlands, Belgium, or France. The Dutch footnotes are supplemented by others selected from the French translation as well as by Mr. Leavitt's own comments. This seems to be the first edition to include an index." (Library Q) Index.

"The Manual is of great value in defining the bases of archival economy. It is founded on European experience, and therefore the details are not always applicable to the large masses of modern records in this country. For instance, in cataloging an archival collection, Muller, Feith, and Fruin depend on inventories and calendars. American archivists have found these guides inadequate and are experimenting with the library card-catalog technique. In general, however, the rules are simple, logical, and not limited by national boundaries. For those not experienced in archival theory and practice the Manual will be a worthy introduction to this cousin of library science. It is to be regretted that a glossary was not compiled. The American terminology, which itself is not yet widely established, is here complicated by the various shades of meaning in the European terms which had to be translated." G. J. Finney

+ — Library Q 10:430 Jl '40 850w

"Of special interest because of the rapid increase in government records which ultimately affects many teachers of the social studies."

Social Studies 31:144 Mr '40 40w

MULLIKEN, SARAH ELIZABETH. The voyage of the Anna Smith; pictures by Jessie Robinson. 292p map $2 Bobbs

40-14200

The adventures of Captain Lynde, his wife, and their three young children, on a three-year-trip from Newburyport in the days of the clipper ships. They voyaged around the Cape of Good Hope, visited the Galapagos and Sandwich islands, spent two winters in the Arctic, and were shipwrecked on a desert island, from which they were rescued by an English ship. For readers of ten to thirteen.

Cath World 152:379 D '40 170w

"A well-written, worth while, breezy story for boys and girls." Sonja Wennerblad

+ Library J 65:814 O 1 '40 140w

"Fun, adventure, and near-tragedy figure in this story by Sarah E. Mulliken, whose own father was a sea captain. Knowing much about sailing ships and sea captains and ocean voyages, Miss Mulliken has seasoned a lively story with the salty tang of the sea, and has successfully caught between the covers of a book the gallant spirit of early America's sea-faring days."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e D 1 '40 300w

MUMFORD, LEWIS. Faith for living. 333p $2 Harcourt

321.8 Democracy. Civilization. U.S.—Foreign relations (W) 40-31242

As an idealist, the author raises his voice in protest against fascism, and proposes a program for the survivors of the present mass attack on democracy. His three main suggestions for a better life are: the restoration of the importance of the family; a re-establishment of the ties with the soil; and the development of the self.

"Mr. Mumford presents himself as a rather fractious compound of Solomon Eagle, Savonarola, and Peter the Hermit. He does not write well, chiefly because he does not think clearly; his thought is seldom 'worked through,' as the Germans say, or controlled by a sense of what is due to the logical stringency with which a philosopher must proceed. Emotionally, however, he is almost always to be found on the side of the angels—his lapses from this state of grace are very few and easily identified—and his book, like all his previous work, faithfully reflects this merit."

+ — Atlantic O '40 230w

Booklist 37:63 O 15 '40

"I am unhesitatingly with Lewis Mumford against the Fascist, the materialist, and the confused liberal. But his fervor betrays him into excesses and confusions hardly less dangerous, at times, than those which he denounces. A burning sense of righteousness is a great motive power, but not a safe guide. Mumford not seldom gives the impression of a high-powered motor car with a wabbly steering wheel." Albert Guerard

+ — Books p12 S 8 '40 1100w

Reviewed by J. L. Burke, S.J.

— Boston Transcript p1 S 7 '40 550w

"The book is excellent in so many ways, that it is a pity that, before sending it to press, the author did not check some of his misinformation, and restrain some of his prejudices." K. E. M.

+ — Cath World 152:118 O '40 480w

Reviewed by A. L. Murray

Churchman 154:16 O 1 '40 220w

Cleveland Open Shelf p17 O '40

"Truly a Faith for Living, this volume provides a sure bottom—in this twentieth century sea of uncertainty and death—for those who are still whole enough, alive enough, to make its philosophy and ethos a breathing, forceful reality. . . This book should not be examined, reviewed, evaluated, it should be presented to and made required reading for every preacher and teacher, every politician and bartender, every artist and banker, every taxi driver and brush salesman, also every Fascist and Nazi in the United States." L. B. Bloch

+ Living Age 359:89 S '40 1500w

"It has become abundantly clear that spiritual confusion and inertia have made the democratic world both tardy and ineffective in meeting the peril of the new barbarians. Hardly any portion of the democratic world, with the possible exception of Czechoslovakia, which was overwhelmed by superior military strength, had not previously capitulated to the barbarians in heart and spirit. For that reason such books as Mr. Mumford's are as important as the political and military measures which are now being taken to constitute the remnant of the democratic world into a final bastion of civilization." Reinhold Niebuhr

+ Nation 151:221 S 14 '40 1000w

"There is courage and good sense in much of what [Mr Mumford] says, if only he would forget his spread-eagle oratory. The fact might as well be faced that if we are going to defend American democracy against Hitler, we shall have to borrow some of Hitler's methods, those which make it possible for his country to act rapidly and unitedly, on carefully laid plans. So far I should be willing to go with Mr. Mumford, and it is a long way. The trouble with his prescription for defending the spirit of democracy is that it means losing the substance of democracy." Malcolm Cowley

+ — New Repub 103:357 S 9 '40 1350w

"This is a book for our time that merits the attention of every thinking American. My own enthusiasm for it is no doubt heightened by the fact that I find myself in profound agreement with the general lines of Mr. Mumford's thesis, and hardly less separate with respect to his bill of particulars. . . In a sense 'Faith for Living' is a piece of impassioned pamphleteering. But it is more than that. It is a book freighted with both knowledge and wisdom, clearly and simply stated, logically developed, unswervingly directed at ultimate and profound truth. . . It is a noble and heartening piece of work, and I should like particularly to think of it being read this Fall and Winter in every college room in America." J. D. Adams

+ N Y Times p1 S 8 '40 2700w

N Y Times p2 O 13 '40 460w

New Yorker 16:54 Ag 31 '40 80w

"Mr. Mumford could have been as well heard if he had not shouted so hysterically, and one was entitled to expect from a writer of his reputation something that resembled analysis more than a secular sermon, unorganized and dripping with pompous sentimentality. The times are indeed parlous, and so perhaps, Mr. Mumford is to be forgiven for writing a book so obviously composed in a hurry. . . Well, since Mr. Mumford recommends wading in coarsely, I should say Mr. Mumford has written a pretty fourth-rate book." Irwin Edman

— Sat R of Lit 22:7 Ag 31 '40 1250w

Social Studies 31:334 N '40 50w

"Lewis Mumford's timely volume is a stirring call to arms which, under certain circumstances, might become a New Testament to put in the breast pockets of soldiers who go abroad to save democracy. Whether it achieves such distinction or not, it is a stimulating book which every student and observer of our times will want to read and ponder." Thomas Woody

+ Social Studies 31:373 D '40 800w

Springf'd Republican p7e N 10 '40 950w

Reviewed by Leon Whipple

Survey G 29:517 O '40 300w

Time 36:65 S 2 '40 600w

MUNDAY, ALBERT HENRY. Practical flying in war and peace. 354p il $3 Harper

629.13 Aeronautics. Aeronautics, Military (W) 40-10286

"Written especially for the layman seeking practical knowledge of flying and the fundamental principles of aviation. The work covers navigation, map reading, charts and buoys, meteorology and airplane weather, cross-country and night flying, flying instruction, acrobatic maneuvers, aeronautic radio, radio compass navigation, aircraft engines and instruments, lighter-than-air machines, wireless telegraph and semaphore, aerial fighting, bombs and bomb-dropping, materials used in construction, artillery observation from aircraft, construction, care and maintenance, aerial photography, and women in aviation." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Booklist 37:31 O 1 '40

N Y New Tech Bks 25:31 Jl '40

MUNDY, TALBOT. Old Ugly-face. 544p $3 Appleton-Century

40-4503

Tale of mysticism, clairvoyance, and adventure, scened in Tibet. It concerns a group of men and women, some of them American, who become involved in the kidnaping of the youthful Dalai Lama.

"Skip the mystical tosh and you have an adventure story that is Talbot Mundy at his best." W. C. Weber

+ — Books p12 F 25 '40 300w

"As a mystery adventure it is manifestly unfair. Clues are supplied, villainy circumvented and difficulties overcome with the help of clairvoyance, clairaudience and miracle. If you like that sort of thing this is decidedly your book. This reviewer, emphatically not one of the highly evolved elect, prefers a good brainy detective." J. S. Southron

MUNDY, TALBOT—Continued
N Y Times p20 F 25 '40 600w

"Mr. Talbot Mundy is not only an excellent story-teller but he manages, in most of his novels, to convey a great deal of interesting and unusual information."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p353 Jl 20 '40 180w

Wis Lib Bul 36:100 My '40

MUNK, FRANK. The economics of force. 254p $2 Stewart
330.1 Economics. Economic policy (W)

Dr Munk, an exiled Czech economist now teaching at Reed college, in Oregon, attempts "to define the economy of force and to discuss the situation of a democratic nation isolated in a sea of totalitarianism." (Publisher's note) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 37:212 Ja 15 '41

"The book is extremely significant for its insight and its perspective." J. B. Parrish + Churchman 155:18 F 1 '41 200w

"A book of permanent value." L. B. Bloch
+ Living Age 359:591 F '41 250w

"Munk covers too much ground in his short book to prove every point in detail, but he is restrained in statements of fact, and the documentation is convincing without being oppressive. His own personal experience as a Czech who did not escape from his country until after the German occupation of Prague adds conviction to his terrifying picture of German methods of preparing an invasion and then completely exploiting a conquered nation. . . The style is clear and straightforward; the author needs no literary apology either for writing in a foreign language or for being an economist. Some of the material will be familiar to most readers, but the cumulative effect is unique." C. E. Noyes
+ Nation 152:106 Ja 25 '41 600w

"Here is a book that all of our big-business appeasers ought to be compelled to read before they open their mouths again. . . What the Nazis have done to German economy has often been told, but seldom so lucidly as you will find it set down here." Elmer Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 23:7 D 28 '40 2300w

MURPHY, PRINCESS TULIP, pseud. See Faulkner, V.

MURRAY, ALFRED LEFURGY. Reaching the unchurched. 150p $1.50 Round table
253 Evangelistic work 40-31203

"This is a book on ways and means for dealing constructively with the most difficult task facing the Christian congregation, that of discovering, developing and making effective use of a trained group of laymen, women and young people in the year-round evangelistic program of the Church." Publisher's note

Christian Century 57:1115 S 11 '40 40w

"This is good and timely reading for pastors and laymen and a very excellent textbook on personal evangelism. . . This is not a book about the mechanics of campaigns nor about sensational methods but strictly about the ways any and all church members may, can and should be winning others to Christ." Albert Leonard Murray
+ Churchman 154:19 N 15 '40 160w

MURRAY, AMY. November hereabout; with a pref. by Maxwell Anderson. 93p $2 Holt 811 40-11370

Poems by a woman, now over seventy, who in her younger days sang the ballads which she brought back from the Scots Gaelic island of Eriskay, accompanying herself on a clairschach, or Highland harp. The poems are simple and quiet, infused with a love for nature and humble people.

"This is a sheaf of verse that could ill be spared; and in fact it is the sort of thing one feels had to be, and could not have remained unwritten. Miss Murray's technical skill is consummate and quietly asserted especially in the devising of quite original variations of standard verse-technique." Shaemas O'Sheel
+ Books p17 Ag 25 '40 650w

"A book of pungent, wise, warm poems. . . These few pieces are as good as anything Robert Frost has done, or Amy Lowell, and are briefer and on the whole more humorous." John Holmes
+ Boston Transcript p11 S 3 '40 220w

"Refreshing—even scintillating at times—are these unusual verses by a septuagenarian."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e S 22 '40 320w

MURRAY, DAVID LESLIE. Tale of three cities; a novel in baroque. 725p $3 Knopf [10s 6d Hodder] 40-14082

Historical tale of Rome, London, and Paris in the years from 1858 to 1871.

Booklist 37:36 O 1 '40

"Our star-crossed lovers are not only not quite real even in the baroque, they are not even symbols or, in the strict sense, protagonists. But it is a big book of very many parts, and many of the parts are first rate tales of the best order of historical romantic fiction. Mr. Murray is a devotee of the Second Empire and his pictures and portraits are to be respected." F. T. Marsh
+ — Books p6 Ag 4 '40 700w

"Here is a modern English novel overflowing with zest, gusto, and, what is more, with genuine literary merit." G. K. Smart
+ Boston Transcript p2 Ag 17 '40 600w

"There is not a corner of Mr. Murray's huge stage that is not competently directed: the historical characters play their part in, and out, of history with equal conviction, his own people are alive and satisfying, and the background in the three cities, in the Roman monastery, in the mean streets of London, in the Tuileries, or on the battlefield, is a fine job of scene-painting. Moreover he is a past master in the art of story-telling, and carries one through his 600-odd pages at exhilarating speed." Eric Forbes-Boyd
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Jl 13 '40 550w

"The book has a Catholic atmosphere of the type that an Anglican Englishman might consider authentic—the Catholic Church is a highly colored, grand opera version of the Church of England. The book is theatrical and improbable, but it has suspense, color, technique, good writing. In spite of the latter qualities, it manages to be completely, almost triumphantly, third rate. But it would be a really good buy at a dime." W. J. Grace
— + Commonweal 32:492 O 4 '40 460w

"A thoroughly good romantic novel on a basis of historical knowledge." Charles Marriott
+ Manchester Guardian p7 Je 7 '40 310w

"For all its seeming leisureliness, due to a prose that, though well-nigh as close-packed as poetry—is as easy as colloquial speech, the pace of the narrative is actually terrific; particularly in the war scenes, where Mr. Murray is at his best. You will search many a volume and study many a map before you will have clearly before you as startlingly realistic a picture of the muddlements and lack of coordinate preparation that lost France the campaign before it was begun." J. S. Southron
+ N Y Times p7 Ag 4 '40 1100w

New Yorker 16:61 Ag 10 '40 70w

"When you put the book down, you know that you have been introduced to a world which, if it had ever existed, would have been extremely interesting; and which is just enough like a world that actually did exist to make you feel that you have not wasted your time." George Dangerfield

Sat R of Lit 22:10 Ag 17 '40 600w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 4 '40 900w

"The Dickensian characters in London are just a few shades more painful than the worst of Dickens; the court and military sequences in Paris suggest an expensive and uninspired Hollywood production of War and Peace. When all is said & done the author overestimates the dignity of his romance by giving it an unsatisfactory ending."

— Time 36:68 Ag 5 '40 270w

"'A novel in baroque' Mr. Murray calls this new historical romance, and the description is just and illuminating. Spectacular, passionately exuberant, quickened by a feeling for history that gathers the romance of individual lives into a boldly stylized pattern, this is a work of fine and flowing accomplishment. The romantic in Mr. Murray is irrepressible, but the meditative historian in him never yields ground."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p265 Je 1 '40 800w

Reviewed by Robert Littell

Yale R n s 30:xii autumn '40 30w

MURRAY, GILBERT. Aeschylus, the creator of tragedy. 253p $3 (7s 6d) Oxford

882.1 Aeschylus

"[This] is a survey of all the great dramatist's works. Professor Murray discusses the contribution Aeschylus has made to Greek tragedy, and what he, as the first important tragic poet, did to extend its meaning and scope. All the plays are studiously analyzed: and in these analyses Professor Murray investigates the parts history and mythology have played in their creation." N Y Times

Booklist 36:427 Jl 15 '40

Cath World 152:625 F '41 650w

Christian Science Monitor p10 Jl 13 '40 490w

Reviewed by T. B. L. Webster

Manchester Guardian p3 Mr 5 '40 600w

Nation 151:178 Ag 31 '40 100w

Reviewed by David Grene

New Repub 103:359 S 9 '40 750w

"Very few living scholars are as qualified as is Gilbert Murray to discuss and explore the literary and dramaturgic values of these great Greek plays. He has devoted a lifetime to the translation and inquiry of these ancient classics. There have been numerous books on the Greeks, many of which were written by men equally as renowned as Professor Murray. But what distinguishes his interpretations in the main is a note of enthusiasm and a genuine urge to learn anew the many secrets and delights which come from repeated readings and study. He has the tenaciousness of an archaeologist combined with the humility of a scholar." William Kozlenko

+ N Y Times p2 Je 9 '40 750w

"It is virtually impossible for Gilbert Murray to write a bad book. . . The Germans hardly ever write a scholarly book without dismissing a few rival authors, weeping and bruised from some professorial birching. . . You never find that in Gilbert Murray, although the rue-laden Housman is full of it; and Murray's influence on literature and scholarship has been far wider than Housman's. What you do find is an intense and subtle appreciation of poetry, a deep respect for the author he is writing about, and an earnest wish to understand him while doing him as little violence as possible." Gilbert Highet

+ Sat R of Lit 22:19 Je 29 '40 600w

"The book is written with Professor Murray's characteristic trenchancy and frankness, and with a sincere modesty which, some may think, should disarm criticism. Of references to other scholarship it is admittedly almost devoid. It has too many repetitions and some padding. But, apart even from a few novelties of detail, students, at least, will be very glad to have a synthesis revised to date, of Professor Murray's views on the creator of Tragedy; while as for the general public, among the tens of thousands who demonstrably buy his verse translations of Greek plays, there may well be some prepared to skim these detailed expositions of dramatic and moral significances and to skip the discussions of fragments." A. Y. Campbell

+ — Spec 164:534 Ap 12 '40 700w

"We will never come to the end of writing about the plays of Aeschylus and, as long as Gilbert Murray writes, we shall not come to the end of reading him with interest and enlightenment." Frederick Morton

+ Theatre Arts 24:833 N '40 470w

Times [London] Lit Sup p348 Jl 20 '40 430w

MUSTE, ABRAHAM JOHN. Non-violence in an aggressive world. 211p $2 Harper

172.4 Peace. War and religion. Evil, Non-resistance to (W) 40-27406

Presentation of the thesis that pacifism is a logical and ethical means of combatting aggression and war. The author, who is pastor of the Labor temple in New York city and who gave up his pulpit during the World war rather than "present arms," contends that "religion, social progress, democracy, depend for survival and triumph upon the adoption of a thorogoing, deeply motivated, positive, realistic pacifism." Selected bibliography. Index.

Booklist 36:337 My 1 '40

"'Non-Violence in an Aggressive World' is sane, sober, quiet in tone, clear in argument. It is written with little eloquence and has few memorable passages. But it springs from deep conviction and an almost agonizing concern for stricken mankind. The author's closing plea is to the Church, to which he has now returned—that it lead a 'revolution of peace' as the condition of achieving 'a dynamic, beautiful and noble social order.'" J. H. Holmes

+ Books p15 Je 16 '40 400w

Reviewed by A. B. Hulen

Christian Century 57:447 Ap 3 '40 850w

Reviewed by Gordon Poteat

Crozer Q 17:302 O '40 260w

"To those who are repelled by traditional Christian symbolism, the book will seem to put too much emphasis on mystical values. But it is hardheaded enough to arouse and test anybody's direction and ideals—and to those already convinced it is encouraging affirmation." R. N. Baldwin

+ — Survey G 29:410 Jl '40 440w

Wis Lib Bul 36:123 Jl '40

MY name is million. 268p $2.50 Macmillan [8s 6d Faber]

940.5481438 European war, 1939—Poland. European war, 1939—Personal narratives (W) 40-34057

Account of the experiences of an English writer and her husband, a Polish nobleman, during their escape from Warsaw in September. They reached Lithuania, but were captured by Germans on their way to England, and were handed over to the Gestapo. The author finally reached England; her husband she has not seen since.

Booklist 37:172 Ja 1 '41

"The author of 'My Name Is Million' would probably not have written this book now in the midst of exhaustion had she not hoped to make people understand what has happened in Poland, but the book is more than propaganda for demolished dauntless Poles. She is voicing the impotent grief and humiliation of all the refugees in the world. Let us hope that she is heard, not only by those who know

MY name is million—Continued
the new race of the homeless, but also by those who close their minds to the peril at our door." Princess Paul Sapieha
+ Books p4 O 27 '40 950w

"[The author writes] with trained skill and with a poise that makes the depth of her feeling the more impressive. . . This should go into the permanent record as part of the history of the war of 1939."
+ Christian Century 57:1282 O 16 '40 70w

"Although it is a very sad story that the author has to tell, it is exalted by a mood of unconquerable resolution. It has always been Poland's destiny to suffer; it has never been her disposition to submit. In this book a brave people, in one of its greatest tragedies, has found a worthy chronicler." W. H. C.
+ Christian Science Monitor p12 N 23 '40 490w

"I express my warmest thanks to the author of My Name is Million for what she has done to make my country known to non-Polish readers. I hope her book will find a place in many a library and on many a living room table." Countess de Chlapowska
+ Current Hist & Forum 52:1 D 10 '40 550w

"Written anonymously, with stark simplicity and little detail, it is an amazingly vivid description of the privations and sufferings of themselves and other refugees. Much that the author could neither find courage nor physical strength to tell after the loss of her husband and her own escape to London is summed up in the few lines of the Postscript. Throughout, the story is impregnated with admiration for the bravery and spirit of the Polish people." Jacqueline Overton
+ Library J 65:807 O 1 '40 90w

"Begun as the diary of a civilian nobody caught in Warsaw by the outbreak of war a year ago . . . these experiences of an Englishwoman in Poland . . . become transformed by the author's artless art into a most poignant and vivid narrative." W. H. C.
+ Manchester Guardian p7 S 10 '40 230w

"Lack of detachment implies no corresponding lack of clarity. In its somewhat disconnected and episodic manner, My Name is Million is an unusually well-written book. Not overloaded with detail or burdened with comment, it should succeed in conveying, even to the least imaginative English reader, the horror of a life from which all the props of civilised living have been pulled away." Peter Quennell
+ New Statesman & Nation 20:314 S 28 '40 1550w

"The last date is Dec. 8 [1939], and as the months have ticked out their content of dreadful defeat for one nation after another the obliteration of Poland has already become almost a shadowy memory in our minds. All the more reason, then, for reading a book which is so vivid and deeply moving, earnest and sincere, and which is so fittingly—and therefore nobly and beautifully—written. Readers of Princess Paul Sapieha's excellent 'Polish Profile,' too, may have their picture rounded out by this different, but certainly equally excellent book." K. W.
+ N Y Times p5 N 17 '40 700w

"'My Name is Million' is absorbing required reading for everyone. It is not pleasant reading, but neither is the world pleasant today." F. G. Wells
+ Sat R of Lit 23:13 D 28 '40 750w

"The narrative describing these experiences is highly emotional, and is at times badly told; it has in it the broken rhythm of grief. It is hardly to be expected that it could be otherwise, for its individual and largely inarticulate tragedy is that of thousands between the Vistula and the Seine, the Danube and the Fjords of Norway. It is hardly possible to judge such narratives, written in a confusion of despair, bewilderment and sorrow, as literature; they are testaments of suffering which disarm criticism."
+ Spec 165:372 O 11 '40 240w

Springf'd Republican p12 Ja 1 '41 800w

"Of the many books on Poland that have appeared in the last two years, and especially since last September, this is the best. The reasons for its excellence are twofold and simple; the author knows Poland not only in her head but in her heart. She is, moreover, a writer of first-class English prose."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p466 S 14 '40 650w

MYERS, GEORGE EDMUND; LITTLE, GLADYS M., and ROBINSON, SARAH A. Planning your future; an occupational civics text. rev ed 549p il maps $1.64 McGraw

371.425 Profession, Choice of. Occupations (W) 40-5308

Occupational information for young people, intended to help them to understand how the work of the world is done. The book is divided into four main parts: The world of occupations; Occupations in your community; Facts every worker should know; Finding your place. Bibliography. Index.

"The book presents valuable charts, illustrations of actual types of work performed, maps, and a detailed bibliography. The illustrations are particularly good." J. F. Murphy
+ Social Educ 4:594 D '40 600w

Reviewed by Mary Bowles
Social Studies 31:332 N '40 110w

MYERS, JEROME. Artist in Manhattan. 263p il $3.75 Am. artists group, inc, 106 7th av, N.Y.

B or 92 Artists—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 40-7047

"This is the third volume in a series which began with John Sloan's 'Gist of Art' and continued with the life of Eilshemius, 'And He Sat among the Ashes.' Like the first two, it contains a one-hundred-page biography followed by one hundred reproductions of the artist's works, each accompanied by a descriptive note in which the painter recaptures the mood which prompted it, or merely describes in words what his brush has already characterized." Sat R of Lit

Booklist 36:344 My 1 '40

"In 'Artist in Manhattan' Jerome Myers proves that he can make words repeat the richness of his painted record. I have rarely seen pictures and text work together in such complete harmony. It is an admirable book." G. P. Du Bois
+ Books p7 Mr 31 '40 1200w

Reviewed by Lewis Gannett
Boston Transcript p11 Ap 23 '40 120w

"The restraint which the artist exercises in speaking of the hardships of his early years, the mellow humor and wisdom with which he comments on art and artists, most of all his complete lack of pretentiousness, make the book very pleasant, if not very important, reading." Pamela Taylor
+ Boston Transcript p2 My 11 '40 170w

"The book is pleasant, unthrilling reading, best for its opinions on painters Myers knew: Hassam, Kent and so on." J. W. Lane
+ Commonweal 31:556 Ap 19 '40 120w
New Repub 102:552 Ap 22 '40 50w
New Yorker 16:92 Ap 6 '40 30w
Sat R of Lit 21:31 Ap 6 '40 370w

MYERS, LEOPOLD HAMILTON. The pool of Vishnu. 412p $2.75 Harcourt [9s 6d Cape, J] 40-30181

A sequel to the author's tale of sixteenth-century India, The Root and the Flower (Book Review Digest, 1935).

Booklist 37:175 Ja 1 '41

"'The Pool of Vishnu' will be read not for plot, but for its exploration of human values through the person of the Guru. For this, for the lovely flow of its language, for its mood, this book is a warm experience." Rose Feld
+ Books p8 S 15 '40 1150w

"Words are inadequate to suggest the overtones of this rare novel, in many ways the counterpart of Santayana's 'The Last Puritan.' Written in choice English, it should grip all who love beauty and seek truth." E. B. Gulick
+ Boston Transcript p2 Ag 24 '40 350w

"This is modern fiction on its highest level."
+ Christian Century 57:1084 S 4 '40 90w

Reviewed by W. P. Sears, Jr.
Churchman 154:20 S 1 '40 60w

Reviewed by O. B. White
Commonweal 32:412 S 6 '40 440w

"Mr. Myers's polished prose, with its almost Biblical serenity, underlines the book's remoteness from our bomb-scented atmosphere."
+ Nation 151:158 Ag 24 '40 50w

"The Pool of Vishnu is a perfectly poised and finely polished piece of writing that would stand, if necessary, on its stylistic merits alone." John Mair
+ New Statesman & Nation 20:66 Jl 20 '40 850w

"A philosophy so simple and a psychology so subtle are seldom combined so attractively and credibly as in this novel of ideas—ideas (if that is the right word: feelings, intuitions, speculations, convictions, spiritual experiences are interwoven) that are more important today than at the time when the author imagined his wise man to have uttered them." P. M. Jack
+ N Y Times p6 Ag 25 '40 1350w

"Don't read 'The Pool of Vishnu' if you have anything pressing on hand. Not much happens in it except thought, and perhaps there is a shade too much of that." Clifton Fadiman
New Yorker 16:60 Ag 17 '40 230w

"When I was about half-way through 'The Pool of Vishnu' I said to myself, I believe there has been no such adult novelist since Tolstoy. Mr. Myers is not Tolstoy's equal. . . But his grasp of modern problems, personal and political, his insight into character, his delicate sense of the values of life, his tolerant justice (quite free from sloppy indulgence to stupidity or wickedness) are, I think, so remarkable that he can be named with the greatest of those who have chosen to express their ideas in fiction. . . I suggest that the Guru, in his modesty, in his hold on his beliefs, his humor, and his kindness might well be the spiritual child of Saint Theresa and St. Philip Neri. He alone, and his dealings with all kinds of people from Akbar to the starving peasants, would make 'The Pool of Vishnu' a great and memorable book." R. E. Roberts
+ Sat R of Lit 22:7 Ag 24 '40 1450w

Reviewed by Kate O'Brien
Spec 165:20 Jl 5 '40 750w

"At the heart of the story is the reluctant acceptance of ultimate mystery. For a novelist, or for that matter for anybody else, there is no intelligible alternative to the act of acceptance, and it may well seem at times that Mr. Myers beats the air in vain gestures in attempting to rend the veil. His intellectual prepossessions on the subject, however, evidently spring from the depths of his nature, and are given balanced and indeed fastidious form. Whether in the result the religious thought that he anatomizes flows from any specifically Indian tradition is open to question."
Times [London] Lit Sup p325 Jl 6 '40 700w

Reviewed by Robert Littell
Yale R n s 30:xii autumn '40 40w

MYERS, MARGARET GOOD. Monetary proposals for social reform. 191p il $2.25 Columbia univ. press [15s 6d Oxford]

332.4 Money. Currency question 40-10998

This volume is published in celebration of the seventy-fifth anniversary of Vassar College and in honor of President MacCracken. The writings of three men—Gesell, Soddy, and Douglas—on the social reform of monetary means are examined, explained, and criticized. Contents: Silvio Gesell and the proposal for stamped money; Frederick Soddy and the 100-percent reserve plan; Clifford Hugh Douglas and social credit; The actual experience; The limitations of monetary management. Bibliography. Index.

"A final chapter on 'The limitations of monetary management' is a fitting conclusion to this excellent piece of work. Although, naturally, it is not on the cards to analyze monetary theory in seventeen pages, Dr. Myers has presented the problem in brief space as well, in the opinion of the reviewer, as it could be done." F. A. Bradford
+ Am Econ R 30:894 D '40 250w

Reviewed by R. A. Lester
Ann Am Acad 213:228 Ja '41 400w

Reviewed by E. C. Skinner
Commonweal 33:329 Ja 17 '41 2100w

Reviewed by P. M. Sweezy
Nation 152:103 Ja 25 '41 650w

MYERS, ROLLO H. Music in the modern world. 210p $2 Longmans [6s Arnold, E. & co]

780.4 Music 40-27107

Essays on the meaning of music, its place in the world, and what the creative musician contributes to modern civilization. Index.

Booklist 36:234 F 15 '40

"Mr. Myers must like modern music because this is the second book he has written about it, but he fails to communicate his enthusiasm. It is all very worthy, but also very dull. . . Mr. Myers goes sedately along the familiar paths repeating for the most part things which have been more effectively said by others." Douglas Moore
— + Books p16 F 11 '40 500w

"If the book does not quite hang together—some of it is reprinted journalism—it is nevertheless a lively, knowledgeable and stimulating introduction for the intelligent music lover to questions which musicians themselves are too often content to ignore."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p615 O 21 '39 300w

MYERS, WILLIAM STARR. The foreign policies of Herbert Hoover, 1929-1933. 259p $2.50 Scribner

327.73 U.S.—Foreign relations. Hoover, Herbert Clark 40-9670

Outline of the foreign policies of the United States in the late 1920s and early 1930s, during the presidency of Herbert Hoover The author has based his work, to some extent, on Mr Hoover's private papers. Index.

"Whether one shares his belief or not, the author is sincere and makes his point very well. In any case, the book is recommended to all students of foreign affairs—and just now that seems to include nearly everybody." F. O. Wilcox
+ Am Pol Sci R 34:787 Ag '40 700w
New Repub 103:38 Jl 1 '40 50w

"Prof Myers's book is a useful contribution to historical study as well as a eulogy of President Hoover's sincere efforts to improve world relations. Its conclusion seems more partisan than informative, however."
+ — Springf'd Republican p8 Jl 9 '40 480w

MYRDAL, GUNNAR. Population: a problem for democracy. 237p $2 Harvard univ. press [8s 6d Oxford]

312 Population 40-7943

"This brief book, based on the Godkin lectures at Harvard in 1938, flashes light upon many questions now coming to the fore in the

MYRDAL, GUNNAR—Continued
United States—youth, old age, housing, savings, and capital investments, to mention only a few. It gives new slants on radical and conservative thought trends in a democracy." Survey G

Reviewed by Conrad Taeuber
Am Soc R 5:983 D '40 120w

Reviewed by J. O. Hertzler
Ann Am Acad 213:212 Ja '41 700w

Reviewed by J. D. Norton
New Repub 102:677 My 20 '40 750w

Springf'd Republican p8 Jl 4 '40 360w

"Professor Myrdal's book is recommended as giving an excellent theoretical background to any student of this most dynamic force in American social history today." R. D. Smith
+ Survey G 29:518 O '40 500w

N

NAFZIGER, RALPH O., comp. International news and the press; communications, organizations of news-gathering, international affairs and the foreign press; an annotated bibliography. 193p $3.75 Wilson, H.W.

016.07 Press—Bibliography. Journalism—Bibliography (W) 40-14532

"This volume is an attempt to bring together and to classify titles of documents, books, pamphlets, magazine articles, and studies dealing with the subject of international news communications and the foreign press. A mimeographed edition . . . was issued in the summer of 1937 by the Burgess Publishing Company of Minneapolis [Book Review Digest, 1938]. With the assistance of the University of Minnesota and the Works Projects Administration, this new volume is made possible. All of the entries in the original bibliography have been rechecked, the material has been brought up to date, and annotations have been added. . . Titles were restricted to those which can be obtained in American libraries." Pref.

Booklist 37:72 O 15 '40

"A fine and scholarly contribution to the literature on journalism."
+ Boston Transcript p1 Ag 3 '40 70w

"Professor Nafziger's bibliography is well organized and the annotations are crisply done. As a research aid in a timely field it should prove valuable. . . Some citations, particularly those from trade papers, seem border line on grounds of lack of objectivity natural in spot-news reports. Further, the field of news with which the volume is concerned occasionally is confused with extraneous subjects. But, generally, the volume holds adequately to its announced point." H. E. Shubart
+ — Library Q 10:608 O '40 180w

Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 7 '40 260w

NAKASHIAN, AVEDIS. A man who found a country. 279p il $2.75 Crowell

B or 92 (W) 40-7723

The author is an Armenian Christian doctor, born in Turkey, where he lived for fifty years. He describes his experiences while getting an education, his medical practice, his work as a surgeon in the Turkish army during the late war, and his coming to America in 1924.

Reviewed by A. O. Sarkissian
Am Hist R 46:455 Ja '41 90w

Booklist 36:382 Je 1 '40

Christian Century 57:483 Ap 10 '40 50w

New Repub 102:769 Je 3 '40 60w

"This autobiography is interesting in its facts and admirable in their presentation—the essentially human story of a life that had room for laughter even as it had to draw upon courage and meet change. It is a story which is full of contrast and marked by candor and sympathy and a realization of the complexity of existence. And it has historic value."
+ N Y Times p6 Ap 14 '40 500w

"Fascinating stuff."
+ New Yorker 16:91 Ap 6 '40 30w

"Dr. Nakashian does not lack for that sly, waspish sense of humour which is also Saroyan's. It seems to be a national gift. The commonplace is presented with such naiveté and disarming candor that a special flavor is immediately given to the whole. The serious often verges on the ludicrous, and tragedy is never too remote from comedy. . . 'A Man Who Found a Country' is simply, eloquently written for the most part, almost in the manner of discourse." Louis Adamic
+ Sat R of Lit 22:12 My 4 '40 850w

Springf'd Republican p7e Je 16 '40 850w

Wis Lib Bul 36:98 My '40

NALL, MRS FRANCES (MAHAFFIE). When are we patriotic? 175p $1 Meth. bk.

268.62 Religious education. Patriotism 40-8921

Teachers' manual for weekday religious education for grades seven and eight. It contains two units, When Are We Patriotic, and Peace Victories, bibliographical references for source materials, stories and short plays, and suggestions for teaching procedures.

"Good material well organized for teaching."
+ Christian Century 57:483 Ap 10 '40 30w

"It would afford excellent suggestive material for groups in church school, young people's society, or vacation schools, if not used for the weekday purposes. . . The book is a good practical handbook, definitely religious in attitudes and stimulating for class participation." E. J. Chave
+ J Religion 20:418 O '40 110w

NASH, OGDEN. The face is familiar. 352p $2.75 Little

811 (W) 40-35057

This volume contains two hundred and eighty poems, eighty-one from I'm a Stranger Here Myself (Book Review Digest, 1938) others from earlier volumes, and thirty-one never before published in book form.

"The face is familiar is a large selection of Nash's best verse. It is guaranteed, high-test, pure American humor."
Atlantic Ja '41 200w

Booklist 37:150 D 15 '40

"When preposterous, which always brings up the image of a pompous gentleman, is put in the pen with the animal rhinoceros by a most undignified forced rhyme, both look pretty preposterous. Most preposterous of all, though, is to theorize about humor, and especially about Nash's humor. It is thoroughly American, like Charlie McCarthy's naïve lawlessness and Donald Duck's enraged inarticulation, and like them, it does not need to be explained to its large audience. The most appropriate thing to say on the appearance of these 250 gems of Nashiana is loud and fervent thanks that he, like Walt Disney, has been with us during the last ten years to keep our ears used to the sound of laughter." Thomas Sugrue
+ Books p2 N 24 '40 750w

"Nash is witty, satirical, nonsensical, and always good reading." John Holmes
+ Boston Transcript p9 N 4 '40 90w

Reviewed by John Ritchey
+ Christian Science Monitor p12 N 30 '40 450w

"This turns out to be a substantial volume of the dizziest rhythms and rhymes of the day, abundant with lyrical wisdom and insight."
+ New Yorker 16:103 N 16 '40 30w

NASON, JERRY. Famous American athletes of today; seventh series. See Famous American athletes of today

NATHAN, GEORGE JEAN. Encyclopædia of the theatre. 449p $3 Knopf

792 Theater. Drama (W) 40-27010

Not an encyclopedia but a collection of short pieces on a wide variety of subjects connected with the theater—opinions about current plays, playwrights, actors, and critics, arranged alphabetically by title.

Booklist 36:196 Ja 15 '40

"His style, as always, is at times annoyingly flippant or excessive; but, as always, his ideas are stimulating, his judgments sound, his standards high, and his enthusiasm for the playhouse unabated after all these years of theatergoing." W. P. Eaton

+ Books p15 Ja 14 '40 80w

Cleveland Open Shelf p3 Ja '40

"At this late date there is no point in describing either Mr. Nathan's attitude or his style, both of which are as well known as those of any writer on our theater are ever likely to be. He lays about him with all his accustomed vigor, but the secret of his individuality is simply that, for all his cynicism, he has an abiding respect for the theater and that, for all his 'sophistication,' his deepest liking is for the most substantial things which the theater has to offer. . . No one is less often taken in, but no one is less likely to respond to the genuine with conventional flippancy." J. W. Krutch

+ Nation 150:53 Ja 13 '40 200w

"He is at his best in touching on paradoxes in production, back-stage anecdotes and related theatre topics. He is at worst in his extraneous wanderings far afield. Another shortcoming is in his repetitiousness, created circumfusion, which is in turn created by a too breezy style, by top-speed thinking and—garrulousness." Benson Inge

N Y Times p6 Ja 28 '40 700w

"Good, standard Nathan—periphrastic, sentimental, and thoroughly readable."

+ New Yorker 15:63 Ja 6 '40 30w

"His latest book abounds in personal and provocative vivacity. But it still leaves the reader wondering just why Mr Nathan should choose a style so explosive and meretricious. . . The trouble is that, while Mr Nathan usually has something to say, he too often falls back into the self-assumed role of humorist or satirist. And it would be salutary if he would only subject his own writing to the same critical scrutiny with which he views the work of playwrights and the efforts of actors."

— + Springf'd Republican p8 Ja 23 '40 550w

Reviewed by Morton Eustis

Theatre Arts 24:299 Ap '40 140w

NATHAN, ROBERT. Portrait of Jennie. 212p $2 Knopf

(W) 40-27011

A gentle fantasy about a poor young artist, and the girl Jennie, who came into his life at a time when he was forlornly poor and lonely and his art was at a standstill. From the day when she first appeared as a little girl in old-fashioned clothes, playing in Central Park in the dusk of a winter's day, Jennie only came to him five times, but her influence lasted thruout his life. Thru her inspiration the artist became famous, but all the rest of his life he mourned his Jennie, who tho lost to him, was yet ever present.

Atlantic Mr '40 100w

Booklist 36:198 Ja 15 '40

Bookmark p13 My '40

"I do not know what Mr. Nathan means to convey—if anything. But I do know that the vehicle for his ideas keeps that delicate balance of graceful prose on the very margin of poetry which is his special quality. . . I myself like Mr. Nathan in a sturdier vein; especially do I like him when he grows satirical, as in his recent brilliant tour de force of a lap dog's day of rebellion, 'Journey of Tapiola.' But this guilelessly charming little novelette, 'Portrait of Jennie,' is certain to give pleasure to Nathan fans." F. H. Bullock

+ Books p3 Ja 7 '40 600w

"The book is rather weaker in that fantastic satire of which Mr. Nathan is a master, and the appeal to the feeling heart is rather stronger in this volume than in some of the earlier ones. As always, the writing is impeccable. Few there are who can rival Mr. Nathan in—to revive an old but useful critical term—elegance." H. M. J.

+ Boston Transcript p2 Ja 13 '40 230w

Cath World 150:765 Mr '40 80w

"Faith in immortality may be read into this brief and tender tale, from which delicate economy of phrasing has not excluded some jest and jollity and some gibes at contemporary art. Perhaps it is better to enjoy it than to try to worry out every jot and tittle of its significance." W. K. R.

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Ja 20 '40 460w

Cleveland Open Shelf p4 Ja '40

Reviewed by Anthony West

New Statesman & Nation 19:212 F 17 '40 260w

" 'Portrait of Jennie' will perhaps most vividly recall Balderston's 'Berkeley Square,' for, like that, it is a love story which transcends the boundaries of time. It is told with tenderness and with beauty. Its mood lingers in the heart and its planes challenge the mind. Mr. Nathan's portraiture is both delicate and profound, and this is true not alone of Jennie and Eben, but of the other characters who people this deeply moving tale." Rose Feld

+ N Y Times p7 Ja 7 '40 700w

"I don't as a rule go for Mr. Nathan's Debussyan delicacies, finding them too light for my coarse stomach. 'Portrait of Jennie,' however, seems exceptional. The pleasure it gives is mild but satisfying. It tells a touching tale, and tells it well, which is rather more than you can say of nearly all the 800-page historical novels that have come lumbering down the pike of late. . . I could do without his whimsically tough cabby, but this seems to me the only 'literary' note in 'Portrait of Jennie.' A small thing and a pure one." Clifton Fadiman

+ New Yorker 15:70 Ja 20 '40 370w

"I doubt if anyone writing today could have told Mr. Nathan's story with greater tenderness or with quite the blend of humor and imagination which the book has on every page and which might serve almost as Mr. Nathan's signature. One could point out that he is no more successful than most novelists at suggesting the nature of a painter's mind, but it is an unimportant failure in this case." William Maxwell

+ Sat R of Lit 21:5 Ja 6 '40 460w

"One always feels after reading a book by Robert Nathan that he has been given a delicate, lovely miniature, with soft colors, beauty of texture and all sharp outlines softened. So it is with 'Portrait of Jennie.' "

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 14 '40 320w

Time 35:68 Ja 15 '40 70w

Times [London] Lit Sup p85 F 17 '40 330w

Wis Lib Bul 36:49 Mr '40

Reviewed by Robert Littell

Yale R n s 29:x spring '40 200w

NATHAN, ROBERT. A winter tide; sonnets and poems. 54p $2 Knopf

811 (W) 40-27658

Collection of poems, some of which have been previously published in periodicals. Two groups of sonnets, and a longer section of poems, with the title The Root and the Flower comprise the book. "In his own way, with his own voice,

NATHAN, ROBERT—Continued
often in the outworn, conventional, exploded and deathless form of the sonnet, he has written of what is happening to man, of the winter tide that is rising about his heart, of the freedom he should have and of the injustice he suffers—and so written that he has made poetry out of this darkness." (Books)

"There are no surprises in these poems, in either subject or treatment. In quality they are a long way behind Mr. Nathan's prose work. But his feeling is sincere and his irony unforced; his choice of words is precise and sensitive, and his melodies pleasing."

+ Atlantic N '40 110w

Booklist 37:32 O 1 '40

"Robert Nathan's poetry has always had grace and music, clarity of form and distinction of manner. 'A Winter Tide' goes much farther. These poems come like water from a bitter rock—bitter water, too, for they come from the anguish and desolation of the past few years—but, with the bitterness, there is richness as well. Perhaps as hard a task as any the poet has is to write from immediate emotion and yet write well." S. V. Benét

+ Books p7 O 13 '40 390w

"Delicate and fantastical as he has been in his stories, in his poems Mr. Nathan speaks out boldly, in language as fine and elevated as any we read or hear, about the persecutions and tragedies of this mid-century." John Holmes

+ Boston Transcript p11 O 14 '40 600w

" 'A Winter Tide' contains the kind of poetry that I said the other week had not yet appeared at this time of crisis. This it is, though it is not the only form that such poetry might take. It is not Shelley's: 'I met murder on the way,' nor Whitman's 'Liberty is to be subserved whatever occurs.' But it is among the finest, the most sensitive, and the most beautiful poetry that has appeared since the 'world revolution' began. It is the new poetry of affirmation." John Ritchey

+ Christian Science Monitor p12 S 14 '40 500w

"Naïvely unhappy, these neo-philosophical, neo-political poems strike no depths."

— New Repub 103:534 O 14 '40 30w

"If it is legitimate to criticize the pitch of a man's work, I have a feeling that when read as a whole the book suffers a bit from too much restraint. There is intensity of emotion, yes, but it is tempered and controlled. Mr. Nathan is a craftsman, and as a craftsman has curbed the headlong rush of his feeling to a considered expression. Its impact on the reader is thereby weakened, at times. At its highest level, however, this restraint has both strength and dignity." S. H. Hay

+ — Sat R of Lit 23:22 D 7 '40 440w

"A deeply and genuinely moving book, either of prose or poetry, is an increasing rarity. 'A Winter Tide' is just this, and it should be both solace and challenge to many troubled people. It is a courageous thing to write down in black and white that the natural world is still incredibly beautiful and significant. It is even more brave to declare one's faith in God. Mr Nathan does both in as simple and direct a manner as a child." E. B.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e S 8 '40 550w

Reviewed by Louis Untermeyer

Yale R n s 30:383 winter '41 140w

NATIONAL AMERICAN WOMAN SUFFRAGE ASSOCIATION. Victory: how women won it; a centennial symposium, 1840-1940. 174p il $1.25 Wilson, H.W.

324.3 Woman suffrage. Woman—Rights of women (W) 40-35249

An account of the woman suffrage movement, written by women who have participated in it. Contents: Preliminary agitation, by M. F. Morrisson; First organized action, by M. G. Peck; Rampant women, by Mildred Adams; "That word male," by M. F. Morrisson; Wyoming: the first surrender, by C. C. Catt; Campaigning, state by state, by M. W. Park; The opposition breaks, by G. F. Brown; Appeals to Congress, by P. P. B. Huse; A decisive victory won, by G. F. Brown; The winning plan, by M. W. Park; The secretary has signed the proclamation, by M. G. Peck. An appendix contains statistics. Bibliography.

Booklist 37:264 F 15 '41

J Home Econ 33:115 F '41 60w

Springf'd Republican p7e N 10 '40 90w

NATIONAL BUREAU OF ECONOMIC RESEARCH, INCORPORATED. Financial research program. Personal finance companies and their credit practices, by Ralph A. Young and associates. 170p $2 The bureau

332.31 Loans. Instalment plan. Credit 40-5484

"This book presents a factual analysis of the small loan company and its significance in the field of consumer instalment financing. Such salient points are dealt with as: the volume of personal finance company credit; status of small loan legislation; the borrower: his income, occupation, use of funds; the company: its income, expenses, sources of funds; collection procedure and experience, etc. Much of the statistical material for this survey has been furnished directly by leading personal finance companies." (Publisher's note) Index.

Reviewed by C. O. Fisher

Am Econ R 30:639 S '40 800w

Reviewed by Rolf Nugent

Ann Am Acad 210:168 Jl '40 700w

NATIONAL COMMITTEE OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA ON INTERNATIONAL INTELLECTUAL COOPERATION. Concerning Latin American culture; papers read at Byrdcliffe, Woodstock, N.Y, Aug. 1939, and ed. by Charles C. Griffin. 234p $2 Columbia univ. press

918 Latin America—Civilization 40-8766

Contents: Cultural relations of the United States in the Western world, by B. M. Cherrington; The crossways of the Americas, by R. F. Pattee; Spain in the epoch of American colonization, by Fernando de los Rios; The action of Spain in America, by Fernando de los Rios; Some aspects of the social development of Portuguese America, by Gilberto Freyre; The significance of native Indian culture in Hispanic America, by C. C. Griffin; Mexico, European and native, by Nathaniel Weyl; Some considerations regarding contemporary Latin American music, by William Berrien; Brazilian art, by R. C. Smith; Spanish American literature and art, by C. R. James; Educational development in Latin America, by A. L. Hubertson.

"For those of us who realize how profoundly our future is linked to that of South America—and our names should be legion—this book is almost required reading. Even though the picture is not complete, as several of the countries are touched on only incidentally, the material is so suggestive and the handling so competent that it is as entertaining as it is instructive." Harriet De Onis

+ Books p14 S 8 '40 650w

"The treatment of Brazilian art is particularly timely and interesting in view of the exhibition of paintings, now being shown in the United States, by Portinari, the greatest and most influential of contemporary Brazilian artists. Politics, economics and social conditions are purposely avoided in this book. For the field that it covers, it is invaluable."

+ Christian Century 57:1383 N 6 '40 180w

"As one usually finds in books of this sort, the papers contained are of uneven merit. Probably the best are those on the Caribbean (Mr. Pattee) and on Brazil (Dr. Freyre and Dr. Robert Smith), while a special word of praise is due to Dr. Berrien's splendid treatment of contemporary Latin American music." Edwin Ryan

+ Commonweal 32:214 Je 28 '40 450w

"The volume, while very readable, will be most interesting to people who already have acquired a good background in Latin American history." L. F. Ullrick
+ Social Educ 4:589 D '40 750w

NATIONAL COUNCIL OF TEACHERS OF ENGLISH. Conducting experiences in English, by Angela M. Broening [and others]. 394p $2.25 (10s 6d) Appleton-Century

808 English language—Study and teaching 39-32971

"A report of a committee of the National council of teachers of English, based on the contributions of 274 coöperating teachers of English." (Subtitle) The book shows what can be done in the classroom towards teaching English and its use. Bibliography on the teaching of English, annotated lists of periodicals for teachers and pupils, and index.

Booklist 36:258 Mr 1 '40

" 'Conducting Experiences in English' is unique in that it was written by classroom teachers for classroom teachers. The educational profession owes a vote of thanks to Dr. Broening and her committee for gathering and orienting through consistent reference to the experience philosophy this stimulating handbook for the teacher and supervisor of English." D. V. Smith + School & Society 51:523 Ap 20 '40 700w

NATIONAL COUNCIL OF TEACHERS OF ENGLISH. Committee on international relations. Educating for peace; [ed. by] Ida T. Jacobs and John J. DeBoer. 275p pa $1.50 Appleton-Century

172.4 Peace 40-12996

"A report of the Committee on international relations of the National council of teachers of English." About forty writers have contributed to the volume which consists of essays against war, projects for pageants, radio plays, international parties, etc. Bibliographies. Index.

Booklist 37:29 O 1 '40

Boston Transcript p8 Ag 31 '40 100w

"The material is well organized for study and teaching."
+ Christian Century 57:879 Jl 10 '40 90w

Reviewed by A. N. Baker
Survey 76:342 N '40 360w

NATIONAL EDUCATION ASSOCIATION OF THE UNITED STATES. Educational policies commission. Education and economic well-being in American democracy [written by John K. Norton; il. by Lynd Ward]. 227p 50c Nat. educ.

370.973 Education—U.S. U.S.—Economic conditions. Education—Aims and objectives. Sociology 40-27451

This report argues the necessity for "effectively free education" for all if America is to be fully prosperous. Index.

Booklist 36:360 My 15 '40

Christian Century 57:515 Ap 17 '40 30w

Sat R of Lit 22:22 Ag 3 '40 320w

NEAL, ROBERT MILLER. News gathering and news writing. 577p $2.75 Prentice-Hall

070.4 Reporters and reporting. Journalism. Newspapers (W) 40-31990

"This book has a highly particularized slant and two equally well-defined procedures. The slant is that of viewing news gathering and news writing as related directly, even exclusively, to the young reporter freshly started upon his first job. . . The first procedure is to present news writing as a problem in interesting readers and to show how stories can be made so inviting that they will be read eagerly. . . The second procedure is to suggest, time and time again, ways whereby the new reporter can transmute his enthusiasm and energy into work that will bring him the favorable notice of the newspaper's executives." (Introd.) Index.

Booklist 37:131 D 1 '40

" 'News Gathering and News Writing' should prove of real worth to the young writer. There are points where veteran newspapermen will take exception to his conclusions, his methods, and his examples, but fundamentally the book is helpful and should aid the beginning writer to improve the quality and the readability of his work." C. A. L.
+ — Christian Science Monitor p12 N 16 '40 240w

Springf'd Republican p7e O 13 '40 600w

NEFF, EMERY EDWARD. A revolution in European poetry, 1660-1900. 279p $3 Columbia univ. press

809.1 Poetry

"This book will trace the course of poetry in the chief European literary languages, French, English, German, and Italian, in the era closest to our own, from 1660 to the twentieth century." (Introd) The author states that he has "been highly selective, in order that the interrelations of the national literatures and civilizations may stand out clearly." The book contains a comparative chronology, list of the chief poets, select bibliography, and index.

"It is interesting to note that Professor Neff is fully aware of the social movements consistent with and mirrored by the literature of the various countries." E. L. Walton
+ Books p14 Ja 26 '41 280w

"Mr. Neff moves at ease in the four languages. His copious citations are in the original with translations. His critical views are independent, well considered, and generally sound. The uniqueness of the book lies in its synoptic view of the poetry of five nations—of which three are now at war with each other and one has virtually disappeared—through the centuries of cultural free trade among them."
+ Christian Century 57:1519 D 4 '40 320w

NEFF, FRANK AMANDUS. Municipal finance, with emphasis on trends since 1900. 330p $3 McGuin pub. co, 210 S. Emporia, Wichita, Kan.

352.1 Municipal finance 39-16732

"[This work] is largely descriptive, historical, and factual. The book has not been written primarily for administrators, nor is it a statement of fundamental principles. . . There are seven chapters, dealing with introductory material, municipal expenditures, municipal revenues, municipal indebtedness, finance administration, foreign cities, and summary and conclusions. The author feels that the problems of municipal finance became more acute about the beginning of the twentieth century and that the problems of expenditures, revenues, and debt are largely conditioned by the changing society and the changing demands on municipal government." Am Pol Sci R

Reviewed by R. J. Briggs
Am Econ R 30:196 Mr '40 350w

"The book shows the result of extensive reading in the field of municipal and public finance, and the bibliography is quite complete. In spite of the fact that it is largely a digest of existing material rather than a contribution of new thoughts, the volume seems fresh and stimulating." C. H. Chatters
+ Am Pol Sci R 34:815 Ag '40 150w

NEIKIRK, MABEL E. Oscar—the trained seal; pictures by Frank Dobias. [24p] 50c Grosset 40-27463

Picture-story book for young readers, describing the adventures of Oscar, the trained seal, on his way to California, and the trouble he caused by demanding that he travel with his bathtub.

NEIKIRK, M. E.—Continued

Booklist 36:370 My 15 '40

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Books p6 My 26 '40 110w

"Recounted with a bland matter-of-factness which is entirely convincing, and Frank Dobias's pictures add a good deal to the comedy, in spite of their too-garish tones." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p10 Je 16 '40 70w

NEILL, HUMPHREY BANCROFT. Forty eight million horses. 241p il map $2.50 Lippincott

621.3 Electric power. Electric machinery (W) 40-27172

The 48,000,000 horses represent the electrical power in use in the United States today. This is the story of accomplishments of this power—"a book of journeys to the sources and users of Electrical Energy. Climbing in and out of power houses, visiting farms, calling at electrified homes, watching electricity at work."

Booklist 36:259 Mr 1 '40

"'Electricity is the hero of this tale.' The tale is well worth the telling and the telling is well done. The style is that of the journalist, rather than the scientist." Harrison Hale
+ Chem & Chem Eng N 18:368 Ap 25 '40 260w

N Y New Tech Bks 25:6 Ja '40

"Mr. Neill writes with great enthusiasm. And if his zeal seems sometimes to carry him on wide flights of generalization, he shows a balanced temper in his facing of the machines-versus-manpower issue and his willingness to admit the long-term problems which the 'machine and power age' has brought us to be solved. His book is illustrated with many photographs."
+ N Y Times p21 F 11 '40 400w

"As styled for those who run and read, it is mainly superficial, a survey of unemployment and stabilization of employment as dependent on the trade cycle's being accomplished without a single reference to the banking system. But it is handsomely produced with ample illustrations and admirably paced for its purpose." J. R.
+ — Sat R of Lit 21:21 Mr 9 '40 120w

"This is another book in which the pictorial element not only complements the text but is vastly important as an integral element of the story. Many excellent photographs have been assembled to complete this contribution to our knowledge of 'the electrical standard of living.'"
+ Scientific Bk Club R 11:4 F '40 150w

Wis Lib Bul 36:45 Mr '40

NEILL, HUMPHREY BANCROFT, and COOL, HOWARD M. Understanding American business. (Am. youth ser) 448p il $2.50; text ed $1.92 Macmillan

650.973 Business. U.S.—Economic conditions (W) 40-143

Textbook for high schools. It outlines the general story of American business and the machinery by which it works, and attempts to explain the fundamental principles which govern business transactions, despite rapidly changing policies. Contains test questions, and discussion and research projects. Index.

"The book will give young readers enlightened if fairly orthodox information about business."
+ Books p14 Jl 7 '40 50w

J Home Econ 32:182 Mr '40 100w

New Repub 103:222 Ag 12 '40 50w

Reviewed by David Snedden
School & Society 52:306 O 5 '40 200w

"Written by authors closely associated with the National Better Business Bureau, the book has a definite bias supporting current business practices, with a minimum of criticism. However, both for its excellent descriptions and for its arguments in favor of free enterprise under the capitalistic-profit system, this publication may well be recommended as reference material for use in high-school classes in social studies and business." E. A. Zelliot
+ — School R 48:554 S '40 550w

NELLES, WALTER. A liberal in wartime; the education of Albert DeSilver; ed. by Lewis Gannett; introd. by Roger N. Baldwin. 221p $2.50 Norton

B or 92 DeSilver, Albert 40-27279

A sympathetic biography written by a close friend of a young American lawyer, son of well-to-do parents, and a Yale graduate, who was one of the chief workers in the Civil Liberties Union during the first European war.

Booklist 36:305 Ap 1 '40

"I wish there were some way of getting many Americans to read this little book of Walter Nelles, who was another lawyer who did good work for all of us and died before his time. It is a gentle unassuming account of the sort of man and the sort of qualities that are essential to a self-governing society." John Dos Passos
+ Books p14 Mr 31 '40 600w

Reviewed by Russ Nixon
Boston Transcript p1 Mr 30 '40 270w

Christian Century 57:675 My 22 '40 340w

Christian Science Monitor p22 Ap 4 '40 460w

Reviewed by E. W. Mandeville
Churchman 154:20 Jl 1 '40 70w

"The continuity of the book is unfortunately not well maintained. It is honestly written, however, and deals with an American who was willing to sacrifice his money and social position in a sustained effort to make America a decent place in which to live, even during the insanity of wartime." Paul Kiniery
+ — Commonweal 31:495 Mr 29 '40 330w

"Mr. Nelles avoided the usual emotional pitfalls which lie before one who writes a tribute to a friend and produced a narrative which must impress those who did not know Albert De Silver as thoroughly justifying the writing of one more 'Life.' It is a book especially to be set before young men in college; indeed, it should be made required reading in certain civics courses." O. G. Villard
+ Nation 150:426 Mr 30 '40 500w

Reviewed by M. G. Lehman
New Repub 103:197 Ag 5 '40 320w.

"'A Liberal in Wartime' is exceedingly interesting as it sketches the work of the American Civil Liberties Union and follows Albert DeSilver through years of personal development and public activity. But its transcendent importance is in its expression and embodiment of the essential spirit of American democracy: a spirit that must combine sound and incisive thought with the love of freedom and justice and with respect for the individual man. In his admirable introduction Roger Baldwin says that this book is especially pertinent now; but he limits it too greatly. This portrait of an American is of permanent value." Katherine Woods
+ N Y Times p2 Mr 10 '40 750w

"Charming and significant memoir."
+ New Yorker 16:92 Mr 9 '40 40w

Pratt p22 autumn '40

Reviewed by Lamar Middleton
Sat R of Lit 21:16 Mr 23 '40 460w

Springf'd Republican p12 Ap 5 '40 850w

"Nelles' book follows the story of Albert De Silver's career with unfailing insight and appreciation. It is particularly successful in conveying the radiance of his personality. The scattered quotations from his letters to Margaret, his wife, help greatly to this end. Roger Baldwin's introductory tribute and Lewis Gannett's editing add final and perfecting touches to a work that lifts the heart in these dark and depressing days." J. H. Holmes

+ Survey G 29:299 My '40 550w

"It is dramatic that the epitaph of the National Civil Liberties Bureau, if not of its successor, the American Civil Liberties Union, should take the form of a biography of one of its founders lovingly written by another, both now tragically dead. The circumstances lend a sentimental atmosphere to the story—a feeling of nostalgia for a time more distant than the years between denote. And it was no small part of Walter Nelles' wisdom that this book reads more like history than the statement of a faith as true for now as then. . . As a guide to future action, as a light beyond the present blackout, this book serves a noble function. Its precepts we must lay aside for the moment, but with reverence and hope that some day we may turn to them again in a world in which they can prevail." A. M. Stroock

+ Yale Law J 50:188 N '40 1200w

NELSON, FAITH. Randolph, the bear who said no; il. by the author. [59p] $1 Random house

40-6906

Picture-story book for the very young, describing the adventures of a disagreeable little Teddy bear who had an adventure which taught him better manners.

"There is a picture for every small page of large print, looking like the pictures children draw with colored pencils, only with more feeling than they can put into it. The expressions on the face of Randolph, before and after taking, are particularly vivid. When Randolph has an emotion, he gives it all he has." M. L. Becker

+ Books p8 My 5 '40 230w

"The parent who follows with rigidity her learning about child study may argue that the emphasis in this story on the 'no' and 'yes' responses puts ideas in the young head. Nevertheless, this tale will attract little boys and girls of pre-school and kindergarten ages and possibly even solve the problem of many parents who get too many 'nos' to routine requests. It is essential, however, that this story be read in one sitting." Bess Cook

Boston Transcript p3 Ap 6 '40 160w

NELSON, JOSEPH RALEIGH. Writing the technical report. 373p $2.50 (16s 6d) McGraw

620.09 Reports—Preparation. Technical writing 40-4741

"The purpose of this book is to inspire in both students and practitioners in various technical fields a keener and more intelligent interest in report writing and to give them a greater assurance based on a better understanding of their own mental processes and of the practical procedures involved in the preparation of a well-organized report. . . The book consists of four parts. The first presents a review of those fundamental considerations which bear on the design and composition of the report. The second gives specific directions for the setup of the report, with several illustrative reports, both of the long and of the short form, and a few memoranda, annotated for study. The third outlines a systematic procedure for the critical examination of a report, illustrated by a few clinical studies of typical cases. The last part suggests a series of assignments for those who may wish to use the book as a textbook for classroom purposes." Pref.

Booklist 36:302 Ap 1 '40

"The usefulness of such a text goes beyond report writing; the principles set forth are equally applicable to the writing of papers for engineering societies or for descriptive articles for technical journals."

+ Eng N 124:68 F 29 '40 100w

"A lucid and thoroughly helpful examination of the problem of writing a technical report. Offers valuable guidance to the executive and the student who must prepare such reports."

+ Management R 29:388 O '40 50w

"Nothing but sheer indifference or laziness can account for poor reports from any scientific worker who takes the trouble to read this book. Outstanding not only for the lucidity of its exposition but also for the numerous practical examples it contains and their lavish treatment and clarity, it is unquestionably the best guide to the writing of reports which has yet appeared." R. Brightman

+ Nature 146:419 S 28 '40 550w

N Y New Tech Bks 25:26 Ap '40

NELSON, MARGARET WORTHING. Pinky finds a home; pictures by Anne Heyneman. 118p $1.75 Holiday

40-11024

"When Pinky Jordan, a toy rabbit, was left on a junk pile, he felt that life was over. But he was rescued by a rough black terrier carved from wood and a tall, lean hound with pale plush fur. Besides, there were Algie, Breezy, and Mumper, and they all lived together in the oven of an old cook stove on the desert." Library J

"Somewhere along the line something does not quite click. The desert is evidently drawn from life; its creatures and cactus, shacks and shafts are as real as possible. The toys are such as every child has at some early age known and loved. But there seems to me to be a basic incongruity between the scene and the characters." M. L. Becker

+ — Books p6 Ag 11 '40 300w

Cath World 152:373 D '40 80w

"The appeal of toy stories to a certain group of children will seem to indicate that this will be popular. The book is small but beautifully made." E. G. Mullan

+ Library J 65:544 Je 15 '40 160w

"There is humor and a gay fancy in this little tale and the author has managed to give to her characters in the book that lovable quality which children find in well-worn, favorite toys. Pinky's efforts at homemaking are satisfying to young readers, for to picture little animals busy at their own diminutive housekeeping is a kind of imaginative make-believe in which children take great delight." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p9 Je 30 '40 600w

NELSON, MRS RHODA LOUISE (SMITH). This is freedom. 302p il $2 Dodd

40-31804

Story of the Mormon march from Nauvoo to Salt Lake valley, as it appeared to a boy who began by hating both Mormons and Indians, and ended by liking and understanding them. For readers from twelve to sixteen.

"The interest is well sustained and the characters are convincing. A good story in these times for the older group of boys and girls." Florence O'Gara

+ Library J 65:927 N 1 '40 140w

"An exciting story."

+ Sat R of Lit 23:38 D 7 '40 30w

NESOR, ALBERT, pseud. The mad dog of Europe. 307p il $2.50 Epic pubs, inc, 656 Broadway, N.Y.

40-1220

A novel, based the author asserts on fact, which tells the story of simple folk in a Bavarian village during the post-War years and Hitler's rise to power.

NESOR, ALBERT—Continued

"In the course of a narrative saturated with violence and bloodshed, the author introduces most of the Nazi leaders and gives you a concise summary of the whole movement."

Books p12 Ja 28 '40 80w

Churchman 154:35 Ja 15 '40 70w

"The book cannot be recommended as possessing either literary or historical value, yet it may bring home to the casual reader the reality of the dark story of Nazi treatment of its enemies and opponents." M. M. L.

Commonweal 31:479 Mr 22 '40 140w

NETHERCOT, ARTHUR HOBART. The road to Tryermaine. 230p $3 Univ. of Chicago press

821 Coleridge, Samuel Taylor—Christabel

40-2413

"A study of the history, background, and purposes of Coleridge's 'Christabel.'" (Subtitle) The author offers a new interpretation of the poem—that Geraldine was a female vampire, and Christabel and her father were her innocent victims. Index.

"Of interest are the speculations which the author adds to the various familiar conjectures as to how Coleridge hoped to finish his famous fragment. It is a question, of course, if Coleridge, with his disconcerting habit of leaving fragments, was ever really sure how the poem was going to end. It is a pertinent question, too, if 'The Road to Tryermaine' is not occasionally so choked with the impedimenta of scholarship as to make this journey to the sources of the poem too tortuous except for the hardier kind of specialist." Milton Rugoff

Books p12 Ja 14 '40 260w

"In spite of Mr. Nethercot's temperate style and scholarly caution, the part of the book [which] contains the main solution reads like fiction. Other sections, devoted to filling in details, are not so satisfactory." C. D. Thorp

+ — Boston Transcript p2 F 10 '40 250w

"Unlike 'The Road to Xanadu' this is not a study in the ways of the imagination. . . Consequently it lacks the impression of general validity which made Professor Lowes' book more than a revelation of the source-material for two poems. In the second place there are not so many pleasant diversions on the road to Tryermaine. . . 'The Road to Tryermaine' is a sound and interesting book, but it suffers by a comparison of its author's own inviting." J. R. M.

+ — Canadian Forum 19:362 F '40 400w

"Naturally the book is intended for Coleridge scholars, but it is illuminating to anyone concerned with the use a great poet makes of raw materials. It is singularly pleasant reading and enhances the satisfaction one derives from reading with understanding a poem that has hitherto been exceedingly difficult of comprehension." H. E. Arntson

+ Library Q 10:451 Jl '40 340w

"We trust we shall not seem ungrateful if we regret that Mr. Nethercot has not transcended his self-set limitations to exegesis and study of sources, and wish he had given us, in addition, some close criticism of the poem: an analysis of the texture of 'Cristabel' which would have included also questions of form. As it stands, The Road to Tryermaine is a significant addition to the illuminating studies, fortunately growing in number, devoted to a close inspection of a great English poem. The interpretation and criticism of the actual work of art will always rightfully occupy the center of literary studies." René Wellek

+ — Mod Philol 38:218 N '40 2050w

Reviewed by Kenneth Burke

New Repub 102:617 My 6 '40 190w

"The Road to Tryermaine is not as conclusive or absorbing as its predecessor [The Road to Xanadu], but for anyone who is an admirer of 'Christabel' and does not mind looking at it as one does at a problem picture, it is worth reading." G. W. Stonier

+ New Statesman & Nation 19:370 Mr 16 '40 900w

"The special problem set for himself by Mr. Nethercot is to determine the antecedents, intentions and character of Geraldine. Was she a witch? Was she a spirit straight from hell? Was she a vampire? And what is a vampire? What had Coleridge read about vampires? Three-fourths of the volume are devoted chiefly to these questions. The answers are interesting, and the author gives them with occasional flashes of humor for which his readers must be grateful. Nevertheless, one may enjoy the poem without the help of so much erudition." G. M. Harper

+ — Sat R of Lit 22:18 Je 15 '40 430w

Times [London] Lit Sup p398 Ag 17 '40 2600w

NEUMANN, ROBERT. By the waters of Babylon [tr. from the German by Anthony Dent]. 356p $2.50 Simon & Schuster [9s Dent]

40-12659

A group of English soldiers on the border of Palestine see a bus approaching along a mountain road, and then passing out of sight for a moment it fails to reappear. Later comes the knowledge that an accident has destroyed the bus and its passengers. After this prelude, the story relates the histories of the passengers, all Jews, refugees from many quarters of the earth.

"Even that Jew or Gentile who feels (as I do not) in accord with the religious motivation of this harsh novel of evil outside and corruption within Israel—surely even he would demand more than this hastily written diatribe in which irony is cheapened into an ugly sarcasm and human beings are degraded, without even the dignity of sackcloth or the suggestion of beauty in ashes. Not so wrote Mr. Neumann's master, the Prophet Jeremiah. That terrible invective lent dignity to debasement, and its scourgings have been submitted to, far outside the borders of Israel. I hope Mr. Neumann will later write his own answer to this book." F. T. Marsh

— Books p8 Je 23 '40 600w

"Of the many books written on the Jewish question during the last seven years, few are as frank and clever as this one, and few are as confused artistically. 'By the Waters of Babylon' has both the quality of a brilliant novel and the false brilliancy of a sensational newspaper report. The story and its very life are squeezed into an artificial, annoyingly symbolic framework. Yet it is an eloquent, unusually informing work, despite its heavy and obvious deficiencies." Marianne Hauser

+ — New Repub 103:194 Ag 5 '40 260w

"A statement of the Jewish character which is courageous and dignified. There is no dodging and no evasion; it is a welcome change from the sort of novel which makes the Jewish tragedy a whining hard-luck story." Anthony West

+ New Statesman & Nation 18:684 N 11 '39 240w

"The writing is often strong, sometimes eloquent. Yet there are long interludes of tediousness. We have the feeling that the author is trying to tell us something of a profound nature, yet the meaning constantly eludes us. The book is a good many things, but surely least of all is it a novel." John Cournos

— + N Y Times p10 Je 23 '40 650w

New Yorker 16:70 Je 22 '40 50w

"This is a strange book, laid in a strange, ancient setting, with strange characters and an incredibly strange dénouement. . . With so much to say, and so much genius to say it, it is to be profoundly regretted that Mr. Neumann should have clogged his story with so much tedious, extraneous, impertinent material, and made it sag and bog and just never steer a clear and definite course." V. F. Calverton

— + Sat R of Lit 22:6 Jl 20 '40 700w

"Written with deep feeling, the book is a powerful one. The life of each person grips the reader, and the tragedy is ever before his eyes. Neumann does not idealize his Jewish people. He shows boldly on the canvas traits of character which are offensive and disagreeable. But, on the other hand, he makes the reader understand them—and also pause to wonder what is the solution of the Jewish problem." M. D.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Je 30 '40 600w

"Neumann's recitation of his characters' lives becomes somewhat dull; judicious editing would not only have sharpened the central story but likewise would have aided the author's lyricism. Interesting though the structure, 'By the Waters of Babylon' is confused artistically. And it contributes little to a greater understanding of the Jewish problem." J. H. Pollack

— + Survey G 30:93 F '41 190w

Time 36:70 Jl 1 '40 900w

Times [London] Lit Sup p657 N 11 '39 320w

NEUSCHUTZ, MRS LOUISE M. How to help your hearing; foreword by Walter B. Pitkin. 179p $2.50 Harper

617.8 Deafness 40-8426

A book of inspirational advice for the hard of hearing, written from a non-technical point of view and stressing the psychological factors. The book is divided into five parts: Meeting the problem; Adjusting yourself to the world around you; Keeping mentally and physically fit; Being good company to yourself; Suggestions to people with normal ears. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 36:378 Je 1 '40

School & Society 52:272 S 28 '40 30w

"Readers will not agree with all of the author's statements, nevertheless the volume will be welcomed as a valuable contribution to the literature on hearing problems." E. B. Kessler

Survey 76:247 Ag '40 310w

Wis Lib Bul 36:109 Je '40

NEVINS, ALLAN. John D. Rockefeller; the heroic age of American enterprise. 2v 683;747p il $7.50 Scribner

B or 92 Rockefeller, John Davison. Standard oil company (W) 41-649

In this definitive biography of John D. Rockefeller, senior, the author describes him as "the most democratic of men, but his democracy had no taint of affability," and he calls his book "an effort to illuminate, without fear or favor, all aspects of the work of a remarkable innovator, who left a deep imprint upon both the industry and the philanthropy of his nation." Index at end of volume two.

Booklist 37:115 N 15 '40

"Mr. Nevins [is] more than the historian of industry as he examines Rockefeller. His ability as a careful and understanding student of history was established long ago; this book will sustain, perhaps increase somewhat, his scholarly reputation, but it has also stronger claims to consideration as a work of art than either his Cleveland or his Hamilton Fish, although they both won Pulitzer Prizes." G. W. Johnson

+ Books p3 O 20 '40 2150w

"It takes its place at once, of course, as the monumental authority upon the career of Rockefeller; it has Mr. Nevins's usual virtues of organization of material, historical perspective and continuous, if monotonous, readability. It is packed with new material, upon the development of Mr. Rockefeller's business, and upon his philanthropies, early and late; it weighs, exhaustively, the great Rockefeller controversies. . . Mr. Nevins's book is a rich record of a unique American life history, and one of its most charming features are the photographs." Lewis Gannett

+ Boston Transcript p11 O 15 '40 550w

Christian Science Monitor p11 Ja 4 '41 750w

"Professor Nevins' biography . . . is impartial and definitive. The author has had free access to all the family's papers, and the full cooperation of its members. . . The result is a work which reviews all the transactions of Rockefeller's life 'both candidly and carefully, without prejudices or preconceptions'—but with a sympathetic understanding of the man and his times." Eleanor Van Alen

+ Current Hist & Forum 52:2 F 13 '41 300w

"This is an admirable biography of a remarkable man. It is gracious and entertaining in style, critical and yet sympathetic in judgment, and is documented according to the best tradition of historical writing. It is neither partisan nor apologetic. All possible sources have been studied, including the private papers of the Rockefeller family. The author endeavors to tell the truth concerning certain events which aroused great controversies and to correct errors of facts or conclusions found in earlier books on the Standard Oil Trust." F. L. D. Goodrich

+ Library J 65:922 N 1 '40 260w

Reviewed by Gustavus Myers

Nation 151:450 N 9 '40 950w

Reviewed by Lewis Galantière

New Repub 103:795 D 9 '40 2650w

Reviewed by John Chamberlain

N Y Times p1 N 17 '40 2000w

"Friendly in tone and exhaustively documented."

New Yorker 16:110 O 19 '40 70w

"Allan Nevins, in writing this amplitudinous two-volume life story of John D. Rockefeller, has, in effect, submitted for the consideration of posterity a vastly more eminent, more likeable, more scrupulous person than had been painted for us by the Tarbells and the Flynns. This is not to say that Mr. Nevins's paint is allwhite, anymore than the Tarbell's and the Flynn's is allblack. But he has found enough in his five-year study to soften the prominence of the dark colors, and to give greater play to the light; the resulting portrait, though interesting and even convincing in the main, still seems a little rough along the edges." Norman Cousins

+ Sat R of Lit 23:7 O 26 '40 1550w

"Retells with fresh and vital interest the often-told story of a self-made American magnate and the business that he developed amid storms of legal and public controversy. . . Mr Nevins attacks his subject with a desire to wrest from it every ounce of public and human interest, and the reader today will be surprised to find how much he can still learn of a picturesque, though essentially sober and restrained, personality. . . The blemishes in Mr Nevins's work are few and are the more easily condoned because the author is always trying to inculcate a judicious point of view in interpreting a career which has often been bitterly assailed."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e O 13 '40 1150w

Time 36:56 O 28 '40 900w

Reviewed by E. L. Bernays

Yale R n s 30:400 winter '41 1200w

NEW American encyclopedia; editor-in-chief, C. Ralph Taylor. rev ed 1496p $1 c1939 Boston, Books, inc.

031 Encyclopedias and dictionaries

"A concise and comprehensive reference work especially planned, compiled and written for school, college, office and home use. Editor-in-chief, C. Ralph Taylor, M.A., with special articles and departmental supervision by a corps of educators, writers and specialists in the United States and Europe." (Subtitle)

NEW American encyclopedia—Continued
"Many important new subjects are included among the 20,000 entries, some of which are not usually found in this type of publication. Articles and statistics are up to date for the most part and the book contains a number of useful tables and diagrams." (Subscription Bks Bul)

"This encyclopedia represents a good value for those who cannot afford a more costly publication but it is not recommended for libraries."
+ — Subscription Bks Bul 11:34 Jl '40 650w

NEW standard encyclopedia; systematized information, clear, concise, complete. 10v il maps c1939 $57.50 Standard encyclopedia corp, 134 N. La Salle st. Chicago

031 Encyclopedias and dictionaries 39-15832

"Parts of this work have appeared under different titles at different times; Alton's Encyclopedia, 1910; Standard Reference Work, 1912; New Standard Encyclopedia, 1930, 1934. The 1934 edition was reviewed in Subscription Books Bulletin, April 1934 [Book Review Digest, 1934]. The 1939 revision was made by the publishers' editorial staff under the direction of Harold M. Stanford, who has been associated with the publication from the beginning. The contributors are not listed and the articles are not signed. A quarterly of approximately 100 pages, World Progress; The Standard Quarterly Review, [$1 per year] printed on loose leaves, and furnished with a binder to purchasers, supplements the bound volumes." Subscription Bks Bul

"Among the entry words in the main volumes are many for little-known places and persons, especially British soldiers, statesmen and minor writers. The revision of the articles is uneven. The style is pedestrian. The information is superficial and in many cases inaccurate. The quarterly supplements, however, are more adequate in content and in arrangement. . . Because of its inadequate information and uneven revision, the New Standard Encyclopedia is not recommended."
— Subscription Bks Bul 11:21 Ap '40 600w

NEW YORK. METROPOLITAN MUSEUM OF ART. Life in America; a special loan exhibition of paintings held during the period of the N.Y. World's fair, Apr. 24 to Oct. 29. 230p il pa 50c Metropolitan museum [pa 5s Quaritch]

759.1 Paintings, American. Paintings—Exhibitions. U.S.—History—Pictorial works 39-27465

"A pictorial history of American life in the form of 288 paintings dated from colonial days to the beginning of the twentieth century. The reproductions are all in black and white and each has descriptive comment." Booklist

Booklist 35:327 Je 1 '39

"The volume is buttressed by a discerning introduction and further equipped with commentaries on individual canvases which are both informative and entertaining, a combination as delightful as it is rare." B. J. L.
+ New Eng Q 12:818 D '39 230w

NEW YORK. MUSEUM OF MODERN ART. Italian masters; lent by the Royal Italian government; Jan.-Mar. 1940 [pref. by Alfred H. Barr, jr]. 64p il $1.25 Museum of modern art

759.5 Paintings, Italian. Sculpture, Italian. Art—Exhibitions 40-27109

Descriptive catalog of the works in Italian art of the renaissance and baroque period, shown in San Francisco, Chicago, and New York. Short reading list.

Booklist 36:234 F 15 '40

Boston Transcript p1 F 10 '40 80w

"A thin, attractive little volume. . . As [a catalog], it is worth the price of $1.25. Its five color plates of paintings, however, are not all that they should be. The blues in the Bellini are insufficiently differentiated. The Parmigianino alone is barely passable—no doubt because it was the least difficult to handle." Jerome Mellquist
+ — Yale R n s 29:634 spring '40 140w

NEW YORK. MUSEUM OF MODERN ART. Twenty centuries of Mexican art. 199p il maps $2.75; pa $1 Museum of modern art

709.72 Art, Mexican—Exhibitions. Art—Mexico. Mexico—Antiquities. Indians of Mexico—Art 40-12876

Catalog of the exhibition of Mexican art thru the ages, planned by the Museum of Modern Art in New York City. The authors of the four divisions of the work are all Mexican artists or scholars. Contents: Pre-Spanish art, by Alfonso Caso; Colonial art, by Manuel Toussaint; Folk art, by Roberto Montenegro; Modern art; by Miguel Covarrubias. Brief biographies. Bibliography.

"It is an encyclopedic little volume, with all the advantages and faults of that method of approach. . . The accumulation of material is rich and overpowering in quantity, a collector's paradise; but the drama, the story of the human culture creating these arts, was sacrificed to the academic point of view. Within these limitations, 'Twenty Centuries of Mexican Art' is a very good introduction and guide to the subject." Anita Brenner
+ — Books p15 S 15 '40 440w

Christian Science Monitor p11 Jl 20 '40 480w

NEW YORKER (periodical). Short stories. 438p $3 Simon & Schuster

Short stories—Collections (W) 40-27816

Collection of sixty-eight of the best stories published in the New Yorker between February, 1925 and September, 1940.

Booklist 37:155 D 15 '40

"It's as ridiculous and futile for a reviewer to attempt to pick out examples of the best or most significant stories in this volume as it would be to say that Dorothy Parker's contributions are better than Thomas Wolfe's or Kay Boyle's more significant than Albert Maltz's. The best of 'The New Yorker' contributors are here with the best or second best of their contributions. . . In a world free of war shadows this book would be an occasion to rouse the acclaim of critics of the American short story the world over. And, for that matter, it still may." Rose Feld
+ Books p10 D 8 '40 700w

"These stories are so good that when you open the book you first reread the ones you know, not because that is part of the job and you want to see how well they stand up, but simply because you know that you'll enjoy them." Robert van Gelder
+ N Y Times p4 D 8 '40 270w

New Yorker 16:89 N 30 '40 40w

"Where the editors have done so well, it seems cavilling to make any objection; and yet it must be said that any one who brings together a volume of stories by half a hundred authors without providing any alphabetic index, deserves the curses, as well as the blessings, of generations of readers. . . It is to be hoped that the dignity of cloth covers will show the real importance of much of this writing, which has been too much overlooked because it has appeared in a magazine with humorous illustrations." Basil Davenport
+ — Sat R of Lit 23:7 Ja 18 '41 550w

Springf'd Republican p10 D 18 '40 650w

NEWBERRY, MRS CLARE (TURLAY). April's kittens; pictures by [the author]. 33p $1.75 Harper

(W) 40-32442

April and her father and mother and the cat, Sheba, lived in a one-cat apartment. Then Sheba had three kittens and the family was in a quandary. Two of the kittens were given away, and when it became necessary to choose between Sheba and the last kitten April's father made an important decision—they moved into a two-cat apartment.

Booklist 37:95 N 1 '40

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Books p8 N 10 '40 200w

Cath World 152:374 D '40 90w

Reviewed by F. B. Sloan
Christian Science Monitor p9 Ja 27 '41 100w

Churchman 154:4 D 15 '40 30w

"Mrs. Newberry can draw a cat about as well as anyone in the business, and this specimen of her art is well up to standard; the story is warmly human too."
+ Commonweal 33:121 N 22 '40 30w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk M 16:434 N '40 40w

"This is Mrs. Newberry's most beautiful book." Lena Barksdale
+ Horn Bk M 17:61 Ja '41 80w

Reviewed by R. A. Hill
Library J 65:846 O 15 '40 20w

"Beautiful drawings of cats, so real one wants to pet them, on every other page." Marian Herr
+ Library J 65:927 N 1 '40 90w

Reviewed by Lena Barksdale
Nation 151:454 N 9 '40 10w

Reviewed by E. W. Steele
New Repub 103:843 D 16 '40 30w

"One of the most fascinating aspects of this book, which is the best Clare Newberry has done since the unforgettable 'Mittens,' is that readers, who will not be confined to the young, will join personally and wholeheartedly in April's dilemma of kitten-choosing. . . Mrs. Newberry, who understands children as well as she does cats, has a thoroughly satisfactory conclusion to the problem, in a story which has more body to it than any since 'Herbert, the Lion,' and the pictures, in her distinctive sooty blacks and smoky grays, are, if possible even better and more beguiling." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p34 N 10 '40 180w

New Yorker 16:125 D 7 '40 30w

Wis Lib Bul 36:172 D '40

NEWBERRY, MRS CLARE (TURLAY). Drawing a cat; with an introd. by Thomas Craven [il. by the author]. 64p $1 (2s 6d) Studio

741 Cats—Pictures, illustrations, etc. Animal painting and illustration 40-9657

The author-artist, who has illustrated Mittens and other cat books, describes her method of drawing cat pictures and illustrates her points with many drawings.

"Give this to children who love cats, just as an enchanting picture-book. They may never turn out to be artists, but if they do they will be saved the mistakes in drawing cats that have been made for a long while. At least if they make them it will not be Mrs. Newberry's fault." M. L. Becker
+ Books p6 Ap 21 '40 280w

Boston Transcript p2 Ap 13 '40 70w

School Arts 40:11a O '40 110w

NEWCOMB, COVELLE. Black fire; il. by Avery Johnson. 276p $2.50 Longmans

Christophe, Henri, king of Haiti—Fiction
(W) 40-13267

Fictionized biography of Henri Christophe, king of Haiti. Henri, born a slave, first became aware of the troubles of the people while he was a waiter in Cape Haitien. His struggle to free the blacks, his idealism, the success of his cause, and then the turning of the people against him, and his death by his own hand, are depicted for young readers. Grades eight to ten.

Booklist 37:20 S '40

Christian Century 57:1146 S 18 '40 30w

Churchman 154:34 D 1 '40 20w

"Older boys will find this absorbing reading." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk M 16:349 S '40 90w

"Fact and fiction are well blent, and there are not dull passages. It should lead to the excellent biography, Black Majesty by Vandercook, which is in very different style." Maude Adams
+ Library J 65:662 Ag '40 200w

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin
Library J 65:855 O 15 '40 40w

"Excellent in every way."
+ Sat R of Lit 23:38 D 7 '40 50w

"Except for the somewhat fictionalized account of Christophe's childhood, the book is a creative presentation of authentic material, told with a precise style and a vigor which make it informative and thrilling reading. Avery Johnson's illustrations are of the same artistic quality as the book." M. L. Pfaelzer
+ Social Studies 32:94 F '41 100w

Springf'd Republican p7e D 15 '40 120w

NEWCOMER, MABEL. Taxation and fiscal policy. 89p $1.25 Columbia univ. press

336.2 Taxation—U.S. Finance—U.S. 40-36208

A factual and policy summary which includes chapters on the rising cost of government, tax systems, tax justice, competition and cooperation among taxing authorities, and government fiscal policies and business fluctuations. Bibliographical note. Index.

"The volume as a whole gives a remarkably well selected array of factual data interwoven with a thoughtful scholar's evaluation of major fiscal policies. . . I believe that most tax students will find relatively little basis for disagreement with the author. Indeed, many will agree that, at several points, Taxation and Fiscal Policies expresses current finance thinking more felicitously than any other book or article has yet done." J. W. Martin
+ Am Pol Sci R 34:1236 D '40 260w

"Offers fare for both the expert and the ordinary voter."
Social Studies 32:48 Ja '41 40w

NEWELL, AUDREY. Murder is not mute. 317p $2 Macrae Smith co.

40-34428

Detective story.

"Watch out for the local judge, who does his sleuthing in a deer-hunting pattern. He appears infrequently, but he is the most interesting character in a run-of-the-mill murder story." Kay Irvin
N Y Times p16 O 6 '40 160w

"Plenty of action and reasonably air-tight plot, but story suffers somewhat from gauche stylistic touches. Commendable."
+ Sat R of Lit 22:38 O 12 '40 40w

NEWLON, JESSE HOMER. Education for democracy in our time. 242p $2.50 McGraw

370.1 Education. Democracy 40-2676

"Sets forth the dangers which confront American democracy and tells what education can do to promote an appreciation of its blessings." (Cleveland Open Shelf) Index.

Booklist 36:231 F 15 '40

Cleveland Open Shelf p1 Ja '40

NEWLON, J. H.—Continued
Reviewed by Theodore Brameld
New Repub 103:877 D 23 '40 50w

"Jesse H. Newlon's Education for Democracy in Our Time has been highly welcomed by progressive educators for its critical analysis of the present American society and for its courage in proposing reforms. Those chapters of the book which deal with a new curriculum, with the social program for the American school and for the teaching profession, and with educational control and administration no doubt touch upon important and interesting issues. However, the final judgment on the author's opinion will depend on the reader's view concerning 'progressivism' or 'traditionalism' in education." Robert Ulich
Social Educ 5:77 Ja '41 1200w

Reviewed by E. B. Sackett
Survey G 29:301 My '40 300w

NEWMAN, BERNARD. German secret service at work [Eng title: Secrets of German espionage]. 264p il $2.75 McBride [7s 6d Hale, R]

351.74 Secret service—Germany 40-10728

This volume, by a former member of the British Intelligence service, contains a number of more or less connected chapters on espionage during and since the Great war. Contents: The price paid; German spies in and out of Czechoslovakia; German espionage in Poland; Education of the German spy; German spies at work; Sabotage; The Maginot line; Counter-espionage; The spy in high politics; German espionage in the World war; Women spies; A miscellany of espionage; Codes, ciphers and communications.

Boston Transcript p1 My 25 '40 30w
Cleveland Open Shelf p14 Jl '40
New Repub 102:481 Ap 8 '40 50w

Reviewed by Joseph Gollomb
Sat R of Lit 21:18 Ap 20 '40 460w

"Mr Newman has drawn heavily on spy stories of the World war, a trifle less on spy activities prior to the Munich pact and a few purported tales of activities of spies, who, he contends, assisted greatly in the abrupt downfall of Poland. He has little to say about activities of German spies in England and France during the present war. . . The book, which can hardly be regarded as authoritative, contains a number of illustrations."
Springf'd Republican p6 Mr 25 '40 410w
Times [London] Lit Sup p377 Ag 3 '40 300w

NEWMAN, BERNARD. Papa Pontivy and the Maginot murder [Eng title: Maginot Line murder]. 328p maps $2 Holt [7s 6d; 2s 6d Gollancz]
40-13049

Detective story.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p10 Ag 11 '40 170w

"Papa Pontivy himself is a charming person, but Mr. Newman deadens him with his pedantic style." Marian Wiggin
+ — Boston Transcript p2 Ag 10 '40 60w

"Mr. Newman writes in perfect thriller style with a smooth, flat surface, beneath which readers can peer at the most fabulous human behaviour as safely and composedly as a fish behind the plate-glass of an aquarium." Ralph Partridge
+ New Statesman & Nation 17:142 Ja 28 '39 80w

"This is one of the best tales of espionage and counter-espionage that we have yet encountered."
+ N Y Times p11 Ag 4 '40 280w

"Entertaining."
+ Sat R of Lit 22:18 Ag 17 '40 40w

"Combines spying, detection and thrills in admirable proportions." Nicholas Blake
+ Spec 162:318 F 24 '39 40w

"The excitement of the story is steadily maintained without the process of detection becoming obscure. But it is the background of France's great frontier fortress which lifts the tale out of the ruck of ordinary thrillers."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p44 Ja 21 '39 250w

NEWMAN, SIR GEORGE. Building of a nation's health. 479p il $6 (21s) Macmillan

614.0942 Public health—Great Britain. Great Britain—Sanitary affairs. Medicine—Great Britain 39-29849

"This is the story of 'how statecraft and medical knowledge' took counsel together to build up the public health services of Great Britain. It is not limited to the quarter century during which Sir George Newman was a civil servant in Whitehall, but traces the foundation and development of English public health machinery from the earliest times to recent years. But the book goes far beyond the usual limits of public health and medicine; it is an eloquent description of how new social ideas and advances in science brought about changes in central and local administration which have transformed the life of the people." Survey

"Chapters rich in history and basic information. . . This valuable contribution by an outstanding public health statesman should be made available not only to public health administrators but to every student of public health." I. V. Hiscock
+ Am J Pub Health 30:190 F '40 750w
Economist 136:56 Jl 8 '39 1700w

"The classic work by that eminent Victorian medical man Sir John Simon on English sanitary institutions traced their development to the end of the nineteenth century. This volume is a worthy successor." G. F.
+ Manchester Guardian p7 Jl 28 '39 400w

"One of the main features of Sir George's book is the clearness with which it brings out, and the force with which it emphasizes the unity of the field of medicine, and the need for the intimate co-operation of various bodies of persons within the wider field of health. . . The volume should be welcomed as one of much importance and value."
+ Nature 144:345 Ag 26 '39 850w

"In the book as a whole there is much that is both valuable and interesting; but the defects of arrangement, the uncertainty of scope and manner of treatment, and—not least—a certain complacency on the part of the writer make it a dissatisfying sequel to English Sanitary Institution, a famous book, with which it inevitably challenges comparison."
— + New Statesman & Nation 18:354 S 2 '39 360w

"For a full understanding of English medicine, this single appraisal in one volume stands out among the first. Though technical, it is well-written and will serve as a good source book for the social scientist, the public health man, and the physician. There are numerous and useful citations. Despite the spate of reports, studies, and monographs on health insurance and related subjects, it is with pleasure that I recommend these tightly packed 500 pages." Joseph Hirsh
+ Social Forces 19:143 O '40 700w

"A book which is equally valuable for its analysis of the steps by which our present system of public health has been built and for its recognition of the gaps which remain to be filled, of the ground which must yet be gained. It seems, in truth, to transport the reader into another world, and in more than one sense." W. T. Wells
+ Spec 163:22 Jl 7 '39 1000w

"This volume is much more than a selection from Sir George Newman's annual reports as chief medical officer; it is, as the title implies, the history of the building up of a nation's health." F. G. Boudreau, M.D.
+ Survey 76:28 Ja '40 310w

" 'The Building of a Nation's Health' will interest nearly every reader. The author's experience is great, his interests are wide, and his facts are relevant and clearly stated. Moreover, he writes simply and inspiringly, with a marked absence of technical jargon."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p407 Jl 8 '39 600w

NEWMAN, HORATIO HACKETT. Multiple human births. 214p il $2.50 Doubleday

612.63 Birth, Multiple. Twins 40-34086

"This study of twins, triplets, quadruplets and quintuplets, the work of a scientist who is a Professor of Zoology in the University of Chicago, is the first volume to be brought out in the American Association for the Advancement of Science Series. The scientist first differentiates between the twins whom we call 'identical' and those who are simply ordinary brothers and sisters that have been born at the same time... Siamese twins, 'mirror imaging' and the causation of twinning are among the questions of physical science considered in Dr. Newman's book. Of more generally appealing interest are his researches into problems of heredity and environment." (N Y Times) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 37:237 F 1 '41
N Y Times p9 N 3 '40 270w
Reviewed by A. H. Compton & others
Scientific Bk Club R 11:1 O '40 1600w

NEWSOM, NATHAN WILLIAM, and LANGFITT, ROY EMERSON, eds. Administrative practices in large high schools; contributors, John Aseltine, Ernest B. Comstock [and others]. 659p il $3.25 Am. bk.

373 High schools. School administration and organization 40-6532

"Professors Newsom and Langfitt present a substantial volume dealing with administrative practices in large high schools. To insure the practicability of their material, they secured the collaboration of secondary school administrators who are intimately acquainted with the problems encountered in large institutions. These ten co-authors have not only had extensive administrative practice, but are holding principalships in large high schools at the present time. Each of these practitioners discusses an important phase of institutional management and describes in detail the practices in his school which he considers an integral part of the general problems assigned to him. The schools represented are widely distributed geographically and include a variety of problems and situations." (Social Educ) Index.

Cleveland Open Shelf p14 Jl '40
Reviewed by C. C. Crawford
School & Society 52:200 S 14 '40 330w

"All in all, this volume is exceedingly helpful. Designed as it is to present good practices and points of view in selected large schools, it will doubtless stimulate some principals in similar schools to emulate these good things and still other principals whose schools are smaller to approximate them." H. C. Koch
+ School R 48:790 D '40 700w

"Here is an extremely useful book which will be heartily welcomed by students of secondary education in professional schools and by teachers and administrators concerned with instructional and managerial problems in large high schools." John Rufi
+ Social Educ 4:371 My '40 450w

NEWSPAPER GUILD OF NEW YORK. Heywood Broun as he seemed to us, by John L. Lewis, Franklin P. Adams [and others]; biographical commentaries by Morris Watson and Ernest L. Meyer. 48p $1 Random house

B or 92 Broun, Heywood Campbell 41-466

Stenographic report of the Heywood Broun memorial meeting held in New York, February 12, 1940. The audience numbered 12,000 and speeches were made by John Kieran, John L. Lewis, F.P.A., Lewis Gannett, Mayor La Guardia, Broun's favorite waiter and many others. The volume is published for the Newspaper Guild of New York. The proceeds are to be added to a fund for the establishment of Heywood Broun memorial awards for distinguished newspaper work.

Boston Transcript p2 Jl 27 '40 50w
Christian Century 57:903 Jl 17 '40 100w

"The book is well worth buying. . . Low priced, the running biography is as good a compilation of facts on Heywood's life as is yet available, and the tributes of the notables afford a rather striking idea of how much his contemporaries appreciated Heywood Broun." John Brubaker
+ Commonweal 32:293 Jl 26 '40 210w
N Y Times p34 O 20 '40 390w

NICHOLSON, JOHN ANGUS. An introductory course in philosophy. 508p $2.75 (12s) Macmillan

100 Philosophy 39-9342

"A college textbook, useful for intelligent readers who want an introduction to the subject. Short selections from the works of great philosophers are included. Bibliographies." Booklist

---

Booklist 35:374 Jl 15 '39

"This particular book seems to this reviewer to be an attempt to make the student realize that the discussions of professional philosophers have pertinence to their thinking. Though the selections are from the classics, the text utilizes them to determine the relative merits of the competing 'isms' which divide professional philosophers into representatives of certain schools of thought. Thus the book seems to make of philosophy an academic exercise such as must be forever on the defensive against the allurements of other curricular enticements and rival subject-matters." S. P. L.
J Philos 37:53 Ja 18 '40 300w

NICKALLS, GUY OLIVER, and MALLAM, PATRICK CORBETT. Rowing. 210p il $1.75 (5s) Pitman

797.123 Rowing [39-27819]

British book on rowing technique for the beginner. It describes the stroke, eight-oared, four-oared, and pair-oared rowing, sculling, skiff and pleasure boat rowing, coaching, training, and racing. Glossary. Index.

Booklist 36:64 O 15 '39
Cleveland Open Shelf p11 My '40

NICKERSON, HOFFMAN. The armed horde, 1793-1939. 384p maps $3.50 Putnam

355 Military service, Compulsory. Armies. Militarism. War 40-29533

"In this book Hoffman Nickerson, author of a remarkable study entitled 'Can We Limit War?' [Book Review Digest, 1934] examines the relations between war and the social order by setting forth the interaction of social and military forms, and traces the origin, growth, culmination and recent decline of the 'armed horde,' that is, the mass army recruited by universal, compulsory service, which has transformed the warfare with limited objec-

NICKERSON, HOFFMAN—Continued
tives of the eighteenth century and two earlier periods (those of Imperial Rome and the Middle Ages) into mass warfare, beginning with the French Revolution and collapsing in the war of 1914-18." N Y Times

"In support of his theses, Mr. Nickerson musters a Spenglerian number of facts. But they are picked from too vast a field; in 400 pages he attempts to give the history of every major war throughout the world for a century and a half. So his treatment of many events is bound to appear superficial and even capricious. . . A briefer book, in a calmer spirit, with more limited and more definite information, would have been far more convincing." Albert Guerard
+ — Books p6 Ja 19 '41 1100w

"This is certainly a timely book; one could wish it were not. It is well organized and clearly written." Lewis Gannett
+ Boston Transcript p9 Ja 3 '41 700w

"Throughout its length the study contains a wealth of information supported by many quotations. It is full of fact and stirs thought, and it is impossible not to concur by far with the greater part of the statements of opinion with which the text is interspersed." A. M. Nikolaieff
+ N Y Times p6 Ja 19 '41 1200w

NICOLAY, HELEN. The bridge of water; il. by Chichi Lasley. 295p map $2 Appleton-Century

986 Panama—History. Panama canal (W) 40-32209

The bridge of water is the Panama canal. The story of its development is given from the days of the Spanish explorers to the present. Illustrated with black and white drawings in the text. For young readers. Index.

Booklist 37:178 Ja 1 '41

"The modern part of Miss Nicolay's history is better than the Spanish." E. V. W.
Cath World 152:381 D '40 120w

Reviewed by M. A. Whitney
Christian Science Monitor p11 Ja 30 '41 130w

"Don't get it unless the child loves to read."
Churchman 154:34 D 1 '40 20w

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin
Library J 65:855 O 15 '40 20w

NIEBUHR, REINHOLD. Christianity and power politics. 226p $2 Scribner

261 Sociology, Christian. Europe—Politics. European war, 1939—Religious aspects 41-1736

"The chapters of this volume are occasional essays, some of which have been previously published in journals of Britain and the United States. While they deal with many subjects, some of them purely secular and political, the unity of the volume is established by the common thesis which underlies the approach to various political issues. This thesis is that modern Christian and secular perfectionism, which places a premium upon non-participation in conflict, is a very sentimentalized version of the Christian faith and is at variance with the profoundest insights of the Christian religion." Pref.

"This book is not as important as certain earlier books by Dr. Niebuhr which have affected the trends of religious thinking more potently than the works of any other theologian of our day. But as a collection of essays on various timely topics, it has values of its own and is certainly gorgeous reading." J. H. Holmes
+ Books p33 D 8 '40 600w

"It would be a pity if the title of this book, and the theological language in which some of the essays are written, caused it to be read only by the restricted public who read books on religion. The subject is one of vital importance to all who think about public affairs and seek to root their thought in a consistent philosophy, to all those who play any part, however small, in the moulding of public opinion. . . They will not agree with Mr. Niebuhr on all points —I certainly do not—but I know few books that will more ruthlessly force one to reconsider one's own position and its fundamental basis. In this confused world there can be no more salutary, and no more necessary, surgery." G. M. A. Grube
+ Canadian Forum 20:353 F '41 650w

"Searching and illuminative essays which this reviewer thinks are the best reasoned and most clearly expressed essays that Dr. Niebuhr has contributed in this shibboleth-shouting age that sorely needs ethical insight, social vision and moral action in harmony with the unshakable truths that Christianity must live and propagate in democracy's conflict with power politics." A. L. Murray
+ Churchman 154:17 D 15 '40 200w

Reviewed by Gordon Poteat
Crozer Q 18:74 Ja '41 350w

Reviewed by W. H. Auden
Nation 152:24 Ja 4 '41 600w

NIEMOELLER, ADOLPH FREDRICK. Complete guide for the deafened; with a foreword by Harold Hays. 256p $3 Harvest

617.8 Ear. Hearing. Deafness 40-13458

"A comprehensive discussion of hearing impairment with chapters devoted to helping the deafened find a happy place in society. Attention is given to preventive measures in schools, through social legislation and in the home." School & Society

Boston Transcript p2 Ag 17 '40 40w
School & Society 51:768 Je 22 '40 40w

"Authoritatively comprehensive, the work possesses informative value and a wealth of helpful suggestions."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 4 '40 600w

NIVEN, FREDERICK JOHN. Mine inheritance. 432p map $2.50 Macmillan [9s Collins] 40-33217

"In the time of the Regency, when crofters began to be ejected from their Highland and Hebridean homes to make room for sheep, the then Earl of Selkirk bought a tract of land in the far distances of Canada, at the junction of the Red River and the Assiniboine, as a settlement for some of these dispossessed farmers. In 1812 after a long, hard journey the first of the settlers arrived on the spot. . . The colonists were hampered in every way. . . In the end, however, after several years of combined 'direct action' and interminable law suits in Montreal . . . they were able to establish themselves safely and strongly against all comers. The story of this venture is told through the mouth of young David Baxter, who joins the expedition at its start and contrives to be present at all the most stirring moments of its history." (Times [London] Lit Sup) Bibliography.

"In depicting the bitter feud between fur traders and settlers, the hardships and hazards of the struggling colony, Mr. Niven makes a vivid contribution to Canada's lengthening shelf of historical romance." Lisle Bell
+ Books p8 Ja 12 '41 240w

Reviewed by Katherine Satterthwaite
Boston Transcript p2 Ja 11 '41 280w

"While Mine Inheritance is cast in the form of a novel it cannot properly be called fiction for the author tells us in a short foreword that in addition to the people the pattern for the dialogue is drawn from the archives. Appreciating the difficulty of putting blood and sinew into such documents, Mr. Niven must be credited with a most skilful and readable job." Eleanor Godfrey
+ Canadian Forum 20:154 Ag '40 280w

NIEBUHR (nē'bo͞or)

"An exciting and lusty tale."
Christian Century 58:60 Ja 8 '41 40w

"Here is material that might have made a novel of breathless adventure, but Mr. Niven has chosen not to write it that way. Instead, he has been patient, precise, sometimes repetitious; but what is lost in color and romance is made up by the positive impression of actuality."
+ Christian Science Monitor p10 F 1 '41 500w

"Different as is 'Mine Inheritance' from Mr. Niven's last novel, it is distinguished by the same quiet realism which allows character to come through in the narration of events." C. Marriott
+ Manchester Guardian p7 My 10 '40 150w

"Mr. Niven's plan has been to keep strictly to historical accuracy and sequence for his events; to use the actual recorded words of historical characters as dialogue, and to make his story strike home emotionally through fictional creation. His clean economy of words and his hard punch and delivery make his violent scenes both arresting and memorable, and his recital of the sickening chicanery and double-dealing of Selkirk's enemies loses nothing by its dry terseness. He has also, incidentally, painted an unforgettable picture of the coming of the Scot to Southern Manitoba. Altogether an admirable work." J. S. Southron
+ N Y Times p7 Ja 12 '41 700w

"Mine Inheritance is described as an epic in the history of Canada, and is very long, discursive, solid and well-documented. It seems to me somewhat difficult to read. It is the Book Society choice of the month: something for members to get their teeth into." Rosamond Lehmann
Spec 164:694 My 17 '40 70w
Times [London] Lit Sup p233 My 11 '40 230w

NIXON, LAURENCE ALLEN. See Canada next. 287p il map $1.95 Little

917.1 Canada—Description and travel (W) 40-13305

Guidebook for United States citizens who look toward Canada as Vacationland. Partial contents: The motor road; Touring Eastern Canada; The dude ranches; The camps of Canada; Canoe trails; The Pacific shore; East by rail; There by air; Bringing home the loot; Getting information about your visit to Canada.

Booklist 37:10 S '40
Books p17 S 22 '40 230w

"Sportsmen and tourists cannot find a better guide to the great open spaces of Canada than Mr. Nixon's book."
+ Boston Transcript p2 Ag 17 '40 110w

"The book is so arranged that the answer to virtually any question that a prospective visitor might ask is easy to find; and so definite is the accent on Canadian hospitality that it looks as if an invasion by Yankee tourists would be welcomed. About a score of well-reproduced photographs emphasize the appeal of an already alluring guidebook." E. F. Allen
+ N Y Times p15 Ag 11 '40 1100w

"A handy reference book for northbound travellers. The passport, customs, and exchange information is as up-to-the-minute as possible."
+ New Yorker 16:63 Ag 10 '40 20w
Sat R of Lit 22:22 S 14 '40 240w
Springf'd Republican p7e S 1 '40 60w

NOBBE, GEORGE. The North Briton; a study in political propaganda. 274p $3 Columbia univ. press [15s Oxford]

942.073 Wilkes, John. North Briton (periodical). Great Britain—Politics and government 39-25311

The life of John Wilkes forms the background for this history of the North Briton, a famous eighteenth-century political weekly which marks the first attempt by politicians to capture public opinion thru the Press. John Wilkes published the first number of this paper on June 5, 1762, wrote most of its forty-five issues and faced arrest and prosecution for treasonable and libelous writing. Index.

Reviewed by F. J. Hinkhouse
Am Hist R 45:702 Ap '40 260w
Library Q 10:464 Jl '40 70w
New Repub 100:377 N 1 '39 30w

"Mr. Nobbe is travelling over unfamiliar ground in this study; but his researches will be both profitable and useful to all workers on the mid-eighteenth century, though there is, it must be confessed, a certain deadly dryness about forgotten polemics."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p119 Mr 9 '40 420w

NOEL, JOSEPH. Footloose in Arcadia. 330p $3 Carrick

928 Bierce, Ambrose. London, Jack. Sterling, George 40-8232

Reminiscences of Ambrose Bierce, Jack London and George Sterling, by a newspaperman who was the friend of all three of them.

"A valuable, and in some ways moving, account. . . Mr. Noel's psychological approach to Sterling's personality and works is more successful than it is with London's precisely because London was closer to the public, and more directly influenced by the forces which stirred it. . . Mr. Noel recognizes that there are questions regarding them that are still to be resolved, but he prefers to give back the tone and table-talk of their time. It makes absorbing reading." Louis Filler
+ Books p18 My 12 '40 650w

Reviewed by Lewis Gannett
Boston Transcript p11 Ap 26 '40 750w

Reviewed by De Lancey Ferguson
Boston Transcript p2 Jl 13 '40 450w

"This winchellizing of the private lives, the personal failings of great writers serves no purpose worthy of any good name whatsoever. Such books, and they grow ever more numerous and increasingly rotten, serve only to make open and apparently respectable one of the meanest and most destructive of those things still held by the Christian soul as sins, and by the Christian mind as bad taste of the worst description—namely, the sin of spreading scandal, the bad taste of broadcasting mean and malicious personal gossip. . . Such matters should be left to psychiatrists writing for their fellows, in the hope of increasing knowledge whereby medical science may better deal with such human ills." Michael Williams
— Commonweal 32:60 My 10 '40 1350w

"The material is rich, some of it is new, but Mr. Noel has emptied his notebooks and journals into the book as if it were a waste basket, or at best a filing cabinet."
New Repub 102:618 My 6 '40 40w

"Writing out of deep kindness, with sincere liking, but with an absolute honesty, as eager for truth as a poet, Mr. Noel offers his revealing personal record of these three men and of some of their associates." Robert Van Gelder
+ N Y Times p4 My 5 '40 950w

"Smooth and entertaining."
+ New Yorker 16:91 My 4 '40 20w

NOLAN, JEANNETTE (COVERT) (MRS VAL NOLAN). The gay poet; the story of Eugene Field; il. by Robert S. Robison. 260p $2.50 Messner

B or 92 Field, Eugene (W) 40-27767

Biography of Eugene Field for junior and senior high school readers. "A worthy picture of a fabulous joker, a gifted eccentric, boy, student, man, and editor." (Sat R of Lit) Bibliography

Booklist 37:123 N 15 '40

NOLAN, JEANNETTE—Continued

"It makes pleasant reading, especially aloud in the family circles." M. L. Becker
+ Books p7 Ja 26 '41 360w

"It is a well-rounded picture, written with artistry and well documented." E. V. W.
+ Cath World 152:382 D '40 60w

"Here is displayed something of the charm and attraction of a whimsical personality with its quick generosity and love for little children, its imagination and turn for tender verse. Because his poetry is widely known and loved, his practical jokes and tricks will raise many an indulgent smile." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk M 17:33 Ja '41 120w

"An appealing and entertaining picture of Eugene Field." M. C. Scoggin
+ Library J 65:856 O 15 '40 10w

"Mrs. Nolan has brought to her narrative a quiet humor of her own, a sense of the period and the imaginative sympathy which sees not only into the man himself but into the long-suffering, always loving friends and kinsfolk." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p10 D 8 '40 280w

"Good." Katherine Ulrich
+ Sat R of Lit 23:8 N 16 '40 20w

NOLEN, MRS ELEANOR WEAKLEY. A job for Jeremiah; il. by Iris Beatty Johnson. 80p $1 Oxford
(W) 40-27280

"Jeremiah 'belonged' to Mount Vernon. His Pappy was General Washington's butler, his Mammy took care of the children, and his sister Susannah was maid to Mistress Nellie Custis. Jeremiah worried because he had no regular job and also because there was only a hole in his mouth where his two front teeth had fallen out. He tried a number of different jobs around the plantation but nothing seemed to be quite the thing he wanted to do until he discovered the fun that it was to work in the garden." Library J

Booklist 36:309 Ap 1 '40

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Books p8 My 19 '40 240w

"The book presents a delightful picture of the life at Mount Vernon just after the Revolutionary War when the entire household was looking forward to the General's homecoming. A perfect story for fourth and fifth grade readers, especially boys. An outstanding book at the price." E. G. Mullan
+ Library J 65:214 Mr 1 '40 130w

NORDHOFF, CHARLES, 1830-1901. In Yankee windjammers; ed. by his grandson of the same name. 401p $2.75 Dodd

910.4 Voyages and travels. Seamen. Whaling
(W) 40-13949

Nearly one hundred years ago the grandfather of the co-author of The Mutiny on the Bounty, ran away to sea at the age of thirteen. He passed nine years as a sailor in the American navy, merchant marine, and whaling service, and in the 1850s he wrote and published three books on his experiences. These books proving popular, they were reprinted in an omnibus volume with the title Life on the Ocean in 1874. The present volume, edited by his grandson, contains the portions of the 1874 volume which deal with life in the Navy and on a whaling ship.

Booklist 37:73 O 15 '40

"By far the best part of the present volume is the section on whaling voyages. . . It seems a great pity that the editor should have felt it necessary to eliminate all of the merchant marine material from his grandfather's works, consisting of more than three hundred pages on voyages in various vessels during the clipper-ship period of the 1850's, and to include instead a good part of the early naval experience, which has scant interest for nautical readers nowadays and is not particularly well done." Lincoln Colcord
+ — Books p7 S 8 '40 1350w

"A vigorous straightforward narrative which bears comparison with Dana's masterpiece." Lewis Gannett
+ Boston Transcript p11 Ag 22 '40 120w

"We wonder if the elder Nordhoff's three volumes have been as ably edited as they might have been. 'In Yankee Windjammers' is far from uninteresting. But the pages seem to lack color. At least there are no splashes of color. But then, the reviewer does not know the original." Percy Hutchison
N Y Times p20 N 17 '40 800w

NORDHOFF, CHARLES BERNARD, and HALL, JAMES NORMAN. No more gas. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 320p $2.50 Little
(W) 40-27051

A rollicking story about the Tuttles of Tahiti. They came originally from New England, but, after several generations of intermarriage with native women, changed from shrewd and thrifty Yankees to indolent and happy-go-lucky Tahitians.

Booklist 36:214 F 1 '40
Bookmark p13 Mr '40

"Jonas Tuttle, enormous in girth and in capacity of living, honest in intention and dreamy in execution, generous and lovable, will lighten the heart of all who meet him. His characterization is flawless. And if the next boat to Tahiti is overloaded with Americans, Nordhoff and Hall will have themselves to blame." Rose Feld
+ Books p5 F 4 '40 800w

"The Nordhoff-Hall qualities of good story telling, sense of adventure, authentic South Sea atmosphere, and robust characterization are all running on high in 'No More Gas.' There are moments of sweetness to balance the absurdity, and gentle fun is poked at the foibles of human nature in general, as well as at the South Sea Islanders in particular." Olga Owens
+ Boston Transcript p1 F 3 '40 700w

Reviewed by M. D. Waddington
Canadian Forum 20:30 Ap '40 190w
Cath World 151:122 Ap '40 150w
Christian Century 57:825 Je 26 '40 120w
Christian Science Monitor p10 Mr 9 '40 450w
Churchman 154:34 F 15 '40 70w

"One obtains, incidentally, a surprising amount of information about Tahiti today in the breezy glimpses of nationalities, races, and ways of earning a living." M. E. Clark
+ Library J 65:118 F 1 '40 120w

Reviewed by Robert Van Gelder
N Y Times p6 F 4 '40 550w

"Here and there entertaining, here and there forced."
+ — New Yorker 15:71 F 3 '40 40w

"It is no small achievement to handle the whole family of Tuttle-ma, the Tahitian descendants of old Enoch Tuttle, with all their hopelessly slack, spendthrift, foolish ways, and at the same time give so clear a picture of them, developing their virtues so well, that the reader does not finally sicken of them or set them down as caricatures. . . 'No More Gas' has all the quality of a pause, of a clever exploitation of a bit of particularly juicy material by two masters in their craft. It is not 'important.' It is delightful." Oliver La Farge
+ Sat R of Lit 21:10 F 3 '40 420w
Springf'd Republican p7e F 11 '40 550w

"In this tender and moving story, the authors, without extenuating faults, succeed in presenting the Tuttles as lovable men and women, typical of their race. One reads of their escape from disaster with a sense of almost personal relief."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p301 Je 22 '40 230w

NOREN, ARTHUR T. Softball. (Barnes dollar sports lib) 108p il $1 Barnes, A.S.

796.357 Softball (W) 40-9388

History of the game of softball, with instructions for playing the different positions. Contains a chapter on equipment with construction specifications. Index.

Booklist 36:431 Jl 15 '40

"Because of the immense popularity of the sport . . . this book is a particularly valuable addition to the Barnes Dollar Sports Library."
+ Boston Transcript p2 Jl 27 '40 70w
Cleveland Open Shelf p11 My '40

NORLING, ERNEST RALPH. Perspective made easy. 203p il $1.75; text ed $1.40 (6s 6d) Macmillan

742 Perspective. Drawing—Instruction (W) 39-15371

Textbook on the fundamentals of perspective, "a step-by-step method for learning the basis of drawing." (Subtitle) Many illustrations and problems.

Booklist 36:260 Mr 1 '40

"The author has presented a most praiseworthy simplification of the essential steps of linear perspective in all its practical applications, but he has omitted reference to aerial perspective. A brief general discussion of this phase of the subject would have rounded out the manual and opened an avenue for further exploration on the part of discerning students." W. G. Whitford
+ — School R 48:156 F '40 370w

NORMAN, E. HERBERT. Japan's emergence as a modern state; political and economic problems of the Meiji period. 254p $2 Inst. of Pacific relations. Am. council [10s Allen, G]

952 Japan—Politics and government. Japan—Economic conditions. Japan—Economic policy 40-8128

"Contains chapters on the growth of capitalism in Japan; industrialism; the agrarian settlement and its social consequences. Deals with the period 1867-1912." Am Econ R

Am Econ R 30:598 S '40 20w

"Mr. Norman's conclusions rest on a wealth of evidence. The peculiar value of his work is found in the fact that this evidence is drawn, not from Western sources, but rather from a large variety of sources in the Japanese language which unfortunately are not available to students unskilled in Oriental languages." Kenneth Colegrove
+ Am Pol Sci R 34:802 Ag '40 750w

Reviewed by Owen Lattimore
Ann Am Acad 211:210 S '40 480w
Social Studies 31:288 O '40 30w

NORRIS, HELEN. Something more than earth. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 252p $2 Little 40-31343

A present-day Southern plantation is the scene of this study of tangled lives. Sara Moreland, thirty-five, awkward and unmarried, owned the plantation. Her half-brother Winston was to have half the house, and to manage the plantation. Winston's friend, who coveted the land, married Sara, altho he was ten years younger and did not love her. Then Winston insisted on bringing his vindictive wife to live in the house. The working out of this situation makes the story.

"It is difficult to appraise because of its uneven quality, but that is to be expected in a first novel by a young and talented writer. When Mrs. Norris writes of the land she knows so well . . . she is completely at home. Her prose is simple and lovely; the very smell and feel of the earth are there. Her subjective approach to character is both shrewd and sensitive; she knows what people think and feel, beneath the things they say and do. But she has not yet learned to make her people live. They speak in the author's words, and her words are stilted and unreal." Marian Sims
+ — Books p12 O 6 '40 420w

"The tale concerns itself exclusively with the fundamentals of human nature. It leaves the reader with the feeling that he has been in touch with impulses as natural as the flowering of cotton from its seed, and his spirit feels refreshed by its freedom from conventional complications." E. G. Howe
Boston Transcript p2 Ja 4 '41 360w

"Because it is written with great sensitiveness, and frequent beauty, one is tempted to be lenient toward 'Something More Than Earth.' Neither trite nor ordinary, it has, after all, a kind of distinction. The truth is, however, that this story of Miss Norris's is simply not real, and that her characters are neither living nor credible." E. H. W.
— + N Y Times p7 O 6 '40 700w

NORRIS, KATHLEEN (THOMPSON) (MRS CHARLES GILMAN NORRIS). Secret of the Marshbanks. 304p $2 Doubleday 40-30182

Cherry, a shy convent-bred girl, introduced into the luxurious home of Judge Marshbanks, finds herself involved in the mystery of the house, and even in a murder. Eventually both mysteries are cleared up, to the advantage of Cherry.

Booklist 37:37 O 1 '40

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Books p17 S 22 '40 250w

"Beginning in the ever delightful vein of the Cinderella pattern and winding up with murder and melodrama, Mrs. Norris's new romance has everything to divert the susceptible reader. . . Altogether it makes one of the most exciting tales Mrs. Norris ever wrote." C. D.
+ N Y Times p18 S 29 '40 250w
Times [London] Lit Sup p593 N 23 '40 120w

NORRIS, KATHLEEN (THOMPSON) (MRS CHARLES GILMAN NORRIS). The world is like that. 324p $2 Doubleday (W) 40-6913

A twenty-seven-year-old stenographer in a California law office suddenly finds herself transferred to the house of her employer, as governess-companion to his sixteen-year-old daughter. It is a difficult assignment, and is made more difficult when Jocelyn finds herself in love with her employer.

"The writing, of course, is that to which Mrs. Norris's public is accustomed—smooth and seasoned and easy to assimilate." Lisle Bell
+ Books p18 Ap 28 '40 420w

Reviewed by M. P. Johnson
Boston Transcript p2 Je 29 '40 170w

"The general mix-up makes a lively story of constant ups and downs, varied and fantastic enough to cause many a Norris fan to wish the world were really like that." Beatrice Sherman
+ N Y Times p20 Ap 28 '40 300w
Times [London] Lit Sup p377 Ag 3 '40 70w

NORTH, STERLING. Greased Lightning; il. by Kurt Wiese. [93p] $2 Winston (W) 40-34539

"The thirteenth pig was the runt but he could get through any fence in the world . . . hence his name, and hence his adventures. Zeke, aged nine, knew he was the best of the litter, but Zeke's father didn't think so and Zeke spent most of his time trying to save his

NORTH, STERLING—Continued
'best friend' from his father's wrath." N Y Times

Booklist 37:179 Ja 1 '41

"Here is the tenderness of a real kid for a pet of which nobody else approves; the pictures bring out not only this emotion but lively local humor. There is at least one drawing on each page, with twelve scenes in color; the cover is completely covered by a greased-pig contest of shouting ten-year-olds, and the Fourth of July celebration, especially a float with lovely girls scared by firecrackers, is as good as Old Home Week." M. L. Becker
+ Books p8 D 8 '40 240w

"The illustrations in color by Kurt Wiese, and the fairly large type make this a book most suitable for eight to ten-year-olds, especially boys." E. T. Dobbins
+ Library J 66:85 Ja 15 '41 80w

"This is a lively little comedy of mutual devotion, not quite so crisp as Phil Stong's farm-boy stories, but one which has its own humor and suspense, effectively high-lighted by Kurt Wiese's freely imagined and hilarious illustrations." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p10 Ja 5 '41 200w

NORTON, THOMAS LOWELL. Education for work. (N.Y. (state). Regents' inquiry into the character and cost of public educ. Studies) 263p $2.75 (15s) McGraw

371.426 Vocational education. Education, Secondary 39-28277

"Revamping of high school courses of study to prepare boys and girls for life rather than for colleges, is urged by Dr. Norton as a result of his study made for the Regents Inquiry. Dr. Norton believes that opportunities for vocational training should be provided for three groups of pupils, differentiated on the basis of grade accomplishment—level 1, including pupils through grade 9; level 2, taking in pupils from grades 10 through 12 whose full time schooling will presumably close with the high school; and level 3, including persons who have successfully completed the high school course and those who have demonstrated their vocational competence under adult working conditions." (Social Studies) Index.

Booklist 35:381 Jl 15 '39

"Besides being of specific usefulness within New York State, this book will stimulate evaluation of current programs throughout the nation. Principals, superintendents, and boards of education everywhere should read it thoughtfully, for their patterns, problems, and needs are largely identical with those treated. Such universal attention should not, however, preclude similar surveys in many other states." H. J. Smith
+ School R 48:308 Ap '40 950w

Reviewed by E. W. Knight
Social Educ 3:433 S '39 110w

"The scholarship is commendable and presents concrete suggestions for ameliorating existing evils. This report should be read and studied by progressive teachers and administrators throughout the country." I. A. Eckhauser
+ Social Studies 31:91 F '40 340w

NORWAY, NEVIL SHUTE (NEVIL SHUTE, pseud). Landfall; a Channel story. 284p $2.50 Morrow

(W) 40-27709

An English aviator on Channel patrol duty makes what appears to be a terrific blunder—he is accused of sinking a British submarine, altho he insists that it was an enemy ship. In consequence there is an inquiry, he is censured but not discharged—pilots are too valuable. Later he volunteers for a dangerous trial flight, is badly hurt, but discovers an important bit of information for the air service. While he is in the hospital, the girl to whom he is engaged succeeds in clearing up the mystery of the bombed submarine.

"Mr. Shute's power lies in his simplicity and straightforwardness, in the meticulous accuracy of his detail. . . As in Ordeal, this new book from Mr. Shute brings the sad impact of war intimately home. It is a fine novel."
+ Atlantic D '40 160w

Booklist 37:69 O 15 '40

Bookmark 2:13 Ja '41

"Shute tells [the story] with the simplicity of an artist and the knowledge of an expert. . . 'Landfall' is a first-class fighting story, a first-class mystery story and a first-class love story." Rose Feld
+ Books p4 O 6 '40 800w

Reviewed by Olga Owens
+ Boston Transcript p2 S 28 '40 220w

Cath World 152:252 N '40 100w

Christian Science Monitor p10 N 9 '40 440w

Reviewed by Charles Marriott
Manchester Guardian p7 N 29 '40 110w

"A good, simple story, pleasantly free from cleverness, and at times genuinely moving." George Orwell
+ New Statesman & Nation 20:574 D 7 '40 400w

"Nevil Shute knows how to write vigorous, lean English prose, clear as water. As an aeronautical engineer he knows airplanes. He knows England, changed and changing. He knows the two services, Navy and Air. . . He knows quite a bit about the natural jealousy between the two before the war had got off to a resolute, coordinated start. He knows—none better—the temper of the young men who are today flying the Channel for Britain. . . And he knows how to build a story mounting page by page in suspense. All this first-hand knowledge, white-hot from feeling but coolly disciplined by art, has gone into 'Landfall,' a thriller if ever there was one; and a classic thriller at that." J. S. Southron
+ N Y Times p24 O 6 '40 600w

"The narrative mechanism is smooth and doesn't get in the way of the book's real movement. Mr. Shute, if one must characterize him, recalls in a mild way the early H. G. Wells. His talents combine those of the tale-teller, the visionary, and the engineer." Clifton Fadiman
+ New Yorker 16:73 S 28 '40 280w

"Author-aviator Shute renders the tale as credible through perfection of detail as that 'Ordeal' which so short a time ago so many people thought impossible in spite of its credibility. In fact, it may be said with a special and proper emphasis, that this perfection of detail is Mr. Shute. . . The only trouble this time is that Mr. Shute has devoted his peculiar talent to a rather easy and pot-boilerish sort of story. The original situation is fine, the details, as grim, gay, credible as ever, but not long after the start the emotional tension begins to let down. One is on a too-familiar road, and one travels it to the expected ending, entertained chiefly by the weather." F. P.
+ — Sat R of Lit 23:20 Ja 25 '41 350w

Reviewed by Bonamy Dobrée
Spec 165:618 D 6 '40 120w

Time 36:86 O 7 '40 100w

"Mr. Shute is alive, humorous and finely restrained in feeling throughout; there is not a trace of heroics anywhere. For the layman one of the most fascinating things in the book is, of course, the description of routine Service operations. But this gains enormously by the warmth and intimacy of Mr. Shute's study of Service types. It is a modest piece of story-telling, but thrilling and eloquent."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p589 N 23 '40 750w

NORWAY, NEVIL SHUTE (NEVIL SHUTE, pseud). An old captivity. 333p $2.50 Morrow (W) 40-27173

The story of a young Scottish aviator who pilots a seaplane to Greenland, where his passengers, an English archeologist and his daughter, study ancient ruins. The second part of the book describes the pilot's vivid dream of olden days, when he and a young girl, resembling his feminine passenger, took part in Leif Ericson's explorations.

Atlantic Ap '40 160w

Booklist 36:265 Mr 1 '40

"Charm in a book is as difficult to define and as easy to recognize as in a person. A simple love story, the commonplace 'boy meets girl,' the most ordinary occurrence, becomes credible and holds attention not because it is commonplace, but only if it is invested with charm. This is the merit, as rare in fiction as universal in fact, of 'An Old Captivity.'" Isabel Paterson

+ Books p3 F 25 '40 1000w

"For some readers, fantasy transmuted by emphasis on explanation and on seeming casual influences loses much of its charm; but Mr. Shute endeavors to satisfy this audience by leaving inexplicable much of Ross's extraordinary excursion into a bygone century. Nevertheless, although Mr. Shute's handling of fantasy and mystery may provide subject for argument, his gift for presenting graphic narration is unquestioned." M. W. S.

+ — Christian Science Monitor p11 My 4 '40 500w

"Written in a simple, straightforward manner combining problems of a twentieth century exploration trip with a mystical element that reminds one of Jack London's Star Rover or H. Rider Haggard's Allan Quartermain. For young people and adults; popular, although aviation terms are English rather than American." J. A. Sohon

+ Library J 65:118 F 1 '40 80w

Reviewed by Charles Marriott

Manchester Guardian p3 Mr 19 '40 200w

"Mr. Shute knows both how to pick astonishing stories and how to keep them moving on non-stop tracks. . . Less compelling than 'Ordeal,' but unusual stuff."

+ — New Repub 102:354 Mr 11 '40 40w

"I do not know why all this should be so fascinating, unless it be that any unfamiliar job is interesting if plainly and clearly described. . . Literary and emotional flourishes are at a discount in Mr. Shute's work, and ninety per cent. of his novel is devoted to semi-technical fact. Nevertheless, I am sure that many people who never wish to think of an aeroplane again will find An Old Captivity far better reading than a great number of books apparently more nearly concerned with their own immediate environments." John Mair

+ New Statesman & Nation 19:438 Mr 30 '40 200w

"A strangely ordered tale. For the most part it holds the interest skillfully, keeps you pegging away page after page, unwilling to put the book down. Mr. Shute can spin a yarn in cracking good prose, and since through three-quarters of the novel he knows expertly what he's talking about, being an airplane designer and builder by profession, you enjoy and feel confidence in the accumulation of data and details through which the story moves and has its being." F. T. Marsh

+ N Y Times p6 F 25 '40 900w

New Yorker 16:78 F 24 '40 70w

"Mr. Shute's account of the expedition is really fine; without ever appearing to stack the cards unduly against his hero, he lets us see how many things can go wrong on such a trip, and how great a strain of anxiety this knowledge puts on an experienced pilot, even when things go well. . . The great fault of the book is that it does not hang together well. . . But its parts offer excellent entertainment, varied and unusual." Basil Davenport

+ — Sat R of Lit 21:11 Mr 2 '40 300w

Time 35:88 Mr 11 '40 60w

"The present fashion for time mysteries, reincarnation and the like may have quite a sound psychological explanation, but it threatens again and again to spoil an interesting novel conceived on other lines. Mr. Shute controls his last-minute flight into regions of fancy with discretion and good sense, so that the unexpected jolt has no fatal consequences. But it undoes something of the excitement of what has gone before."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p145 Mr 23 '40 480w

Wis Lib Bul 36:69 Ap '40

NOSSEN, HERBERT LUDWIG, ed. Twelve against alcohol. 246p $2.50 Harrison-Hilton

616.861 Alcoholism 40-6481

"Dr. Nossen is a specialist in dipsomania. The theme of his book is to be read in its introductory statement that 'the alcoholic is a sick individual who in most cases can be rehabilitated and restored to a constructive role in society.' And the book proceeds by the case method, in twelve first-person stories which make plain not only the method of treatment, but, especially, the cause and progress of the disease." N Y Times

+ N Y Times p24 Mr 3 '40 270w

Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 28 '40 950w

NOSTRADAMUS, MICHAEL DE. See Notredame, M. de

NOTREDAME, MICHEL DE. Oracles of Nostradamus [ed] by C. A. Ward. 425p $2 Scribner

133 Prophecies (W) 40-31305

Nostradamus was a French physician and scholar of the sixteenth century. His claim to lasting fame lies in his "oracles," rhymed quatrains in which he made prophecies concerning the future, many of which, in the view of some readers, seem to have been fulfilled. This volume contains a reprint of a work first published in 1891, in which an English scholar, Charles A. Ward, gave a biography of Nostradamus with a commentary and translations of many of the prophecies. The present re-issue contains a supplement giving additional quatrains and translations which may or may not have contemporary implications. Index.

Booklist 37:220 Ja 15 '41

Books p22 S 15 '40 70w

"Mr. Ward's scholarly decipherings are fascinating, and he himself, being very opinionated and vigorous, is entertaining in his own right. Without his help the quatrains in the supplement remain obscure, though there are occasional startling lines and phrases." Margaret Marshall

Nation 151:175 Ag 31 '40 130w

"Whatever you may think of the auguries, this is one of the priceless books of English curiosa—yes, English, I think, for though Nostradamus is French of the French, this work derives its quality quite as much from the personality of its editor. Ward, like his subject, was a bitter and eccentric Tory, but he had a touch of Burton, Coleridge, and Sir Thomas Browne in his odd syntax." Vincent McHugh

New Yorker 16:67 S 7 '40 1050w

Springf'd Republican p8 O 22 '40 900w

NOURSE, MARY AUGUSTA. Kodo, the way of the emperor; a short history of the Japanese. 350p il maps $3.50 Bobbs

952 Japan—History. Japan—Civilization (W) 40-27281

Short history of Japan, about one third of which is devoted to the last eighty years. In her accounts of the various historical periods, the author has included not only historic events, but also the culture of the age: its fine arts, customs, rites, dress, etc. Index.

Booklist 36:304 Ap 1 '40

"In the mind of Japan is a dream of grandeur and empire, a dream antedating the knowledge of Western imperialism and based upon a mystic, racial faith in the greatness of its ruler. Miss Nourse does not try to avoid the story of Japan's conquests, nor does she try to excuse them. She does better: she explains them from the viewpoint of Japan's own notions regarding its destiny." Bradford Smith

+ Books p20 Mr 3 '40 850w

"The writer attempts to paint Japan as still a fundamentally ancient, aristocratic oligarchy with a thin veneer of democratic and social ideas which quickly wear off. The first and second parts of the volume are devoted to a rather uninteresting rewrite job on the history of ancient and feudal Japan, while the last third of the volume carries the story down to the present and is largely an essay in anti-Japanism." L. B. Bloch

Living Age 358:493 Jl '40 230w

New Repub 102:618 My 6 '40 20w

"Kodo is a useful book. Its compression of a great number of facts into a connected, interesting narrative contrasts favorably with the vague generalizations of the usual introductory volume. But its limitations are sharply defined; difficulties of language and source material, and an inability to deal with important fundamentals, restrict its use to the introduction of Japanese history to the layman. It is a book of acquaintance but hardly one of understanding." Theodore Cohen

— + Pacific Affairs 13:350 S '40 380w

Reviewed by Bruno Lasker

Social Studies 31:232 My '40 300w

NOYES, ALFRED. No other man [Eng title: The last man]. 320p $2.50 il Stokes [7s 6d Murray, J]

(W) 40-12660

Some time in the future, when the nations are again at war, one of the leaders threatens his enemies with total destruction by a secret force. Unknown to him and to the others, each of the great warring powers also knows the same secret weapon. And they all put it into effect at once. All mankind is wiped out with a few exceptions, among them Mark Adams, an English doctor, and Evelyn Hamilton, an American girl. The story recounts their finding each other, their realization that one other is also alive, and finally their discovery of the saving remnant.

Bookmark 2:13 Ja '41

"A tender as well as thoughtful and allegorical tale." F. T. Marsh

+ Books p7 Jl 21 '40 800w

Reviewed by Nathalia Crane

Boston Transcript p1 Jl 27 '40 900w

Cath World 151:760 S '40 600w

"It is a pleasure to report that I greatly enjoyed reading the book, despite its shortcomings in characterization. The story is a parable, an allegory, a statement in the language of symbolism of Catholic truths, of the long conflict between the unseen forces of good and evil, of the self-destruction of evil and the ultimate triumph of good. This beautiful novel also gives Mr. Noyes an opportunity to state his esthetic and social philosophy." Joseph Calderon

+ — Commonweal 32:331 Ag 9 '40 1000w

Reviewed by Harold Brighouse

Manchester Guardian p7 Je 28 '40 120w

New Repub 103:286 Ag 26 '40 60w

Reviewed by Anthony West

New Statesman & Nation 20:47 Jl 13 '40 310w

"Religious and mystical as the story is, and fraught with meanings of a solemn and ultimate nature, it retains throughout the character of a delightful fantasy which holds the reader's attention, in spite of extra-fictional functions which Mr. Noyes, no doubt, considers the sole justification of his book." John Cournos

+ — N Y Times p6 Jl 21 '40 950w

"The trouble with these novels is that history insists on catching up with them."

New Yorker 16:63 Jl 20 '40 90w

Reviewed by J. A. Smith

Spec 164:872 Je 28 '40 110w

Time 36:63 Jl 29 '40 270w

Times [London] Lit Sup p289 Je 15 '40 430w

NOYES, ALFRED. Pageant of letters. 356p $2.50 Sheed

820.4 English literature—History and criticism. American literature—History and criticism (W) 40-34147

Nineteen short essays on English poets from Chaucer to Alice Meynell, and prose writers from Bacon to Meredith. Contents: Chaucer; Marlowe; Shakespeare; Bacon; Milton; Johnson; Thomson; Shelley; Landor; Dickens; Browning; Emerson; Whitman; Aldrich; Stevenson; Meredith; Swinburne; Alice Meynell; Poetry and reality.

"Alfred Noyes has long been accepted as a minor master of English verse. And a few of the papers [in this book] which make up his latest volume of prose show him to be a minor master of the purely literary critical essay, as well. There is nothing banal about his remarks on Marlowe, or about what he has to say concerning Shakespeare's fools and Hamlet's madness; and in these instances there is a pleasing forthrightness and independence in judgments, and a grace in his expression. At other times, as in the appreciation of Aldrich, he is perhaps less enlightening, but even more charming." Francis Steegmuller

+ Books p20 N 3 '40 320w

"Alfred Noyes gives us sound criticism, the criticism of an artist and a scholar; and when, as in the studies of Dickens and Shelley, love goes into it, it is even more than sound." K. B.

+ Cath World 152:364 D '40 100w

Reviewed by Sister M. Madeleva

Commonweal 33:234 D 20 '40 550w

"This ingathering of presidential addresses, and, apparently, of reviews, is more important than most books of its class. Mr. Noyes brings exceptional qualifications as a critic. For a poet, he is an uncommonly good scholar; for a scholar, he is an uncommonly good poet. . . To lifelong readers, who hold their tastes subject to revision, this book may be confidently recommended. For the unread person or the beginner it is caviar." F. J. M., Jr.

+ Sat R of Lit 23:22 D 21 '40 250w

NUGENT, JOHN CHARLES. It's a great life. 331p $3 Dial press

B or 92 Actors and actresses—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 41-483

"Autobiography of a likable actor who served his apprenticeship in Middle-Western road companies during the nineties, graduated to vaudeville in its hey-day, and raised a theatrical family on Broadway and in Hollywood." New Yorker

---

"Humorous and good-humored. . . A trifle sentimental, and why not?"
+ New Yorker 16:87 D 21 '40 80w

"A delightful book." E. J. R. Isaacs
+ Theatre Arts 25:75 Ja '41 650w

NUGENT, ROLF. Consumer credit and economic stability. 420p $3 Russell Sage 332.7 Credit 39-34001

"A somewhat technical volume in which the director of the Department of Consumer Credit Studies of the Russell Sage Foundation analyzes the 'dynamic characteristics of consumer credit, with a discussion of the possibility of controlling its expansion and contraction in the interest of economic stability.' The development of consumer credit agencies is traced, and tables show consumer credit receivables for the period 1923 through 1938." (J Home Econ) Index.

"An important contribution to the literature of consumer credit, making available an impressive amount of statistical material in a hitherto neglected field." H. C. Jennings
+ Am Econ R 30:181 Mr '40 750w

Booklist 36:231 F 15 '40

J Home Econ 32:182 Mr '40 40w

"Dr. Rolf Nugent has certainly presented an excellent analysis of the dynamic characteristics of consumer credit with a sound discussion of the possibility of controlling its expansion and contraction in the interest of economic stability." Harold Gluck
+ Social Studies 31:234 My '40 290w

Reviewed by M. R. Neifeld
Survey G 29:198 Mr '40 300w

O

O. HENRY MEMORIAL AWARD. Prize stories of 1940; sel. and ed. by Harry Hansen. 317p $2.50 Doubleday (21-9372)

Contents: Freedom's a hard-bought thing, by S. V. Benét; Don't get me wrong, by Roderick Lull; The kill, by Edward Havill; Poor Monsieur Panalitus, by Kay Boyle; Without Hal, by R. P. Brooks; Let's not talk about it now, by R. M. Coates; Hand upon the waters, by William Faulkner; That woman, by Nancy Hale; Chicken on the wind, by Mary King; The treasure, by Grace Lumpkin; Mother's helper, by Dorothy McCleary; The downward path to wisdom, by K. A. Porter; The pelican's shadow, by M. K. Rawlings; Called for, by M. L. Robinson; The three swimmers and the educated grocer, by William Saroyan; Homecoming, by Tom Tracy; Almos' a man, by Richard Wright.

Booklist 37:137 D 1 '40

"In Mr. Hansen's 1940 collection, each reader may find his own prize story, the one which makes the most complete circuit between himself and the writer. Although the work of previously recognized writers is not always their best, and although (with the possible exception of Mr. Havill) there is no striking 'discovery' in this year's volume, the stories are representative of the best talent in a fiction form that has not yet announced its limitations." Milton Lehman
+ Books p16 N 17 '40 900w

Christian Science Monitor p10 F 1 '41 550w

"Harry Hansen always chooses well for the O. Henry Memorial Award volume. His taste is catholic. A story need not be dull or oversubtle or merely clumsily earnest to win his respect. And so, of the short-story annuals published, his is much the best, the most readable, and possesses the livest contents." Robert van Gelder
+ N Y Times p6 N 24 '40 600w

"A better-than-average lot, and you can have fun disagreeing with the judges on the awards."
+ New Yorker 16:94 N 23 '40 100w

OATES, WHITNEY JENNINGS, ed. The Stoic and Epicurean philosophers. 627p $3 Random house
187 Philosophy, Ancient 40-33271

The complete extant writings of Epicurus, Epictetus, Lucretius and Marcus Aurelius, with introduction and notes by an associate professor of classics at Princeton university. Indexes. Glossary

Booklist 37:131 D 1 '40

"An excellent volume, chiefly for the scholar." L. B. Bloch
+ Living Age 359:288 N '40 40w

Reviewed by E. L. Tinker
N Y Times p20 O 6 '40 900w

"An excellent introduction provides an historical and analytical perspective for the two systems of thought. It explores the origins of Epicureanism and Stoicism in Socrates and Plato. A general and pertinent account of the philosophy of Plato is given. There is a summary of the philosophy of Lucretius, which can serve as an outline for the reading of 'De Rerum Natura.' Highlights on the life of Marcus Aurelius and apt suggestions concerning the manner in which the 'Meditations' came to be written are helpful, and—as is not often the case—not too long-winded. Notes come conveniently and unobstrusively at the end of each book. There are also a glossary and index." N. C. Sharfman
+ Sat R of Lit 23:19 N 2 '40 490w

Survey G 30:39 Ja '41 550w

OBOLER, ARCH. Fourteen radio plays. 257p $2 Random house
792 Radio plays 40-35263

Mr Oboler runs the weekly Everyman's Theater program with plays written and directed by himself. From the collection of plays he has written he has chosen fourteen for inclusion here. The book also contains an introductory essay: The art of radio writing. Contents: The laughing man; This lonely heart; I do; Bathysphere; Mr Pip; Catwife; The man to hate; Mr Whiskers; This precious freedom; Baby; The day the sun exploded; Mr Ginsburg; Profits unlimited; Mirage.

Booklist 37:171 Ja 1 '41

"Oboler, in an essay, 'The Art of Radio Writing,' is his own best booster. His main thesis is: 'The very first premise for writing good radio should be actually having something to say that hasn't been said before quite in the manner in which you say it!' But it is hard to find even one of these fourteen to substantiate Oboler's own dictum." Ruth Lechlitner
— Books p9 D 29 '40 320w

"Radio has come of age. . . This first volume of radio plays is tangible proof of this adulthood, and that the acceptance of it has begun." A. N. Williams
+ Sat R of Lit 23:17 D 21 '40 500w

O'BRIEN, EDWARD JOSEPH HARRINGTON, ed. The best British short stories, 1940; and, The yearbook of the British and Irish short story. 294p $2.50 Houghton (22-23919)

Contents: The fishing boat, by Martin Armstrong; Curious adventure of Mr Bond, by Nugent Barker; The bridge, by H. E. Bates; His fortieth birthday, by T. O. Beachcroft; Sympathy, by Frances Bellerby; Mary, by John Collier; The wages of love, by Rhys Davies; The black house, by Margiad Evans; He had been told, by Walter Gladden; Ap Towyn, by Geraint Goodwin; Stained glass, by Oliver Gossman; Room wanted, by G. F. Green; Time wasted? by Leslie Halward; The fair, by Edgar Howard; I am waiting, by Christopher Isherwood; The apple-tree, by Glyn Jones; The buttercup field, by Gwyn Jones; A bit of a do, by Eric Knight; The apple, by Elisabeth Kyle; The wanderers, by Alun Lewis; Stories, by Ethel Mannin; First confession, by Frank O'Connor; The saint, by V. S. Pritchett; The coat, by H. H. Richardson; Vi'let, by Howard Spring; The pedigree pup, by T. Thompson; Blind man's buff, by Robert Westerby; The nawpin' stick, by Malachi Whitaker; Iron on iron, by Woodrow Wyatt.

O'BRIEN, E. J. H., ed.—Continued

Booklist 37:137 D 1 '40

"I felt, after reading the collection, that all the stories were of one tone, which fluctuated between mild irritation and slight surprise. There is no flame, no fire in this group of stories. There are no major chords, only a dull minor throbbing. The writers, and their stories, seem tired. The prediction in this year's anthology, which is one of the least compelling of the O'Brien collections, is that the British short story will continue to lean toward fantasy until the writers are able to absorb the volcanic materials that are now before them and discover some satisfying form in which to cast the substance." Milton Lehman

Books p12 N 3 '40 440w

"There are very weak tales mixed in, a few that are merely pointless and others that appear to imitate the lesser work of a hundred years ago. But in general these stories are above the average." R. v. G.

+ — N Y Times p35 N 24 '40 480w

New Yorker 16:95 N 9 '40 60w

Springf'd Republican p8 N 6 '40 650w

O'BRIEN, EDWARD JOSEPH HARRINGTON, ed. The best short stories, 1940; and the Yearbook of the American short story. 525p $2.75 Houghton

(16-11387)

Contents: Anschluss, by Kay Boyle; The people vs. Abe Lathan, colored, by Erskine Caldwell; Getting on in the world, by Morley Callaghan; Roof sitter, by Frances Eisenberg; The fall of Machine Gun McGurk, by J. T. Farrell; Hand upon the waters, by William Faulkner; Design in plaster, by F. S. Fitzgerald; Frankie and Thomas and Bud Asbury, by Caroline Gordon; Under the ridge, by Ernest Hemingway; The Honey house, by Mary King; Death of an outcast, by Manuel Komroff; That fine place we had last year, by Roderick Lull; Your general does not sleep, by Emilio Lussu; Something jolly, by Dorothy McCleary; Kullan, by Edita Morris; The beautiful fire, by I. V. Morris; Family history, by P. M. Pasinetti; The way death comes, by Prudencio de Pereda; Herself, by James Pooler; The downward path to wisdom, by K. A. Porter; The Presbyterian choir singers, by William Saroyan; Words without music, by Michael Seide; Main currents of American thought, by Irwin Shaw; The seven men of Rouen, by George Slocombe; Four worms turning, by Morton Stern; The two deaths of Kaspar Rausch, by H. O. Storm; Rich men, by Jesse Stuart; Beautifully and bravely, by Harry Sylvester; Night and the lost armies, by Benedict Thielen; The hitch-hikers, by Eudora Welty; Resurgam, by Louis Zara. Indexes.

Booklist 36:412 Jl 1 '40

"All such collections may have two of the virtues of mosaic, variety of shapes and colors, but hardly the third, even quality. All in all, however, this volume is a skillful assortment put together by an editor who seems to have no conspicuous blind spots." Milton Rugoff

Books p10 Je 16 '40 750w

Reviewed by Lewis Gannett

Boston Transcript p13 Je 5 '40 290w

Reviewed by DeLancey Ferguson

Boston Transcript p1 Je 29 '40 310w

"Violence, war, poverty, unemployment, injustice have a prominent part in the book, for the authors of these stories were not urged, in the year 1939, to write of happier things. In this respect, the cumulative import of the book, with its challenging message, is especially pertinent to this day, and will remain as a bitter indictment. Yet some of it is literature, and has the right to endure as such." M. W. S.

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 S 14 '40 600w

Churchman 154:35 O 1 '40 30w

Reviewed by J. G. E. Hopkins

Commonweal 32:254 Jl 12 '40 200w

New Repub 103:62 Jl 8 '40 50w

"Some of the curse is off Mr. O'Brien's title this year, for his collection of short stories, if not best, at least is above average. There are fewer desolate moans by fourth rate poets who have relaxed—but not very much—into prose; and fewer boring studies of submerged tenth characters by writers who do not understand submerged tenth characters in the slightest." Robert Van Gelder

+ N Y Times p6 Je 16 '40 550w

"A better-than-average collection, and some stories that are absolutely first-rate."

+ New Yorker 16:115 Je 15 '40 70w

Springf'd Republican p8 Je 26 '40 650w

O'BRIEN, EUGENE. One way ticket. 269p $2 Doubleday

40-5631

"A story of life in the navy, hard-boiled and roistering on the surface, tender-hearted and loyal underneath." N Y Times

---

"It's a romantic tale of the new order for all the rough stuff, the curses, drunken sprees and obscenity—sentimental and romantic on its plane. It's not for those of exclusively refined taste, but stripped of the trimmings in language and with two or three episodes deleted, it is really a simple little story of a boy and his girl and his pals and his job, and one of no particular quality or merit of its own." F. T. Marsh

Books p8 Ja 28 '40 240w

"It is primarily, a love story—a sordid one and at the same time one that keeps nagging at your mind long after you have finished the last page." Marian Wiggin

Boston Transcript p2 Ja 27 '40 70w

"In its less desperate moments this book is a good picture of the world below, not subtle and not deep but level-headed. It only misses when it starts swinging." O. F.

+ — New Repub 102:318 Mr 4 '40 280w

Reviewed by Beatrice Sherman

N Y Times p18 Ja 28 '40 200w

"Mr. O'Brien is a natural-born storyteller and he knows his subject, but his book is grimmer than necessary."

New Yorker 15:63 Ja 27 '40 50w

"O'Brien has such a flair for story-telling that in the breathless pace of the narrative one does not immediately cavil at the overproduction of melodrama. He uses humor and pathos with a lack of sentimentality comparable to the best French reportage, and some episodes are remarkable for a full effect managed in a very economical way." G. C.

+ — Sat R of Lit 21:21 Ja 27 '40 420w

Time 35:80 F 12 '40 80w

Times [London] Lit Sup p557 N 2 '40 100w

O'BRIEN, JAMES C., and MARENBERG, PHILIP PAUL. Your federal civil service. 501p $2.50 Funk

351.1 Civil service—U.S. U.S.—Officials and employees. Applications for positions
(W) 40-8991

Explanation of the workings of the federal civil service from the citizen's first interest in a government job, to his retirement from the service. Includes a chapter on retirement benefits, lists of appointments and salaries for 1939, and contains samples of examination announcements and applications. Index.

Booklist 36:407 Jl 1 '40
Cleveland Open Shelf p10 My '40
N Y Times p11 Je 30 '40 290w

"The authors have had long and varied experience with government civil service examinations. The text is clear and direct and the material selected for presentation of the utmost value to the prospective civil service employee."
+ Springf'd Republican p6 O 7 '40 120w

O'BRIEN, JOHN SHERMAN. The King and the Princess; pictures by Kurt Wiese. unp 50c Grosset 40-27464

Story for young readers, about the friendship between a police dog and a little black cat, in a hunting lodge in the Northwest.

Booklist 36:370 My 15 '40

"Most cat stories are handicapped for little boys by being clearly intended for little girls; this one may be safely given to any little boy who likes animals at all." M. L. Becker
+ Books p6 My 26 '40 110w

"An appealing story. . . Kurt Wiese has caught the essential characteristics of both animals in the realistic kind of pictures which children love." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p10 Je 16 '40 50w

O'CONNOR, FRANK. Dutch interior. 277p $2.50 Knopf [7s 6d Macmillan] 40-32087

Episodes in the lives of three families living in the south of Ireland. One of the chief characters is Gus Devane who went to America, after getting into trouble at home, and who years later returned to Ireland, hoping to make something of his native village.

Reviewed by Thomas Sugrue
Books p10 N 17 '40 800w
Reviewed by Ruth Byrns
Commonweal 33:106 N 15 '40 330w
Reviewed by Charles Marriott
Manchester Guardian p7 Je 7 '40 110w
Nation 151:485 N 16 '40 80w

"A very sad book. There are passages of great beauty; too many, perhaps, just as there are too many characters, for so brief a novel. And there are many moments of such rhetorical dialogue, of such drama, that the reader who knows his Irish Players feels he is seeing the characters on the stage. . . Ireland has produced great dramatists, and this novel leaves the impression that Frank O'Connor has in him all that is required for first-rate theatre." James Stern
+ New Repub 104:91 Ja 20 '41 550w

"Let me say at the outset that this is the deeply felt and beautifully executed work of a sensitive artist. All those who read to understand and comprehend life more fully will profoundly enjoy this book. Here are warmth and compassion and irony, both tenderness and cruelty. It is a book to be read slowly, to be savored, to be read more than once." Horace Reynolds
+ N Y Times p6 N 17 '40 1000w

"As a matter of fact, everything O'Connor is trying to say was said better long ago by James Joyce. Still, there are certain fugitive pages of quiet perception that give the author a place of his own, though he has yet to write a book genuinely worthy of him." Clifton Fadiman
New Yorker 16:100 N 16 '40 110w

"I found it fascinating. The varying aspects of the riverside town, beautiful and squalid, are excellently and lightly done; so are the relations between the children and their elders, and their adolescent relations to each other. There are a good many obscurities due, not to the writing, which is pellucid, but to the author's unwillingness to comment, to explain, to obtrude himself." E. B. C. Jones
+ — Spec 164:818 Je 14 '40 280w
Springf'd Republican p7e D 15 '40 650w

"The disciplined skill and ironic detachment which Mr. Frank O'Connor has shown in his short stories will be found here in this second novel, accompanied by the same joyful use of exuberant Irish idiom. At a first glance, the form which he uses may appear desultory and episodic. But the pattern of life in the poorer quarter of a southern Irish city is drawn together quietly and closely."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p265 Je 1 '40 350w

ODELL, GEORGE CLINTON DENSMORE. Annals of the New York stage; v 12, 1882-1885. 734p $8.75 Columbia univ. press

792 Theater—New York (city)—History. New York (city)—Social life and customs (27-5965)

"The 12th volume of Prof G. C. D. Odell's [work] covers a golden era of the New York theater which embraces the advent of Henry Irving and Ellen Terry, the rise to acclaim of Daly's theater, the beginning of the Metropolitan opera house and the supremacy in song of Adelina Patti." Springf'd Republican

"There are those who have objected to Professor Odell's chatty running commentary as he sets down in order the plays, the casts, the dates of the innumerable dramas and operas produced in our town, in all parts of the greater city, as well as the vaudeville and concert performers. But quite aside from the fact that any man who has spent so many months, even years, in digging through newspaper files and other source material, is entitled to chat as much as he likes, the good professor's comments are frequently not the least valuable part of his record." W. P. Eaton
+ Books p34 D 1 '40 500w
Springf'd Republican p7e N 3 '40 120w

ODETS, CLIFFORD. Night music; a comedy in twelve scenes. 237p $2 Random house
812 (W) 40-7217

This "comedy in twelve scenes" "deals with the fantastic and frequently farcical adventures of an unhappy young man sent from Hollywood to fetch two trained monkeys but held in New York over a week-end by events which are beyond his control but which he is desperately sure will cost him his job. He is a bumptious and self-pitying young man . . . but he is bumptious only because he is frightened and because he is reminded so frequently and so effectively that, bluster as he will, everyone knows that he is nobody and everyone knows that he knows it." (Nation)

Booklist 36:362 My 15 '40
Reviewed by W. P. Eaton
Books p21 Ap 28 '40 170w
Cleveland Open Shelf p11 My '40
Dramatic criticism by J. W. Krutch
Nation 150:316 Mr 2 '40 750w
Reviewed by G. R. Kernodle
Yale R n s 30:422 winter '41 150w

ODLUM, JEROME. Nine lives are not enough. 253p $2 Sheridan 40-35816

Detective story.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p28 D 1 '40 80w

"Although it is rather clumsily put together, this story offers plenty of action and excitement." Isaac Anderson
+ — N Y Times p32 D 1 '40 120w

"Six minute egg."
Sat R of Lit 23:19 D 21 '40 50w

OELLRICHS, INEZ. Murder comes at night. 275p $2 Doubleday 40-30758

Detective story.

"Unless you are allergic to hick detectives, try this on your nervous system." Will Cuppy
+ Books p18 O 20 '40 120w

"Family skeletons of locality given thorough and engrossing airing in yarn which presents native acumen of rough-hewn sleuth at canniest. Garrulously good."
+ Sat R of Lit 23:17 N 9 '40 40w

OESTERLEY, WILLIAM OSCAR EMIL, ed. and tr. The Psalms; tr. with text-critical and exegetical notes. 2v 312;313-599p $8 Macmillan [ea 16s S.P.C.K.]

223.2 Bible. Old Testament—Psalms

Dr Oesterley's two-volume work on the Psalms begins with fourteen chapters on general questions, such as origin and growth, poetry, teachings, and use. The commentaries on the individual psalms include an introductory section on the psalm's nature and contents, a translation, text-critical and exegetical notes and a section on the religious teaching of the psalm. Four of the introductory chapters and twenty-two of the commentaries were supplied by the author's friend, Dr Theodore Robinson. Index at end of volume two.

"Of Oesterley's many useful books, this is probably the most useful. It is temperate where it is easy to be excessive, restrained where there has been want of restraint, judicious where careful discrimination is needed. It is not an exhaustive or even a thorough piece of work, but it is surprisingly comprehensive and well proportioned. There are many omissions in the literature cited but it cannot be said that the value of the commentary has been impaired. It is no mere reviewer's rhetoric to call this latest commentary on the Psalms the most useful, the most instructive, and in some respects the most attractive in English." James Muilenburg
+ J Religion 20:287 Jl '40 1200w

Times [London] Lit Sup p180 Ap 13 '40 1850w

O'FAOLAIN, EILEEN (MRS SEAN O'FAOLAIN). The little black hen; an Irish fairy story [il. by Aldren Watson]. 135p $2 Random house [3s 6d Oxford]
40-27615

Two little Irish children, Garret and Julie, and Cossey Dearg, old Biddy's black hen, which was one-half fairy, with Biddy herself, have exciting experiences, both in and out of fairyland. The author is the wife of the Irish writer, Seán O'Faoláin.

Booklist 37:20 S '40

Reviewed by F. B. Sloan
Christian Science Monitor p9 D 16 '40 130w

"If the fairy element seems a little complicated it is but the reflection of the time. The book is a treasure." A. C. Moore
+ Horn Bk M 16:339 S '40 100w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk M 16:342 S '40 120w

"This tale by a gifted Irish story-teller is filled with a real feeling for and a sympathetic understanding of the Gaelic-speaking people and their relations with the 'wee folk.' Both boys and girls of ten and upward, who enjoy imaginative revelries, should appreciate the book. The simple green line drawings by Aldren A. Watson are in perfect harmony with the text." Claire Nolte
+ Library J 65:715 S 1 '40 140w

"This is an enchanting story, very fresh, Irish, and magical." R. A. Hill
+ Library J 65:848 O 15 '40 40w

"There is lively adventure in the tale, spirited colloquial speech, a kindly humor and genuine atmosphere, while a very satisfactory attention is paid to the doings of the fairy folk. . . This is a fairy tale told with integrity, a lack of self-consciousness and a fine folklore flavor and as such it will be a welcome addition to the fairy tale shelves in home, school and public libraries." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p10 S 8 '40 290w

Times [London] Lit Sup p633 D 14 '40 120w

O'FAOLAIN, SEAN. Come back to Erin. 398p $2.50 Viking 40-14189

Story of a modern middle-class Irish family. Their chief worry is one of the younger sons, Frankie. Frankie had been a revolutionary and when Ireland at last is given peace, he finds himself at loose ends. He escapes to New York where he tries to raise funds for a Red revolution but finds his countrymen here indifferent. He is involved in an affair with his stepbrother's wife and finally returns to his native land.

Booklist 37:69 O 15 '40

"The book is almost Russian in its morbid tracing of human longing and frustration; it borders on the gruesome in its more realistic passages. But it is a book that many people, particularly Irishmen and Irish-Americans, ought to read, for it shows clearly what rubbish humanity becomes when it chooses to live without the music of faith, the poetry of hope, and the grace of charity. It hasn't happened only in Ireland; but the Irish character is by nature so spiritual that its absence is more noticeable. An Irishman who loves himself is a sad sight." Thomas Sugrue
Books p6 S 1 '40 1050w

— Cath World 152:634 F '41 200w

Reviewed by E. V. Wyatt
Commonweal 32:430 S 13 '40 500w

Reviewed by M. E. Clark
Library J 65:652 Ag '40 70w

Reviewed by Charles Marriott
Manchester Guardian p7 N 29 '40 320w

"The multiplicity of theme weakens the book from the point of view of form and force, but there are compensations in the richness of its characterization and observation, in the sensitive sure prose, and an intensity of feeling which is all the sharper for its fine edge of bitterness." Margaret Marshall
+ — Nation 151:175 Ag 31 '40 380w

Reviewed by Desmond Hawkins
New Statesman & Nation 20:520 N 23 '40 600w

Reviewed by Horace Reynolds
N Y Times p4 S 8 '40 800w

"Except for a rather unsatisfactory romantic episode in New York, a sound, adult, perceptive book."
+ — New Yorker 16:53 Ag 31 '40 90w

Reviewed by Ernest Boyd
Sat R of Lit 22:32 O 12 '40 450w

"The book is no arid thesis; the story, which has only a vague conclusion, carries us on, with its tenderness (which occasionally falls into sentimentality, as with Jo, who never told her love for Frankie), its gentle satire, its vivid descriptions and its nervous scenes, exciting, astonishing, and sometimes humorous." Bonamy Dobrée

O'FAOLAIN, SEAN (shawn ō'phĕ'lăn) .

+ Spec 165:560 N 22 '40 360w

"In its obstinately obscure way the novel has undeniable power and something of dignity. The obscurity is of a troubling sort, however. What is one expected to make of Frankie? Ordinarily it may be irrelevant to ask whether and to what degree a novelist shares the sentiments and opinions of one of his characters. Not so in a vehemently critical novel of this type. Frankie's sense of Irish grievances, his half-mocking zeal of 'suffering for Ireland' . . . is part and parcel of the exile's psychology."

Times [London] Lit Sup p565 N 9 '40 1000w

O'FAOLAIN, SEAN. An Irish journey; specially il. by Paul Henry. 308p map $3.50 (12s 6d) Longmans

914.15 Ireland—Description and travel

A travel guide to Ireland, describing the author's journey intimately, as he progresses thru town, village, or countryside, and adding to his impressions of Ireland at present memories of his own youth there, or anecdotes of people he met in his travels.

Booklist 37:67 O 15 '40

"The farther you go with O'Faolain, the richer his company becomes. Irishmen will chuckle and swear and dream over this book; less blessed mortals reading it will marvel and learn and enjoy. The illustrations are the work of an artist who loves beauty and knows Ireland." Shaemas O'Sheel

+ Books p13 S 22 40 700w

"John Whelen has written a charming travelog of his beloved Ireland."

+ Cath World 152:637 F '41 260w

Reviewed by E. V. Wyatt

Commonweal 32:431 S 13 '40 200w

"The reader gets the real tang of Irish character when the author describes his delightfully witty encounters with various Irish folk." S. E. Sherman

+ Library J 65:761 S 15 '40 110w

"Mr. Sean O'Faolain's travel book may best be described as an extravaganza. It is a madcap mixture of brilliant observation, sardonic humour, descriptive passages of lyrical intensity and reams of hit-or-miss private speculation. . . This is an original and stimulating book, but exasperating in its noisy emotionalism. Mr. O'Faolain, however, is a fearless writer and that is the most important virtue in Ireland to-day." Austin Clarke

+ — New Statesman & Nation 20:96 Jl 27 '40 400w

"Infinite variety cannot stale the custom of Galway. . . Variety cannot stale its custom, nor modern history entirely overlay its old enchantment, nor victory, even, drown out the mournful music of its ancient lament. Sean O'Faolain's book is no less beautiful and haunting for being up to date, concise, and specific. Nor is it, on the other hand, any less succinct and informative for having also the quality of literature." Katherine Woods

+ N Y Times p3 D 29 '40 1100w

"One of the finest books of Irish travel since Synge's 'In West Kerry' and 'In Wicklow.' "

+ New Yorker 16:82 S 21 '40 50w

Reviewed by Ernest Boyd

Sat R of Lit 22:32 O 12 '40 450w

"Here is an ideal travel book on Ireland; unfortunately it has appeared at a moment when it is impossible for those not in Ireland to make an Irish journey. But An Irish Journey should be read now, and kept by one for use in better times. Whoever has known and loved Ireland will then know and love her better; whoever has not yet crossed the Irish Sea will, after reading this book, be prepared to appreciate an Irish holiday in better times." J. M. Hone

+ Spec 165:100 Jl 26 '40 650w

"Much of Mr. O'Faolain's book is frivolous and even facetious about the chance adventures of the road, but it is not merely a book of holiday gossip. . . It is light-hearted but shrewd reporting by a man with no theory to prove and no policy to preach."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p317 Je 29 '40 500w

OFFORD, LENORE GLEN. Angels unaware. 297p $2 Macrae Smith co.

40-6704

The Stevenages were a fairly tranquil family; the father was a college professor; the mother gave music lessons; the three half-grown children were amusing and wholesome. Two week-end guests, father and son, sophisticated beyond the understanding of their hosts, stirred up a tempest in the quiet little family when their week-end was prolonged—by intention.

"It's an excellent comedy of friction." Lisle Bell

+ Books p18 My 12 '40 350w

Boston Transcript p2 Je 15 '40 110w

"Altogether, the story is a very amusing tale that will be sympathetically appreciated by members of nice families of moderate means who have entertained similar angels unaware." Beatrice Sherman

+ N Y Times p12 Ap 21 '40 220w

Wis Lib Bul 36:100 My '40

OGDEN, GEORGE WASHINGTON. There were no heroes; a personal record of a man's beginning. 263p $2 Dodd

B or 92 40-1704

Recollections of a bleak, unhappy boyhood spent on an east-Kansas farm among hard living folk who had no time or heart for kindness.

"The book is vivid and unflinching in its recollections; it does not solicit sympathy for the unhappy hero, but it makes his tribulations truly touching. . . On the whole, he was lucky to live to tell the story—and it's a good story."

+ Books p14 F 4 '40 260w

Boston Transcript p1 Je 29 '40 70w

N Y Times p14 Ja 14 '40 450w

"The great attractiveness of Mr. Ogden's book lies in its revelation of how out of emotional hunger, may be born understanding and compassion of a fine and sturdy sort." James Gray

+ Sat R of Lit 21:10 Ja 27 '40 500w

"By far the best of the book is its first half: a bleak, sharp-eyed, sensitive account of what the world was like to a boy on a cruelly poor east-Kansas farm after the Civil War. In those pages George Ogden does a job on U. S. rural life such as many U. S. writers have tried and as few, living or dead, could improve on."

+ Time 35:59 Ja 8 '40 450w

OGG, FREDERIC AUSTIN. European governments and politics. 2d ed rev 936p $4.25 Macmillan

342.4 Europe—Politics. Political science

(W) 39-32696

Revision of a textbook on comparative government (Book Review Digest, 1934) which has been partly rewritten in order to include events up to September 1939. Index.

"This new edition of a standard work has been carefully edited and well indexed, and in every respect is an up-to-date and highly useful addition to the field." J. K. Pollock

+ Ann Am Acad 209:239 My '40 320w

Booklist 36:200 Ja 15 '40

Bookmark p8 N '40

"A clear and comprehensive study. . . The author's description of the English constitution, illustrates his skillful way of handling a topic which might easily become confusing.

OGG, F. A.—Continued

The book is a valuable text for students, the one improvement that suggests itself is a detailed analytical table of contents."

+ Cath World 150:635 F '40 120w

"All in all a good text has been brought up to date, a few minor improvements have been made in content and organization, as well as in the appearance of the printed page." C. P. Schleicher

+ Social Educ 4:376 My '40 500w

O'HANLON, JAMES D. As good as murdered. 248p $2 Random house 40-6342

Detective story.

"We recommend this volume as high-pressure amusement and one of the finds of the season. Try it if you care for laughs with your crime." Will Cuppy

+ Books p20 Mr 17 '40 280w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin

Boston Transcript p9 Mr 23 '40 80w

"A somewhat crazy yarn and a very amusing one, with some really clever detective work and a good court-room scene." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p23 Mr 17 '40 240w

"Nice idea hurt by dialogue that just misses being funny."

+ — New Yorker 16:108 Mr 16 '40 40w

Sat R of Lit 22:18 Jl 6 '40 40w

"Goofy but good."

+ Time 35:76 Ap 1 '40 40w

HARA, FRANK HURBURT. Today in American drama. 278p $2.50 Univ. of Chicago press

812.09 American drama—History and criticism (W) 40-666

In five chapters the author discusses and analyses modern American plays, showing how they are related to modern thought and social ideals, how they fit into older conceptions of the meanings of comedy and tragedy. Contents: Tragedies without finality; Comedies without a laugh; Melodrama with a meaning; Farce with a purpose; To the left, to the right, or your own way of thinking. Index.

Booklist 36:211 F 1 '40

"The plots of the plays are set forth at too great length, a tiresome business always. Otherwise the book is steadily interesting and of value to students and critics and even playwrights." W. P. Eaton

+ — Books p12 Ja 7 '40 80w

"The book has the advantage of a conspectus and the critical observations take rank about with those of the better reviewers. The perspective of important criticism is not evident; the style is an unfortunate journalese."

+ — Boston Transcript p3 Ja 20 '40 60w

"Mr. O'Hara writes with shrewdness and occasional wit, though not without lapses into professorial wordiness. He is so concerned with labels, and whether or not they fit, that he fails to get very far below the surface of a play's ideas; but his book is lively enough and timely enough to stimulate many to read the plays he discusses, and that is in itself sufficient justification for its appearance." Earle Birney

+ — Canadian Forum 19:363 F '40 360w

"Here is education in its most painless form. It is not given to all teachers to be both wise and winsome, as he is. The felicity of his phrasing and the underlying seriousness of his interpretation are alike evident in some of his chapter titles."

+ Christian Century 57:115 Ja 24 '40 220w

"Mr. O'Hara's book is stimulating and occasionally provocative and will be read with interest by those who like to think about their theatre as well as watch and listen to it."

+ Theatre Arts 24:304 Ap '40 200w

O'HARA, JOHN. Pal Joey. 195p $2 Duell 40-33705

"This series of letters describes the amorous and professional ups-and-downs of a second-rate crooner with a stunted soul, a slangy vocabulary, and a handful of quips that limp almost as badly as his spelling." (Nation) All but three of the letters were first published in the New Yorker.

"Whenever pal Joey gets lonely or low, decides to reminiss (sic) with his best pal (sometimes) Ted, lets down his hair and begins to tell all, O'Hara is on the spot with a dictaphone, a photostat camera and a knowledge of the species that is scientific—but scientific! The result is a series of completely uninhibited letters, often funny unconsciously and—well—consciously, revealing a gossippy, wise-cracking, conventional small-time crooner, a coarse, sly big-town wise guy—an honest-to-goodness, no second-hand, all-cotton-and-a-yard-wide Timesquare boyscout." Milton Rugoff

Books p4 N 3 '40 600w

"Joey is as unmitigatedly and authentically cheap as any of Mr. O'Hara's earlier heroes. Mr. O'Hara has an ear for sidewalk speech, and a gift for establishing a shoddy character." Lewis Gannett

Boston Transcript p9 N 5 '40 70w

Nation 151:400 O 26 '40 60w

"Pal Joey is merely an ameba of the night-life of the jitter-bug era; and he is a little ameba-monster. One doesn't mind Mr. O'Hara's creating a monster: 'Pal Joey' is successful as satire, because Mr. O'Hara is not afraid to go the whole hog; but at the same time he represents a contraction of Mr. O'Hara's interests." Edmund Wilson

New Repub 103:665 N 11 '40 1050w

"Mr. O'Hara's talent, which is great, is forced into rather narrow range by this material and by the aping of Joey's style of letterwriting. Yet he creates with exhaustive apt detail and impeccable phrase a very bright light that clearly illumines Joey and all that he is, and there can be no doubt but that these letters are part of his best work." Robert Van Gelder

+ — N Y Times p5 N 3 '40 500w

New Yorker 16:86 O 26 '40 30w

Reviewed by N. L. Rothman

Sat R of Lit 23:14 O 26 '40 490w

OLCOTT, FRANCES JENKINS. The bridge of caravans; 626 miles of adventure, Cypriote, Turkish, Syrian and Palestinian; foreword by Elihu Grant. 176p il map $2 Wilde

915.6 Levant—Description and travel. Bible. Whole—Geography 40-35226

"Record of a journey by an intelligent and observant traveler from the Cilician Gates above Tarsus to Gaza near the Egyptian border. Along this 'bridge' lie many monuments of biblical and early Christian days. The author spent more than a year in making this journey and got beneath the surface in other ways besides going down into excavations." (Christian Century) Index.

Christian Century 57:1250 O 9 '40 50w

"It is doubtful if any but the most advanced children would be interested in this book."

Churchman 154:34 D 1 '40 30w

"The style is that of a travelog; and the story is well told."

+ Springf'd Republican p6 D 30 '40 140w

OLDER, CORA MIRANDA (BAGGERLY) (MRS FREMONT OLDER). Love stories of old California; with a foreword by Gertrude Atherton. 306p il $3.50 Coward-McCann 40-29951

Semi-fictionized accounts of twenty-four love stories in California's history from the days in the eighteenth century when Doña María Feliciana Arballo de Gutiérrez rode in Anza's train to the Stevenson romance of the 1880s.

"Mrs. Older admits she is not writing history, and it is her privilege to select her characters and her point of view. The important thing about her book is that the color, the atmosphere, the general background of historical fact in the wider sense—all these things are as sound as the most prosaic historian could ask. The reader may come away from the volume with a handful of assorted 'facts' that aren't so. But there will be no mistake about the authenticity of the old California setting. Mrs. Older has a genuine flair for this, and her twenty-four romances convey it unmistakably." J. H. Jackson

+ — Books p28 N 24 '40 650w

"Perhaps it is because Mrs. Older is over anxious to portray the full flavor of the romantic past or perhaps it is because writing history as if it were fiction is too demanding a task, but somehow the book falls into a twilight state between fact and fancy so that the reader is left to the sad conclusion that he has encountered neither authority nor imagination in full and proper scope. This is too bad, for Mrs. Older is an able historian. . . From her truly wide and deep knowledge of California history Mrs. Older has mined some rich ore, but it is still ore and not fine gold." J. L. Duff

+ — Commonweal 33:307 Ja 10 '41 260w

N Y Times p8 D 15 '40 550w

OLSEN, JAMES P. Powdersmoke Paddy. 283p $2 Dutton

40-13802

Western story.

"This is a first novel by a writer who has been farmhand, trap drummer, painter, steeple jack and newspaper man. He knows the cow business thoroughly and swings a lively lot of outdoor lingo." Will Cuppy

Books p10 Ag 4 '40 130w

"This is James P. Olsen's first Western novel and it's as dynamite-laden as any yarn that has come our way in a twelvemonth. It has its crudities, but it also has real promise and its own brand of salty humor." G. W. Harris

+ — N Y Times p22 S 8 '40 130w

OLSON, ALMA LUISE. Scandinavia; the background for neutrality. 358p map $2.50 Lippincott

948 Scandinavia (W) 40-27282

Analysis of the history and social systems of the five Scandinavian countries: Sweden, Denmark, Norway, Iceland, and Finland. The study begins with an exposition of the New North as a whole. The author has been for many years a special correspondent for the New York Times in Scandinavia, and has traveled and studied in these countries. Map on end papers. Index.

Booklist 36:304 Ap 1 '40

"It would be impossible to find any one better fitted to write this thought provoking and well considered book than Alma Luise Olson, to whom, as a child in the Middle West, the Swedish tongue was familiar, for whom, later, at the University of Chicago, the Norse sagas were included in graduate courses." Agnes Rothery

+ Books p5 Mr 3 '40 1200w

Foreign Affairs 18:755 Jl '40 30w

Reviewed by Naboth Hedin

Forum 103:202 Ap '40 180w

New Repub 102:320 Mr 4 '40 50w

"Her own pacifist faith may be based on a fallacy, but she has written an interesting and informative book which is especially valuable in the breadth of its picture." Katherine Woods

+ N Y Times p3 Mr 3 '40 1350w

"Honest and revealing work, often marred by awkward phrasing."

+ — New Yorker 16:63 Mr 2 '40 40w

"Miss Olson knows the North thoroughly. She has traveled through the whole of Scandinavia, and some of her short, descriptive passages are of great beauty. Throughout the book one feels the author's strong attachment to Scandinavia, whose people, history, and literature she has studied with a keen interest. Her objectivity in relating and examining facts is worthy of mention." M. H.

+ Sat R of Lit 21:20 Mr 9 '40 190w

Reviewed by T. K. Derry

Spec 165:224 Ag 30 '40 900w

OLSON, ELDER. The cock of heaven. 105p $2 Macmillan

811 40-32323

"The Cock of Heaven is a poem in the form of a commentary on a text. The text itself might be called an epitome of human history; consequently, the commentary has the character of an historical summation. Book I deals with the destruction of the world, and the causes of both creation and destruction; Books II-VIII deal with the seven wanderings of humanity; and Book IX deals with the universal catastrophe." A Note on the Poem

Atlantic F '41 170w

"In spite of the elaborate preparation, the book remains a book from which a limited number of people will get good, and a book in which, for all the lyric skill of which Olson is a minor master, there is not that simplicity one seeks in poetry." John Holmes

— + Boston Transcript p11 O 7 '40 150w

"Mr. Olson writes vigorously in many styles, sometimes taking over directly texts from other poets, but when he writes himself, his work is rich in imagery and lyric power. His erudition is profound. His language is bold and many-faceted." Eugene Jolas

+ Living Age 359:195 O '40 220w

"Technically smart, but unoriginal."

— + New Repub 103:534 O 14 '40 30w

Reviewed by Randall Jarrell

New Repub 103:668 N 11 '40 500w

"To call The Cock of Heaven a tour de force is not to intend disparagement. But we can be immediately sure that after the elaborate staging and preparation, Mr. Olson's audience will be a difficult one to please. . . The better poetry—and there is much of it—is in the more subdued passages, in skillful undertones and delicate fluencies of sound. Mr. Olson always knows what he is about; and if his first book bore evidence of dexterous though somewhat thin workmanship, this book leaves no doubt of his virtuosity. What he has is not simply an ear for language: it is a swiftness and neatness in the manipulation of plot, a competence at really distinguished parody, and an intellectual gift for sharp aphorism." Henry Rago

+ — Poetry 57:214 D '40 600w

"The Cock of Heaven is craftily written, and its theme is major, but it fails to be more than backhanded poetry. It produces in its reader's conscience nothing more quickening than the kind of agitation that would follow his discovery that the skeleton in his closet was a corpse. Current events give such corpse-rousing a meretricious timeliness that contravenes the eternal tendency of skeletons to revert to useful dirt."

Time 36:91 N 18 '40 600w

Reviewed by Louis Untermeyer

Yale R n s 30:382 winter '41 260w

O'MALLEY, CHARLES J. It was news to me. 409p il maps $2.50 Humphries

B or 92 Journalists—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 40-4361

Autobiography of an Irish newspaper man who came to this country as a youth in 1883. In his reporter days he ranged from Michigan to the Rockies, and from New York to Kansas. In 1904 he married and settled in Boston,

O'MALLEY, C. J.—Continued
where he has lived ever since. He has traveled all over the world, except in New Zealand and Australia, and the book has many stories of his travels and of the people he has met.

"Every page is crammed with incident and anecdote, constant witness to the man's vitality and the inexhaustible breadth of his interests. . . The one fault noted by the captious reader, however, as he has turned the final page and put the book aside is that of a confusing superabundance, a pouring-out, for page after page, of one unrelated incident after another." R. A. Chace
+ — Boston Transcript p3 Je 17 '39 900w

"His book of reminiscences serves up a rich variety of experiences, no one of them uninteresting."
+ Cath World 150:765 Mr '40 120w

O'MALLEY, PAT. Lancashire lad. See Lancashire lad

OMAN, CAROLA. See Lenanton, C. M. A.

OMAN, SIR CHARLES WILLIAM CHADWICK. On the writing of history. 307p $2.50 Dutton [8s 6d Methuen]
907 History—Historiography 40-4805
For descriptive note see Annual for 1939.

Reviewed by Carl Becker
Am Hist R 45:592 Ap '40 500w

"Both Oman and Salvemini bring to their reflections almost a half-century of experience as teachers and writers of history, a candid and undogmatic tone, a frank avowal of the role of bias in historical writing and, what is unfortunately too rarely associated with learned historians, a limpid and readable style as well as a rich sense of humor. The general reader will find that the issues dealt with, far from being technical or esoteric, are not very different from those which vitally concern him." Gaudens Megaro
+ New Repub 102:311 Mr 4 '40 550w

OMMANNEY, FRANCIS DOWNES. North Cape. 252p il map $2.50 (10s 6d) Longmans
799.16 Fishing. Seafaring life. Lincoln star (trawler). North Cape 40-8459

"[This book] is no such robustious performance as 'Below the Roaring Forties' [Book Review Digest, 1938]. It is of lesser scope, geographically and chronologically: a three weeks' trip aboard a deep sea trawler to the North Cape, not of Norway but of Iceland." Books

" 'North Cape' is a man's book, written about a man's world. Women will love it." Agnes Rothery
+ Books p7 F 25 '40 1100w

Reviewed by E. B. Schriftgiesser
Boston Transcript p2 F 17 '40 180w

"No better book on fishing and fishermen has ever been written. It gives a vivid portrayal of a life that is hidden from most of us but was to Mr. Ommanney an open book. Squalor and humour, courage and sordidness are mingled in the pages of a book that should live among the classics of the sea: a great theme and a fine book, fully equal to his 'South Latitude' of two years ago." R. N. R. Brown
+ Manchester Guardian p3 O 17 '39 150w

"North Cape is an excellent and living document." V. S. Pritchett
+ New Statesman & Nation 18:556 O 21 '39 360w

"It's an interesting book, with a human curiosity and unpretentious awareness that sets it apart from most annals of its kind."
+ N Y Times p21 F 11 '40 230w

Times [London] Lit Sup p580 O 7 '39 600w

OMRE, ARTHUR, pseud. Flight; tr. from the Norwegian by Sölvi and Richard Bateson. 296p $2.50 Appleton-Century
(W) 40-4666

Written by a Norwegian novelist and having Norway as its setting, this is the story of a fugitive from justice, escaped from prison, and trying to escape from his past.

Atlantic Ap '40 40w
Booklist 36:325 Ap 15 '40

"This novel should be of interest not only for its psychological insight, but for its pictures of Norwegian life—in provincial hotels, on excursion boats and in fishing villages. . . But it doesn't quite sustain dramatic extension to the length of a novel, or at any rate to the length of this novel." George Conrad
+ — Books p10 F 11 '40 250w
New Repub 102:254 F 19 '40 60w

"Not only was it published in Norway, but it won a prize there, which seems stranger still, not that it is not a good story, moving swiftly and expertly, written with restraint and some depth, but that it is so un-Norwegian. I suspect Mr. Omre of reading a good many American novels since he returned to Norway some years ago." F. T. Marsh
+ N Y Times p6 F 4 '40 600w

"Arthur Omre is one of the modernistic Norwegian writers. His restless spirit leaps out of a nervous, staccato style. There is tenseness from the first to the last page, yet a tenseness so overwrought that it fails to be truly dramatic. The suspense is kept on the same excited level throughout the book, and the reader may find himself deaf as from too much noise. We learn little about Berg's psychology. His sense of guilt, his crime, his ambitions remain in the dark together with the people who cross his path. . . Berg runs; he hides his face and heart even from the reader. Only on rare occasions can we catch a glimpse at him." M. H.
Sat R of Lit 21:21 F 17 '40 370w

O'NEILL, EDWARD HAYES. Biography by Americans, 1658-1936; a subject bibliography. 465p $4 Univ. of Pa. press [18s Oxford] 016.92 Biography—Bibliography. American literature—Bibliography 39-30813

"An enlargement of the bibliography appearing at the end of the author's A History of American Biography, 1800-1935 [Book Review Digest, 1935-1936], this work has references to approximately seventy-five hundred biographies of five thousand individuals. A few of the books listed are about foreign men and women, but all were written by Americans. Thus it is a guide to American authorship in the field of biography in addition to being a valuable list of biographies written from 1658 to 1936. Mr. O'Neill has not included autobiographies, journals, or diaries; seven hundred and seven volumes of collective biography have been analyzed." Library Q

"The second part [of the book] lists by author, editor, or (in the absence of these) title 707 American biographical works containing more than one sketch, and the contents are listed where the subjects did not exceed twenty in number. It is a curious, haphazard list, and the reviewer is unable to understand the compiler's basis of selection, if any. Certainly the list could have been increased fivefold without approaching completeness. . . An enormous amount of labor has been wasted in locating copies of recent books that are to be found in any library of importance; this is a valuable procedure for books published prior to 1870, let us say, but users of a bibliography of this sort are not likely to be startled by the information that there is a copy of Nevins's Grover Cleveland in the Library of Congress or that the New York Public Library possesses a copy of the Dictionary of American Biography." M. H. Thomas
— Am Hist R 45:889 Jl '40 500w

"It seems to me that the variance in purpose expressed in title and sub-title of the book is indication that the compiler did not have clearly in mind what group or groups of students his work was intended to help. The list is arranged alphabetically by the subjects of the biographies, and there is no index of the authors and no chronological conspectus of the whole body of writing. This means that one may not easily obtain from it any notion of the contribution of Americans to the writing of biography. Its title, therefore, is without significance, and the book is sure to prove a disappointment to those specialized students of American literary history who go to it in search of information about American biographers." L. C. Wroth

Books p21 F 11 '40 400w

Cath World 151:504 Jl '40 300w

Library Q 10:308 Ap '40 180w

"Biography by Americans is the product of years of painstaking labor and within its chosen limits will bear careful scrutiny and checking. . . A few trifling slips, probably typographical, may be noted. But the work has been carefully done. The book is genuinely useful in spite of all the limitations enumerated. A really adequate bibliographical guide in this field would require the labors of a committee rather than of an individual. It is to be hoped that later editions will add at least such features as subject and author indexes and a quick guide to encyclopedias which need not disturb the present paging." J. M. Gambrill

+ — Social Educ 4:290 Ap '40 800w

Reviewed by Merle Curti

Social Studies 31:186 Ap '40 100w

Springf'd Republican p6 Ap 22 '40 200w

OPPENHEIM, EDWARD PHILLIPS. General Besserley's second puzzle box. 281p $2 Little [4s Hodder]

40-3663

"Of these twelve stories, eleven have their scene on the Riviera. In all of them General Besserley helps someone, either with money (he is quite remarkably free with it), or time and courage. They deal with mysterious royalties, gambling, ex-spies and peasant life." Times [London] Lit Sup

"Oppenheim characters mill about in glittering scenes, and some of the stories are better than others. You get the master's fine touch at many points and your money's worth of variety." Will Cuppy

+ Books p14 F 4 '40 110w

Boston Transcript p1 F 17 '40 90w

"Not one of these tales of a romantic philanthropist can be classed as a great short story, but they are sufficiently entertaining to effect the painless passing of an idle hour." I. A.

N Y Times p24 Mr 17 '40 80w

"Suave, impeccably dressed, clever, humorous and occasionally deadly little pieces. None very important but all entertaining."

Sat R of Lit 21:18 F 3 '40 40w

Times [London] Lit Sup p719 D 9 '39 50w

OPPENHEIM, EDWARD PHILLIPS. The Grassleyes mystery. 337p $2 Little 40-11558

Mystery story.

Booklist 37:14 S '40

"There are some, it seems, who raise an eyebrow at the extravagance, glitter and what not of Mr. Oppenheim's works. Others, including us, regard the Old Master's stories with deep affection and peruse them with glee. . . This time we follow David Granet, an uppish Britisher to the Manoir of Grassleyes, near Nice, share with him the discovery of a dead body (Lady Grassleyes), and partake of villainy, secrets, love, parties and so forth in generous amounts. . . We may add that our brain reeled at the final surprise, and we do not reel easily." Will Cuppy

+ Books p8 Jl 14 '40 180w

"Present throughout are some of the most delightful characters Mr. Oppenheim has yet created. In spite of the Riviera setting, the whole thing has a homely tone which is doubly welcome after the recent run on spy stories." Marian Wiggin

+ Boston Transcript p2 Jl 13 '40 80w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson

N Y Times p18 Jl 14 '40 230w

"Crackerjack opening chapter—and the rest is pleasant enough in customary smooth E. P. O. style. Amusing."

+ Sat R of Lit 22:18 Jl 13 '40 40w

Times [London] Lit Sup p485 S 21 '40 60w

OPPENHEIM, EDWARD PHILLIPS. Last train out. 309p $2 Little

40-33788

Adventures of an Englishman, a Finnish adventurer and man of the world, and a young American girl, in Vienna on the eve of the present war.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Books p40 N 10 '40 160w

"The ending is a real surprise, with the first bloody violence of the tale. Mr. Oppenheim is too practiced a mystifier to let us down, and we land as neatly as the plane that carries the happy lovers to England." Charlotte Dean

+ N Y Times p27 N 17 '40 280w

"Build-up handled in very best Oppenheim manner. Climax on cheap side, but by that time reader won't mind—much. Intrigin."

+ — Sat R of Lit 23:20 N 23 '40 40w

Time 36:84 D 2 '40 40w

ORFIELD, LESTER BERNHARDT. Criminal appeals in America; with an introd. by Oscar Pound. 321p $5 Little

343 Appellate procedure. Criminal procedure

39-31420

"A book appearing as one of the new Judicial Administration Series of the National Conference of Judicial Councils. . . It opens by setting the stage by means of a lucid description of the history of appellate review in England. This is followed by a number of chapters all concerned with the extent to which review today is desirable. . . From these problems of broad policy the author turns to the reviewing machinery as it is actually set up and working in this country." Harvard Law R

"It is impossible, in a brief review, to do justice to the thorough analysis of each point, to the careful comparison of procedures in different jurisdictions, or to the painstaking research of the author. Political scientists may regret that relatively little attention is given to the political aspects of criminal justice. The student of judicial administration as a science will undoubtedly feel that too little attention is given to use of statistical material to verify the author's assumptions. Although a valuable, and fairly complete, bibliography of statistical data on criminal appellate courts is included, Professor Orfield tends to minimize the importance of this material. However unfortunate this attitude may be, it cannot detract from the solid value of the author's contribution." R. L. Mott

+ — Am Pol Sci R 34:793 Ag '40 950w

"The faults of the book are few and of no great consequence. Its merits are numerous and substantial. It should richly justify the useful future which Dean Pound prophesies for it." E. W. Puttkammer

+ — Harvard Law R 53:898 Mr '40 1150w

ORIANS, GEORGE HARRISON. A short history of American literature, analyzed by decades; with supplementary chapters by M. L. Williams and W. L. Werner. 314p $1.50 Crofts

810.9 American literature—History and criticism 40-27407

Summary, by decades and practically in outline form, of the historical and social development of American literature from 1760 to the close of the World war. Index.

Booklist 36:341 My 1 '40

Wis Lib Bul 36:65 Ap '40

ORMSBEE, THOMAS HAMILTON. Collecting antiques in America. 319p il $3.50 McBride

740.9 Antiques. Collectors and collecting (W) 40-32270

"All the beginning collector would want to know and much the expert may have forgotten about old American furniture, glass, silver, paintings, and prints, porcelains and pottery, textiles and needlework, metalwares, and miscellaneous artifacts. Nearly two hundred halftone illustrations." (New Yorker) Index.

Booklist 37:86 N 1 '40

"The book is entertaining, its writing backed by much expert knowledge and ease of expression. The title might lead one to expect other, and more, than he finds here. As compensation the book holds much excellent matter, though random and sketchy." C. B. G.

+ Christian Science Monitor p6 S 3 '40 550w

"The book is not a foundation guide to collecting, but an interesting piece of reading for those who already find their hobby in antiques. It is well illustrated with 174 photographs."

+ N Y Times p17 Ag 25 '40 360w

New Yorker 16:55 Ag 31 '40 40w

Springf'd Republican p7e S 22 '40 1200w

O'ROURKE, CHARLES EDWARD, ed. General engineering handbook. 2d ed 1120p $4 McGraw

620.2 Engineering—Handbooks, manuals, etc. 40-13535

"Some of the specialized sections, such as Power plants, Mechanical power equipment, Welding and Electric power transmission have been omitted, to allow expansion of the basic sections." (Booklist) For first edition see Book Review Digest, 1932. Index.

Booklist 37:73 O 15 '40

Eng N 125:71 S 26 '40 160w

N Y New Tech Bks 25:47 O '40

O'ROURKE, LAWRENCE JAMES. Opportunities in government employment. 307p il $1.98; pa $1 Garden City pub. co.

351.1 Civil service. U.S.—Officials and employees (W) 40-27345

Instructions and advice on getting a job with the federal, state, or municipal government. Considers such subjects as the advantages and disadvantages of working for government; working under the merit system; clerical and fiscal occupations; the postal service; mechanical and manual occupations; engineering, architecture, and drafting; medicine and related fields; agriculture, forestry, and conservation; education and library work; training for advancement in public service.

Booklist 36:320 Ap 15 '40

"A succinct, practical, comprehensive handbook."

+ N Y Times p20 Mr 17 '40 320w

Reviewed by Mary Hitchings

Survey 76:280 S '40 60w

ORTON, HELEN (FULLER) (MRS J. F. ORTON). The brave frontier; a story of old Schoharie; il by Louise Mansfield. 259p $1.75 Stokes

40-31725

Story of the defense of the Schoharie Valley during the Revolution told thru the experiences of a twelve-year-old boy.

"One of our most conscientious historical writers for young children, Mrs. Orton is also one of the most interesting; this tale . . . has her best qualities." M. L. Becker

+ Books p28 N 10 '40 200w

"Another good Orton story for younger children. Libraries have found Mrs. Orton's books very useful, although not inspired writing, they are worth while for their accurate and interesting presentation of American history. . . The accuracy of the account is attested in a Foreword by R. W. G. Vail, New York State Librarian. For fifth and sixth grade boys and girls." Marian Herr

+ Library J 65:770 S 15 '40 150w

Springf'd Republican p7e D 8 '40 240w

ORTON, ROBERT MERRITT, comp. Catalog of reprints in series, 1940. 151p $3.50 Wilson, H.W.

015 Bibliography—Books in series (W) 40-27580

"This is an index of books collected in series, usually sold under a distinctive name applied to the entire group, and sometimes, though not always, uniform in binding and price. All books are listed by author and title, no subject entries being used except for anthologies, biography, and such anonymous works as The Arabian Nights." Introd.

"This is a valuable and much needed contribution to library tools which libraries will welcome."

+ Booklist 36:423 Jl 15 '40

"The 'Catalogue of Reprints in Series' will be an invaluable aid to harried librarians who are stretching dwindling appropriations and to readers whose appetite for books exceeds their ability to pay for them." E. L. Tinker

+ N Y Times p12 Jl 21 '40 290w

OSBORN, ANDREW RULE. Christian ethics. 369p $4.75 (15s) Oxford

171.1 Christian ethics

"Mr. Osborn tells us that his book 'owes its origin partly to classroom discussions with students, and partly to requests for answers to moral problems brought to the writer as the minister of a large city church. In both cases the same difficulty was found. What the questioners wanted was clear and definite teaching with divine authority, and they had failed to find it.' . . The ethics of the Old and New Testaments are interpreted for us in terms of development and fulfilment, respectively, and for the author Christian ethics are based upon the interpretation of the moral order of the world as established by God. The laws and principles of this moral order are universal and necessary, and therefore have absolute authority. The second part of the book deals with the application of the principles of Christian ethics to the practical problems of modern life." Ethics

"While fundamentally sound the book is of uneven merit and unnecessarily redundant." J. H. Titus

+ — Churchman 154:20 Jl 1 '40 300w

Reviewed by G. S. Whitby

Ethics 51:124 O '40 210w

Reviewed by Vergilius Ferm

Ethics 51:125 O '40 130w

OSBORN, FREDERICK. Preface to eugenics. 312p map $2.75 Harper

575.1 Eugenics. Genetics. Social problems 40-33895

"This book attempts to set forth briefly what science knows about heredity as a factor in individual differences, what is taking place in the growth of population, what Europe has done to control population, and what the author believes may be the place of eugenics in a world which, more than ever in the past, requires character and intelligence for the solution of its problems." (Pref) Index.

Booklist 37:133 D 1 '40

"Within its limits the book is indeed excellent. . . While our society waits for biology to advance it can hardly do better—along with other measures of defense—than attend seriously to the matters that Mr. Osborn discusses, whether they are essentially eugenic or not. The freshness of the author's treatment and the importance of his subject fully warrant the announced selection of the book by the Scientific Book Club." H. M. Parshley

+ Books p36 D 1 '40 1100w

Reviewed by J. F. Davidson
Churchman 155:21 Ja 15 '41 160w

"Preface to Eugenics should have a thoughtful reading by all who are concerned with the true index of a nation's progress—the quality of its people."

+ Living Age 359:292 N '40 150w

School & Society 52:176 S 7 '40 60w

"This book presents the question of eugenics in a most complete and satisfactory manner." A. H. Compton & others

+ Scientific Bk Club R 11:1 S '40 700w

Reviewed by C. C. Zimmerman
Survey 77:28 Ja '41 280w

OSTERGAARD, SOREN KROJGAARD. Into abundance. 154p il $1.50 Willett

330.973 U.S.—Economic conditions. Cooperation—U.S. 40-32928

A business man shows how and why the present economic and financial system of the United States can never produce prosperity for the masses of the people. He then outlines a system which he believes will accomplish just that object. Index.

Booklist 37:212 Ja 15 '41

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison
Christian Century 57:1249 O 9 '40 1050w

"This is a remarkably clear, brief and simple book. . . One cannot read this volume without a clearer understanding of our disgraceful want, and without catching something of the author's enthusiasm for peaceful economic planning." C. L. Willard, Jr.

+ Churchman 155:21 Ja 15 '41 150w

OTTO, MAX CARL. The human enterprise; an attempt to relate philosophy to daily life. 385p $2.25 Crofts

191.9 Pragmatism 40-6898

"An attempt to relate philosophy to life. Prof. Otto belongs to the school of William James and John Dewey and believes with Dewey that philosophy must be changed from 'a device for dealing with problems of philosophy' into 'a method cultivated by philosophers for dealing with the problems of men.' In discussing New times—new ideals, Realistic idealism, Science and man, and similar phases of a general subject, the author has the present and its problems always in mind and the result is a book which should be heartening reading for troubled times." (Wis Lib Bul) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by C. W. Mills
Am Soc R 5:681 Ag '40 210w

Booklist 36:359 My 15 '40

"A luminous and a thrilling book is The Human Enterprise, written as only Max Otto can write." H. N. Wieman

+ Christian Century 57:480 Ap 10 '40 2500w

Reviewed by John Dewey
J Philos 37:303 My 23 '40 1250w

"The author of 'The Human Enterprise' is an excellent writer and his many years of college teaching are clearly reflected in his straightforward and very readable style. A rather complete and stimulating bibliography is appended to the text, and the index has been worked out rather well." C. B. M.

+ Springf'd Republican p8 Ap 23 '40 550w

Wis Lib Bul 36:63 Ap '40

OUTERBRIDGE, PAUL. Photographing in color. 204p il $4.85 Random house

770 Color photography 40-5337

Contents: Color and photography; Cameras and camera equipment; Lighting and exposure; Composition and picture material; Transparencies; The laboratory; Separation negatives; Printing processes. The volume is illustrated with 15 full-page reproductions in color of the author's works. Index.

Christian Science Monitor p10 My 11 '40 370w

"The text is not very long . . . yet the information given is remarkably complete. It would be hard to find another book that gives as good and as detailed an idea of the subject in an equivalent length." E. F. Hall

+ N Y Times p20 Ag 4 '40 410w

New Yorker 16:92 Ap 27 '40 30w

Pratt p17 autumn '40

OVERSEAS PRESS CLUB OF AMERICA. Eye witness, by members of the Club; ed. by Robert Spiers Benjamin. 306p $2.75 Alliance bk.

070 Journalists—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 40-34973

Partial contents: Open grave in Shanghai, by Peggy Hull; Dateline Addis Ababa, by Josef Israels II; Assignment in India, by L. S. Kirtland; Fifth column in Poland, by M. M. Nowinski; Behind Chinese lines, by E. H. Leaf; Taken for a spy, by Emil Lengyel; Newfoundland adventure, by R. S. Benjamin; Dictator of France, by Johannes Steel; Foreign correspondent, by Eugene Lyons.

Reviewed by John Patton
Books p20 O 27 '40 280w

"It is a book to skim rather than to read steadily, because some of the writers inevitably make a better use of their ten or twenty pages than do others." W. H. C.
Christian Science Monitor p20 N 13 '40 430w

Reviewed by P. H. Williams
Commonweal 33:308 Ja 10 '41 260w

Reviewed by Mary McCarthy
New Repub 103:633 N 4 '40 370w

"A few thrillers, but the book is not up to this group's previous volume, 'The Inside Story.'"
New Yorker 16:87 N 2 '40 60w

OVERSEAS PRESS CLUB OF AMERICA. The inside story, by members of the Club; ed. by Robert Spiers Benjamin. 263p il $2.75 Prentice-Hall

070 Journalists—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. World politics (W) 40-4123

Collection of twenty behind-the-news stories by foreign correspondents of American newspapers. Among these contributions are H. V.

OVERSEAS PRESS CLUB OF AMERICA—Continued
Kaltenborn's description of radio in war time; Eugene Lyons' account of Stalin's counter-revolution; Carol Weld's story of the drama behind Edward VIII's abdication; and Mary Knight's sketch of the jobless queens of Europe.

Booklist 36:281 Mr 15 '40

"Twenty former foreign correspondents and feature writers have each dashed off in this book an 'inside story.' They cover, a little breathlessly, the whole world and the last twenty years of its history. They are short and not hard to read. . . The book as a whole gives a strangely foreshortened picture of the foreign world during the last two decades. In its search for reality through meaningless externals, it is almost a Dali picture; it possibly reflects more truly than many intelligent books the real nature of American public interest in the foreign world." Joseph Barnes
+ — Books p9 F 4 '40 500w
Foreign Affairs 19:252 O '40 20w
Living Age 358:94 Mr '40 500w

"Not one of the chapters—not all can be called stories—is absolutely uninteresting, which is possibly a high-water mark in symposiums. Naturally some are more interesting and also more informative than others. The several styles of journalistic writing are well represented. Some are as good as any kind of writing, in or out of books, and some are not. . . The collection might have had more meaning if it had been assembled around a single theme: for example, war reporting, diplomatic reporting, or encounters with famous personalities." R. L. Duffus
+ — N Y Times p26 Ja 28 '40 1300w
New Yorker 15:71 F 3 '40 30w

"The spontaneity and journalistic bonhommie that marked the founding of the Overseas Press Club is also reflected in these newspaper yarns, for inevitably every foreign correspondent has at least one hitherto unpublished account of the actual behind-the-scenes dramas that take place on the international stage. . . The book is not only good off-the-record journalism, but highly revealing reading as well." J. H. S.
+ Sat R of Lit 21:20 F 10 '40 210w

OWEN, MRS JEANNE (LE PROVOST). A wine lover's cook book [foreword by Richardson Wright]. 197p $1.75 Barrows

641.5 Cookery (wine) 40-33567

Recipes for using wine in cooking both ordinary and exotic dishes. Contents: White wine dishes; Champagne on the table and in the kitchen; Vermouth, an unusual flavor in food; Red wines take their place in fine cooking; Sherry, Madeira, Port and Marsala; Spirits in cooking—as a flavor and for blazing; Liqueurs—their value in desserts. Index.

"The author knows what she is talking about, and she enjoys the 'haute cuisine.' This is a book for gourmets, for those who make of cookery a hobby, or for us, if we are giving a party. For daily use I doubt whether many of us would go to the trouble that most of these recipes entail. . . For the moments when you want to impress your friends with a gastronomic surprise, and do a really epicurean tour de force—for the times when you are preoccupied with the nuances of food, and the exchequer is not at a low ebb—then Mrs. Owen can tell you how to prepare a recherché dish." H. T. Hilles
+ — Books p13 Ja 19 '41 160w
J Home Econ 32:697 D '40 140w

OXFORD book of English verse, 1250-1918; ed. by Arthur Quiller-Couch. new ed rev and enl 1172p $3 (8s 6d) Oxford

821.08 English poetry—Collections (W)

The first edition of this book covered the period 1250 to 1900. In this revised and enlarged edition the date has been extended to Armistice Day, 1918. The table of contents is arranged chronologically, and there are author and first line indexes. About twenty-five fifteenth to seventeenth century poets have been omitted from the former edition; and about thirty different ones added.

Booklist 36:288 Mr 15 '40

"The 'Oxford Book' will continue, of course, to give pleasure, for it has hundreds of unmatchable things in it. But the taste of its editor can never again go unquestioned."
+ — Books p26 Mr 17 '40 500w
Cath World 151:502 Jl '40 650w
Churchman 154:34 Mr 15 '40 90w

Reviewed by M. M. Colum
Forum 103:263 My '40 290w

"A reference shelf would seem incomplete without one, or both editions if possible." Lena Ruppert
+ Library J 65:166 F 15 '40 80w

"In a book which is a conspectus of English poetry from the fourteenth century the quota must for most of the poets be small; many get only a single short poem. But 'the note of valiancy—of the old Roman "virtue" mated with cheerfulness'—which was dominant in the first edition is kept dominant in the new." Charles Powell
+ Manchester Guardian p5 D 19 '39 480w

"It would be pleasant to use the second edition of the second most famous and influential English book of its kind as an opportunity to discuss the changes in the fortunes and intelligence of poetry, its swiftly altering attitudes and conceptions, during one of the most eventful and mercurial periods of its history. But no such review is possible. Less even than Palgrave is Quiller-Couch an editor in whose taste or acumen are focused the essential values and proportions of poetic history and quality. His tastes are romantic, domestic, and Victorian; his touch has the limp and tactful caution of an academic hand." M. D. Zabel
— Nation 150:219 F 10 '40 750w

"I wish that the eighty-three extra pages in the new Oxford Book had been devoted to more selections from the poets of the past, ending as before with the last year of the nineteenth century." Roger Marvell
New Statesman & Nation 19:140 F 3 '40 850w

"The thousand poems . . . supply the best panorama (from the British point of view) of the development of poetry in the English language." E. L. Tinker
+ N Y Times p29 Mr 10 '40 100w
New Yorker 16:108 Mr 16 '40 50w
Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 28 '40 420w

OXFORD UNIVERSITY BRITISH COMMONWEALTH GROUP. Germany's colonial demands; ed. from the reports of the Group by A. L. C. Bullock; with a concluding chapter by Vincent Harlow. 274p il maps $2.75 (7s 6d) Oxford

325.343 Germany—Colonies [40-1248]

This survey of Germany's colonial demands originated in discussions of the British commonwealth group at Oxford university. "Forty-three of them took part in the discussions which went to the making of this book, and seventeen of them wrote the reports on which it is founded. The part played by the handful of senior members of the Group is shown by the concluding chapter, in which Professor Harlow does not so much summarize the conclusions reached as set them in their historical perspective." (Times [London] Lit Sup)

"With the outbreak of war, various aspects of the problem have radically changed, but the basic issues remain. The book can still be recommended both for the statistical and political information which it contains and for the general sanity of its outlook and conclusions." Rupert Emerson

+ Am Pol Sci R 34:147 F '40 360w

Christian Science Monitor p18 Ja 10 '40 200w

Foreign Affairs 18:376 Ja '40 20w

"The whole work is marked by an absence of passion and an honourable zeal for truth."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p498 Ag 26 '39 650w

P

PACE, MRS MILDRED MASTIN. Early American; the story of Paul Revere; il. by Henry S. Gillette. 140p $1.50 Scribner

B or 92 Revere, Paul—Juvenile literature (W) 40-34254

Biography of Paul Revere for young readers. It stresses the part played by Revere in the American fight for liberty, and in his struggle to establish new industries.

Booklist 37:222 Ja 15 '41

"Aside from his celebrated ride, there has been too little known of this patriot of French descent who was also a gifted craftsman. In this easy and informal biography he is shown to younger children as boy and man in Colonial and Revolutionary Boston when each day brought a fresh excitement in which he had a share." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk M 17:33 Ja '41 30w

"A very readable and dramatic account. . . The style is that of fiction but the book will classify as biography. For children eight to twelve." Gertrude Andrus
+ Library J 65:770 S 15 '40 90w

Reviewed by R. A. Hill
Library J 65:853 O 15 '40 10w

"Well written and well proportioned biography. . . The text is not lengthy. It has vitality suitable to its energetic subject, and evokes a particularly lively view of Revolutionary Boston when Revere and the other Sons of Liberty were risking everything for the cause of freedom." I. S.
+ N Y Times p41 N 10 '40 120w

PAGANO, JO. The paesanos; with decorations by Fritz Kredel. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 231p $2 Little

40-11892

A series of sketches relating the adventures, some hilarious, some sad, of an Italian immigrant, the narrator's father, and his paesanos (fellow countrymen), the Maccalucci family, who are so hard on father's purse.

Booklist 37:36 O 1 '40

Bookmark 2:13 Ja '41

"Although his material is simple and his manner anecdotal, Pagano's prose is elaborate and formal to the point of being pedantic. For the most part the effect of this is farcical; occasionally it is distinctly overdone. Frequently, of course, it spills over into caricature, but it is affectionate caricature, a good-humored generous exaggeration of that which is already exaggerated." Milton Rugoff
+ — Books p2 Jl 21 '40 650w

Reviewed by Isabel Paterson
Boston Transcript p13 Jl 10 '40 800w

Reviewed by Jerre Mangione
New Repub 104:29 Ja 6 '41 190w

"Through all the book's humor and inherent irrepressible gayety one is ready still for the deep feeling and simple poignancy of the end. In laughter or a sudden, quickened heartbeat these sketches of Italian-American families in California are lovable and alive." Katherine Woods
+ N Y Times p7 Jl 14 '40 650w

PAGE, CELIA. Uncertain April. 273p $2 Doubleday

40-30179

Charts the course of the life of a shy Vermont librarian, who at thirty-three won a prize of $100,000 and stepped out to see life.

"The complications are not too serious, and any resemblance to harsh reality is purely coincidental." Lisle Bell
Books p17 S 8 '40 50w

"A pleasant and entertaining little story."
+ Boston Transcript p1 O 5 '40 70w

"It is on the whole an innocently amusing little story." C. D.
+ N Y Times p23 S 8 '40 160w

PAGE, CHARLES HUNT. Class and American sociology, from Ward to Ross. 319p $3.50 Dial press

301 Class distinction. Sociology. Sociologists 40-8685

"Mr. Page has placed side by side the views on social class of the 'fathers' of American sociology, i.e., Ward, Sumner, Small, Giddings, Cooley, and Ross. . . It seems that thought on class has revolved largely around the Marxian dichotomy with most of the writers taking a position antagonistic to his. . . All of these old-timers defend and attempt to aggrandize the middle class." Sat R of Lit

"As a general evaluation, I should say that the book is a scholarly, thoroughly documented exposition of a body of sociological and economic thought, indigenous to America, and hitherto not brought together." M. L. Hoch
+ Am Econ R 30:847 D '40 300w

"So far as I know, this is the first monographic work on the theory of social class in the works of American sociologists. As such it is a real contribution to sociological theory in this field. . . As the problem of social class is one of the basic problems of social science, and as cleavages between social classes in this country are widening and deepening, such a study is very timely from the theoretical as well as the practical standpoints. We may wish the author every success in his important enterprise." P. A. Sorokin
+ Am Soc R 5:662 Ag '40 310w

"Despite the freshness of the subject, the style is still heavily academic. But it is good to know that there have been non-Marxians in America who have dealt with this theme. The author has done a necessary job in a craftsmanlike way."
+ — New Repub 103:361 S 9 '40 70w

"An excellent job. . . [Mr. Page's] synopses are as clear as may be in view of the often-muddied thought of the originals; his notes, bibliography, and index are a model of scholarship. The clarifying influence of the guidance of R. M. MacIver is apparent." J. D.
+ Sat R of Lit 22:19 Je 22 '40 320w

"It is interesting to have the writings of six truly great men presented with reference to their interpretation of social classes, but it is disappointing to find their work so distorted and thrown out of focus. If Page had reviewed the early sociologists with his eye on their treatment of social stratification or of social amelioration, he would have produced a better book. His analysis implies that he regards social ills as due to a class system, and considers social classes solely as the products and instruments of exploitation. A more objective approach and some concrete studies of stratification are greatly to be desired." S. A. Queen
— + Survey 76:231 Jl '40 410w

PAGE, LEIGH, and ADAMS, NORMAN ILSLEY. Electrodynamics. 506p $6.50 Van Nostrand

537.6 Electrodynamics 40-12238

"This book is designed as an advanced text in the theoretical aspects of electrodynamics. As there are many excellent texts available in which electrostatics and magnetostatics are treated in great detail, these special subjects have been omitted entirely except insofar as they may be incidental to the study of the general electromagnetic field. The relativistic attitude is adopted from the beginning, and Maxwell's field equations are deduced on the basis of the emission theory. In the authors' opinion, this is the only logical approach to electromagnetic theory. No attempt has been made to include quantum electrodynamics or any of the special results of the quantum theory." (Pref) Index.

N Y New Tech Bks 25:35 Jl '40

Reviewed by V. Rojansky
R of Scientific Instruments 2:337 O '40 850w

PAINTER, SIDNEY. French chivalry. 179p $2 Johns Hopkins

914.4 Chivalry. France—Civilization. Civilization, Medieval 40-8951

" 'Chivalric ideals and practices in medieval France'—to quote the subtitle—form the subject of this study; and the author is at pains to show that such ideas must be spoken of in the plural. . . At almost any given period the ideals of feudal chivalry were three: the knight's, the church's, the lady's. These three impinged upon, opposed and influenced each other. Mr. Painter considers each one separately, and also the criticisms and compromises of their mutual impact." N Y Times

"Well annotated and carefully constructed, this book on chivalric ideals and customs is good reading for any one interested in the composition and development of medieval society."
+ N Y Times p14 Je 23 '40 230w

"Any one interested in the Middle Ages must have wondered casually how far the ages of chivalry were chivalrous, and how nearly that term meant to them what it does to us. For such questioners, or for any one who enjoys browsing in historical byways, Mr. Painter has produced an admirable little book. . . The jacket suggests that this may be used as collateral reading in college history courses; if so, the students to whom it is assigned will be lucky." B. D.
+ Sat R of Lit 22:19 Jl 27 '40 370w
Social Studies 31:288 O '40 20w

"The Johns Hopkins Press has made this book artistically beautiful and delightfully easy to read; it is to be deplored that the text does not cover the ground in any fresh or new way. Dr. Painter writes as a man who has not thought the matter through sufficiently to arrive at just what he does want to say." O. C. Darlington
— + Social Studies 31:375 D '40 600w

PAISLEY, MRS EVA (WILSON). Sanctuary; a finding of life. 254p $2.50 Dutton

818 Country life (W) 40-27581

When she was fifty the author decided to seek the answers to some troublesome questions in her cabin in the Maine woods, twenty-two miles from North Lovell. The cabin had been built for summer occupancy only, but in spite of hardships she lived there some ten years. These essays and sketches, telling of her own experiences and something of the lives of her neighbors and friends, are the result.

Booklist 36:426 Jl 15 '40
Bookmark 2:10 Ja '41

"Many will read [the book] without stopping, and in this tortured time many will read it more than once. . . Northern New England has achieved the fine balance in neighborliness that stands off and yet stands by. The resulting richness of local anecdote keeps the book from being too introspective; these people are not saints, and she loves them as they are. . . There are nubs and knots in the fabric of life in North Lovell, but the fabric is sound. 'I want them to stand as they are,' the record closes, 'men and women who walk a hard road with joy.' " M. L. Becker
+ Books p3 Jl 21 '40 700w

"Her account of gaining a new set of values . . . and her acceptance of a different rhythm of living are not told in the self-conscious, mannered style of the usual writer with a message but with true country restraint. There is no febrile inspirational blah in the essays, but comments on country matters and things of the spirit written with humbleness and from the point of view of a cultivated mind."
+ Boston Transcript p2 Jl 13 '40 130w

"The book is wholly personal and deals sometimes with matters of deep feeling. But its humor and robustness balance any tendency to sentimentality. 'I gained new ideas of value by lugging a gallon of kerosene in a splashy can over a couple of miles of corduroy road,' she remarks, casually. She lives a good life, and she has written a good book."
+ N Y Times p10 Jl 28 '40 430w

"A warm and engaging book, shrewdly written."
+ New Yorker 16:56 Ag 3 '40 30w

"Though not a great book, this is a very thoughtful one. It may be kept for moments when one is in a contemplative mood. Its extremely personal nature makes it as good as several hours of the soul-searching that Mrs Paisley advocates."
+ Springf'd Republican p8 Ag 6 '40 430w
Wis Lib Bul 36:116 D '40

PALENCIA, ISABEL DE. I must have liberty. 488p il $3 Longmans

B or 92 (W) 40-27817

Autobiography of the Spanish authoress and worker for peace and suffrage, who was the first Spanish woman to become an ambassador for her country, when she was appointed minister to Sweden in 1936. Index.

Booklist 37:152 D 15 '40

"In some respects this is the finest of the personal narratives that have thus far come out of Spain, perhaps because it is less concerned with immediate day-to-day problems and includes in its scope more of the world impact of the Spanish tragedy. Inevitably it will be compared with Constancia de la Mora's 'In Place of Splendor.' It can only be said that, while the two autobiographies cover almost the same period and the same events, they are so unlike that any comparison does something of an injustice to one author or the other. There is more tolerance in Senora de Palencia's book; wisdom, one might say. . . I hope that as many people read this book as are reading 'For Whom the Bell Tolls.' For 'I Must Have Liberty' is likewise a story of the courage and the resolution that our times so desperately demand." M. W. Childs
+ Books p2 D 1 '40 800w

"Apparently she wrote this book in her mother's tongue, English. Occasionally the language is a little stiff; but through it all one feels a great personality, and the excitement of the old democratic faith." Lewis Gannett
+ Boston Transcript p11 D 1 '40 850w

"Any woman with a spark of vitality or ambition will envy Isabel de Palencia her courageous character and career. Unfortunately her writing does not always measure up to the significance of her material. Much editing and condensation, particularly of those sections dealing with her childhood and later with Sweden's government, could have been done to advantage. American readers will discover something of a kinship of spirit and point of view between Isabel de Palencia and our own First Lady of the Land in these gripping memoirs." Eleanor Van Alen

Current Hist & Forum 52:3 Ja 10 '41 700w

"The personal narrative that forms the first chapters of the book reveals warmth and generosity and cultivation. The story of her work for the Republic carried on in Madrid, in Geneva, as Spanish minister to Sweden, and as Spanish spokesman in the United States has simplicity and a tragic inevitability that hold the reader with pity and horror. A more mature book than that by Constancia de la Mora, more personal than Alvarez del Vayo's Freedom's Battle, it will serve with them as a buttress for faith in the Loyalist cause and hope for its final triumph." Esther Johnston

+ Library J 65:922 N 1 '40 250w

"It is a book of deep passion and characteristic dignity, quite unmarred by grandiloquence." Ralph Bates

+ Nation 152:106 Ja 25 '41 480w

"It is, above everything else, a chronicle of unflinching courage and unbending determination, the autobiography of a thoroughly modern woman in a still-medieval land. . . 'I Must Have Liberty' is the full and rich, if often intensely personal, account of a life unique in our times, set down with the skill of a professional writer to whom English is as natural a medium of expression as Castilian. . . Her story, well told, is readable, informative and inspiring." Herschel Brickell

+ N Y Times p20 D 8 '40 900w

"Narrated with great warmth and intensity this is probably the most affecting memoir so far deriving from Spain's years of crisis."

+ New Yorker 16:90 N 30 '40 100w

"Senora Palencia gave fully to Spain, to the causes of labor, women, education, and child welfare; but to her own family she was equally unstinting, because hers is an abundant nature. It is this nature, this character, as it is gradually revealed in 'I Must Have Liberty,' that gives quality and stature to a book that is often commonplace in its writings and sometimes baldly factual in its record. . . What Isabel de Palencia does, despite her unfailing modesty, is to make us acquainted with a remarkable woman. Her book is worth knowing because through it we come to know her—and through her, who had a Scottish mother, to know a little more of Spain. But readers should not open 'I Must Have Liberty' with the expectation that they are about to enjoy a literary and emotional experience comparable to that provided by 'In Place of Splendor,' written by Senora Palencia's friend, Constancia de la Mora." B. R. Redman

Sat R of Lit 23:11 D 21 '40 800w

"The book never falters in interest, and its narration is vivid from start to finish. Readers will find themselves appreciative that they have been introduced to so magnetic a personality as that of Isabel de Palencia."

+ Springf'd Republican p10 N 21 '40 800w

PALENCIA, ISABEL DE. Saint Anthony's pig; pictures by Ceferino Palencia Tubau. 60p 75c Longmans

(W) 40-13979

In Spain it is the custom, when people have something to be thankful for, to designate one piglet out of a litter as St Anthony's pig. The pig is fed by the whole village and on St Anthony's day is given to some poor person. This is the story of one St Anthony's pig and its adopted friends, and how they brought good luck to old Antonia.

"A merry, tiny little book by the Spanish patriot whose autobiography, 'I Must Have Liberty,' appears this fall. Her husband's gay little pictures, red-brown like the type against the cream paper, help to create for little children the atmosphere of a kind little Spanish village." M. L. Becker

+ Books p7 S 1 '40 260w

Cath World 152:373 D '40 110w

Reviewed by A. C. Moore

Horn Bk M 16:431 N '40 20w

"A pleasant animal story to read aloud to children from four to six and one which those of eight will enjoy reading themselves. . . The line drawings of which there is one to each page portray the Spanish countryside." E. G. Mullan

+ Library J 65:715 S 1 '40 150w

"A book which possesses absolute integrity is Saint Anthony's Pig." R. A. Hill

+ Library J 65:847 O 15 '40 70w

"This is a pleasant little tale to acquaint the very young with a picturesque custom, but it would have been much improved by a crisper style and a brisker climax. Attractively presented in a shape and size to fit easily into small hands, it is illustrated by Ceferino Palencia Tubau with line drawings which add much humor and liveliness to the text." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p10 Ag 18 '40 250w

PALLIS, MARCO. Peaks and lamas. 428p il maps $5 Knopf [18s Cassell]

915.15 Tibet—Description and travel. Lamaism. Buddha and Buddhism 40-11482

This book of travel in Tibet combines three interests: the adventures of mountain climbing, a study of Buddhism, and an account of Tibetan art and ways of living. The book covers, chronologically, two trips made by the author in 1933 and in 1936. Index.

Booklist 37:10 S '40

"Prejudiced as he is in favor of the Tibetans, Tibetan Buddhism, Tibetan art, architecture, diet, clothes, way of life and everything else, Mr. Pallis is honest enough to admit that there are vicious rogues among the lamas and a good deal of ignorance of doctrine among the laity. At any rate there is a tremendous amount of exact information in these 428 pages, lavishly illustrated with beautiful photographs about Tibetan 'Tradition' and art which, so far as I know, is available nowhere else in the English language." Rodney Gilbert

+ Books p3 Jl 21 '40 1500w

"Mr. Pallis was not disillusioned by his Tibetan experiences because he had a fair idea of what he would see and did not come with preconceived romantic notions. With no great skill as a writer, he has nevertheless a direct and honest appreciation of the genuine virtues of the people and the grandeur of the scenery enabling him to portray them graphically." Isabel Paterson

+ Boston Transcript p11 Jl 16 '40 700w

" 'Peaks and Lamas' is not what would be called a 'pious' book, but it is more than a travel book. Mr. Pallis has penetrated to the heart of the Tibetan people (even though his travels were restricted to bordering countries) and in beautiful, flowing words presents them for the readers' attention and admiration. A hundred magnificent photographs adorn a book that deserves careful attention." P. J. Searles

+ Boston Transcript p2 Ag 3 '40 260w

"This is a very valuable book which deserves study, and at the same time gives continual pleasure to read." W. H. D. Rouse

+ Manchester Guardian p3 N 24 '39 650w

"This author's observation is never superficial or naive. His book is interesting first of all because it has substance. From substance, zest, variety and novel experience is built a structure of enormously good reading and new knowledge from far away." Katherine Woods

+ N Y Times p1 Jl 21 '40 1350w

New Yorker 16:68 Jl 27 '40 20w

PALLIS, MARCO—Continued

"With its superbly beautiful photographs, its scholarly writing, and the sensitive perception of its author, [this book] is a most happy combination of all that makes a book a worthy and delightful companion."
+ Scientific Bk Club R 11:3 Ag '40 450w

Reviewed by Michael Spender
Spec 163:908 D 22 '39 900w

Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 7 '40 40w

Time 36:62 Jl 29 '40 380w

Times [London] Lit Sup p645 N 4 '39 900w

PALMER, BENJAMIN WHIPPLE. Marshall and Taney; statesmen of the law. 281p $3.50 Univ. of Minn. [16s Oxford]

B or 92 Marshall, John. Taney, Roger Brooke. U.S. Supreme court 39-30985

For descriptive note see Annual for 1939.

"This book will have value chiefly for the general reader who has not the time or the interest to read carefully documented, full-length biographies of Chief Justices Marshall and Taney. It is vigorously and pungently written and seems, in the main, to be an accurate portrayal. It is not a work of conventional scholarship. It is based almost exclusively upon materials already familiar to scholars in the field. No bibliography or footnote citations are provided, and many sources, even of quotations, are indicated only in the most general way or are not indicated at all." C. B. Swisher
Am Hist R 45:717 Ap '40 260w

Reviewed by W. O. Farber
Am Pol Sci R 34:160 F '40 340w

"Mr. Palmer contributes little more than a brief restatement of the facts and the reasoning in the epoch-making cases in which these greatest of our chief justices participated. Much of his volume consists of quotations from their familiar opinions. If he had, in his intensely vital style, paraphrased most of these opinions, which now appear prosaic, his book would have been improved in readability. The most valuable part of the volume is the introduction, wherein the author discusses the connections between judicial decision and judicial personality." C. A. M. Ewing
+ — Ann Am Acad 208:219 Mr '40 500w

"There is very little that is new in this book, but Mr. Palmer does succeed in writing an interesting volume and in showing that these two justices were statesmen of the law." J. C.
+ Commonweal 32:105 My 24 '40 190w

"Marshall and Taney cannot be compared in importance to other existing biographies of the two great chief justices. But if we accept it as a genial, occasionally bitter, but always well-informed picture of the life that existed around these two men, the book becomes a pleasant literary effort. It is rich in anecdote and never fails to wander down side alleys of interesting information of almost any variety."
+ — Current Hist 51:7 Mr '40 120w

"Even as a piece of popularization this book is decidedly unsatisfactory. It is replete with errors of fact, with unconsidered dogmatism, with dangerous oversimplification. It fails to present a reasoned interpretation of either of the justices with which it deals; it fails to confront intelligently any of the numerous questions of judicial practice or constitutional law which it raises; it fails to state, simply and accurately, the facts essential to our understanding of judges of history." H. S. Commager
— N Y Times p14 Mr 17 '40 400w

"Teachers in American history will find this book valuable because it presents a more 'human,' less legalistic, method of interpreting the place of the judges and the courts in the national story." R. F. Nichols
+ Social Educ 4:217 Mr '40 450w

Times [London] Lit Sup p199 Ap 20 '40 130w

"Despite limitations, the book presents a better perspective of Taney's services than is usually provided in standard accounts, and thus merits the attention of students of law and history." J. E. Wisan
+ — Yale Law J 49:783 F '40 1000w

PALMER, MRS ELIZABETH. Up the river to danger [il. by Richard Holberg]. 184p $1.75 Scribner 40-30968

The scene of this story for boys and girls is laid in Minnesota during the Civil war when Indian raids were still to be feared. Albin Anderson, left by his father with an old uncle who did not understand boys, ran away to stay with the family of another uncle. When the Sioux went on the warpath Albin helped to save the family from an Indian massacre, and thereby won back his lost self-respect.

Booklist 37:222 Ja 15 '41

"Vigor, fun and real boy nature enliven a place and period not often represented in historical fiction for this age. It may be said of Mrs. Palmer as these children say of their grandmother: 'When she told a story, she brought a glorious world before their eyes . . . and to it all she added a sense of reality, a vivid feeling of having been there when it happened.' This is the way eight-to-twelves want their history. The pictures are dramatic, some in color." M. L. Becker
+ Books p8 D 15 '40 320w

"This is a pleasant story for girls and boys from nine to eleven in spite of its realistic Indian killings. It has lively conversation and is filled with local lore. It would have been more useful if the author had sketched in more facts near the beginning to give it specific time and place for readers who are unfamiliar with the background of the locality." J. L. Sauer
+ — Library J 65:770 S 15 '40 140w

Reviewed by R. A. Hill
Library J 65:850 O 15 '40 20w

PALMER, MRS FLORENCE (GLASS). Spring will come again. 422p $2.50 Bobbs 40-5226

Story of cotton growers in Alabama, beginning in 1880. William Day sold the gold buttons from his father's Confederate uniform in order to buy cotton lands in Alabama, where the land was good, and freed slaves provided plenty of labor. The story describes his struggle to gain freedom and substance for himself and his family.

Booklist 36:306 Ap 1 '40

"An honest, carefully detailed and often pedestrian account of the life of a Southern community." Lorine Pruette
+ — Books p16 Mr 3 '40 450w

"The book is solid, careful work from beginning to end. Like much solid, careful work, however, it tends toward heaviness and monotony. Most of it seems merely preliminary, but all the preliminaries lead to little in the way of climax or dramatic action, as they are not very interesting in themselves. In short—to borrow a figure—a great deal of time is spent on warming up the teapot, but one never really gets any tea." Dorothy Greenwald
— + Boston Transcript p11 Mr 14 '40 340w

"The scheme of the novel is ambitious, but one feels that Mrs. Palmer has attempted a task far beyond her present powers, assumed a burden beneath which she struggles wearily and ineffectually. The novel is painstaking, conscientious, apparently the result of a great deal of labor, but it has neither spirit nor freshness. . . Mrs. Palmer has tried to do something well worth doing; it is a pity that her book should be without the vitality and imaginative power which can make the dead past live again." L. M. Field
— + N Y Times p24 Mr 10 '40 600w

"The author's 'Life and Miss Celeste' [Book Review Digest, 1937] showed her insight into provincial character; 'Spring Will Come Again' shows her comprehension of broader influences which shape the character of a section. She has shrewd knowledge of the Bourbons, those who salvaged material advantages from the Civil War, and who not always invested their capital wisely." Frank Daniel

+ Sat R of Lit 21:14 Mr 9 '40 340w

PALMER, JOHN LESLIE. The man with two names [Eng title: Mandragora]. 332p $2 Dodd [8s 3d Gollancz]

40-2009

Detective story.

"Mr. Lawson-Newman is no Jekyll-Hyde, and his daughter, Marjorie, is only so-so as a heroine. There's a hideous revenge, poetic justice, quite a bit of cautionary material and police work involving Marseilles, Port Said, Geneva, Vancouver and Washington. . . Toward the end we guess Mr. Palmer just gave up and let the melodrama sprout wherever it would do the most good." Will Cuppy

— Books p12 Ja 14 '40 180w

"Maybe it's childish of me, but I maintain that it is not fair of an author to mistreat characters he has gone out of his way to make delightful. John Palmer does just this in 'The Man with Two Names,' and thereby detracts from an otherwise excellent book. The plot is vaguely reminiscent of 'Laburnum Grove,' but it lacks the sprightliness of that tale." Marian Wiggin

+ — Boston Transcript p2 Ja 13 '40 60w

Reviewed by Harold Brighouse

Manchester Guardian p3 F 13 '40 170w

"This is in no sense a mystery story but rather a tragedy of crime and punishment. The best detective work in it is done by the Frenchman, Lafarge, who admires the routine work of Scotland Yard but has no respect for 'cricket and the old school tie.'" Isaac Anderson

N Y Times p20 Ja 21 '40 200w

"Thrilling, even if it does miss being hammy by only a hair."

— + New Yorker 15:72 Ja 20 '40 40w

"Methods of British narcotic squad interestingly described. Character competently drawn, and story moves deliberately to logical end. Dramatic."

+ Sat R of Lit 21:20 Ja 13 '40 40w

"Tales of smuggling and illegal adventure are all the more exciting for having authentic details, and Mr. Palmer's account of the latest ingenuities used for distributing drugs is an instructive description of the way in which crime marches on—even if it still doesn't pay." Desmond Hawkins

+ Spec 164:262 F 23 '40 160w

"The movement of the story is inclined to be a little jerky, perhaps because it alternates from time to time between a thriller and a serious psychological study, and the dialogue is rather on the formal side. But it is a skilful piece of work for all that, carrying lightly enough a great deal of thought on the causes of the traffic in this country and France at the present time."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p89 F 17 '40 360w

PALMER, MRS MARY (DAVIES), ed. Writing and action: a documentary anthology. 349p il $2.50 Norton [8s 6d Allen, G]

308 Social problems [39-16874]

"Mrs. Palmer's aim . . . is to give a new kind of anthology—an anthology of prose written by men who wished to persuade and to bring about reforms; her earliest writer is Sir Thomas More, her latest Professor Lancelot Hogben. . . Mrs. Palmer divides [her selections] into chronological sections, to each of which she supplies a short historical introduction; the headings indicate the subject: —the morning of the modern world; the dawn of democracy; science and toleration; the Augustan age (represented by one extract only; was it because that age was the happiest of all?); from peasant to pauper; the rights of man; progress and poverty; the liberal spirit; the collapse of complacency." Times [London] Lit Sup

Reviewed by V. S. Pritchett

Christian Science Monitor p12 N 30 '38 170w

"Reading and analyzing the passages included in 'Writing and Action' is a provocative exercise in clear thinking and provides an excellent condensed retrospect of the growth of the Anglo-Saxon heart in matters of social justice." E. L. Tinker

+ N Y Times p25 Mr 17 '40 800w

"Mrs. Palmer's volume is not light reading; it is something far more satisfactory than that."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p704 N 5 '38 800w

PANCOAST, ELINOR, and LINCOLN, ANNE E. The incorrigible idealist; Robert Dale Owen in America. 150p $2 Principia

B or 92 Owen, Robert Dale 40-12026

This is a brief account of a son of the English reformer and socialist who founded the socialistic community at New Harmony, Indiana, in 1825. Robert Dale Owen is viewed as journalist, lawmaker, diplomat, pamphleteer, and mystic. He was born in Glasgow, Scotland, in 1801, and died near Lake George in 1877. The book is based upon family documents, letters, and diaries, and includes a list of sources, and one of Owen's publications.

"The book represents great industry, is comprehensive in its scope, and is copiously documented. However, considering the adequacy of the resources which the authors had at their disposal, the brevity, the frequent sketchiness and the absence of background material greatly reduce its significance as a definitive biography of one of America's most interesting characters of the nineteenth century. Nevertheless, it is welcomed as an addition to the literature about reformers and utopians." J. O. Hertzler

— + Ann Am Acad 212:273 N '40 490w

"The book begins at about the period when Threading My Way, Owen's autobiography, ends—with the New Harmony days—so that we learn almost nothing of his extremely important early life. There are rather extensive treatments of his career in politics and his interest in spiritualism, but one regrets to find the sections on his early radicalism and his part in the emancipation movement rather sketchy. In spite of these deficiencies, however, the book fills, for the time at least, a serious gap in the history of the American nineteenth century." G. K. Smart

New Eng Q 13:569 S '40 700w

PANNETON, PHILIPPE (RINGUET, pseud). Thirty acres; tr. by Felix and Dorothea Walter. 324p $2.50 Macmillan

40-27711

Story of life in a small French-Canadian farming community near Quebec, beginning before the World war and continuing into the present. Euchariste Moisan's life ran fairly smoothly on his beloved thirty acre farm until the death of his wife. After that he grew unwise, lost his farm, and had to go and live with one of his sons in "the States," always hoping that the time would come when he could return to his own people.

Booklist 37:69 O 15 '40

PANNETON, PHILIPPE—Continued

"'Thirty Acres' won a French Academy award in 1939 and has been translated into German, Dutch and Spanish. This wide success would seem to be due not only to the authenticity of the regional picture, but to the fact that this book is a timely study of a conquered minority working out its salvation on that permanent ground of the soul and the soil." Muriel Chatain

+ Books p10 O 20 '40 750w

"Thirty acres is the best Canadian novel that has appeared in a considerable time. It is a story, soberly and quietly told, of a family of Quebec farmers between the years 1885 and 1930; but it has also a broader significance as a sympathetic but objective study of the changes imposed on a traditional rustic culture by the impact of a developing urban and mechanical civilization." L. A. MacKay

+ Canadian Forum 20:323 Ja '41 650w

Reviewed by L. E. Cannon

Christian Century 57:1378 N 6 '40 150w

Christian Science Monitor p11 D 14 '40 550w

"For readers who like simple, direct tales of farm life." A. T. Davidson

Library J 65:652 Ag '40 100w

Reviewed by Wilfrid Gibson

Manchester Guardian p7 O 25 '40 130w

"An informing, cool novel, written in the solid, classical tradition."

+ New Repub 103:566 O 21 '40 40w

Reviewed by J. S. Southron

N Y Times p6 O 13 '40 750w

"Although this book is a translation from the French, it flows easily and with none of the stiffness too often present in translations. The story it has to tell is not strange nor startlingly new: but it gives a good vivid picture of an unfamiliar people, living solitary and hidden lives cut off from almost every thing but their own villages."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p629 D 14 '40 300w

PANOFSKY, ERWIN. Studies in iconology; humanistic themes in the art of the renaissance. 262p il $3.50 (15s) Oxford

704 Art, Renaissance. Humanism 40-2755

"This book is composed of a number of separate articles, some previously published, which form a closely knit unit. Dr. Panofsky deals with the development of subject matter in art from antiquity up to the Renaissance. . . He not only describes the changes which occur in representations like that of 'Father Time' and that of the 'Blind Cupid,' but he explains them with reference to the general intellectual background—in which literature and philosophy play a most important part. A group of paintings by Piero di Cosimo, Titian's puzzling picture in the Borghese Gallery, usually—apparently not quite without reason—called 'Sacred and Profane Love,' Michelangelo's monuments for Julius II and the Medici are interpreted. The Florentine Neo-Platonism as represented by the writings of Martilio Fierino and Piero della Mirandola and the different classical and post-classical traditions of mythology and their influence on art are discussed." J Religion

---

"The book is a masterly study in methodology in this field—a study which should be of the greatest interest to philosophers—and, at the same time, a perfectly fascinating exploration of certain Renaissance monuments and modes of thought in their larger historical context." T. M. G.

+ J Philos 36:717 D 21 '39 260w

"One has to admire the author for his extraordinary intellectual level, for his prodigious command of classical, medieval, and later literature—he gives the most delightful quotations in almost any important language—and last but not least, for his clear, lively, and often extremely witty writing. The book must be recommended to everybody interested in the history of the human mind." Ulrich Middeldorf

+ J Religion 20:212 Ap '40 290w

Reviewed by Leicester Bradner

Mod Philol 38:103 Ag '40 550w

Special Libraries 31:337 S '40

PANTER-DOWNES, MOLLIE (MRS CLARE ROBINSON). Letter from England. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 259p $2 Little

940.5481 European war, 1939—Personal narratives. European war, 1939—Great Britain (W) 40-27738

Collection of the London Letters from The New Yorker, covering events in England week by week, from September 3, 1939 to September 14, 1940. They show the moods of people in London, for the most part, with some excursions to the country. Altogether they provide a current history of the war in terms of the people who are living it.

Booklist 37:87 N 1 '40

"With history exploding in our very ears, a book such as this becomes as invaluable as it is absorbing because one is apt so easily to lose the sense both of time and of perspective. Miss Mollie Panter-Downes's London letters in 'The New Yorker' have been read eagerly week by week, but in book form they take on new meaning." Iris Barry

+ Books p6 N 10 '40 850w

Christian Science Monitor p10 D 14 '40 280w

"This book not only gives the whole flavor of a country and a period but also answers the questions of the curious about details of everyday life. After reading this book it is possible to say of war-torn London: 'Now, I know what it is like.'" Diana Forbes-Robertson

+ Current Hist & Forum 52:2 N 26 '40 350w

Reviewed by Mary MacCarthy

New Repub 103:633 N 4 '40 370w

"Her writing is sparkling and good-humored, and full of sly observation of little details that others, in the newspapers and on the radio seemed to miss. Her letters from London have improved as they have continued, and now, after a year, they are better than ever in collected form." Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.

+ N Y Times p3 O 20 '40 500w

New Yorker 16:104 O 12 '40 40w

"An unpretentious and wise little book." André Maurois

+ Sat R of Lit 22:10 O 12 '40 600w

PANUNZIO, CONSTANTINE MARIA. Major social institutions; an introduction. 609p $3.50 Macmillan

301 Sociology 39-24216

Textbook in sociology. "This study focuses attention upon the major institutions. . . The emphasis is also mainly on the institutions as found in our time. . . The book is divided into five parts. Part I introduces the concept 'social institution,' describes the social institutional order, and gives a schematic view of the entire work; Part II discusses the originating and conditioning factors; Part III presents a detailed analysis of eight institutions; Part IV considers the social institutional or cultural processes; Part V depicts the salient features of modern Western culture and briefly considers the various theories as to its future." (General introd) Glossary. Indexes.

"It is a pity that such an interesting volume should be marred by so many errors of fact; by unwise selection of authorities; and by the omission of what by any standard of judgment should have been included. The important sections dealing with biological and anthropological matters should have been submitted to experts for critical reading before being sent to the printers and out into an unsuspecting world. . . Throughout the book there are weak places which need tightening up. But however good the remainder of the book were, it could not compensate for the deficiencies of the first hundred pages. There is a useful glossary of terms. The book has been very tastefully produced by the publishers. A thorough revision of this book would make it one for which there is definitely a place." M. F. Ashley-Montagu

— + Am Anthropol 42:349 Ap '40 500w

Reviewed by N. B. DeNood
Am J Soc 46:626 Ja '41 390w

Reviewed by S. W. Reed
Am Soc R 5:308 Ap '40 750w

"This is the most comprehensive and systematic textbook in the field. . . Particular limitations of this book should be indicated precisely because of its general excellence. The chapter on 'races of men' . . . is especially weak. . . Like so many writers in this field, Panunzio has not resisted the temptation to make his book an omnium gatherum. This involves occasional brief and wholly inadequate sorties into various peripheral fields. . . In general, there is little evidence that this work which, despite its encyclopedism, presumably stresses the functional approach, has profited from the analyses of the functional anthropologists and sociologists. These comments are not made in a spirit of captious criticism. They are intended to amplify the reviewer's estimate that, although Panunzio's textbook is at present pre-eminent in a field which has few acceptable texts, a new edition would profit by extensive revision and elaboration." R. K. Merton

+ — Ann Am Acad 208:240 Mr '40 560w
Christian Century 56:1410 N 15 '39 170w

"Various mechanical aspects of the volume add greatly to its value and appeal. The analytical table of contents, bold-face topical headings, suggestions to students and teachers, and above all the splendid glossary of technical terms deserve special commendation. Secondary school teachers will find this book more than ordinarily useful as an authoritative reference work for the social studies library. And college instructors will recognize it as an exceptionally stimulating text for beginning students in sociology or in social science survey." E. G. Olsen

+ Social Educ 4:222 Mr '40 450w

Reviewed by Hornell Hart
Social Forces 18:578 My '40 1000w

"The present reviewer would not care to teach from this 'welcome addition' to an already overloaded shelf of introductory sociology textbooks. Wherever he has tested it against his own special knowledge he has found it to be cursory, superficial, frequently misleading and in any case sterile of new ideas." E. Y. Hartshorne

— Social Studies 31:142 Mr '40 500w

PANUNZIO, CONSTANTINE MARIA. Self-help coöperatives in Los Angeles; Wade Church [and] Louis Wasserman, research assistants. 148p il map pa $1.50 Univ. of Calif.

334 Cooperation 39-28087

"The present work is a highly specialized study of the significance of self-help co-operation carried on in spontaneously organized units of unemployed workers in Los Angeles County, California. The survey covered over one thousand members of self-help co-operative organizations and reached 58 per cent of all the units in Los Angeles County and more than 13 per cent of all self-help co-operative members who were not receiving help from the county. The research was directed to persons rather than to organizations, in order to ascertain how the units affected the lives of their members. The emphasis in this study is thus upon the relation of individuals to the self-help organizations, rather than the operation of the organizations." Ann Am Acad

---

Reviewed by E. W. Bakké
Am Soc R 5:300 Ap '40 280w

"The book is a valuable study of a specialized phase of producers' or workers' cooperation, and is to be commended for its careful research method, its contents, and its scholarship." A. E. Albrecht

+ Ann Am Acad 205:190 S '39 430w

PANZER, MARTIN. Father knows better. 210p il $2 House of Moreau, Young, 11 E. 44th st, N.Y.

817 40-12398

"The attempts of a young father to improve upon mother's impractical feminine ways, his complex mechanisms for baby's bath, his technological walking machinery, his experiments in telescoping baby's meals and his scientific baby psychology will bring yells of responsive joy from anyone who has ever had anything to do with a baby. But baby refuses to be mechanized and knows nothing about efficiency engineering, consequently father has to give up, let mother be Boss and conclude sadly that Mother Knows Best." Boston Transcript

---

"Many a true word is spoken in jest, and Martin Panzer manages to slip the occasional true word into 'Father Knows Better' without seriously interfering with his more or less continuous broad comedy of bringing up a baby."

+ Books p9 Jl 7 '40 100w

Reviewed by Albert Dietz
+ Boston Transcript p2 My 18 '40 120w
Springf'd Republican p7e S 15 '40 90w

PARKER, MRS VALERIA (HOPKINS). For daughters and mothers. 138p $1.50 Bobbs

136.7354 Girls. Adolescence. Sex instruction (W) 40-11746

A woman physician discusses the facts of sex hygiene, venereal disease, personality adjustment and social behavior during adolescence, and personal hygiene, for both mothers and daughters.

"It is not surprising that Dr. Valeria Parker, who has long been a popular lecturer to groups of young people, would be the author of such a readable and sane book, though it is surprising that any author could manage to talk to both mothers and daughters at one time in a way that appeals to both. . . There is little preaching in the book and at no point is one aware that the author is focusing unduly on some unpleasant duty that should be performed. Here is exactly the book which would be expected from a person who has long been of assistance to girls and their mothers." Leona Baumgartner

+ Am J Pub Health 30:1251 O '40 200w

"This reviewer sincerely approves it as sound doctrine for the guidance of mothers. Whether they should give it to their daughters or read it to them or interpret it, is for the mother to judge. In any event most if not all of the information and inspiration herein contained is needed by the adolescent girl and I do not know where the mother can more readily find it in the reverential form in which she might be happy to transmit it." E. L. Keyes

+ Commonweal 33:237 D 20 '40 360w

"A dignified little book by a woman physician. . . Its wisdom is sound, with examples drawn from modern life, but it has not the ready appeal of such informal style as Dr. Strain's Love at the Threshold or Miss Pierce's It's More Fun When You Know the Rules. . . I recommend it to supplement, but not supplant, the two named." Maude Adams

+ — Library J 65:661 Ag '40 160w

Reviewed by E. H. Swift
Survey 76:342 N '40 330w

PARKES, HENRY BAMFORD. Marxism: an autopsy [Eng title: Marxism: a postmortem]. 300p $3 Houghton [7s 6d Allen, G]

335.4 Communism. Marx, Karl 39-27994

For descriptive note see Annual for 1939.

"Despite the flamboyance of the title, the book gives a thorough-going discussion of the social movements of our age and a penetrating review of the Marxian system of thought." S. Perlman

+ — Am Econ R 30:130 Mr '40 250w

"The importance of this book is not determined by the number of original ideas expressed in it. Dr. Parkes himself emphasizes how much he is indebted to Borkenau, for example, for his description of the activities of the Third International. Nevertheless, the volume is useful for its systematic summaries of critiques opposed to Marxism. Dr. Parkes writes clearly and concisely, simplifying in a pleasing manner issues sometimes artificially complicated." Waldemar Gurian

+ Am Pol Sci R 34:154 F '40 500w

Reviewed by L. L. Snyder

Ann Am Acad 208:197 Mr '40 600w

Foreign Affairs 18:566 Ap '40 20w

"This is another contribution to the growing critical American literature on Marxism, and one of the most interesting. Dr. Parkes's criticisms of Marxism, especially in its Communist application, are often just, shrewd, and suggestive. Yet the total effect is unsatisfactory." Lewis Corey

— + Nation 150:601 My 11 '40 1500w

"This is a straightforward and readable criticism, written primarily from an American angle." Barbara Wootton

+ Nature 146:508 O 19 '40 600w

Reviewed by Norbert Guterman

New Repub 102:413 Mr 25 '40 1100w

"Mr. Parkes's 'autopsy' . . . cannot compare in depth, penetration and rigor of thought with Von Mises's masterly refutation of socialism, to the extent that the two volumes cover similar ground. But it is an important volume and one of the ablest direct replies to Marxism ever to appear in America. . . In his attempt to formulate a constructive program Mr. Parkes is less happy." Henry Hazlitt

+ — N Y Times p22 Ap 7 '40 220w

Times [London] Lit Sup p382 Ag 10 '40 800w

PARMELEE, JULIUS HALL. The modern railway. 730p map $4 Longmans

385 Railroads—U.S. 39-27708

"The present volume aims to describe and explain rail transport in the United States, what our railways are, what functions they undertake, and how they work. In bringing to date of publication the status of every aspect discussed, the text is intended not alone as a schedule of pertinent phases and events, and a condensed encyclopedia of background knowledge, but also a demonstration, for present and future students, of procedure in observing and reporting trends—standard sources of fact, materials, methods of inquiry and presentation, and available processes." (Pref) Since 1920 the author has served as an officer of the Bureau of Railway Economics maintained by the railway companies of the United States. Index.

"Dr. Parmelee has done a very fine job of presenting a picture of the railroad industry by a railroad man; and the question may properly be asked: who is better qualified to do this? As former Commissioner Meyer says in his foreword, the book represents the railroad point of view, but is not unduly critical of the other agencies, and 'deserves to be widely read.'" Herbert Ashton

+ Am Econ R 30:609 S '40 550w

"The book is factual, and many figures and tables are used. To this commentator, such treatment is desirable because it tends to avoid oversimplification of the subjects considered and of the problems analyzed. It avoids the glib generalizations based upon inadequate data and spacious rationalization about economic problems, for which it should be praised." G. L. Wilson

+ Ann Am Acad 209:218 My '40 350w

Reviewed by W. H. Clark

Boston Transcript p1 F 3 '40 160w

Eng N 125:77 N 21 '40 100w

N Y New Tech Bks 25:53 O '40

"The Modern Railway should prove of real interest to officers and employees of the transportation industries, to shippers, to regulatory authorities, and to students of transportation. It is an excellent reference book and it will serve as a college text for a general course in the field of railroad transportation, provided the course is not designed to include a full discussion of railroad rates and other charges and of railroad freight services and shipping practices." G. G. Huebner

+ Social Studies 31:188 Ap '40 350w

PARMENIDES ELEATES. Plato and Parmenides; tr. with an introd. and a running commentary by Francis Macdonald Cornford. (Int. lib. of psychology, philosophy and scientific method) 251p $3.75 Harcourt [12s 6d Routledge]

184.1 Eleatics. Plato [40-4021]

"Parmenides' Way of Truth and Plato's Parmenides." (Subtitle) "This is a useful volume bringing together a classic source and a classic critique of Eleaticism for mutual reference and comparison. The two parts are connected by a brief chapter on 'Zeno and Pythagorean Atomism,' showing the essential weaknesses in the reasoning of Parmenides which Plato wished to expose in his dialogue. The author has followed the same procedure that he employed so instructively in his editions of the Theaetetus and Sophist, and the Timaeus, interspersing his translation with critical and historical comments." (J Philos) Index.

J Philos 37:77 F 1 '40 800w

Times [London] Lit Sup p432 Jl 22 '39 700w

PARMENTER, CHRISTINE (WHITING) (MRS K. R. PARMENTER). As the seed is sown. 389p $2.50 Crowell

40-32088

Study of the contrasted lives of two people: the girl who lived in a contented household where she was cherished and loved by a happily married father and mother; and the boy who lived across the street, part of the time with his father and the father's second wife. The rest of his time was spent in a house on Beacon Hill, with his mother and her second husband. The effects of the broken home upon the sensitive boy are traced from his childhood to young manhood.

"Mrs. Parmenter's fifteenth novel will not disappoint her host of followers. . . It is chatty, leisurely, homey writing, and no strain on anyone's mind."

Atlantic N '40 90w

"The novel is effectively presented. . . It is written with true sympathy and understanding." Lisle Bell

+ Books p17 S 22 '40 310w

"The whole tale is told in retrospect, with Barbara and Lee alternating as narrators. This lapse of time detracts from the poignancy of feeling somewhat, and there is a pleasant sameness in the style that is unfair to Lee. . . However, Mrs. Parmenter's new novel is beautifully balanced between sunshine and rain; while in looking back the good things stand out, just as Mary Haney says they always do when you look back upon your own life. It's a comforting thought in which to wrap a dear and comfortable novel." O. O.

+ Boston Transcript p1 S 21 '40 480w

"The book is quite free of that mawkish sentimentality, so often displayed in any discussion of a social problem. Mrs. Parmenter is to be congratulated on having achieved her object in a story so natural and so charming."

+ Cath World 152:252 N '40 220w

Christian Century 57:1146 S 18 '40 70w

Commonweal 33:157 N 29 '40 40w

"The book gives a smooth feeling of leisurely life and a perspective on the last twenty years unusually effective." Charlotte Dean

+ N Y Times p13 S 15 '40 280w

Springf'd Republican p7e O 6 '40 300w

PARRISH, MORRIS LONGSTRETH, and MILLER, ELIZABETH V. Wilkie Collins and Charles Reade. ltd ed 365p il 60s Constable [English publication]

012 Collins, Wilkie—Bibliography. Reade, Charles—Bibliography

"In the middle of the nineteenth century two Englishmen, born within ten years of each other, began their separate careers as professional writers. At a number of points their histories show striking parallels. . . These twin Victorians have now been joined in a manner that insures their being remembered both as dramatists and novelists. M. L. Parrish, with the assistance of Elizabeth V. Miller, has enshrined them in a single catalogue based upon his famous collection at Dormy House, Pine Valley, N. J. All their first editions, English and American, as well as certain early and variant editions, are described in elaborate detail, and even the handful of titles not at Dormy House are listed so as to complete the canon." N Y Times

---

"The thoroughness and evident authority with which the subjects are treated leaves little doubt that this catalogue will constitute their official bibliographies." Philip Brooks

+ N Y Times p13 S 1 '40 1450w

Discussion by Philip Brooks

N Y Times p27 S 29 '40 600w

Times [London] Lit Sup p272 Je 1 '40 1000w

PARSONS, FRANCIS. Six men of Yale; foreword by Charles Seymour. 145p il $2 Yale univ. press [9s Oxford]

920 Williams, Elisha. Stiles, Ezra. Silliman, Benjamin. Phelps, Edward John. Dwight, Timothy. Beers, Henry Augustin 39-32247

Sketches of the lives of six Yale men, covering the period from 1694 to 1926. Contents: Elisha Williams; Ezra Stiles; The young Silliman in Nelson's England, 1805-1806; Edward J. Phelps; The second President Dwight; Henry Augustin Beers.

"There is a pronounced warmth of style in the treatment of the three latter figures, who were known personally by the author. He manages to convey with charm and intimacy, the flavor of each personality, and a sense of what their work meant to each of these men. Taken together these lives give us glimpses into what Yale must have been like from its earliest days up to the present." Murdock Schlesinger

+ Boston Transcript p2 My 25 '40 280w

New Eng Q 13:379 Je '40 280w

"Mr Parsons reveals qualities as an essayist which are exceptional and far above those associated with the merely sentimental portraiture of beloved college figures."

+ Springf'd Republican p8 Ap 16 '40 550w

PARSONS, WILLIAM BARCLAY. Engineers and engineering in the renaissance. 661p il maps $8 Williams & Wilkins

620.94 Engineering. Renaissance 40-1198

"Dealing with a neglected and relatively unknown aspect of the Renaissance, this remarkable posthumous volume calls attention to the technical achievements in civil engineering, mining engineering, the invention of machines, river-control, canal-building, bridge-building, and structural engineering on the continent of Europe. The volume is illustrated with reproductions of plates from old books and of pages from notebooks, principally those of Leonardo, to discuss whose achievements and projects requires whole chapters." Boston Transcript

---

"As we do not often appreciate how much we owe to the past, Gen. Parsons performs a notable service in bringing the debt to mind by his monumental study of one chapter of the history, that of the Revival of Learning." F. E. Schmitt

+ Books p9 Je 9 '40 750w

Boston Transcript p3 Mr 16 '40 200w

Reviewed by J. K. Finch

Eng N 124:68 F 29 '40 1300w

N Y New Tech Bks 25:22 Ap '40

PARTON, ETHEL. The lost locket; the Newburyport of 1830; with il. by Margaret Platt. 317p $2 Viking

(W) 40-32145

Lively story of Newburyport, Massachusetts, in 1830. A mysterious Major appeared in town one day, escorting two children, one of them his daughter. Soon afterwards the Newburyport children became involved in a mystery. The story is based on a true instance, the case of the Keniston brothers, in which Daniel Webster was lawyer for the defense.

Booklist 37:222 Ja 15 '41

"The pictures have a sturdiness seldom seen in outline drawings, more often used to indicate something fragile. These young Yankees have their feet firmly on their native soil." M. L. Becker

+ Books p13 N 10 '40 280w

"This is an unusually swift-moving story, with a touch of mystery and it is eventful enough for the most avid reader." F. B. Sloan

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 N 14 '40 90w

Churchman 154:4 D 15 '40 40w

"While the time is 1830 when people rode in sleighs instead of automobiles and portraits were cut in silhouette, events seemed as exciting as they do today and wits were as sparkling and full of fun. There is a real mystery, too, which kept the girls and boys as absorbed as their elders and gave subject for lively conversation and spicy comment. Margaret Platt's pictures fit the narrative perfectly." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk M 16:443 N '40 70w

"The characters are strong and well drawn, particularly deaf old Grandfather Pettiboy. The humor is bright and sharp, typically New England in flavor. Eleven and twelve-year-old girls will find this story as delightful as the earlier books about Tabitha Mary and Penelope Ellen." Marguerite Nahigian

+ Library J 65:984 N 15 '40 140w

"The setting is rich in authentic detail, and the story is spiced with lively incidents, among them the mouse at the sewing circle, the sleigh that tipped over and the independent young girl who drove off leaving her cavalier in the snow. Both boys and girls from 9 to 12 will find 'The Lost Locket' an absorbing and satisfying tale." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p9 D 15 '40 500w

"Satisfactory Americana." Z. C. Durrell

+ Sat R of Lit 23:9 N 16 '40 20w

PARTRIDGE, ERIC. Dictionary of clichés; with an introductory essay. 260p $2 Macmillan [7s 6d Routledge]

423 Terms and phrases. English language—Idioms

Dictionary of the hackneyed phrase and idiom, the "stereotyped expression, a commonplace phrase," so much overworked in English prose and poetry.

Booklist 37:132 D 1 '40

Boston Transcript p1 O 5 '40 20w

"This book by the author of the monumental (cliché) 'Dictionary of Slang and Unconventional English' should prove a delight to the scholarly reader and a terror to the writer of conscientious English."

+ Nation 151:512 N 23 '40 150w

"Mr. Partridge's book is amusing, instructive, valuable and it is published at the right moment." V. S. Pritchett

+ New Statesman & Nation 20:262 S 14 '40 1900w

"Mr. Partridge's latest dictionary is informative, instructive, and great fun."

+ N Y Times p10 O 6 '40 400w

PASSERIN D'ENTREVES, ALESSANDRO. See D'Entreves, A.P.

PATCH, EDITH MARION, and FENTON, CARROLL LANE. Prairie neighbors; drawings by Carroll Lane Fenton. 161p map $1.75 Macmillan

591.5 Zoology—Juvenile literature. Birds—Juvenile literature. Animals, Legends and stories of (W) 40-27346

Brief accounts of some prairie plants, birds, insects, and animals, most of which are found in other regions, also. For grades four to six. Book list. Index.

Booklist 36:330 Ap 15 '40

"Accurate information interestingly presented for fourth and fifth grades. Good print and satisfactory drawings in black and white." Marian Herr

Library J 65:355 Ap 15 '40 50w

"These two authors write of animal life not only authoritatively but with an interest and enthusiasm that are contagious. This is a companion volume to 'Mountain Neighbors,' 'Desert Neighbors' and 'Forest Neighbors.' These four well-illustrated volumes, written in clear, easy style, without condescension, offer excellent reading suitable for 10 and 11 year olds and not too difficult for children of 8 interested in the subject. They cover very completely the characteristic animal, bird and insect life found in different sections of our country and encourage a child to observe for himself." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p10 My 5 '40 160w

"Dr Patch and Dr Fenton, through their previous works, have developed a fine skill and easy approach to the business of making the life of histories of animals known to youngsters. Brief but interesting biographies of each species undertaken are given."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 7 '40 200w

Wis Lib Bul 36:72 Ap '40

PATERSON, MRS ISABEL (BOWLER). If it prove fair weather. 306p $2.50 Putnam (W) 40-12035

A story of two middle-aged lovers, Emmy Cruger, whose husband was dead, and James Wishart, whose wife was alive, but practically indifferent. Emmy who loved too well, and James, who never loved enough to forget the conventions, parted at last. The thread of their frustrated romance is carried partly by Emmy's stream of consciousness, partly by her sessions with her friend Christine, when the two women proceeded to tear to pieces the absent and recalcitrant James.

"The best qualities of If It Prove Fair Weather are, logically enough, the pointed, witty dialogue and the uncannily accurate recreation of the look and feel and emotional quality of the life which successful business and professional women live in contemporary New York. . . On the debit side—the book does drag badly in places."

+ — Atlantic S '40 310w

Reviewed by Carl Van Doren

Books p4 S 1 '40 1300w

Reviewed by Olga Owens

Boston Transcript p1 Ag 24 '40 800w

"As the story of a love affair, this is painfully convincing; the more intense because of its physical frustration. It is heartbreak, beautifully told." Dawn Powell

+ New Repub 103:730 N 25 '40 850w

"The failure of Mrs. Paterson's novel does not lie in the choice of her plot. The plot is excellent; it has vast possibilities which could be exploited in all directions, artistically and intellectually. . . Mrs. Paterson discusses love honestly, stating and naming things with admirable frankness. And yet hers is a very unsensual, a very prim book that lacks curiously in erotic force or rhythm. It is not because Emily's love remains frustrated, but because her love fails to touch us as strong, deep, or truly desperate. It moves through the book, shadowy, as Emily herself moves through her neat little apartment with the fireplace, the candlesticks, and the telephone over which Wishart might or might not call her." Marianne Hauser

+ — N Y Times p7 S 1 '40 500w

" 'If It Prove Fair Weather' (the quotation's from Suckling) is an odd book in many ways, but the oddest thing about it, not to put too fine a point on the matter, is that Emily and James, who are, it would seem, nuts about each other, can never quite get around to doing anything decisive about it. . . There's considerable love-making of a pat-pat sort, but something always happens to keep things from 'the violence of realization,' to use an apt phrase of the author. Apparently this pattern of anticlimax is an important part of Mrs. Paterson's demonstration of the inadequacy of the amorous male, but less charitable readers may set the whole thing down as a kind of involved script tease." Clifton Fadiman

New Yorker 16:64 Ag 24 '40 500w

" 'If It Prove Fair Weather' is . . . an ambitious book; it appears to be a highly successful revelation of certain aspects of a woman's mind; and though it will make most men uncomfortable and unhappy, that no doubt is what its author intended. How women will take it, this reviewer does not pretend to guess." George Dangerfield

Sat R of Lit 22:10 S 7 '40 500w

Discussion by the author

Sat R of Lit 22:10 S 7 '40 1050w

"Many a reader who admires Critic Paterson's flip newspaper way will shake a puzzled head over If It Prove Fair Weather. Those who are not scared off by its slow and mazy manner will enjoy its seriousness and sly competence."

Time 36:64 Ag 26 '40 360w

PATRICK, Q., pseud. See Webb, R. W., and Wheeler, H. C.

PATTEE, FRED LEWIS. The feminine fifties. 339p il $3 (15s) Appleton-Century

810.9 American literature—History and criticism. Women as authors. U.S.—Social life and customs 40-8776

Study of the 1850s in America. Altho the author's main interest is in the flowering of feminine prose and fiction during these years, he includes the "females militant" who were beginning their battle for woman's rights, gives a chapter to the Fox sisters, and another to Barnum's presentation of Jenny Lind in America. Samples of the florid prose and poetry of the decade before the Civil war are incorporated in the text. Index.

Booklist 36:380 Je 1 '40

"Although the author's rigid application of the 'decade approach' acts like a set of blinkers and lures him into decapitating some of his chapters and chopping off the feet of others, 'The Feminine Fifties' is an illuminating guide along the margins of belles-lettres. It may be fragmentary as a 'literary study' and even less complete as a social picture, but it provides an entertaining index to popular taste and an amusing melange from the literary potpourri of an American decade." Milton Rugoff
+ Books p2 My 19 '40 1050w

Reviewed by Lewis Gannett
Boston Transcript p3 Ap 27 '40 950w

"The feminine fifties is . . . a readable book, amusing, entertaining, casual, even—in a very restricted sense—illuminating. It will not satisfy the scholar, as it is manifestly incomplete as a social study. It is descriptive rather than interpretative. It suffers badly from inadequate documentation." J. H. Shera
+ — Library Q 10:618 O '40 1500w

Reviewed by Walter Blair
New Eng Q 13:535 S '40 900w

New Repub 102:769 Je 3 '40 40w

"Just how the feminine element of the Fifties caused the Civil War remains a mystery after we have passed beyond the title and read the book itself. The solitary exception, perhaps, is Mrs. Stowe and her 'Uncle Tom's Cabin.'. . But Professor Pattee has written an amusing book." Herbert Gorman
+ — N Y Times p3 My 12 '40 1500w

"Prof Pattee has written a series of sprightly chapters which recall the literary and some other excitements of the eighteen-fifties. Those who read this book will obtain an amusing picture of one side of an era different from their own, which they can enjoy for its vitality and color, and not merely through feeling that they possess a superior culture and sophistication. Prof Pattee is somewhat free with his generalizations and occasionally careless with his incidental comments. Yet, taken as a series of light sketches in literary or social history these chapters fix the reader's attention entertainingly on a period about which he may have little detailed knowledge." E. N. Jenckes
+ — Springf'd Republican p6 My 4 '40 1250w

Wis Lib Bul 36:125 Jl '40

PATTERSON, CALEB PERRY; MCALISTER, SAMUEL BERTRAM, and HESTER, GEORGE C. State and local government in Texas. 586p $2.50 Macmillan

353.9764 Texas—Politics and government. Local government—Texas 40-4114

"Apparently, this volume is designed for use as a text in the educational institutions of Texas. . . The general organization follows the traditional pattern, chapters being devoted to the constitution, the legislature, the executive, elections, general administration, and the courts. These are followed by individual analyses of state functions. The treatment of each function begins with a discussion of the general problem, stressing the rational basis of public action and the issues of public policy involved." (Social Studies) Bibliographies at ends of chapters. Index.

"A notable contribution to the literature of state and local government. The volume should serve as an admirable handbook for alert citizens as well as a stimulating text for the study of the state constitution and citizenship." D. W. Knepper
+ Am Pol Sci R 34:601 Je '40 130w

"The student of state government who is interested in particular problems will find the book useful for specific Texas data. Treatment of both structure and function is fairly detailed, and down to date. Considerable space is given to some matters which are not commonly dealt with at length in general texts on state government. Conservation is an example. This is one of the great problems for Texas, particularly in respect to oil. One tenth of the book is devoted to conservation of natural resources and wild life." J. P. Horlacher
+ Social Studies 31:285 O '40 230w

PATTERSON, NORMA. The man I love. 311p $2 Farrar 40-6914

Western story.

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Books p17 Ap 14 '40 130w

"An entertaining little love story told against a modern 'frontier' background."
+ Boston Transcript p2 My 11 '40 50w

"It is all agreeable enough reading, but the story of the elder people is more genuinely moving." Charlotte Dean
+ N Y Times p21 Ap 7 '40 200w

PATTERSON, STERLING. Be your own gardener. 370p il $2.50 Harper

635.9 Gardening. Floriculture (W) 40-27240

"How to make, maintain, and find satisfaction in intimate flower gardens." (Subtitle) Contains a chapter on garden equipment, a garden calendar, and a combined glossary and index.

Booklist 36:277 Mr 15 '40

"You'll like it—provided only that you enjoy gardening with your own hands and getting a lot of good ideas which will help you do it with better results and more lasting satisfaction. That's the kind of gardener Mr. Patterson is himself, and he writes with the same sort of sanity and understanding which characterize his actual outdoor planning and planting." Robert Lemmon
+ Books p11 Je 9 '40 120w

"Mr. Patterson's text runs along easily and smoothly. His style is friendly and conversational. As for subject matter, he has managed to include just about everything that a beginning gardener is likely to require."
+ Boston Transcript p1 Mr 9 '40 160w

Churchman 154:16 My 1 '40 50w

"In the field to which the author has seen fit to limit his text, 'Be Your Own Gardener' is clear, authoritative, even exhaustive. . . There are some delightful illustrations, showing what can be done in giving an effect of graciously arranged space to small suburban grounds. In fact, it is difficult to believe that some of these gardens are small, so cleverly has the planting and screening been used to disguise the fact." F. F. Rockwell
+ N Y Times p19 Mr 3 '40 280w

Springf'd Republican p8 Mr 13 '40 110w

Wis Lib Bul 36:64 Ap '40

PATTON, DAVID KNOX. Murder on the Pacific. 272p $2 Dodd 40-12737

Detective story.

"The purser does a good job of uncovering the sundry criminals abroad and he doesn't even mind losing his job as the result. Probably he will set up as a private detective now." Marian Wiggin
+ Boston Transcript p2 Ag 3 '40 50w

"Curly Jones may be a good purser, but he is not much of a detective, nor is the story about him particularly well put together."
N Y Times p16 Ag 4 '40 290w

"Agreeable."
+ Sat R of Lit 22:18 Ag 10 '40 40w

PAUL, ELLIOT HAROLD (BRETT RUTLEDGE, pseud). The death of Lord Haw Haw. 306p il $2 Random house 40-13269

"English-speaking Nazi radio spieler located in Manhattan and scotched by Yankee-born French intelligence dept. ace." Sat R of Lit

---

"A timely pipe dream, rather scrappily presented." Will Cuppy
Books p10 Jl 21 '40 170w

"In one or two places the reader's imagination is strained by having some particularly involved matter straightened out in jig time without any explanation. But on the whole the book presents an interesting insight not only into the work of scientific espionage but into German propaganda and its smooth transition to include Russia as an ally." P. J. Barnicle
+ — Boston Transcript p1 Jl 27 '40 460w

"The author knows something of Intelligence procedure, Paris, New York restaurants and world affairs. More important, he knows how to make fiction. There are many varied characters in the book, if no actual people, and the ins and outs of their affairs are kept in a nice steady line and moving forward. The only thing against the book is that it is so thorough and knowing as it outlines the problem, there is a certain sense of letdown in the fictional shifts leading to the climax." Otis Ferguson
+ — New Repub 103:221 Ag 12 '40 240w

"The total effect of the book is something like reading a mystery story while listening to the war news over the radio." Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p14 Jl 21 '40 230w

"Last few chapters, in which wicked Lord H. is finally quenched, are good. The rest are pretty terrible."
— + Sat R of Lit 22:18 Jl 20 '40 40w

PAUL, ELLIOT HAROLD (BRETT RUTLEDGE, pseud). Fracas in the foothills. 436p map $2 Random house 40-34748

"A Homer Evans western murder mystery and open space adventure." (Subtitle) Glossary.

"Three-ringed circus crammed with robust fun." Will Cuppy
+ Books p24 N 17 '40 170w

"In his preface Elliot Paul makes the following statement: 'If [the reader] is strictly a one-evening bookman, he can either start at the beginning and stop in the middle, or start in the middle and let the first half go hang.' After wading through the book at the stern call of duty we wish to offer an amendment to this suggestion, and here it is: Start reading at page 311 and continue for about sixty pages. That part of the book is genuinely funny. As for the rest, it is an overdone burlesque of the old-fashioned Wild West yarn. Why the publishers have chosen to call it a mystery story we do not know." Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p32 N 24 '40 180w

"Indians and cowboys are strewn by the wayside when Homer Evans and his friends move from Paris to Montana. The murderer is one of the friends this time, and you are in on the facts from the start. The whole thing is cleared up by Evans' usual crowd. More of a Western than a mystery, better not attempt it unless your brain is clear."
New Yorker 16:104 N 16 '40 60w

"On sound sleuthing foundation author builds structure that reaches new peaks of absurdity and beautiful nonsense. But don't take it seriously. Overdone."
Sat R of Lit 23:20 N 30 '40 40w

PAUL, ELLIOT HAROLD (BRETT RUTLEDGE, pseud). Hugger-mugger in the Louvre. 326p $2 Random house 40-3665

Mystery story.

"This is recommended reading for those who do not take their mysteries too seriously."
+ Atlantic Ap '40 70w
Booklist 36:307 Ap 1 '40

"It is a knockout on all counts, a fitting successor to last year's 'The Mysterious Mickey Finn, or Murder at the Café du Dôme,' many of whose characters reappear in full fig, including that sterling sleuth Homer Evans." Will Cuppy
+ Books p13 Ja 28 '40 200w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin
+ Boston Transcript p2 F 10 '40 90w

"As mystery, too much academy; as high jinks in Paris, an excellent cocktail."
— + New Repub 102:190 F 5 '40 40w

"It all makes a completely farcical story involving many of the characters who appeared in 'The Mysterious Mickey Finn.' The fun is fast and furious while it lasts, and we regret to say that it lasts a little too long." Isaac Anderson
+ — N Y Times p26 F 11 '40 160w

"This story ranges from genuine hilarity to forced silliness, but its high spots should make you laugh fit to die."
New Yorker 15:80 F 10 '40 40w

"Mad and merry."
Sat R of Lit 21:18 Ja 27 '40 40w
Springf'd Republican p7e F 11 '40 300w

PAUL, ELLIOT HAROLD (BRETT RUTLEDGE, pseud). Mayhem in B-flat. 305p $2 Random house
(W) 40-30405

Detective story.

"High-pressure comedy and burlesque with a well wangled puzzle and anything else you may need at the moment." Will Cuppy
+ Books p9 Ag 18 '40 180w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin
Boston Transcript p2 Ag 24 '40 90w

"Some merry moments, but Mr. Paul seems to be giving bawdiness the old college try. Not for serious mystery fans."
New Repub 103:254 Ag 19 '40 30w

"It is useless to try to judge this book by the ordinary standards of the detective story. It violates many of the fundamental rules laid down by earnest students of that form of fiction. . . To those who object that this sort of thing is not according to the canons of the London Detection Club Mr. Paul would probably reply, 'So what?'. . . After all, the question before the house is whether or not the book offers good entertainment, and that depends largely upon the mood in which it is approached." Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p17 Ag 18 '40 240w
New Yorker 16:68 Ag 24 '40 30w

"Sizzling concoction of murder, merriment, and madness, which, this time, gets slightly out of control—if you care to notice it. Wild and pretty wonderful."
Sat R of Lit 22:18 Ag 24 '40 50w
Time 36:84 S 9 '40 70w

PAUL, LOUIS. A passion for privacy. 261p $2 Knopf 40-6543

Humorous satire on the trials and tribulations of a young couple who wish to marry but cannot make it their own private business. As the man is scion of a vastly wealthy American family and the girl is not only the daughter of the cook but a night-club entertainer to boot, the disapproval of their respective families and the machinations of the press prove almost insurmountable barriers to happiness.

"I have read Louis Paul's 'A Passion for Privacy' with keen pleasure. For two reasons: spontaneous enjoyment of a good story wittily told, with a gay surface and a deep and thoughtful subsurface which you may ignore if so minded and still have your money's worth. And, two, because I have been wondering for a long time where young surrealist writers go when they grow up. When the youthful gusto which gives such writing much of its momentum wanes, and the loose thread of free association of ideas frays from repeated use, what then? Mr. Paul's 'A Passion for Privacy' gives a completely satisfactory answer." F. H. Bullock

+ Books p10 My 12 '40 650w

Boston Transcript p1 My 25 '40 90w

"The whole book is a jolly and original piece of rowdy comedy." Beatrice Sherman

+ N Y Times p7 My 12 '40 330w

"Mr. Paul has himself a rollicking time, a mood which will very likely communicate itself to you."

New Yorker 16:97 My 11 '40 70w

"Those who are in the habit of dancing in the streets to welcome each new Wodehouse ought now to perform at least one public rhumba, for we seem to be well on the way toward possessing a Wodehouse of our own. Mr. Paul has turned out a daffy tale not unworthy of the great master himself." N. L. R.

+ Sat R of Lit 22:19 My 4 '40 280w

Springf'd Republican p7e My 19 '40 220w

PAULL, GRACE. Cement work for Sport and Skinny; pictures by [the author]. [32p] $1 Viking

40-33457

Sport and Skinny, two small boys living on a farm, with their goat, named Peanut Butter, and their dog Sandy, spend a happy summer and just before school begins help with the work of laying a new cement barn floor.

"If you do not feel a slight rise of temperature, you have grown too old to remember the clutch a cement-mixer and all other delights of this glorified mud-pie making had on you when you were very little and watched building operations. The large-print story and its jolly drawings in color have that clutch." M. L. Becker

+ Books p13 N 10 '40 200w

"The book is a good picture book size and will be taken to the hearts of five to eight-year-olds. Grace Paull's drawings of children are so very gay and lovable!" S. J. Johnson

+ Library J 65:1044 D 1 '40 80w

Reviewed by E. W. Steele

New Repub 103:843 D 16 '40 30w

PAULSEN, IRWIN GUY. The church school and worship. 199p $1.75 Macmillan

268 Sunday schools. Worship 40-7448

"To speak of a 'curriculum' in worship would perhaps give too academic a flavor to the matter. Yet worship must be learned; and therefore it must be taught. This means teaching not only about worship but to worship. Mr. Paulsen does not offer a specific curriculum but, after analyzing the meaning and functions of worship, he discusses the content of training in worship for children and young people and gives helpful guidance in the use of these materials in the church school." (Christian Century) Index.

Booklist 36:359 My 15 '40

Christian Century 57:546 Ap 24 '40 80w

"Even though the author's bridge from church school worship to the 'Common Worship of the Church' (chapter VII particularly) is rather weak, he has made a most excellent attempt. . . Having said this worst, we feel it heavily outweighed by the other side. For instance, the author's practical turn is admirable. He insists, properly, on suitable quarters—clean, well equipped and arranged and carefully supervised. He demands good leadership. He even offers a schedule for evaluating church school worship." C. H. B.

+ — Churchman 154:38 My 15 '40 120w

"The author is Secretary of Leadership Training and Adult Work on the New Jersey Council of Religious Education. He has done an excellent work, in fact one of the very best. His book should be in every church school worker's library." W. R. McNutt

+ Crozer Q 17:232 Jl '40 180w

"The Bibliography shows a good acquaintance with works in this field, and the author adds to his discussion many practical ideas drawn from his own rich background." E. J. Chave

+ J Religion 20:418 O '40 120w

PEARCE, THOMAS MATTHEWS. The beloved house. 239p il $3.50 Caxton printers

B or 92 Austin, Mrs Mary (Hunter)

40-10617

"A book about Mary Austin in relation to her house in Santa Fe and her childhood home in Illinois. The author, a New Mexican professor, finds that her career had deep roots in the village life which has produced so much of our talent. In his interpretation, he quotes 'Doctor Mary' with great discrimination and pays tribute to her as a neighbor, a feminist and a poet." (New Repub) Index.

"A rambling and inflated 'saint's life' by a professor of English who ought to write better." E. B.

— Canadian Forum 20:63 My '40 140w

"Here is another book for which all friends of Mary Austin will be grateful. It is not a chronological biography, but a study of 'I-Mary' in all her aspects,—and she had many. The author writes as one who knew her well; so well, that even her eccentricities are safe in his hand." M. L. Eglinton

+ Churchman 154:17 O 1 '40 360w

New Repub 102:513 Ap 15 '40 60w

"Mr. Pearce writes with enthusiasm and personal affection, but he is interested in presenting a balanced portrait none the less, and his occasional tendency to grandiloquence is tempered by humor as well. The result is an interesting new book about an always interesting 'Woman of Genius.'"

+ N Y Times p19 Ag 25 '40 320w

"Freely admitting that her actual performance is of unequal quality, this friend and critic is in agreement with H. G. Wells in naming her one of America's best minds. Upon the theory that her fame is likely to grow, this book about Mary Austin is well worth thoughtful study."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e My 19 '40 650w

PEARSON, LIONEL. Early Ionian historians. 240p $5 (15s) Oxford

928.8 Historians. Greece—History—Historiography. Herodotus [39-31831]

"The book consists of an introductory essay on the logographers in general and of detailed discussions of Hecataeus, of Xanthus the Lydian, of Charon of Lampsacus, and of Hellanicus. Mr. Pearson makes full use of the available fragments and scattered references bearing on each of these writers and is able to formulate an estimate of the general characteristics of each. Treated on the comparative method these scanty materials reveal much of intrinsic interest, but the main value of the book is as a propaedeutic to the study of Herodotus and his treatment of his literary sources." Times [London] Lit Sup

"All in all Pearson's is a scholarly volume which no serious student of ancient history can afford to ignore. The facts are well presented, the evidence from ancient sources is carefully sifted, and modern contributions are objectively discussed. . . It is to be hoped that Dr. Pearson will continue his work and save other logographers from unmerited oblivion." Jacob Hammer

+ Am Hist R 45:851 Jl '40 700w

Reviewed by Howard Becker

Am Soc R 5:287 Ap '40 240w

PEARSON, LIONEL—Continued

"The author's commentaries on the various fragments are very sound, but, unfortunately, he does not permit himself to consider the larger aspects of his subject. He has very little to say upon such matters as what these logographers were trying to do beyond merely to 'write history' (and perhaps to show that they were 'productive scholars'), what audience they had in mind as they wrote and what this audience expected of them, how they were influenced by their social and intellectual milieu, and in what ways (if at all) they in turn influenced this milieu. . . These early Ionian historians have a tremendous importance in the history of historiography, for it was they who effected the revolution which changed mythography into historiography. But the magnitude of this revolution is neither explained nor discussed by Pearson. A scholar who has studied the logographers as carefully as he, must surely have some views on this important subject, and it is a pity that he did not see fit to set them forth." J. W. Swain

+ — Class Philol 36:89 Ja '41 750w

"Scholars will welcome this book as the first authoritative and comprehensive work on the forerunners of Herodotus by an English writer. Mr. Pearson's work is painstaking, erudite, well documented and vigorous and will now be indispensable to any student who wishes to make a careful study of Herodotus."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p482 Ag 12 '39 140w

PEASE, HOWARD. Highroad to adventure. 297p il $2 Doubleday

(W) 39-33744

Another story of Captain Tom Jarvis and Tod Moran, for older boys. This time Tod is ordered to meet his captain in Mexico City at a certain date. His way is beset with all sorts of difficulties, but he manages to reach his goal and solve a mystery.

Booklist 36:266 Mr 1 '40

"Older boys who have enjoyed the earlier books written by this popular author will surely count this new one among their favorites." M. A. Whitney

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 Jl 25 '40 120w

"The skeptical reader may question the fact that Tod is entrusted with valuable papers carried carelessly in a brief case, traveling unprotected in an old Ford, but the book will certainly hold the interest of the modern boy. The setting is Mexico of today and the mysterious errand becomes increasingly involved and confusing. For those who have enjoyed a taste of friendship and fellowship along the highway, the book will hold an added interest. The trail traveled is not spoiled by the intrigue but leaves the reader eager to visit and understand our southern neighbors." Sonja Wennerblad

+ — Library J 65:214 Mr 1 '40 100w

Wis Lib Bul 36:36 F '40

PEATTIE, LOUISE (REDFIELD) (MRS DONALD CULROSS PEATTIE). The Californians. 274p $2 Doubleday

40-4890

Story of a family of Californians, the brilliant, generous, headstrong Hollidays, and of the part played in their destiny by two young dependents on their bounty.

"Louise Redfield Peattie's limpid prose, her sincerity and astuteness, need no introduction to readers of 'Star at Noon' and 'American Acres' and her other novels. She is a suave and skillful storyteller, and her stories have something to say." John Patton

+ Books p11 Mr 10 '40 330w

Reviewed by Dorothy Gies

Boston Transcript p11 Mr 14 '40 250w

New Repub 102:514 Ap 15 '40 40w

"The novel is a fine portrait of a family despite its neat device of making two outsiders its principal characters. It leaves the impact of a bigger and better story than it is, perhaps; but nevertheless it is a crisp, economical job of writing that makes very entertaining reading." Beatrice Sherman

+ N Y Times p7 Mr 10 '40 600w

PEATTIE, RODERICK. Geography in human destiny; original maps and charts drawn by Arthur H. Robinson. 323p $3 Stewart

910 Geography, Historical. Man—Influence of environment

A study of human history as it has been influenced by the physical character of the earth's surface. The author begins with evolution and the development of prehistoric man and concludes with a chapter on "the geography of peace" in which he sets forth his plea for a better adjustment of man to earth's bounty as the road for the future. Index.

Atlantic F '41 200w

Booklist 37:265 F 15 '41

"Professor Peattie has projected a study of geography which will delight the intelligent layman and exasperate the pedant. The word projected seems best suited to describe the ardor and glee of such insouciant scholarship. This is the travel talk of a geographer on vacation, flung off in spontaneous fashion, but marked by distinguished thinking for all its flippancy and full of ripe and genial wisdom." Geoffrey Bruun

+ — Books p4 D 29 '40 700w

"The reviewer does not happen to agree with Professor Peattie in his conception of geography. He does not accept the definition of geography as the 'correlation between sciences' except in the limited sense that it correlates a limited body of facts—those relating to the earth-sciences. To him the weakness of the book is in the author's implication that he has written a geography book when he has written an interpretation of human progress. But this is unimportant to the general reader and this is not the place for a discussion of definitions. The geographers themselves are far from united. May Professor Peattie's book lead many readers to an interest in that fascinating subject—geography. And may those readers avoid dogmatism both in terminology and conclusions." Robert Moody

+ — Boston Transcript p1 Ja 25 '41 650w

"Many people will criticize 'Geography in Human Destiny' severely. I myself do not like to be told that one of my favorite stamping grounds, the plain of Kashmir set in a bowl of mountains on the upper Jhelum River, 'is a gorge of the upper Indus River.' Other mistakes of this kind are a blemish, and there are conclusions which do not seem thoroughly grounded. Nevertheless, these are a small matter in comparison with the delightful spirit and racy style of the book and its many lines of stimulating thought." Ellsworth Huntington

+ — Sat R of Lit 23:6 D 21 '40 1150w

"This book holds a unique place in contemporary literature. Some of its ideas may be found in the works of other authors, but it stands alone as an integrating philosophy for living, based on a geographic understanding of history. Professor Peattie calls it largely a defense of the almost discarded environmentalism, but its reaches are as broad as geography itself."

+ Scientific Bk Club R 11:3 D '40 600w

Time 37:83 Ja 20 '41 330w

PECK, ANNE MERRIMAN. Belgium; il. by Alexandre Serebriakoff. [68p] $1.50 Harper

914.93 Belgium—Juvenile literature

(W) 40-7069

Brief description of Belgium, combined with a little history and folklore, for young readers of from seven to ten. The illustrations are in color and in black and white.

PEATTIE (pē-tē)

"The absence of table of contents, index, and map will curtail its use as supplementary reference. The size may limit a wide circulation. Suitable for picture book collections."

Booklist 36:348 My 1 '40

"The text is simple and plain. . . It is a gentle book, as it should be. For this, children, is Belgium in 1939: peaceful, useful, minding its own business." M. L. Becker

+ Books p6 My 26 '40 280w

Reviewed by F. B. Sloan

Christian Science Monitor p9 My 27 '40 210w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk M 16:168 My '40 110w

"More than sixty exquisite illustrations in black and white and full color by Alexandre Serebriakoff convey a true and enticing picture of Belgium. Aside from the charm and atmosphere its pictures create, the book is disappointing. . . The text itself is a monotone completely lacking in organization." J. L. Sauer

— + Library J 65:400 My 1 '40 140w

Reviewed by R. A. Hill

Library J 65:847 O 15 '40 30w

"Miss Peck's text is lively, informed and never condescending. She writes with genuine appreciation of the Belgian country and its people and in her choice of material shows that she understands the interests of boys and girls." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p9 Je 30 '40 270w

PECK, ANNE MERRIMAN. Roundabout South America; il. by the author. 359p $3 Harper

918 South America—Description and travel (W) 40-27769

Description of a journey from Panama, thru Ecuador, Peru, Bolivia, Chile, Argentina, Uruguay and Brazil. The book is both informative and anecdotal, with some background of history for each country visited. Illustrated with photographs and black and white drawings. Bibliography. Index.

"Useful to some adult readers and young people over 12 years."

Booklist 37:123 N 15 '40

"The author's trip was not terribly studious nor exhaustive, but it was civilized, interesting and intelligently taken. While not being a deep study of South America, it indicates the possibilities before the good traveler and tourist who tries. In the nature of the travel book, more observations are stimulating than conclusive. This book seems more suited to encourage one to plan a trip to South America than to serve as guide on the spot."

+ Commonweal 33:157 N 29 '40 60w

"Richness of detail and clear, readable style make this a travel book that is far above the average." E. W. Steele

+ New Repub 103:846 D 16 '40 80w

"From her first recognition of the beginning of South America, down from Panama, to her departure from Venezuela and Colombia at the end of her book, her mind is both sympathetic and pictorial, and her writing is vivid, unforced and always interesting. . . The author's own drawings, to the number of thirty, make pleasing illustrations for her South American impressions, and twenty-six photographs picture salient facts. The book makes no claim of striking novelty but it is very agreeably informative."

+ N Y Times p30 N 17 '40 440w

PECK, GRAHAM. Through China's wall; with il. by the author. 371p maps $3.50 Houghton

915.1 China—Description and travel (W) 40-27174

Graham Peck, a young American artist-traveler, landed in China in January, 1936, expecting to spend two or three weeks there as the first step in a trip around the world. Instead, he stayed on six months in Peking, penetrated the Gobi desert, spent six weeks in a yurt with a Mongol family, and set off by Christmas for Szechuan Province and China's far west. He also went to Indo-China and the borders of Tibet, sketching the tribesmen, and returned to Peking just before the city was taken by the Japanese. These unusually fresh travel observations are generously decorated with his sketches.

Booklist 36:262 Mr 1 '40

Bookmark p10 My '40

"One of the merits of the book is that [Mr Peck] does not pretend to have sought or found any particularly valuable information. He did not try to interview Mao Tze-chung, the Chinese Lenin, nor Chu Teh, the Red God of War, nor Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, nor his Madamisisima. . . Yet this seemingly unenterprising young man is such a sympathetic, merry and keen observer, and such a consummate artist with words that he can interview a Chinese peanut vender in the sign language and pass along a better characterization in a paragraph than most venerable sinologues could achieve in a volume. His record of his unambitious and undistinguished travels is one long series of these expert interpretive sketches, kindly caricatures and little, mildly Rabelaisian anecdotes, and they bring Chinese and Mongols to life with all their unpleasant habits, pompous puerilities, endearing good temper and enduring fortitude under adversity withal as no one has done it for me since I first read Abbe Huc's 'Travels in Tartary.'" Rodney Gilbert

+ Books p1 F 11 '40 2300w

"Graham Peck's book is being widely acclaimed the most important, the most fascinating travel book on China to have appeared in years; and this reviewer, too, feels that praise to be well earned." M. W.

+ Christian Science Monitor p18 Mr 13 '40 450w

"One of the more intelligent studies of China which has come to hand in recent years, this volume is especially attractive because of the fine illustration work scattered generously through its pages." J. F. Davidson

+ Churchman 154:18 Mr 1 '40 150w

Foreign Affairs 18:763 Jl '40 10w

Forum 103:269 My '40 70w

Living Age 358:194 Ap '40 120w

"No old-timer could have written 'Through China's Wall,' because the things which Mr. Peck finds so exciting and colorful are, for the most part, merely the stage setting for China's real drama. For the average reader, the observations of the newcomer are the more absorbing because he sees the country and its people as the reader himself would see it if he had the opportunity to make the same trip. . . The last few chapters are darkened by the Japanese invasion, but this does not detract from the charm of the book. One is merely glad that a writer of Mr. Peck's descriptive powers saw the country before it was laid waste by the invader or modernized by its struggle for independence. For regardless of the outcome of the war, the China described in this book will never be seen again." M. S. Stewart

+ Nation 150:259 F 17 '40 500w

"There is no second-hand philosophy, no prejudice projected as sociology, no exploitation of the picturesque. It is remarkably unadulterated travel writing, transmitting observation and experiences close to the sensation of the moments when they occurred to a man of unusually balanced and sensitive intelligence. For this reason, without a single timed explosion of verbal indignation, the last third of the book is as damning an indictment of Japanese imperialism as I have seen, just as its first two-thirds is one of the most inviting appreciations of Chinese life and culture." Isidor Schneider

+ New Repub 102:582 Ap 29 '40 280w

"Here is a book on China noticeable for its possession of those two elusive qualities, flavor and atmosphere. Mr. Peck was neither one of those travelers who give three weeks to China and then write a book about it, nor one of those accustomed residents who have lost all freshness of impression." L. M. Field

PECK, GRAHAM—Continued

+ N Y Times p4 F 11 '40 1200w

New Yorker 16:83 F 17 '40 30w

"This record of travels in China may not appear important to the professional geographer, historian, economist or sociologist; but to the average reader it brings a wealth of entertainment. . . The great virtue of this book lies in its author's reluctance to dogmatize about what he has seen—and heard. For the most part he is content to record the sights and sounds about him, with an artist's sensitiveness to impressions." Philip Lilienthal

+ Pacific Affairs 13:364 S '40 220w

"The pen-and-ink sketches of the landscapes and personalities of this 'lost world,' as the author terms it, are even more fascinating than the narrative. . . A set of fourteen magnificent drawings, ranging from aborigines to Peking types, crowns the wealth of illustrative sketches that mark the author's trails through China. In chapters which come as something of an anti-climax, he tells how the war reached Peking. He feels that the Chinese have an impregnable position 'in the inaccessible western half of this country,' and foresees an era of rapid development for China's western provinces." T. A. Bisson

+ Sat R of Lit 21:18 F 17 '40 400w

"When there comes a book on Chinese travel written by a man who has penetrated into the remote places and has lived with the natives and sampled of their humor and cup of woe, such a book is indeed welcome. And for these reasons, 'Through China's Wall' is worthy of the attention of all who desire a true and sharply focused picture of China today, at one of the turning points of her long and tumultuous history. . . Exciting and humorous episodes accentuate Mr Peck's narrative in many places and tend to make it consistently delightful, if not, indeed, fascinating to the reader from beginning to end."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e F 4 '40 1100w

"Like its author, Through China's Wall defies classification. It is part exquisite travel book, part exciting history, part exotic philosophy. But above all, it is a portrait portfolio of a race. In deft, humorous, economical sketches, it explains (better than a whole stack of dry-as-dust commentaries) why the Chinese people lose battles but somehow win wars."

+ Time 35:91 F 19 '40 500w

Wis Lib Bul 36:67 Ap '40

PECK, JAMES L. H. Armies with wings. 274p il $2.50 Dodd

623.74 Aeronautics, Military (W) 40-5041

Lieutenant Peck is an aviator of ten years' experience who served as combat pilot with the Spanish Loyalist forces. His book is in four sections: Airpower comes of age; The men who fly; The strategy they use; The planes they fly. Bibliography.

"A young man with a flair for easy and vivid writing, plus a collection of first-hand experiences and observations as a Loyalist combat pilot in Spain, has come home from the wars to turn out a book dealing convincingly, if not infallibly, with the part to be played by air power in our troubled and uncertain times. . . At times fact and theory blend so deftly and inextricably as to baffle the reader completely and make him wonder if the author has not been bogged down by his own ardor and plausibility." C. B. Allen

+ Books p19 Mr 3 '40 1050w

"Lieutenant Peck has written one of the better books on war-time flying. . . 'Armies With Wings' is highly recommended. If you want to know what an air force is and how it fights, here is a book to tell you. The many photographs and diagrams are clear and illuminating." P. J. Searles

+ Boston Transcript p9 Ja 25 '40 600w

Christian Science Monitor p18 Mr 18 '40 430w

Foreign Affairs 18:748 Jl '40

New Repub 102:449 Ap 1 '40 70w

N Y New Tech Bks 25:3 Ja '40

"Parts of this book obviously were hurriedly written, but it is decidedly up to date and highly informative, for Mr. Peck is a good reporter greatly interested in his subject. The final chapter outlining a test pilot's job, originally appeared as a magazine article. It alone is worth the price of the book." Robert Van Gelder

+ — N Y Times p3 F 4 '40 650w

Sat R of Lit 21:22 Ja 27 '40 250w

"From start to finish, 'Armies With Wings' is a vital, authoritative presentation of a form of aerial weapon perfected since the World war."

+ Springf'd Republican p8 Ja 1 '40 550w

PECK, LEIGH. Pecos Bill and Lightning; il. by Kurt Wiese. 68p $1.75 Houghton

40-33529

Collection of stories about the miraculous southwestern cowboy, whose adventures rival those of Paul Bunyan. Pecos Bill was lost while his emigrating family was crossing the Pecos river, and was brought up with the Coyotes, where he learned a good deal of wild animal lore, all of which was useful to him in his later life. For young readers.

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Books p7 D 22 '40 320w

"A good idea not so well done." Raymond Holden

Sat R of Lit 23:5 N 16 '40 30w

Wis Lib Bul 36:172 D '40

PECK, R. D. Spinning for duffers—and salmon; il. by H. M. Bateman. 86p $1.50 Macmillan [3s 6d Black, A. & C]

799.17 Salmon fishing

A simple exposition of spinning and allied methods of baiting for salmon.

"This is the simplest and best book on spinning that has yet been published. H. M. Bateman's illustrations are in characteristic style." G. W. M.

+ Manchester Guardian p3 O 17 '39 70w

"This excellent little treatise will please all bait-fishermen, except perhaps the enthusiasts of the thread-line and the short rod."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p659 N 11 '39 150w

PECKHAM, HARRY HOUSTON. Josiah Gilbert Holland in relation to his times. 220p $2.50 Univ. of Pa. press [11s 6d Oxford]

B or 92 Holland, Josiah Gilbert [40-5024]

Biography of a nineteenth century American writer who was called "the best-selling American author of edifying books in his generation." Holland was born in 1819 in Belchertown, Massachusetts, and died in New York in 1881. He was an editor of the Springfield Republican from 1849 to 1866, and was one of the founders of Scribner's Monthly, and editor-in-chief from 1870-1881. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by D. S. Rankin

Books p23 Mr 31 '40 650w

"The passages devoted to summaries of the novels and to rather pedestrian criticism of them and of Holland's other work are generally unrewarding, and the book is not successful considered purely as biography, since no fully rounded impression of Holland as a personality emerges from it. But Mr. Peckham is skillful in other respects. He does not deal largely in praise or censure, but treats his subject always with tolerance and sometimes with sympathy. He marshals the facts clearly and uses them as a basis for illustration of, and comment on, the literary and intellectual standards of many mid-nineteenth century Americans." K. B. M.

+ — New Eng Q 13:579 S '40 360w

PECKHAM, TED. Gentlemen in waiting; il. by Pelagie Doane. 126p $1.50 Dutton
394 Entertaining 40-14441

Sample letters directed to the originator of the Ted Peckham Escort service, with an introductory chapter on the origin of the idea. The letters quoted are from Englishmen, the ladies, Americans, and Frenchmen, but the larger proportion are from women who want a male escort for their evenings in town.

Books p10 Jl 21 '40 200w

Boston Transcript p2 Jl 13 '40 550w

Reviewed by E. F. Allen
N Y Times p4 Ag 4 '40 550w

"Rather amusing."
New Yorker 16:64 Jl 20 '40 40w

PEDLER, MARGARET (BASS) (MRS W. G. Q. PEDLER). Blind loyalty. 298p $2 Doubleday [8s 3d Hodder] 40-5397

On the day of her wedding Sally Maynard was waiting for the hour of the ceremony when her best friend arrived. With a whispered message she put a stop to the wedding. At the end of the story the import of that whisper is explained. Much of the action takes place in Africa.

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Books p10 F 18 '40 150w

Boston Transcript p5 Je 8 '40 70w

"A pleasant background of country life—gardening, hunting, even dairying—makes a peaceful background to the exciting events of the story." Charlotte Dean
+ N Y Times p17 F 25 '40 110w

PEERS, EDGAR ALLISON. History of the romantic movement in Spain. 2v 350;470p $12 Macmillan [50s Cambridge]
860.9 Spanish literature—History and criticism

"During the last twenty years Professor Peers has written four books and some forty articles on different aspects and authors of the Spanish Romantic Movement. Gathering the threads of these researches into one work, he has made a decisive contribution to modern studies. He has used an encyclopædic knowledge of contemporary periodicals to assess the fortune of the greater works and to follow, almost monthly, the development of opinion." (Manchester Guardian) "The scheme of the book is simple. Starting with the humble origins of the movement in the eighteenth century, Professor Peers traces it as far as 1860, when the main stream broadens out. He describes its fusion with 'eclecticism' and charts year by year the progress of its struggle with the completely sterile classic forms of the eighteenth century." (New Statesman & Nation)

"Scholarly and apparently final disposition of the subject."
+ Commonweal 33:286 Ja 3 '41 90w

Reviewed by W. J. Entwistle
Manchester Guardian p7 Jl 9 '40 400w

"Professor Peers has been well advised to leave Spanish politics where he is quite out of his depth, for Spanish literature, where he possesses a large store of information. His history of the Romantic Movement in Spain is an admirably detailed and scholarly work, well stocked with quotations and containing ample footnotes and appendices." George Beaton
+ New Statesman & Nation 20:22 Jl 6 '40 800w

"Professor Peers's work is less a history than a collection of materials for a history. The ideal book on the romantic movement in Spain would be shorter, but it would include the staging of plays and the performance of music, and, above all, would not neglect opera, which was at the back of everybody's mind in those days, as the cinema is now. The present book seems designed to prove that the whole of Spanish literature was only a preparation for the men of 1833, a point of view which is frankly inacceptable; while it leads to rash statements about other writers, outside the period, with whom the author has little sympathy."
— + Times [London] Lit Sup p590 N 23 '40 2200w

PEERY, JAMES ROBERT. God rides a gale. 304p $2.50 Harper 40-6733

For twenty years Dr Kilgore had battled disease and ignorance in a little Mississippi town. At times he would be overcome by the struggle and by his own sense of failure and succumb to drugs. A full-sized tornado, strangely enough, brought him the aid he needed.

Booklist 36:384 Je 1 '40

"Even in spite of a tediously slow beginning and a stiff, amateurish handling of soliloquies, the book is proof that Mr. Peery has something to say worth listening to. The biggest defect is that there is enough material in 'God Rides a Gale' for several novels, and some of the story is blurred because a sharp focus has not been brought to bear on all of the characters." W. J. Gold
+ — Books p13 Ap 7 '40 500w

" 'God Rides a Gale' [is] a remarkable study of human aspiration and self-deception [which] rises in the end to a conclusion of almost matchless irony. To say more than this would be to risk spoiling the excellent story Mr. Peery has to tell." Margaret Wallace
+ N Y Times p7 Ap 7 '40 600w

"A lively, likable book."
+ New Yorker 16:90 Ap 6 '40 60w

"Mr. Peery and Mr. Faulkner may derive their characters and incidents from identical or contiguous territory, but each derives directly. Mr. Peery's men and women may undergo similar provincial difficulties, but they are never the same; their degree may be as low, their secrets even as unorthodox, as Mr. Faulkner's accursed tribes, but 'God Rides a Gale' sets out from a more familiar starting point, and the reader may dare to identify himself with Mr. Peery's Dr. Kilgore and Louise Martin." Frank Daniel
Sat R of Lit 21:24 Ap 6 '40 500w

PEET, CREIGHTON. This is the way we build a house; phot. by [the author]. 126p $2 Holt
690 Building—Juvenile literature 40-32536

Describes the details of building a house from architect's plan to completed product. It is told thru the medium of excellent photographs and simple text, as Billy and his younger brother "superintend" the building of their future home.

"This is an ideal father-and-son book. So several fathers have told me." M. L. Becker
+ Books p11 N 10 '40 220w

"Mr. Peet has taken revealing shots of the whole building process, but frankly the pictures are disappointing and we feel pencil and paper would, in this case, have been a clearer medium." E. V. W.
Cath World 152:375 D '40 60w

PEET, CREIGHTON—Continued

"The book is oversize, the photographs bleed the page, the binding is sturdy, and the covers stimulate unfinished wood. Slang at times mars the writing. Will appeal to the mechanically-minded boy of six to nine years." E. A. Groves

Library J 65:814 O 1 '40 150w

Reviewed by R. A. Hill

Library J 65:853 O 15 '40 20w

Reviewed by Lena Barksdale

Nation 151:455 N 9 '40 10w

"The photographs are extraordinarily clear and two floor plans are included. The very slight thread of story serves as a useful framework which adds to the interest of the book and does not hinder the exposition of facts. Eight and a half and 9-year-olds have pronounced it 'a good book because it tells them what they want to know.'" A. T. E.

+ N Y Times p34 N 10 '40 200w

Wis Lib Bul 36:153 N '40

PENNEY, ALFRED JAMES. Sons but not heirs; the trend of the church. 223p $2.50 Putnam

260 Church 40-11354

The pastor of the Presbyterian church at Oyster Bay, New York, discusses the problem of the present-day Christian church and "what is wrong" with it. He specifies non-attendance, argumentative sermons, unwillingness of members to accept their pastor's leadership, lack of planning, unwillingness to sacrifice for the church, and discontent within the ministry as contributing toward it, and suggests remedies. Index.

"Unfortunately, the book is depressing, and for that reason it tends to promote that attitude of mind which the author himself deplores. The church does not need so much to be reminded of its mistakes as to be shown how the mistakes are being overcome." A. B. Hulen

Christian Century 57:857 Jl 3 '40 290w

"This is an extremely thought-provoking and stimulating book; and while it contains much that has been said before and that is familiar to the average hard-working parson, it gives so many good illustrations and clear statements that one reads it with the full intention of reading it again. . . It is to be hoped that the reader's disagreement with some of Dr. Penney's opinions will not prevent an impartial study of what is a very helpful volume." E. L. Pennington

+ Churchman 154:19 S 1 '40 150w

PENTECOST, HUGH. The 24th horse. 250p $2 Dodd

40-33365

Detective story.

Booklist 37:242 F 1 '41

"Hugh Pentecost, who wrote 'Canceled in Red,' is still using swear words for emphasis and somehow they seldom click. Otherwise he has moderated his hardness in some respects and his yarn makes easy reading." Will Cuppy

Books p18 N 3 '40 160w

"The title and the opening chapter might lead one to believe that this is an extremely horsey novel, but that is not the case. There are horses in it but they appear briefly and their chief function is to give point to a figure of speech. The human characters form a tight little group of people who have reacted each in his or her individual way to the vicissitudes of fortune. The mystery which Bradley unravels is a real baffler." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p22 N 3 '40 240w

"Good."

+ Sat R of Lit 23:17 N 9 '40 50w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 19 '41 150w

PERCY, EDWARD, pseud. See Smith, E. P.

PERELMAN, SIDNEY JOSEPH. Look who's talking! 249p $2 Random house

817 40-30225

Collection of humorous articles, many of them reprinted from the New Yorker.

"Less dry than Thurber, less droll than Benchley, less spontaneous than the early Leacock, Mr. Perelman is a humorist conditioned by his complexes and by his phobias, among which may be mentioned—since he mentions them himself—'amnesia (inability to find my rubbers) and total recall (ability to remember all the cunning things I did last night).'" Lisle Bell

+ Books p13 Ag 11 '40 370w

"Perelman does what most of the New Yorker humorists do, he allows himself to be driven a little nearer the brink of stark madness than he is already, by reading some book like 'Oh, Doctor! My Feet!' and then describes his acute vertigo as he fights his way back to comparative sanity. Perelman's vertigo, however, is our gain. For we lay down the article he has written and are sadder and wiser men for seeing what life can do to him." John Holmes

+ Boston Transcript p1 S 7 '40 500w

Reviewed by Otis Ferguson

New Repub 103:421 S 23 '40 1250w

New Yorker 16:64 Ag 10 '40 40w

"This observer thinks very highly indeed of S. J. Perelman, whose 'Look Who's Talking' enshrines at least half a dozen of the funniest and most searching short pieces in modern American prose; and another dozen and a half that are almost as good. The universal monarchy of wit was never very crowded; they will find no difficulty at all in making room for him there."

+ Sat R of Lit 22:6 Ag 17 '40 280w

"Tempered to the genteel tastes of The New Yorker, these pieces seldom hold a Roman candle to real Ginsbergh fireworks. Yet they are also as hard, sharp, bright and cold as a display of surgical instruments; and sometimes they do genuinely surgical work."

+ — Time 36:66 Ag 12 '40 650w

PERLEY, MAIE CLEMENTS. Without my gloves. 279p $2.50 Dorrance

917.3 U.S.—Description and travel. National characteristics, American. U.S.—Social life and customs 40-6438

"Customs and different types of people encountered during a visit and later residence in the United States are the subject of humorous observations in [this volume]. . . The material comes under three headings. In 'Big Town' the author, an Englishwoman, deals with her experiences and observations in New York. Then comes a travel interlude, in which she sees America on holiday and during which she passes through various parts of the country. Then come her experiences in a midwestern university town, where her husband has a faculty appointment." Springf'd Republican

Christian Century 57:354 Mr 13 '40 40w

"Her point of view is always complacently alien and some of her generalizations are extraordinary. But some of her comments are amusing and shrewd."

+ — N Y Times p18 Mr 24 '40 450w

Springf'd Republican p10 My 3 '40 480w

PEROWNE, BARRY. Raffles and the Key Man. 300p $2 Lippincott

40-7250

A famous character in the field of adventure fiction is brought back in this tale. The author has used the figures of Raffles and Bunny with permission of the executors of the late E. W. Hornung.

"Barry Perowne has the knack, all right, and Raffles fans should find this story a comforting substitute for the real thing." Will Cuppy

+ Books p20 My 5 '40 150w

"A rousing mystery with a delightful hero." Marian Wiggin

+ Boston Transcript p2 My 4 '40 90w

"Here are enough thrilling adventures on sea and land to provide several hours of surcease from the humdrum worries of the day." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p17 My 26 '40 140w

"Perennial amateur cracksman and pal Bunny act as stage props for average yarn of murder, robbery and general villainy. Diverting."

Sat R of Lit 22:18 Ap 27 '40 40w

PERRY, MRS EVADNA KRAUS. Crafts for fun; with phot. by Clarence Perry. 278p $3 Morrow

745 Handicraft 40-30076

Outlines for the young amateur craftsman several handicrafts, and keeps down the expense for tools and materials. Contents: Linoleum block printing; Spattering; Book making; Clay modeling and pottery; Weaving; Knotting; Embroidery; Working with wood; Modeling metal foil; Using sheet cork. Bibliographies. Index.

"The author's enthusiasm awakens a lively interest in her subject, she presents various easy methods and suggests practical mediums for many types of craftwork." F. B. Sloan

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 D 19 '40 120w

"The author, an art supervisor in California, encourages originality and experimentation. . . Good index. Will be useful in Young People's Rooms." Florence O'Gara

+ Library J 65:815 O 1 '40 80w

PERRY, HENRY TEN EYCK. Masters of dramatic comedy and their social themes. 428p $4 Harvard univ. press [17s Oxford]

808.2 Comedy. Social problems in literature 39-32748

"Mr. Perry's book is an admirable guide to 15 major comedists from Aristophanes to Shaw, and is the more pertinent now because it studies comedy as an expression of 'the social experience of the past.'" Boston Transcript

"The fault of most books like Mr. Perry's is, as he admits, that they treat comedy so solemnly that it no longer can be laughed at. For the most part he avoids this pitfall. He writes lightly and persuasively, and although he is interested in the serious aspects of the plays he discusses, he remembers that most of them after all were written to make audiences laugh. Probably he would ask no more for his book than that it should win for the comedies themselves, intelligent readers whether grave or gay. This it should do; since it is skilfully devised to tempt not only those who ask that the drama give food for thought but also those who value past pleasantry solely for its power to deaden present pain." K. B. Murdock

+ Boston Tanscript p2 F 10 '40 240w

"As a reference book for those who wish to refresh their minds about the comic literature of the past or to learn in greater detail the content of plays not available in English it will be found most useful."

Theatre Arts 24:304 Ap '40 390w

PERRY, JOSEPHINE. Around the world making cookies. 157p $1.50 Barrows

641.5 Cookies 40-27497

"Recipes for cookies and small cakes representing old American regional cookery, modern recipes, and many from other countries." Booklist

Booklist 36:378 Je 1 '40

Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Jl '40

J Home Econ 32:475 S '40 50w

PERRY, JOSEPHINE. Fish production. (America at work) 104p il $1.50 Longmans

639.2 Fishing—Juvenile literature. Fisheries—Juvenile literature (W) 40-27662

Descriptions of modern methods of catching and marketing fish in the United States. Illustrated with photographic reproductions. Grades five to eight. Index.

Booklist 37:41 O 1 '40

"A map showing fishing grounds would have improved the book very much. The price seems unnecessarily high." Dorotha Dawson

Library J 65:814 O 1 '40 50w

Social Studies 31:379 D '40 10w

"How the fisherman cares for his nets and insures the freshness of his catch on the way to market is revealed, as well as modern ways of fish preservation in the markets. An excellent selection of photographs has been made for 'Fish Production.'"

+ Springf'd Republican p6 Ja 27 '41 150w

Wis Lib Bul 36:143 O '40

PERRY, RALPH BARTON. Shall not perish from the earth. 161p $1.50 Vanguard

321.8 Democracy (W) 40-31236

"Three of the five chapters of this pocket philosophy of government take democracy and totalitarianism apart, to the end that we may be fortified with a more searching comprehension of what we in America have to defend and what to resist. The other two chapters are principally concerned with the . . . question of tolerance. How much democratic liberty are we to allow to the dissenters whose arguments, if hearkened to, will be the end of all democratic liberty?" Atlantic

Atlantic O '40 130w

Booklist 37:148 D 15 '40

"We have already been exposed to wild gusts of blazing patrioteering nonsense, and we shall hear more these turbulent days. Mr. Perry is to be thanked for this book of clear and steady light." Irwin Edman

+ Books p4 S 22 '40 1350w

Cleveland Open Shelf p17 O '40

J Philos 38:52 Ja 16 '41 550w

"Of immediate concern are the two conclusions which [Professor Perry] draws—one about the meaning of liberty and the limits of tolerance, the other about the reconciliation of might and right in the defense of democracy. The difficulties of the situation are clearly indicated when Professor Perry says that 'to act and to act together are both uncongenial to the temper of democracy, but they are both imperative if the cult of democracy is not to perish from the earth.' His short book is a powerful and closely reasoned appeal to all sincere democrats to act speedily and to act together."

+ Nation 151:428 N 2 '40 220w

"For a tract, the book is unusually literate, cool-headed and readable."

+ New Repub 104:62 Ja 13 '41 80w

Reviewed by Simeon Strunsky

N Y Times p5 Ja 5 '41 900w

"A short but admirable book, full of pithy good sense."

+ New Yorker 16:70 S 7 '40 30w

Reviewed by Jacques Barzun

Sat R of Lit 22:12 S 28 '40 800w

Survey G 29:637 D '40 170w

Reviewed by Carl Becker

Yale R n s 30:375 winter '41 1150w

PERSIAN painting; 12 colour plates, with an introduction by Basil Gray. (Iris books) 13p $2.75 Oxford

759.9 Painting, Persian

Reproductions in color of twelve Persian miniatures of the thirteenth to sixteenth centuries, with short descriptive text about each. An introductory chapter contains a historical sketch of Persian miniature painting.

Booklist 36:327 Ap 15 '40

Reviewed by Royal Cortissoz
Books p11 Je 30 '40 120w

Nation 150:763 Je 22 '40 50w

"This book might have been very much better than it is. It is not important enough for the scholar; the colors are not good enough for the artist and the person who wants to frame the pictures will find few that look well on the wall. Because the introduction is keyed to the student it will not interest the average reader. . . However, the book does contain some very famous miniatures, such as that of Darius hunting by Bihzad, the one of Humay received at the court of China, and a grand one of Muhammad riding about Heaven on a camel." M. A. Ryerson
— + N Y Times p18 My 26 '40 550w

New Yorker 16:91 My 4 '40 30w

"Within its modest scope it is hard to imagine anything more acceptable to an art-lover whose purse is leaner than his taste." F. J. M., Jr.
+ Sat R of Lit 22:19 My 4 '40 90w

"These paintings have a richness of color and a significance that will make the volume prized by lovers of art books as well as by special students of Persian art."
Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 24 '40 140w

PETERSEN, HERMAN. Murder in the making. 317p $2 McBride 40-31188

Detective story.

"Maybe Mr. Petersen would have fared better if he had stuck to the homey mood of the first chapter, or something." Will Cuppy
— Books p18 S 22 '40 110w

"An old-house mystery, but it's different with a vengeance. The Chainor estate is named Dark House and dark doings are going on in it when Doc Miller, a new kind of detective, takes hold. As you read, be sure to watch the airplane—it's important." Marian Wiggin
Boston Transcript p2 S 28 '40 50w

"This tale is only average entertainment, but it does entertain." Kay Irvin
+ — N Y Times p19 S 15 '40 160w

Sat R of Lit 22:28 O 19 '40 50w

Springf'd Republican p7e N 17 '40 190w

PETERSON, MRS ANNA JOSEPHINE (MURPHY), and BADENOCH, MRS NENA FRANCES (WILSON). Delectable dinners; menus with recipes. 460p $2.50 Dutton

641.5 Cookery. Menus (W) 40-501

Menus, with accompanying necessary recipes, are grouped according to the main dish of the meal—meat, eggs or fish. Four courses are usually listed. Directions for preparation are included and an estimate of the required time. Classified index of food items and alphabetical index of recipes.

Reviewed by Eloise Davison
Books p18 Ap 7 '40 110w

Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Jl '40

J Home Econ 32:114 F '40 60w

Wis Lib Bul 36:46 Mr '40

PETERSON, EDWIN LEWIS. No life so happy; il. by W. J. Schaldach. 221p $2.50 Dodd 40-5566

Story of two friends on a fishing trip. They set out with a desire to see a great trout called the King. In the mountain country where the King is supposed to be they learn much about fishing thru their friendship with a mysterious young girl and her equally mysterious father. Only one of the two fishers catches a glimpse of the King.

"There has not been a more unusual or fascinating fishing story published in many years. It is a book to buy, keep, and to read again." T. S.
+ Boston Transcript p1 Jl 13 '40 230w

New Repub 102:553 Ap 22 '40 50w

"Mr Peterson has, on the whole, succeeded in blending fantasy and practical trout fishing in an exceptionally skillful way. . . Several drawings by W. J. Schaldach add considerably to the atmosphere of the book."
+ Springf'd Republican p10 Mr 29 '40 440w

PETROFF, BORIS G. Son of the Danube. 277p il $2 Viking

Children in Bulgaria (W) 40-27408

The adventures of three boys, living on the banks of the Danube river. They catch fish standing in the river without rod or line, swim across the Danube from Bulgaria to Rumania, cling to the paddle wheel of a river mill just for the thrill, aid in the exploration of the river bank for Roman ruins, and go to the village fair. For boys and girls of ten to thirteen.

Booklist 36:348 My 1 '40

"[In the exploring expedition] his story comes to a climax. . . This is the part that should put the book in school libraries, some of whose clients always take strong interest in practical archeology. This is certainly practical enough: it is like going along on the trip." M. L. Becker
+ Books p8 My 19 '40 340w

"Rarely has a story of boy life in another country given young Americans a better sense of the universality of certain tastes and pleasures belonging to the business of being a boy. . . Especially thrilling is the account of their excavating labors on the site of the ruins of an ancient city built by the great Roman emperor, Trajan." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk M 16:170 My '40 150w

"The intention is obviously to give information and atmosphere, and this it does richly, but not with great narrative success. Isolated incidents, such as the riding of the mill-wheel in the river, have considerable narrative interest in themselves, but the incidents as a whole are entirely disconnected and sometimes, as in the case of the fortuitous archaeological discovery, incredible. The style is involved, stilted, and often unconvincing." Alice Monroe
— + Library J 65:456 My 15 '40 120w

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin
Library J 65:857 O 15 '40 40w

"Boys and girls will enjoy the vigorous and daring exploits described. These exploits are never overdrawn, the boys meet with defeat as well as success, life has its unhappy moments even during a holiday. . . The author has put into his book a fine flavor of out-of-doors in the different seasons and both the texts and the fourteen excellent woodcuts by Hans Alexander Mueller suggest the authentic atmosphere of the Danube country." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p10 My 5 '40 430w

Wis Lib Bul 36:140 O '40

PETTENGILL, SAMUEL BARRETT. Smoke-screen. 121p $1 Southern pubs, inc, Kingsport, Tenn; special ed 126p $1 for sale by America's future, inc, 205 E. 42d st, N.Y.

330.973 U.S.—Politics and government 40-8259

"A criticism of the 'menacing trend toward national socialism in the United States.'" Am Econ R

Am Econ R 30:657 S '40 10w

"Mr. Pettengill, former member of Congress, wrote this gem of political propaganda to demonstrate that we are moving toward National Socialism and that the Roosevelt administration is responsible for the direction and the speed with which the country is moving toward that awful goal. . . The author of this diatribe does mention some facts and does trot out certain statistics—but only to force them into the pattern of his prejudice." Joseph Calderon

— Commonweal 33:60 N 1 '40 300w

PEVSNER, NIKOLAUS. Academies of art: past and present. 324p il $6 Macmillan [25s Cambridge]

707 Art—Study and teaching

"After referring to the academies of antiquity . . . Dr. Pevsner begins with the academies, at first informal gatherings of humanists, of the Renaissance. During the age of Mannerism, 'the most schematic and the most "totalitarian" of all modern styles,' they were systematized in Italy, but the culminating point in the history of academies was in France in the seventeenth century with Colbert, and from France the academic idea spread throughout Europe. In the formation of academies Dr. Pevsner attaches great importance to the twin forces of Absolutism and Mercantilism, and he says that the academy of any country reflects the national character, so that every nation may be said to get the academy it deserves." Times [London] Lit Sup

---

"Dr. Pevsner shows that he is aware of those passages in academic annals which seem to justify revolt. At the same time he has not produced a controversial book. This constitutes, instead, an objective record exactly fulfilling the promise implicit in its title. Writing dryly and even a bit pedantically, the author is nevertheless interesting and makes a welcome addition to the bibliography of his subject." Royal Cortissoz

+ — Books p32 O 6 '40 850w

"Pevsner's volume is to be recommended not only for its thoughtful text, but for 28 illustrations and a useful bibliography." Jerome Mellquist

+ Commonweal 33:149 N 29 '40 210w

"Readers of Dr. Pevsner's new book, which is distinguished by Teutonic patience and thoroughness, may be advised to begin with the concluding chapter on the 'Artist's Education To-day.' It is true that 'the few hints and conclusions' contained in it 'will gradually become visible to anybody attentively following the history,' but Dr. Pevsner's very virtues as a historian make heavy demands upon attention, and, in any case, in all artistic matters it is convenient to start with the present."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p216 My 4 '40 750w

PFEIFER, FRIEDL, ed. The Sun Valley ski book. unp $2.50 Barnes, A.S.

796.93 Skis and ski running 40-1475

"This is largely a picture book in which views showing the delights awaiting those able to visit this new winter sports center in the Rockies alternate with practical pictures intended to give instruction." Wis Lib Bul

---

Reviewed by Frank Elkins

N Y Times p22 Ja 14 '40 70w

Wis Lib Bul 36:27 F '40

PFIFFNER, JOHN MCDONALD. Municipal administration. 582p il $4 Ronald

352 Municipal government—U.S. 40-4331

"The author has recognized the need of a book giving a general picture of problems confronting various municipal departments and the responsibility which rests upon citizens for the improvement of municipal government through intelligent support and criticism of administering officials. The book, definitely written as a college text, is not intended to be a handbook in any particular field." Am J Pub Health

---

Am Econ R 30:429 Je '40 10w

Reviewed by W. F. Walker

Am J Pub Health 30:702 Je '40 650w

"Those familiar with Professor Pfiffner's Public Administration [Book Review Digest, 1935] are aware of the clear, easy style of his writing. In the present work, none of this style is lost, even though the final drafts of approximately half of the twenty-seven chapters were prepared by colleagues and assistants. . . While the present book pertains to a more limited field of administration than the previous work, the presentation of the subjects of administrative organization and finances appears to have a better thread of continuity, and is more definitive." D. F. Emch

+ Am Pol Sci R 34:578 Je '40 500w

Reviewed by J. P. Clark

Survey 76:214 Je '40 60w

PHELPS, WILLIAM LYON. Marriage. 56p $1 Dutton

173.1 Marriage (W) 40-30495

An essay on happiness in marriage by a well-known ex-professor of literature. He stresses the fact that character development is more important as a contributing factor than is sex instruction.

Reviewed by Haven Emerson

Am J Pub Health 31:94 Ja '41 60w

"Professor Phelps writes as always with grace and amiability, and this unpretentious essay comes close to the quality of his talking."

+ Books p24 S 29 '40 160w

Christian Century 57:1056 Ag 28 '40 20w

J Home Econ 33:43 Ja '41 20w

PHELPS, WILLIAM LYON, comp. The mothers' anthology. 380p $3 Doubleday

820.8 Mothers. Mothers—Poetry (W) 40-35851

A collection of prose and verse about mothers representing over one hundred writers from Elizabethan times to the present.

Booklist 37:267 F 15 '41

"William Lyon Phelps moves nimbly through this wide field, with no fear of sentiment, but on the whole he avoids what is over-sweet or silly."

Books p37 D 8 '40 40w

"Knowing Professor Phelps' inclusive reading tastes, one would expect the prose and verse in this collection to cover a wide piece of country, and they certainly do. On the whole, the choice of prose is happier than the verse." Eleanor Van Alen

+ — Current Hist & Forum 52:1 Ja 23 '41 700w

Reviewed by E. L. Tinker

N Y Times p16 F 2 '41 280w

Time 36:102 D 16 '40 550w

PHILIPS, JUDSON PENTECOST. Murder in marble. 248p $2 Dodd 40-5398

Detective story.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p20 Mr 17 '40 110w

"The story is a honey. I hope Chizmadia adopts detection as a permanent hobby." Marian Wiggin
+ Boston Transcript p2 Mr 16 '40 60w

"The story starts off well enough, but the finish is deplorably weak." Isaac Anderson
+ — N Y Times p23 Mr 17 '40 150w

"Average."
Sat R of Lit 21:18 Mr 23 '40 40w
Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 7 '40 320w

PHILLIPS, A. H. Gardening without soil. 137p il $2 Chemical pub. co. [3s 6d Pearson]

631.58 Plants—Soilless culture 40-26850

"What may and may not be expected from this recent innovation in horticulture, with informed, simple discussion of water culture, aggregate culture, nutrient solutions, and their use under various conditions. For either layman or scientist." (J Home Econ) Bibliography.

Reviewed by Robert Lemmon
Books p11 Je 9 '40 200w
J Home Econ 32:475 S '40 40w

PHILLIPS, CHARLES FRANKLIN, and GARLAND, JASPER VANDERBILT. The American neutrality problem. (Contemporary social problems: discussion ser) 404p map $2 Wilson, H.W.

327.73 U.S.—Neutrality. U.S.—Foreign relations. Neutrality (W) 40-27111

"This is the second volume in the Contemporary Problems discussion series, the purpose of which is to present basic background material for those planning to enter discussion or debate. As in the Debaters handbook and Reference shelf series, the material presented is drawn from other printed sources but in this instance is more freely adapted and is not arranged to follow the hard and fast lines of a debate." Wis Lib Bul

Booklist 36:285 Mr 15 '40
Wis Lib Bul 36:25 F '40

PHILLIPS, ETHEL CALVERT. Peter Peppercorn; drawings by Ilse Bischoff. 149p $2 Houghton
(W) 39-30181

Colonial New Amsterdam is the background of this story for young readers. The plot is concerned with the capture of Peter's small cousin by the Indians and the return of the boy at the time of Governor Stuyvesant's peace treaty.

Reviewed by Ruth Page
Boston Transcript p5 N 11 '39 20w

"It is a veritable Knickerbocker's History of New York for children but even they may prefer Daugherty's illustrations in the latter book to the orange, black, and white ones herein of Ilse Bischoff." Miriam Snow
+ — Library J 65:124 F 1 '40 120w

"Children of New York and New Jersey will take pleasure in finding familiar country described, but boys and girls everywhere will enjoy this vivid, natural picture of colonial life. In a story so genuine and unselfconscious, Ilse Bischoff's drawings, which are inclined to burlesque the scenes and characters they portray, seem out of key." A. T. Eaton
+ — N Y Times p12 Mr 10 '40 500w

PHILLIPS, ULRICH BONNELL. The course of the South to secession; an interpretation; ed. by E. Merton Coulter. (Am. hist. assn. Publications) 176p $2.50 Appleton-Century

975 South—History. South—Politics and government 40-2173

This volume, containing lectures delivered at Northwestern University and later published in the Georgia Historical Quarterly, was to have been the second in a projected series on the history of the South, left uncompleted by the author's death in 1934. The volume also contains an article: The central theme of Southern history, first published in the American Historical Review in 1928. Index.

Booklist 36:261 Mr 1 '40

"The six lectures here reprinted from the Georgia Historical Quarterly indicate the general nature of the book which Professor Phillips was preparing to write before his untimely death. This book was to have continued the notable 'Life and Labor in the Old South,' [Book Review Digest, 1929] tracing the 'course of public policy to 1861.' The first three lectures contain little that is unfamiliar to students; the last three reveal more of that originality and scholarship which we had learned to expect from Professor Phillips; all of them are presented with clarity and often with wit and charm." H. S. Commager
+ Books p18 Mr 10 '40 700w

Reviewed by W. W. Sweet
Christian Century 57:449 Ap 3 '40 440w

"A reading of this present volume gives one the feeling that here indeed was a man who could penetrate beneath the facts to the truth behind them. In actual content it consists of essays written in advance of his last definitive work, 'Life and Labor in the Old South,' which was planned as the initial third of his magnum opus. . . The first segment was admirably performed. Dr. Phillips had done much spadework upon the second, but all too little distillation. It is couched throughout in his always lucid and exciting style, but without the general development that he so engagingly employed in 'Life and Labor.' These essays, none the less, once more reveal a man who had grown beyond a Georgian, beyond a Southerner, really beyond a national man, to what historians must consider a world attitude and a world mind." G. F. Milton
+ Sat R of Lit 21:16 Ja 27 '40 550w

"So pre-eminent was the late Professor Phillips in his chosen field of scholarship that his matured opinions on the causes of secession deserve a wide audience. The congratulations and thanks of students are therefore due those responsible for republishing in one volume both the long essay which gives this book its title and the shorter article on 'The Central Theme of Southern History.'" J. E. Johnson
+ Social Studies 31:233 My '40 250w
Times [London] Lit Sup p199 Ap 20 '40 130w

PHILLIPS, WILBUR CAREY. Adventuring for democracy. (Social union publication) 380p $3; pa $1.50 Social unit press, 118 E. 28th st, N.Y.

301.1523 Community life. Social work. National social unit organization 40-32159

"A description and exposition, in fascinating narrative form, of the 'pattern of social union,' a new 'pattern of organization that will give complete democracy plus efficiency in planning and management.' Highly commended both by the philosopher, John Dewey, and the engineer, Walter Rautenstrauch, the book chronicles the adventures of Dr. Phillips (an engineer by profession) and his wife, Elsie La Grange Cole Phillips, in working out concretely and realistically, with many adventures, the penetrating social implications of the 'pattern.'" School & Society

Booklist 37:148 D 15 '40

"It is the spirit of such men and women as Wilbur and Elsie Phillips, every bit as much as their practical leadership and their tenacity of purpose, which America needs; and it is this same spirit which illumines this book and lifts it quite above the ordinary, whether fiction or non-fiction." E. T. Buehrer

+ Christian Century 57:1081 S 4 '40 1100w

"Wilbur and Elsie Phillips are two remarkable people. They have both a consuming faith in democracy and an enthusiasm to make it efficient. . . [It] is a heartening story and should be read by everyone today for whom democracy is not a dream but a faith and a program."

+ Churchman 154:17 D 1 '40 380w

Commonweal 32:494 O 4 '40 50w

School & Society 52:176 S 7 '40 80w

Special Libraries 31:444 D '40

PICK, FREDERICK WALTER. Searchlight on German Africa; the diaries and papers of W. Ch. Regendanz, a study in colonial ambitions by F. W. Pick; with a foreword by G. P. Gooch. 178p map $1.50 Norton [5s Allen, G]

325.343 Germany—Colonies. Morocco. Nyassaland [40-32513]

"This study is mainly concerned with two incidents of German colonial policy: Germany's drive on Morocco before the last war, culminating in the sending of warships to Agadir in 1911, and the attempt, by more peaceful business methods, to gain control of Nyassaland, both before the war and after, up to 1932. The book is based on the papers and diaries of Dr. W. Ch. Regendanz, now a British subject but at that time a trusted agent of the German government and representative of a Hamburg business syndicate." Canadian Forum

"Dr. Pick's edition of this diary is an interesting contribution to the literature of German prewar expansion. . . The book adds material for an understanding of the Anglo-German Agreement of 1914 which does not appear in the official documents as well as providing material for the study of the methods and objectives of German imperialism." F. T. Williamson

+ Am Hist R 46:405 Ja '41 550w

Canadian Forum 20:95 Je '40 250w

Christian Science Monitor p18 Ja 10 '40 200w

Manchester Guardian p3 Ja 5 '40 170w

"It is a good tale about an inspiring character and a wise endeavour. But it could have been less heavily told by the writer and more appetizingly presented by the publishers. Paragraphs are too long; considerable acquaintance with the historical background is expected of the reader; and there are irritating mistakes, even of English. Nevertheless, to students of African colonial history the book is important, and to those who hope for a saner Germany which knows how to be a rival without making herself an enemy Dr. Regendanz must appear as a pioneer."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p694 D 2 '39 700w

PICKELS, GEORGE WELLINGTON, and WILEY, CARROLL CARSON. Route surveying. 2d ed 427p il $3.50 Wiley [21s Chapman]

625.11 Railroads—Surveying 39-24826

"An engineer's handbook of technical data, first published in 1930. Changes are slight, except in the extensive revision of chapters on circular curves and spirals. A chapter on the string-lining method of realigning existing railroad curves has been added." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 36:154 D 15 '39

Eng N 125:80 Jl 18 '40 140w

N Y New Tech Bks 25:40 Jl '40

PICKEN, MRS MARY (BROOKS). Modern dressmaking made easy. [240p] il $3.50 Funk

646 Dressmaking (W) 40-27283

The theme of this handbook for the home dressmaker is stated in the introductory pages: "Sewing should never be difficult or dull. . . A seemingly difficult undertaking becomes a delight when the right steps, taken the right way, in the right order, lead to a thrillingly successful result." The book is divided into seven parts: All about sewing; All about patterns; Your physical self; Streamline machine sewing; All about dressmaking; Your colors and clothes; All about ready-to-wear. Illustrated with many line drawings and diagrams.

Booklist 36:302 Ap 1 '40

Cleveland Open Shelf p10 My '40

Wis Lib Bul 36:110 Je '40

PICKLES, WILLIAM NORMAN. Epidemiology in country practice; with pref. by Major Greenwood. 110p il $2.50 Williams & Wilkins [7s 6d Wright, J]

616.9 Epidemics. Infection and infectious diseases

"The author has been practising in a rural area about Wensleydale in northern England for twenty-five years. . . Through these many years he has accumulated notes and observations upon the manner in which infectious diseases were introduced and spread among his patients. He has now undertaken to bring these together in this small volume." Am J Pub Health

Reviewed by K. F. Maxcy

Am J Pub Health 30:96 Ja '40 200w

"The work is remarkably readable."

+ Nature 145:813 My 25 '40 190w

PICKWELL, GAYLE BENJAMIN. Animals in action [il. with phot. by the author]. (Whittlesey house publication) 190p $4 McGraw

591.5 Animals, Habits and behavior of (W) 40-32958

A combination of text and picture, describing the life habits of animals from insects to bears. "Here is a series of twenty-one small pictures which show the entire development of the monarch butterfly. Here is the inside of a rattlesnake's mouth. . . Here are ants defending their nests with a bombardment of formic acid. And here are ugliness and deftness in spiders, and lacy charm in a spider's perfect web. Larger animals appear also in these pages—there is even a picture of a bear—and the shy beauty of forest creatures is seen in some of the photographs." (N Y Times) Index.

"Written in simple, straightforward, nontechnical prose, the book gives you a sweeping, bird's-eye view of the animal kingdom from earthworms to man. . . All in all, 'Animals in Action' is a book for the alert and inquiring mind, young or old. It will provide a basis for a better appreciation of the mysteries and wonders of the animal world." E. W. Teale

+ Books p16 S 29 '40 380w

Christian Science Monitor p11 O 19 '40 50w

"In 'Birds,' 'Deserts' and 'Weather' most of the pictures were both remarkable and beautiful. Beauty is not a noticeable characteristic of most of this book's sixty-eight plates. But the photographs in this quarto volume are no less extraordinary for that. . . Both text and photographs invite the reader to a closer knowledge. Gayle Pickwell's books of popularization are among the most interesting of their kind."

+ N Y Times p10 S 29 '40 330w

New Yorker 16:72 S 7 '40 40w

PIER, ARTHUR STANWOOD. The young man from Mount Vernon. 364p $2.50 Stokes

Washington, George—Fiction (W) 40-27175

As the author says in his prologue "In writing this biography in fiction of the young George Washington, I have let him tell part of the story himself, but I have frequently called on other persons to do the narrating." Some chapters are narrated by George William Fairfax, some by Sally Fairfax, the greater number by Washington himself. Each episode brings out a particular quality in the hero.

Booklist 36:265 Mr 1 '40

"If the result were just a little funnier it would be an excellent burlesque of a novel as written by an historian without a notion of the nature or technique of fiction. But its humor is largely unconscious. . . Perhaps we were not so far wrong in making Washington a Great Stone Face. Perhaps there really is something solid about him that makes him look better on the side of a mountain than on the inside of a novel." M. L. Becker

— Books p8 F 18 '40 600w

"The thing about this novel, of course, is whether or not anything is gained by writing it. We think that there is. It is a good and often exciting story, and it does succeed in helping to make its hero 'first in the hearts of his countrywomen,' by demonstrating the charm too often overlooked." Olga Owens

+ Boston Transcript p1 F 17 '40 900w

Christian Science Monitor p12 Ap 13 '40 420w

Reviewed by Katharine Shorey

Library J 65:118 F 1 '40 180w

"Anxious to tell us where he departs from fact, yet unwilling to obtrude with footnotes, he has surrounded his story of the young Washington with an unusual framework. . . One history professor, the author, is reading his manuscript to a critical colleague in the department. Thus the auditor is able to comment: 'That is true to the circumstances.' Or, conversely: 'Just a moment. This Sir Percy is a fictitious character, is he not?' The device, which was intended to create, and perhaps ought to create, confidence unreasonably shatters at intervals the illusion Mr. Pier has spent so much care and thought in creating. The novel has its brilliant moments. It was a pity not to leave us in uninterrupted, even if deluded, enjoyment of them." Margaret Wallace

+ — N Y Times p25 F 18 '40 750w

Wis Lib Bul 36:31 F '40

PIERCE, BESSIE LOUISE. A history of Chicago; 4v; v 2, From town to city, 1848-1871. 580p pl maps $5 Knopf

977.31 Chicago—History (37-8801)

This second volume of the author's History of Chicago covers the years from 1848 to 1871, from the coming of the first railroad to the Chicago fire. For volume one see Book Review Digest, 1937. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by Harold Zink

Am Pol Sci R 34:1235 D '40 300w

Booklist 37:88 N 1 '40

"Like Dr. Pierce's previous volume, this book truckles to no demand for 'colorful personalities,' but unearths genuine historical source material in a way that gives a full, rich picture of the development of the teeming city itself."

+ New Repub 103:701 N 18 '40 70w

Reviewed by T. V. Smith

Sat R of Lit 23:16 Ja 18 '41 270w

PIERCE, NOEL. Quicksand. 311p $2.50 McBride 40-32089

Tho Alec and Julie Farnham were regarded by their world as a very happy couple, when Julie and their son Mark joined Alec in Nassau, Mark soon saw that his father must be saved from another woman. Matters were complicated by blackmail but finally Mark accomplished his purpose and won happiness for himself as well.

Reviewed by D. B. Shapiro

Books p12 S 29 '40 280w

"Here we have a curious polished double triangle, with elegance and great ladies and wounded pride and tragic misunderstanding and finally a wild happiness that probably would settle down some day to contentment, but would keep a paradoxical unearthly joy." C. D.

N Y Times p18 S 29 '40 320w

"The characters are pleasant on the whole, and the situations, original but hardly probable, are developed so that the reader wants to know what is going to happen next."

Springf'd Republican p7e S 29 '40 420w

PIERIK, MARIE. The spirit of Gregorian chant. 202p $2.75 McLaughlin & Reilly

783.5 Chant (plain, Gregorian, etc) 40-4086

"It is the author's belief that the student of Gregorian Chant will best attain its spirit by delving into its origin, its evolution and its place in the liturgy. A knowledge of this data is a prerequisite for its understanding and presentation. In the first chapter we are given a general survey of its Golden Age. . . There follows a rather technical dissertation on the elements of the Chant—its notation, modes, texts, melody and rhythm. The book concludes by showing the relation of ecclesiastical music to the liturgy and the consequent necessity of a truly spiritual repertory and presentation." America

Reviewed by F. S. Donahue

America 62:557 F 24 '40 150w

Commonweal 31:271 Ja 12 '40 170w

PIERPONT MORGAN LIBRARY, NEW YORK. Check list of fifteenth century printing in the Library; comp. by Ada Thurston and Curt F. Bühler. ltd ed 348p $7.50 The Library, 29 E. 36th st, N.Y. [38s 6d Quaritch]

016.093 Incunabula—Bibliography 40-1052

"This is a list of 1,991 items consisting of 24 block books and woodcut single sheets and 1,967 copies of fifteenth-century printed books. The last-named group includes 1,856 separate editions and 111 duplicate copies. . . The arrangement of the check list is chronological by countries, by towns, and by presses—that of Proctor's Index corrected by later authorities —with an index to countries, towns, printers, and publishers; and another to authors and titles. By placing the Proctor number opposite each title in the body of the work and the Hain number opposite each title in the author index, the compilers have rendered easy the search for an item under either of these series of numbers." Library Q

"As a bibliography the check list is excellent. This reviewer has used it critically in the comparison of its entries with the manuscript records of the 'Second Census of Fifteenth Century Books Owned in America,' and the few discrepancies are so insignificant that they need not be mentioned. The accuracy of the painstaking bibliographical work of the compilers, Miss Ada Thurston and Dr. Curt F. Buehler, merits the highest praise. There are, of course, certain features of the list which might be criticized. The compilers themselves frankly admit that their index of authors and titles is not too satisfactory. . . The suggestions and criticisms here made reflect in no way on the specific usefulness and accuracy of the Morgan check list, which sets the highest standards of bibliographical correctness. It will render valued service as a handbook for the bibliographer, the bibliophile and the student, and, above all, as an adequate guide to the incunabula in the Pierpont Morgan collection." F. R. Gaff

+ Books p17 Ja 28 '40 1250w

"This attractive Check list not only locates a great deal of scarce material but also corrects a rather common misconception that the incunabula collection of the Pierpont Morgan Library includes only a few very rare items. Rarities it has—as its list of 62 Caxtons proves—but the Check list shows also a well balanced collection, illustrating in great detail the early history of printing." E. E. Willoughby
+ Library Q 10:298 Ap '40 240w

PINCKNEY, PAULINE A. American figureheads and their carvers. 223p il $4 Norton 736 Figureheads. Wood carving 41-1172

"In this book, the first publication on the subject, the author has attempted a chronological record of American ship carving. This art, so widespread in America where shipbuilding was being carried on, was one of the first expressions of the plastic arts in this country and therefore represents an important epoch in American sculpture. . . Present research shows that early American carvers were not artists by accident, but trained craftsmen devoted to creating a thing of form and beauty. The number who proclaimed themselves as carvers tends to prove the substantiality of the craft; some four hundred of these have been gleaned from a number of different sources and are included in this volume." (Foreword) Index.

Booklist 37:266 F 15 '41

"An unusually competent and attractive gift book, especially for those with a lively interest in American traditions."
+ Commonweal 33:286 Ja 3 '41 120w

"The volume is an admirable, and in the field of American art development an important, piece of work; and it is so clearly and competently written as to be interesting general reading."
+ N Y Times p4 Ja 12 '41 480w
Springf'd Republican p7e D 15 '40 50w

PINE, HESTER. Listen to the mocking bird. 344p $2.50 Farrar 40-3361

A selfish, narrow-minded mother, and her equally selfish daughter, both married to self-effacing husbands, are the main characters of this story. A strong-minded great-aunt adds a note of common sense to the ensemble.

"Miss Pine draws her picture of this shallow and greedy woman with extraordinary delicacy. . . 'Listen to the Mocking Bird' is written and contrived in a pleasantly simple and easy manner agreeable to read. . . While there is little mercy for the heroine, the men-folk in the book are presented affectionately and seem oddly convincing. If it sets readers of the male sex darting suspicious and wary glances at the wives of their bosom, perhaps it is all for the best." Iris Barry
+ Books p2 Ja 28 '40 650w

"Ever since Scarlett, heroines have been going from bad to worse, but Miss Pine's Caroline (who grows from the brat Carrie to the Tramp Carol) is, in our opinion, the most brainless, pretentious, ill-bred, morbid and generally hateful girl in all fiction. . . Whether Miss Pine is trying to be smart, caustic, sardonic or witty we really couldn't say."
— Boston Transcript p2 Ja 27 '40 300w

"It's to Miss Pine's credit that a heroine with so much selfishness can work up a fair amount of reader sympathy."
+ New Repub 102:158 Ja 29 '40 40w

"The development of a rather sympathetic and thwarted child into a self-willed woman is excellently done. . . The author has a deft hand for sharp, brief characterizations also, and many minor personages, including those whom the 'mocking bird' accepted as models, are neatly ticked off. . . The story is livened with humor, mostly of an indirect and ironic order. It is good entertainment, with no moral conclusions, but the sharp color of close, shrewd observation." Beatrice Sherman
+ N Y Times p24 Ja 21 '40 700w

"In general, facile, colloquial, and credible."
+ New Yorker 15:62 Ja 27 '40 50w

"In her dull but ambitious second novel, Hester Pine withholds the brand of lively, urbane dialogue that made 'Beer for the Kitten' [Book Review Digest, 1939] amusing in parts, and recounts much too long a stretch in the life of a tedious Texan, Caroline Talbot. . . It's really too bad that there's no strong, vital undercurrent here to hold our interest." J. R. P.
— Sat R of Lit 21:20 Ja 27 '40 350w

PINE, HESTER. The prickly pear. 323p $2.50 Farrar 40-32623

Four years after their marriage, Nicholas Tappen, magazine editor, and his wife, Susan, a brilliantly successful interior decorator, finally allowed the last of many quarrels to bring them to the breaking point. Nicholas' heart on its rebound was captured by a dowdy little authoress, but in the end he found a middle course which promised happiness.

"Miss Pine is much better at characterization and dialogue than plot. The story is too slick; at times, dangerously thin in sequence of incident. The material is there for probing and development, but Miss Pine gives it only superficial attention. The result is a little like an artificial ice-skating rink, hard and brittle on the surface but [no] depths beneath. But, it should be added, there can be fun on an artificial rink, and Miss Pine provides some fancy verbal skating." Rose Feld
+ — Books p10 N 3 '40 500w

"It is clear that Miss Pine rather likes her characters, even the phonies and poseurs, and her writing, though sharp and sometimes witty, is never bitter." Margaret Wallace
+ N Y Times p38 D 1 '40 600w

PINKERTON, KATHRENE SUTHERLAND (GEDNEY) (MRS R. E. PINKERTON). Adventure north; il. by Stephen J. Voorhies. 269p map $2 Carrick
(W) 40-31726

Modern pioneering in Ontario is the background of this story for young readers. The Jackmans, father and mother, with Ann, aged fourteen, and Philip, aged eleven, went to settle beside Far Lake, near a Hudson's Bay post. It was Mr Jackman's purpose to support his family by trapping, but the Indians thought otherwise. How blonde-haired Ann was instrumental in solving the family's difficulties makes the story.

Booklist 37:123 N 15 '40

"The book is a series of involuntary exercises in building self-control. The children and their elders learn to live in peace with Indians and come to amiable terms on fur territory. Ann is still in years a child in the last chapter, but an Indian girl tells truth when she calls her 'heap big all right.' Much of living has gone into the process of making these children strong without making them tough." M. L. Becker
+ Books p16 N 10 '40 240w

"There are real thrills in this book. Follow Ann and Philip as they do the many new things that are part of living in the wilderness and watch how they grow in self-reliance and resourcefulness and have a happy time doing it. Share the ups and downs of this family as they build and furnish a home in the woods." F. B. Sloan
+ Christian Science Monitor p12 N 27 '40 140w

"There is a fine woodsy tang to this account of home-making in the wilderness, and boys and girls will enjoy 'Ann and Philip's outdoor adventures, their friendships with the Indians and the spirit with which they met the problems of an alien country." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p44 N 10 '40 200w

PINKERTON, K. S.—Continued

"If you want to warm your heart with a tale of happy people, of the simple life and virtue rewarded, this is your book. You will also learn from it how fur-trappers and Ojibwas live in the great wilderness of the North." L. J. Halle, Jr.

+ Sat R of Lit 23:9 N 16 '40 270w

" 'Adventure North' is an unusually authentic and vigorous teen-age book, which both boys and girls, and even older readers will like."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e D 8 '40 360w

Wis Lib Bul 36:172 D '40

PINKERTON, KATHRENE SUTHERLAND (GEDNEY) (MRS R. E. PINKERTON). Three's a crew [phot. by the author and Stewart Edward White]. 316p map $2.75 Carrick

917.98 Northwest coast of North America. British Columbia—Description and travel. Alaska—Description and travel. Yachts and yachting (W) 40-27176

The author of Wilderness Wife (Book Review Digest, 1939) relates the hardships and joys, the small adventures and curious sights of vacation cruisings, chiefly in Alaskan waters. The crew of three were the writer, her husband, and their daughter who was nine the year they made their first trip.

Booklist 36:260 Mr 1 '40

Bookmark p10 My '40

Reviewed by Muriel Chatain
Books p4 F 25 '40 650w

"It is with a sense of gratitude, as well as of high adventure, that the reader reluctantly puts down this true story. Mrs. Pinkerton's book is important, because her way of life would be the right one for so many people unhappy where they are." O. O.

+ Boston Transcript p2 F 24 '40 270w

"With the same brisk style, the same gay good humor and observant eye, the author brings to her new book all the qualities which endeared 'Wilderness Wife' to a host of readers." M. W. S.

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 Mr 23 '40 700w

"A story that lifts one out of the rut of ordinary living." P. H. Williams

+ Commonweal 31:498 Mr 29 '40 300w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk M 16:167 My '40 100w

Reviewed by A. L. Jewett
Library J 65:117 F 1 '40 170w

"The most adventurous part of this record falls, naturally, within the earlier chapters, when 'the Pinks' were edging their way along in the little Yakima and studying the Coast Pilot and learning new things all the time. But the book holds its zestful interest to the end, and there are always new twists of experience, new sights to see."

+ N Y Times p4 F 25 '40 280w

New Yorker 16:80 F 24 '40 30w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 21 '40 950w

Wis Lib Bul 36:47 Mr '40

PITKIN, WALTER BOUGHTON. The art of useful writing. (Whittlesey house publication) 261p il $2 McGraw

029.6 Authorship (W) 40-31986

By "useful writing" Mr Pitkin means writing for some practical purpose,—business correspondence, radio scripts, advertisements, scientific reports, etc. The body of his book is devoted chiefly to four phases of the subject—first, the mechanics (including use of typewriter and statistical charts, good English and powers of observation); second, logic; third, psychology; and last, economics. Index.

" 'The Art of Useful Writing' is set before you with terseness and pleasant dashes of humor, but it is nevertheless a textbook. There is no silver platter, says Mr. Pitkin, here."

+ N Y Times p34 O 20 '40 320w

Sat R of Lit 23:20 N 9 '40 160w

PITKIN, WALTER BOUGHTON. Escape from fear. 264p $2 Doubleday

170 Conduct of life. Fear. Mental hygiene (W) 40-32226

Acknowledging that our modern world is Chaos, the author attempts to show the intelligent, earnest man or woman how the fear of becoming part of this Chaos may be overcome.

Books p32 D 8 '40 80w

"In his latest offering in popular psychology, 'Escape From Fear' Walter B. Pitkin undertakes to fight fire with fire. In an admirable beginning, he defines the difference between 'escaping fear and escaping the trouble that causes the fear.' But there are times when his argument seems like advocating the substitution of hate for fear. In attacking the limitations of some cherished conceptions, he sets forth pugnacious views of his own about 'improving' the world."

Springf'd Republican p8 O 8 '40 600w

PITTENGER, WILLIAM NORMAN. Approach to Christianity. 150p $1.40 Morehouse [3s 6d Bles]

230 Christianity [40-13763]

"A short statement of the Christian faith addressed particularly to those who are acquainted with modern scientific thought and the general philosophical outlook of the age. The point of view of the author, who is a lecturer in the General theological seminary, is both Catholic and 'modernist': Catholic, in that it is concerned to maintain the fundamental values and emphases of the great tradition in Christendom as mediated through the Anglican communion, 'modernist,' in that it seeks to relate these values and emphases to new knowledge and to present the faith in modern language." Living Church

Reviewed by Elizabeth McCracken
Living Church 101:5 D 6 '39 100w

Reviewed by B. S. Easton
Living Church 102:9 F 14 '40 190w

"A criticism that must be passed upon this book, and which, good as it is, it cannot altogether escape, is that in so few pages too much is attempted, and the criticism is really enforced by the title; for the book is not a prolegomenon, but a rapid survey of the various Christian doctrines, and the reader will inevitably feel that always too little is being said. At the same time, accepting the book for what it is, Mr. Pittenger's survey should be useful to those who want to have a quick description of what Christianity is about."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p647 N 4 '39 80w

PITTER, RUTH. The spirit watches [and other poems]. 60p $1.50 Macmillan [3s 6d Cresset]

821 40-8246

Collection of poems by the winner of the Hawthornden prize in England in 1937. The poems are imbued with a love of nature, and surrounded with an atmosphere of mysticism.

Booklist 36:379 Je 1 '40

Reviewed by Ruth Lechlitner
Books p6 Je 16 '40 290w

"There is something of Louise Guiney's cool, silvery music in Ruth Pitter, something of her quiet, wistful intensity against a background of scholarship, something of her remoteness coupled with a Franciscan sisterhood for man and bird and beast and flower. . . Unlike many of our contemporary singers, Ruth Pitter believes in the beauty of discipline, discipline of the heart and head as well as of the word. . . The watching spirit of her work has attained, in Dante's words, to 'look upon the beginnings of peace.' " K. B.

+ Cath World 151:630 Ag '40 280w

"This English poet is still described as 'rising,' but she has already risen far. Though she writes seriously, even when she writes of little things, her tone has not the assurance of one confident of having found the Truth but the questioning note of one still seeking. But though her convictions may be tentative, her poetic touch is sure."

+ Christian Century 57:547 Ap 24 '40 80w

"I do not think that this collection of poems from Miss Pitter is quite the equal of 'Trophy of Arms,' with which she won the Hawthornden Prize in 1937. It lacks a little of the clarity and directness, the incisive penetration of her former verse. The difference is due not to any weakening of her technique, but to an alteration in her mood; for she has grown more aloof, retreated more within herself, and occasionally the mood is too elusive. . . She retreats only to become 'advanced' to the point of obscurity. Nevertheless, there are many fine things here, which show Miss Pitter at very nearly her best." Eric Forbes-Boyd

+ — Christian Science Monitor p11 F 24 '40 140w

Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Jl '40

"Miss Pitter's poems are admired by Belloc, Beachcomber, James Stephens (who compares them to Yeats), Siegfried Sassoon, and Robert Nichols. She is a Hawthornden prizewinner. But I consider them a fake. Her music, her imagery, her observation, have a mistiness as of the gauze let down in front of the stage before the scene in The Immortal Hour. . . One has an uplifting sense of someone thinking beautiful things, but nothing is focused either in the Here or the Hereafter." Stephen Spender

New Statesman & Nation 18:834 D 9 '39 140w

"Miss Pitter is a poet with a singularly fine ear and much sensitive insight, and the lyrics in her new volume, 'The Spirit Watches,' are remarkable, often, for an accent which would place her somewhere between Campion and Marvell in a comparative anthology. She lacks ardor; the feeling which gives resonance to stanzas by Emily Brontë or Louise Labé she does not have. But what she sees, she sees in her own way, and her emotions are also coolly her own and are applied to her subjects with simple rectitude." Louise Bogan

+ New Yorker 16:92 Ap 20 '40 290w

"A poet can be offered no better praise at the moment than the assurance his work is readable in the face of current events. That this is as true of Miss Pitter's present volume as it was of her last, A Trophy of Arms, carries her nearer the mark in fame which Belloc set for her, and reminds us that James Stephens placed her next to Yeats, and called her 'perhaps the purest poet of our day.' " R. T. Swartz

+ Poetry 56:334 S '40 750w

"With her latest volume Miss Pitter assumes full stature as one of the indubitable poets of a dubious time. She is that rare thing: a mystic with a sense of humor, an initiate whose revelations are immediate, eager, seldom arcane. Tender yet never mawkish, exquisite but stern, Miss Pitter is a joy to discover and a happiness to recall." Louis Untermeyer

+ Sat R of Lit 22:10 Jl 20 '40 400w

"The material of the poems is trite and faded, but nevertheless Miss Pitter succeeds in charging it with some new vitality. Within her clearly defined limits she is a lyric poet in the tradition of W. H. Davies and Walter de la Mare: lacking the freshness of one, the 'magic' of the other, but gifted with the same ability to distil the essence of a transient perception of two or three familiar objects against a stereotyped background. The Spirit Watches reveals a genuine talent working capably in an inherited vein which is always in sight of exhaustion." Desmond Hawkins

— + Spec 163:876 D 15 '39 180w

"It is not often that a book of poems is so happily or truly named as Miss Pitter's new volume. For the watching spirit, which she describes in her opening poem as 'love's apotheosis,' does haunt with 'sidelong look' all the poems which follow, though her presence is more often felt than seen. It is felt in the sensitive blending of the timeless with the things of time and their transmutation from natural objects into meaningful symbols. Miss Pitter succeeds, of course, in varying degrees, and in blending she sometimes blurs. But her aim is constant. . . Her artistry is so sensitively subdued to her imaginative mood that qualities of style never obtrude. But the grace of her verse can be a little misty, suggesting the beautiful rather than crystallizing the real."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p746 D 23 '39 550w

Reviewed by R. W. Short

Yale R n s 30:214 autumn '40 290w

PLATO. Plato and Parmenides. See Parmenides Eleates

PLATZ, MABEL, comp. Anthology of public speeches [foreword by J. W. Studebaker]. 852p $3.75 Wilson, H.W.

808.85 Orations. Speeches, addresses, etc.
(W) 40-9178

Collection of about 250 typical public speeches from each important period of history, beginning with ancient Greece. Introductory and biographical material for each period and speaker. Index.

Booklist 36:410 Jl 1 '40

"This omnibus volume is of more value for the study of oratory than as a storehouse on which to draw for current speech material."

Wis Lib Bul 36:111 Je '40

PLAYFAIR, ROBERT SMITH. Colonel of the Crimson [il. by Solomon Levenson]. 233p $2 Houghton

40-30969

"Gene Caldwell, who has been a star athlete at high school but who now finds he cannot work his way through Harvard and also have time for basketball and baseball, feels that he is just a drudge. The story shows how he adjusts his time and work to permit him to enjoy friends and sports and also gives a fine picture of the science and sportsmanship of basketball and baseball." Wis Lib Bul

---

"Much is made of the democratic tradition and the book is definitely out to build character. The manner in which this is handled weakens the book. The incidents are exciting but not wholly credible. The style is choppy. In format the book is entirely satisfactory and the frequent black and white drawings are unusually good. For boys fourteen to eighteen." Gertrude Andrus

— + Library J 65:1045 D 1 '40 100w

"This book has rather more to it than the average school and sport story. It is better written, for one thing. . . A good deal of basketball and baseball lore goes into the book. Older boys, with a slant toward sport and school fiction, will like it immensely." S. J. Johnson

+ Library J 65:1045 D 1 '40 100w

"Plenty of plot and good characterizations." Robert Van Gelder

+ Sat R of Lit 23:7 N 16 '40 50w

Wis Lib Bul 36:154 N '40

PLENN, JAIME HARRYSSON. Saddle in the sky; the Lone Star state; il. by Agnes Lilienberg Muench. 287p map $2.75 Bobbs

917.64 Texas 40-7605

An informally written account of Texas, mingling history, personal anecdote and legend with description, manners and customs, and politics.

Booklist 36:363 My 15 '40

"Mr. Plenn, loaded not merely with plenty of facts but with a long-time accumulation of sights and smells and sounds, apparently has sat himself down at his typewriter and let go. The result is so effortless, and makes such easy reading, that it seems downright careless, which it isn't. He does for Texas very much the same sort of job he did for Mexico in his earlier book, 'Mexico Marches,' [Book Review Digest, 1939] which was also an informal masterpiece of penetration and entertainment." Stanley Walker

+ Books p4 Ap 14 '40 1200w

"The book isn't exactly history, for, although there is much accurate history scattered through the pages, any school teacher who attempted to use 'Saddle in the Sky' as a manual would find his pupils much more enthusiastic over Angel Appleseed and his tall tales, over Bill Pecos, 'the toughest, orneriest and wildest buckaroo' who ever hit those parts, over Belle Starke, the woman outlaw who played a lone hand, than over Santa Anna or General Zachary Taylor. . . 'Saddle in the Sky' is a book of infinite zest; it conveys the spirit of vanished decades while at the same time being far from neglectful of the sterner realities that lay behind." Percy Hutchison

+ N Y Times p6 My 5 '40 1450w

"Poorly organized but amiable stuff."

New Yorker 16:96 Ap 20 '40 40w

PLUMMER, FRED LEROY, and DORE, STANLEY MILBURN. Soil mechanics and foundations. 473p il $4.50 Pitman

624.15 Soils (engineering). Foundations 40-7154

The term "soil mechanics" as used herein "is now accepted as a proper designation of a new laboratory approach to the solution of many foundation and earthwork problems. . . This book represents an attempt to correlate, summarize, and simplify these developments for the benefit of those who have not had an opportunity to specialize in this field, and those who are just beginning to study such problems. It is not intended for research workers specializing in the field of soil mechanics, but rather for engineers and students who wish to become familiar with the basic principles, terminology, the types of tests, and the methods of application to engineering problems." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by Lazarus White

Eng N 124:72 Je 20 '40 350w

N Y New Tech Bks 25:27 Ap '40

PLUMMER, HENRY CROZIER KEATING. Probability and frequency. 277p $3 (15s) Macmillan

519 Probabilities [40-30554]

"Aims to fill a long-felt need for an elementary and modern book on the theory of probability. It provides only an introduction, however, to the general ideas on the subject; a few numerical examples are given in an attempt to approach the various topics of probability from a mathematical viewpoint. Mathematical tables are appended." N Y New Tech Bks

"The book is a welcome addition to the rather exiguous list of text-books in English on the subject. Lack of space is doubtless the cause of the omission of certain important topics, such as the theory of estimation of parameters in a probability function. In a few places more precise statements could have been made. . . These, however, are mere obiter dicta; the book is at all times interesting, and punctuated with dry common sense." A. C. Aitken

+ — Nature 146:114 Jl 27 '40 650w

N Y New Tech Bks 25:23 Ap '40

POCKET university. 13v $29.85 1938 Doubleday

808.8 Literature—Collections

"This set was formerly published under the title Master Classics. Some reference has already been made to the Pocket University in Subscription Books Bulletin, April 1932, p.30, in the review of the University Library, [Book Review Digest, 1934] which set incorporated material from the Pocket University. The Pocket University, imprint 1938, includes 12 volumes of literary excerpts of prose and poetry by writers of various periods and countries, arranged under the following subject headings: v.1, Science; v.2, Travel; v.3, Biography; v.4, History; v.5, Letters; v.6, 7, Fiction; v.8, Essays; v.9, 10, Poems; v.11, Drama; v.12, Autobiography. The thirteenth volume of the set, entitled Guide to Daily Reading, was edited by William Rose Benét in consultation with Henry Seidel Canby and Christopher Morley." Subscription Bks Bul

"Individually the volumes might prove useful for supplementary reading or for 'stepping-stone' material in school and in adult education work, under the guidance of a well-trained leader. The brief excerpts and scrappy notes have little to offer the individual as a home study course. The cost of the set is much greater than the price of an equal number of individual titles of proved worth in such fields. The set is not recommended."

— Subscription Bks Bul 11:5 Ja '40 700w

POE, EDGAR ALLAN, 1871-. The house party murders. 305p $2 Lippincott

40-3965

Detective story.

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin

Boston Transcript p6 Ja 6 '40 30w

"The author of this book is a collateral descendant of the author of 'The Murders in the Rue Morgue,' but the mantle of the great Edgar Allan Poe has not fallen upon the shoulders of the present bearer of the name." Isaac Anderson

— N Y Times p17 Ja 7 '40 110w

"Amorous didoes of socialites give body to tenuous but reasonably eventful yarn with solution that jells insufficiently. No masterwork."

— + Sat R of Lit 21:20 Ja 13 '40 40w

POL, HEINZ. Suicide of a democracy; tr. by Heinz and Ruth Norden. 296p $2.50 Reynal

940.5344 European war, 1939—France. France—Politics and government 40-27739

"Here is the unvarnished story of what actually happened in the collapse of the French Republic as seen by an exile from Nazi Germany who had exceptional sources of information both inside and outside the French Government during his five years in the country as an experienced writer and observer." Publisher's note

Booklist 37:87 N 1 '40

"Pol, like others, gives mere blunder, blindness and moral disintegration their role, but at bottom the picture he draws is not one of democracy collapsing but of democracy being conquered from within. Vichy no longer appears merely as a stop-gap flung hastily into chaos; like Franco's government in Spain, it seems rather the logical end product of a process in which there was much more design than accident. I am not competent to pass on the accuracy of Pol's details, but his view is one which is at least worth pondering." Walter Millis

Books p5 N 17 '40 850w

Reviewed by Lewis Gannett

Boston Transcript p11 O 18 '40 200w

"While no book written at the present time can be regarded as final and authoritative, there is certainly a place for the eyewitness narrative, composed under the immediate shock of the tragedy. . . Mr. Pol's work is a valuable addition to the growing literature on the French collapse." W. H. Chamberlin

+ Christian Science Monitor p12 N 9 '40 650w

"This book is high-class journalism and praiseworthy as such; it is, however, not a piece of historiography. It will find many interested readers in public and, perhaps also, college libraries. His profiles of French statesmen like Bonnet (whom he profoundly dislikes) and Mandel (whom he admires) are extremely well done. He has also a wealth of information about the Fascist groups in France and their leaders. The story of the French concentration camps, which he has to relate, will create a sad feeling in many admirers of La douce France." F. E. Hirsch

+ Library J 65:922 N 1 '40 260w

Living Age 359:496 Ja '41 360w

"Heinz Pol's first-hand testimony . . . is of commanding value. He, a refugee from Nazi terrorism, was interned as an enemy alien. He saw how Daladier's France, still nominally a democracy, treated the victims of Hitler, who should have been its closest allies. Long before the military disaster the French Republic had already committed suicide. When we have to face a similar problem, it would be well to heed Pol's warning." Albert Guérard

+ Nation 151:367 O 19 '40 500w

Reviewed by Klaus Lambrecht

New Repub 103:765 D 2 '40 270w

Reviewed by P. J. Philip

N Y Times p9 N 10 '40 370w

"Pol is excellently informed on the common attack of its gravediggers on the democracy of the Third Republic whose last remnant has rallied around General de Gaulle. He tells innumerable stories concerning the special position of the German agents in Paris and their relations to French politicians. A portrait of Otto Abetz who worked for Hitler in Paris for years is particularly rewarding and colorful. He writes warmly but without rancor of that France which shuts people like himself into concentration camps. Even though Pol may tell you much that you have already read in books and newspapers, or heard from friends who have made similar observations, you lay down this book with consternation. It was worse than we cared to think." H. B. Kranz

+ Sat R of Lit 23:13 O 26 '40 320w

Springf'd Republican p7e O 6 '40 300w

Reviewed by Leo Gershoy

Yale R n s 30:405 winter '41 750w

POLLACK, HERBERT. Modern diabetic care; including instructions in the diet and the use of the old and new insulins. 216p il $2 Harcourt

616.63 Diabetes. Insulin. Diet in disease 40-27349

Non-technical information on the history, nature and treatment of diabetes mellitus. The book also has a study of psychological effects of the disease. Partial contents: The history of diabetes and the discovery of insulin; The properties of carbohydrates, fats, and proteins; The function of insulin in the body; Protamine zinc insulin: its properties and behavior; The technique of handling insulin; Diabetic coma; Surgery and the diabetic; Juvenile and adolescent diabetics; Pregnancy in diabetes; The diabetic diet; Calculation of the diet; Emergency diets; Recipes, suggestions, and food combinations for Americans and the foreign-born. Index.

"This book is recommended for lay consumption and those public health workers who come in contact with diabetics." Morris Ant

+ Am J Pub Health 30:832 Jl '40 270w

Booklist 36:321 Ap 15 '40

Cleveland Open Shelf p7 Mr '40

"A very heartening book for all sufferers from diabetes, their friends, families and relatives."

New Repub 102:553 Ap 22 '40 70w

Springf'd Republican p7e S 8 '40 750w

POOLE, ERNEST. The bridge; my own story. 422p $3.50 Macmillan

B or 92 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. (W) 40-30230

"Ernest Poole, journalist, novelist, playwright, political and social commentator, has written his autobiography, and the sixty years he covers give the high points not alone in his own life but of six decades of change in world history. . . Poole's life as it emerges under his hand can be divided into four periods: his sheltered and happy childhood in Chicago, his work as a reforming journalist in the teeming streets of the lower East Side of New York, his place as a novelist and political correspondent and his comparatively inactive period where he stands as critic and observer rather than doer." N Y Times

Booklist 37:67 O 15 '40

"Mr. Poole's account of his career in 'The Bridge' is marred by a lyric sentimentality not becoming to the hard realism of the sociology and revolution with which he deals. His rather gushing optimism is only qualified by a dim appreciation of dark forces at work in the world." M. R. Werner

Books p3 Ag 18 '40 1100w

Reviewed by DeLancey Ferguson

Boston Transcript p1 Ag 10 '40 650w

"The autobiography for all its earnestness and honesty, for all its lively sketches of old friends and anecdotes of exciting days, seems anti-climatic. It is the story of a pre-war liberal who lost his way, and can only continue to mumble what was once a gospel and now seems a ritual of optimism." Lewis Gannett

Boston Transcript p11 Ag 13 '40 500w

Christian Century 57:1215 O 2 '40 120w

Cleveland Open Shelf p20 O '40

"A very readable autobiography, but in the light of present events not an important book." Jacqueline Overton

+ — Library J 65:590 Jl '40 180w

"The author of 'The Harbor,' one of America's best novels, can write, and the things he tells in the 'The Bridge' are charged with the same qualities of emotion and mind which distinguish his fiction. With swift strokes he draws the portrait of a prominent character—and the book is full of such—and with the awareness of the journalist and novelist for the human interest story he pulls out of his past incidents rich with humor and drama." Rose Feld

+ N Y Times p3 Ag 25 '40 1450w

"Mr. Poole was a Socialist forty years ago, and the most valuable part of his chronicle deals with the radical movement just before and during the first World War. There are also interesting reminiscences of revolutionary Russia and early Fascist Italy, but the tone of the book becomes more and more uncertain as its distinguished author advances into our time."

+ — New Yorker 16:63 Ag 17 '40 70w

Reviewed by R. G. Fuller

Sat R of Lit 22:12 Ag 17 '40 700w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 25 '40 1400w

Wis Lib Bul 36:137 O '40

POOLE, KENYON EDWARDS. German financial policies, 1932-1939. 276p $3.50 Harvard univ. press [15s Oxford]

330.943 Germany—Economic policy. Germany—Economic conditions. Finance—Germany 39-24456

"The purpose of this study is to analyze the financial aspects of Germany's attempts to raise production and employment above the low levels of 1931. The author makes no attempt to cover all phases of economic life. In particular, he passes over the international side of the question, on the ground that proper treatment would require a separate volume. Obviously his interest in the monetary and financial repercussions of a public expenditure policy is deep and thorough-going, and his acquaintance with the conclusions of others is sufficiently wide. No approval or disapproval of a 'political' nature appears in the text and no speculation as to the future of the German economy in war-time conditions has been permitted to appear." Am Econ R

"For the general reader it may lack the unity of thought that is so apparent to the writer; it may lack as well the non-technical complexion that pleases the publishers. It remains a valuable historical record and a clear exposition of problems for which students will not stop trying to find solutions." Alzada Comstock

+ — Am Econ R 30:193 Mr '40 650w

"Mr. Poole shows sufficient understanding of the German economic policy before 1933, but he does not seem to have gathered firsthand information on the state of affairs under Hitler in Germany itself. He presents a great number of statistical tables taken from official German sources—and this is the most valuable part of his book—but his general approach is a study of an abstract theorist who tries to criticize the system of financing recovery and the various measures to that end applied in Germany in the light of the trade-cycle theory." Paul Haensel

+ — Ann Am Acad 208:203 Mr '40 440w

Reviewed by G. N. Halm

Boston Transcript p1 Mr 16 '40 260w

Foreign Affairs 18:572 Ap '40 10w

POPE, CLIFFORD HILLHOUSE. China's animal frontier [with phot. by the author]. 192p $2.50 Viking

596 Zoology—China. China—Description and travel 40-33497

"This is a book about collecting back-boned animals in Asia. For four years the author, as one branch of the Central Asiatic Expeditions of the American Museum of Natural History, explored the eastern half of China accompanied by Chinese assistants. . . The object of each trip was the same: to secure and preserve representative series of fishes, amphibians, reptiles, and mammals." Page 11

Booklist 37:179 Ja 1 '41

"The interest to a child will be, I suppose, chiefly in the strange animals and stories about them, especially a grand chapter of tigers on the prowl. But any one, old or young, who likes armchair traveling in the Orient, especially if he prefers to meet people such as he never met before, will be held by this modest account of how specimens are tracked down, traded in, recorded, preserved and prepared for collections." M. L. Becker

+ Books p8 D 15 '40 190w

"Accompanying one of the expeditions of Roy Chapman Andrews, the twenty-one-year-old author had eyes for the things that appeal especially to young people. In writing this book he is addressing boys who long to be explorers. All such will enjoy it. The book is divided into two parts, first the expedition, then the strange, unusual animals Mr. Pope saw on his travels." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk M 17:35 Ja '41 60w

"Boys and girls of thirteen and over, especially those who may aspire to similar careers, will enjoy this. The make-up of the book is attractive; it is illustrated with photographs by the author." Josephine Smith

+ Library J 65:929 N 1 '40 150w

"Despite its enigmatic title, this is an exceptionally interesting travel and semi-scientific book. Advertised as a volume for young naturalists and would-be explorers, it has a great deal to hold the grown-up armchair traveler." S. L.

+ Sat R of Lit 23:22 Ja 4 '41 220w

POPE-HENNESSY, JAMES. London fabric; with il. by Eric Ravilious. 191p $3.75 Scribner [10s 6d Batsford]

914.21 London—Description

"Young Mr. Pope-Hennessy writes of London, timeless and deathless in the face of danger. This book opens under St. Paul's. . . It goes to Hampton Court, to Dulwich, to Hertford House and Greenwich and the Stafford House now become London museum. It takes in Kensington Palace and closes in Westminster Abbey and chances are good that what he mentions in any of these places is either something an ordinary traveler has not seen or something an experienced one longs to see again. . . The author is accompanied on his tours by a nice girl called Perdita, acting as Watson to his Holmes." Books

Books p10 Ap 7 '40 260w

"Part of the book is admirably written impressionism—a young man's genuine, if occasionally lop-sided, enthusiasms for buildings, pictures and records which embody the spirit of bygone generations. Part of it is solid lumps of historical information which have not been assimilated to his personality. The weakest part is the dialogue. In an effort to make the book cohere, Mr. Pope-Hennessy pictures himself as taking a friend, whom he calls Perdita, to visit the places he describes. At its best, their talk is wooden, and fails to create personality; at its worst, it recalls the Rollo Books." De Lancey Ferguson

+ — Boston Transcript p9 Mr 23 '40 150w

"'Doing' London and English history with Mr. Pope-Hennessy does leave one a trifle breathless—but vastly entertained, and a great deal wiser." Eric Forbes-Boyd

Christian Science Monitor p11 Je 1 '40 320w

"Deserves a place on the most fastidious Londoner's bookshelf." J. B.

+ Manchester Guardian p3 N 21 '39 140w

"The illustrations of this charming book are beautifully chosen and excellently reproduced." William King

+ New Statesman & Nation 18:726 N 18 '39 650w

"This book is full of the affectations of youth. They can be very irritating. They can also be charming. Mr Pope-Hennessy's are entirely charming. Even his recurring 'I' and 'I myself' and 'I, for my part' carry no offence."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p630 O 28 '39 500w

POPENOE, PAUL BOWMAN. Modern marriage; a handbook for men. 2d ed 299p $2.50 Macmillan

173.1 Marriage (W) 40-34417

"The preface states that new material has made necessary the rewriting of the entire book, but it is still planned as a popular handbook, without technicalities. Reading references are added." (Booklist) For first edition see Book Review Digest, 1925. Index.

Booklist 37:219 Ja 15 '41

"Both sexes will find Modern Marriage enlightening, reassuring, full of common sense, as well as easy for the ordinary reader to understand. For additional information on individual problems, many references are listed at the end of the book." E. C. Thompson

+ Churchman 155:19 Ja 1 '41 160w
J Home Econ 33:115 F '41 50w

POPKIN, MRS ZELDA. Murder in the mist. 286p $2 Lippincott 40-32090

Detective story.

Booklist 37:138 D 1 '40

"Try this one for pleasing prose, unusual humans, novel background, meaty plot and all-around entertainment." Will Cuppy
+ Books p19 O 13 '40 180w

"Whether you believe in witches or not, this story will hold your interest and tax your guessing ability to the utmost." Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p33 O 20 '40 210w

"Quite worthwhile."
+ Sat R of Lit 22:28 O 19 '40 40w

POPKIN, MRS ZELDA. Time off for murder. 299p $2 Lippincott 40-2312

Detective story.

"Mrs. Popkin knows her cops. What she does with the word-association test on her first attempt would open the eyes of Dr. C. G. Jung and is sure to dazzle any reasonable reader. The author piles up excitement, especially on the homestretch, where she has the fiend cornered but still alive and dangerous, and she never shirks the horrible details. Speedy is the word." Will Cuppy
+ Books p9 Ja 21 '40 190w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin
Boston Transcript p2 Ja 20 '40 40w

"It is not particularly difficult to guess the identity of the murderer in this case, but the story moves swiftly and has plenty of action, especially in the closing scenes." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p20 Ja 21 '40 140w

"Grand story of an inexplicable disappearance and murder in the heart of New York, with superb details about the sort of people one meets every day. Recommended with enthusiasm."
+ New Yorker 15:72 Ja 20 '40 50w

"Desiccated aristocrats, wealthy playboys, tough cops, slimy vice-lords all play dramatic parts in capitally constructed and breathlessly exciting yarn. First class!"
+ Sat R of Lit 21:20 Ja 20 '40 50w

"As a display of the intricacy of homicide investigation 'Time Off for Murder' is not exactly brilliant. Miss Popkin's gifts are rather of the kind that create interest in narrative for the sake of narrative. Some little exercise with the blue pencil will soon weed out platitudes from her next manuscript, and then her magical way of taking the public with her wherever she goes should place her among the most popular of authors."
— + Times [London] Lit Sup p485 S 21 '40 300w

POPULAR MECHANICS MAGAZINE, CHICAGO. Money making formulas. il $4.35 Popular mechanics press
603 Receipts

"Containing a collection of practical formulas and processes, an illustrated explanation of chemical methods and procedures, a dictionary of chemical terms and their synonyms, a comprehensive supply directory, and usable information relating to patents, trademarks, and copyrights." Subtitle

Booklist 36:233 F 15 '40
Chem & Met Eng 47:378 My '40 190w

PORTER, MRS ROSE (ALBERT). The stranger. 444p $2.75 Dial press
40-7016

"Story of a Jewish immigrant whose passionate desire to become an American makes him deny all of his heritage, the good as well as the bad. He gets to be a fight promoter in Montana, betrays his best friend, deserts his own wife and children, and is unhappy about it all." New Yorker

" 'The Stranger' is a long novel, crammed with vivid detail. Mrs. Porter is expert in dialogue, and in those shadings of speech which illuminate character. She has composed a fine study of the process of assimilation." George Conrad
+ Books p10 Mr 10 '40 460w

"The book as a whole has great vitality and vividness. The characters, even minor ones, are clear and well-drawn, and many of the scenes have a strong dramatic quality." Dorothy Greenwald
+ Boston Transcript p2 Ap 20 '40 700w

Reviewed by L. B. Salomon
Nation 150:398 Mr 23 '40 260w

"Does the author want to show that a thin-skinned Jew has no place in life, or what? Frankly, this reviewer fails to see the point of this story, otherwise vividly graphic and powerful." John Cournos
+ — N Y Times p21 Mr 31 '40 700w

"A long list of sharply realized characters gives the story color and variety."
+ New Yorker 16:89 Mr 9 '40 70w

"The honesty and authenticity of the book, its freshness in treatment, the constant undertone of tense drama hold the reader to the end." E. S. Isaacs
+ Survey 76:280 S '40 160w

PORTERFIELD, JOHN, and REYNOLDS, KAY, eds. We present television. 298p il $3 Norton
621.388 Television (W) 40-27558

Articles on the development of television, written by several of the pioneers in the industry. Contents: Raising the television curtain, by A. H. Morton; The technique of television, by D. G. Fink; The men behind the camera, by O. B. Hanson; Programming, by T. H. Hutchinson; The director, by T. L. Riley; The actor, by Earle Larimore; The new newsreel, by C. E. Butterfield; Television on the West coast, by H. R. Lubcke; Facsimile and frequency modulation, by J. R. Poppele; The finance problem, by Benn Hall; The challenge of television, by R. E. Jones. Glossary of terms, and list of television broadcast stations.

Booklist 36:409 Jl 1 '40
Bookmark 2:5 Ja '41

Reviewed by D. M. Young
Books p14 Jl 28 '40 460w

Reviewed by Albert Dietz
Boston Transcript p2 Je 29 '40 240w
Management R 29:387 O '40 40w
New Repub 103:286 Ag 26 '40 80w
N Y New Tech Bks 25:40 Jl '40
N Y Times p10 Je 30 '40 450w

"Interesting stuff, and not too difficult."
+ New Yorker 16:71 Je 22 '40 30w

"I have not seen a better, or simpler, introduction to television than certain chapters of this book, which is a symposium covering nearly all the aspects of this new medium. There are chapters telling how television works, and I think that the layman will be able to follow them; I know they are easier to understand than the papers I read, and the papers I tried to write, three or four years ago. . . The one defect of the book to me is that except for a few glancing references to Great Britain, it treats television as an American product." Gilbert Seldes
+ — Sat R of Lit 22:14 Jl 20 '40 800w

PORTERFIELD, J., and REYNOLDS, K., eds. —Continued

"The rather difficult task of editing has been admirably done with the resultant elimination of overlapping." C. B. M.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 14 '40 1050w

PORTEVIN, ALBERT. Introduction to the study of heat treatment of metallurgical products. 246p il $5 Penton

669.1 Metals. Steel 39-13077

"Subjects treated by the author include transformation points of steel, preliminary treatment of steel, quenching, hardened steels, hardening capacity of steel, tempering, classification of industrial steels, annealing, malleabilization of cast irons, heat treatment of light aluminum alloys, etc. The aim of the author has been to include ideas and directions to interpret and understand the phenomena and solve the difficulties which actually occur in the heat treatment of various materials of construction." Chem & Met Eng

"Research engineers, metallurgical students and steel plant engineers, as well as others engaged in the investigation of the heat treatment of ferrous and non-ferrous metals will find this a very useful text."

+ Chem & Met Eng 46:375 Je '39 140w

N Y New Tech Bks 24:58 O '39

POST, MRS EMILY (PRICE). Children are people, and ideal parents are comrades [il. and decorations by George A. Brettell and Henrietta McCaig Starrett]. 383p $2.50 Funk

649.1 Children—Management. Parent and child. Etiquet (W) 40-35845

The author of a famous book on etiquet, writes here of how to train children in good manners, poise and consideration for others. Informal and sympathetic in tone, the book is addressed particularly to parents wondering over such problems as: when to say no, how to keep up standards in periods of relaxation, when a young girl may have an evening dress and how it is likely to affect her manners and those of her friends, etc. Index.

Booklist 37:211 Ja 15 '41

"Within the year a dozen manuals of etiquette, prepared for young people and provided with titles to attract them, have been brought out by well-known publishers. Demand for them is sharp; it comes not only from schools, but from young people themselves. When I say that this new book of Mrs. Post's is worth, in the long run, more than all of them together, I speak not altogether as one of a generation supposed to think the human race headed downhill and young people not what they used to be." M. L. Becker

+ Books p15 D 15 '40 500w

"Mrs. Post's ideals are high but her mind is wisely harnessed to specific conditions and problems. She looks clearly at the association of a happy home."

+ N Y Times p40 D 8 '40 320w

Springf'd Republican p6 D 26 '40 550w

POSTGATE, RAYMOND WILLIAM. Verdict of twelve. 273p $2 Doubleday [7s 6d Collins] (W) 40-11301

Murder mystery story.

Booklist 37:92 N 1 '40

"This [is an] unusual and incisively written item." Will Cuppy

+ Books p9 Ag 18 '40 180w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin

Boston Transcript p2 Ag 24 '40 50w

"Our attention is too often diverted, the sequence of events held up. That, however, is the only weakness in an interesting and indeed absorbing tale, which, though it may be laid down at almost any moment, will certainly always be picked up again. A short postscript explains what really happened, and Mr. Postgate defies an almost sacred canon of crime fiction by allowing twice over different murderers to go undetected and to reap rich rewards from their respective crimes. Very regrettable." E. R. Punshon

+ — Manchester Guardian p3 F 9 '40 200w

Reviewed by Ralph Partridge

New Statesman & Nation 19:186 F 10 '40 110w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson

N Y Times p17 Ag 18 '40 200w

" 'Verdict of Twelve' is a superb piece of writing and makes other horror stories seem flat and undiscerning." Sally Benson

+ New Yorker 16:62 Ag 17 '40 550w

"Refreshing twist to crime fiction, handled effectively and with grim realism, and with gasp-producing terminal snapper. One of the best."

+ Sat R of Lit 22:18 Ag 10 '40 40w

"The book is exciting, freshly seen, and excellently written." Rupert Hart-Davis

+ Spec 164:338 Mr 8 '40 110w

Time 36:84 S 9 '40 50w

"Mr. Postgate has unquestionably written a thoroughly readable story. Possibly he had attempted too much, for the reader's attention is rather dispersed. . . It may also be noted that Mr. Postgate shares his sister, Mrs. Cole's, tendency to make every character an unpleasant person. Do intellectual Socialists, one wonders, really believe that the capitalist system makes all mankind nasty? Mr. Postgate's characters would surely be intractable material for the brotherhood of man."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p47 Ja 27 '40 310w

POTEAT, EDWIN MCNEILL. These shared His passion; studies in the last week of the life of Jesus. 131p $1.50 Harper

232.96 Jesus Christ—Passion. Jesus Christ—Friends and associates 40-2802

"Studies in the last week of the life of Jesus." (Subtitle) Those who are considered are: Mary and Martha; Thomas; Philip; James and John; Judas Iscariot; Simon Peter; and Pontius Pilate.

Booklist 36:257 Mr 1 '40

Boston Transcript p7 Mr 30 '40 40w

"Not conventional exposition and homily but fresh and stimulating analyses."

+ Christian Century 57:51 Ja 10 '40 80w

Cleveland Open Shelf p2 Ja '40

"Every minister ought to read this book as a prelude to Holy Week. Dr. Poteat's approach is stimulating and vivid; his analysis is most illuminating . . . If you are seeking a deeper understanding of the meaning of our faith for people, if you need new confidence in its power, read this most acceptable book." R. V. Wells

+ Crozer Q 17:315 O '40 130w

POTEAT, GORDON. Stand by for China. 181p map $1; pa 60c Missionary educ. movement

266 Missions—China. China—Civilization 40-8515

An informal history of Christian missions in China, relating them particularly to Chinese culture and to recent Chinese history. Reading list. Index.

Boston Transcript p2 My 4 '40 30w

"A good book for mission study classes, or for anyone's reading."

+ Christian Century 57:610 My 8 '40 80w

"The book well deserves a reading by thoughtful Christians; the author knows what he is talking about." J. F. Davidson

+ Churchman 154:18 Je 15 '40 100w

Reviewed by A. G. Baker

J Religion 20:419 O '40 70w

POTTER, DAVID. Sailing the Sulu sea; belles and bandits in the Philippines. 310p $3 Dutton

991.4 Philippine Islands—History—Insurrection, 1899-1901. Sulu sea. Manila (gunboat) 40-27233

Reminiscences of the author's early adventures in the navy, on the battleship Manila in Philippine waters in 1899 and 1900.

Booklist 36:280 Mr 15 '40

"In all of the seven stories that make up this book we share with Admiral Potter the sights and the sounds, the feelings and the fortunes, the life and the loyalties of forty years ago. Invariably they are told with charm, with just a hint of nostalgia, and in a style surely not less graceful or less appropriate because it includes an occasional classical allusion or scriptural phrase. On the Manila, apparently, they had both time and taste for the appreciation of the classics and the King James version." R. F. Armknecht

+ Books p4 F 18 '40 850w

Boston Transcript p3 Mr 16 '40 80w

Cleveland Open Shelf p5 Mr '40

"Admiral Potter seems to have had a good time in helping Uncle Sam pacify the Philippines, but, while he is willing enough to emphasize his capacity for enjoyment, he soft-pedals his own part in any of the fighting that occurred." E. F. Allen

+ N Y Times p3 F 25 '40 550w

"Tiptop tale, written with sensibility and acute observation."

+ New Yorker 16:80 F 24 '40 30w

Springf'd Republican p10 Mr 7 '40 320w

Wis Lib Bul 36:112 Je '40

POTTER, MRS ELIZABETH (GRAY). The San Francisco skyline; with il. from phot. by the author and by Gabriel Moulin. 284p maps $3 Dodd

917.9461 San Francisco—Description 39-32705

Guidebook to San Francisco, which includes some of its history and personalities as well as regular guidebook material. Contains lists for ready reference, a chronology, maps, and an index.

Booklist 36:196 Ja 15 '40

Cleveland Open Shelf p4 Ja '40

POUND, ARTHUR. Detroit, dynamic city; il. by E. H. Suydam. 398p $5 (21s) Appleton-Century

977.434 Detroit—History 40-27234

A popular history of the city of Detroit, beginning with the days of Indian sieges and coming down to the present industrial era. Bibliography. Index.

"The disproportionate number of pages given to the early history suggests the general fault of the book as a whole, namely, excessive 'high lighting'; in other words, too little attention is given to the development of Detroit as a community and too much to events that have interest only for a casual reader. This fault is particularly evident in the discussions of such nondramatic topics as education, literature, and the newspaper press, for in the main these discussions are gestures toward, rather than treatments of, their subjects. At the same time that this fault is noted, the author should be commended for keeping before the reader the fact that Detroit has developed continuously under the play of forces originating far beyond its own limits." Ralph Turner

+ — Am Hist R 46:434 Ja '41 550w

Atlantic My '40 120w

Booklist 36:279 Mr 15 '40

"The chapter on the challenge of labor is well done. But the final chapters are, as a whole, disappointing. Detroit is dynamic. Certainly! Any machine town is dynamic. But to what end is this dynamism if the city and its people have no culture? If lives are barren and wealth accumulates as men decay? Detroiters will learn much about their city from this volume. People outside Detroit will learn to understand why Detroit has radio orators and sitdown strikes." R. L-G. Deverall

— + Commonweal 31:457 Mr 15 '40 360w

"A useful volume for many libraries." H. A. Wooster

+ Library J 65:166 F 15 '40 110w

New Repub 102:801 Je 10 '40 50w

"This story of a city is enough to make a reader think, even when he doesn't feel like it. Things that couldn't happen have happened, and in an impossibly short time. . . One must say that Mr. Pound isn't as amazed and excited by it all as his readers are bound to be. Perhaps he is too close to it and too familiar with it. As for Mr. Suydam, his technical proficiency does not waver." R. L. Duffus

+ — N Y Times p5 Mr 3 '40 1500w

New Yorker 16:64 Mr 2 '40 30w

"The volume is a real sociological document written as a skilled journalist writes. It is well worth the perusal of social scientists." W. J. Norton

+ Survey G 29:308 My '40 230w

POUND, EZRA LOOMIS. A B C of economics. 128p $2 New directions [3s 6d Faber]

330.1 Economics [33-18920]

"Ezra Pound, whose hobby is economics, believes that the professors and 'experts' needlessly complicate the terminology of the science and confuse its issues. So he has written a simple primer which reduces economic theory to basic, common-sense principles which the ordinary man can understand. . . Pound concludes with some suggestions for the future outlining a money system which would make money the servant and not the master of society." Publisher's note

"Mr. Pound's economics are as eccentric, and as sensible, as Mr. Pound himself. He starts out to debunk the economists—he considers himself an amateur—and does a good job of it."

+ Canadian Forum 20:31 Ap '40 130w

"Mr. Pound does not give an orderly presentation of the ABC of economics, but fumes and sputters in his incoherent fashion. . . But his epithets are often picturesque, and every once in a while he blurts out a good remark." Henry Hazlitt

— + N Y Times p22 Ap 7 '40 80w

Reviewed by J. V. Healy

Poetry 57:200 D '40 900w

POUND, EZRA LOOMIS. Cantos LII-LXXI. 167p $2.50 New directions [8s 6d Faber]

811 40-34229

The cantos in this installment of Mr Pound's monumental work, deal chiefly with two major subjects: a history of China and a biography of John Adams, the American statesman.

Atlantic D '40 220w

Reviewed by Babette Deutsch

Books p17 D 15 '40 700w

Reviewed by John Holmes

Boston Transcript p9 N 4 '40 360w

"I think all that can be said here is that Mr. Pound is a poet whose skill and talent are such that he is able to give pleasure to many readers, even though they are not able to extract a wholly complete and logical plot from his poetry. And this is one of the functions of poetry. Poetry differs from prose in this respect, that the pleasure of poetry can be separated at times from its content. It is necessary to remember that there are many different kinds of poetry—Mr. Pound is a master of this kind." John Ritchey

Christian Science Monitor p13 O 26 '40 350w

POUND, E. L.—Continued
"There is less poetry in them than ever, scarcely even a scrap. The old memorial prose runs on colloquially, slangily, with its polyglot rash at intervals. The opening cantos are the only ones where the language of poetry is to be found." C. P.
— Manchester Guardian p3 Mr 1 '40 230w

Reviewed by J. P. Bishop
Nation 151:637 D 21 '40 1100w

"The versification of these cantos is interesting: there is none. The prose is an extremely eccentric, slangy, illogical, sentence-fragment, note-taking sort of prose—but prose; the constant quotations from letters or documents or diaries are no different from the verse that frames them." Randall Jarrell
— + New Repub 103:798 D 9 '40 1000w

"The ideograms occurring here and there in the text are certainly beautiful, and it is a great pleasure just to look at them. Pound's manner, which seems finally to have got him, should stand as a warning to writers: if you express different things in the same way over too long a period of time, you are likely to sound after a while as if you were saying the same things in the same way." Louise Bogan
New Yorker 16:92 N 9 '40 750w

Reviewed by J. V. Healy
Poetry 57:200 D '40 900w

Time 36:92 N 18 '40 130w

"If Mr. Pound has a special feeling about some old and to most people quite dreary document he ought to do more about it if he wishes most people to share his feeling. And it may be doubted whether this technique can ever be bearable in a very long poem, even though the fragments should be more effectively organized than in these cantos."
Times [London] Lit Sup p78 F 10 '40 750w

Reviewed by Louis Untermeyer
Yale R n s 30:380 winter '41 600w

POUND, EZRA LOOMIS. Polite essays. 214p $2.50 New directions [7s 6d Faber] 814

"A new collection of not so new essays. Published in various places over roughly the last ten years, they employ Pound's famous 'ideogrammic' method to communicate his now equally famous views on critics and literature." Nation

---

Reviewed by E. K. Brown
Canadian Forum 20:24 Ap '40 600w

"At times his iconoclasm is very clever and very refreshing; at other times it is merely shocking. When he derides Blake or Beethoven he does himself more harm than he does the subjects of his derision. On the other hand, when he treats with a certain condescension Mr. T. S. Eliot, who is himself so often condescending in his attitude toward others, he may seem to have more justification. Mr. Pound in several of these essays is guilty not only of impoliteness but of bad taste. . . But though too smart, too clever by half, too sure of himself, Mr. Pound is, as always, impressively erudite."
— + Christian Science Monitor p10 Mr 16 '40 650w

"Mr. Pound's style has gained nothing in force since 1910. On the contrary, it has lost some of its force by reason of the very nose-thumbing telegraphese which is his latest way of putting over his real message." Cuthbert Wright
Commonweal 31:390 F 23 '40 450w

"Let no one deny to Mr. Pound his merits. Much of the most original work of our age, Joyce, Eliot, and others, he has discovered. He shouted about it, before anyone else was aware of its existence. Now he shouts about everything as if he did not expect to be heard. Of all his prose work I have found this present volume the most profitable." B. I. Evans
+ — Manchester Guardian p7 Mr 25 '37 470w

"The perpetual clever undergraduate who mistakes rudeness for iconoclasm, this ex-enfant terrible is also a very sound critic when he comes to grips with a real subject."
+ — Nation 150:401 Mr 23 '40 60w

"These ideas are no longer startling. Mr. Pound will hardly create a literary furore today. Yet despite his crack-brained political theories, and by reason of his skill in exposition and his erudition, he remains an outstanding exponent of certain fundamental concepts in literature which are as cogent and necessary now as they were thirty years ago." Deane Mowrer
+ New Repub 102:220 F 12 '40 260w

Reviewed by Raymond Mortimer
New Statesman & Nation 13:813 My 15 '37 1600w

New Yorker 15:72 Ja 20 '40 30w

Reviewed by J. V. Healy
Poetry 57:200 D '40 900w

"When a critic hits as hard as Mr. Pound, it is silly to carp at his occasional misses before appreciating all the hits. He campaigns vigorously against ignorance, stupidity and insensibility; he tries consistently to estimate poetry according to 'high, international and durable standards'; and he always comes down from the general statement to the specific example. . . Mr. Pound has little patience with a country which grows agitated over the (physical) deterioration of its cannon-fodder, but does not care a damn for mental diligence and honesty. He assumes that education need not stop at fifteen or eighteen or twenty-one, and loses his temper with those who think it should. But he talks more sense to the page than any other English-speaking critic." Michael Roberts
+ — Spec 158:324 F 19 '37 460w

"The casual but by no means languid prose of a great verse stylist. Sometimes crotchety, more often bright and sound."
Time 35:47 Ja 1 '40 60w

"Apart from 'How to Read,' which contains some memorable pronouncements, it is a slight and rather scrappy book."
Times [London] Lit Sup p828 N 6 '37 250w

POWDERLY, TERENCE VINCENT. The path I trod; autobiography; ed. by Harry J. Carman, Henry David and Paul N. Guthrie. 460p $4.50 Columbia univ. press
B or 92 Knights of labor. Trade unions
40-9071

Recollections of the one-time union organizer and leader of the Knights of Labor in the eighties and nineties of the last century. Not only is the book a study of the author's own life and his part in these activities, but it is also a detailed account of the late nineteenth-century labor movement in the United States. Index.

Cath World 151:759 S '40 550w

Reviewed by P. H. Douglas
Christian Century 58:187 F 5 '41 650w

"This is not a literary work. It is an uneducated but accomplished man's defense, sometimes almost pathetic in its lack of logic and use of bromides to prove a point. Homely philosophy does not enhance its value intellectually. It is well edited though, and the editors make good use of footnotes to correct errors of fact on the part of the author. It is a splendid study of a man who was neither genius nor hero, but a visionary who devoted his life to an ideal and contributed more than his share to the progress of the American labor movement." W. M. Callahan
— + Commonweal 32:171 Je 14 '40 600w

Reviewed by R. H. Rovere
New Repub 103:61 Jl 8 '40 600w

New Yorker 16:79 Je 8 '40 40w

Social Studies 31:288 O '40 30w

Springf'd Republican p7e My 19 '40 160w

POWELL, DAWN. Angels on toast. 273p $2.50 Scribner

40-32367

Concerning the lives and loves of two business men, Lou and Jay, whose business hours were employed in putting over big deals, and whose leisure hours were divided between their many feminine friends.

Booklist 37:155 D 15 '40

"It's an intriguing book compounded of wit and hardness and satire. With the exception of Mary Donovan, all the characters are on the make, and if they are not sweet and beautiful they are devastatingly real and human. Miss Powell pulls no punches, plays no favorites. When the little comedy she develops with acid acumen is finished, as far as the book is concerned, there are neither victors nor spoils. They're all ready to start over again with the same problems, the same shabbiness of spirit, the same greed." Rose Feld

+ Books p12 O 6 '40 650w

"Dawn Powell is one of the few writers with a first-class wit who has the kind of understanding that combines appreciation with analysis, a curious ear and eye for everything that goes on, with an endless capacity for getting around. The logic of her general background is good, and her characters so natural in it that they continue acting like heels without stirring resentment. Miss Powell has an eye like a hawk but also the quality of forgiveness, which is actually a good deal rarer in novelists than it is in real life." Otis Ferguson

New Repub 103:599 O 28 '40 650w

"This novel, wittily written, is a kind of 'Tobacco Road' of high-pressure business, mildly shocking at times, cleverly surprising, essentially formless, and presenting characters who are pretty hopeless because nothing much worth hoping for ever caught their attention. . . Miss Powell has an exceptionally keen ear for dialogue and she can write really witty lines. There are very few writers now at work who have more natural talent. Her novel is amusing but formless and inconclusive." Robert Van Gelder

+ — N Y Times p6 O 20 '40 550w

"Unabashedly trivial but rather entertaining."

New Yorker 16:95 N 9 '40 40w

"Miss Powell writes lively dialog, especially where themes of the thin-ice type are concerned, and occasionally shows subtlety of perception. She gives the impression of having known people like Jay, Lou, Ebie and the dull Chicago wives of the two amorously inclined men. But the novel lacks a coherent and plausible narrative. It rambles from New York to Chicago and other places, and the characters are hardly individual enough to sustain the reader's curiosity about their intrigues and nebulous 'deals.' "

Springf'd Republican p7e O 27 '40 390w

POWER, MICHAEL. Religion in the Reich. 240p $2 (6s) Longmans

274.3 Germany—Religion. Church and state in Germany 40-31301

"This book describes the Nazi persecution of the Catholic and Protestant churches in both Germany and Austria, with a special chapter on the latter country. In this chapter Mr. Power reveals the intense attack in Austria with authority and definiteness of detail, picturing a savageness that in the Alt Reich was reserved for Jews only." (Living Age) No index.

Bookmark p13 N '40

Reviewed by J. H. Holmes

Books p21 My 5 '40 550w

"With the possible exception of Harcourt's book, Catholics of Germany, but excepting no other, this study is the most important contribution to an understanding of the Nazi persecution of Christianity now available to the average reader. It is important, because it is the honestly recorded, clearly written, outspoken and complete report of an eyewitness who possessed the further qualifications of a balanced judgment and a logical habit of thought." J. McS.

+ Cath World 151:113 Ap '40 900w

Christian Century 57:641 My 15 '40 130w

"This is a book which it is advisable to leave unread. Reading it will merely develop in the mind of any normal and decent person such a sense of despair and futility as to make life at least temporarily seem not worth living. The book is written in a calm, methodical manner." Paul Kiniery

Commonweal 31:437 Mr 8 '40 600w

Foreign Affairs 18:756 Jl '40 20w

"For a complete picture of how the massman appears in action I recommend a reading of Michael Power's eye-witness report of totalitarianism rampant, called Religion in the Reich." L. B. Bloch

+ Living Age 358:94 Mr '40 60w

"Clearly and reasonably set forth here, it all makes a strange and interesting story."

+ N Y Times p12 Ja 28 '40 400w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Wiskemann

Spec 163:788 D 1 '39 130w

PRACTICAL business administration. 7th ed 12v il $39.80 c1939 Am. tech. soc.

650 Business 39-23216

"A home study course and general reference work on business correspondence, office management, retail selling, sales and advertising, production, economics of business, commercial law, accounting, auditing, finance, statistics; prepared by a staff of accountants, auditors, management engineers, and specialists in business methods and administration; over 1500 illustrations, diagrams and charts." (Subtitle) "Earlier editions of Practical Business Administration were reviewed in the Subscription Books Bulletin, July 1934 and July 1936 [Book Review Digest, 1934]. . . This work is a collection of texts on various business subjects for home study. According to the foreword, the volumes have been prepared 'in the belief that a demand exists for a Library which shall embrace all branches of business.' " Subscription Bks Bul

---

"There has been comparatively little change in the material included since the set came out as Business Management series in 1922, especially in the volumes on salesmanship, advertising, and production management. Better and more recent information on all the subjects covered is readily available in other books. The set is not recommended for purchase by libraries."

— Subscription Bks Bul 11:37 Jl '40 1050w

PRATT, HELEN GAY. In Hawaii; a hundred years; il. by Rosamond S. Morgan and by photographs. 307p maps $2.28 Scribner

996.9 Hawaiian Islands—History 40-3772

Textbook for grades five to eight on the last hundred years of Hawaiian history. The author begins with life in old Hawaii and traces the gradual development of the Hawaii of the present, showing the influence of the missionaries in this development. "This book was prepared especially for use in the schools of Hawaii. It contains material never before available in elementary Hawaiian histories." (Introd) Pronunciation of Hawaiian words. Index.

"Valuable to school and public libraries needing additional information on Hawaii. Well indexed."

+ Booklist 36:370 My 15 '40

"An interesting and colorful textbook."

+ Boston Transcript p2 F 17 '40 20w

PRATT, JOSEPH GAITHER, and others. Extra-sensory perception after sixty years; a critical appraisal of the research in extrasensory perception. 463p il $2.75 Holt

133.8 Psychical research. Thought transference 40-11662

A summary of the criticisms levelled against the experiments in extra-sensory perception carried on at Duke university under Professor J. B. Rhine. "Extrasensory perception is a term coined by Professor Rhine to designate what the public has long been calling telepathy and clairvoyance. Of all those who have approached this subject scientifically he is easily the foremost, partly by reason of the methods that he has introduced and partly by reason of the controversy to which his results have given rise." (N Y Times) Glossary. Bibliography. Indexes.

Reviewed by Lorine Pruette
Books p10 Ag 18 '40 1150w

"In this volume Professor Rhine and his collaborators present the case for and against ESP with all the experimental and statistical proof at hand. Indeed they have performed their task so conscientiously that their presentation is of necessity addressed to psychologists rather than to the general public. This is not to say that the public will find nothing of interest in the tables of scores and in the technical comment that attends them, but it will have to engage in some stiff reading." Waldemar Kaempffert
N Y Times p4 Jl 14 '40 1650w

New Yorker 16:71 Je 22 '40 40w

Sat R of Lit 22:21 Jl 20 '40 180w

PRATT, MRS MARGARET. The talking typewriter; il. by Tibor Gergely. 40p $1.50 Lothrop 40-32779

Lively story of Johnny Hopkins's typewriter and the Asterisk Man who appeared and taught Johnny the rules of typewriting.

"Small boys will spot the mistakes and find them funny—meanwhile they will have had some straight tips. Tibor Gergely has a talent for the comic: his pictures fit right into the story." M. L. Becker
+ Books p32 N 10 '40 110w

Cath World 152:375 D '40 60w

Reviewed by R. A. Hill
Library J 65:853 O 15 '40 10w

"The book's two salient uses are: first, in a typewriting class for young children; second, as a suitable present to accompany the gift of a typewriter to a young child. It would have little value in a public library." E. G. Mullan
Library J 65:1044 D 1 '40 150w

"Excellent illustrations. Amusing and instructive." Katharine Scherman
+ Sat R of Lit 23:22 N 16 '40 20w

"There's a world of good advice for any would-be typist in what the Asterisk Man tells Johnny and a lot of good humor. The three-color illustrations fit the subject admirably and the end papers are a masterpiece of keyboard possibility as illustrative material. Tapping evenly and in rhythm seems to be the gist of the matter. All youngsters with unruly typewriters will do well to follow the Asterisk Man's advice."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e D 1 '40 130w

PRAWDIN, MICHAEL, pseud. See Charol, M.

PRECHTL, ROBERT, pseud. See Friedlaender, R.

PRENTICE, MRS CAROL S. An adopted child looks at adoption; with a foreword by Clinton W. Areson. 222p $2 Appleton-Century

362.7 Adoption (W) 40-12685

The author was an adopted child and has added an adopted daughter to her own family of two boys. From girlhood she has also been interested in the work of preparing babies for adoption and selecting suitable adopting parents. Her book is largely autobiographical but contains many general suggestions and observations on the subject. Bibliography.

Booklist 37:30 O 1 '40

"Mrs. Prentice's conclusions are founded on wisdom and years of experience and she sums up, at the end of the book in a short Manual for Adopting Parents. This author has a kindly outlook as well as a wise one, but the heavy emphasis is placed upon one point; that sentimentality has no place in the adopting of children." R. G. Cook
+ Boston Transcript p2 Jl 27 '40 350w

"There is much human sympathy and scientific insight in it, and no mere sentimentalism. The total impression strongly encourages the practice."
+ Christian Century 57:879 Jl 10 '40 70w

Cleveland Open Shelf p14 Jl '40

"It is a helpful and suggestive book, the more deeply sympathetic for being courageously open-eyed and stern."
+ N Y Times p10 Jl 14 '40 480w

"This book is a needed link in the growing chain of adoption literature. In popular style, it has the authority of experience, observation, and study. The author brings to her task unusual advantages of viewpoint and training, of insight, maturity, and objectivity." E. C. Brooks
+ Survey 76:279 S '40 360w

PRENTICE, WILLIAM KELLY. The ancient Greeks; studies toward a better understanding of the ancient world. 254p $3 Princeton univ. press

938 Greece—History. Civilization, Greek 40-35822

This interpretation of the ancient Greeks is based on forty years of study and teaching by the emeritus Ewing professor of the Greek language and literature at Princeton University. "Its purpose is to present for a new consideration certain matters concerning the ancient Greeks which we must understand correctly if we are to profit by the experiences and achievements of the ancient world. Many of the prevailing beliefs and opinions about these matters have long been current: they are based upon traditions which originated in the ancient world itself, were preserved with pious fidelity through the Middle Ages and the Renaissance, and are still accepted and defended with obstinate dogmatism by many modern scholars. Our traditional ideas about the ancient Greeks have not changed very much in two thousand years. But we should know better now." (Pref) Index.

"It is both scholarly and readable."
+ Nation 151:585 D 7 '40 70w

"Layman and scholar will leave this book with a better understanding not only of antiquity but also of our own world; both readers will marvel at the precise writing, but the scholar will also be shocked to see one of his convictions after another gently qualified or demolished. . . The book is intensely interesting as well as provocative." C. A. Robinson, Jr.
+ Sat R of Lit 23:10 Ja 4 '41 750w

Social Studies 32:46 Ja '41 20w

PRESCOTT, HILDA FRANCES MARGARET. A Spanish Tudor; the life of Bloody Mary. 562p il $5 Columbia univ. press [18s Constable]

B or 92 Mary I, queen of England

Full-length, scholarly biography of Henry VIII's unhappy daughter, Mary I, of England. While the author does not condone or attempt to explain away Mary's failures as queen, she writes on the whole with sympathy of Mary's frustrated childhood, the bitterness she felt over her mother's woes, the conflict in her inheritance between Spanish and English loyalties. Index.

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Books p4 Ja 5 '41 1200w

"Not easily will anyone write a better book upon the eldest daughter of Henry VIII., so unhappy in life and after death so shamefully mislabeled. Once or twice, however, Miss Prescott goes out of her proper domain to speculate with questionable judgment and distressing lack of scientific caution on 'what would have been done'—in one instance by Queen Katherine and in another by the Pope." J. McS.
+ — Cath World 152:117 O '40 550w

"The book has distinct merit as a biography of Mary. It makes no attempt to indicate her real function in the development of England which was to confirm in the nation a hatred of religious oppression." J. T. McNeill
+ — Christian Century 57:1213 O 2 '40 850w

"This volume is history at its best. With the skill of the novelist Miss Prescott covers the dry bones of dates and facts with the tissue of human life, and with the carefulness of the scholar annotates her work with the sources of her information. The light of truth and understanding is shed upon 'Bloody Mary,' and her crimson stains disappear." Rittenhouse Neisser
+ Crozer Q 17:310 O '40 280w

"A biography of first-class quality." A. J. P. T.
+ Manchester Guardian p7 O 15 '40 200w

"Real scholarship and good writing make this an outstanding book. Going to the sources, which she quotes copiously, the author presents a picture not so much sympathetic as understanding. Without condoning she turns a traditional monster into a tragic human being."
+ Nation 151:225 S 14 '40 40w

"This is a very distinguished historical and biographical study, exhaustively documented, but human enough to be warmly sympathetic with the sad life of this Queen." P. M. Jack
+ N Y Times p4 Ag 18 '40 1300w

Reviewed by Garrett Mattingly
Sat R of Lit 22:11 S 14 '40 550w

"Miss Prescott is, I believe, a novelist, and she has a good sense of scene and a just, if not penetrating, appreciation of character. Her view of Mary is accurate in its main lines, though it leaves out something of the hardness one sees in her portraits; of Elizabeth we are given the merest sketch; the clue to Courtenay is that his nerve had been broken as a lad by his long imprisonment and attempted escape from the Tower. But what is intolerable is the length at which all these scenes and characters are retailed to us; we do not want whole biographies of persons like Courtenay, let alone Sir Peter Carew, in a life of Mary. Still less do we want Miss Prescott's reflections upon general history, or her view of the nature of the Reformation. What is chiefly wrong with this book is the time of its appearance; it is redundant, at a time when paper is much needed." A. L. Rowse
— + Spec 165:398 O 18 '40 550w

"Miss Prescott is shy of embarking upon the theological questions that meant so much to Mary; but on the political and personal sides she writes with the learning of a skilled researcher and the insight of a psychological novelist. She has worked the rich mine of the State Papers with splendid success, and has produced a full-length portrait of the Queen, both sympathetic and critical, which could scarcely be more lifelike."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p474 S 14 '40 850w

PRESNELL, FRANK G. No mourners present. 281p $2 Morrow 40-4194

Detective story.

"Plenty of fans will cheer this typical example of the hard-boiled and streamlined mystery. 'No Mourners Present' is an able successor to 'Send Another Coffin,' which you may have seen in the movies, too, as 'Slightly Honorable.'. . As for the strong language, we'd be tickled if the hard authors would get together and find another word meaning an uncanonical child or use their favorite epithet less often, or never. Still, maybe the public demands it." Will Cuppy
+ — Books p17 F 11 '40 170w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin
Boston Transcript p2 F 10 '40 30w

"You'll like [Webb], and you'll like Anne, too, even though she isn't very bright." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p26 F 11 '40 160w

"Nice plot, featuring John Webb, lawyer, and his beautiful wife, Anne, former night-club singer. For readers who can get worked up over rackets."
+ — New Yorker 15:80 F 10 '40 40w

"Plentiful action, exuberant conversation involving Webb's amusingly dumb wife, and finish that reveals benefits of classical education. Good fun."
+ Sat R of Lit 21:18 F 10 '40 40w

PRESSEY, SIDNEY LEAVITT; JANNEY, JOSEPH ELLIOTT, and KUHLEN, RAYMOND G. Life: a psychological survey. 654p il $3.25 Harper

150 Life. Psychology, Applied 39-18644

"The distinctive feature of this textbook for introductory college psychology courses is felt by the authors to be its three points of emphasis: It considers man primarily as a social organism who needs to learn how to get along with others and to achieve some measure of success in the socioeconomic conditions in which he finds himself; it stresses the continuing development of the individual throughout the life span; and it treats explicitly of such problems of life as attaining efficiency and adjustment and achieving a life plan and philosophy." (J Home Econ) Selected bibliographies at ends of chapters. Index of names and of subjects.

Reviewed by E. A. Cowan
Am J Psychol 53:312 Ap '40 420w

"It is a foregone conclusion that any book written by Sidney Pressey will be practical, and this venture into the field of elementary psychology is no exception." P. R. Farnsworth
+ Am Soc R 5:680 Ag '40 140w

"The book is exceedingly well written and clearly organized, and it presents a coherent body of information on some phases of psychology for the general reader and for the beginning student in psychology." Mandel Sherman
+ El School J 41:314 D '40 450w
J Home Econ 31:644 N '39 90w
Scientific Bk Club R 11:3 Mr '40 250w
Wis Lib Bul 36:123 Jl '40

PRESTIGE, GEORGE LEONARD. Fathers and heretics. 439p $3.25 Macmillan [12s 6d S.P.C.K]

239 Theology. Faith

"The 'Six Studies in Dogmatic Faith with Prologue and Epilogue,' to quote Dr. Prestige's description of his [Bampton] lectures in the sub-title—are devoted to faith in a Divine Saviour, the claims of religious intelligence, the Unity of God, Divine irruption, redeemed humanity, and One Lord, One Faith, One Baptism. These are associated with the names of Callistus, Origen, Athanasius, Apollinaris, Nestorius and Cyril. The prologue deals with tradition or the scriptural basis of theology, the epilogue with Eros or devotion to the Sacred humanity." Times [London] Lit Sup

"It can hardly be said that Dr. Prestige has produced one of the great Bamptons, if for no other reason than that he has selected an oft-traversed subject—the development of the doctrines of the Trinity and the incarnation —which few short of a Harnack have contrived to make exciting. He is, however, thoroughly at home amid the intricacies of patristic theology; he sees clearly what the Fathers were trying to express, assesses as impartially as an 'orthodox' believer is able to do the merits of ancient controversies, and seeks to be scrupulously fair to heretics of well-meant indiscretion." P. V. Norwood

PRESTIGE, G. L.—Continued
+ Christian Century 57:1380 N 6 '40 1000w

Reviewed by B. S. Easton
Churchman 154:18 N 15 '40 270w

"The historical sketches to be found in the several lectures will add to the interest of the book for the general reader, if the professional student may perhaps grudge a little the space taken from the discussion of theological problems."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p480 S 21 '40 900w

PRESTON, GEORGE HEINRICHS. Psychiatry for the curious; il. with sketches by the author. 148p $1.50 Farrar

616.8 Psychology, Pathological. Personality, Disorders of (W) 40-35784

Elementary explanation of psychiatry for the layman. The author is commissioner of mental hygiene for the state of Maryland. The book is illustrated by the doctor's own line drawings.

Booklist 37:211 Ja 15 '41

"This small book must be read to be appreciated. It is scarcely possible to do it justice in a review. The author's delightful humor is always ready and he is fertile in sharp comment in human ways. One may mildly disagree with his belief in the obstructiveness of psychiatric terminology and wish to add the appropriate term here and there, but one cannot refrain from hailing the work as an original and valuable source of illumination in the still murky sphere of human behavior." H. M. Parshley
+ — Books p15 F 2 '41 220w

"Admirable primer of psychiatry for the inquiring layman." R. M. Green, M.D.
+ Boston Transcript p2 Ja 18 '41 140w

"Can you imagine a psychiatrist with a sense of humor? The influence of James Thurber has come to psychiatry. Preston has a talent for clever line drawings, and with them he illustrates a simple, clear, informal text which in 148 pages gives a very adequate introduction to the subject of psychiatry." Karl Menninger
+ Nation 151:454 N 9 '40 180w

PRESTON, RICHARD JOSEPH. Rocky Mountain trees; a handbook of the native species with plates and distribution maps. 386p $2 Iowa state college press, Ames, Iowa

582.16 Trees—Rocky mountains 40-27559

Identification manual of native Rocky mountain trees. Each description is accompanied by an illustration of twigs, leaves or needles, buds, fruit, and small map showing distribution. Contains a check list of the trees found in each state, giving both scientific and common names; a glossary; selected bibliography; and an index.

Booklist 36:409 Jl 1 '40

"This book should prove timely and helpful not only to foresters and botanists but to all who go West and want to know the names and how to recognize the numerous varieties of unfamiliar trees. . . The summary of the trees found in each of the states of the Rocky Mountain country is helpful, and the clear, concise descriptions of each species will be appreciated by all those who want to know the facts with the least amount of effort."
+ Books p10 S 1 '40 120w

PRESTON, WHEELER. American biographies. 1147p $7.50 Harper

920.073 U.S.—Biography (W) 40-34059

More than 5,000 compact biographical sketches of Americans, from colonial times to the present. "The names of living people have been expressly excluded. . . With this one exception, every man or woman from colonial times onward who has played a noteworthy part in the making of the United States finds a place . . . including non-Americans who have had a share in the history of the nation." (Pref) Short bibliographies included.

Booklist 37:153 D 15 '40

"The short sketches emphasize accomplishment rather than details of personal life and are briskly concise and informative. A special feature is the bibliography supplied for further reference under every name."
+ N Y Times p36 N 10 '40 200w

PRICE, GEORGE. Good humor man. [46p] $2 Farrar

741 Humor, Pictorial. Caricatures and cartoons 40-35866

Collection of over two hundred of Mr Price's cartoons, many of them first seen in the New Yorker, with a selection from his so-called diary.

Booklist 37:238 F 1 '41

"The text of a section of an alleged diary by Mr. Price won't actually jump up and bite anybody, but in contrast to the really wonderful cartoons its humor is vaguely sophomoric at best. I am reminded of Gertrude Stein's anecdote of the day Picasso came to her with a sheaf of poems that he had written and asked for her honest criticism. 'I read the poems carefully,' says Miss Stein, 'and then I took him firmly by the shoulders and shook him roundly. "Picasso," I said, "go home and paint pictures!" ' " B. A. Cerf
+ — Books p6 D 8 '40 400w

New Yorker 16:92 N 30 '40 40w

PRICE, MORGAN PHILIPS. Hitler's war and eastern Europe. 160p map $1.25 Macmillan [5s Allen, G]

940.5 Europe—Politics. European war, 1939 —Causes

A former Manchester Guardian correspondent, who was in Russia from 1914 to 1918, and who represented the Daily Herald in Berlin from 1919 to 1923, attempts to answer the following questions: How far was the Treaty of Versailles responsible for the present war? What must be done to prevent a war breaking out over Eastern Europe every quarter of a century? Can we really succeed in building up some sort of international system which will guarantee peace and at the same time really redress grievances? Has Russia imperial designs on Eastern Europe and is its imperialism the same old one dressed up in revolutionary forms? Bibliography. Index.

Christian Science Monitor p11 Je 15 '40 230w

Manchester Guardian p3 Ap 16 '40 400w

"Altogether a solid, practical and opportune contribution to current thought." H. W. H.
+ Spec 164:292 Mr 1 '40 310w

"Mr. Price has packed a surprisingly large amount of material and good sense into his short book. . . His impressions and conclusions are admirably summarized and soberly stated."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p106 Mr 2 '40 500w

PRIESTLEY, HERBERT INGRAM. France overseas through the old régime; a study of European expansion [pub. for the Inst. of social sciences, Univ. of California]. 393p maps $5 (25s) Appleton-Century

325.344 France—Colonies 40-141

"This book is an introduction and companion to France Overseas: A Study of Modern Imperialism [Book Review Digest, 1939]. . . France Overseas is the story of the building of an empire, from its remote beginnings in Europe, its motivations and its racial causes and geographical influences; this volume carries the narrative to the close of the Napoleonic era, the companion volume moving from the resurgence of imperial ambitions with the seizure of Algiers to the moment of the beginning of the redistribution of the African colonies with the Italian entry into Ethiopia. . . The author has based this volume chiefly on French authorities, some for facts, some for organization, others for interpretation. As far as practicable, conclusions have been checked against other accepted authorities, but it is in essence a French-told tale." (Pref) Index.

"On the whole, the book is badly organized. . . The author's style is crabbed and full of gallicisms. . . Nonetheless, despite such adverse comments, the great usefulness of the book must be recognized. The author has been over almost all the available printed material on the subject. His full and careful footnotes form an excellent working bibliography on nearly every point that he touches. His judgment is sound and his interpretations either valid or defensible. The work will have little appeal for the general reader, but the serious student who wants a sound introduction to a complex subject or a scholarly basis for further research will be grateful to Professor Priestley." C. W. Cole

+ — Am Hist R 46:208 O '40 280w

Reviewed by Grayson Kirk

Ann Am Acad 210:157 Jl '40 310w

"This is a useful but disappointing book. . . The value of the book lies mainly in the useful summaries of the facts of French colonial expansion, e.g. in the West Indies or Madagascar. It is based on the standard French secondary authorities, though primary authorities are also referred to at times. It is lavishly—almost too lavishly—supplied with references and footnotes, though there is no general bibliography. It is careful and painstaking, at times almost too detailed for a book of this kind. It will be of use to the student desiring information and reference for the facts of French colonial expansion. The volume claims, however, to be 'a synthetic portrayal of the outward thrust of a colonizing state,' and here the author hardly lives up to his preface. The book lacks unity of structure and arrangement. . . The style is at times crabbed and confused, with a lack of that clarity characteristic of the French." R. Flenley

— + Canadian Hist R 21:323 S '40 650w

"Like its predecessor, this exhibits a fine quality of historianship, in the marshaling of source materials, in the formation of sound judgments, and in the writing of a well proportioned and readable narrative."

+ Christian Century 56:1579 D 20 '39 100w

Reviewed by L. B. Packard

Pol Sci Q 55:304 Je '40 500w

"Professor Priestley's ponderous title sets the tone for his book. This history of French colonial activity from Roger Guiscard to Napoleon I makes no concessions to the Graces. . . The book is crammed with facts, well-known or obscure, strung neatly along together with no regard for their possible effect on the reader's emotions or interests. It has footnotes, plenty of them, not hidden in the back of the book, nor even apologized for. . . Certainly the general reader will not be drawn to Professor Priestley's book. Yet the book, like the tradition of which it is a part, has its good points. It brings together, sorts out, and verifies as far as possible a great many facts about French colonial activity. It presents these facts clearly and unemphatically." Crane Brinton

+ — Sat R of Lit 21:18 Ja 6 '40 600w

"The book is not easy reading; for it is overcrowded with matter, and its author is not a master of English style. But its merits far outweigh its defects; for it is a scholarly work, based on wide reading, written in a strictly scientific spirit, and containing a mass of information not easily accessible elsewhere."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p90 F 17 '40 650w

PRIESTLEY, JOHN BOYNTON. Britain speaks. 263p $2.50 Harper

940.5342 European war, 1939—Great Britain (W) 40-35825

Thirty-nine essays on England in the present war based upon the author's radio broadcasts from London between May 30th and September 24th, 1940. Many of the talks were written while bombs were falling in the vicinity.

Booklist 37:214 Ja 15 '41

"While Mr. Priestley was already very well known he has become practically a household familiar since he started his regular shortwave talks on the air from England. I do not know how many millions have listened to him, but it is highly probable that a considerable proportion of his listeners will be glad of this book just because it sets down in print what he has been saying about England and the people of England during recent months. As far as any man can be, he has been the voice of a people at war." Iris Barry

+ Books p4 D 15 '40 600w

Current Hist & Forum 52:2 Ja 23 '41 150w

Nation 152:26 Ja 4 '41 50w

"They have in them just the right mixture of the robust honesty, the cheerful defiance, the simple and straight-from-the-shoulder language, which the British people need and crave in their moments of greatest danger. They are just as different from the dreary run of British official broadcasting, and just as refreshing, as Winston Churchill's call for 'blood, toil, tears and sweat' last May was different from the windy complacency of his predecessors." Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.

+ N Y Times p9 D 8 '40 700w

"Memorable writing, both humorous and grim, and solid Yorkshire all the way through."

+ New Yorker 16:124 D 7 '40 50w

"I have listened in on almost all these fifteen minute talks. I was often deeply moved by what Priestley had to tell us of bomb-wracked London. I was often very much amused by the drily humorous tone of his conversations with his audience. But I must confess that up to now I had not known that these broadcasts were any more than cleverly concealed propaganda. Now that thirty-nine of these talks lie before me on the table in bookform I discover as I read them through that 'Britain Speaks' is a masterpiece of modern war literature. I believe that this book, the best one that has come to us out of England concerning the war, will still hold its unique prestige a hundred years from now (or at least it should)." H. B. Kranz

+ Sat R of Lit 23:6 D 14 '40 800w

"Some of Mr Priestley's finest passages deal with the easygoing, complacent character of the English people and their courage and hearty determination when once they are aroused. But it is too much to expect history in broadcasts intended to influence a neutral nation's thinking in time of war. Mr Priestley is writing propaganda, and doing it well—though occasionally overdoing it." E. N. Jenckes

+ — Springf'd Republican p6 N 30 '40 1300w

PRIESTLEY, JOHN BOYNTON. Let the people sing. 351p $2.50 Harper [8s 6d Heinemann] (W) 40-27052

This gay, picaresque tale begins when Timmy Tiverton, out-of-work, middle aged comedian, innocently gets mixed up with the I.R.A. Pursued by the police, he and an exiled Czech professor are befriended by a wandering auctioneer. This trio, further augmented by other queer characters, save the music hall of the town of Dunbury, first from the hands of the aristocracy and secondly from the clutches of an American-owned factory. The hall is returned to the people for their singing with great fanfare from the town band.

Atlantic Mr '40 30w

Booklist 36:214 F 1 '40

Bookmark p13 Mr '40

"The demand for another 'The Good Companions,' which set in a week after the book was out, seemed destined to go unfulfilled. And now, just when it is needed, here it is." M. L. Becker

+ Books p2 Ja 7 '40 1300w

"Mr. Priestley's gay novel was originally written at the request of the B. B. C. Designed to be given in pieces over the air, it had to be so instantly merry and catchy that it could be picked up anywhere. The British public loved it, and so will his American readers. There is no hint of mechanical good fellowship. The texture of the comedy is loose, but the incidents are so well placed that one can see how Mr. Priestley's work for the stage has improved his art as a novelist." Olga Owens

+ Boston Transcript p1 Ja 13 '40 700w

Cath World 150:764 Mr '40 180w

Reviewed by Eric Forbes-Boyd

Christian Science Monitor p11 D 30 '39 460w

"A humorous, cozy and interesting novel, perhaps more like The Good Companions than anything else Mr. Priestly has done since that novel appeared." E. S. H.

+ Churchman 154:34 F 15 '40 90w

Cleveland Open Shelf p4 Ja '40

"The 'plot' provides Mr. Priestley free scope for his really great gift of humorous writing. His caricatures, just sufficiently overdrawn to point their natural absurdities, are in the best Dickensian tradition, while his happy gift for lively and original simile, his easy, graphic literary style, and his ready invention carry us on with never a hint of boredom to a thoroughly satisfactory conclusion. 'Let the People Sing' is the right kind of story to distract readers' minds from their personal worries." J. D. Beresford

+ Manchester Guardian p3 N 10 '39 320w

"Political implications are not confined to author's asides. Each of the characters stands roughly for a characteristic English or democratic virtue. This symbolism, however, is not sufficiently complete or closely textured to be very telling. Many will like the novel for its good spirits and benevolent message, but it lacks the originality of 'The Good Companions' and is a much thinner piece of construction." Janet Thom

— + New Repub 102:155 Ja 29 '40 330w

"If Mr. Priestley was unwise to give so much of the song with which the trick was done, he was still more unwise to burden his frail little parable with a number of jokes which have the northern virtues of plainness and bluntness but no others. If you like Strube's glorified wit you might like this novel, with its wee comedian as central figure and its secondary hero, who blushes and stammers when he has to talk to women; and if you kill people in debate long after they have gone, that might be another reason for liking it. But the jokes are very plain, and very blunt." Anthony West

— + New Statesman & Nation 18:684 N 11 '39 280w

"This fairy-tale, this gay extravaganza, holds a sound hope along with its sound philosophy. From ancient dead rigidities and from the stiffening grip of the new mechanizations individual man can still be free; and where he stands alive and balanced and aware he is free already. For already, in our world's travail, our spirits are awake again. Let the people sing: individual, hardy, spontaneous; while we laugh and listen, and find truth sparkling in a modern fairy tale." Katherine Woods

+ N Y Times p6 Ja 7 '40 1250w

"An honest, unpretentious, and jolly affair." Clifton Fadiman

+ New Yorker 15:60 Ja 6 '40 280w

"One feels that Mr. Priestley has put much of himself into the book; but he has perhaps put in too many of his selves. The jolly Priestley of 'The Good Companions' has been providing excellent entertainment; now the serious and generous Priestley of 'English Journey' champions the common man; even the Priestley fascinated by the new ideas of time and race-memory who wrote 'Time and the Conways,' makes a brief appearance; and they do not get on together perfectly. . . The arrangement of farcical beginning, serious middle, and farcical conclusion, leaves one with somewhat the same sticky feeling as a sandwich made of bread spread on both sides with jam." Basil Davenport

Sat R of Lit 21:6 Ja 6 '40 600w

Reviewed by Graham Greene

Spec 163:662 N 10 '39 490w

"A novel easy to disregard but hard to dislike."

Time 35:68 Ja 15 '40 100w

"Though shapeless, this is an easy, good-natured and lightly sentimental fable."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p653 N 11 '39 420w

Wis Lib Bul 36:49 Mr '40

PRIMMER, KATHLEEN. Scandinavian peasant costume; with notes by M. S. Primmer. 103p il col pl $4 Macmillan [12s 6d Black, A. & C]

391 Costume [40-27112]

"Descriptions, with 64 pages of pleasing pencil drawings and eight colored plates of the costumes of the Scandinavian countries. The headdresses, hair styles, jewelry, embroidery, leatherwork, and other accessories are given in detail." Booklist

Booklist 36:231 F 15 '40

"Mrs. Primmer's drawings are very clear and well produced, so that the book can be recommended for practical use by designers for the stage." Raymond Mortimer

+ New Statesman & Nation 18:838 D 9 '39 130w

"The drawings and the eight colour plates are delightful—lively, spirited and finely drawn, with due but not overdone attention to detail. The artist and the writer of the notes both know their subject. . . Like too many practical people, however, they are not equally expert when it comes to putting their knowledge into a book. The notes make no pretence to orderly or methodical handling of the material. . . The book is difficult to use for reference, as there is no index, and the only way to find descriptions of the plates is to read through the text."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p636 N 4 '39 310w

PRIOR, LILIAN FAITH LOVEDAY. The valley of exile. 420p $2.50 Smith & Durrell [8s 6d Murray, J]

40-7425

"This novel has an original theme—at least it has not been used in recent English fiction—namely, the fate of the Austrian Tirolese under Italian rule. . . The scene is a typical village of former Austrian Tirol, so local in its traditions that even Vienna and the speech of the city were almost foreign. The central figure is the old Count Felmaro, whose family had ruled its estates for four centuries. . . The separate scenes in the drama . . . are all enacted from the summer of 1935, when the Abyssinian war was approaching with its doubled hardship for the province, to September, 1938, when the shadow of the Swastika was brought nearer." Times [London] Lit Sup

Booklist 36:398 Je 15 '40

"The feudal Count treats his peasants with an unadulterated benevolence that seems a little unreal even from a Viennese gentleman who is an admirer of Frederick the Great. . . Miss Prior is more successful with the peasants because they are more elemental. She has caught the feeling of their rich rumbling laughter, their language, and their chocolate torten. But even they remain more highly colored pictures than real flesh and blood. Nevertheless these points are overshadowed by the vital quality of the subject. For 'The Valley of Exile' is the story of a people living a civilization ages apart from our own nickel-in-a-slot-and-pull existence." D. B. Shapiro

+ — Books p12 My 12 '40 700w

Boston Transcript p1 Je 29 '40 70w

"The book made a great impression on me. It has an air of reality quite out of the ordinary in fiction. By which I mean that it is not only an authentic display of local color and background, and feathers in Tyrolean hats, but that the hearts are as convincing as the hats, and every character animate to the full." Eric Forbes-Boyd

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 Mr 23 '40 170w

"Picturesqueness of costume and scene is over-stressed, but the story has restraint and is dramatic rather with drama's undertones than with its emphasis." Harold Brighouse

+ — Manchester Guardian p3 Ja 30 '40 300w

"The scheme of the novel requires the use of a great many characters, and Miss Prior has not been altogether successful in keeping her stage uncluttered and her story balanced, while the writing is often dull and occasionally careless, but the tale works up to an effective climax and the description of a people restive under an alien and detested rule, too few for the slightest hope of successful revolt, feeling themselves friendless, totally disregarded by the rest of the world, is admirably done." L. M. Field

+ — N Y Times p7 Ap 28 '40 750w

New Yorker 16:94 Ap 20 '40 80w

"The novel scatters its fire. Yet it hits the essential mark. Miss Prior brings warmly alive the gay, lovable, fiercely possessive people who have made the rugged mountains and fertile valleys of South Tyrol their home through hundreds of years of old-world history. She makes one understand how bitter a thing it is that this land should no longer be their own." J. S. Mabon

+ — Sat R of Lit 22:12 Ap 27 '40 550w

Springf'd Republican p7e N 10 '40 330w

"It is by the interweaving of personal tragedy with the problem of political allegiance and great events in Central Europe that Miss Prior has created a novel which is recommended to be read not only as a story, to the telling of which there has gone much skill in dialogue and characterization, but as an accurate and impartial record of a political and cultural change which, even in the present vast transformation of European society, deserves not to be lost sight of."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p75 F 10 '40 500w

PRODINGER, WILHELM. Organic reagents used in quantitative inorganic analysis; tr. and amended from the 2nd German ed. by Stewart Holmes; with a foreword by O. Baudisch. 203p il $5 Nordeman

543.7 Chemistry, Analytic—Quantitative. Chemical tests and reagents 40-31358

"This book is a fairly literal translation of Prodinger's 'Organische Fällungsmittel', which appeared in 1937 as Volume 37 of the 'Chemische Analyse' series published by Ferdinand Enke of Stuttgart. The material has been revised to January, 1939, and a new section dealing with 8-hydroxyquinoline added by the translator. Prodinger's book is essentially a companion volume to Feigl's 'Qualitative Analysis by Spot Tests'. Both are limited to uses of organic compounds in inorganic analysis." Chem & Chem Eng N

"The English edition represents a fairly literal translation of the German. Unfortunately, it does not read smoothly in many places, but this does not seem to detract from its accuracy. Meticulous organic chemists may take exceptions to the way certain structural formulas have been written; but admittedly some of these lack experimental proof. Revision has been made in a few instances, and two sections have been added by the translator: one on 8-hydroxyquinoline ('Oxine') and another on the ammonium salt of a-nitrosonaphthylhydroxylamine ('Neo-cupferron'). Systematic studies in the field of metallo-organic complex compounds and their application in analytical chemistry undoubtedly will lead to interesting and valuable results. This English edition of Prodinger's book will be a helpful adjunct to all who are interested in organic analytical reagents." J. H. Yoe

+ — Am Chem Soc J 62:3272 N '40 200w

"The translation by Mr. Holmes is very well done. The publishers are to be complimented for making books of this type available to the American chemist and for the comely appearance and fine printing and binding." Harvey Diehl

Chem & Chem Eng N 18:1095 D 10 '40 600w

Chem & Met Eng 47:726 O '40 150w

PROGRESSIVE EDUCATION ASSOCIATION, NEW YORK. Commission on the secondary school curriculum. Committee on the function of mathematics in general education. Mathematics in general education; a report of the Committee. 423p $2.75 Appleton-Century

510.7 Mathematics—Study and teaching 40-10497

" 'The proposals of the Commission are designed to apply to the education of all adolescents (ranging in age, approximately, from twelve to twenty) whether or not they plan to go to college. Although they provide a sound basis of preparation for college and for professional school, they are intended to contribute primarily to the purpose of helping the student achieve a socially adequate and personally satisfying life.' (Pref) The several parts of the report have the following chapter headings: The teaching of mathematics in relation to general education; Major understandings growing out of mathematical experience; The development and nature of mathematics; and Understanding the student and evaluating his growth." N Y New Tech Bks

Booklist 36:426 Jl 15 '40

N Y New Tech Bks 25:36 Jl '40

PROGRESSIVE EDUCATION ASSOCIATION, NEW YORK. Commission on the secondary school curriculum. Committee on the function of the social studies in general education. The social studies in general education. 401p $2.75; to members $2 Appleton-Century

307.12 Social sciences—Study and teaching. Adolescence 40-35441

"The purpose of this joint effort on the part of a group of specialists in the social sciences, teachers of the social studies in secondary schools and colleges, and students of educational theory and practice, is to present fundamental considerations for the guidance of social-studies teachers, offer illustrations of PROGRESSIVE EDUCATION ASSN.—Cont. ways in which such considerations may affect practice in particular situations, and encourage vigorously the current trends toward thoughtful educational experimentation." (Publisher's note) Index.

Booklist 37:212 Ja 15 '41

Reviewed by Theodore Brameld
New Repub 103:877 D 23 '40 20w

"The authors of The Social Studies in General Education are to be congratulated for having written so readable a work. The short, well-selected bibliographies appended to most of the chapters will enable readers who so desire to follow up the special phases in which they may be interested. It is unfortunate that space limitations did not permit the inclusion of more illustrative material such as the questions and activities centering in the role of democracy in social-civic relationships (pp. 185-87). The teacher of social problems may well ask for further 'blueprinting' before undertaking to use very extensively the resources of anthropology to demonstrate 'both the profound social significance and also the cultural relativity of sexual mores' (p. 144)." R. E. Keohane + — School R 49:69 Ja '41 1000w

"To the protagonist of the democratic offensive, every serious treatise on curriculum building—and especially in the social studies—is of crucial import. This volume is no exception; indeed it stands high on the list of 'must' books anent educational theory and method. This reviewer has nothing but admiring agreement for the statement as far as it goes. But it is at this point of the sins of omission that fuller candor, greater philosophical profundity, and a fresh orientation of foundations seem needed." Ordway Tead
+ — Survey 76:372 D '40 400w

PROKOFIEFF, SERGE. Peter and the wolf; with a foreword by Serge Koussevitzky [il. by Warren Chappell]. [32p] $2 Knopf 40-27663

An old Russian folk tale, retold and pictured for children, with the important themes of Prokofieff's music included.

Booklist 37:41 O 1 '40

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Books p26 N 10 '40 160w

Reviewed by F. B. Sloan
Christian Science Monitor p9 D 16 '40 140w

Commonweal 33:121 N 22 '40 40w

"A truly distinctive book of 1940. . . In this lovely book we have the Russian folk tale undiluted with the actual music of the important themes and unusual illustrations in color by an artist who has taken pains to interpret in the spirit of the original." A. C. Moore
+ Horn Bk M 16:339 S '40 60w

"The pictures and decorations are admirably suited to the fairy tale composition of Prokofieff, having a childlike quality and charm as well as humor." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk M 16:345 S '40 50w

"The composer's musical narrative is here told in story form with the directness, flavor, and simplicity of true folklore. . . Warren Chappell's illustrations in vigorous color have life and character. Text in beautiful calligraphy, easily read. . . Pleasing size for a 'long' book, with end-opening. For music appreciation at any age over six. An altogether distinctive book in format and spirit, although the price will be considered high for so thin a volume." Maude Adams
+ Library J 65:715 S 1 '40 130w

"Pictures, story, and the most important musical themes are all interrelated in this presentation of the well-loved orchestral fairy tale which is full of humor and has a real 'folk quality.'" R. A. Hill
+ Library J 65:846 O 15 '40 40w

Reviewed by Lena Barksdale
Nation 151:454 N 9 '40 20w

"The music of the important themes is given and it will add to a child's enjoyment if he has some one to play these simple arrangements for him as they occur in the tale. A humorous charming picture book, distinguished and unusual in design." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p12 O 20 '40 140w

"A charming and original book."
+ New Yorker 16:126 D 7 '40 70w

PROKOSCH, FREDERIC. Death at sea; poems. 52p $2 Harper 811 40-35350

"Frederic Prokosch's new book contains twenty-seven poems united in a single theme—the state of the individual against the sinister background of disastrous world events." Living Age

"It will seem inferior to those who look for the control, condensation and evenness of Elliot, Stevens and Marianne Moore. Others will accept it warmly for what it is: the emotional, at times exciting, at times tasteless, lyric response of a man to the crumbling of a continent." Kerker Quinn
+ — Books p15 Ja 12 '41 500w

"A book of poems not to be missed."
+ Living Age 359:395 D '40 150w

"An unsympathetic reader will find Mr. Prokosch a sort of decerebrate Auden, an Auden popularized for mass-consumption; and since Auden himself has been, lately, so successful in the attempt to provide one, it is hard to see in Mr. Prokosch much more than a work of supererogation. . . But do not let me give the impression that Mr. Prokosch's poems are failures; the effects are secondhand and second-rate—but oh, so effective! The surface of the poetry has the immediate appeal the able and sensational popularization of a new technique always has; and under that surface bubbles the same old romanticism that infected us all in our cradles. . . . I read the poems with annoyance and mild pleasure." Randall Jarrell
— + New Repub 103:800 D 9 '40 550w

"Mr. Prokosch says nothing in particular with suavety and elegance. He takes trouble with his verse, and his success is the measure of what careful imitation and practice can do. His are verses that any editor could publish without embarrassment, and any critic read without pain." Kathleen Raine
+ — New Statesman & Nation 20:687 D 28 '40 350w

"Prokosch is performing the same job of adaptation for the Auden school that MacLeish performed ten years ago for Pound, Eliot, St. J. Perse, and Apollinaire. He is smoothing out, making acceptable and melodious. No one need be frightened by this young man. The real hunger, rage, analysis, terror, observation, and tragic pathos which mark a poet of first and original rank are not in him. But he sounds very soothing." Louise Bogan
+ New Yorker 16:62 D 28 '40 110w

Times [London] Lit Sup p9 Ja 4 '41 500w

PROPPER, MILTON MORRIS. Station wagon murder. 292p $2 Harper 40-31634

Detective story.

"This has solid plot merits, well worked out by an old hand at such matters. Told in Mr. Propper's accustomed style—you might call it gruesome." Will Cuppy
+ Books p18 S 22 '40 110w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin
Boston Transcript p2 O 5 '40 80w

"The plot of 'The Station Wagon Murder' bristles with complications and is by no means innocent of coincidences. One of its main pillars rests, too, upon a weak base. But it is an interesting plot, and its unraveling is done with the good old Inspector French type of concentration, enlivened by plenty of incident. If Mr. Propper's writing were less pedestrian and more attractive—more expert, in short—his thriller could be recommended to a larger audience." Kay Irvin

PROKOSCH (prŏ'kŏsh)

+ — N Y Times p16 S 22 '40 190w

"Regrettable moral lapses of Phila. suburban society leaders, with ensuing blackmail, give pungency to deftly constructed yarn with surprise finish. Standard Brand."

Sat R of Lit 22:18 O 5 '40 40w

Time 36:88 O 7 '40 40w

PROSERPIO, LEONE, bp. St Gemma Galgani; with a foreword by Leo Peter Kierkels. (Science and culture ser) 212p $2.25 Bruce pub.

B or 92 Gemma Galgani, Saint 40-10687

"St. Gemma Galgani died in 1903 at the age of twenty-five and was canonized by Pius XII. in the present year [1940]. . . Most of this Life is compiled from the Saint's autobiography." Cath World

Reviewed by W. H. Dodd

America 63:248 Je 8 '40 240w

Cath World 152:124 O '40 180w

"Saint Gemma Galgani is [a] difficult saint for a contemporary to appreciate. As the preface says, her life is a direct challenge to the hard boiled materialism which distorts the modern vision. Her obscure and 'poor' life was a most profound Christian mystery and an appreciation of it requires a very positive act of the will and intelligence. It is somewhat doubtful if Bishop Proserpio's book gives the ordinary reader the encouragement for that act which the ordinary reader needs. It is more didactic and pious than usual contemporary taste." P. B.

Commonweal 32:450 S 20 '40 420w

PROUDFIT, MRS ISABEL. River-boy; the story of Mark Twain; il. by W. C. Nims. 247p $2.50 Messner

B or 92 Clemens, Samuel Langhorne (Mark Twain, pseud)—Juvenile literature (W) 40-33313

Biography of Mark Twain for high school and junior high school age. Bibliography.

Booklist 37:123 N 15 '40

"I can well believe that an audience waits for this junior biography of Mark Twain. It has the rough, wild spirit of its time and place, the spirit that calls out the Injun in us, and will for a good while yet, despite the processes of civilization." M. L. Becker

+ Books p8 D 15 '40 240w

"Excellent." Katherine Ulrich

+ Sat R of Lit 23:8 N 16 '40 30w

PRUETTE, LORINE (MRS J. W. HERRING). Working with words; a survey of vocational opportunities for young writers. 210p $1.50 Funk

029.6 Authorship. Profession, Choice of (W) 40-9553

A survey of occupations—such as journalism, editorial work, advertising, scenario writing, and, of course, creative writing—in which the ability to write well is a primary tool. Bibliography.

"This is one of the few books about the art of writing that can be given to a would-be writer without an explicit warning that no book can teach him how to write. For this one makes no such promise and offers no more than something to help him realize whatever promise there may be in himself." M. L. Becker

+ Books p13 Je 16 '40 410w

Boston Transcript p2 Je 15 '40 30w

"In spite of the simple organization, the many specific examples, and the quotations, the book is more suitable for the older than the younger teens. But English teachers will be reading it aloud paragraph after paragraph to younger boys and girls to emphasize the importance of learning to write correctly." Miriam Snow

+ Library J 65:662 Ag '40 130w

Springf'd Republican p6 S 9 '40 200w

PRYOR, WILLIAM CLAYTON, and PRYOR, MRS HELEN SLOMAN. Let's look at advertising. 249p il $2 Harcourt

659.1 Advertising (W) 40-13754

Studies the good and bad aspects of advertising—in periodicals, newspapers, on the radio, and by mail. Partial contents: The 57 varieties of advertising; The credit side of advertising; Government and advertising; Department store advertising; An advertising agency; Planning a campaign; Advertising by mail; Advertising and the consumer. For junior and senior high schools.

Booklist 37:20 S '40

"The general effect of the book is not destructive. It is designed to make the reader demand honest advertising in good taste. There is some vocational value as well. It will be especially useful in high school libraries as a somewhat easier introduction to the adult books on this subject. Many adults would find it easy, interesting reading. Numerous photographs, of which some are poor and badly placed in relation to the text. Age thirteen and up." Eleanor Kidder

+ — Library J 65:814 O 1 '40 180w

PULVER, HARRY E. Construction estimates and costs. 653p $5 McGraw

692.5 Building—Estimates 40-27177

The book provides a thoro explanation of the best methods of estimating construction costs, with many illustrative estimates showing the practical application of the methods explained. Both text and tables are based on current material costs. Index.

Booklist 36:260 Mr 1 '40

Cleveland Open Shelf p7 Mr '40

"As a reference manual the book offers fundamental data and pertinent comment on most subjects, with the usual ranges of production and cost outlined as a guide in unfamiliar work. The appendix has only representative samples of the useful tables it might have contained on bidding check lists and ownership and rental rates of equipment, being largely devoted to straight line diagrams which could be easily replaced with a slide rule."

+ — Eng N 124:76 Mr 28 '40 140w

N Y New Tech Bks 25:6 Ja '40

PURDY, MRS CLAIRE LEE. He heard America sing; the story of Stephen Foster; pictures by Dorothea Cooke. 236p $2.50 Messner

B or 92 Foster, Stephen Collins—Juvenile literature (W) 40-27453

The first biography of Stephen Foster for young readers. In the study of the sources of Foster's songs the author pictures Stephen's early love of music, which caused him to haunt docks, churches, minstrel shows, listening to the songs of the Negroes, and others in his joy in rhythm. The story of his romance with "Jeanie with the light brown hair" is told with restraint.

Booklist 36:370 My 15 '40

PURDY, C. L.—Continued

"Foster's sadder, later years are given in brief outline without moralizing over what any child can see for himself. No one is left in a pharisaical state of mind, a sense of gratitude remains instead. A folksong composer rarely gets that in person. This tribute to Stephen Foster is in the right spirit." M. L. Becker

+ Books p16 My 5 '40 420w

Reviewed by M. A. Whitney
Christian Science Monitor p9 Je 27 '40 250w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk M 16:273 Jl '40 160w

Reviewed by Miriam Snow
Library J 65:400 My 1 '40 150w

"This is a well-rounded biography which sets Foster in perspective against his time, one saturated with the color and movement of his period, and one which does not smooth over the fact that his genius, never recognized even by himself, was combined, like Poe's, with a fatal weakness. Dorothea Cooke in her illustrations handles light and shade so deftly as to give almost the effect of color, and in them the discerning eye can trace not only the changing years but the changing phases in Foster's life." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p10 Ap 14 '40 550w

"A readable if undistinguished biography of the composer. . . The life of a man who died a drunkard at the age of thirty-eight is unlikely material for a youthful audience, but the author manages to present it with only a few deprecatory murmurs." K. S. W.

+ — New Yorker 16:99 My 18 '40 100w

Wis Lib Bul 36:103 My '40

PUTNAM, MRS NINA (WILCOX). The inner voice. 309p $2.50 Sheridan

40-35996

This story of a Southern Quaker in pre-Civil War days begins when Jonathan Pickett, a boy of thirteen, first hears talk of freedom for the slaves, visits for the first time a slave market, and buys his first slave, Daniel, a boy of his own age. The story ends with Jonathan's death, many years later at the hands of Kansas Border Ruffians, but in his death Jonathan sees a vision of a free America.

"A vivid and engrossing novel. Its background is history, but primarily it tells a romantic story of those times, and tells it dramatically, in terms of Quaker and aristocrat." Lisle Bell

+ Books p11 F 2 '41 320w

Christian Century 57:1586 D 18 '40 10w

"It is unfortunate that the accompanying action, involving the expeditions of the Pickett family, often fails to measure up to the possibilities of the theme and its unusual background. The characterization is blurred and the author's narrative technique leaves much to be desired. Nevertheless, the book affords numerous pleasurable glimpses of the Quaker way of life, and it is also worthy of note as a sidelight on the events in Kansas in the eighteen-fifties which formed a shadow of things to come." M. W. S.

+ — Christian Science Monitor p10 Ja 25 '41 500w

"Because it lacks some quality of robustness, because its characters never quite come to life, 'The Inner Voice' is merely a pretty good historical novel which misses real distinction. There is something indefinably pedestrian about it. It lacks richness and depth. Miss Putnam, however, has chosen good, fresh, interesting material, and she seems to have not only great feeling for her Quakers but a genuine understanding of them." E. H. Walton

+ — N Y Times p4 D 8 '40 650w

" 'The inner voice' is a good bit of popular fiction, which deals with history and acquaints readers with the workings of the Quaker mind, bringing a readier acceptance of certain scruples."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 19 '41 420w

PYLE, CLIFFORD. Leathercraft as a hobby; a manual of methods of working in leather. 116p il $1.75 Harper

675 Leather work 40-27454

"This book has been prepared for two uses. It may be used, first by the student in the classroom for reference. Second, it may be used for independent reference and guidance by workers and students who have a desire to do leather work at home and who want occasional information on matters regarding cutting, skiving, tooling, embossing, stamping, dyeing, lacing, braiding and weaving, and the care of real leather." (Pref) Index.

Booklist 36:361 My 15 '40

"The book will be especially helpful for club and camp work and valuable to all who guide therapeutical activities. Its many clear line drawings showing all manner of methods and procedure make directions very easily followed. There are also many photographic illustrations showing finished articles."

+ School Arts 40:3a N '40 130w

Wis Lib Bul 36:110 Je '40

PYNE, MABLE. The little history of the United States; il. by the author. [35p] maps $1.75 Houghton

973 U.S.—History—Juvenile literature
(W) 40-31783

History of the United States from 1492 to the present, told by means of short succinct paragraphs and tiny colored pictures and large maps. For six and seven year olds.

"Since this brightly colored book reached my desk . . . I have had reason to recommend it to several inquirers. One wanted a brief history of our country to give to a small English visitor 'for the duration.' It is ideal for that purpose. . . Another client wanted a book to stimulate, not an interest in American history, which this little boy had already, but the reading-speed of one who seemed likely to be a 'slow reader.' . . This book, I feel sure, will go far." M. L. Becker

+ Books p8 O 20 '40 280w

"A remarkable feat of selection and condensation. It is history without tears for children, to whom it will painlessly impart the beginnings of an historical background and a sense of sequence in the movement, events and inventions which have shaped this country."

+ Cath World 152:510 Ja '41 170w

"A unique and fascinating book for young Americans." F. B. Sloan

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 N 11 '40 190w

"Thoroughly entertaining as a picture book, The Little History of the United States is also full of useful knowledge for the inquiring child." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk M 16:435 N '40 110w

Reviewed by R. A. Hill
Library J 65:846 O 15 '40 30w

"The book has so many attractive qualities that it almost seems over critical to pick flaws. . . The reviewer thinks that a few more dates would not be discouraging to young readers; for example, the year when gold was discovered in California, the date of Abraham Lincoln's birth, and when the United States entered the World War. In spite of this criticism, the book is recommended. It will have an appeal to a wide range of readers." A. M. Wetherell

+ — Library J 65:927 N 1 '40 190w

Reviewed by Lena Barksdale
Nation 151:454 N 9 '40 10w

"Mabel Pyne's pictorial history of the United States is as crisp as the day's headlines and more easily assimilable. . . The bright marginal pictures are an integral part of the book.

As full of action as the funnies, but far more decorative, they supplement as well as illustrate and prove that history can be fun." E. L. B.

+ N Y Times p10 N 10 '40 240w

New Yorker 16:126 D 7 '40 60w

Springf'd Republican p7e D 1 '40 180w

Q

QUARLES, GILFORD GODFREY. Elementary photography. 350p il $3 McGraw

770 Photography (W) 40-8716

"Written primarily as a textbook by the assistant professor of physics at the University of Alabama. Discusses the historical background, lenses, cameras and accessories, films and their development, printing and the photography of colored and moving objects. Includes a bibliography and an appendix of formulas." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Booklist 36:396 Je 15 '40

N Y New Tech Bks 25:38 Jl '40

"This is the first book found by this reviewer to cover the subject of photography, simply, thoroughly, and practically, without becoming deeply involved, or without being merely a set of empirical rules." A. L. Johnsrud

+ R of Scientific Instruments 2:333 O '40 380w

QUEEN'S book of the Red cross; with a message from Her Majesty the queen, and contributions by fifty British authors and artists; in aid of the Lord Mayor of London's fund for the Red cross and the Order of St John of Jerusalem. 255p il $2 McKay [5s; de luxe ed 10s 6d Hodder]

820.8 English literature—Collections [40-5696]

Compilation of stories, plays, poems, drawings, and paintings, sponsored by Queen Elizabeth of England. The proceeds from the sale of the book go to the English Red cross.

+ Manchester Guardian p3 D 12 '39 180w

Reviewed by Raymond Mortimer

New Statesman & Nation 18:838 D 9 '39 110w

"It is inevitable that a book compiled for such a purpose as to bring in funds for the Red Cross in war-time should be full of the spirit of war in some form or another, but this book, sponsored by her Majesty the Queen, leaves on one side the horror and the tragedy and gives to its readers only that spirit of endurance, of comradeship, of combined effort and singleness of purpose that unites in one bond the people of good will and illumines for them all tragedy, all effort and all common sorrow."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p711 D 9 '39 750w

QUENNELL, PETER COURTNEY. Caroline of England; an Augustan portrait. 259p il $3.75 Viking [12s 6d Collins]

B or 92 Caroline, consort of George II, king of England (W) 40-27113

This biography of the wife of George II is not only a portrait of a remarkable woman but a portrait, as well, of eighteenth-century England and a gallery of eminent Hanoverians —Walpole, Hervey, Pope, Swift, Chesterfield, Lady Mary Wortley Montagu, and others. Index.

"Mr. Quennell has done his best, a very good best, with what he had—dull stupid characters stolidly pigging their way through dull stupid phases of a dull stupid social life. His work is excellent, dignified and faithful to fact, and therefore the reader will all the more regret that he did not choose a subject which could carry him rather than one which he has to carry."

+ — Atlantic Ap '40 80w

Booklist 36:237 F 15 '40

Bookmark p9 Mr '40

"Mr. Quennell achieves admirably his stated purpose, an 'Augustan portrait.' Caroline was emphatically the central feminine figure of that stately age, and one sees and hears her to the life. The extraordinary contrasts of the period, the formal elegance of the setting, the measured prose which matched it, the gutter enmities expressed in polished language and the irruptions of colloquial speech and ribald jokes, are skillfully indicated. . . This is a quietly brilliant book on a perennially interesting theme." Isabel Paterson

+ Books p1 Ja 14 '40 1400w

"The book at times seems not to focus on Caroline as it should. It is a stately procession of pictured persons who file past the Queen with (at times) hardly a look in her direction. Her relations with these people are neglected for gossip that frequently has little connection with her. . . Mr. Quennell does not tell the whole story, but he tells a very interesting one, full of astonishing variety. . . His book is seldom thorough, is at times not judicious, but it is never dull." George Sherburn

+ — Boston Transcript p2 Ja 27 '40 1150w

Cath World 151:505 Jl '40 650w

"Rarely does a biography proceed with such perfect ease, and the reader is kept perpetually entertained with a series of vivid pictures. Only when the display is over may the reader reflect that Caroline is hardly worth such splendour, despite her patronage of Walpole; no literary art can redeem her from being a heavy, humdrum German princess—nothing more. . . In Mr. Quennell's book everything is brilliant except the main figure." A. J. P. Taylor

+ — Manchester Guardian p3 D 5 '39 150w

"This book, subtitled An Augustan Portrait, may claim many of the merits of Augustan writing. It is neither straight history nor straight biography, but a mesh of both; and though it has rather more polish than weight, on its own terms it is a delightful job." Louis Kronenberger

+ Nation 150:370 Mr 16 '40 750w

Reviewed by Cuthbert Wright

New Repub 102:220 F 12 '40 950w

"It is long since I have read a new biography so good as Caroline of England. Mr. Quennell is entirely free from the fashionable faults. He does not lay on irony with a trowel, nor, mistaking vulgarity for liveliness, does he machine-gun us with epigrams. He is never flashy, and he is never dull. Thoughtfully designed and politely executed, this biography is a work of art which I would recommend not only to readers for their entertainment, but to writers for their imitation." Raymond Mortimer

+ New Statesman & Nation 18:715 N 18 '39 1250w

"The book is simple, thorough and graceful in style, lucid without trickery and fully informed without heaviness. It has the rare merit of visual immediacy. Not only are we told this and that about people. We have the impression that we are in their company. We get acquainted." P. W. Wilson

+ N Y Times p1 Ja 14 '40 1050w

"Mr. Quennell dishes up the eighteenth-century atmosphere with a sure hand."

+ New Yorker 15:64 Ja 13 '40 40w

"As in all eighteenth-century comedies the value of the book is not in its plot, but in the brilliant portraits of the characters: George I, George II, Frederick Prince of Wales, Walpole, Hervey, Pope, and Caroline herself, 'la grandissime comédienne' of all." J. R. Strayer

+ Sat R of Lit 21:7 Ja 27 '40 600w

Time 35:64 Ja 15 '40 700w

"Mr. Quennell has wisely not sought to scratch the earth for any few grains of 'new material,' but has relied on his own literary gifts to attract his readers and to set the Queen in a new light. He has succeeded extremely well. Mr. Quennell's style—at once amusing and mordant but never lapsing into mere denigration—is well fitted to his task. In the result the Queen is sympathetically and vividly drawn against a background in which the other personalities of the Early Hanoverian Court come amusingly and convincingly to life."

QUENNELL, P. C.—Continued

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p658 N 11 '39 1050w

Wis Lib Bul 36:48 Mr '40

Reviewed by W. P. Hall
Yale R n s 29:622 spring '40 1000w

QUENTIN, PATRICK, pseud. See Webb, R. W., and Wheeler, H. C.

QUIGG, JANE. Betsy goes a-visiting; il. by Decie Merwin. 111p $2 Oxford

40-5387

"This is another of those everyday stories about a little girl who visits her aunt and has a series of everyday adventures with the boys and girls in the neighborhood. They have a sport show, they sell pumpkins to buy a birthday present, they go skiing, and have a Christmas party." Library J

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Books p7 Mr 17 '40 200w

"The children are, to a degree, lifelike and the events are natural. But the story has no overtones, nothing to catch the imagination. The make-up of the book is attractive, with softly printed illustrations by Decie Merwin and with clear print and good paper. But it is recommended only where there is special need for realistic stories for younger girls." M. F. Potter

Library J 65:213 Mr 1 '40 110w

"This new author has written a pleasing little story, and she has described with sympathy and gentle humor a fine relationship between a child and an adult, but though she has evidently drawn her boys and girls from life, the characters in her book are never completely realized. Truthful and natural as far as they go, they are sketches rather than thoroughly convincing portraits. Miss Quigg, however, writes with a genuine interest in children and a charm that promise well for the future." A. T. Eaton

+ — N Y Times p10 Ap 7 '40 400w

New Yorker 16:96 My 18 '40 20w

QUILLER-COUCH, SIR ARTHUR THOMAS, ed. See Oxford book of English verse

QUINN, VERNON. Stories and legends of garden flowers; il. by Marie A. Lawson. 245p $2.50 Stokes

398.3 Flowers. Plant lore 39-25855

"Tulips, so closely associated with Holland, came originally from Persia, the first Dutch burgher who received a gift of bulbs taking them for onions. The dahlia, named for a Swedish botanist, was a native of Mexico, known to the Aztecs. Delphinium takes its name from the fancied resemblance of its blossom to a dolphin. These and other facts and fancies about our common garden flowers are set forth in this charming volume, for either adult or juvenile shelves." Wis Lib Bul

Booklist 36:209 F 1 '40

Wis Lib Bul 35:218 D '39

R

RADDIN, GEORGE GATES. An early New York library of fiction; with a checklist of the fiction in H. Caritat's circulating library, no. 1 City hotel, Broadway, New York, 1804. 113p $2.25 Wilson, H.W.

016.8 Fiction—Bibliography. Caritat's, H., circulating library, New York 40-7831

"'An Early Library of New York Fiction' is an examination of the fiction section of the circulating library maintained for some years after 1797 by Louis Alexis Hocquet de Caritat at 93 Pearl Street and later on the ground floor of the fashionable City Hotel on the west side of Broadway between Thames and Cedar Streets. In 1804 Caritat issued a catalogue of some 338 pages containing a broad selection of books in all classes to be had at his circulating library. From the list of reading matter thus made available to New Yorkers, Mr. Raddin has isolated and reprinted the section devoted to works of fiction." (Books) The book contains also a bibliographical note, and a checklist of fiction in H. Caritat's circulating library, 1804.

"A great deal of industry and bibliographical skill has gone into the identification of authorship and titles of uncertain meaning, and into the recording of information that may prove helpful in the identification of titles not yet located. . . The work gives student and collector fresh material in the form of 1,200 works of fiction in English and 250 in French, each category comprising works translated from the other and from various modern European literatures. Mr. Raddin's book, created from these elements, provides material for study and reflection of an interesting character." L. C. Wroth

+ Books p18 My 19 '40 340w

"Mr. Raddin has performed almost to perfection one of those small-scale specialized jobs which, in the no man's land between bibliography and book-trade history, await the patient enthusiasm of a student such as he." Michael Sadleir

+ The Library 21:101 Je '40 1300w

Reviewed by L. C. Warren
Library Q 10:450 Jl '40 260w

Reviewed by Philip Brooks
N Y Times p19 Ag 4 '40 1500w

RADICE, EDWARD ALBERT. Savings in Great Britain, 1922-1935; an analysis of the causes of variations in savings. (Oxford studies in economics) 146p $3.25 (8s 6d) Oxford

339.4 Saving and thrift. Great Britain—Economic conditions [40-5679]

"This book—the second to appear in the series of Oxford Studies in Economics—attempts to obtain some quantitative measurements of some of the causes of variations in British savings in the years 1922-1935 by a close combination of theoretical and statistical analysis. The effects of changes in business conditions, in the rate of interest, in the distribution of incomes, and in taxation are investigated." Times [London] Lit Sup

Reviewed by W. F. Stolper
Am Econ R 30:217 Mr '40 430w

Times [London] Lit Sup p543 S 16 '39 130w

RADIN, MAX. Law as logic and experience. 171p $2 Yale univ. press

340 Law 40-31704

"The latest series of Storrs lectures at Yale Law School. It deals with the interrelations of two aspects of law—its conceptual, logical and, one might almost say, mathematical side, and its realistic, flexible character which follows from the fact that the interests of human beings, with which it deals, can never be perfectly reduced to logical formulas. It is full of modern instances, but the 'wise saws' are replaced by wise interpretations of the nature of man and society." (Christian Century) Index.

"Weaving his way skillfully and brilliantly—yet sometimes a bit obscurely—back and forth between the poles of logic and experience, Max Radin, in this most recent addition to the Storrs lectures, explores the nature of law from a realistic point of view. His realism, unlike that of some, is broad enough to take account of the fact that the law cannot dispense with logic." J. R. Pennock

+ — Am Pol Sci R 34:1218 D '40 550w

Christian Century 57:1146 S 18 '40 60w

"Witty, urbane and scholarly lectures."

+ Commonweal 33:109 N 15 '40 50w

Reviewed by Edwin Garlan

J Philos 37:668 N 21 '40 360w

RADLEY, JACK AUGUSTUS. Starch and its derivatives. 346p il $6 Van Nostrand [22s Chapman]

664.2 Starch

"Of vital interest to the plant and animal physiologist and to the biochemist, starch has assumed a position of great importance also in applied chemistry and industry. To this latter domain this monograph properly belongs, and it is the latest of a series initiated by Dr. E. Howard Tripp with the intention of bringing together into one volume the mass of scattered literature, both old and new, which is of real value to the technologist in selected fields of chemical industry." (Nature) Chapter bibliographies. Indexes.

"Mr. Radley's chapters devoted to the scientific findings in starch chemistry deserve high rating. Perhaps he has given to some of the very early reports more space than even their historical value warrants, but on the whole he has exercised an intelligent selective faculty and has resisted the temptation to color his abstracts in accordance with his personal views. Unfortunately, in many instances he neglects to make clear the source of the starch under consideration by the quoted author. This, in view of the diverse characteristics of starches from different plants, is a serious defect. His bibliography is excellent and may well serve the scientist interested in starch chemistry as a primary tool." C. S. Miner

+ — Chem & Chem Eng N 18:1046 N 25 '40 340w

"The present volume will be welcomed by many readers. The subject of starch touches numerous and varied industries which are often exceedingly remote from one another; and the uses to which starch and its derivatives are put is some index of the very diversified character of the researches on this subject. The original literature is perhaps more voluminous than that of any other natural product. Those who have an interest in this field will therefore be grateful to the author for collecting into a single volume a body of knowledge on the manufacture and industrial applications of starch and the products derived from it."

+ Nature 146:823 D 28 '40 360w

RAFUSE, ROBERT WALLACE. The extradition of nationals. 163p pa $1.50 Univ. of Ill.

341.4 Extradition. Exterritorial crime 39-28782

"Over-emphasized nationalism, responsible in large measure for the more serious ills the world is heir to, numbers among its progeny the comparatively minor, but nonetheless perplexing, problem of extradition of nationals. The refusal of most nations to extradite their citizens charged with the commission of crime in a foreign jurisdiction is, as the author of this monograph frequently and emphatically points out, the cause of substantial injustice. Due to the omission of a clause to effectuate such extradition, the United States is forced to exclude its own citizens from the operation of extradition treaties. And since the principles of territorial jurisdiction preclude trials for crimes committed elsewhere, the borders of the United States afford the evildoers among its nationals a sanctuary that would evoke appreciation of the proverb, 'there is no place like home.' " Harvard Law R

"At most, this is only the sketch of a treatise upon the subject. The work would have been better balanced had it been confined to studies of the law and practice of the United States and Great Britain, which alone have been based upon adequate research." Lawrence Preuss

Am Pol Sci R 34:608 Je '40 370w

"The ramifications of the problem are completely presented by the author, and the inclusion of numerous illustrative cases makes for fascinating reading. Especially helpful is the exhaustive collection of citations to treaties."

+ Harvard Law R 53:1412 Je '40 190w

RAINE, WILLIAM MACLEOD. Guns of the frontier; the story of how law came to the West. 282p il $3 Houghton

917.8 Frontier and pioneer life—West. Outlaws (W) 40-8329

True stories of the bad men of the frontier towns of the western United States. "The author develops no hero-worship for killers such as Jesse James and Billy the Kid; he shows them as cold-blooded murderers." (Booklist) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 36:427 Jl 15 '40

"Mr. Raine has written so much about the West, both fact and fiction, that he sometimes must be afraid he is repeating himself. And yet after all his years of turning out sagas of cowboys and rustlers, sheriffs and desperadoes, he manages to remain fresh, and always to do a workmanlike job. His stuff may not be any great shakes as literature (with a big L), but it is uniformly competent and always honest. He really knows the old West and has spent the better part of a lifetime sopping up its lore and its history." Stanley Walker

+ Books p2 Jl 28 '40 600w

"Mr. Raine handles these matters with great fluency and ease. He did not get all his material out of the New York Public Library, though that respected institution has an excellent collection in the field of Western history. He has been a newspaper man in the West and knows men who remember the rough, tough days before the range was closed. . . He understands the background as well as the gunplay of the Great Plains country, pays tribute to the efforts of the pioneers to bring law to communities which had grown up outside the pale of organized justice, and doesn't make heroes out of bullies and murderers." R. L. Duffus

+ N Y Times p4 Jl 28 '40 1200w

Social Studies 31:336 N '40 10w

RAINE, WILLIAM MACLEOD. Riders of Buck river. 269p $2 Houghton

40-1856

Western story.

Booklist 36:239 F 15 '40

"Plenty of battles in a lawless region and no time for high jinks." Will Cuppy

Books p12 Ja 14 '40 100w

"According to his publishers, William MacLeod Raine is about to enter upon his seventieth year, and this is the twenty-eighth in their list of his published books. Yet he has never written better. Indeed, he has never shown greater skill in delineating character—in bringing alive a whole group of differentiated characters—or a more authentic grasp of the scene and the life of the Old West in the days when the big ranches began to break up and make room for the myriad of settlers, nesters and small cattlemen." G. W. Harris

RAINE, W. M.—Continued
+ N Y Times p20 Ja 28 '40 210w
Wis Lib Bul 36:69 Ap '40

RAINE, WILLIAM MACLEOD. Trail's end. 263p $2 Houghton [8s 3d Hodder]
(W) 40-12738

Western story.

Booklist 37:14 S '40
Reviewed by G. W. Harris
N Y Times p15 Ag 18 '40 200w
Times [London] Lit Sup p533 O 19 '40 60w

RAINIER, PETER W. My vanished Africa [Eng title: African hazard]. 307p maps $2.75 Yale univ. press [10s 6d Murray, J]

916 Africa—Description and travel. European war, 1914-1918—Africa (W) 40-27794

These reminiscences cover the author's first thirty years, ending in 1919. There are recollections of boyhood on his father's farm in Zululand, experiences in the Boer war, as a prospector and hunter, and as a soldier in the World war. Glossary. Index.

Booklist 37:153 D 15 '40
Reviewed by M. C. Hubbard
Books p6 O 13 '40 1450w

"Read this book and become petrified with horrors. Yet you will never want to lay it down, and will wish all these terrors upon anyone who interrupts your reading." M. V. Owens
+ Boston Transcript p2 S 28 '40 230w

"In spite of what the American reader must regard as an exotic setting, there is a certain naturalness about Ranier's life that is very appealing. . . Where he learned to write so well one cannot guess. The story marches straight along in just the style best suited to its substance."
+ Christian Century 57:1215 O 2 '40 340w

"Mr. Rainier writes excellently, in a natural businesslike way that suits well with his matter: his episodes flash by with the smooth rapidity of a film, and the pace never slackens for a moment. But I have never sat through so many tense situations on a single visit to the cinema." Eric Forbes-Boyd
Christian Science Monitor p11 Je 8 '40 460w

"Well written, easily read, and of unusual interest as it combines the life of a man with the growth and development of a country about which we know too little." J. A. Sohon
+ Library J 65:708 S 1 '40 120w
New Repub 103:458 S 30 '40 60w

"Lovers of the wilderness will find in 'My Vanished Africa' a story of compelling interest. Many of us will envy Peter Rainier his years in unspoiled Africa. No one who knows Africa can fail to appreciate his courage, his resourcefulness, his truthfulness, his modesty." M. L. J. Akeley
+ N Y Times p9 N 24 '40 950w
Times [London] Lit Sup p293 Je 15 '40 430w

"A clear, firsthand account of hazardous enterprise in which this sturdy restless pioneer engaged as he adventured far on unknown paths in his search for gold and diamonds, in his pursuit of big game and in the defense of his homeland. He was in the thick of stirring events which shaped the economic and political destiny of a new land; and he writes vividly and convincingly not only of his own experiences but of the part played by the great military leaders, both white and native, in the history of South Africa." M. L. J. Akeley
+ Yale R n s 30:388 winter '41 1400w

RAMSAY, JANET. Singing bird; il. by Ruth King. 267p $1.50 Nelson 39-33743

"Girls in the teens who read 'Stars Rising' last year remember it as the story of a girls' high school society in which diversity of talents among the girls gave a chance to start them on a number of interesting careers. . . Alice Enright, heroine of this second volume—complete in itself—is now taken under the protection of a famous Wagnerian soprano and given lessons first in the star's mountain camp and later in the city where Alice's aunt is a newspaper woman." Books

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Books p6 D 17 '39 270w
Wis Lib Bul 36:36 F '40

RAND, CLAYTON. Ink on my hands; pref. by William Allen White; il. by Sidney Engelberg. 348p $3 Carrick

B or 92 Journalists—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 40-33744

For twenty years the author has been editor-printer of the Neshoba County (Mississippi) Democrat. His book, partly autobiography, is largely an account of the growth and development of this corner of rural America during these years.

Booklist 37:174 Ja 1 '41

"The comparison between 'Ink on My Hands' and 'Country Editor' is inevitable. Mr. Hough's book has genuine literary quality; Mr. Rand's has little. His style is plain, pedestrian, serviceable. Like the country editorial page, he is at his best when dealing with facts; when he succumbs to the temptation to moralize he is likely to be banal. Mr. Hough is a more sensitive observer; his book should wear better. Mr. Rand's, none the less, is a valuable slice of Americana, and Mr. Rand is more typical of his craft. I suspect, though, that he has more guts than the average." Ted Olson
+ — Books p16 N 3 '40 800w

"A good story which reflects the turmoil of the 'twenties in a straightforward and humorous way."
+ Commonweal 33:212 D 13 '40 60w

"There is no way, of course, for the average reader to check the accuracy of Mr. Rand's story. Many others in Neshoba County may well have been responsible for the reforms for which Mr. Rand seems to claim the sole credit. The book itself shows signs of slap-dash writing; it cannot begin to compare, as a work of art, with Mr. Hough's story of the little weekly on Martha's Vineyard. Still, it is, as William Allen White says in a foreword, 'a rather exceptional document and a gorgeous one.' All who have ink on their hands and newspaper work in their dreams should find it an exciting story." Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
+ N Y Times p26 D 8 '40 800w

"Fortunately, Mr. Rand seems to have had a gift for friendship as well as fighting. Also, he has a gift for telling his own tale without seeming to blow—too loudly—his own horn. That gift is based, probably, in his sense of humor which enriches this book and is also the best editorial armor to wear in North and South, cross-roads and metropolis." J. D.
+ Sat R of Lit 23:20 N 2 '40 370w

"William Allen White, in a foreword, commends the book 'to the student of American social, economic and political life.' It does, indeed, deliver a story of interest to students of these matters, but it invites a reading also for the inspiration, excitement and amusement made available to any reader."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 26 '41 1000w

RAND, WINIFRED; SWEENY, MARY E., and VINCENT, ELIZABETH LEONA. Growth and development of the young child. 3d ed rev 462p il $2.75 Saunders

136.71 Child study. Growth. Children—Care and hygiene 40-11897

"A textbook for teacher training classes, prepared at the Merrill-Palmer school. It embodies the results of research in biological development, and presents also the philosophy and practical aspects of family life, with study questions and reading references. In this edition references and material have been brought up to date, and greater emphasis has been put on family life." (Booklist) For first edition see Book Review Digest, 1931. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 37:73 O 15 '40
J Home Econ 32:476 S '40 120w

RANDALL, JEAN. Just like a girl. 248p $2 Macrae Smith co.

40-32091

Romance of a budding novelist and a radio pianist, who lived in neighboring California houses, and, at first, got on each other's nerves. An accident to the pianist's hand aided in bringing them together.

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Books p23 O 6 '40 120w

"A lighter and more inconsequential romance could hardly be imagined." Charlotte Dean
— N Y Times p26 O 6 '40 150w

RANDOLPH, MARION, pseud. See Rodell, M.

RANDOLPH, SARAH NICHOLAS. Domestic life of Thomas Jefferson; compiled from family letters and reminiscences by his great-granddaughter. 3d ed 383p il $3 Univ. press, University rd, Cambridge, Mass.

B or 92 Jefferson, Thomas 39-21129

"An intimate picture of Jefferson's family life, written by a descendant and including many of Jefferson's letters. The first editions were published in 1871 and 1872; the book now has in an appendix the history of the restoration of Monticello, genealogies, and new illustrations." Booklist

"In the whole gallery of familiar portraits there are few more delightful and none more human. This is no Jefferson of the Declaration of Independence, but the Jefferson of enveloping affections and infinite zest; learner, teacher, scholar; adorer of wife, children, grandchildren and home; friend of the human race, wise, kind, and good."
+ Atlantic Je '40 140w
Booklist 36:367 My 15 '40

Reviewed by E. L. Tinker
N Y Times p20 Ag 11 '40 750w

RANDOLPH, VANCE, ed. An Ozark anthology. 374p $2.50 Caxton printers

40-11361

A collection of short stories and articles dealing with the people—the "hillbillies"—who live in the almost inaccessible regions of the Ozark mountains. Contents: Honey boy, by George Milburn; Paid in full, by R. W. Lane; America's yesterday, by T. H. Benton; Drum her out! by Thames Williamson; The hired man, by Rose O'Neill; Yes, I'm a hillbilly, by Nancy Clemens; The mob, by E. N. Blair; An Ozark fantasia, by C. J. Finger; Retreat to the land, by C. M. Simon; Words beside the farr, by R. L. Morris; The mountaineer, by Wayman Hogue; Drought, by Eleanor Risley; Bank robbers eat ham, by William Cunningham; Perry, by C. M. Wilson; The witch doctor of Rosy Ridge, by MacKinlay Kantor.

"One of the best 'local' books I have seen in a long while."
+ Books p18 My 26 '40 650w

"The book, as a whole, is a little overstuffed with the usual feuds and moonshine and conflicting imitations of the American-Elizabethan speech of the Ozarks, but it contains much also about the real life of those hills today, the retreat of last-ditch pioneer individualism before the mounting waters of the depression, crop restriction, crop failure and Rooseveltian relief." E. B.
+ — Canadian Forum 20:157 Ag '40 260w
New Repub 102:801 Je 10 '40 60w

"Every page of his book is crammed with human interest and veracity of observation and it is one of the best of the regional anthologies." E. L. Tinker
+ N Y Times p39 N 10 '40 140w

Reviewed by C. B. Davis
Sat R of Lit 22:15 Je 22 '40 450w

RANSOME, ARTHUR. Secret water [il. by the author]. 363p maps $2 Macmillan [7s 6d Cape, J]

40-7529

A new adventure of the Swallows and the Amazons. This time they are "marooned" on a group of islands which they proceed to map and explore with the assistance of some other young people who also have a taste for sailing.

Booklist 36:370 My 15 '40

"Arthur Ransome shares with E. Nesbit the honors of popularity with English children. His following here, though smaller, takes the same intense interest. He is one of the very few who can keep on almost indefinitely with the same characters and never write a sequel. Each book takes a fresh start each time—carrying a certain impetus, of course, from so many strong runs before." M. L. Becker
+ Books p8 Ap 28 '40 550w

"The arrangement of the camp and the planning of meals—which Mr. Ransome gives in such fascinating detail—will enthrall young and old. A fresh wind of fun blows through the whole book." M. E. Prim
+ Boston Transcript p2 My 4 '40 280w
Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Jl '40

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk M 16:168 My '40 70w

"As enjoyable as the other tales about these lively and imaginative English children, the book will be welcomed by boys and girls of ten to twelve." Jean Stewart
+ Library J 65:456 My 15 '40 120w

Reviewed by R. A. Hill
Library J 65:852 O 15 '40 30w

"There has been no better approach than [Mr Ransome's] to the art of make-believe as the young practise it since Bevis explored the Nile in the ship he made from a packing case in Richard Jefferies' classic." A. S. W.
+ Manchester Guardian sup xvi D 1 '39 240w

Reviewed by Anthony West
New Statesman & Nation 18:840 D 9 '39 80w

"The great charm of Arthur Ransome's books for children is that he never writes with an eye on the audience. His stories of boys and girls are told with the lack of self-consciousness and the integrity which are found in the undertakings and imaginative make-believe of natural, unspoiled children. . . Boys and girls from 9 to 13 can have no better company than the young people of Mr. Ransome's books." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p10 My 5 '40 450w
New Yorker 16:98 My 18 '40 30w

Reviewed by Amabel Williams-Ellis
Spec 163:840 D 8 '39 60w
Springf'd Republican p7e D 22 '40 140w

"The child who longs to be an explorer and hasn't the luck of the Walkers will happily lose himself in this book and learn a lot of sense from it. Envy may set in later, when the last thrill has been tasted, but entertainment will prevail and a beautiful peace where this book is found."

RANSOME, ARTHUR—Continued

+ Times [London] Lit Sup sup ii D 16 '39 300w

RAPPARD, WILLIAM EMMANUEL. The quest for peace since the World war. 516p $4 Harvard univ. press

172.4 Peace. World politics 40-8759

"Dr. Rappard, Director of the Graduate Institute of International Studies at Geneva, an outstanding member of the League of Nations Mandates Commission [was] for many years a Swiss delegate to League Assemblies. Today's book contains the latest of the lectures he has delivered at Harvard. . . For the scholar Dr. Rappard provides three big chapters, tracing through the past twenty years the history of three major ideas on which the League stood. . . For the general reader as well as the scholar Dr. Rappard has three other chapters. Two tell of the quest for peace during the last World War and at the Peace Conference. The final one sums up the book and glances at the future." Sat R of Lit

Reviewed by C. A. Berdahl
Am Pol Sci R 34:804 Ag '40 900w

Atlantic Ag '40 160w

Booklist 36:406 Jl 1 '40

Bookmark p17 N '40

"This is a substantial and scholarly work; by wise selection of certain incidents the author strikes a fair balance between being too lengthy and being too sketchy. A careful index makes it easy to return to particular points, and altogether it is a very good piece of work." G. M. A. Grube

+ Canadian Forum 20:152 Ag '40 490w

Foreign Affairs 19:251 O '40 50w

"This book is the work of a scholar and will be indispensable to the scholar who looks for a documented discussion of the last twenty years; the general reader will probably content himself with reading the last thirty pages of the volume—but these he should read." Hans Kohn

+ Nation 150:758 Je 22 '40 310w

Reviewed by F. L. Schuman
New Repub 102:861 Je 24 '40 550w

Reviewed by H. D. Reid
Pol Sci Q 55:470 S '40 850w

Reviewed by C. K. Streit
+ Sat R of Lit 22:6 My 25 '40 750w

Social Studies 31:288 O '40 10w

Springf'd Republican p10 O 16 '40 500w

"Scholarly but very readable book. . . Professor Rappard writes in a cautious and careful way, guided by strictest objectivity. More important is the fact that his important analysis ends in the convincing proof that at the root of our troubles were the two false concepts of neutrality and isolation, which brought upon many peoples the predicament of war and the loss of liberty." Hans Kohn

+ — Survey G 30:42 Ja '41 140w

Times [London] Lit Sup p432 S 7 '40 1150w

Wis Lib Bul 36:134 O '40

Reviewed by F. L. Schuman
Yale Law J 50:183 N '40 430w

RASMUSSEN, CARRIE. Choral speaking for speech improvement (elementary school). 93p $1 Expression co.

808.5 Choral speaking. Speech. Children's poetry 39-14832

"A small book on choral speaking. . . It stresses choral speaking as a means of speech improvement and provides a selection of suitable poems. As Miss Rasmussen says, 'Here is a book for teachers who want to improve the speech of their children, encourage a love of poetry, and have fun doing it.'" Wis Lib Bul

Booklist 36:261 Mr 1 '40

Wis Lib Bul 35:142 Jl '39

RATCLIFF, RICHARD UPDEGRAFF. The problem of retail site selection. (School of business administration. Bur. of business research. Business studies) 93p pa $1 Univ. of Mich.

658.87 Retail trade 39-28376

"The author has gathered an interesting body of statistical data to demonstrate that the internal organization of the central shopping district is expressed in an orderly pattern of land use which is determined by basic economic processes. . . After describing the nature of the structure of the central business district, which is admittedly imperfect as a result of real-estate speculation, long-term leases, errors in site selection, and ceaseless technological, economic, and social changes, an attempt is made to describe the buying habits of consumers that account for the emergence of the existing pattern." Am J Soc

Reviewed by R. H. Danhof
Am J Soc 45:818 Mr '40 240w

Reviewed by S. F. Teele
Harvard Business R 18:130 autumn '39 250w

RATH, MRS VIRGINIA. Death of a lucky lady. 292p $2 Doubleday

40-30406

Detective story.

"Miss Rath tells you plenty about the descendants of Nora's great-grandfather Gordon, mixes suspicion expertly and delivers an answer sure to please her fans." Will Cuppy

+ Books p15 S 15 '40 150w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin
Boston Transcript p2 S 21 '40 50w

"The story is original and its interest is well sustained. And if its author overburdens it a bit with details of family record, she balances that by the skill with which she draws her characters and her clever insertion of puzzling minutiae." Kay Irvin

+ N Y Times p21 S 8 '40 170w

Sat R of Lit 22:18 S 21 '40 40w

Springf'd Republican p7e N 17 '40 180w

RAUSCHNING, HERMANN. The voice of destruction [Eng title: Hitler speaks]. 295p $2.75 Putnam [10s 6d Butterworth, T]

943.085 Hitler, Adolf. Germany—Nazi movement (W) 40-27114

"Dr. Rauschning's second book is a report, most of it in quotation marks, of his confidential talks with Hitler in 1932, 1933 and 1934, when democratic Europe still had no conception of what was in store. He used to see Hitler frequently, sometimes alone, sometimes with men like Goebbels, Hess and Walter Darré, from whom Hitler seems to have taken some of his ideas of 'blood and race.' Dr. Rauschning explains that he jotted down a record of these conversations when he was still 'under the immediate influence' of what he had heard. There is, of course, no way of checking the literal accuracy of every word attributed to Hitler; but Rauschning is more than a mere sensationalist, and the story he tells is so terrible that it cannot be ignored." N Y Times

"This book will be welcomed with rousing cheers by all who loathe Hitler for all he stands for and for all he has done, and will bring over to this 'unneutral' camp many who are still on the fence. . . The work is most heartily recommended as a kind of reading with which your local library's murder stories can offer no competition." J. S. Roucek

Ann Am Acad 209:207 My '40 500w

Booklist 36:236 F 15 '40

Bookmark p8 N '40

"This book is much easier to read than 'The Revolution of Nihilism.' As part of the background for any American aware of what is happening in Poland and may happen tomorrow in other parts of Europe, it is required reading. The amorality, the cruelty and the perverse lust for power alleged here are likely to be proved by the history of Europe in the next few years. At the same time, one can enter two reservations. Adolf Hitler, on the record of what he has done, must be a far more able madman than his former disciple now admits. And Fascism, for all its lack of doctrine, must have more rational directives and some more gripping hold on mass emotions than Dr. Rauschning has discovered." Joseph Barnes

+ — Books p3 F 18 '40 1100w

Reviewed by R. H. Phelps

Boston Transcript p11 F 16 '40 600w

Reviewed by John Anderson

Canadian Forum 20:59 My '40 380w

Cath World 151:120 Ap '40 400w

Christian Science Monitor p18 F 28 '40 460w

Reviewed by G. N. Shuster

Commonweal 31:436 Mr 8 '40 440w

Foreign Affairs 18:755 Jl '40 20w

"Those who have seen Hitler in action—on the platform!—will find this second book of Former Hitler Confidant Dr. Rauschning (onetime President of the Danzig Senate) a chilling experience, reminding them of actual contact with the abnormal. To those millions of distant others who only read, this book is more of a 'must' than anything written about Hitler to date." B. E. Nelson

+ Forum 103:203 Ap '40 370w

"The Voice of Destruction is more dramatic than Revolution of Nihilism. Intense, terrible, but without apparent exaggeration, provides a more intimate, personal picture than can be gotten from Hitler's public utterances, from Mein Kampf, or from the author's previous book. It gives a convincing, devastating, impression of Der Fuehrer and his movement." J. S. Cleavinger

+ Library J 65:117 F 1 '40 180w

"The real value of 'The Voice of Destruction' lies in the fact that its author is able to confirm as an insider, by means of a hundred characteristic and convincing details, what could be deduced before only from circumstantial evidence. And the report has another and very fascinating virtue: it gives the most vivid and most comprehensive character sketch yet drawn of Hitler." Franz Hoellering

+ Nation 150:313 Mr 2 '40 800w

"It is in the very nature of this sort of confession, that there can be no canons of historical evidence to apply, since the other witnesses are unavailable. The time may come soon when other books of the same sort can be used to check on this one. Meanwhile a reviewer can only express his opinion as a hunch: and my hunch is that the talks are substantially, if not in every detail, authentic. Reservations must be made of course for the lapse of time, for wisdom after the event, for Rauschning's own bias. But even after all that has been considered, the metal of Hitler's conversation rings true enough." Max Lerner

New Repub 102:350 Mr 11 '40 1550w

Reviewed by Richard Crossman

New Statesman & Nation 18:897 D 16 '39 1450w

" 'The Voice of Destruction' remains a terrible warning. Hitler and his movement, says Dr. Rauschning, are 'the apocalyptic riders of world annihilation.' After reading his book no one can fail to agree with him." Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.

+ N Y Times p4 F 18 '40 1200w

"How much of these conversations should be believed I cannot say. You begin them with skepticism, but it is hard to preserve a detached attitude, for whether the Hitler revealed in Rauschning's book is the true Hitler or not, he is certainly a demonic character, with a power to mesmerize as well as to repel." Clifton Fadiman

New Yorker 16:80 F 17 '40 380w

Reviewed by Toni Stolper

Sat R of Lit 21:5 F 17 '40 1350w

"There seems no reason to doubt its substantial accuracy." R. C. K. Ensor

+ Spec 163:870 D 15 '39 550w

Reviewed by Hans Kohn

Survey G 29:306 My '40 150w

Time 35:90 F 26 '40 160w

"No one who has read this book can dismiss Hitler as a madman and eccentric; he is a symbol of evil things. As a critic of democracy he has his points; as an example of what willpower and conviction can do he is a warning to his enemies. By showing the man dealing day by day with problems and people Herr Rauschning has performed a great service to Europe and written a most enthralling book."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p726 D 16 '39 1150w

Reviewed by Hajo Holborn

Yale R n s 29:637 spring '40 900w

RAUSHENBUSH, HILMAR STEPHEN. The march of fascism. 355p $3 Yale univ. press [17s 6d Oxford]

335.6 Fascism. Europe—Politics. U.S.—Politics and government (W) 39-27822

For descriptive note see Annual for 1939.

"Mr. Raushenbush's thoughtful book deserves many readers. The details of his story are by now fairly well known, but they are decidedly worth telling again, and telling in the whole." C. T. Schmidt

+ Am Econ R 30:145 Mr '40 220w

"This is one of the best-balanced statements of our present knowledge of fascism. No ironclad monistic interpretation is attempted, but an urbane realism marshals the multiplicity of motives and interests into a manageable historical pattern." W. H. Kraus

+ Am J Soc 46:109 Jl '40 230w

Reviewed by J. H. Hallowell

Am Pol Sci R 34:362 Ap '40 750w

Reviewed by J. L. Glanville

Ann Am Acad 208:196 Mr '40 460w

Bookmark p4 Mr '40

Reviewed by Arthur Feiler

Survey G 29:409 Jl '40 420w

Times [London] Lit Sup p54 F 3 '40 650w

RAUTENSTRAUCH, WALTER. Industrial surveys and reports. 189p $2.50 Wiley [15s Chapman]

620.09 Industrial surveys 40-27178

"This textbook outlines some of the problems engineers encounter in investigating and reporting on the operations of industries. The subject matter was evolved from the author's experience in investigating business units, and in the operation of manufacturing companies. The method of instruction found most effective is to bring the student in contact with actual situations and persons in business and have him report on the results of those experiences. Accordingly, a number of problems requiring field investigations are given from which selections may be made. In Appendix A is found a report embodying the results of investigating a particular company, which is typical of the kinds of reports made to assist investment bankers to arrive at a judgment on underwriting the securities of a company. The text is built around the problems arising in preparing the material for such a report." (Pref) Index.

Booklist 36:260 Mr 1 '40

RAUTENSTRAUCH, WALTER—Continued

"Dr. Rautenstrauch gives us an excellent opening chapter on the general principles of report writing. . . For the rest, the title of the book is misleading. The application of these principles is limited to investigations in financial matters and does not include the wider field which the term 'Industrial Survey' would naturally suggest to those familiar with the reports of such surveys prepared by various universities, for example, in recent years at the request of the Board of Trade or the like." R. Brightman

— + Nature 146:419 S 28 '40 100w

RAVEN, CHARLES EARLE. The Gospel and the church; a study of distortion and its remedy. 256p $3.50 Scribner [8s 6d Hodder]

270 Church history. Theology

"The question [Canon Raven] sets is whether the Christian religion can once again become a religion of love and joy and peace, which will be recognized, from the life and teaching of its exponents, for what it was intended to be; or whether it will continue to be displayed, to a world redeemable, and in desperate need of redemption, as a religion of mere escape; whether the theology of crisis . . . is to engulf us in 'a wave of reactionary obscurantist theology,' which sets 'a godless and irredeemable State over against a pietistic and otherworldly Church'; whether Nature and grace, joined together by God, are to be put asunder by man. . . Canon Raven's remedy for the malaise of the Churches is that they should turn their backs on 'the developments, accretions, and distortions' which have marred their preaching of the original kerygma, by retrieving the values given by the Founder and early apostles of Christianity to nature and history." (Times [London] Lit Sup) Index.

Reviewed by W. A. Marzolf

Boston Transcript p9 My 18 '40 340w

"Canon Raven's latest is a thoroughly admirable book. It is a pointed and provoking 'tract for the times'; but it is far more. It has what one has often recently missed in such analyses, a perspective at once scholarly, comprehensive and contemporary. . . This reviewer has the impression of greater clarity in the historical treatment than in that accorded to present problems. One further wonders how successfully the author has escaped certain liberal presuppositions in his appeal to 'original' Christianity. Nor does one become completely convinced that the main stream of British Christianity has been more successful than Continental Calvinism and Lutheranism in remaining true to it." Roger Hazelton

+ — Christian Century 57:576 My 1 '40 600w

"This is a timely and valuable book. . . Indeed, through seven of its eight chapters, the present reviewer found this book completely satisfying. It is the last chapter only that seems not yet complete. 'The Church and the Community'—that is the title of it: And Canon Raven shows how the church is not the redeeming integration for the community which it ought to be; but 'the remedy' which is suggested by the sub-title of the whole book is not convincingly apparent." W. R. Bowie

+ — Churchman 154:19 Ag '40 700w

"This volume is well written and well documented. Canon Raven has spent sufficient time with the several phases of Christian history to deserve a hearing. Furthermore, his insistence upon the fact that Christian theologians have tended to depreciate nature and history is relevant and important." W. H. Bernhardt

+ J Religion 21:82 Ja '41 1000w

"The book can be recommended because it contains so much with which all reasonable Christians can agree." M. Davidson

+ Nature 145:329 Mr 2 '40 850w

"This book is a brilliant example of the literature of theological controversy. As an exposition of Dr. Raven's point of view, it could hardly be more effective. As an account of the falling-away, as he sees it, of Christian thinking and Christian institutionalism from the norms to be found in the teaching of Christ, and in the religious experience of the New Testament, it is no less trenchant in comment, and more deeply religious in feeling, than Harnack's History of Dogma. . . Dr. Raven is the most individualistic of living English theologians. That is not, in my opinion, always an asset. But it gives to his writings a first-hand character which even the most unfriendly critic would be bound to recognise and respect. And if he has the defects of his qualities, those qualities, at some points, touch greatness." J. K. Mozley

+ Spec 163:906 D 22 '39 850w

"It can hardly be said that the author's answer is much more complete than those of previous critics; and his desire to establish differences is apt to produce statements that cannot be accepted without some qualification."

Times [London] Lit Sup p696 D 2 '39 800w

RAWDON-SMITH, ALEXANDER FRANCIS. Theories of sensation. 138p il $2.75 Macmillan [10s 6d Cambridge]

152 Senses and sensation. Sight. Hearing [39-24425]

"This book does not discuss theories of sensation. . . Actually the author assumes two principal objectives: (1) to describe briefly how he thinks the eyes and ears work; and (2) to tell why he holds these views in preference to others. . . The text is divided into two general sections: Vision and Audition. Each section considers histological, physiological, and psychological data. The histological facts (the eye and the ear) are sketchy and elementary. The physiological facts (of the eye, the ear, and their associated nerve trunks) are selected but representative. The psychological facts, except for visual acuity, are those usually encountered in the psychophysical studies of sensory quality and intensity." Am J Psychol

Reviewed by A. H. Holway

+ — Am J Psychol 53:152 Ja '40 1200w

"The book is an extremely successful attempt at epitomizing the very varied theories of vision and hearing, and for that reason alone should be read by all who are interested in the mechanisms of sight and sound." H. Hartridge

+ Nature 144:94 Jl 15 '39 400w

RAWLINGS, MRS MARJORIE (KINNAN). When the whippoorwill—. 275p $2.50 Scribner (W) 40-27409

Collection of stories and a novelette featuring the Florida Crackers, by the author of The Yearling (Book Review Digest, 1938).

"The tales are not all of equal excellence, and one might wonder why religion, one of the Crackers' few emotional stimulants, never appears in them. But finicking criticism of Mrs. Rawlings is no game to play. She is one of the two or three sui generis storytellers we have, and we'd better thank God for her."

+ Atlantic Je '40 230w

Booklist 36:346 My 1 '40

Bookmark 2:14 Ja '41

"All of these are tales that would have warmed the heart of Mark Twain, for they are peculiarly his type of story. And Mrs. Rawlings tells them with a gravity that never hints at their hilarity. She is completely attuned to the speech, the philosophy and the zest for life of her characters and transfers her kinship to the printed page." Rose Feld

+ Books p4 Ap 28 '40 800w

Reviewed by Lewis Gannett

Boston Transcript p11 My 2 '40 1550w

"For lovers of 'The Yearling' Mrs. Rawlings' new book of shorter pieces will come like a string of lovely months. We are one of those who once thought that a Florida Cracker was the last person on earth about whom we cared to read. That Marjorie Rawlings can make these poverty-stricken, inarticulate, earthy folk as interesting as members of the Sorbonne is thanks to her superb art. Her language is perfectly beautiful; her understanding is rich; and her inspiration is virile. As a regional writer, she may lack Ellen Glasgow's profundity. Yet she is as lively and as funny as Erskine Caldwell, without getting as nasty; and she catches the Southern vernacular with Faulkner's fidelity, while her in-between passages make a lot more sense than his." Olga Owen

+ Boston Transcript p1 My 4 '40 900w

"The individuals around whom the stories are built are as distinctive as their background. Courage, simplicity, innate soundness of character, a robust, earthy humor, love of the soil combine to make them excellent subjects upon which a narrator may try his skill." M. W. S.

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Je 1 '40 480w

"The salty humor and wit of plump Quincey Dover who tells in Cracker dialect most of the stories in the first part of the book, are gems of American small-town tales. Other stories are often tragic and intense, but pervading them all, is the author's love for her adopted countryside. Some of the descriptive passages are truly beautiful, although occasionally sentimentality will creep in. Will be popular." E. H. Crowell

+ Library J 65:257 Mr 15 '40 120w

Reviewed by Wilfrid Gibson
Manchester Guardian p6 S 27 '40 80w

"While Mrs. Rawlings's skill as a story-teller needs no recommendation to a public that has already reveled in 'The Yearling,' I should like to pay tribute, in passing, to her adroitness in capturing dialectal speech, a tricky art in which I know no writer who surpasses her. This dexterity, along with her sincere admiration and fellow-feeling for her neighbors, makes 'When the Whippoorwill—' a distinguished collection, with each story a gem." L. B. Salomon

+ Nation 150:715 Je 8 '40 250w

"Taking one with another, this collection places Marjorie Rawlings among the first ten American story writers today." Otis Ferguson

+ New Repub 102:679 My 20 '40 400w

Reviewed by Brian Howard
New Statesman & Nation 20:339 O 5 '40 280w

"Naturally, not everything in this volume is minted gold. I was not particularly impressed by either 'The Enemy' or 'A Plumb Clare Conscience,' and even 'The Pardon,' though unquestionably effective, struck me as a little obvious, a little theatrical. On the whole, however, 'When the Whippoorwill' is so far above the average of the usual casual collection of stories that Mrs. Rawlings has reason to be proud. With complete mastery of the vernacular, with an appreciation of their qualities which is at once tender and amused, she has presented a robust, self-respecting people as it seems they must really be." E. H. Walton

+ N Y Times p6 Ap 28 '40 950w

"Mrs. Rawlings' letter-perfect knowledge of the life of non-Palm Beach Florida does not get in the way of the quick life of her tales. Swamp, river, scrub country; hurricane, drought, heat-wave; flora and fauna—all come through clearly, almost tangibly, but are not intruded. The travelogue note is never sounded. Nor is Mrs. Rawlings' use of dialect ever anything but functional, except when occasionally one feels she is too aware of its poetic effectiveness." Clifton Fadiman

+ New Yorker 16:89 My 4 '40 470w

Reviewed by Jonathan Daniels
Sat R of Lit 22:6 Je 8 '40 290w

Reviewed by J. A. Smith
Spec 165:372 O 11 '40 140w

" 'When the Whippoorwill' is a delight to anyone who likes beauty of writing, has a sense of humor, and feels a real sympathy with the Southern crackers. Mrs Rawlings knows her Florida hammock country thoroughly and lovingly and she inspires a tenderness for those people. These earlier stories may not show quite so much understanding of those people as 'The Yearling,' but they are fine reading." M. D.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e My 5 '40 480w

Time 35:100 My 13 '40 490w

Times [London] Lit Sup p509 O 5 '40 400w

Wis Lib Bul 36:127 Jl '40

Reviewed by Robert Littell
Yale R n s 29:viii summer '40 450w

RAWSON, CLAYTON. The headless lady. 293p $2 Putnam

(W) 40-32092

Detective story.

"Mr. Rawson himself figures in a creepy frontispiece photograph of the title act and he provides numerous footnotes on circus jargon and history, also a diagram showing all you need to know. Amazing!" Will Cuppy

+ Books p16 S 8 '40 150w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin
Boston Transcript p2 S 21 '40 50w

"As long as Clayton Rawson keeps close to the big top 'The Headless Lady' is an interesting, amusing and original tale. . . [Then] the author switches his whole story off the track in the middle of the book, plunges into underworld complexities that have nothing to do with the circus and bogs his readers in disappointment. Too bad!" Isaac Anderson

+ — N Y Times p29 N 17 '40 140w

"Swell reading for exciting situations, uncanny bits of prestidigitation, a hair-raising and hilarious jail-break, and vivid circus lingo. First rate."

+ Sat R of Lit 22:18 S 14 '40 50w

Time 36:88 O 7 '40 40w

RAYMOND, MRS DORA (NEILL). Captain Lee Hall of Texas; with il. by Louis Lundean and Frederic Remington. 350p map $2.75 Univ. of Okla. press

B or 92 Hall, Lee. Texas rangers. Frontier and pioneer life—Texas 40-32287

Born in North Carolina before the Civil war Lee Hall left his native state soon after the close of the war and went West, to Oklahoma and later to Texas. In Texas he joined the forces of those attempting to preserve law and order and earned a colorful reputation as Texas Ranger, Indian agent and soldier. This full-length sympathetic biography comes from the pen of a fellow Texan who has hitherto, however, devoted her time to more literary subjects, Milton and Byron. Index.

"Mrs. Raymond has trained her fine scholarship on the dashing captain, and it is a memorable feat. It is unfortunate that it is, in spots, somewhat pedagogical, ornate and sentimental. But the captain, even in his lifetime, was always driving word-painters into a frenzy of beautiful prose." Stanley Walker

+ — Books p21 O 13 '40 500w

"This is a fine, rousing story which is told by the head of the Department of History and Government in Sweet Briar College. If [Mrs] Raymond is inclined to be a bit sentimental over her hero's love-story, for instance, she can be easily forgiven, for the comprehensiveness of her first-hand research and the vivid picture of the ranger and his background."

+ N Y Times p12 D 15 '40 440w

"As an adventure story this is a remarkably full and interesting book, replete with Lee Hall's battles against outlaws, ruffians, hostile savages, greasers,, and murdering feudists. But it is something better than an adventure story; it is a well-rounded character study of one of the most impressive figures the Texas border ever produced, wrought with subtlety and skill." Allan Nevins

+ Sat R of Lit 23:18 N 16 '40 850w

RAYMOND, MARGARET THOMSEN. Aprilly weather. 289p $2 Dodd 40-31119

A high school story in which Sharon Cole is the chief character. It traces the life in a modern high school near Philadelphia thru the medium of Sharon's experiences.

"A high-school junior novel is the hardest of stories to write unless taken from the author's personal experience. In that case it turns the clock back a generation and is but a period piece to students of today." M. L. Becker
+ Books p22 N 10 '40 280w

"This is a high school story without the sugar coating given to most school stories, and without the miraculous twist that turns all unhappiness into joy. . . This book shows, as do her other works, that Miss Raymond knows youth and has an insight into its problems. Older girls will enjoy it. Ages fourteen and up." D. L. Wood
+ Library J 65:881 O 15 '40 150w

"Sharon comes out all right. She is real flesh and blood, and her adolescent problems are typical. Here is a book that offers extraordinary understanding of these problems. Among girls in junior and senior high school it will be popular, and besides that may be highly profitable reading." I. S.
+ N Y Times p32 N 10 '40 240w

Reviewed by Gladys Graham
Sat R of Lit 23:25 N 16 '40 30w

READ, OPIE PERCIVAL. Mark Twain and I. 75p il $1 Reilly & Lee
817 Clemens, Samuel Langhorne (Mark Twain, pseud) 40-8860

As a young newspaper man and Chautauqua lecturer, Opie Read often came in contact with Mark Twain. When he died last year at the age of 87, Mr Read's sons collected and published these anecdotes and sketches of their father's, all of which concern Mark Twain.

"These sketches if not biographically important, are amusing and humanly interesting nevertheless."
+ N Y Times p28 Ap 7 '40 600w
Wis Lib Bul 36:98 My '40

READER'S DIGEST (periodical). Reader; selected by Theodore Roosevelt and the staff of the Reader's digest. 495p $3 Doubleday 810.8 American literature—Collections
40-33248

Collection of articles selected from the Reader's Digest, representing some of the best articles from its eighteen years' service of condensing books and articles of contemporaneous interest.

Booklist 37:150 D 15 '40
Books p43 D 1 '40 140w

Reviewed by Dorothy Hillyer
Boston Transcript p1 Ja 18 '41 360w

"The perfect bedside guest room or sick room book, it makes one realize again what a service The Digest performs for us busy mortals."
+ Current Hist & Forum 52:4 N 26 '40 140w

Reviewed by E. L. Tinker
N Y Times p24 N 24 '40 200w

READING, GERALD RUFUS ISAACS, 2d marquis of. Rufus Isaacs, first marquess of Reading, by his son. v1 324p il $3.75 Putnam
B or 92 Reading, Rufus Daniel Isaacs, 1st marquis of (40-34220)

Biography of the Marquess of Reading, who began life as the son of a London Jewish fruit merchant, and became Lord chief justice of England, ambassador to Washington, viceroy of India, and Secretary of state for foreign affairs. The present volume takes him from birth to the beginning of the first World war. A second volume is to follow.

"A record of a remarkable man who, in addition to honors and great office, had the good fortune to have a son whose faithful and beautiful biography will let him be known to future generations." Ursula Wasserman
+ Books p29 D 8 '40 800w

"Not only the crusty legal scholar, but the more general reading public, will enjoy the portrait, and will grow more tolerant of a type which, perhaps unfortunately, is not yet epidemic in the world. . . The present work moves slowly only when the second marquess, occasionally spurred by filial rather than by literary considerations, is over-extensive in his justification of Rufus Isaacs's behavior in law suits once hotly discussed by Englishmen, but now of minor interest. The biography survives its excesses of loyalty, however, and remains an excellent if leisurely work." J. R. Parker
+ Sat R of Lit 23:24 D 7 '40 750w

REAMS, CLINTON A. Modern blast cleaning and ventilation. 213p il $4 Penton 621.549 Sand blast 39-21588

"A comprehensive handbook covering the entire field of blast cleaning and its allied equipment including a history of this art." Chem & Met Eng

Chem & Met Eng 46:786 D '39 20w
N Y New Tech Bks 25:8 Ja '40

REASON, HAZEL ALDEN. The road to modern science. 297p il maps $3 Appleton-Century
509 Science—History 40-7393

"The American edition of a title first published by Bell in London in 1935, to which has been added many more illustrations. The author of this volume 'has achieved an admirable combination of the story of progress in the various fields of science with the biographies of the men who made the advances possible. And many an engineer, chemist and biologist would be a more intelligent practitioner of his profession with the information which this book furnishes on the men who laid the groundwork of his chosen field.' " (N Y New Tech Bks) Indexes.

N Y New Tech Bks 25:26 Ap '40
Pratt p8 autumn '40

"Miss Reason has been a teacher of science in the secondary schools of England and her book is excellent reading as a supplement to a high school course in science. It supplies a perspective that is usually absent. It is authentic, both historically and scientifically, but so vast a field is covered in so few pages that both the men and subjects can only be sketched as if in charcoal. For the non-scientific adult it has a human touch and is a valuable footnote to history." G. W.
+ Sat R of Lit 22:21 Ap 27 '40 240w

REAU, LOUIS. French painting in the XIVth, XVth and XVIth centuries; tr. from the French by Mary Chamot [ed. by André Gloeckner]. 41p 96il 12pl $4 Art bk.
759.4 Painting, French. Paintings, French

This volume contains 96 plates in photogravure and twelve in color. The critical introduction by Professor Réau of the Sorbonne deals with the works of the so-called "French primitives" —Fouquet, Clouet, Corneille de Lyon, Broederlam, Bellegambe, Bourdichon, Froment, Marmion, Malonel, Perreal (the master of Moulins), the master of the Aix Annunciation, and others. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 36:327 Ap 15 '40

"The plates are superb, whether in photogravure or in color, and every memorable picture, anonymous or by an identified hand, is reproduced. . . The volume is a more than welcome addition to the library of the artist and student." Royal Cortissoz

+ Books p11 Je 30 '40 320w

"A book on this subject was much needed. Unfortunately, it is still needed. The 96 monochrome reproductions are good in quality, including a large number of well known paintings, and a few unfamiliar ones. The choice, however, appears to have been mainly governed by ease in getting photographs, since many of the pictures mentioned in the text are not reproduced, while to some of those reproduced no reference is made. The 12 colour plates are nearly all poor. . . The 36-page introduction by M. Reau adds little to what has already been published." W. G. Constable
— + Boston Transcript p10 My 4 '40 330w

"The text, which capably covers its field, is dry as well as scholarly. The excellent illustrations, many in color, should do a lot to awaken interest in this little-studied branch of primitive painting."
New Yorker 16:91 My 4 '40 30w

RECKLESS, WALTER CADE. Criminal behavior. 532p $3.75 (25s) McGraw

364 Crime and criminals. Criminal anthropology 40-5128

Discussion of the nature, variation, treatment, and prevention of crime, dealing especially with the situation in the United States, but containing some European data also. The author is professor of sociology at Vanderbilt University. The book contains case histories, and subject and name indexes.

"In the opinion of this reviewer, Reckless's Criminal Behavior ranks near the top in adequacy of coverage, comprehensiveness of treatment, and thoroughness of scholarship. . . This volume presents perhaps the most thoroughgoing discussion of crime prevention programs that has yet appeared in a comprehensive work on criminology. . . While by no means the most readable work in the field, Reckless's Criminal Behavior cannot be overlooked by an honest student of the subject. A wealth of material from anthropological sources as well as from contemporary European criminologists combined with a rigorous sociological analysis of the traditional materials of criminology makes this an indispensable volume." A. E. Fink
+ Am Soc R 5:455 Je '40 700w

"This treatise on criminology has a freshness and punch that most of the older textbooks lack. . . The weakest division of the book is the group of nine chapters on treatment and prevention. Less than three pages in the entire text is devoted to the police, and only four pages to jails. Considering the importance of these two aspects of penology, this small space seems entirely inadequate. From a sociological standpoint, too much emphasis is placed on 'individualization,' no mention being made of the recent tendency to consider the prison as a community. . . Frequent inaccuracies and lack of clarity suggest haste in preparation." N. S. Hayner
+ — Ann Am Acad 210:185 Jl '40 550w

Reviewed by G. K. Brown
Social Forces 19:127 O '40 900w

Reviewed by S. G. Kling
Survey 76:341 N '40 260w

REDDAWAY, WILLIAM BRIAN. The economics of a declining population. 270p $2.50 Macmillan [8s 6d Allen, G]

330.942 Great Britain—Population. Great Britain—Economic policy [39-30089]

For descriptive note see Annual for 1939.

"It is probably unfair to quote Mr. Reddaway (that is the risk all prophets run), but on page 198 he states (the preface is dated March, 1939): 'Indeed, a major war would simply make our whole discussion of public finance (if not the whole of this book) virtually irrelevant.' Nevertheless, much that he says regarding such matters as the aging of the population is practical and pertinent." M. R. Davie
Am Econ R 30:198 Mr '40 500w

"The volume offers an extremely acute and able utilization of a method whereby social science may serve the society which hopefully nurtures it." J. H. Barnett
+ Am Soc R 5:294 Ap '40 330w

"In addition to its breadth and balance, the beauty of this book is its treatment of detail: the effect of population decline on juvenile wages, education, residential construction (the outlook is not nearly so gloomy as often portrayed), the cost of old-age pensions (the influence of changing age distribution in the matter will be offset in large part by its parallel influence on volume of inheritance tax receipts, if current English rates remain unchanged), international trade (the absolute necessity of overseas trade for England will be decreased, but its possible advantages enhanced), and so forth. The account is closely reasoned, but couched in a pleasant, conversational style." Frank Lorimer
+ Ann Am Acad 208:207 Mr '40 550w
Foreign Affairs 18:566 Ap '40 20w

Reviewed by D. W. O'Connell
Pol Sci Q 55:280 Je '40 700w

Reviewed by J. J. Corson
Survey 76:116 Mr '40 410w

REED, CARLOS ISAAC; STRUCK, HAROLD CARL, and STECK, IRVING ELIHU. Vitamin D. 389p $4.50 Univ. of Chicago press [27s Cambridge]

612.015 Vitamins 40-2673

"The chemistry, physiology, pharmacology, pathology, and experimental and clinical investigations of vitamin D are tentatively summarized by physiologists connected with the University of Illinois. The purpose of the authors is to provide a comprehensive and reliable but not too technical treatment of the subject and thus to counteract the dangers of unscrupulous promotion of the vitamin as a curative or prophylactic food ingredient." (J Home Econ) Bibliography.

"The authors are to be congratulated for the excellent service which they have rendered not only to those who are interested in nutrition research but also to those upon whom we depend for intelligent medical practice." Harry Steenbock
+ Am Chem Soc J 62:1887 Jl '40 320w

"This authoritative, well written book, by men renowned for their original researches in this field, is a welcome and invaluable contribution to a subject which is destined to hold the spotlight of public attention and scientific inquiry for many years." J. T. Lowe
+ Am J Pub Health 30:559 My '40 600w
J Home Econ 32:181 Mr '40 70w
N Y New Tech Bks 25:28 Ap '40

REED, DOUGLAS. Nemesis? the story of Otto Strasser and the Black front. 275p il $2.75 Houghton [10s 6d Cape, J]

B or 92 Strasser, Otto. Germany—Black front. Germany—Politics and government (W) 40-11328

A British journalist, author of Insanity Fair (Book Review Digest, 1938), writes this biography of the director of the anti-Hitler organization known as the Black Front. Strasser and his brother Gregor were formerly ardent National Socialists, but after his brother was murdered Otto Strasser changed his politics. For ten years he has been hunted over Europe and has had several narrow escapes from the Gestapo.

Reviewed by Walter Millis
Books p6 Ag 25 '40 1050w

Reviewed by Lewis Gannett
Boston Transcript p11 Je 21 '40 750w

REED, DOUGLAS—Continued
Reviewed by R. H. Phelps
Boston Transcript p1 Jl 20 '40 400w
Christian Science Monitor p18 My 1 '40 300w

"The biography of Otto Strasser makes good reading. The adventurous details of the story are told with the ease of a first-class reporter. But the political and philosophical background of this book is not quite so convincing. Reed palliates the inconstancy of Strasser's convictions, he does not make clear how much this man changed his philosophy while in exile and how willingly he put water in the wine of his 'German socialism' in order to make it more digestible to French and British politicians." C. O. Cleveland
Commonweal 32:253 Jl 12 '40 650w
Foreign Affairs 19:258 O '40 30w

Reviewed by Franz Hoellering
Nation 151:224 S 14 '40 190w

Reviewed by Paul Wohl
New Repub 103:358 S 9 '40 700w

"It is a pity that Douglas Reed was not content to translate [Strasser's] excellent autobiography. Nemesis? tells us at least as much about the author of Disgrace Abounding as about the Strassers. It omits much of the most important material, and its nervous overemphasis smudges the picture which Strasser's own autobiography gives." R. H. S. Crossman
— New Statesman & Nation 19:438 Mr 30 '40 600w

"I'm not convinced by this book that Strasser is really the man to effect a regeneration of the German spirit after the war, but Reed does his lively best for him. His book is interesting and full of hitherto unrevealed Nazi intrigues and politics, but its analysis of the internal situation in Germany and the war on the Continent makes little sense in view of recent happenings." Clifton Fadiman
— + New Yorker 16:69 Je 22 '40 420w

"Whether a sequel will ever be written to 'Nemesis?' remains to be seen. In the meantime, the present book not only makes exciting reading but gives one of the best pictures of the epoch and the men that are making history that I have run across." Wythe Williams
+ Sat R of Lit 22:12 Ag 3 '40 700w

"Mr. Reed has succeeded in his aim. To use the jargon of the day, he has put Otto Strasser on the map." G. P. Gooch
Spec 164:488 Ap 5 '40 1400w
Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 7 '40 700w

"Douglas Reed is a supercilious, nervous British journalist, erstwhile correspondent of the London Times. His noisome Nemesis? must be taken with a grain of bath salt, but it has intrinsic interest."
— + Time 35:99 Je 24 '40 550w

"A most readable, vivid and suggestive book."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p142 Mr 23 '40 800w

REED, HOMER BLOSSER. Psychology and teaching of secondary-school subjects. 684p $3.25 Prentice-Hall

370.15 Educational psychology. Teaching. Education, Secondary 39-9921

"The purpose of this book is to set forth the contributions the sciences of psychology and of education have made to the problems of the study and teaching of the secondary-school subjects." (Pref) The author is professor of psychology at Fort Hays Kansas State college. Chapter bibliographies. Index.

"The book would seem to have its chief value in state teachers colleges and schools of education. It is a mine of information and will save the reader a lot of tedious and aggravating search for the minor literature in this field so widely scattered during the last ten years. Students in the field of secondary education will find this book an excellent starting point in the search for a master's or doctor's problem. Teachers of educational psychology will find it an excellent reference book." W. T. Root
+ Am J Psychol 53:167 Ja '40 300w

"The critical reader will wish that certain important details had been, or could have been, supplied in reviewing some of the controlled experiments. For example, in numerous instances the number of pupils used in the investigations is not indicated, and the reader is frequently not told whether the groups of subjects used were equated at the outset of the study nor whether the differences found between the groups at the conclusion of the experiment were statistically significant. . . Nevertheless, the volume is significant in that it reveals the enormous progress which has recently been made in establishing the psychology of the secondary-school subjects on a scientific basis. A large number of the studies reported were carefully conducted in accordance with approved techniques, and in many instances the results of several investigations bearing on the same problem are now available. Consequently it is no longer necessary in such cases to rely entirely on general theory or everyday observations for answers to instructional problems." E. F. Potthoff
+ — School R 47:788 D '39 600w

REED, WILLIAM MAXWELL. The sky is blue; ed. by Carey Cronteis; il. by James MacDonald. 151p $1.50 Harcourt

551 Meteorology—Juvenile literature. Geology—Juvenile literature (W) 40-31609

Explanations of physical phenomena for young people interested in scientific facts. Partial contents: Light-waves; Why the tomato is red; The sun rises in the East; Sunset colors; The rainbow; What makes balloons go up? Sea water is salt; Will a hill last forever? Why do we have deserts? Volcanoes; Volcanoes and earthquakes; Volcanoes and weather. For ages seven to ten.

Booklist 37:95 N 1 '40

"Excellent for the curious child—and a good way for the parent to avoid being asked embarrassing questions."
+ Churchman 154:34 D 1 '40 30w

"Although the text is very simple it is difficult to explain the complexity of the universe to the very young without becoming rather complex. Boys and girls of eight to ten interested in things scientific and teachers of these children will welcome this addition to their libraries." E. T. Dobbins
+ Library J 65:814 O 1 '40 100w

" 'The Sky is Blue' is a straightforward, well-told introduction to science for young readers with inquiring minds."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e D 15 '40 140w

REED, WILLIAM V., and OGG, ELIZABETH. New homes for old; public housing in Europe and America. (Headline bks) 112p il pa 25c Foreign policy; to schools & teachers colleges pa 25c Silver

331.833 Housing (W) 40-10330

"The housing program in America: its plans, problems and future, with suggestions from England, France, Austria, Germany, Sweden, and Holland." (New Repub) Suggested reading.

Reviewed by A. A. Twitchell
Am J Pub Health 30:964 Ag '40 140w

"The authors have written a compact, sharp-lined handbook on one of our most urgent concerns."
+ New Repub 102:553 Ap 22 '40 40w
Social Forces 18:611 My '40 60w

REESE, GUSTAVE. Music in the middle ages. 502p il $5 Norton

780.9 Music, Medieval 41-557

"The work is preceded by an introduction on the music of classical antiquity, after which the great periods and schools of medieval music follow, discussed systematically and exhaustively yet with economy and conciseness of thought. The author's adherence to a minutely-organized plan, that of a thoroughly scientific exegesis of the great problems and issues of the music of the period, is remarkable to the point of being severe. He eschewed all that is merely conjectural or indirectly connected with his objectives, yet this mass of material, the result of painstaking research work and erudition, is presented in a lucid and readable form." Sat R of Lit

"Of comprehensive treatises on medieval music, this is certainly the latest and, for English readers, probably the best."
+ Christian Century 57:1586 D 18 '40 280w

"'Music in the Middle Ages' is the first major American contribution to musicology in decades and promises to remain a major work for a long time to come." P. H. Lang
+ Sat R of Lit 23:12 D 21 '40 700w

REGENDANZ, WILLIAM CHARLES. See Pick, F. W. Searchlight on German Africa

REGLER, GUSTAV. Great crusade; with a pref. by Ernest Hemingway; tr. by Whittaker Chambers and Barrows Mussey. 448p map $2.50 Longmans
(W) 40-34051

A story of the Spanish civil war written by a German refugee who fought on the Loyalist side.

"A book like 'The Great Crusade,' dealing with a life-and-death struggle in our culture, must take its bearings as it tosses in the very center of the social maelstrom of our time. And it must approach every issue without benefit of the perspective that time is supposed to provide. Perhaps that is why Regler chose the form of a novel: there, as in life, we accept discussions that are left hanging, admissions that there are problems to which there are several answers and others to which there are no answers. Perhaps that, too, is why Regler presented the record from two points of view. . . There is in 'The Great Crusade' something of the tolerance essential in those who would fight intolerance; it is implacable only in its opposition to those who fly the black banners of oppression, cruelty and superstition." Milton Rugoff
+ Books p7 S 29 '40 1150w
Cath World 152:506 Ja '41 150w

"Mr. Regler conveys admirably, doubtless because he has felt, the perpetual conflict in the hearts of the more thoughtful volunteers between the instinctive desire to destroy the enemy and the hope that the workers and poor people on the other side may be won over by propaganda, and he gives several first-hand descriptions of attempts at a propaganda which met with varying success."
+ Christian Science Monitor p10 O 12 '40 500w

"'The Great Crusade' presents war in all its horror and personal disintegration. There is one particularly sordid incident showing how demoralizing it is. The end is some time before the Franco victory with the violent death of the surviving chief protagonists. It seems to be a deeply sincere book by a man who could have written more effectually if the situation he portrayed had been less complex." Edward Skillin, Jr.
Commonweal 32:492 O 4 '40 550w

Reviewed by G. W. Hill
Library J 65:709 S 1 '40 150w

"'The Great Crusade' is at once a great war epic and a powerful and swiftly moving story." Lawrence Fernsworth
+ Nation 151:368 O 19 '40 1050w

"'The Great Crusade' is the scrupulous book of an intellectual and a man of action who refused in action or in saddened afterthought, to pay tribute to the devil." Ralph Bates
+ New Repub 103:562 O 21 '40 900w

"'The Great Crusade' is to be recommended especially for those who have read and thought a good deal about the Spanish war but have not felt ready to come to any of the glib understandings of it professed by a variety of journalists. It illuminates some of the shadows of which so many still remain. But it is also a book for any one." F. T. Marsh
+ N Y Times p1 S 29 '40 1100w

"The narrative is not always clear, for Regler assumes, it seems to me, that the reader has a great deal of military knowledge, but parts of it are moving and all of it seems true and uncamouflaged. He does not ignore the incompetence among the anti-Fascist forces, the treachery, the stupidity. But he sees beyond these facts. He makes you feel that the war unsuccessfully waged by Spain against Hitler and Mussolini was more than a war. 'It was a question of the decency of the world.'" Clifton Fadiman
+ New Yorker 16:73 S 28 '40 320w

"More history remains to be written; Regler's book does not pretend to be complete even for the part of the war it covers. . . More profound political discussions have been and will be made. . . Novels of greater art and form may be produced, for Regler's form is only the form of history and the lives of some men in it. But Regler's book is a great book about a great time." James Benét
+ Sat R of Lit 22:10 S 28 '40 900w
Time 36:78 S 30 '40 750w

REHDER, ALFRED. Manual of cultivated trees and shrubs hardy in North America, exclusive of the subtropical and warmer temperate regions. 2d ed rev and enl 996p map $10.50 Macmillan
582 Trees. Shrubs 40-12709

"An important botanical reference work, first published in 1927 [Book Review Digest, 1927], and now materially enlarged by descriptions of 200 additional species. A bibliographical supplement is planned for future publication." (Booklist) Glossary. Index.

Booklist 37:16 S '40

"Immensely valuable."
Books p14 Jl 7 '40 30w

"A handbook of reference that should interest students of horticulture, landscape architects, and serious gardeners. . . It is essentially technical in treatment, and concerned with botanical identification and description, not with culture and propagation." M. J. T.
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Ag 17 '40 70w

REICHARD, GLADYS AMANDA. Navajo medicine man; sandpaintings and legends of Miguelito [from the John Frederick Huckel collections]. ltd ed 83p ½ lea $36 Augustin
970.3 Miguelito (Navaho Indian). Navaho Indians 40-1573

"A sketch of the artist, Miguelito, is given with explanations of the Navajo religion, legends, and art. Besides the 80 pages of text there are 25 full-page colored plates illustrating Miguelito's sandpaintings, and 32 drawings; nine figure drawings are inserted in the text." Booklist

"An unusual book too special and expensive for The Booklist's regular list, but well worth the attention of collectors and art libraries."
Booklist 36:413 Jl 1 '40

"This book is a notable contribution to our increasing knowledge of Navajo lore. But it is more than that for several reasons. . . For those who are satisfied with sand paintings as works of art these plates make a picture book of extraordinary loveliness in their balanced design and delicate color. For those who, like Mr. Huckel, enjoy an exotic object more if they understand what it means to the one who made it, the text offers all, perhaps, that a white person can hope to know of a Navajo's beliefs." Erna Fergusson

REICHARD, G. A.—Continued

+ Books p12 Je 30 '40 1100w

Christian Science Monitor p10 Je 8 '40 340w

REID, CHARLES FREDERICK, and others, eds. Bibliography of the island of Guam. 102p $1.50 Wilson, H.W.

016.9967 Guam—Bibliography (W) 40-3506

"This Bibliography of the Island of Guam represents the completion of the first of a series of annotated bibliographies on the Territories and Outlying Possessions of the United States, namely, Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, the Philippine Islands, Guam, American Samoa, the Panama Canal Zone, and the Virgin Islands. It is the only comprehensive annotated bibliography of Guam; no effort has been spared to produce an exhaustive treatment of the subject." (Pref) Prepared with the assistance of the Federal works agency of the Work projects administration, New York city.

Foreign Affairs 18:570 Ap '40 30w

"It seems a pity to have spent much time and money on this publication and yet let many faults remain. An author index at the end would have added greatly to the value of this bibliography. On the other hand, no compilation of this nature is ever complete. Such a bibliography would probably never have been published if the project had not been undertaken by the present authors. Only those who have attempted to compile bibliographic material can appreciate the enormous amount of painstaking labor which is required." J. W. Coulter

— + Library Q 10:452 Jl '40 1350w

"As the only comprehensive annotated bibliography of the island of Guam, it is of considerable value." Philip Lilienthal

+ Pacific Affairs 13:372 S '40 160w

Social Studies 31:143 Mr '40 30w

REID, IRA DE AUGUSTINE. In a minor key; Negro youth in story and fact; prepared for the American youth commission. 134p pa $1.25 Am. council on educ.

325.26 Negroes—Moral and social conditions. Negroes—Education 40-10435

"A survey of the status and problems of Negro youth, sponsored by the American Youth Commission." Cleveland Open Shelf

"The book makes me angry—and ashamed. One should use a crashing major chord to call attention to the disgraceful and dangerous conditions which the book so vividly portrays. However, Reid's technique is probably much more effective. He does not shout—but his facts do; he does not allow any virtue-and-vice words to mar the simple, straightforward—and terrible—stories he has to tell, but the result is a cumulative picture which should shock and shame all decent Americans into action to remedy these conditions which handicap one-tenth of our population and directly and indirectly damage the other nine-tenths." Read Bain

+ Am Soc R 5:786 O '40 600w

Booklist 36:413 Jl 1 '40

Cleveland Open Shelf p18 O '40

Reviewed by Gould Beech

Survey 77:29 Ja '41 350w

REID, JAMES. Facing life with Christ. 184p $1.50 Cokesbury press [5s Student]

248 Christian life 40-6286

"A discussion of Christian attitudes toward life in the actual situations and difficulties that ordinary people must face. How to handle fear, worry, the sense of frustration, temptation, personal relationships are some of the topics." Christian Century

"A very direct and stimulating discussion."

+ Christian Century 57:386 Mr 20 '40 40w

"Dr. Reid has ministered for many years to a large congregation at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Eastbourne, and has held the position of Moderator of the General Assembly of his Church. Readers who know how gallantly he has battled with an affliction that almost robbed him of his sight will see in these chapters many a reflection of the author's physical and spiritual struggle. This is the chief value of the book. It is the testimony of one who has 'faced life,' and has found it more than barely tolerable for being lived 'with Christ'. All the old new words are here —self-expression, frustration and the rest— and are placed in a setting of which Christ is the centre."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p156 Mr 30 '40 650w

REID, LILLIAN N. Personality and etiquette; il. by Mary McMahon. 280p $1.28 Little

395 Personality. Etiquet 40-11598

Textbook on good manners for the high school boy and girl. Partial contents: To the student; To the teacher; The kindly aim of etiquette; Introductions; Etiquette and graces in public places; Travel and hotel etiquette; Do give a party at home—or elsewhere; Conversation; Your social-behavior pattern; Tact; Inferiority thoughts and feelings. Index.

J Home Econ 32:631 N '40 60w

School & Society 52:112 Ag 17 '40 20w

REILLY, MRS HELEN (KIERAN). The dead can tell. 310p $2 Random house

40-33593

Detective story.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Books p26 O 27 '40 200w

"Helen Reilly's stories of Inspector McKee are convincing because she has made a close study of the workings of the New York City Police Department and has always aimed at solving fictional crimes just as the police would go about solving real ones. This is one of the best, if not the very best, of the McKee stories." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p16 O 27 '40 200w

"Plenty of premonitions and chills, but the solution isn't logical."

New Yorker 16:88 O 26 '40 30w

"Slightly over-written and not too credibly worked out tale of upper-class misdeeds with plenty of thrills and tense moments."

+ — Sat R of Lit 23:17 N 9 '40 40w

Time 36:84 N 4 '40 40w

REILLY, MRS HELEN (KIERAN). Death demands an audience. 275p $2 Doubleday

40-11020

Detective story.

Booklist 37:14 S '40

"Highly recommended on all mystery counts. This means you." Will Cuppy

+ Books p8 Jl 14 '40 350w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin

Boston Transcript p2 Jl 20 '40 80w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p22 Ag 25 '40 120w

"Deeply-plotted, high-strung and subtly-worked-out tale of family villainy in N. Y. suburbs. Very good."
+ Sat R of Lit 22:18 Jl 13 '40 30w

REILLY, MRS HELEN (KIERAN). Murder in Shinbone alley. 300p $2 Doubleday
(W) 40-27170

Detective story.

Booklist 36:284 Mr 15 '40

"Clews, settings (including a cemetery), people and plot are all recommended for that drab feeling. Two murders and a surprising, yet rational, solution." Will Cuppy
+ Books p14 F 4 '40 160w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin
Boston Transcript p2 F 10 '40 30w

"In this case the tangled relations of the various persons who seem to be involved in the crime make McKee's task more than usually difficult. They also give the story a compelling interest that continues up to the final chapter." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p22 F 4 '40 240w
New Yorker 15:72 F 3 '40 50w

"Highly satisfactory."
+ Sat R of Lit 21:18 F 3 '40 40w
Time 35:76 Mr 4 '40 40w

REINOEHL, CHARLES MYRON, and AYER, FRED CARLETON. Classroom administration and pupil adjustment. 525p il $2.75 Appleton-Century

372 School management. Teaching. Education of children 40-6534

Discussion and guide for the elementary school teacher, and the student preparing to teach in the elementary school, which takes up organization and management of the classroom program. Chapter bibliographies. Index.

Cleveland Open Shelf p14 Jl '40

"The volume is described as an outgrowth of a college course in classroom administration and pupil adjustment. In such a course the instructor, no doubt, supplied the interpretation and explanation necessary to show the significance of these matters in relation to the program of 'direct' teaching. In the book there seems inadequate recognition of the principle of the continuity of experience, which has been effectively stated by John Dewey in chapter iii of Experience and Education. There are other evidences that the authors' conception of a 'truly dynamic educational program' is at times inconsistent. . . By these criticisms the reviewer does not at all imply condemnation of the book. It will be widely read and used as a rich storehouse of suggestion and guidance in the thousand daily tasks involved in 'keeping school.'" J. A. Hockett
+ — El School J 41:389 Ja '41 700w

REISER, OLIVER LESLIE. Promise of scientific humanism; toward a unification of scientific, religious, social and economic thought. 364p $4 Piest

144 Humanism—20th century. Philosophy. Evolution. Civilization 40-36190

"What the modern world needs to cure its obviously critical illness is 'a new system of thought to replace the outmoded views which still linger on, reluctant to depart, and still confuse us by their very presence.' Professor Reiser, of the department of philosophy in the University of Pittsburgh, believes that 'this new philosophy will maintain and assert its faith in the powers of human intelligence' and that 'science is calling for and helping to create a new mentality.' . . Briefly stated, it is Dr. Reiser's thesis that in the stage of mental evolution now possible for mankind there will be a more profound insight into the unity of nature and a reunion of reason and emotion that will in some respects resemble primitive man's fusion with nature in mystical participation. This will be made possible by the discernment of 'an underlying continuum of nature in which "individuality" becomes relative to the wholeness of which it is a part.'" Scientific Bk Club R

"It is a book that ought to be read by all who are seriously and intelligently interested in the unification of scientific, religious, social and economic thought, and the reconstruction of society in this age of rapidly changing concepts. Doubtless many of Dr. Reiser's implications are unverified and unverifiable; admittedly some of his hypotheses are highly speculative. But his wide-ranging syntheses of data gleaned from every sector of the intellectual skirmish line are powerful stimulants to the processes of thought and his fundamental conclusions bear the hallmark of validity."
+ Scientific Bk Club R 11:4 D '40 550w

"Reiser's book is lucid, ambitious, profound."
+ Time 36:101 D 16 '40 400w

REITHINGER, ANTON. Why France lost the war; a biologic and economic survey [tr. from the German]. 75p map $1.25 Veritas

940.5344 European war, 1939—France. Finance—France. France—Economic conditions 40-14436

"Before the battle of France began, there appeared in Germany a monograph on France's strength and reserves in terms of manpower, finance, economy, and agriculture. Statistics demonstrated that France must lose the war. The English translation is now published." Survey G

New Repub 103:310 S 2 '40 60w

Reviewed by Lindsay Rogers
Survey G 29:626 D '40 130w

RENAULT, MARY, pseud. Kind are her answers. 314p $2.50 Morrow [8s 6d Longmans] 40-7804

The story of a young English doctor, his cold, selfish wife, and the warm-hearted unconventional girl who comes into the doctor's life just when he has discovered that his wife no longer counts with him.

"'Kind Are Her Answers' is more than excellent entertainment. The writing has fluid beauty, the characters are real and the story has the fine sting of a provocative idea clearly driven and cleanly executed." Rose Feld
+ Books p3 Je 9 '40 700w

"A novel marked by that shining, breathless intensity and emotion which made this mysterious English girl's 'Promise of Love' one of the distinguished novels of 1939." Lewis Gannett
+ Boston Transcript p13 Je 11 '40 450w

"This novel is a sound piece of story-telling with, it seems to me, an end left loose at the finish." Harold Brighouse
+ — Manchester Guardian p7 My 24 '40 140w

Reviewed by Anthony West
New Statesman & Nation 19:728 Je 8 '40 220w

"'Kind Are Her Answers' is a clever and diverting story as well as one which knows what it is talking about when it discusses the course and fluctuation of passion. Only it is not quite what one had expected of Miss Renault. There is no depth to it, no real feeling. Something is missing which 'Promise of Love' had. 'Kind Are Her Answers' is eminently readable, but it smacks a little too much of the run-of-the-mine English novel." E. H. Walton
+ — N Y Times p7 Je 9 '40 800w

RENAULT, MARY—Continued

"Excellent characterization and some touching moments."

New Yorker 16:78 Je 8 '40 40w

"The author's own intelligence prevents her story from becoming banal. Nevertheless it cannot be denied that stripped of its veneer this is the stereotyped story of the struggling male caught between the pincers of the cold, good wife, and the warm, naughty girl. Or is it that the war has reduced love triangles to a new low in point of significance?" M. S. U.

Sat R of Lit 22:20 Je 8 '40 400w

"I did not read Mary Renault's first novel Purposes of Love, so highly praised by the critics, but I guess that in this, her second book, she maintains her level as a writer and does not attempt anything essentially different. Her subject in Kind Are Her Answers is love; her treatment of it is voluptuous, with an un-English physical directness. Her manner of writing has a tremendous feminine vitality—that sort of creative gusto which has proved first the strength and subsequently—controlled by no shaping intellectual maturity—the undoing of many a contemporary woman novelist. . . Miss Renault is, I feel, at a dangerous crossroads in her career. Popular she will be. It is to be hoped that nothing and no one will persuade her to pour herself out in an unstemmed flow of fiction during the next few years." Rosamond Lehmann

+ — Spec 164:758 My 31 '40 600w

RENICK, JAMES L., and RENICK, MRS MARION. Tommy carries the ball; il. by Frederick Machetanz. 78p $1.50 Scribner

(W) 40-32633

Because he could not hold onto the ball, Tommy lost his chance to play on the Rangers' team. Then he met an older player who taught him some fundamentals of the game. For boys eight to ten and others beginning to be interested in football.

Booklist 37:274 F 15 '41

"A welcome addition to boys' books, one we have needed for a long time, makes its appearance this fall—a football story for boys beginning to be interested in the game and for those who actually play football."

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 O 28 '40 310w

"A book that younger boys just beginning football will enjoy." D. L. Wood

+ Library J 65:880 O 15 '40 100w

Reviewed by Lena Barksdale

Nation 151:455 N 9 '40 10w

RENNER, GEORGE THOMAS, and HARTLEY, WILLIAM H. Conservation and citizenship. 367p il maps $1.60 Heath

339 Natural resources. U.S.—Economic conditions 40-34403

Textbook for young readers on the national, state, and private programs of conservation and planning. Contains directions for the use of motion pictures in this field and book lists. Index.

School & Society 52:112 Ag 17 '40 30w

"This timely little book supplies a need long felt in secondary schools for a brief, readable, non-technical text on conservation. The need for such a book has become close to acute as a long dormant public conscience has been aroused in regard both to our prodigal waste of resources and the necessity for using them more wisely in the future. Within the last year or two several brief texts have appeared, written simply, and well illustrated. Mr. Renner and Mr. Hartley have given us one of the best of these." Ruth West

+ Social Educ 5:72 Ja '41 600w

Social Studies 31:379 D '40 20w

RESCHKE, LUVELLA KREGEL, and RESCHKE, ALFRED. The newspaper in the classroom; editor: Edward A. Fitzpatrick; newspaper consultant: Will C. Conrad. 384p il maps $2; to schools $1.50 Hale, E.M.

371.3 Newspapers in education (W) 39-27995

"A series of lessons involving the use of the newspaper as an aid in classes in the social studies, English, home economics, music appreciation, and other studies. The work, based on a contest conducted by the Milwaukee Journal, has been prepared in book form by two Milwaukee high school teachers. Fully illustrated." (Wis Lib Bul) Chapter bibliographies. Index.

Booklist 36:126 D 1 '39

Wis Lib Bul 36:12 Ja '40

REXROTH, KENNETH. In what hour. 83p $1.75 Macmillan

811 40-30496

"The first volume by an American poet whose work has appeared in Poetry and other magazines. Whether they use new patterns or old, the poems in this book are highly individual, some so much so that they communicate nothing save bewilderment. Others however have a sharp and curious freshness which derives partly from their subject matter and partly from their use of microscopic and telescopic imagery." Christian Century

---

"This first book by Kenneth Rexroth, whose poems have appeared in the better magazines and anthologies, contains much finely reasoned, eloquent and mature work. The poems in the opening section are decidedly his best. In several of these Mr. Rexroth achieves memorable emotional impact by the recollection of tragic and significant social events—the death of Sacco and Vanzetti, the Spanish civil war—set in vivid contrast to the natural beauty of a flowering California meadow or the vast constellation of stars in the night sky. . . Except for the occasional and functionless use of unfamiliar words (desquanate, anastomosis), Mr. Rexroth's language is not difficult, his images clear and adequate." Ruth Lechlitner

+ Books p13 D 22 '40 320w

Reviewed by John Holmes

Boston Transcript p11 O 7 '40 40w

Christian Century 57:1084 S 4 '40 70w

"Mr. Rexroth, who has a flair for phrase, writes in a tight, crabbed way about such subjects as the Spanish Revolution and geography. A great deal of the time he is esoteric. At other times he seems to willfully twist his lines into angular forms. One comes to the conclusion that Mr. Rexroth is not a poet whose work gives much indication of necessity." John Ritchey

— Christian Science Monitor p13 Ag 31 '40 430w

"A volume of verse consisting mainly of weak imitations of Auden, Gregory and the Chinese translations of Ezra Pound. This work is offered as 'definite unity and direction' —a unity of nothing, and a direction nowhere. Books of verse like this confuse the issue and give the public little idea of what a first book of verse should be, and help maintain the collusive atmosphere in which mediocrity displays her fine clothes."

— Living Age 359:293 N '40 70w

"Mr. Rexroth has been confused by attendance on multiple demands. At his best, he is a simple-minded man, with a liking for outdoors, in particular the high Sierra, and a decent reverence for nature and the stars. Of these he writes well; his observation is direct and immediate. . . Mr. Rexroth's other aspect, the erudite indoor ponderer over many and difficult texts, is less deserving of encouragement." Rolfe Humphries

+ — New Repub 103:221 Ag 12 '40 460w

"The poet has little that is new to say, and his devices for speech are fully as familiar as the polemic itself. In the poem, August 22, 1939, he describes his literary career thus far as 'twenty years at hard labor.' If that is so, we could scarcely expect his poems to be greatly unlike those articles fashioned by prison inmates for a stipend. I dislike stressing the parallel, but the Rexroth of In What Hour sorely needs either a change of occupation or a parole." William FitzGerald
— Poetry 57:158 N '40 650w

REYNOLDS, GEORGE FULLMER. The staging of Elizabethan plays at the Red Bull theater, 1605-1625. 203p il $2 Modern lang. assn. [9s Oxford]

792 Theaters—Stage-setting and scenery. London. Red Bull theater 40-7774

Study of the repertory of the London theater called the Red Bull, during the years 1605 to 1625. The author concludes that the use of stage properties had no consistent traditions; that there was a more frequent use of visual and auditory effects than is usually supposed; and that the rear stage was not necessarily a permament structure, and one or two temporary structures might have been brought on when needed. Index.

"As an antidote to brave theories and wild conjectures about Elizabethan staging, it is good to have Professor Reynolds' sober and scientifically skeptical re-examination of the actual data."
+ Theatre Arts 24:763 O '40 130w

"This eminent American authority . . . in his new book advances, with scholarly moderation, some independent views about the stage and staging which demand the attenton of all serious students of the subject."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p239 My 18 '40 180w

REYNOLDS, LLOYD GEORGE. The control of competition in Canada. (Harvard studies in monopoly and competition) 324p $3.50 Harvard univ. press [16s 6d Oxford]

380.18 Industry and state. Canada—Economic policy. Competition 40-3741

"This book is an endeavor to describe and classify the Canadian economy in terms of competition, monopoly, etc., to state the attitudes of the community and to discuss the various legislative measures concerning monopoly and competition, which have been passed by the provinces and the Dominion. The line of approach is indicated by the general headings of the discussion which are, the private control of competition, the problems of inefficiency (e.g., monopoly, combination, etc.), public policy and legislation." Am Econ R

"There is a great deal of interesting and valuable material in the book, concerning the extent to which Canadian industry is either competitive or monopolistic. Most of the material has been dug out of the reports of various Royal Commissions, committees, and governmental reports of the last twenty years. While a great deal of the basic data have been available for some time, the work of extracting, arranging and analyzing it is to be commended. . . The book has a bibliography and index which, however, could be improved." C. A. Curtis
+ — Am Econ R 30:625 S '40 250w

Reviewed by A. R. Upgren
Ann Am Acad 209:222 My '40 550w

"The Control of Competition in Canada is a competent piece of work, showing a wide knowledge of industrial details and economic analysis and a common-sense appreciation of the practical limits of public policy. The author does not claim that his results are definitive; they should, however, be an excellent base for further explorations." E. T. Grether
+ J Pol Econ 48:918 D '40 480w

RHINE, JOSEPH BANKS. See Pratt, J. G. Extra-sensory perception after sixty years

RHODE, JOHN, pseud. See Street, C. J. C.

RIAN, EDWIN HAROLD. The Presbyterian conflict. 342p $2 Eerdmans

285.173 Presbyterian church 40-11099

"This work traces briefly the course of doctrinal controversy in the Presbyterian Church from the beginning of the nineteenth century and recounts in full the conflict which became acute with the 'Auburn affirmation' and culminated in the separation of the conservative element and the organization of what is now called the Orthodox Presbyterian Church. The author, who is president of the board of trustees of Westminster Theological Seminary, naturally views the issues and events from the standpoint of an active participant on the conservative side." Christian Century

"The whole story is told by Dr. Rian with, I think, quite objective fairness. There are well-authenticated sources, in the records of various church assemblies and in many newspapers and periodicals. Such a history is inestimably valuable for the archives of the Presbyterian Church, and those who, of any faith, pursue the various courses of religious development in this country will also find it a readable and reliable book." A. C. D.
+ Boston Transcript p3 Je 29 '40 500w
Christian Century 57:825 Je 26 '40 100w

RIASANOVSKY, MRS ANTONINA FEDOROVNA (PODGOZINOVA) (NINA FEDOROVA, pseud). The family. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 346p $2.50 Little

(W) 40-27600

Story of life in a boarding house in Tientsin, China, kept by a family of kindly White Russians, exiled from their native land. The time is just before and during the Japanese invasion of 1937.

Booklist 37:12 S '40
Bookmark 2:12 Ja '41

"Whether or not it had received the 'Atlantic Monthly' $10,000 prize, 'The Family,' by Nina Fedorova would immediately be recognized as a distinguished novel. It is more than that. . . 'The Family' is written in the tradition of the great Russian novelists; it may, indeed, be rated as the best Russian novel that has emerged in the last two decades. Neither Tolstoi nor Dostoevski would be loath to give a smile of brotherhood to Nina Fedorova." Rose Feld
+ Books p1 S 22 '40 1900w

"It's a magnificent first novel. Nina Fedorova reveals herself as a wise, deeply humorous, and genuinely talented writer. She possesses the rare quality of spiritual ardor; and she has a compelling sense of the dramatic. Her characterization is extremely keen, her background evocative." Olga Owens
+ Boston Transcript p1 S 21 '40 550w

Reviewed by Lewis Gannett
+ Boston Transcript p3 S 21 '40 700w
+ Cath World 152:505 Ja '41 250w
Cleveland Open Shelf p20 O '40

"A most satisfying novel, steeped as it is with blind naturalness and, for the most part, human kindness." L. N. Feipel
+ Library J 65:709 S 1 '40 100w
Nation 151:253 S 21 '40 110w

"This novel is as admirable as it is disconcerting, especially since it comes from a writer who has strength, a keen, positive power of observation, and a remarkable gift for narration and dramatic surprises." Marianne Hauser
+ New Repub 103:766 D 2 '40 360w

RIASANOVSKY, A. F.—Continued

"This novel is one of the most engaging stories that this reviewer has read in years. Its delightful combination of deftness and simplicity is such that it is lovable without sentimentality, and touches the fantastic without undue strain of artifice." K. W.

+ N Y Times p4 S 22 '40 1000w

"The author, herself an exile and now happily an American, writes with sweetness and humor, without bitterness, and with more than a touch of Christian mysticism. Her story is poignant rather than really moving, but perhaps it bares the essential loneliness and high courage of the exile as effectively as more solidly constructed books have done." Clifton Fadiman

+ New Yorker 16:79 S 21 '40 180w

"Mrs. Fedorova's book has freshness, more freshness than I for one have found in any novel since 'The Constant Nymph,' and it succeeds in making the small incident of daily existence of vivid import and the persons who live it as real, as vital, of as much concern to the reader as though they were an intimate and essential part of his own life." Amy Loveman

+ Sat R of Lit 22:15 S 21 '40 550w

"The Family is a book in which humor and decay and tragedy are blended and spring from the same source, and done with some of the sharp eye for character one expects from all Russians, because the great ones had it. Skilfully it manages to make a houseful of rather ordinary people seem extraordinary—which all people are if one looks at them hard enough." Robert Littell

Yale R n s 30:x autumn '40 210w

RICE, ALICE CALDWELL (HEGAN) (MRS CALE YOUNG RICE). The inky way. 282p $2.50 Appleton-Century

B or 92 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. (W) 40-27819

Autobiography of the author of Mrs Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch, in which she describes her career as an author, and her acquaintance with famous men and women. Index.

Booklist 37:153 D 15 '40

Reviewed by A. B. Parsons

+ Books p3 N 10 '40 1000w

"Mrs. Rice has written a chatty and charming book about her work, her tastes and hobbies, the many homes that she and her husband have had round about the world, and the interesting persons they have known."

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 D 28 '40 450w

"Recommended for library purchase." M. E. Clark

+ Library J 65:808 O 1 '40 60w

"'The Inky Way' is unassuming and winning in its simplicity and charm. . . Work and travel, friendship and a happy marriage, fame accepted unpretentiously, a charming American background—Alice Hegan Rice has brought them to us in the lovable ledger of her own years." K. W.

+ N Y Times p3 N 17 '40 850w

RICE, CRAIG. The corpse steps out. 305p $2 Simon & Schuster

40-6206

Detective story.

"Blackmail, radio atmosphere, a case of mental unbalance and a debatable solution in this harmless, carefree number." Will Cuppy

Books p20 Mr 17 '40 130w

"Craig Rice is a winner because she refuses to take it all too, too seriously." Marian Wiggin

+ Boston Transcript p9 Mr 23 '40 100w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson

N Y Times p23 Mr 17 '40 200w

New Yorker 16:108 Mr 16 '40 30w

"Almost first class."

+ — Sat R of Lit 21:18 Mr 23 '40 50w

Time 35:76 Ap 1 '40 30w

Times [London] Lit Sup p281 Je 8 '40 160w

RICE, CRAIG. The wrong murder. 311p $2 Simon & Schuster

40-34598

Detective story.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Books p40 N 10 '40 170w

"The murder mystery is finally solved, but it turns out to have been the wrong murder, so what's the use? The story is so alcoholic that it should be brought to the attention of the Internal Revenue Bureau." Isaac Anderson

N Y Times p18 N 10 '40 210w

New Yorker 16:96 N 9 '40 50w

"Prevalence of bibulous humor and rowdy happenings should not obscure good detecting and an excellent worked out plot."

+ Sat R of Lit 23:20 N 23 '40 40w

RICE, ELINOR (MRS GEORGE NOVACK). Action in Havana. 324p $2.50 Duell

40-14498

A group of smug, wealthy Americans go to Cuba for a month's holiday and the relaxing atmosphere of travel changes all their lives. The chief characters are Howard Avery, a millionaire sugar magnate; Maris, his beautiful wife; Laura, his adoring old-maid sister; and Julie, the family rebel.

"A deft and smart book; perhaps also a deep and wise one. It covers a lot of ground with impressive accuracy, and is outstandingly readable. It gives one at once a queer, poignant nostalgia for Havana and an almost emetic distaste for the very ingredients which make it the gay, erotic, exotic city it is. Read it for pleasure and for knowledge, and in your idle moments compile a scrapbook of Miss Rice's witty obiter dicta." F. H. Bullock

+ Books p7 Ag 18 '40 650w

Reviewed by Eleanor Early

Boston Transcript p8 Ag 31 '40 700w

"Sophisticated, conscientious writing, pretty uneven but thoroughly readable."

+ New Repub 103:362 S 9 '40 50w

"The scheme of using a holiday to clarify several characters and their relations to each other is an interesting one. . . Meanings are sometimes fogged up by the occasional preciousness of Miss Rice's style. But casual dialogue and conversational shortcuts are done in an easy, natural manner. On the whole the book, while readable and in spots gay, leaves the impression of having somehow fallen short of its rather lofty goal." Beatrice Sherman

+ — N Y Times p14 Ag 18 '40 550w

"Miss Rice is over-fond of tailored epigrams and apt puns. Her serious characterizations are more memorable than her Noel Coward dialogue. It is to be hoped that her future work will emphasize depth rather than surface. She is too intelligent to have to depend on being smart. I should say, at the risk of sounding extra-superlative, that 'Action in Havana' is better than 'The Best Butter,' [Book Review Digest, 1938] the clever novel with which she made her début a couple of years ago." Clifton Fadiman

+ — New Yorker 16:61 Ag 17 '40 300w

RICE, ELMER L. Two on an island; a play in eleven scenes. 181p $2 Coward-McCann

812 (W) 40-7764

The play is composed of eleven vignettes of life in Manhattan, in the course of which two young people meet, marry, and continue to live in the city which has become a part of them, altho he hails from Iowa, and she from New Hampshire.

Reviewed by W. P. Eaton
Books p21 Ap 28 '40 170w

Dramatic criticism by E. V. Wyatt
Cath World 150:729 Mr '40 460w

Cleveland Open Shelf p11 My '40

"Perhaps the most successful attempt ever made to state in theatrical terms the humors of O. Henry's Bagdad on the Subway. Mr. Rice's mood is, indeed, almost as unashamed in its humorous romanticism as was that of the author of 'The Four Million.' O. O. McIntyre would have loved the play, and it is only the author's shrewd observation and shrewd craftsmanship which lift it above the level of the familiar heartbreak-and-glamour style of contemporary romance. But it is above that level because, even when Mr. Rice uses a method almost broad enough to suggest the cartoon, the sharpness and directness of his observation, together with his extraordinary gift for recording the speech of real people, give the thing a sincerity and a verisimilitude wholly delightful." J. W. Krutch
+ Nation 150:136 F 3 '40 800w (Dramatic criticism)

Dramatic criticism by Rosamond Gilder
Theatre Arts 24:167 Mr '40 490w

RICH, HAROLD THOMPSON. More than mere living. (Whittlesey house publication) 213p $1.75 McGraw

339.4 Cost and standard of living. Budget, Household (W) 40-27351

Mr Rich and his wife early in their married life worked out a formula for living on a $3000 income as if it were $10,000. In this book, largely autobiographical, he explains the formula: decide what things in life are essential and what are not, give up the latter, and bear down on the former. In the Richs' life good clothes, expensive entertaining, some comforts are the unessentials; travel, country living, good books, the essentials.

Booklist 36:320 Ap 15 '40

Reviewed by Olga Owens
Boston Transcript p11 Mr 19 '40 1200w

"In his spirited and encouraging chronicle, Mr. Rich stresses the enjoyments and rewards. They are worth having. And the book is worth reading. Nearly everybody ought to be able to profit by such a formula, in his own way."
+ N Y Times p18 Mr 17 '40 270w

RICH, WILLARD, pseud. Brain-waves and death. 244p $2 Scribner 40-8316

Detective story.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p17 Mr 24 '40 160w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin
Boston Transcript p2 Ap 13 '40 60w

"Both crimes are most ingeniously contrived and executed, and the story of Noonan's discovery of the method used and the person using it gives Willard Rich an honorable place in the ranks of the mystery mongers." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p24 Mr 24 '40 200w

Springf'd Republican p7e My 26 '40 260w

RICHARDS, ROBERT HALLOWELL; LOCKE, CHARLES E., and SCHUHMANN, REINHARDT. Textbook of ore dressing. 3d ed completely rev and rewritten 608p il $5.50 McGraw

622.7 Ore dressing 40-10540

"The aim in the present volume is to follow previous policy and continue to provide a textbook for the student and operator which shall deal in a broad way with the principles, theory, and practice of ore dressing and shall cover all the important processes of concentration and their practical application and shall include amalgamation and coal preparation. Considerable material of the former edition has been retained, only such changes in this material being made as seemed necessary to eliminate parts that were definitely out of date and to incorporate important features of new developments since 1925. However, the chapter on Flotation is entirely new and somewhat expanded, mill flow sheets show the latest practice, coal dressing appears in new form, and numerous other major changes will be found." (Pref. to the 3d ed) For first edition see Book Review Digest, 1910. Index.

Booklist 37:120 N 15 '40

N Y New Tech Bks 25:38 Jl '40

RICHARDS topical encyclopedia; ed. by Ernest Hunter Wright and Mary Heritage Wright; James Albert Richards, managing ed. and director of art. 15v il pl maps $34.90 1939 J. A. Richards, inc., Kingsport, Tenn.

031 Encyclopedias and dictionaries 39-24611

"This encyclopedia was planned primarily for the school-age child, to encourage reading as well as specific research. Since the original edition was reviewed in the July 1934 issue of Subscription Books Bulletin, a complete reorganization of subject matter has been effected. The company speaks of this edition as a new publication but a careful comparison of articles shows, in general, only plate corrections. The most noticeable change is the reorganization of information by units, which in turn are grouped into still larger classifications. The set is so arranged that the first four volumes contain units of science; the next four, history; two more, industry and applied science; three, art and biography; and one, recreation, leaving the last volume for the bibliography and general index. . . Includes also a general bibliography prepared by Miss Isabel Monro of the H. W. Wilson Company." Subscription Bks Bul

"It is evident that the publishers have endeavored to make this set more useful than the previous edition both in its organization and in its content. Commendable as the effort is, still more work is needed to raise the finished product to the level desirable in juvenile encyclopedias. Articles need to be recast in the light of present educational trends, and the general style of editorial comment more closely harmonized with the child's own direct manner of speech and thought. The set is not recommended for first purchase by schools or public libraries."
— + Subscription Bks Bul 11:6 Ja '40 1200w

RICHARDSON, CHALMER ORIN. A school in the country. 251p $2 Greenberg 40-32093

Short accounts of the problems of the superintendent of a small country school, presumably in New England. Told in fiction form.

"Not all the chapters are success stories, nor is the book's tone one of facile optimism. But it is warm with human sympathy and sound common sense against its realistic background. There's the tang of honest living here."
+ Books p17 O 20 '40 300w

"Mr. Richardson knows his small-town schools from pupils to superintendents. There is not much plot to his book. . . Most of the little tales have a touch of humor, and all have a moral. There are a few (like the story of Ruth Morris, who went to dances instead of doing her home work and came to a bad end) which, as the author says, are sad but true and so must be included. But for the most part the tone is wholesome and hearty." Charlotte Dean
+ N Y Times p28 O 20 '40 270w

RICHARDSON, CYRIL CHARLES. Sacrament of reunion. 120p $1.25 Scribner

285 Church unity. Presbyterian church in the U.S.A. Protestant Episcopal church in the U.S.A. 40-6021

"The discussion concerns the proposed concordat between the Episcopal and Presbyterian churches and the issues which it involves. As a teacher of church history, Dr. Richardson is particularly concerned with the historical aspects of those issues. His competent treatment of the early ministry of the church—'what we know' about it and 'what we guess'—should in itself go a long way toward making the concordat possible, especially since it comes from the Episcopal side." Christian Century

"A very able little book by the author of The Church Through the Centuries."

+ Christian Century 57:147 Ja 31 '40 90w

"This little volume might be dubbed the Episcopal book of the year because of its timeliness. . . Everyone hoping and praying for a more united Christendom should find this a most helpful book." G. M. Day

+ Churchman 154:16 My 15 '40 360w

Reviewed by W. N. Pittenger

Living Church 102:9 F 14 '40 700w

RICHARDSON, EDGAR PRESTON. The way of western art, 1776-1914. 204p il $4 Harvard univ. press [17s Oxford]

709 Art—History 40-203

"On the assumption . . . that our civilization is no less unified than that of the Middle Ages or the Renaissance, Mr. Richardson has undertaken a synthesis bringing the art of Western Europe and the United States into correlation with social and political activities." (Sat R of Lit) The author is assistant director of the Detroit Institute of Arts.

"Mr. Richardson's style is suited to the subject matter, and his 174 illustrations strengthen his thesis of cultural interrelationship. One need not agree either with his periodization or his choice of descriptive terms to realize that his book will be of fundamental value to students of the transmigration of cultures. Such studies will do much to raise the study of our artistic heritage to a plane of sound and mature scholarship." G. C. Grace, Jr.

+ Am Hist R 46:422 Ja '41 120w

Boston Transcript p6 My 18 '40 170w

"The reader who does not insist on being enlightened will find pleasure in this book, which, if dialectically unsatisfactory, has its felicities in details." F. J. M., Jr.

— + Sat R of Lit 21:19 Ja 20 '40 390w

Special Libraries 31:337 S '40

RICHARDSON, GERALD. A B C of cooperatives; a handbook for consumers and producers. 264p $2 Longmans

334 Cooperation (W) 40-27583

Survey of the history and principles of the cooperative movement in Great Britain, Scandinavia, the United States, Nova Scotia and Newfoundland. The author is director of the cooperative division, commission of government, St John's Newfoundland.

Booklist 36:424 Jl 15 '40

"A fine book."

+ Boston Transcript p2 Jl 27 '40 100w

"An excellent general survey. . . The extensive appendix contains material which will make it especially useful both to organizers and to teachers and students."

+ Christian Century 57:857 Jl 3 '40 80w

Christian Science Monitor p11 S 14 '40 600w

"Mr. Richardson's background, his first-hand experience and understanding, well fit him, for writing such a book. As primers go this one is quite absorbing. It is simple, rather didactic in style, and at times somewhat dry for the average reader. . . The early pages are crammed with information. The appendices, too, are replete with the specific facts a cooperative organizer needs to know. It is when Mr. Richardson turns to the problem of how to get started doing things cooperatively that the pace of the book picks up." Edward Skillin, Jr.

+ — Commonweal 32:235 Jl 5 '40 430w

J Home Econ 32:565 O '40 110w

Wis Lib Bul 36:123 Jl '40

RICHARDSON, LEON BURR. William E. Chandler, Republican. (Am. political leaders ser) 758p il $5 Dodd

B or 92 Chandler, William Eaton 40-36033

Biography of a New Hampshire politician who was born in 1835 and died in 1917. For sixty years he exerted a great influence on American party politics. He was manager of Grant's two presidential campaigns, engineer of the defeat of Tilden by Hayes, and the first Progressive republican. Bibliography. Index.

"Great names and great issues appear on every page of this biography and Chandler himself is dwarfed by the events which he helped to shape. The portrait of a man which emerges, however, is human and believeable. One cannot imagine him as personally lovable but as one follows his long career, he wears well. He is likable in print where the totals of his life can be cast and appraised. . . This is the fourteenth volume in the 'American Political Leaders' series. No book of the series thus far has been better done." W. E. Barrett

+ Boston Transcript p2 Ja 11 '41 500w

"[Chandler] lacked color, as did most of his contemporaries, and in the careful Richardson life color is what is needed to bring the 'Yankee of the Yankees,' as Henry Watterson called him, to full stature. Yet he has been paid a high tribute in being so fully and ably treated by his biographer, a fellow-citizen of New Hampshire. He has not been whitewashed or debunked. He has just been set forth, probably very much as he was." Francis Brown

+ N Y Times p20 Ja 26 '41 1300w

"Professor Richardson has done a final job. His scholarship, his thoroughness, and the access he has had to original documentary material, would seem to leave nothing for any biographer in the future to glean. For the specialist interested in the local political machinery and methods of the time it will prove valuable and permanent, but in this day, so distraught with mondial events and characters, it is scarcely a volume to attract the ordinary reader." J. T. Adams

+ Sat R of Lit 23:15 F 1 '41 750w

RICHMOND, HUGH, pseud. Mr Beamish; il. by Don Freeman. 255p $2.50 Coward-McCann 40-27235

Mr Beamish, a rotund, philosophically minded little proofreader, numbers a vast circle of friends: old books on the 3-for-25 counters that no one else buys; Mephistopheles and Dr Johnson who chat with him at home; a lively puppy, Miss Hoyden, and a cat, Sir Lancelot; a lilac-eyed copyholder who chews gum, and a young advertising man who wonders about love; a bankrupt millionaire, etc. All these share according to their needs in Mr Beamish's wealth—of food, lodging, sensible advice and kindly wisdom.

Booklist 36:284 Mr 15 '40

"There is more than a suggestion of Robert Nathan in this pleasing fantasy. Mr. Beamish is one of those fairy godfathers who pop out at us sometimes from between book-covers, as philanthropists for their fellow characters, and lovable philosophers for us all." John Patton

+ Books p18 Mr 3 '40 490w

Boston Transcript p1 Ap 6 '40 80w

"It is all highly important, philosophically humorous and generally romantic to Mr. Beamish. The reader who can share his mood will have an extremely amusing time with him. This is a happy book, for Mr. Beamish's thick-lensed glasses see good in everything, so that eventually the good must be there. There are amusing and appropriate illustrations by Don Freeman, line drawings in informal style—mostly chapter heads and tail pieces—that are as Beamish as the hero himself." Beatrice Sherman
+ N Y Times p26 Mr 3 '40 650w

RICHTER, CONRAD. The trees. 302p $2.50 Knopf
(W) 40-27179

"Tells the story of one pioneer family that migrated from Pennsylvania to the virgin wilderness of southeastern Ohio near the end of the eighteenth century. Their Western migration and their struggles have a genuine epic import, for their story is the story of Western settlement." Sat R of Lit

---

Atlantic My '40 50w

Booklist 36:265 Mr 1 '40

Bookmark p13 My '40

"An enormous amount of study must underlie the writing of this book; study of the way families lived on the frontier—their houses, food, clothing, tools; their rude attempts at doctoring, their marriage ways; their traffic with the Indians, with traders, with one another. . . In the book itself, however, Mr. Richter's indubitable learning is worn so lightly that one has no sense at all that this is a 'historical' novel or that its people are playing character parts in a costume play. You feel them as individuals, some of whom lived by the forest; others, to subdue it; and still others to be killed by it." Mary Ross
+ Books p1 Mr 3 '40 1250w

"It is exceptional indeed for a reviewer to find a book that he can praise wholeheartedly. Conrad Richter's 'The Trees' is one of these. Simple, direct, uncomplicated, it suggests more than it tells, and its suggestions reach out into a large world. . . Of its kind—and the kind is rare—the book is perfect. No detail is out of place, no word jars, no episode seems forced or ill-considered. Language, incident, character, mood—the writer's imagination has fused and united them all. The result is whole and complete, a serene, beautiful, and moving book." Dorothy Greenwald
+ Boston Transcript p1 Mr 2 '40 600w

"Better than any other pioneer novel I have read this season, Mr. Richter's book re-creates the furniture of backwoods life. He knows the sights and sounds and smells of the time and place: the noise of an Indian cutting shellbark to mend his canoe; the feel of lingering heat in a river rock after the sun has set. . . 'The Trees' is an authentic portrait of pioneer life, written with strength and beauty." Horace Reynolds
+ Christian Science Monitor p10 Je 1 '40 500w

Cleveland Open Shelf p8 Mr '40

Reviewed by C. Marriott
Manchester Guardian p7 My 10 '40 170w

"Richter tells this story with great strength and beauty and with none of the conventional trappings of historical fiction. There is no tacking on and chinking in of research products. Just as the spare, lyric style of the whole book takes its quality from the simple language of the people, the details of that primitive existence emerge unobtrusively from a background of simple necessity. And the leaven of humor, suspense and quiet excitement is felt in the same way. Structurally, except for a tendency toward the episodic, the story is handled with an easy, subtle balance that marks the maturity of Richter's fine talent." Max Gissen
+ New Repub 102:384 Mr 18 '40 310w

Reviewed by Anthony West
New Statesman & Nation 19:598 My 4 '40 210w

"In his new novel, 'The Trees,' Conrad Richter, author of 'The Sea of Grass,' has written a moving story of the beginning of the American trek to the west at the close of the eighteenth century. So vivid is his description of the land, so real his characters and their problems, that one forgets he is painting a picture of an early American epic." Rose Feld
+ N Y Times p6 Mr 3 '40 650w

"It's a period piece, with no great pretensions to exciting story-telling, but craftily done, with all the detail convincing and quite without the usual pioneer-hero sentimentality. A great improvement, may I say, on Mr. Richter's 'The Sea of Grass.' "
+ New Yorker 16:61 Mr 2 '40 80w

"The fact that 'The Trees' is not a historical novel does not preclude its historical importance, but the reader's first interest is in [the] hardy, illiterate pioneer family. By relating the story and presenting the scene consistently from their point of view, the author achieves a unity and tightness that both strengthen and simplify the novel. Whatever the wider interest and significance of the book, the author is content to keep it entirely fiction and resists all temptation to press Davy Crockett or Daniel Boone into the story. He needs no such proper nouns to persuade us of the veracity of his portrait: we close the book convinced that this is how the woodsmen in the great forests of the Northwest Territory really lived." R. A. Cordell
+ Sat R of Lit 21:5 Mr 2 '40 400w

"In The Trees . . . there is research, sincerity, imagination and beauty of writing. It is escape literature of a high-class sort. . . The forest itself is the principal agent in this book. It takes on an overpowering life. Every activity is surrounded by and saturated in its influence, and this feeling of a gigantic elemental force is achieved without any cheap mystical effects. The story is told in a reproduction of the actual speech of early settlers, and though it rings sentimentally now and then, it is on the whole fresh, vigorous, and salted with vivid natural imagery." Rosamond Lehmann
+ Spec 164:694 My 17 '40 420w

Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 17 '40 260w

Time 35:88 Ap 8 '40 70w

Times [London] Lit Sup p205 Ap 27 '40 320w

Wis Lib Bul 36:69 Ap '40

Reviewed by Robert Littell
Yale R n s 29:x spring '40 40w

RICHTER, HERBERT P. Practical electrical wiring; residential, farm, and industrial. 503p il $3 McGraw 621.328 Electric wiring (W) 40-1354

"In preparing this book it has been the author's aim to make it simple enough for the beginner, yet complete enough so that it will be of value also to those already engaged in electrical work. . . The book consists of three parts: Part 1 presents the fundamentals of electrical work; terminology; basic principles; the theory behind general practices. Part 2 deals with the actual wiring of residential buildings and farms. Part 3 covers the actual wiring of nonresidential buildings, such as stores, factories, schools, and similar structures." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 36:233 F 15 '40

Cleveland Open Shelf p2 Ja '40

N Y New Tech Bks 25:14 Ja '40

RICKETT, EDMOND W., and HOOGLAND, BENJAMIN T. Let's do some Gilbert and Sullivan; a practical production handbook; with il. by W. S. Gilbert. 238p $2.50 Coward-McCann

782.6 Amateur theatricals. Gilbert, Sir William Schwenck. Sullivan, Sir Arthur Seymour (W) 40-27236

This book for the amateur actor and singer discusses briefly the thirteen Gilbert & Sullivan operas, in order to help in the selection of one to perform. Part two covers the plan of the production, and part three how to put it over. Glossary of stage terms.

Booklist 36:278 Mr 15 '40

Reviewed by M. A. Whitney
Christian Science Monitor p13 S 26 '40 120w

RIDDLE, DONALD WAYNE. Paul, man of conflict; a modern biographical sketch. 244p $2 Cokesbury press

225.92 Paul, Saint 40-4825

"In this bold and stimulating book, Professor Riddle offers a new interpretation of the life of Paul. He points out that previous biographies have all been cramped by the effort to reconcile the evidence of Paul's own epistles with that of the book of Acts, which is at best a secondary source, written with apologetic motives. An attempt is made in the present book to obtain a true picture of the life from the primary source." (Christian Century) Index.

Booklist 36:299 Ap 1 '40

"The author's main thesis provokes many questions, but this only adds to the interest of his book, which is certainly one of the most notable of recent contributions to the study of Paul. Its theories may sometimes appear erratic, but they do not affect the value of the incidental discussions in which many Pauline problems are placed in a new light. . . Dr. Riddle tells us in his preface that he has aimed at writing a book which will be 'critical and appreciative,' and his book has both of these qualities in a high degree. This all too meager review of it has a similar aim. It is critical of most of the author's conclusions, but this is by no means inconsistent with warm appreciation of a singularly able and original and distinctive book." E. F. Scott
+ — Christian Century 57:448 Ap 3 '40 750w

Reviewed by R. C. Miller
Churchman 154:17 Mr 1 '40 230w

Reviewed by F. R. Baker
Crozer Q 17:226 Jl '40 410w

Reviewed by F. C. Grant
J Religion 20:310 Jl '40 1200w

RIDER, SARAH. The misplaced corpse. 282p maps $2 Houghton

40-33594

Detective story.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p28 D 1 '40 120w

"A puzzling crime problem cleverly worked out. The publishers promise that Gregory Tuttle will be heard from again, and that is good news for mystery fans." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p18 N 10 '40 160w

"Young Alabaman, in tough spot himself, has difficult time with amusing, talkative and deceptive group of West Coast temperamentals. Pleasant."
+ Sat R of Lit 23:20 N 16 '40 40w

RIEGEL, JOHN W. Salary determination. 278p $3.50; pa $3 Univ. of Mich.

331.2 Wages 40-6758

Survey of the way business concerns determine salary levels of "routine workers on salary" and "managers and technicians paid less than $10,000 per year." The work is based on the study of forty American companies. Selected references. Index.

"In general, the discussion is confined to the factual presentation of what was discovered. Occasionally comments are made that go beyond the evidence presented. . . In general the book is strongest in the parts that give the facts resulting from the survey and in making practical suggestions based upon the facts. Many tantalizing suggestions of a theoretical nature are dropped, which should be explored. Some of these theoretical issues, if explained, would doubtless throw much light on the fundamental causes of salary differences." H. F. Clark
Am Econ R 30:403 Je '40 500w

"Since fair and equitable compensation policies and procedures are the core of sound and healthy industrial relations, this volume by John W. Riegel should prove a valuable and timely publication." A. F. Kindall
+ Management R 29:155 Ap '40 600w

RIESENBERG, FELIX. The Pacific ocean; il. by Stephen J. Voorhies. (Oceans of the world; Whittlesey house publication) 322p maps $3 McGraw

990 Pacific ocean. Oceania (W) 40-27616

A history of the Pacific Ocean from the days of Balboa and Magellan to the airplane flight of Eddie Musick in 1935. The stories of many adventurous explorers are retold; Magellan, Drake, Cook, Dampier, Vancouver, Anson, Perry, Wilkes, and others. Index.

Booklist 37:10 S '40

"It is a rich and varied book of excellent reading of a sort to jolt a reader into fresh determination to read quite a number of books he intended to read some fine day." C. J. Finger
+ Books p3 Ag 18 '40 1100w

"'Superb' best decribes Riesenberg's book, comparable to the recent 'Cape Horn.' Without bombast, he employs brilliant phrases to catch the reader's breath and set the imagination afire. The salty tang of the sea is in the book, enriched with vividness and color. Captain Felix Riesenberg, Master Mariner, has set sail upon the Unknown Ocean, but he has left behind a literary bequest that we can always cherish and enjoy." P. J. Searles
+ Boston Transcript p1 Ag 24 '40 850w

Reviewed by W. J. Marx
Commonweal 32:531 O 18 '40 400w

"This author's firsthand knowledge and unusual narrative and descriptive powers, aided by maps and an attractive format make this an excellent 'starter' of a series called the Oceans of the World." O. G. Lawson
+ Library J 65:652 Ag '40 120w

Reviewed by R. P. Collins
Living Age 359:288 N '40 750w

"There is the natural stuff of poetry throughout this book, resonant and moving as in Alfred Noyes's lilting verse about the Elizabethan navigators. But what the poet does with rhyme and rhythm Felix Riesenberg did with the effortless presentation of sea and ship and men and direct nautical detail. He was not afraid of detail, even of technicality, knowing that there indeed was true romance; but his pictures of action are thrilling, and suddenly across a nautical paragraph will flash a description that glows with poetic flame. In form as well as substance this book is to be enjoyed and cherished; and its writing is strong and sure and unselfconscious like the gulls' flight across the well-known beloved sea." Katherine Woods
+ N Y Times p3 Ag 18 '40 1400w

"A good, gallant history. . . This is, unfortunately, the late Captain's last book. It is worthy of him."
+ New Yorker 16:67 Ag 24 '40 40w

Reviewed by Fletcher Pratt
Sat R of Lit 22:6 S 7 '40 420w

Reviewed by A. W. Griswold
Yale R n s 30:182 autumn '40 330w

RIESENBERG, FELIX, 1913- Golden Gate; the story of San Francisco harbor. 360p il $3.50 Knopf

979.461 San Francisco—Harbor
(W) 40-34258

Narrative history of San Francisco's harbor, and of the city itself—the six great fires of 1849 to 1851, the earthquake and fire of 1906, the rise and fall of the Barbary coast, the Gold Rush, and all the vicissitudes of the period from 1559 to the present. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 37:215 Ja 15 '41

"Young Felix Riesenberg is excited over the story of San Francisco and its harbor and has done a whale of a fine job of writing about them." Lincoln Colcord

+ Books p1 D 15 '40 1200w

"Felix Riesenberg Jr.'s story of San Francisco Harbor transcends local history. His objective approach welds into this book the spirit of American pioneering enterprise which reached its geographical climax in the founding of the community within the Golden Gate." H. T.

+ Christian Science Monitor p22 D 12 '40 420w

"It is a true and engrossing story, strikingly told." Lena Ruppert

+ Library J 65:981 N 15 '40 140w

"Mr. Riesenberg, who inherits a knowledge of ships and harbors and a racy way of writing about them, has a magnificent subject. He has produced a readable, vivid surface picture of the changing history of America's raciest port. . . Some readers will be inclined to regret the fictional style which is frequently used in the narrative of events. The twenty-seven illustrations are splendid."

+ Nation 152:26 Ja 4 '41 90w

"The story of San Francisco has been told many times, but can always stand being told again. Mr. Riesenberg, son of a seafaring father who also knew how to write, tells it from the point of view of what used to be East Street and is now the Embarcadero. This is a fresh approach and a fitting one." R. L. Duffus

+ N Y Times p3 D 22 '40 950w

"The author apparently inherited his late father's seamanlike touch and his gift for rapid and telling narrative. Some careless proofreading, but excellent photographs."

+ — New Yorker 16:124 D 7 '40 60w

"Young Mr Riesenberg has done a good job with his voluminous material, allotting credit and blame with what seems to be good judgment, and avoiding the adulation which San Francisco may deserve but which would sound too much like a Chamber of Commerce brochure."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e D 8 '40 950w

RIESENBERG, FELIX, 1913- Yankee skippers to the rescue. 283p il map $2 Dodd

910.4 Shipwrecks. Seamen 40-33125

"Beginning with the rescue of the 'Veendam' passengers and crew by Captain Randle of the 'St. Louis' in 1898, the author tells the dramatic stories of rescues in the north Atlantic by American ships and men up to the moment when war cleared that area of our ships. . . Most of them have been told elsewhere but here the emphasis is on the fine qualities of the personnel of American merchant ships. . . Appendices included: rescue table, boat crews, lists of honors. No index." Library J

Booklist 37:274 F 15 '41

"These are stirring tales excitingly presented . . . Not so impartial or cool in criticism as Baarslag in his book, SOS to the Rescue, nevertheless it makes vivid reading for boys of twelve upward and adults." Eleanor Kidder

+ Library J 65:880 O 15 '40 140w

"The book as a whole deserves a 'Well done' signal and citation in support of the theory that literary ability can be hereditary."

+ Sat R of Lit 23:21 N 30 '40 250w

RIESS, LUDWIG. History of the English electoral law in the middle ages; tr. with add. notes by K. L. Wood-Legh. 107p $2.25 Macmillan [7s 6d Cambridge]

328.33 Great Britain. Parliament. Election law

"The publication in 1885 of Riess's Geschichte des Wahlrechts zum englischen Parlament, which was originally a doctor's thesis in the University of Berlin, marks the beginning of a stream of critical studies such as are commonly known as supplementary to Stubbs and Gneist. . . Long out of print and in danger of being forgotten, with all its limitations—for the author used only the printed sources available in his own day—the treatise remains according to Gross the best work on the subject. . . In a preliminary discussion of the nature of parliament Riess advanced the singular view that the original purpose of Edward I in summoning knights and commons was not to grant supply so much as to offset the sheriff in the control of local government. . . On the conduct of elections, which is the main theme of the book, Riess's arguments and conclusions have found more general acceptance, particularly as regards medieval conceptions of representation, the function of sheriffs in receiving and returning writs, the reluctance of towns to do their duty, the payment of wages, and other familiar features." Am Hist R

"The editor, who is himself a noted contributor on the subject, has performed the task of translation and annotation with the least possible departure from the original purpose. Keeping the text intact with only minor emendations of the notes, he has added critical comments guardedly in brackets. Only the section on economic and social life, which hardly affects the main theme, has been omitted as being now too much superseded. A brief bibliographical list of the authorities cited is by no means commensurate with the ample resources of either author or editor." J. F. Baldwin

+ — Am Hist R 46:112 O '40 500w

"The Riess text does not make easy reading. The style is labored; and the attitude toward matters that are still controversial is overconfident, and even arrogant. At the same time, the views and their influence cannot be ignored by the serious student. From this point of view, Dr. Wood-Legh deserves nothing but praise. The translation is excellent. A formidable task of checking references has been performed thoroughly; and judicious additional notes have brought the text abreast with the results of recent researches. The editing of the little volume displays scholarship at its best." R. K. Gooch

+ — Am Pol Sci R 34:1039 O '40 200w

RIEZLER, KURT. Physics and reality; lectures of Aristotle on modern physics at an international congress of science, 679 Olymp. Cambridge, 1940 A.D; pub. for the New school for social research. 124p $2 Yale univ. press [9s Oxford]

530.1 Physics—Philosophy. Ontology. Reality. Aristotle 40-7680

"Using the happy device of recalling Aristotle from Limbo to deliver ten lectures to a contemporary audience, Dr. Riezler presents his conception of Aristotle's theory of nature as a more profound and more cogent alternative to the outlook of modern physics. In the first part of his book he argues that the contemporary mathematical sciences have arrived at an impasse, because they substitute a bleak and incoherent pattern of pointer-readings for the active concreteness of natural happenings; in the second part he attempts to show that the conception of a full-blooded and logically articulated nature can be recovered by returning to the Aristotelian ontology of substance, activity, potentiality, and actuality." J Philos

"Dr. Riezler's Aristotle exhibits more than a trace of Bergsonian accent; and it is not always evident that his Aristotle appreciates the difference between obscurity and profundity, or between inclusive but vague rubrics and unifying syntheses." E. N.

RIEZLER, KURT—Continued

J Philos 37:438 Ag 1 '40 360w

N Y New Tech Bks 25:51 O '40

Reviewed by V. F. Lenzen
+ R of Scientific Instruments 2:331 O '40 550w

"Stimulating volume."
+ Scientific Bk Club R 11:2 Ap '40 360w

RIGGS, MRS DIONIS COFFIN, and RIGGS, SIDNEY NOYES. From off island; the story of my grandmother. (Whittlesey house publication) 347p il map $2.75 McGraw

B or 92 Cleaveland, Mrs Mary (Carlin). Seafaring life. Martha's Vineyard, Massachusetts 40-7967

A partly fictionized account of the early married life of the authors' grandmother, wife of a Martha's Vineyard sea captain. Mary Carlin was born and raised in Australia and met and married James Cleaveland in Honolulu, so that being from "off island" and not a native she had to meet suspicion and prejudice in her husband's family and in the town. She escaped for five years when she accompanied her husband on a long whaling voyage and the story of these years forms the center of the book. Bibliography.

Booklist 36:382 Je 1 '40

"'From Off Island,' gives a picture of life on a whaler through a woman's eyes, done as a tribute by an admiring granddaughter. The sincerity and slightly amateurish manner of its telling add a certain winning quality to the story." Rosemary Benét
+ Books p5 My 5 '40 700w

Reviewed by M. B. Hopkins
Boston Transcript p1 My 4 '40 450w

"It is an unusual, romantic, interesting personal story, a vivid and intimate footnote to social history. The characters are suggested rather than realized, and we should have welcomed a deeper knowledge especially of Mary, and of James; nor does the author come to final grips with her psychological problems. But her factual material from her grandmother's life was limited, and (with touches of invention frankly confessed in the appendix) she has handled it significantly, in a book well worth reading and sure to be enjoyed." Katherine Woods
+ N Y Times p4 Ap 28 '40 1350w

Sat R of Lit 22:21 S 21 '40 240w

RIHBANY, ABRAHAM MITRIE. The five interpretations of Jesus. 116p $1.75 Houghton

232.9 Jesus Christ 40-11388

An interpretative study of Jesus Christ, viewed as Prophet, as Messiah, as the Word, as Deity, and as "brother and guide."

"Only religious liberals will go all the way with him, but all thoughtful readers will be informed and stimulated by his interpretations."
Christian Century 57:825 Je 26 '40 90w

"It is a neat little theory for those who are content to eliminate the really great historical and philosophical problems that surround the person of Jesus Christ. A valuable corrective for this sort of shallow thinking can be found in the works of Paul Elmer More, a truly brilliant critic and scholar."
— N Y Times p24 Ja 12 '41 260w

"'The Five Interpretations of Jesus' is an enlightening presentation of the liberal view of Jesus."
+ Springf'd Republican p8 Je 27 '40 480w

RILKE, RAINER MARIA. Fifty selected poems with English translations by C. F. MacIntyre. 151p $2 Univ. of Calif.

831 40-28300

Translations of fifty poems selected from Das Buch der Bilder and Neue Gedichte. The poem in the original is printed opposite the translation. Bibliography.

Booklist 36:410 Jl 1 '40

"It is seldom that Mr. MacIntyre's renderings are as awkward as that of The Insane, or that he bungles the meaning as in Faded, but his frequent substitutions of assonance for rhyme, on the grounds that Rilke used assonance, seem unwarranted, and it is precisely the music of the originals that one misses here, a music Leishman more carefully preserves. . . The obvious care and love which have gone into these translations make the reader the more critical of them. Had they been done with less attention, they would not deserve such severe scrutiny. In any event, Mr. MacIntyre has performed a signal service both to the poet whom he so warmly admires and to the public that should delight in him." Babette Deutsch
+ — Books p14 My 26 '40 850w

"A scholarly introduction through which the personality of the translator very clearly gleams, and detailed notes of the same character, as well as the German text of each poem on facing pages, all go to make this one of the most human and most readable of the many recent books on Rilke." John Holmes
+ Boston Transcript p11 Jl 8 '40 650w

Reviewed by W. H. Auden
New Repub 103:59 Jl 8 '40 340w

RILKE, RAINER MARIA. Wartime letters, 1914-1921; tr. by M. D. Herter Norton. 279p $2.50 Norton

B or 92 40-27560

Selections from the letters of the German lyric poet, written between the years 1914 and 1921. "The delicate organism of his intelligence, almost childishly non-political, recorded the deepest tremors of Europe in his time, though his subjects are poetry and the poetic process, Rodin's death, a cat named Prince, Paris, etc." (New Yorker) Contains a list of the people to whom the letters were written, and short notes about some of them.

Booklist 36:411 Jl 1 '40

Reviewed by Ruth Lechlitner
Books p22 Ag 25 '40 650w

Christian Century 57:798 Je 19 '40 140w

Reviewed by John Ritchey
Christian Science Monitor p12 Ag 17 '40 550w

Reviewed by Louise Bogan
Nation 151:305 O 5 '40 1050w

Reviewed by W. H. Auden
New Repub 103:59 Jl 8 '40 850w

"Mrs. Norton has added biographical notes to her clear and readable translation, and the book strikes many notes of interest. But even as the writer's soul is kept free of its corrosion, the war is always there. Following by only a few months the best novel from the first World war—Romains's 'Verdun'—these letters will surely be remembered as in a spiritual sense one of the best, though not the most immediate or representative, contemporary reflections of it." Katherine Woods
+ N Y Times p4 Je 2 '40 1600w

"A book of patient and rewarding insight, superbly written."
+ New Yorker 16:84 Je 1 '40 70w

"There are many fine things here, insights into human relations, instructive comment on the arts, on those artists whom he knew best, and on his own work, sharp glimpses of places and people, an illuminating talk about religion. The heart of these letters remains the sensitive, wise heart of Rilke himself, struggling with its tragic burden, waiting upon the poet's vision, profoundly alive to the great and terrible reality that he felt it his duty to comprehend and respond to more fully, eventually to recreate, and thereby to enrich." Babette Deutsch

+ Poetry 56:271 Ag '40 700w

"Those who read the 'Letters to a Young Poet' will remember how much each of Rilke's letters is a rounded work of art. Rilke's personal correspondence formed part of his artistic creation and bridged the gaps of his frequent, unproductive periods. His wartime letters contain thoughts, visions, and images which he might have crystalized to poetry had there been no war." Marianne Hauser

+ Sat R of Lit 22:10 Je 15 '40 410w

Springf'd Republican p8 Jl 30 '40 700w

Time 35:90 Je 10 '40 500w

"These lettters were . . . written with great care, not on the spur of the moment, not breathlessly, as so many famous letters are, but out of the ebb and flow of his whole being. Like the letters of Proust, they belong to the most suggestive documents of their time in Europe. They reveal some aspects of a strange and unique personality as well as some of the mysteries of the genus Poet." Herbert Steiner

+ Yale R n s 30:201 autumn '40 1200w

RINEHART, MARY (ROBERTS) (MRS S. M. RINEHART). The great mistake. 365p $2 Farrar

(W) 40-33219

Mystery story.

Booklist 37:138 D 1 '40

"Here it is, folks, the new Mary Roberts Rinehart mystery. And a honey it is, too; than which there could hardly be bigger or better news for the world of fandom." Will Cuppy

+ Books p40 N 10 '40 320w

"'The Great Mistake' is a long story, but not a line too long. Mrs. Rinehart's mastery of plot construction and development, of characterization and of mystification has never been better demonstrated than in this book. Any one who aspires to become a writer of this type of fiction could not do better than to study carefully the methods of Mary Roberts Rinehart." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p18 N 10 '40 200w

"Rinehart followers will be sadly disappointed."

New Yorker 16:104 N 16 '40 50w

"Well worthwhile."

+ Sat R of Lit 23:20 N 23 '40 40w

Time 36:84 D 2 '40 30w

RINGUET, pseud. See Panneton, P.

RIPLEY, CLEMENTS. Clear for action. 310p $2.50 Appleton-Century

Jones, John Paul—Fiction (W) 40-13553

This novel, in which John Paul Jones is the hero, is told in the first person by one Angus Lowrie, who served as Jones' clerk and was also his close friend and admirer. The period covered is from about 1773 to 1783, with the climax of the tale the battle between the Serapis and the Le Bonhomme Richard.

Booklist 37:91 N 1 '40

"A racy and full-bodied chronicle of adventure." David Tilden

+ Books p8 Jl 28 '40 290w

"'Clear for Action' is fairly accurate historically, has all the ingredients of a first class adventure story, and is written in breathtaking fashion. There is action on every page, intrigues, romance, battles afloat and ashore, culminating in the glorious action between the Bon Homme Richard and the Serapis when Paul Jones uttered those immortal words, 'I have not yet begun to fight.' I defy anyone to put the book down before reaching the end." P. J. Searles

+ Boston Transcript p1 Ag 17 '40 110w

"This novel about Paul Jones is not in the biographical class, treating as it does, with only a decade of the subject's life, nor is it a novel of character, but, as the title and colorful jacket hint, we have here a forthright action story. Jones's amorous adventures are merely suggested and there is no attempt at full length portraiture." Drake DeKay

+ N Y Times p7 Ag 4 '40 800w

"Through the eyes, ears, and quaint expression of the canny Scot, Angus Lowrie, whom he makes the hero and narrator of his yarn, [the author] draws an accurate, historical picture. . . The book is worth reading." M. E. T.

+ Sat R of Lit 22:20 S 28 '40 190w

RIPPERGER, MRS HENRIETTA (SPERRY). A home of your own, and how to run it; il. by Anne Cleveland. 443p $2.49 Simon & Schuster

640 Home economics (W) 40-27617

A book for the beginning housekeeper which covers a wide range of subjects from choosing an apartment or house, furnishing it, managing servants and giving dinner parties, to the costs of having a baby. Index.

Booklist 37:8 S '40

Reviewed by Margaret Fishback

Books p14 S 15 '40 400w

"The whole is told in a vivacious style with many practical hints for families well above the poverty level."

J Home Econ 32:633 N '40 120w

"To say that Henrietta Ripperger's book is encyclopedic is accurate, but insufficient: for one thing, it is a book of directions, not of mere information; and, for another thing, it is written with such gayety and sympathy that to read it, for the young homemaker, will be like welcoming a friend."

+ N Y Times p8 Jl 28 '40 480w

RIPPY, JAMES FRED. The Caribbean danger zone. 296p maps $3 Putnam

972.9 Caribbean sea. U.S.—Defenses. U.S. —Foreign relations—Latin America

(W) 40-27770

In this book the author "re-examines the policy of the United States with reference to the Caribbean Danger Zone. . . [His] main purpose has been to direct the narrative toward the problems of the day: to emphasize the strategic aspects of the relations between the United States and the Caribbean region broadly defined, the devices and techniques employed by the United States in safeguarding its security, and the connection between dollar diplomacy and strategy diplomacy in the American Mediterranean." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 37:111 N 15 '40

Reviewed by W. A. Roberts

Books p19 N 3 '40 480w

Nation 151:457 N 9 '40 80w

"Valuable work, but somewhat too circumstantial for easy reading."

+ New Yorker 16:111 O 19 '40 50w

RIPPY, JAMES FRED. Historical evolution of Hispanic America. 2d ed 582p il maps $5 Crofts

980 Latin America—History

Second edition of a text first published in 1932 (Book Review Digest, 1932). In his preface the author says: "In this second edition I have brought the story of Hispanic America down to date, again assuming that the foreign relations of the region are as important as its internal history. . . Responding to the objection that social phases were not sufficiently stressed in the first edition, I have given somewhat more attention to that subject. . . The Reading Lists have been thoroughly revised." Index.

RIPPY, J. F.—Continued

Booklist 37:120 N 15 '40
Social Studies 31:380 D '40 30w

RIST, CHARLES. History of monetary and credit theory, from John Law to the present day; tr. [from the French] by Jane Degras. 442p $4.90 Macmillan [25s Allen, G.]

332.4 Money. Credit. Economics—History [40-31546]

"Nobody could be better qualified to treat the history of monetary theory than Professor Rist, who, in addition to being the doyen of European economists, has had the experience of acting as sub-governor of the Bank of France. The book professes to be a history of ideas rather than of men or of books, and traces the persistence for over two centuries of the great monetary controversies which continue to arise in every generation, though each time in slightly different guise." (Times [London] Lit Sup) The French original of the book was published in Paris in 1938. Index.

"It is to be hoped that Professor Rist's new book will find a great many readers in Great Britain; for it is an admirable corrective to the views on monetary theory which are traditional among British economists and so deeply rooted in British monetary and banking practice as often to pass unquestioned in current controversies. Professor Rist disclaims at the very beginning of his book any intention of presenting his readers with a learned treatise: indeed, in one of its aspects his volume is rather a vastly expanded tract than an impartial history." G. D. H. Cole
New Statesman & Nation 19:804 Je 29 '40 700w

"The historical method of treatment is not used as a means of evasion of current issues. On the contrary, the wisdom learnt from a study of the past is marshalled as an aid in solving the difficult problems of the present. Professor Rist is a strong and unrepentant supporter of the international gold standard. Mankind, he insists, has always derived benefit from an abundance of gold which tends to raise prices and to increase the financial stability of governments. Many of the objectionable theories and practices that rule in the monetary world to-day are traced back to Ricardo, the 'arch-doctrinaire,' who emerges as the villain of this fascinating history."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p299 Je 22 '40 320w

RISTER, CARL COKE. Border captives. 220p il maps $2 Univ. of Okla. press

970.3 Indians of North America—Captivities 40-7513

This book contains the story of the practice followed by the Southern Plains Indians in the nineteenth century, of raiding white settlements and carrying off women and children to hold for ransom. Bibliography. Index.

"Dr. Rister has taken full advantage of the dramatic elements in his subject matter and has written a genuinely interesting book. In doing this he has not forgotten the high standards of the historian, with the result that his study is quite authoritative." R. N. Richardson
+ Am Hist R 46:487 Ja '41 210w

"Mr. Rister's volume is valuable for the light it throws on one little-known phase of our Indian relations and on Indian character; it is interesting chiefly for its recounting of a dozen." H. S. Commager
+ Books p9 Je 9 '40 480w

Boston Transcript p2 Ag 3 '40 20w
New Repub 102:618 My 6 '40 50w

"'Border Captives' is one of those admirable Western studies which should be read by all Americans who want to master the details of this continent's history. It is, moreover, gripping—if also often appalling—reading."
+ N Y Times p16 My 12 '40 430w
Springf'd Republican p6 Je 17 '40 270w

RITNER, MRS ANN KATHERINE (GILLILAND). Elizabeth, my daughter. 320p $2.50 Mill

40-35463

Elizabeth Carter, the red-haired, determined daughter of the governor of a Western state, attempts to arrange the lives of the members of her family, and meets with defeat all along the line. Even her own life seems a failure, until she finally decides to marry Nicholas, her father's partner.

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Books p22 N 24 '40 240w

"Without having a great deal of physical action, this is nevertheless a strenuous book. It is also a good one, written with vigor and clarity and a certain penetrating subtlety and humor that engage the interest from the start. The characters are not likable or lovable, but they have their own fascinations. . . It is a sharp, shrewd book, not without depth, and it makes one hope for more from Mrs. Ritner." Charlotte Dean
+ N Y Times p7 N 24 '40 550w

RITTENHOUSE, JESSIE BELLE (MRS CLINTON SCOLLARD). The moving tide; new and selected lyrics. 142p $2 Houghton

811 39-24480

Selection of poems from the three earlier volumes of the author's works, with a few new lyrics added.

Booklist 36:130 D 1 '39
Wis Lib Bul 36:65 Ap '40

RIVER, WALTER LESLIE. Transit U.S.A. 335p $2.50 Stokes

40-32368

Saga of Curly Martin, owner of the last glass-bottomed boat to sail from Buenavista Island in California. Curly was simple and good, and believed that a promise was a promise. The wealthy Mr Borland had promised to help him if he needed it, and so when a big corporation put him out of business, Curly started his long trek in search of Mr Borland. Traveling on foot, riding the rails, in jail and out of it, living with hoboes and eccentrics, Curly pursued his illusive quest all the way across the United States, only to meet with defeat and disillusion.

"'Transit U. S. A.' succeeds, despite writing that is sometimes cryptic, sometimes careless, because of the complete plausibility of Curly Martin, the sense of motion, and the accurate symbolism of what Curly finds. It has its faults, however, and the most significant of them is inherent in the book's structure, which is almost necessarily schematic. Mr. River designs a tapestry that is sometimes too well proportioned, too properly shaded. But this is his most serious fault, and otherwise he has written a touching, meaningful and altogether promising novel of America." R. H. Rovere
+ — Books p12 O 20 '40 800w
Commonweal 33:108 N 15 '40 40w

"The idea is original, but developments lack a cumulative effect and the social implications impede the narrative." Esther Johnston
+ — Library J 65:874 O 15 '40 70w

" 'Transit U. S. A.' is a highly original tale. Imagine 'The Pilgrim's Progress' as it might have been written in collaboration by Cervantes and Rabelais in terms of modern America, and you will see why it makes fascinating reading from beginning to end." L. B. Salomon

+ Nation 151:368 O 19 '40 390w

Reviewed by F. T. Marsh

N Y Times p23 O 6 '40 600w

"A fable of America in all its contradictions, with a Don Quixote in modern dress for a hero."

New Yorker 16:102 O 12 '40 60w

"Mr. River's book is perhaps less important in what it sets out to say, however, than in what it is as a symptom. Its compound of realism and allegorical fantasy leaves one feeling that we are not a people with a dream, but a people with a nightmare. . . The author has an ear both for the terse cynicism of native speech and the lonely wail of a distant locomotive. If the overtones of his novel are at all true to life—then there is something wrong with our nation that no social thinker we have heard from yet has satisfactorily explained." Charlton Ogburn, Jr.

Sat R of Lit 22:22 O 19 '40 360w

Springf'd Republican p7e O 13 '40 350w

Time 36:85 O 7 '40 90w

ROBBINS, JOSEPH CHANDLER. Boardman of Burma; a biography [foreword by P. H. J. Lerrigo]. 178p map $1.50 Am. Bapt.

B or 92 Boardman, George Dana. Missions—Burma 40-6602

Biography of an early nineteenth-century American missionary, who died in Burma, scene of his labors, at the age of thirty. Bibliography.

"Boardman died at thirty and his widow became the second Mrs. Adoniram Judson. But his four years in the field wrote a record the luster of which a century has not dulled. Dr. Robbins, himself a former missionary in the Philippines and for nearly twenty-five years secretary of the American Baptist Foreign Mission Society, has both the knowledge and the feeling to qualify him for his task as biographer."

+ Christian Century 57:219 F 14 '40 110w

Reviewed by H. C. Poteat

Crozer Q 17:160 Ap '40 80w

ROBBINS, RAINARD BENTON. College plans for retirement income. 253p $2.75 Columbia univ. press

371.17 College professors and instructors—Salaries, pensions, etc. Old age pensions 40-34139

A review of the retirement plans of colleges and universities in the United States and Canada. The book is in two parts: part one records the present status of retirement plans in individual colleges; part two reviews the development of such plans without reference to particular institutions. Index.

"This volume is one that should be available to every college executive in the country. Faculty committees that are struggling with the problems incident to the preparation of a retirement plan for their institutions will find this book especially useful. Staff members in colleges and universities where protection is now afforded by a retirement plan will be interested in checking the effectiveness of their plan against the criteria suggested by Mr. Robbins. Those in institutions which do not now have a retirement plan should be stimulated to the point of demanding an immediate attack on the problem of setting up some arrangement for retirement income." J. D. Russell

+ Library Q 11:124 Ja '41 600w

School & Society 52:504 N 16 '40 20w

"This is a much-needed book. It will be found of particular interest to college teachers and especially to those administrative officers who are charged with the responsibility of maintaining the standards of instruction in the college by the adoption of appropriate plans of retirement income for those who, because of age or disability, should be retired from active service." H. L. Rietz

+ School & Society 53:156 F 1 '41 950w

Springf'd Republican p7e O 20 '40 80w

Reviewed by Margaret Grant

Survey 77:27 Ja '41 550w

ROBERTS, ARTHUR DENIS. Guide to technical literature: introductory chapters and engineering. 279p 15s Grafton & co. [English publication]

016.62 Technology—Bibliography. Engineering—Bibliography [39-23537]

"The author, who is Librarian of the Technical Library of Birmingham, England, attempts to guide librarians and technicians through the maze of technical literature—bibliographies, indexes, abstracts, society transactions, dictionaries, patents, etc. The greater part of the book comprises selected book lists, classified according to subjects, and includes titles both new and old." N Y New Tech Bks

"The first disappointment is when we learn that the author intends dealing only with engineering, and further that even this is limited by excluding many subheads under engineering. . . There are instances of inconsistent entries, as, for example, a reference to the Commission International des Grandes Barrages on one page while on a later page it is called the International Commission on Large Dams and in the Index it is entered only under the English title. . . Apropos of annotations and descriptions, we may say that the bibliographic data are not in all cases complete, especially in continuations. . . A factor contributing to the difficulty in using the book is that many titles are lost in paragraphs or pages of solid type. The eye could find such references more easily were they set in indented arrangement similar to that used in part of the book. To American engineers and librarians this publication will be somewhat limited in its usefulness because of its English emphasis and its important omissions. . . Despite the foregoing, the difficulties under which Mr. Roberts labored to produce this book are appreciated, though we wish the title were not so misleading and the Preface were more definitive." K. L. Taylor

— + Library Q 9:537 O '39 900w

N Y New Tech Bks 25:4 Ja '40

Pratt p4 winter '40

ROBERTS, CECIL. And so to Bath. 380p $3 Macmillan [10s 6d Hodder]

914.2 England—Description and travel. Bath, England (W) 40-14158

A historical and anecdotal description of the English countryside along the road from London to Bath, a distance which could be covered by automobile in three hours. The author, however, spent three months visiting every historical building along the way, recalling their history from the time of the Roman invasion, and the stories of the people, from kings to highwaymen, who made history along this stretch of English road.

Atlantic O '40 200w

Booklist 37:67 O 15 '40

Bookmark 2:9 Ja '41

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Books p12 S 15 '40 650w

"The book is a succession of cameos come alive. Into recent or distant antiquities that are the essence of England Mr. Roberts steps with colloquial ease. . . This pageant leaps from Mr. Roberts's pen in full and charming dimensions. The journey of 106 miles embraces many lifetimes of years, a universe of terrain. You will lose yourself in it." J. C. Skinner

+ Boston Transcript p2 S 7 '40 550w

Christian Century 57:1114 S 11 '40 110w

ROBERTS, CECIL—Continued

"[Mr. Roberts] has converted the road to Bath into one long, picturesque byway of history, and done it extremely well. Perhaps he is over-anxious, when he takes us round a stately home, to make an inventory—but I enjoyed him too much not to forgive him these lapses." Eric Forbes-Boyd

+ — Christian Science Monitor p10 S 28 '40 550w

"Never sentimental, he has a knack for depicting the pomp and circumstance of the past from a modern perspective. The result is a different kind of travel book that is decidedly informative in an entertaining way." E. J. Clarke

+ Commonweal 32:494 O 4 '40 260w

Nation 151:373 O 19 '40 60w

"A very readable and entertaining guide-book to one of the most travelled roads in the world." Desmond Hawkins

+ New Statesman & Nation 20:163 Ag 17 '40 430w

"Here on the road to Bath is the old and the new, town and country, man's wisdom and folly and weakness and strength and ambition and whim, all in a fascinating picture that is painted in spirited colors and drawn with a most graceful skill. Cecil Roberts's new book will be widely read, as it deserves to be, for its obvious quality of rich and lively charm." Katherine Woods

+ N Y Times p9 S 1 '40 1350w

Sat R of Lit 22:21 S 7 '40 490w

"Substantial and vigorous, his book has all the advantages which might result from a marriage between an A.A. itinerary and an encyclopaedia. And So To Bath is, indeed, exceptionally knowledgeable. Perhaps because of this Mr. Roberts does not wholly conceal that its primary impulse is to convey, not a feeling, but information."

+ Spec 165:130 Ag 2 '40 130w

Springf'd Republican p7e S 15 '40 650w

Time 36:68 S 2 '40 160w

"There are [many] slips. But when each envious reader has worked off his spleen by making his own list, he will be ready to agree that the whole lot do not matter twopence. Mr. Roberts did not write the book in order to prepare students for examination, but to give life to the past as he encountered it. And that he does in an amusing and instructive book, full of his personality."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p378 Ag 3 '40 550w

ROBERTS, MRS EDITH (KNEIPPLE). Tamarack. 368p $2.50 Bobbs

(W) 40-9594

Up in the North Woods, in country devastated by the lumber companies fifty years ago, lie a number of small towns, thinly populated and existing thruout the long winters on the proceeds of the Season when summer tourists invade them. This novel follows the fortunes of a group of "natives" in one such town, Tamarack, from the opening days of one Season to the following spring. The central figure is a young widow whose indiscreet search for pleasure brings down all the evils of small town life upon her.

Booklist 36:430 Jl 15 '40

"It is an unlovely picture, unmistakably based on first-hand observation and peopled with real individuals. Somehow this grim tale makes one shudder and despair." Iris Barry

Books p8 Je 16 '40 700w

Reviewed by Lewis Gannett

Boston Transcript p13 Je 11 '40 600w

"Readable and well written all the way."

+ New Repub 102:866 Je 24 '40 60w

"[Mrs] Roberts shuttles her figures back and forth with skillful hand, creating the variegated pattern of a small community possessing little aristocracy of feeling or spirit. There are some fine creatures among them but they are in a pitiful minority." Rose Feld

+ N Y Times p6 Je 9 '40 850w

New Yorker 16:115 Je 15 '40 80w

"[Mrs] Roberts spares nothing; this is as bitter an arraignment of the American town as we have ever seen. Perhaps too bitter. 'Main Street,' as we remember it, had much humor and more humanity. Tamarack is peopled with desperate and humorless folk, harried and harrying. There are some good people in it but no happy ones, which is not credible." N. L. R.

+ — Sat R of Lit 22:19 Je 22 '40 240w

ROBERTS, ELIZABETH MADOX. Song in the meadow; poems. 110p $2 Viking

811 40-27470

Ballads, poems in folk tradition, and verse based on legendary material, by the American novelist, author of The Time of Man (Book Review Digest, 1926).

Booklist 36:362 My 15 '40

"Miss Roberts could not have chosen a more fitting title for her second volume of verse. It is full of lilting melodies, catches and folk tunes, such music as one might hear comin' through the rye or sounding above the hiss of milk in the pail, music sweet and candid, gay or mournful, but wanting the subtler harmonies, the more troubling discords of significant poetry. Indeed, it is her handling of cadence and her sensuous delight in the tone-color of words and phrases that is the chief interest of her work." Babette Deutsch

+ — Books p4 My 12 '40 800w

Reviewed by Lewis Gannett

Boston Transcript p3 Ap 27 '40 30w

Reviewed by John Holmes

Boston Transcript p11 Jl 1 '40 750w

Reviewed by John Ritchey

Christian Science Monitor p14 Jl 27 '40 330w

"Surely, poetry-loving boys and girls will find in the arresting structure of these verses a singing quality that is refreshing and full of music. They will enjoy the humor and bubbling essence of 'Philly in the Kitchen,' they will shout aloud the spirited challenge of 'Jack the Giant Killer.'" A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk M 16:272 Jl '40 100w

Reviewed by J. P. Bishop

Nation 151:56 Jl 20 '40 300w

"Miss Roberts, who sings best the moods of young girls, or the wonder of childhood, goes off-key when she attempts to sing more loudly, that is, of the world." E. S. Gottlieb

+ — New Repub 102:768 Je 3 '40 290w

"[This] is not a novelist, not even a poetic novelist, writing occasional verse; it is a poet writing a natural idiom, fresh and gay and assured of itself, delighting in the variety of rhyme and rhythm, creating its own special world of imaginative reality. Novelists have a hard time saving their poetry from the pigeonholing critics, but it seems quite natural now, at least to this reader, to discuss Miss Roberts as one might discuss Miss Wylie or Mr. de la Mare, independently as a poet." P. M. Jack

+ N Y Times p2 My 5 '40 800w

New Yorker 16:91 My 4 '40 40w

Reviewed by Paul Goodman

Poetry 57:43 O '40 750w

Pratt p19 autumn '40

"'Song in the Meadow' is essentially a book of verses for children, but verses which grade off rather irresponsibly into poems aimed at mature readers. Perhaps it would be missing the point to examine too carefully the reasons for one's dissatisfaction with the poems which seem to be, at least partly, for the grown-up. For certainly the charm they have, often considerable, consists in a kind of gay, lyrical thoughtlessness that seems bound to bog down somewhere before the last line of a poem is reached." R. W. Short

+ — Yale R n s 30:212 autumn '40 380w

ROBERTS, KENNETH LEWIS. Oliver Wiswell. 836p maps $3 Doubleday
(W) 40-34073

This new historical novel by the author of Northwest Passage (Book Review Digest, 1937), tells a story of the American Revolution from the point of view of a colonial who was loyal to the Crown.

"I believe that Oliver Wiswell will reach countless readers, and will revise the opinions held by almost every one of them about the Revolution. It is also an absorbing narrative in itself, without benefit of history." Carl Van Doren

+ Atlantic D '40 650w

Booklist 37:137 D 1 '40

Bookmark 2:14 Ja '41

"This huge new novel of the American Revolution as a whole (including, but only incidentally here, the matter of 'Arundel' and 'Rabble in Arms') is Roberts's doughtiest work. He's sticking out his chin; and I expect him to survive intact. I only hope it will be for the right reasons. It's a bold pugnacious book, and one, I think, of tremendous importance." F. T. Marsh

+ — Books p1 N 24 '40 1500w

"In sustained interest this is the best piece of work Kenneth Roberts has done. His other novels have had many chapters of amazing vigor and excitement, but this book has more of them—has them all the while except when time is taken for necessary relaxation; and possibly, in the Paris episode." W. K. R.

+ Christian Science Monitor p20 N 22 '40 750w

Reviewed by Ruth Byrns

— + Commonweal 33:260 D 27 '40 410w

"Recommended for all libraries. A sure best seller." H. A. Wooster

+ Library J 65:982 N 15 '40 180w

Reviewed by L. B. Salomon

Nation 151:509 N 23 '40 300w

Discussion by Margaret Marshall

Nation 151:609 D 14 '40 410w

"Roberts has failed his material badly in many ways. First, through his very method. He has never known how to hold a book together, but the business of plugging a thesis with a vehemence that sometimes approaches hysteria has increased his normal difficulties. 'Oliver Wiswell' is simply a huge string of events, big and little, which have been selected and shaped to prove the Loyalist case." Max Gissen

New Repub 103:904 D 30 '40 1550w

"The present novel, which is history for all its fictional form, will startle every man, woman and child who has been taught to believe that the American Revolution was fought and won by bands of angels. It is, in short, the Revolution as seen by men whom the Revolutionary fathers called Tories and who called themselves Loyalists. In it all the bitterness of a horrible civil war is powerfully and dramatically brought back to life. . . All that is required of a reviewer is to warn the D. A. R. and other readers who have confined themselves mostly to the traditional histories that they will have the shock of their lives in turning Mr. Roberts's pages." R. L. Duffus

+ — N Y Times p1 N 24 '40 1550w

"I leave historians to determine the validity of Oliver's case. As a narrative, the book, I feel, is not quite up to the first half of 'Northwest Passage,' though it is superior to anything in the second half. Oliver himself is nothing but the conventional heroic prig and Sally Leighton, the heroine, has only the negative virtues of patience and fidelity, but the other figures on the canvas are more animated." Clifton Fadiman

+ — New Yorker 16:91 N 23 '40 1450w

"Once more Mr. Roberts proves that his best talents lie in the swift narration of some tale of heroic exertions or resistances. . . When it comes to the presentation of gentler scenes, whether in drawing-rooms, courts, or congresses, he is much less effective. Nor is he skilled in the integration of a far-reaching and highly varied piece of fiction. His 'Northwest Passage' broke squarely in two, while this book has a sprawling quality which results in thin and unconvincing passages." Allan Nevins

+ — Sat R of Lit 23:5 N 23 '40 950w

"Kenneth Roberts's new book is valuable for a clear exposition of the 'other side' of the Revolution, as well as being very welcome for the battle scenes of which he is a master."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e N 24 '40 1150w

Time 36:94 N 25 '40 1400w

ROBERTS, LESLIE. We must be free. 248p $3.25 (12s 6d) Macmillan

971 Canada—Politics and government 40-34094

"A survey of present-day Canadian political thought, institutions and practices by a thoroughgoing liberal who believes that freedom is on the decline in Canada." Foreign Affairs

Reviewed by M. Q. Sibley

Am Pol Sci R 34:811 Ag '40 140w

"This is an honest book, however one may react to some of its details. Its strong language will stir up plenty of disagreement in Canada as well as in the United States. It is the work of a journalist, not a historian, and for those familiar with the history of Canada since confederation, it adds little by way of factual information. Its plea to stop 'the wear and tear of erosion' on our democratic liberties cannot be repeated too often in times like these when hysteria and bigotry are raising their ugly heads again in the name of democracy, and tired liberals are tempted to compromise with witch-hunting demagogues in the name of a false patriotism." Carl Wittke

+ — Ann Am Acad 209:199 My '40 650w

Foreign Affairs 18:576 Ap '40 40w

Reviewed by J. S. Southron

N Y Times p19 F 11 '40 1100w

Times [London] Lit Sup p274 Je 8 '40 140w

ROBERTS, MARJORIE. Webs in the sky. 299p $2.50 Funk, W.
40-32095

"Giant bridges are among the most majestic and exciting achievements of modern engineering and architectural genius, but to one group of workers they cease to be exciting on the day when public officials cut a ribbon. A bridge completed is a finished story to bridgemen. . . To the rivet-pusher, the bucker-up and the heater, working at high pressure amid infernal din, the bridge is more than a meal ticket: it is a symbol of shared danger and accomplishment. That concept is the motif of 'Webs in the Sky.'. . The hero of the novel became a bridgeman in flight from a personal disaster. . . To get away from unhappy associations, Don Sterling got a job with a construction gang in Louisiana. When that task was completed, he migrated to California and worked on the Golden Gate bridge." Books

"Romance flavors the narrative, but the men on the job are vital parts of this interesting story."

+ Books p14 S 29 '40 200w

"Like the great bridges about which it is written, this book gets off to a slow start, and, like them again, it has the grace and airy strength of a cobweb. Miss Roberts knows and loves bridges and their builders. . . She has not gone off into dreams of the romance of bridge-building, but she conveys the romance through her practical knowledge of how the rivets are set and the cables stretched. Any one who has stared in ad-

ROBERTS, MARJORIE—Continued
miring wonder at the George Washington Bridge or the great spans across the Golden Gate should like to read her story." Charlotte Dean
+ N Y Times p14 O 27 '40 240w

ROBERTS, MARTA. Tumbleweeds. 294p $2.50 Putnam
40-13554

Traces the story of the Garcias: Concha, Pedro and their six children, a Mexican family living in California. For five years, as long as Pedro had work, they flourished. Then Pedro lost his job and they came down in the social scale and had to go on relief. Pedro took to drink, and the family went downhill rapidly until Concha took things into her own capable hands, and finally provided the means for their return to Mexico.

Booklist 37:36 O 1 '40

Reviewed by Muriel Chatain
Books p8 Ag 25 '40 650w
Boston Transcript p2 O 5 '40 390w

"Though its ending is perhaps too roseate, 'Tumbleweeds' is, in its modest way, an engaging and honest tale, not merely a picturesque genre study." E. H. Walton
+ — N Y Times p6 Ag 18 '40 750w

"A warmhearted story, told with compassion and no condescension."
+ New Yorker 16:66 Ag 24 '40 50w
Time 36:84 Ag 19 '40 110w

ROBERTS, WALTER ADOLPHE. The Caribbean; the story of our sea of destiny. 361p il maps $3.50 Bobbs

972.9 Caribbean sea. West Indies. Spanish main (W) 40-14250

A history, popular in tone, of the discovery, conquest, settlement and development of the islands and lands bordering on the Caribbean from the time of Columbus to June, 1940. Index.

Booklist 37:66 O 15 '40

"Mr. Roberts is a native of Jamaica, and the author of two regional biographies of the buccaneer Sir Henry Morgan and of the Confederate raider Capt. Raphael Semmes. The present work combines an unobtrusive scholarship with a flair for dramatic presentation." A. K. Weinberg
+ Books p4 S 8 '40 1000w

"Especially timely is this account of the inland sea which Mr. Roberts describes as the key to two continents, and as the Mediterranean of the Western Hemisphere. . . The author has succeeded in presenting a faithful and a pretty well balanced record. . . The rather depressing effect of the book is due, probably, partly to the fact that Mr. Roberts has had to tell so much in such small space, and partly to the fact that he is dealing with a region of exploited peoples. No doubt, with more time and room to devote to individual countries, he would have found place for more attention to the works of peace as well as of war. As for the relative capacities of the exploiting nations in the colonial field, he takes the unusual position that the French are best qualified to deal with the colored races." L. A. S.
+ — Christian Science Monitor p10 S 28 '40 400w

"It is unfortunate, perhaps, that no more space was given to this aspect of the sea's importance, to the influence of air power upon Caribbean strategy, to a more thorough consideration of potential naval and air bases. The development of Caribbean strategy is, of course, implicit in the history of the sea, but a final and sharply etched chapter throwing into bold relief these problems would have been a valuable addition to a valuable and important book." H. W. Baldwin
+ — N Y Times p12 Ja 19 '41 800w
New Yorker 16:71 S 7 '40 30w

ROBERTSON, ARNOT. See Robertson, E. A.

ROBERTSON, EILEEN ARBUTHNOT (MRS H. E. TURNER). Summer's lease. 408p $2.50 Houghton [9s 6d Cape, J.]
40-6441

Tho the first page of this novel shows us the opening days of the second European war, the rest of the book, beginning about 1912, concentrates on the years of boyhood and youth of the hero, Douglas Caise. The story is a psychological study of a sensitive, shy boy, further handicapped by unacknowledged weak eyesight, and over-refined, unsuccessful parents. How Douglas learned thru pain and discouragement to face life, is here related.

Booklist 36:412 Jl 1 '40

"Out of antinomies and ironies, which are inherent in man and his universe, Miss Robertson has contrived a continuously absorbing novel; but it must be said, to sustain the interest she has used precisely the method which is attributed to nature—a succession of shocks to the reader's sensibilities, a reiterated flick of pain." Isabel Paterson
Books p4 Mr 24 '40 900w

"The book is cool, detached, ironical; it is finished, compact, and firm. Its people, seen with so much detachment, are extraordinarily vivid, even if they sometimes fail to become three-dimensional." Dorothy Greenwald
+ — Boston Transcript p11 Mr 28 '40 800w

"Miss Arnot Robertson writes with distinction but, like the Caises, in shying from the obvious, she veers toward implications and obliquities that cause the casual reader to welcome any forthright extrovert emotion." E. V. R. Wyatt
+ — Commonweal 31:516 Ap 5 '40 400w

Reviewed by A. M. Colt
Library J 65:166 F 15 '40 100w

"Grant that the dice are heavily loaded, this novel gives a moving account of the difficulties of a sensitive young man in finding reality, professional and emotional, among the quicksands of the contemporary world." Charles Marriott
+ Manchester Guardian p3 F 6 '40 290w
New Repub 102:554 Ap 22 '40 40w

"The main plot, the long, hard-luck story of a young man with bad eyesight, is twaddling; seven or eight short stories embedded in it, however, are good and funny; one about a row between the British Museum and a Cornish Museum being very funny indeed. But though feathers are from time to time knocked out of the birds, the story rambles on without reaching anything in the way of a conclusion." Anthony West
— + New Statesman & Nation 19:144 F 3 '40 230w

"E. Arnot Robertson has given us a profoundly disturbing book. It has not the intellectual excitement of 'No Arms, No Armour,' for Douglas Caise does not march forward to new awareness as steadily as Tubby Windrush. But it probes the same problem—the choice between easy and secure compliance with the cheap standards of a stagnant society and the rebellious pursuit of a human dignity and serenity, cost what it may in pain and sacrifice." Harold Strauss
+ N Y Times p6 Mr 24 '40 1200w

Reviewed by Basil Davenport
Sat R of Lit 21:12 Mr 23 '40 430w

"This is a very vivid and unusual book, and displays Miss Robertson's talents at full stretch." Kate O'Brien
+ — Spec 164:226 F 16 '40 300w

"The novel is written with a sharp pen, with an uncanny understanding of human nature, but with almost a surplus of pessimism. The author does not prove her text that it is pain that makes living; rather she gives the idea that all living is essentially futile."
Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 21 '40 490w
Time 35:75 Ap 1 '40 460w

"Perhaps Miss Arnot Robertson's unwitting didacticism in posing a problem has something to do with it; but, whatever the reason, the story only fitfully comes to life. The words are carefully chosen, the thoughts expressed are often edged with irony, the scene is diversified with satirical character-sketches, and yet something of vividness, of wholeness and immediacy of sense is lacking all through; like the Caise parents, the story is a little dead."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p57 F 3 '40 420w

Reviewed by Robert Littell
Yale R n s 29:xii summer '40 50w

ROBERTSON, FRANK CHESTER (FRANK CHESTER FIELD, pseud). Cowboy comes a-fightin'. 246p $2 Dutton 40-6805

Western story.

Booklist 36:384 Je 1 '40

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p14 Ap 7 '40 160w

"Another of those riproaring Westerns in which Frank C. Robertson is adept." G. W. Harris
+ — N Y Times p26 Ap 14 '40 220w

ROBERTSON, WILLARD. Moon tide. 309p $2.50 Carrick
(W) 40-12037

The Swede, down on his luck and nearly dead drunk, is led by a friendly Jap to a job as keeper on a bait barge in San Pedro harbor. When the Swede comes to, he refuses the job at first but finally agrees to take it. Later he saves a woman from drowning—an attempted suicide—and because she has no place to go he takes her in. Friendship and love develop but tragedy comes to end their happiness.

Atlantic N '40 130w

Booklist 37:69 O 15 '40

"'Moon Tide' will in some ways recall 'Anna Christie.' It deals with the same kind of people that filled the scenes of O'Neill's play about the waterfront. But the similarity ends there. Robertson's story is unique and original and equally so is his method of telling it. One is caught in the mood he creates of naked realism lit by warm human fires. Rare in fiction are persons as essentially decent and fine as the Swede and Ada. . . Rate this book original for story, excellent for dialogue, compelling for atmosphere." Rose Feld
+ Books p5 S 1 '40 1350w

"A strange and appealing American novel about lonely folk on the San Pedro waterfront. For all its occasional waterside toughness of language, 'Moon Tide' has in it a light akin to that which shone so memorably in Robert Nathan's 'One More Spring.'" Lewis Gannett
+ Boston Transcript p11 Ag 30 '40 200w

"The style, a bit Faulkner, and a bit mannered, carries a haunting, dark kind of suspense."
New Repub 103:394 S 16 '40 50w

"This is a first novel but not a beginner's book. Mr. Robertson, a Texas plains boy who became a New York lawyer, is the playwright and actor known to stage and screen. His story telling is able, has an original quality and suggests another phase for his career." F. T. Marsh
+ N Y Times p18 Ag 25 '40 750w

"A simple and tender love story."
+ New Yorker 16:54 Ag 31 '40 70w

"There is no substance here for either depth or heroics, but rather an opportunity to speak simply of a few fundamentals. This opportunity Mr. Robertson realized thoroughly, and used it so. With unfailing taste he avoided the sentimentality that might easily have choked the tale; it is all the more genuinely effective because Swede and the girl, and the roustabouts, Japs, bartenders, fishermen, who fill in the scene, all speak a direct and earthy tongue that has the sound of truth in it. The characters are the book in this case." N. L. Rothman
+ Sat R of Lit 22:14 Ag 31 '40 300w

Reviewed by Bonamy Dobrée
Spec 165:560 N 22 '40 150w

Springf'd Republican p7e S 22 '40 550w

"It is a knowledgeable and very efficient piece of work, full of bold strokes of romantic philosophy and marked by a highly bitter wisdom that is often fetching in its somewhat youthful way. Some of the scraps of deep conversation in a laconic and homely idiom, are, indeed, extremely well done, and the novel atmosphere of the bait barge gives them an extra piquancy. But too much in the story is sentimentalized."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p565 N 9 '40 420w

Wis Lib Bul 36:138 O '40

ROBERTSON, WILLIAM SPENCE. France and Latin-American independence. 626p maps $3.75 Johns Hopkins [21s 6d Oxford]

327.8 Latin America—Foreign relations—France. France—Foreign relations—Latin America. Latin America—History 39-31742

"The work is limited to the first fifty years of the nineteenth century; to the commercial, political and diplomatic rivalry of England and France in Europe; and to the transfer of this rivalry across the seas." Social Studies

"As a product of multiple-archival investigation of diplomatic history, this is one of the best books published anywhere in recent years." A. P. Whitaker
+ Ann Am Acad 210:157 Jl '40 850w

"The book is extremely erudite, but by no means dull. . . The author presents an exhaustive bibliography, with a rich array of French sources." Richard Pattee
+ Commonweal 31:517 Ap 5 '40 270w

"This book is a contribution to scholarship of first importance, within a rather narrowly circumscribed field." F. L. Reinhold
+ Social Studies 31:184 Ap '40 390w

ROBINSON, EDWIN ARLINGTON. Selected letters. 191p $2.50 Macmillan
B or 92 (W) 40-27180

A selection from the letters written by E. A. Robinson to his friends and acquaintances, with an introduction by Ridgely Torrence. "In bringing together the letters included in this volume, chosen from the large body of correspondence made available, the intent has been to present Robinson the man." (Introd)

Atlantic Je '40 80w

Booklist 36:263 Mr 1 '40

"Mr. Ridgely Torrence, as principal editor of the letters, has performed his task with a simplicity and severity of taste that would have pleased Robinson. Neither the editor nor his author seem to regard literature as an 'unlocking of the heart' in any such sense as is admired by the readers of 'True Confessions.' The book offers no thrills, but is a pleasant companion for thoughtful half-hours; it gives the privilege of being alone with a whimsical, serious, and very noble gentleman." A. D. Ficke
+ Books p6 F 25 '40 750w

"The book, within [certain] limitations makes excellent reading, and is valuable for anyone concerned with the artist's life in this country. To the reader without background, perhaps the more unfortunate aspects would obtrude; to the reader already well-prepared in Robinson's life and in the history of modern American poetry, it will be extremely interesting, and not wholly

ROBINSON, E. A.—Continued
satisfying. . . As a prelude to larger books to come, this selection of letters is arresting and revealing." John Holmes
+ — Boston Transcript p2 Mr 9 '40 550w
Cath World 151:248 My '40 650w

"This book of letters underlines the fact that Robinson was a talented mediocrity. His prose is a lucid, grave etching; superior in clarity and wit to much of his poetry, yet fundamentally the same cold, austere nihilism. One has only to compare his letters with those of Keats, 'innumerable of stains and splendid dyes,' or with the noble spirituality of the letters of Sidney Lanier, to see where they belong. They are dry faggots, containing scanty store of sun." E. M. Root
Christian Century 57:316 Mr 6 '40 700w

Reviewed by John Ritchey
Christian Science Monitor p11 Mr 30 '40 550w

Reviewed by J. G. E. Hopkins
Commonweal 31:538 Ap 12 '40 180w

Reviewed by F. W. Dupee
Nation 150:427 Mr 30 '40 600w

Reviewed by John Finch
New Eng Q 13:733 D '40 750w

Reviewed by Edgar Johnson
New Repub 102:552 Ap 22 '40 250w

"Those well acquainted with Robinson's genius who would like to become more intimately acquainted with his personality will not only read, but also reread, these letters. Others knowing nothing of E. A. Robinson will find here revealed a great American." Percy Hutchison
+ N Y Times p5 F 25 '40 1250w

"Robinson is only obliquely revelatory in these letters, but the prevailing dry New England humor gives them much charm."
+ New Yorker 16:88 Mr 23 '40 30w

"If there is little style or quality in the published letters, there are plenty of other values. The selection is a record of loyal friendships, deeply attached and sometimes (as in the letters to Mrs. Richards) unexpectedly teasing. . . It discloses, almost in spite of the writer, some of his literary preferences and prejudices. . . Apart from Robinson's loyalties and limitations, these letters add color to the carefully selected facts in Hermann Hagedorn's dutiful biography." Louis Untermeyer
Sat R of Lit 21:7 Mr 2 '40 650w

Reviewed by E. N. Jenckes
Springf'd Republican p6 F 24 '40 1000w
Theatre Arts 24:612 Ag '40 120w
Times [London] Lit Sup p412 Ag 24 '40 430w

ROBINSON, FLORENCE BELL. Planting design. (Whittlesey house garden ser) 215p il $2.75 McGraw

710 Landscape gardening 40-27115

"A discussion of how to produce effective garden and landscape designs by the use of color, texture, mass, and grouping, followed by practical suggestions about choosing plants that will provide these effects under different conditions of soil, climate, and location. Originally intended as a textbook for students of landscape architecture, the book should also prove helpful to houseowners seriously interested in the development of the outdoor part of the home." (J Home Econ) Index.

Booklist 36:235 F 15 '40

"It would be pleasant to report that this careful discussion of landscaping is likely to appeal to any considerable number of lay readers, for there can be no question of the soundness of the viewpoint and the data which it presents. Unfortunately, though, it savors rather too strongly of the professorial class room to be anything but heavy going for most of us." R. S. Lemmon
— + Books p13 Je 16 '40 110w
J Home Econ 32:331 My '40 70w

ROBINSON, GEORGE CANBY. The patient as a person; a study of the social aspects of illness. 423p $3 Commonwealth fund [12s 6d Oxford]

616 Medicine—Practice. Sick, The 39-15299

"Dr Robinson presents a discussion of medical ecology. His technique is to analyze 174 random patients at the Johns Hopkins Clinic, starting with the medical diagnosis and persuing causes beyond the realm of cellular misbehavior into the emotional, social and environmental conditions which provide contributing factors." (Survey) The author is lecturer in medicine, Johns Hopkins university. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by George Baehr
Am J Pub Health 30:191 F '40 1000w

"Although from the more technical standpoints of clinical psychology and sociology, the author's method of interview and his interpretation of some of his case material perhaps may leave some readers feeling not quite contented, yet this study leaves very little to be desired as an attempt to call the attention of general practitioners to the importance of social and emotional factors in the diseases they treat and to demonstrate what friendly interviews conducted without much technicality and genuine efforts to render assistance can do to help understand and treat the patient as a person." Bingham Dai
+ — Am J Soc 46:266 S '40 290w

"A modern medical case history resembles too much the portrait of an individual silhouetted against a blank background. Dr. Robinson's timely book not only sketches in the missing background but paints it in vivid colors. . . Dr. Robinson's book cannot fail to convince us that it is a genuine contribution to the modern practice of medicine and a volume to be commended especially to social workers and young practitioners often over-trained in the scientific techniques of today." Kendall Emerson, M.D.
+ Survey 76:117 Mr '40 700w

ROBINSON, GERTRUDE. Bringing up Raffles; il. by Glenna Latimer. 52p $1.50 Dutton

40-13980

Describes in simple prose the upbringing of a water spaniel puppy by a big Newfoundland dog, whose first reaction to the little dog had been that he was an interloper. When he heard the puppy crying in the night Rastus went to comfort him, and from that time until he grew up the spaniel was in Rastus' charge. For young readers.

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Books p6 Ag 18 '40 220w

"This dog story for quite young children is written in short, repetitive sentences that give a very definite word effect. Children eight years old will enjoy reading it and any child from five years up will delight to listen to it. The drawings by Glenna Latimer are lovely and help to make a thoroughly attractive book." E. G. Mullan
+ Library J 65:715 S 1 '40 140w

Reviewed by R. A. Hill
Library J 65:852 O 15 '40 30w

"We have had many dog stories for younger children, but none of them more appealing than this one . . . so exactly right in its simple style, so true in its understanding of dog nature. There is no suggestion of humanizing the dogs, but enough of individual characterization to catch the sympathies of first readers, and Glenna Latimer's lovely sensitive drawings convey the very essence of the brash young puppy and the gravity of staid old Newfoundland." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p10 Ag 18 '40 300w

ROBINSON, LENNOX, ed. The Irish theatre. 229p $3 (7s 6d) Macmillan

792 Theater—Dublin. Dublin. Abbey theater. Irish drama [40-6474]

For descriptive note see Annual for 1939.

Reviewed by Eric Forbes-Boyd
Christian Science Monitor p10 Je 22 '40 440w

Reviewed by Robert Vambery
Nation 150:454 Ap 6 '40 360w

"The lectures delivered by Irish authors and dramatists on that occasion [Abbey Theatre Festival held in the autumn of 1938] have now been collected by Mr. Lennox Robinson and appear in a rather belated volume. They are complimentary, concerned with the national window rather than the dramatic cupboard and, on the whole, are quite agreeable. Mr. Frank O'Connor alone introduces the irrelevant but vital note of controversy." Austin Clarke
+ New Statesman & Nation 19:472 Ap 6 '40 410w

"The variety of points of view expressed by these different speakers as well as the informality of the lecture form makes for stimulating reading. Contention and laughter, which are as much a part of the Irish theatre as they are of the Irish scene, find their place in this book. Its pages reflect something of that battle for ideals, that terrific struggle for freedom through which Ireland has fought its way during these last years."
+ Theatre Arts 24:299 Ap '40 420w
Times [London] Lit Sup p182 Ap 13 '40 500w

ROBINSON, THOMAS HOBEN, and others. Men, groups, and the community; a survey in the social sciences. 965p il maps $3.50 Harper

300 Social sciences 40-31234

"Volume designed by the faculty of Colgate University for the social science survey. Parts one and two discuss the community; part three, the nature of social change; part four, specific problems of importance." (Social Studies) Index.

Am Econ R 30:907 D '40 80w

"The best survey of the social sciences with which this reviewer is familiar. . . Coherence in organization and style has been achieved to a remarkable degree. Students who have completed a survey course built around this text should have a more nearly adequate understanding of our society as an 'organized "going concern" ' than is obtained by those taking the introductory courses of the separate social sciences to the extent that time, inclination, and curricular regulations permit." Howard White
+ Am Pol Sci R 34:1246 D '40 600w

"The lack of a theoretical backbone gives the impression that the whole treatment is episodic, inconclusive, lacking in thoroughness and coherence, and wanting that judicious quality so essential to a correct presentation of its task to achieve integration. This is painfully evident especially when we examine the table of contents. . . References are so poor that one wonders why they are here at all. In short, you will search in vain for a trace of exceptional quality either in thought or expression. There seems to be something like a determination to avoid at all costs any hint of deviation from the monotonous level of numerous works of this kind." J. S. Roucek
— Ann Am Acad 213:208 Ja '41 600w
School & Society 53:160 F 1 '41 80w
Social Studies 31:378 D '40 30w

"The coming of survey courses has led to the appearance of several texts which treat the social sciences as a unit. This is an excellent book of the type. The authors have developed this book from ten years' experience with their social science survey course at Colgate University. Unlike similar coöperative works, it reads as evenly as if written by one man." Garland Downum
+ Social Studies 32:92 F '41 700w

ROBINSON, WILLIAM WILCOX. At the zoo; with pictures by Irene Robinson. [40p] $2 Macmillan

(W) 40-27740

A large sized picture story book about the visit of Ann and Bill to the zoo, and the animals they saw there.

Booklist 37:95 N 1 '40

"The big book is a child's glimpse of an animal world as it should be." M. L. Becker
+ Books p12 N 10 '40 130w

"This is a grand story-picture book, good for reading aloud. . . The stunning pictures, in black and white and in color, help to make this one of the best books produced by the Robinsons." J. E. Stromdahl
+ Library J 65:927 N 1 '40 70w

Reviewed by Lena Barksdale
Nation 151:454 N 9 '40 10w

"This picture story book, with its fine drawings, full of action and charm, of lions, bears, seals and penguins, flamingos and storks, camels, monkeys and others, is very satisfying to 4 to 6 year olds. Indeed still younger children can enjoy the pictures because of their size, color and clearness." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p10 N 17 '40 130w
Springf'd Republican p7e D 1 '40 150w

ROCHESTER, ANNA. Why farmers are poor; the agricultural crisis in the United States. 317p $2.75 Int. pubs.

338.1 Agriculture—U.S. Agriculture—Economic aspects 40-11003

Study of the agricultural crisis in the United States, by the author of Rulers of America (Book Review Digest, 1936), to which this book is a companion volume. The author, who is a Marxian economist, "approaches agriculture as a part of the capitalist economy. Special chapters are devoted to the problem of land and rent; to farm wage workers; to the different phases of crisis among the very small farms and the larger 'family-sized' commercial farms; and to questions of prices and markets for wheat, cotton, livestock and milk. In her concluding chapter, 'Must Farmers Be Poor?', the author gives brief analysis of current farm measures and of problems still to be solved." (Publisher's note) Index.

Reviewed by R. B. Vance
Am Econ R 30:856 D '40 600w

"Miss Rochester's analysis is crisp and her comments, supported by a multitude of data, reveal a knowledge of agricultural economics; the weakness of her study is that of any formalistic work." C. A. M. Ewing
Am Pol Sci R 34:1035 O '40 260w

Reviewed by C. C. Zimmerman
Ann Am Acad 212:266 N '40 500w

"Miss Rochester's answers are in places a shade dogmatic, but she writes with fire and compassion from a thoughtful mind. Her book is excellently planned, and should be read to advantage by all who love this land." Russell Lord
+ — Books p12 Ag 11 '40 600w

"Miss Rochester's book is much more than a spanking for the hobby farmers. It is a scholarly study of the plight of agriculture today. . . The tables and statistics and general textbookish get-up of 'Why Farmers Are Poor' may scare off the lay reader from this thought-provoking book. But to economists and to farmers the country over it should be vastly interesting reading." Ruth Hard
+ Boston Transcript p1 Jl 27 '40 240w

ROCHESTER, ANNA—Continued

"This book is a . . . reference 'must' book for preachers as well as professors. . . Miss Rochester uses a mass of concrete data and the best available statistical tables, government and other, to show trends and problems." W. L. Chappell

+ Christian Century 57:1031 Ag 21 '40 600w

"Miss Rochester attempts to portray in terms of Marxian economics the basic nature of the problem and its link to the general decay of capitalism. No other book, so far as I am aware, has so thoroughly demonstrated the interdependence of agriculture and industry." M. S. Stewart

+ Nation 152:25 Ja 4 '41 550w

Reviewed by Russell Lord

+ New Repub 103:220 Ag 12 '40 800w

"The left wing slant makes this primarily a textbook for radical orators. To other readers it will be of value principally as a statement of left wing treatment of the farm problem. It has the additional value that it will prove a convenient source of reference for data showing the seriousness of the agricultural situation." E. E. Witte

Survey 76:310 O '40 550w

ROCKWELL, FREDERICK FRYE, and GRAYSON, MRS ESTHER C. Flower arrangement in color [il. with 61 natural-color phot. by Frederick W. Cassebeer and how to do it diagrams]. 238p $2.95 Grosset; Wise

635.9663 Floral decoration 40-31048

"Keyed to the interest of the amateur gardener who enjoys 'fixing' flowers for the home, and even more especially for the women members of the numerous garden clubs throughout the United States, this volume is in the nature of a series of short demonstration lectures, generously illustrated with natural color photographs of the illustrative arrangements." Christian Science Monitor

"It may be that the chief value of this book lies in its being a record, by direct color photography quite acceptably reproduced, of contemporary arrangements as made by garden club members and exhibited, in numerous instances, at the International Flower Show in New York City. In other respects this reviewer fails to find that it contributes any new notes to the development of 'the art.' " R. S. Lemmon

Books p13 S 15 '40 70w

Christian Science Monitor p11 Ag 17 '40 390w

Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Jl '40

ROCKWELL, VERA COBER. The new pioneers. 277p $1.50 Wilde

40-34110

Story of a group of boys—"adult-minors"—who are the leaders in their town of a movement for junior citizenship. The story tells how one of them becomes junior mayor, how they attempt to make jobs for unemployed, how they have to fight the indifference and even hostility of some of their elders, and how they finally win out. The story is based on the theories and work of the late William R. George, founder of the George Junior Republic.

"The style is mediocre, but the book is interesting and fast moving. Though there is a good deal about crooked politics, the author is sincere and has taken many of her ideas from real life, quoting newspaper articles, etc. Decidedly a different plot and worth considering for ages twelve to fifteen." Sonja Wennerblad

+ — Library J 65:927 N 1 '40 150w

" 'The New Pioneers' is not only entertaining, but it should prove a fertile source of ideas."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e D 8 '40 230w

RODELL, FRED. Democracy and the third term; a handbook for both sides. 129p $1.50 Howell, Soskin

353.03 Presidents (U.S.)—Term of office 40-27584

"Mr. Rodell . . . presents most of the known material bearing directly on the third term as considered by American students and philosophers of government from the Founding Fathers to the New Dealers. He quotes the views (often contradicted in practice) of well known Presidents. He gives chapter and verse for the attempts to obtain third terms. He details the proposals to substitute some other provision in the Constitution for those which at present leave open the Presidential re-election." Books

Booklist 36:425 Jl 15 '40

"Informative, concise and useful. . . Mr. Rodell is refreshingly—or annoyingly—impartial in the presentation of arguments pro and con." Nicholas Roosevelt

+ Books p5 Je 23 '40 240w

Christian Century 57:1145 S 18 '40 280w

"It should be stated at once that this is not a pro-Roosevelt book, nor yet an anti-Roosevelt book. In spite of its political timeliness, it is not to be considered as a campaign document. . . No matter what one's personal convictions are, this lucid and even-tempered book can be read with sharp interest."

+ N Y Times p9 S 15 '40 550w

New Yorker 16:70 Je 22 '40 70w

Reviewed by E. N. Jenckes

Springf'd Republican p6 Je 8 '40 1300w

RODELL, MRS MARIE (FRIED) (MARION RANDOLPH, pseud). Breathe no more. 305p $2 Holt 40-8822

Detective story.

"For all-around entertainment of a light though sufficiently criminous nature, we recommend this item by a newcomer, said to be a mystery editor in disguise. . . This is especially good for armchair sleuths, as it contains a time chart, a list of motives and endpaper diagrams of the house for those who do not quite get it at first." Will Cuppy

+ Books p14 Ap 7 '40 220w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin

Boston Transcript p2 Ap 20 '40 70w

"There is more than a little love interest in this story, but it does not interfere in the least with the mystery plot, which is constructed with considerable skill." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p24 Ap 14 '40 210w

"Good!"

+ Sat R of Lit 21:18 Ap 13 '40 30w

Springf'd Republican p7e My 26 '40 110w

Times [London] Lit Sup p632 D 14 '40 150w

RODELL, MRS MARIE (FREID) (MARION RANDOLPH, pseud). This'll kill you. 254p $2 Holt 40-32862

Detective story.

"It's a good-natured opus with growing suspense and plenty of momentum on the homestretch." Will Cuppy

+ Books p24 N 17 '40 160w

" 'This'll Kill You' does not seem to this reviewer to be quite so good as Marion Randolph's first mystery story, 'Breathe No More,' perhaps because there is too much off-stage action that leaves the reader with too few facts of which he can take hold." Isaac Anderson

N Y Times p32 D 1 '40 140w

"Dead doctor's diary holds astutely concealed clues to cold-blooded crime. Plot well worked out despite considerable lost motion. Fair."

+ — Sat R of Lit 23:46 D 7 '40 50w

RODGERS, ANDREW DENNY. Noble fellow, William Starling Sullivant; with a compilation of the new species of mosses and liverworts described by William S. Sullivant and those described by William S. Sullivant and Leo Lesquereux, prepared by Richard T. Wareham; with a foreword by Adolph E. Waller. 361p il maps $3.50 Putnam

B or 92 Sullivant, William Starling. Mosses 40-34164

Biography of an American botanist and bryologist, born near Columbus, Ohio, in 1803, who died there in 1873. The book sketches the story of Sullivant from the boyhood of his father to the end of his own life. "It gives no panorama of early America, but its direct and authenticated story of the lives of a few families, their relationship to the coastal region and their settlement of Ohio, makes it must reading for those interested in our history." (Commonweal) Bibliography. Index.

"It is well for Sullivant's biography to be written at this particular time. His life, here fully portrayed, gives an excellent picture of the scientist of the early nineteenth century who strove after truth for truth's sake alone, irrespective of its exchangeability for gold." J. McA. Kater

+ Commonweal 33:355 Ja 24 '41 300w

"A comprehensive and scholarly biography." C. B. Moore

+ Springf'd Republican p7e N 10 '40 1000w

RODMAN, OLIVER HAZARD PERRY. A handbook of salt-water fishing; il. by Marshall W. Joyce. 274p $1.75 Stokes

799.16 Fishing (W) 40-27181

Lists the more common varieties of salt-water fish, with data on range, season, tackle to use in taking them, their habits, their value as food, and the way to cook some of them. Index.

Booklist 36:260 Mr 1 '40

"It is worthwhile to have a few good books on the subject, written by men who stole a march on you but who are now generously sharing their happily gleaned knowledge. This small book is the latest in the field and is a good job. It is about the size to slip into your jacket pocket and is full of illustrations of sea fish and tackle to use for them, together with useful descriptions." T. S.

+ Boston Transcript p2 Jl 13 '40 190w

"The volume is a handy reference book for the man who takes his fishing seriously enough to want to use the right hooks and bait and fish at the right time of day."

+ Springf'd Republican p10 F 1 '40 100w

RODNEY, GEORGE BRYDGES. Raiders of the Cherokee strip. 253p $2 Phoenix

40-33789

Western story.

"A rousing story with plenty of homely lingo." Will Cuppy

+ Books p10 D 22 '40 80w

"An excellent tale of the time and place, and told with Colonel Rodney's wonted skill and gusto." G. W. Harris

+ N Y Times p21 D 15 '40 200w

ROETHLISBERGER, FRITZ JULES, and DICKSON, WILLIAM JOHN. Management and the worker; an account of a research program conducted by the Western electric company, Hawthorne works, Chicago. 615p il $4.50 Harvard univ. press [20s Oxford]

658.3 Employment management. Efficiency, Industrial. Industrial research 39-25984

"In the spring of 1927 the Western Electric Company started certain experimental studies to discover the relations between conditions of work and the incidence of fatigue and monotony among employees. It was rather confidently expected that definite answers would be found in a year or less. This book is a detailed account of how the experiment began, how the unsuspected complexities of the problem forced upon the investigators its restatement and extension again and again and prolonged the original study through five years and from the observation of five employees to more than twenty thousand. It is the inside story of a great experiment in the study of human relations in a factory as carried on by trained men at the plant with the collaboration of scientists at Harvard University in analyzing and interpreting the voluminous data obtained." Am Econ R

"Business managers will find the book valuable for its suggestions as to how to go about the study of their particular problem of improving morale and securing the benefits of increased output that come with it. Students of labor and social problems will find the book a mine of information as to practical methods of study, and this feature bulks largest in the book." J. A. Campbell

+ Am Econ R 30:177 Mr '40 440w

Reviewed by M. B. Gilson

— Am J Soc 46:98 Jl '40 1450w

Reviewed by P. A. Dodd

Ann Am Acad 208:230 Mr '40 500w

Reviewed by C. L. Shartle

Management R 29:156 Ap '40 650w

Reviewed by Murray Ross

Pol Sci Q 55:629 D '40 430w

"This volume is primarily a report on the development of a technique. Conclusions are limited and very general. One gets the impression that it is a record of notable progress in the development of method in a particular field of research which is building a foundation for ultimate significant results but has not yet given many new concrete results for guidance of supervisory executives generally." H. S. Person

Survey G 29:37 Ja '40 380w

ROGER-MARX, CLAUDE. French original engravings from Manet to the present time [ed. by André Gloeckner]. 87;130p il $4 Art bk. [15s Imperia]

760.944 Engraving—History. Engravings 40-27087

Seven chapters on the history of French engraving from 1862 to the present, followed by sixteen color plates and 128 black and white photogravures, with index of the artists. Contents: The revival of copper engraving circa 1862; The revival of lithography about 1862; The isolation of painter engravers from 1875 to 1890; The original print from 1889 to 1914; Wood engraving from 1860 to 1914; Original prints from 1914 to the present day; Foundation of the independent painter-engravers.

Booklist 36:285 Mr 15 '40

"The voluminous text by Claude Roger-Marx . . . equals the plates in helpfulness. . . It is one of the best productions of the Hyperion Press, and they are always of interest."

+ Books p11 S 1 '40 170w

ROGERS, AGNES (MRS FREDERICK LEWIS ALLEN). Vassar women; an informal study; drawings by Anne Cleveland and Jean Anderson. (Seventy-fifth anniversary publications) 223p $2.50 Vassar college

378 Vassar college. College graduates 40-27531

"In this book [the author has] attempted to give a picture of Vassar women from the earliest classes to the present day, to appraise their contributions, and, indirectly, to follow the progress of educated women in the United States during the past seventy-five years. . . For source material [she has] used the Alumnae Biographical Register and the statistics compiled from it by the Department of Economics at Vassar; records from various departments in the college . . . [and] interviews and correspondence with over one hundred Vassar graduates." Foreword

ROGERS, AGNES—Continued

Booklist 36:394 Je 15 '40

"While the title of this book indicates a special field of interest, its substance has much to engage the thoughtful and sometimes amused attention of the general reader. The known skill of the author and the clever drawings of the two young artists give it a certain lightness and literary 'it.' " Harriet Anderson
+ Books p5 My 26 '40 700w

Reviewed by Lewis Gannett
Boston Transcript p3 My 25 '40 550w

"The many aspects of the lives of Vassar women which are shown to the reading public in this concise survey cannot even be fully touched upon in a short review. Suffice it to say that the study is comprehensive. It is also objective. This is no book of boastings."
+ N Y Times p12 Je 23 '40 700w

ROGERS, CAMERON, and HALLAND, HERMAN EWALD. Flight surgeon. 295p $2 Duell 40-14084

A young doctor attached to the United States navy flying corps; his friend, a lieutenant commanding a flying squadron; and the girl they both love are the chief characters. Most of the action takes place at Pensacola's naval air station, and during a war problem "somewhere in the Pacific."

Booklist 37:91 N 1 '40

Reviewed by George Conrad
Books p8 Jl 28 '40 280w

"First-rate yarn. . . It is an action yarn moving swiftly along its way, an extraverted story, a man's book if he likes tales about men in a man's world living dangerously." F. T. Marsh
+ N Y Times p7 Jl 21 '40 500w
New Yorker 16:67 Jl 27 '40 50w

ROGERS, CARL RANSOM. Clinical treatment of the problem child. 393p $3 Houghton [15s Allen, G]

136.76 Children, Abnormal and backward. Psychology, Pathological. Juvenile delinquency 39-1962

"Written for 'the growing number of individuals who are dealing in a professional fashion with the problem children of the community or who are preparing themselves for such work,' this book describes and discusses the variety of treatment skills actually used in clinical work, hoping in this way to promote better understanding and more critical consideration of their use. The author is a psychologist and director of the Rochester (New York) Guidance Center." (J Home Econ) Index.

"Because it is a survey, it lacks definite focus and unity; its value will be in providing a background of information for the prospective clinician rather than in giving him the actual tools of a unified system of theory and practice. . . In spite of shortcomings, the book is exceedingly interesting and should be very useful to the group for which it is intended." R. S. Cavan
+ — Am J Soc 45:954 My '40 230w

"Carl Rogers' book is among the most valuable recent contributions to clinical literature. Comprehensive, insightful, judicious, readably written and with ample illustrative case material, it gives an excellent over-view of significant findings, approaches, and techniques in the field, and suggests sound bases for further development. Although written primarily for clinical workers, because of the careful consideration given to all factors affecting personality development, it is equally valuable for students in the related fields of psychiatry, psychology, sociology, and education." K. W. Taylor
+ Am Soc R 4:583 Ag '39 750w
J Home Econ 32:254 Ap '40 80w

Reviewed by I. S. Wile, M.D.
Survey 75:360 N '39 130w

ROGERS, FRANCES, and BEARD, ALICE. 5000 years of gems and jewelry; with line drawings by the authors and sixteen il. in halftone. 309p $2.50 Stokes

736 Jewelry—History. Gems (W) 40-14551

History of the development of the jeweler's art in the past and present, followed by nontechnical information on the composition, characteristics, and cutting of precious and semiprecious stones. Glossary. Index.

Booklist 37:65 O 15 '40

"The writing is simple, and the style as interesting as the subject permits, but the authors' contributions to knowledge are negligible, and sometimes inaccurate. One has the feeling that the authors are essentially historians and not gemmologists, and found themselves on uncertain ground in this second half of their work. . . It is very apparent that, in this discussion of cutting, the authors have not only consulted a very dated source of authority, but also a poor one. . . For the main part this work, as the title implies, is chiefly valuable to the reader who has the same interest in jewels as a museum has. The mineralogist or gem expert will consider it an interesting, but not very vital addition to his library." Peter Schwed
+ — Books p24 O 6 '40 550w

"Popular and highly interesting book. . . The index is surprisingly complete for a book of this size, a very welcome feature and not nearly so common as most of us have often realized with more or less exasperation. The illustrations, which include both halftones and line cuts, are profuse and for the most part well chosen." H. P. Whitlock
+ N Y Times p20 D 15 '40 500w
Wis Lib Bul 36:135 O '40

ROGERS, MEYRIC REYNOLDS. Carl Milles; an interpretation of his work. 73p 163pl $15 Yale univ. press

735 Sculpture. Milles, Carl 40-27852

"Carl Milles, the subject of this 'personal interpretation' of his life and work is a figure to be reckoned with in contemporary sculpture—especially so in the vast field of architectural and landscape decoration. . . Consisting of biographical data, notes on the sources and development of his style (styles would be more accurate) and technique, indices and chronological tables to his work, this is the first book-length attempt to evaluate the man and his work to appear in English so far. Mr. Rogers spent considerable effort, both here and in Sweden, in collecting the material he here presents in this attractive format. As he says in his note of acknowledgment, he not only formed an intimate acquaintanceship with the sculptor and his household, attracted as he was by the artist's work, but also visited the various places in Sweden and in this country wherever any of Milles's work was to be seen." N Y Times

"It is well that his achievements should be commemorated in a book like this, due to the devotion of Mr. Rogers, a book sensitively written and most adequately illustrated." Royal Cortissoz
+ Books p5 D 29 '40 900w

"This study, notwithstanding its briefness, covers its subject pretty thoroughly in so far as the sources and development of Milles's growth as an artist go. But unfortunately there is a rub in this 'personal interpretation' for the interested but dispassionate reader, and that appears in Mr. Rogers's rhapsodic approach to his subject. As a critical comment on Milles's art, it is rendered almost worthless by the author's slavish adulation of literally everything Milles has ever done or attempted to do in his life." Dino Ferrari

— + N Y Times p10 D 22 '40 1250w

"Carl Milles, born in Sweden and now living in Cranbrook, Michigan, is undoubtedly one of the leading sculptors today; and this book by Meyric Rogers is, I believe, the first comprehensive study in English of his work. . . Mr. Rogers's short page description of Milles's actual technique of production is excellent—clear, concise and completely intelligible to the layman. All in all, this is certainly a book for anyone interested in modern sculpture." Robert Cronbach

+ Sat R of Lit 23:17 Ja 25 '41 700w

ROLBIECKI, JOHN JOSEPH. The prospects of philosophy. 167p $2.50 Benziger

104 Philosophy 40-4291

"The author's purpose is 'to indicate briefly some of the tasks which await the philosophers of the future.' He proposes to accomplish this end by examining the present status of philosophy in its relation to the special sciences and to modern social, political and religious problems." (Commonweal) Index.

"Unfortunately, the book fails to deliver. Its ineffectiveness is due, first, to its consistent refusal to define the nature and proper sphere of philosophy, secondly, to the misconception pervading its pages that progress in philosophy is synonymous with the success with which philosophy is applied to practical affairs and finally, to a style of writing which abounds in haphazard generalities." David Dalrymple

— Commonweal 31:391 F 23 '40 110w

"The publishers speak of this as a book suited to teachers and graduate students of philosophy. I do not quite agree. It seems to me much nearer to the undergraduate level. and chiefly valuable there for opening up a great variety of subjects. In this respect it may be stimulating to such a beginner in philosophy. I do not find it offers much to the more mature reader, except in single flashes." H. T. C.

J Philos 37:502 Ag 29 '40 110w

ROLLASON, ERNEST CLARENCE. Metallurgy for engineers. 272p il $3 Longmans [10s Arnold, E. & co]

669 Metallurgy [40-3272]

"The object of this book is to provide a condensed description of metallurgical theory and practice, both ferrous and non ferrous. Practical details of specimen preparation are given to enable the reader to carry on macro- and micro-examination of metals. Sufficient production metallurgy has been given to show how properties of a metal depend on the process of manufacture. Young metallurgists and welders should find this brief 'primer of metallurgy' useful." Chem & Met Eng

Chem & Met Eng 46:725 N '39 70w

"Here indeed is value for money which no student can readily ignore. The most serious criticism which can be made of the book is that it is too concise and may encourage 'cramming'. Although the preface indicates that the book is intended for use in conjunction with a teacher, this does not absolve the author from responsibility, and one would like to see, in the next edition, fewer statements of fact and more explanations of basic principles."

+ — Nature 145:814 My 25 '40 110w

ROMAINS, JULES, pseud. (LOUIS FARIGOULE). Seven mysteries of Europe; tr. from the French by Germaine Brée. 253p $2.50 Knopf

940.5 Europe—Politics. European war, 1939-. Statesmen (W)

After the close of the first Great war, Jules Romains, the noted French novelist, vowed that he would do all he could to prevent another war. In this book, made up of magazine articles already printed elsewhere, he relates the story of his contacts with statesmen and politicians during the years preceding September, 1939. Contents: The mystery of Daladier; The mystery of Gamelin; The mystery of Leopold III; The English mystery; The Nazi mystery; The mystery of Ribbentrop and co; Who saved fascism?

"The obtrusion of his personality, which has made some of his literary admirers squirm, should not blind us to his good intentions or to the nobility of expression which characterizes certain of his passages, particularly in the concluding chapter." H. F. Armstrong

Books p3 D 8 '40 2100w

"If at times [Romains'] role seems to have been that of a naïve and well-intentioned dreamer, the story is none the less interesting on that account." R. H. McDonough

Library J 65:922 N 1 '40 220w

Reviewed by Justin O'Brien

Nation 151:564 D 7 '40 1400w

Reviewed by Malcolm Cowley

New Repub 104:121 Ja 27 '41 1350w

"Jules Romains came among us as a great artist, a writer of spiritual integrity, a fighter in the cause of human dignity and freedom. With this book he has made himself a mere retailer of 'inside stories' about Daladier, Gamelin, King Leopold and other European leaders, on the theory, apparently, that this is what the American public wants. It is hard to decide whether M. Romains has shown less respect for his readers or for his own reputation by selling such wares as these." Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.

— N Y Times p19 D 15 '40 1550w

New Yorker 16:122 D 7 '40 140w

"There are many mysteries of Europe besides the seven which M. Romains poses. . . What M. Romains offers is a candid record of the experiences and impressions of a man of letters who has dabbled extensively in contemporary politics, lit up with occasional silhouettes of individual personalities which bear the imprint of authentic genius." W. H. Chamberlin

Sat R of Lit 23:8 D 7 '40 1050w

ROMAINS, JULES, pseud. (LOUIS FARIGOULE). Verdun; tr. from the French by Gerard Hopkins. (Men of good will, v8) 522p maps $2.75 Knopf [10s 6d Davies]

(W)

The eighth volume of Men of Good Will brings this story of modern France down to the second winter of the first World war. The battle of Verdun is examined in minute detail both as to matters of military strategy and action and as it is seen thru the minds of a group of soldiers. Index of characters.

Reviewed by H. C. Rice

Atlantic F '40 650w

Booklist 36:198 Ja 15 '40

Bookmark p14 My '40

"A work that fascinates us not because it tells us anything of the past, but because it is a monument to contemporary Europe. We read it with a divided mind and a single purpose, and we enjoy it because it is so much like us—because it babbles so intelligently in the shadow of catastrophe, because it is so brilliant and inconclusive, because it knows the reasons for everything and the solution to nothing." Alfred Kazin

+ Books p3 Ja 7 '40 1400w

"The true greatness of this book lies in its simple picture of the agony and humiliation of man before the crime of modern war." Harris Thomas

+ Boston Transcript p1 Ja 13 '40 480w

"Unforgettable is the account of the experience of the men who bore the brunt of [the attack], how they took it, what they felt and thought, how they carried on. They are shown to us through the alert and speculative imaginations of men like Jerphanion and Clanricard who are able not only to give their personal reactions but to reflect the outlook of the average soldier." L. A. S.

ROMAINS (rŏ-măN)

ROMAINS, JULES—Continued

+ Christian Science Monitor p18 Ja 31 '40 480w

Cleveland Open Shelf p4 Ja '40

Reviewed by E. V. Wyatt
Commonweal 31:310 Ja 26 '40 350w

Reviewed by F. W. Dupee
Nation 150:22 Ja 6 '40 650w

"There was a very old woman in Sherman, Connecticut, who bore a lifelong grudge against 'Great Expectations.' 'I have read that book forty times,' she used to say, 'and I still don't like it.' I feel somewhat the same way toward Jules Romains and his 'Men of Good Will.'" Malcolm Cowley

New Repub 102:153 Ja 29 '40 1400w

Reviewed by V. S. Pritchett
New Statesman & Nation 19:16 Ja 6 '40 1750w

"It is still too early to discuss the structure of 'Men of Good Will' as a whole. But there are many who believe that the entire panorama will be a masterpiece—all the greater because it risks such failure. And it is quite certain that 'Verdun' will be one of its noblest elements and will, come what may, be recognized as a masterpiece in its own right." Gilbert Highet

+ N Y Times p1 D 31 '39 1100w

"Whether or not 'Verdun' is the greatest novel so far written about the first World War, it is clearly the most adult. . . Military grasp and encyclopedic knowledge would not be enough to give 'Verdun' stature. To them, Romains adds a profound instinct for the springs of human action in an environment of death. Using Jerphanion, now a second lieutenant, as his main mouthpiece, Romains endeavors to answer the root question: How can men stand war?" Clifton Fadiman

+ New Yorker 15:53 D 30 '39 1450w

"'Verdun,' the most faithful and most nearly complete account of the first world war in any novel, proves more conclusively than ever that even if he does lack certain qualities of a Gide, a Mauriac, or a Martin du Gard, Jules Romains is the most vigorous novelist in France today." Justin O'Brien

+ Sat R of Lit 21:3 D 30 '39 2850w

"The book is astringent; very bitter and very just; and by its sober power compels us to believe that, no matter what the general urgencies and woes, a man may live by his own light. Which is one very careful and roundabout way of being a little hopeful for mankind." Kate O'Brien

+ Spec 164:24 Ja 5 '40 750w

"The book is overwhelming in its power; it must have been written with emotions always at the tautest. The reader wonders whether it will be only a monument to Verdun, or whether it will wield, some day, an influence against the futility, the brutality, the stupidity of war." M. D.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 14 '40 900w

"There are eleven volumes still to come. But all by itself Verdun makes clear Romains' distinction as a novelist, and it is considerable. It lies in the fact that he has been able to fuse the detachment of a social historian with the vision of a creative artist. From a formal standpoint Verdun proves him at least the equal of any modern writer who has employed the same method."

+ Time 35:57 Ja 8 '40 2050w

"The effect of this fragment is one of overpowering analytical force and clarity. A novelist who can contrive simultaneously to create character, to anatomize a society and to paint a period within living memory is in the great tradition of the French novel. . . The book makes bitter and disturbing reading to-day. Written at a time when hope lingered, perhaps despite sense and evidence, that peace and the arts of peace would prevail, it is necessarily an indictment of war. As such its reasoning is of shattering sanity. M. Romains's cogent, flexible, wonderfully clear and cadenced style, which is very well conveyed in translation, is the perfect instrument for what he attempts here."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p729 D 16 '39 1200w

Reviewed by Robert Littell
Yale R n s 29:vi spring '40 550w

ROMAN CATHOLIC CHURCH. POPE, 1939- (PIUS XII). The Pope speaks; the words of Pius XII; with a biography by Charles Rankin and a pref. by Edwin V. O'Hara. 337p $2.75 Harcourt [7s 6d Faber]

282 Peace 40-27790

"This book is a compilation of the sermons, radio broadcasts, allocutions and encyclicals of Pope Pius XII. There is a preface by His Excellency, Most Reverend Edwin V. O'Hara, D.D., Chairman of the Social Action Department of the N.C.W.C., and Honorary Chairman of the Catholic Association for International Peace. The book is divided into three parts. The first is entitled Pius the Man and His Efforts for Peace. The author gives a biography of the present Holy Father and tells the story of the Pontiff's almost unbelievable efforts for peace. . . The second part of the book is a translation of two encyclicals of the Pontiff and more than a score of addresses and messages. In an appendix are found translations of three encyclicals by Pope Benedict XV having to do with peace and two by Pope Pius XI." Commonweal

Booklist 37:211 Ja 15 '41

"Mr. Rankin's biography is a resume of published data, useful as a surface chronicle, but of little value otherwise. It is marred by numerous errors of detail and by the acceptance of explanations which have little more validity than one attributes to hasty guesswork generally. . . Mr. Rankin's chronicle does, however, provide the framework inside which the documents reprinted in the book find their places. These are of the greatest interest and importance to the student of our times. They make manifest, as Bishop O'Hara says in his preface, 'that there is an authorized spokesman in Christendom.'" G. N. Shuster

+ — Books p39 D 1 '40 700w

"It has remained for an English Protestant to catch the wisdom and sound truth of Papal peace pronouncements and gather them into one volume like precious jewels of social thinking. Although the Catholic Association for International Peace has published many articles and pamphlets, this present work, with its biography and additional material, will serve as a compendium of Catholic thought on the vital problem of world peace." R. E. Lucey

+ Commonweal 33:82 N 8 '40 1000w

"Pope Pius' character and personality are seen to advantage in the thirty important unique messages delivered directly or indirectly to the world. The messages cover a variety of topics all pertinent to the times and needs of the day."

+ Current Hist & Forum 52:2 Ja 23 '41 130w

"Mr. Rankin writes as a Protestant, and makes some slips concerning the Roman Church . . . but his political vindication of the Pope's policy is the more effective because of his religious detachment."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p322 Jl 6 '40 300w

Wis Lib Bul 36:166 D '40

ROMAN portraits [foreword by L. Goldscheider]. (Phaidon press bk) 120pl $3 Oxford [10s 6d Allen, G]

733 Sculpture, Roman. Portraits

Some 120 photographs of Roman portraiture, arranged in chronological order from 50 B.C. to the end of the fourth century. Included is an introductory chapter on the Roman art of portraiture.

Booklist 37:217 Ja 15 '41

"The pictures are marvellously clear and carefully chosen from a variety of European museums. Sometimes, they are a little too large; the imperfections of the stone occasionally draw attention from the complete view of the faces. But as a record of people of power and fashion, long since dead and often forgotten, this book could not be improved." Phyllis Jordan

+ Boston Transcript p2 Ja 4 '41 140w

Commonweal 33:261 D 27 '40 140w

Manchester Guardian p7 O 1 '40 300w

"To the scholar and archaeologist this collection will be of little use; but it has considerable charm for the amateur of novelty. The photographs are wonderfully tricky. They have been taken from odd angles, from above and from below; high lights and deep shadows have been cast hither and thither with accomplished cunning; there are reckless amputations; and thus dull lumps of marble have been rendered interesting—by the camera. . . As a record, this book is worthless almost, and perhaps that is as well. A hundred and twenty straightforward reproductions of Roman sculpture would be a weariness to the eye, whereas these will give a good deal of pleasure, and, what is more, might provoke us to look again, were such a thing possible nowadays, at those originals, normally within easy reach of everyone, which we have all seen and most of us have ceased to regard." Clive Bell

+ — New Statesman & Nation 20:420 O 26 '40 1200w

"Here are cunningly simplified portraits of people one meets in main streets and back streets today, men who work in the fields and factories, and dictators who sit in armoured trains—better than Low. There is merit in every one of these sculptures, and genius in most of them. The photographs are as good as could be; simple and not over-dramatic." John Piper

+ Spec 165:448 N 1 '40 140w

Springf'd Republican p7e D 8 '40 90w

"No doubt these 120 magnificent photographs of Roman portrait sculpture would have been easier to take in individually if they had been smaller and less like film 'close-ups.' On the other hand, their cumulative effect would have been less formidable and so have missed something of the brutality . . . which seems to have been part of Roman life and character."

Times [London] Lit Sup p516 O 12 '40 400w

RONALD, JAMES. Death croons the blues. 256p $2 Phoenix [3s 6d Rich] 40-4094

Mystery story.

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin

Boston Transcript p3 F 24 '40 70w

"If you are not too exacting this one will hold you for an idle hour." Kay Irvin

+ N Y Times p16 Mr 3 '40 150w

Sat R of Lit 21:18 F 17 '40 30w

RONALD, JAMES. Murder in the family. 298p $2 Lippincott [7s 6d Lane] 40-33595

Mystery story.

" 'Murder in the Family' is for those who can do with a jigger of extremely dry comedy and a trifle of whimsy with their murders. We mean this author's mood and manner are something unusual in the mystery business, not nearly so simple as might appear at first glance, as the predestined reader will discover after a brief sampling—and don't tell us we're dreaming all this." Will Cuppy

+ Books p40 N 10 '40 160w

"Not only is this a baffler of the first order, but the author has given us an unforgettable picture of the sufferings and tortures undergone by the Osbornes during the time when all are under suspicion." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p29 N 17 '40 200w

"Solution slightly wrenches credulity but is highly satisfactory. Yarn offers brilliant picture of press-badgered people, much humor, and sufficient thrills. Recommended."

+ Sat R of Lit 23:30 N 16 '40 40w

ROOS, KELLEY, pseud. of AUDREY KELLEY and WILLIAM ROOS. Made up to kill. 250p $2 Dodd 40-13629

Detective story.

"There is a good enough plot, but a little too much about temperament, etc." Marian Wiggin

Boston Transcript p8 Ag 31 '40 50w

"Here is a story that will keep you guessing until the cows come home. This is Kelley Roos's first mystery story, and it is a mighty good start." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p22 Ag 25 '40 170w

"Climax in darkened theatre has its points, the rest is pretty much like other light, readable, and artificial drammer-murders. Time-killer."

+ — Sat R of Lit 22:18 S 7 '40 40w

ROOS, WILLIAM. The Hornet's longboat. 240p map $2.50 Houghton

Mitchell, Josiah Angier—Fiction 40-33596

In 1866 the ship Hornet caught fire and sank in mid-Pacific, a thousand miles from land. The crew took to the boats and after a voyage of 4,000 miles and forty-three days, one boat, carrying the captain, two passengers, and twelve of the crew, reached the Hawaiian Islands. This story of their sufferings and hardships, told in the first person as by Captain Mitchell, is based on the Captain's diary, letters, and other documents.

"Like any event of this character, the mere happening is sufficient to make it public property as far as story-telling is concerned. Following the footsteps of Mark Twain, the author of this novel is, therefore, completely entitled to make the most out of what history has recorded. On the face of it, the bare facts are sufficient to insure a dramatic, powerful story, which for those unfamiliar with the source material would be satisfying. Actually, the book possesses many weaknesses and unimportant incidents are overdramatized at the expense of vital ones. . . In commenting on the journals written while their authors were looking death in the face, Mark Twain states that therein is 'literary gold,' 'not improvable by anybody's art.' We fear that Mr. Roos's alchemy has only served to reduce them to a baser metal." A. C. Brown

Books p26 D 8 '40 600w

Christian Science Monitor p18 D 17 '40 550w

Churchman 154:39 D 15 '40 40w

"The story is comparable to the voyage of Captain Bligh, but Mr. Roos tells it amateurishly. Occasionally he quotes from the captain's log; he should have done so oftener, for he makes the captain, who appears to be quite a fellow, a better writer."

New Yorker 16:101 N 16 '40 100w

"This book is another well-written chapter in the story of men against the sea. Though in many ways inevitably similar to the Nordhoff-Hall Bounty narrative, this account of incredible suffering and endurance should stand in its own right as a worthy addition to the literature of the sailing ship era." Lawrence Olson

+ Sat R of Lit 23:19 Ja 11 '41 410w

"It is doubtful whether a more gripping tale, or more grewsome, can be found in fiction."

+ Springf'd Republican p6 N 18 '40 300w

ROOSEVELT, ELEANOR (ROOSEVELT) (MRS FRANKLIN DELANO ROOSEVELT). Moral basis of democracy. 82p $1.50 Howell, Soskin
321.8 Democracy (W) 40-32308

"Mrs. Roosevelt examines the sources of our growth as a communal and religious society, finds that 'the rights of all people to some property' have often been neglected, and calls for an active moral awakening based on 'a true sense of brotherhood' in democracy." New Yorker

Booklist 37:84 N 1 '40

"Mrs. Roosevelt's [is a] small, unpretentious and honest book. . . Extremists on the left will probably find Mrs. Roosevelt's belief in Christianity old-fashioned as extremists on the right will probably find her belief in progress rather than stasis heretical. But most of us are in between and still able to recognize Americanism whether it belongs to our own particular political party or not." S. V. Benét
+ Books p3 S 29 '40 1050w

Reviewed by Lewis Gannett
Boston Transcript p11 O 4 '40 260w

Christian Century 57:1217 O 2 '40 40w

Cleveland Open Shelf p17 O '40

"In today's chaotic world, democracy's defects as well as its virtues need to be examined. Mrs. Roosevelt's book examines them, but it goes beyond court decisions, laws, and administration to emphasize that democracy will progress only as the people's own personal development proceeds. . . Much of this would sound hopelessly idealistic, were it not that Mrs. Roosevelt herself has decided what she believes and carries it out in everyday living. She has proved her thesis by practicing what she preaches." G. A. Young
+ Current Hist & Forum 52:32 N 26 '40 400w

"Mrs. Roosevelt seems to have gone to Mumford, at least for inspiration. But perhaps I am wrong. She may have arrived at her conclusions without ever having read a line of his. Her book is written in a rather naive style, and too often sounds like a McGuffey reader. However, underneath the weakness of style there is a burning desire to arouse the reader to a realization of what America is, and to the current dangers to the democracy she loves." L. B. Bloch
+ — Living Age 359:287 N '40 270w

Reviewed by Margaret Marshall
Nation 151:336 O 12 '40 130w

New Yorker 16:79 O 5 '40 40w

Reviewed by Jacques Barzun
Sat R of Lit 22:43 O 12 '40 600w

Reviewed by Ordway Tead
Survey G 29:637 D '40 100w

ROOT, CORWIN. An American, sir. 383p $2.50 Dutton
40-14811

Historical romance of the War of 1812. The hero is a Boston lad who is converted from his father's anti-war views by the pretty cousin of his closest friend. Jeremy has a succession of adventures by land and sea and finally gets his reward in New Orleans.

Booklist 37:156 D 15 '40

Reviewed by Bradford Smith
Books p14 S 29 '40 440w

"Jeremy as a character does not capture one's imagination. Despite his exploits he conspicuously lacks initiative and the heroic spirit. That Marily should welcome him with open arms at New Orleans merely shows the blindness of love. And what a sorry morality is implicit here! It requires the blandishments of a pretty girl to persuade a healthy and privileged young man to take arms in his country's defense." Drake de Kay
N Y Times p28 O 27 '40 650w

ROOTHAERT, A. Dutch vet; tr. from the Dutch by Fernand G. Renier and Anne Cliff. 437p $2.50 Macmillan [9s 6d Routledge]
40-30888

"The author draws a discursive portrait of a rough, stolid, kindly, unsentimental vet. in a manufacturing town in the heart of the Catholic province of Brabant and fills in the social background lightly enough to relieve the tension of his hero's gory exploits in byre and stable." Times [London] Lit Sup

"In 'Dutch Vet' one of the more genuinely native and honest of Dutch novels is seeing the light of day in a competent English translation which manages to reproduce the essential flavor of the original admirably." D. C. De Jong
+ Books p3 Ag 25 '40 800w

Reviewed by Olga Owens
Boston Transcript p1 Ag 24 '40 480w

— Cath World 152:251 N '40 210w

Christian Century 57:1180 S 25 '40 60w

"This is a well-told story. . . It is full of humor and philosophy, as well as all the gory details of the profession, and is reminiscent of Reymont's Peasants. For adult readers." E. H. Crowell
+ Library J 65:652 Ag '40 90w

"The novel, which is better than its badly chosen title, moves at a somewhat too conscientious pace, but is bright with real people, has a round, sturdy touch of humor and gives an authentic picture of Dutch life."
+ — New Repub 103:286 Ag 26 '40 60w

"Dutch Vet is a title which does not inspire confidence, and . . . there is no use pretending that this is everybody's book. It is also only fair to the possible reader to say that the writer is not skillful and that the book is consequently an untidy slice of life. But for all its defects there can be no doubt that it is a good book. . . It has something of the charm of Kilvert—a life not specially interesting, but unfamiliar and described with an abundant sense of what is pleasant about it." Anthony West
+ — New Statesman & Nation 19:542 Ap 20 '40 330w

"In parts the novel proceeds slowly, with many a retardation in its flow, yet the slowness is so much in keeping with the spirit of the book, so much like the calm gestures of a relaxed story-teller that the reader must accept it if he accepts Vlimmen. Roothaert's novel is meant to be read leisurely. . . 'Dutch Vet' has that stout, delightful humor of the Low Countries that reminds one of De Coster's best works, and of Breughel's peasants." Marianne Hauser
+ N Y Times p6 Ag 25 '40 550w

"Know anything about the business of being a veterinary surgeon? Myhnheer Roothaert tells you all about it in a first-class novel full of sense and solid humor."
+ New Yorker 16:65 Ag 24 '40 70w

"This is no book for a squeamish person, but then, no squeamish person should be allowed to read books anyway. . . Too much veterinary detail is the principal weakness of what is otherwise a fine study of a people with whom most of us are acquainted only through 'Hans Brinker' and our nurseryman. . . The book is not likely to raise the market price of veal and the physiological processes of human beings in various circumstances are put down with a Dutch bluntness that will give delicate persons a lovely shock—particularly a delightful scene explaining the facts about the servant girl. But except for an overdutiful dose of veterinary surgery now and then, which can be skipped at will, the novel is as solid as a wooden shoe." Phil Stong
+ — Sat R of Lit 22:11 Ag 17 '40 550w

"Dutch Vet is not an appealing title, but it is a good sound book, one of those books which could exercise no critic's spite or malice, so honest is it, so sensible without priggishness or complacency. It is clumsy and rambling, plain fare to the point of coarseness, but not crude. The starkness of the realism is mellowed off by a mildly philanthropic, rationalistic outlook. The vet. is an endearing character, simple-minded, modest, generous, public-spirited, progressive and devoted in his profession." Rosamond Lehmann

+ Spec 164:638 My 3 '40 370w

"Though religion and the soul are frequently invoked in this story—which, incidentally, has broken all records, it appears, for the sale of fiction in Holland—nothing could seem more severely rationalist, more contentedly earthbound in sentiment."

Times [London] Lit Sup p192 Ap 20 '40 340w

RORICK, ISABEL SCOTT. Mr and Mrs Cugat; the record of a happy marriage; il. by Floyd A. Hardy. 211p $2 Houghton

40-32137

Ten short stories about a happily married young Western couple. Mr Cugat was fourth vice-president of the bank; pretty Mrs Cugat had no head for figures and a yearning for mink coats. Together they managed to be very charming, and even when things did get a bit thick they managed to weather their storms with a sense of humor.

Booklist 37:91 N 1 '40

"Isabel Rorick has given gayety and charm to these stories, but their greatest charm is not in their wit but in their faithful and half-tender reporting of these very prosaic problems. Almost all of the situations have been described before and it is actually their familiarity that gives the book its humor. But the humor is fresh and new and it is perfectly justifiable to recreate an old story if you can do it in such modern and such delightful terms." Anne Brooks

+ Books p17 O 27 '40 280w

"These are very amusing Cugat episodes. They are told in an intimate and witty way that is effervescent with humor. The book should rank as one of the most endearing and funniest in the Mr. and Mrs. category." Beatrice Sherman

+ N Y Times p14 O 27 '40 360w

"Recommended for that isn't-life-terrible feeling."

+ New Yorker 16:86 O 26 '40 50w

ROSE, CORNELIA BRUERE. National policy for radio broadcasting; report of a committee of the National economic and social planning association. 289p $3 Harper

384.5 Radio broadcasting 40-13993

"This analysis of radio broadcasting in the United States has been undertaken in line with the general policy of the National Economic and Social Planning Association of investigating significant national problems requiring the considered formulation of policy. Its purpose is to contribute to the understanding of the issues involved and to stimulate intelligent consideration of means of dealing with them." (Pref) Contents: The problem of a national policy for radio broadcasting; Problems of the technical structure; Problems of the commercial structure; Problems of program content; Problems regarding freedom of the air; Toward a national policy for radio broadcasting. Bibliography. Glossary. Index.

New Repub 103:701 N 18 '40 70w

"The text suggests that the investigation was conducted with considerable thoroughness and understanding in accordance with standard sociological methods and an abstract conception of public welfare. The report follows the general lines and more or less the thought of one or two previous reports, but it is better planned, more comprehensive and, in the main, more comprehending. As in most sociological investigations, there will be found some elaboration of commonplaces and some affirmations based on premises that are not universally accepted. But the subdivision of subjects has a reasonable relation to essentials and is not a mere excuse for piling up minor or possibly irrelevant details." E. N. Jenckes

+ Springf'd Republican p6 Jl 27 '40 1750w

ROSE, MARY DAVIES (SWARTZ). Feeding the family. 4th ed 421p il $5; college ed $3.75 Macmillan

613.2 Food. Diet. Menus (W) 40-9374

"There is more emphasis on food sources of vitamins, and a section on allergy has been added." (Booklist) For first edition see Book Review Digest 1916. Contains tables of nutritive values of foods; on fuel values of various foods in relation to cost; dietary recipes in tabular form; etc. Index.

Booklist 36:399 Je 15 '40

"'Feeding the Family' has been standard for almost a quarter century, so that little need be said in recommendation of a fourth edition. . . Dr. Rose still considers the cost of the diets she prescribes, and makes it clear that expensive foods are not in all cases the best foods. Since most feeders of families must remember their budgets when they plan their meals, this aspect of Dr. Rose's book is by no means the least important. The more the pity then that the price is $5."

+ Books p18 My 26 '40 130w

J Home Econ 32:564 O '40 60w

Reviewed by Kathryn Close

Survey 76:230 Jl '40 110w

ROSENBERG, MELRICH VONELM. The ark of heraldry; decorations by Elinore Blaisdell. 221p $2.50 Holt

929.8 Heraldry. Animals in art. Animals, Legends and stories of (W) 40-2109

Tales of some fifty real and imaginary animals used in heraldry. The stories are supposedly told by Sylvanus Mars, a blazoner of arms. For grade five thru eight.

Booklist 36:309 Ap 1 '40

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Books p7 Mr 17 '40 250w

Reviewed by M. A. Whitney

Christian Science Monitor p9 Ap 25 '40 160w

"The style is simple with a quaint flavor, and the custom of choosing mottoes is so skillfully described as to make the reader scarcely aware that he is learning either history or Latin. Shield designs are in excellent, clear line drawings by Elinore Blaisdell. Large clear type, silver cloth binding. Not a book desirable because necessary, so much as necessary because it is beautiful." Maude Adams

+ Library J 65:124 F 1 '40 150w

"'The Ark of Heraldry' is a gay and charming book which grew out of the author's own particular enthusiasm for heraldry and out of his knowledge of life in the medieval world. One or two books on heraldry have been written for children, but none of them present the subject so appealingly and with so much understanding of what arouses a young reader's interest." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p12 Mr 10 '40 400w

Wis Lib Bul 36:103 My '40

ROSENFARB, JOSEPH. The national labor policy and how it works; pref. by Robert F. Wagner; foreword by J. Warren Madden. 732p $5 Harper

331.154 Labor laws and legislation. Labor contract. U.S. National labor relations board (W) 40-7644

An appraisal of the workings of the National labor relations board, with an analysis of the amendments which have been proposed to the Labor act. After studying the background that gave rise to the Wagner act, the author analyzes the law, section by section, and discusses Board decisions, and their effect. Contains the text of the act, with amendments, a list of court cases involving the act, and an index. The author is an attorney on the staff of the National labor relations board. Index.

ROSENFARB, JOSEPH—Continued.

Reviewed by C. T. Schmidt
Am Econ R 30:631 S '40 750w

Booklist 36:394 Je 15 '40

"The phrase 'definitive study' is badly overworked, but it is hard to see how it can be avoided this time. . . [This] is long, massively footnoted, perfectly indexed, heavily appendixed; it contains a twenty-page outline table of contents, a preface by Senator Wagner, a foreword by Chairman Madden, hundreds of pages of trenchant, lucid prose, and an exhaustive exposition, solidly grounded in law and economics, of the background, character, policies, consequences, and prospects of the act and the board." R. R. R. Brooks
+ Nation 150:783 Je 29 '40 1000w

"The author's style is better than we have a right to expect from a brief-writing lawyer; it is, however, thickly studded with metaphors and parables, which, while ingenious, are sometimes indigestible. As a whole, the book compels respect for the author and the Board. Even the clichés are so substantial that their form must be disregarded." Leonard Boudin
+ — New Repub 102:800 Je 10 '40 800w

"One does not have to accept one hundred per cent all the disclosures of the Smith Committee investigating the board to disagree with Mr. Rosenfarb when he refers the committee's work as 'peccadillo disclosures.' Friends of the Act as ardent as the author and who oppose its amending as strongly as he threw up their hands at some of these revelations. It is to be regretted that there are those within the board whose maladministration has helped bring it to its present low estate. For these reasons Mr. Rosenfarb's work, excellent as it is within the bounds necessarily self imposed, cannot be regarded as an entirely objective presentation. However, it does illuminate the trail blazed by the Labor Act." Louis Stark
— + Sat R of Lit 22:18 My 25 '40 800w

Springf'd Republican p8 Ag 21 '40 60w

Reviewed by Arthur Feiler
Survey G 29:520 O '40 210w

ROSENFELD, SYBIL MARION. Strolling players and drama in the provinces, 1660-1765. 334p il $4 Macmillan [15s Cambridge]

792 Theater—Great Britain. Actors and actresses [40-31226]

"The authoress has asked what was happening to the English drama outside the capital during the century leading from Davenant to Garrick, and she has made special inquiry into the theatrical residents and visitors in such towns as York, Ipswich, Bristol, and Canterbury, concluding with an examination of the Summer Theatres run by Penkethman in Greenwich and Richmond with visiting London actors." Manchester Guardian

"Miss Rosenfeld's abundant information has been collected from files of provincial newspapers, from civic archives, from the memoirs of actors who, starting as strollers later became important enough to write their autobiographies, and from other sources. A good many of her pages are necessarily devoted to the dry task of recording performances and casts; but scattered here and there is much live antiquarian anecdotage in which is re-created a picturesque aspect of English life. Eight well chosen illustrations add to the book's interest and value." S. C. Chew
+ Books p23 Mr 31 '40 600w

"Many of the personalities and anecdotes in Miss Rosenfeld's book would have seemed natural in a Dickens novel. Amid all the facts she has compiled is the living, laughing spirit of the drolls and mountebanks." Ivor Brown
+ Manchester Guardian p5 Ag 15 '39 430w

"Reading the many pages that are not summary, especially the chapter on 'The Strolling Life', no one who has a spark of sympathy with bygone barnstormers but will thank Miss Rosenfeld for a book that is as human as it is learned."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p475 Ag 12 '39 1300w

ROSINSKI, HERBERT. The German army. 267p $3 Harcourt [12s 6d Hogarth]

355.0943 Germany—Army [40-3231]

Study of the German army from the reign of Frederick the Great to the present day. The author, until recently one of the principle instructors at a German staff college, attempts to explain the interrelation of the German army with the life of the nation as a whole. No index.

Reviewed by A. V. Boerner
Am Pol Sci R 34:603 Je '40 350w

Reviewed by Friedrich Lenz
Ann Am Acad 210:151 Jl '40 750w

Reviewed by W. H. Martell
Boston Transcript p1 My 25 '40 210w

Foreign Affairs 18:751 Jl '40 60w

Reviewed by O. G. Villard
Nation 150:687 Je 1 '40 850w

New Repub 102:618 My 6 '40 60w

Reviewed by Tom Wintringham
New Statesman & Nation 18:687 N 11 '39 700w

"Here is an important book, though it will not tell the reader on what hour of what day the German Army will crack. This reviewer read the volume in conjunction with Otto Braun's 'Von Weimar zu Hitler,' the autobiography of the Social Democratic Premier of Prussia during the years of the Weimar Republic (hitherto not translated into English, so far as the writer knows). The two books explain a great deal about Germany's might, why it will be difficult to defeat, and if defeated, why that defeat will come." Shepard Stone
+ N Y Times p14 Ap 21 '40 800w

"The author, a refugee since 1936, is a civilian with a military background. Evidently written prior to the offensive against Poland, the book sometimes fails to grasp the essence of professional military thought, but is nevertheless well worth reading. To this reviewer, the most important thing about it is how much of similar opinion prevails in Germany today. The lack of an index detracts somewhat from its value." R. E. Dupuy
+ — Sat R of Lit 22:12 My 25 '40 470w

"The book is a brilliant piece of writing which no student of Germany or of military history can afford to miss." W. T. Wells
+ Spec 163:658 N 10 '39 750w

"This book must have cost the author a great deal to write; and when the author is, like Dr. Rosinski, a man of wide culture and at the same time an acknowledged authority on the subject, this is a sure guarantee that the book is a good one. And this is much more than an interesting book on a subject of topical importance; it is that rarer thing, a work of art. At all times the spirit which has inspired the German Army is, to an Englishman, a subject at best of intelligent curiosity, but more often of profound aversion. Dr. Rosinski's great achievement is that he makes the reader, through his combination of scholarly detachment with legitimate national pride, understand and appreciate the austere dedication of self and of others on the altar of duty which forms the central article in the code of the Prussian officer."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p635 N 4 '39 850w

ROSS, ALBERT HENRY (FRANK MORISON, pseud). And Pilate said—; a new study of the Roman procurator. 275p il maps $2.75 Scribner [10s 6d Rich]

B or 92 Pilate, Pontius. Palestine—Description and travel 40-3771

This "biographical study of Pontius Pilate" incorporates all that is known about the Procurator of Judea, with accounts of the author's own journeys in the Near East. Three episodes narrated by Josephus form the basis of much of the study of Pilate: his landing at Caesarea; his financing of the great aqueduct out of the temple treasury; and the judgment of Jesus.

"Out of [scattered] material and the legends of Pilate's later years and death Mr. Morison tries to mold a genuinely historical character, with personal lineaments of his own. But he produces little that is new, and that little is highly speculative. Pilate remains the same dim, dark figure he has always been." J. H. Holmes

Books p17 F 11 '40 200w

Reviewed by E. M. Poteat
Christian Century 57:450 Ap 3 '40 600w

Reviewed by A. F. Gilmore
Christian Science Monitor p12 Mr 23 '40 650w

"There are many who will not find the arguments for the physical resurrection convincing, but who will find the book valuable as a complete picture of all that is known in history and has been fancied in legend about Pontius Pilate." W. L. Caswell

+ Churchman 154:17 Mr 1 '40 130w

"Over this book there must be differences of opinion, at present irreconcilable. But they who agree with Mr. Morison, and they who disagree, will unite in doubting whether the issue, thus defined, can ever be settled by appeals, whether to disputed passages in Josephus or to the remains of water-courses from the Pools of Solomon to the cavernous cisterns beneath the temple area. However compelling may be the aspect of sticks and stones, there is in man that which rises above all material witness." P. W. Wilson

N Y Times p22 F 11 '40 1200w

"The author reveals himself as a careful investigator of evidence, whether literary or archeological. His higher criticism appears unimpeachable in its conclusions, and his findings throw new light upon various chapters in the four Gospels. Additional interest is afforded by 56 full-page photographs especially taken for this book."

+ Springf'd Republican p10 F 15 '40 420w

ROSS, EDWARD ALSWORTH. New-age sociology. 597p map $3.25 (15s) Appleton-Century

301 Sociology 40-9845

In this new textbook in sociology, the professor (emeritus) of sociology at Wisconsin, limits himself to a discussion of modern Western civilization excluding historic, primitive and Oriental societies.

"There is a wealth of stimulating reading in this book and it provides numerous insights into both the organizational and the processual aspects of contemporary western society. It is doubtful, however, whether this volume will add materially to Ross's already excellent reputation in the field of sociology." J. H. Barnett

Am Soc R 5:831 O '40 320w

Reviewed by W. R. Crawford
Survey 76:279 S '40 270w

ROSS, ERNEST CARSON. The ordeal of Bridget Elia; a chronicle of the Lambs. 232p il $2.50 Univ. of Okla. press

B or 92 Lamb, Mary Ann. Lamb, Charles 40-12186

In his Essays of Elia, Charles Lamb used the name Bridget to designate his sister Mary. This chronicle of the fortunes of the Lamb family is devoted especially to her, and describes the whole course of her life from childhood to her death at eighty-two, with special attention to the usually neglected years following the death of Charles Lamb. Mary is pictured in her periods of sanity as a kindly, long suffering woman, a refuge and a companion to the many friends of the Lamb ménage. Index.

"'The Ordeal of Bridget Elia' is not a very readable book. The style is but a step above commonplace; the people, even Mary, have too little life; trivial incidents are not skillfully subordinated. But it is a thorough and scholarly study, none the less, and one that helps us to understand more fully the woman whom Charles Lamb unforgettably portrays as Bridget in his 'Essays of Elia.'" Kerker Quinn

+ — Books p26 S 29 '40 650w

"Sound scholarship, absorbing reading, 'The Ordeal of Bridget Elia' is a permanent contribution to Eliana. Admirers of Charles and Mary Lamb, of whom there is a goodly fellowship on this side of the Atlantic, will be grateful to Professor Ross for this book." E. C. Johnson

+ Boston Transcript p2 S 7 '40 450w

Reviewed by Eleanor Godfrey
Canadian Forum 20:190 S '40 170w

New Repub 103:222 Ag 12 '40 50w

"The book is written without distinction or expertness and with an unaccented inclusiveness of detail which makes it hard to see the woods for the trees. But in his very failure to build up his story well the biographer has avoided the snare of a build-up in the modern slang sense. The portrait of 'Bridget Elia' emerges with difficulty from its surrounding minutiae, but with an effect of unstrained veracity which is as important as skill."

+ — N Y Times p4 Je 23 '40 600w

"The book reads like a family journal and its merit lies in its compactness of detail rather than in freshness of vitality of portrayal. With the Lambs this is not necessarily a disadvantage, since anything that they wrote or uttered or anything that has been written about them has the lure of humaneness or piquancy. However, the volume will be of greater interest to students of literature and devotees of the Lambs than to readers seeking an introduction to the Lambs and their circle." E. N. Jenckes

+ — Springf'd Republican p6 Je 22 '40 1200w

Time 36:71 Jl 15 '40 650w

ROSS, EVA JEANY. Belgian rural cooperation; a study in social adjustment. 194p $4.50 Bruce pub.

630.62493 Agriculture—Belgium. Agriculture, Cooperative 40-12250

"Toward the end of the nineteenth century, agricultural conditions in Belgium were at their lowest point—antiquated methods, high costs, poor soil, and outside competition. The Belgian farmer was rescued from bankruptcy by means of agricultural coöperation. From this background, the author proceeds with a thorough examination of the coöperatives, including the Belgische Boerenbond, which is perhaps the largest coöperative organization of its kind in the world." Am Econ R

Am Econ R 30:604 S '40 70w

"Miss Ross's survey is of more than historical interest. Sociologists will do well to study it in detail. It will have special appeal for those interested in cooperatives and in guilds." Emerson Hynes

+ Commonweal 32:394 Ag 30 '40 430w

ROSS, EVA JEANY. Fundamental sociology. 698p $3 Bruce pub.

301 Sociology, Christian. Social problems 39-29697

"The author divides her material into three parts: Bases of Sociology; Social Institutions;

ROSS, E. J.—Continued
Social Problems. Within each are both fact and interpretation, the latter those of a Catholic sociologist. As noted in the preface, the text is 'written especially for the Catholic reader.'" Survey

Reviewed by R. K. Merton
Am J Soc 45:937 My '40 200w

"The book is replete with broad, unsupported generalizations. It is marred by errors of fact such as the statement (p. 580) in reference to the immigration act of 1924, where in one paragraph there are at least three errors in statement and one serious omission. The reviewer, however, would be unjust if he did not acknowledge an excellent bibliography, an outstanding job of book designing and printing, and at least a closer approach to a text suitable for Catholics than has yet been available." P. J. Mundie
— + Am Soc R 5:308 Ap '40 460w

Reviewed by J. F. Cuber
Social Educ 4:221 Mr '40 600w

"The range is extensive, from social origins to current social activities and aims. Perhaps this explains the disparity in the thoroughness of treatment in various sections. The parts particularly worthwhile are the ones which present material formerly studied and published by Miss Ross, especially in 'Social Origins' (1937) and 'What Is Economics?' (1939)." L. L. Lauerman
+ — Survey 76:181 My '40 430w

ROSS, HAROLD ELLIS. The care and handling of milk. rev and enl ed 417p il $4 Judd [26s 6d Routledge]
637.13 Milk. Dairying 39-31503

"The author states that in rewriting this book he has retained the same ideals as were in mind when the first edition was prepared, namely, to furnish as far as possible the latest information concerning the science and practice involved in the care and handling of milk. The book is intended as a text for dairy students and a guide for all who are interested in the production of milk and in its use as a food." (Am J Pub Health) The first edition was published in 1927.

"The author has succeeded well in his endeavor to bring the information in the book up to date. It is well written, clear, and concise. It contains much valuable information and deserves a place in the libraries of all who are interested in dairying and all schools which train farmers and dairymen. It is sound and authentic. The make-up and printing are good." E. R. Garrison
+ Am J Pub Health 30:443 Ap '40 190w
Booklist 36:154 D 15 '39

ROSS, JAMES. They don't dance much. 296p $2.50 Houghton
40-32624

A story of a tough joint, a roadhouse just outside a small Southern mill town. The manager of the house and his assistant, Jack McDonald, who tells the story, plot theft and murder together, while each is secretly plotting against the other as well.

"This book is as hard as nails, really hard, with no inverted romanticism or sentimentalism, as in the James Cain novels, about it; touching on no profundities as does the least of the Hemingway stories; with no overtones and no significance except—and it is an exception to conjure with—those supplied by graphic, detailed and sound representation clothing a hard straight narrative." F. T. Marsh
Books p12 N 17 '40 750w

"'They Don't Dance Much' tells an ugly story, and tells it well. It is hard and shrewd in its picture of the roadhouse, concise and brutal in its crime story. There are implications of social significance, if you care to see them, but they aren't pointed up. Not pleasant, but very interesting reading." Beatrice Sherman
+ — N Y Times p7 N 3 '40 650w

"There are a good many loose ends in the book, but they are amusing loose ends. In spite of these irrelevant tags of detail the book has drive and power and an artistic and truly haunting aura of savagery and some horror." P. S.
+ — Sat R of Lit 23:21 N 23 '40 230w

ROSS, LEONARD Q., pseud. See Rosten, L. C.

ROSS, MARGARET ISABEL. Morgan's fourth son; il. by James Daugherty. 252p $2 Harper
(W) 40-33283

The scene is a big Michigan farm, the narrator a city boy who finds in himself a love of the land. It is the story of a farmer who hoped that his youngest son would follow in his father's footsteps and become a scientific farmer, and a lover of good live stock. Just as he was ready to accept defeat a neighbor needed help, and in learning to manage a run down farm, the fourth Morgan realized that he was a farmer at heart. For older boys and girls.

Booklist 37:140 D 1 '40

"This is a fine picture of modern farm life with its many problems." D. M. MacDonald
+ Library J 65:984 N 15 '40 150w

"Interesting story. Descriptions of modern farming and fine farm animals are earthy and convincing. Daugherty's strong black-and-white drawings are appropriate to the scene." E. W. Steele
+ New Repub 103:845 D 16 '40 70w

"We have had in the past few years many excellent stories describing the taming of the wilderness into farmland and early American farm life, but scarcely any for the 'teen age which tell of it as it is today, and none of which give such a rounded picture as does this new book. . . It is told with rather more eloquence than seems natural to a high-school boy, and there is a plethora of young romance running rather unnecessarily through it, but it leaves no doubt as to the courage and intelligence required of a farmer today." E. L. Buell
+ — N Y Times p10 O 27 '40 330w

ROSS, MRS NANCY WILSON. Take the lightning. 314p $2.50 Harcourt
40-30759

Psychological novel in which the corners of the marital triangle are formed by Dalton Erroll, a young psychiatrist, teaching in a western college; Corwyn, his lovely neurotic wife, still fighting for poise and maturity; and Erroll's friend Stephen, with whom Corwyn had lived while studying abroad. With Stephen's return to America, and his attempt to re-ensnare Corwyn, came the final realization of Corwyn's mental integrity.

"Any retelling of Miss Ross's story must coarsen and blunt it. 'Take the Lightning' has a considerable variety of values. The skillful re-creation of faculty life in a college town, a first-rate study of a 'pink' professor, and of a woman who has made a genuine achievement in the application of Oriental philosophies to her personal life, various intelligent allusions to the Buchmanites. All are well woven into a sustainedly interesting psychiatric novel." F. H. Bullock
+ Books p8 S 1 '40 600w

"This is much more than a novel of situation. Its characters are adult personalities, aware of themselves and of the complex world in which they live. The values and issues with which it deals are personal, but its meanings go far beyond the personal. That is, of course, high praise."

+ Christian Century 57:1083 S 4 '40 130w

"Not very problematic, but done honestly, with a fine flair for dialogue and good descriptions of small-town college life."

New Repub 103:394 S 16 '40 50w

"A book with a theme such as that of 'Take the Lightning' is necessarily somewhat febrile. . . A more just criticism is that Mrs. Ross permits herself occasionally to become a little mannered, succumbs to the intoxication of a rather lush verbiage. . . Fortunately, Mrs. Ross is seldom guilty of these lapses. For the most part, 'Take the Lightning' is a civilized and provocative story, written with genuine depth of feeling." E. H. Walton

+ — N Y Times p6 S 1 '40 850w

"It may sound grim, but it isn't, perhaps because of the background of convincing and often entertaining faculty squabbles in a Northwestern university."

+ New Yorker 16:54 Ag 31 '40 40w

"The widely different panaceas for present-day evils, put forward often with great vehemence, are allowed to stand on their merits, the author declining to draw from them any definite conclusions of her own."

Springf'd Republican p7e S 8 '40 310w

ROSTEN, LEO CALVIN (LEONARD Q. ROSS, pseud). Adventure in Washington. 199p $2 Harcourt

40-27019

"The scene is Washington, where a superhero, Jeffrey Brett, works as a correspondent for a powerful Midwest newspaper. Brett becomes involved in a fight against Merrill Drew, a lobbyist and a villain, and is in a pretty bad way until beautiful Eden Fleming supplies him with a clue." N Y Times

Booklist 36:198 Ja 15 '40

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p9 D 31 '39 110w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin
Boston Transcript p6 Ja 6 '40 30w

New Repub 102:158 Ja 29 '40 50w

"Mr. Ross is an authority on news coverage of Washington and when his plot will let him he makes some use of these reserves of knowledge. But the book is not very interesting, because the characters are obviously card-board and because the 'suspension of disbelief' necessary to the enjoyment of such a yarn as this is not achieved." Robert Van Gelder

— N Y Times p7 Ja 7 '40 240w

New Yorker 15:61 Ja 6 '40 40w

"No murders but plenty of excitement and knowledgeable account of behind-scenes activities in nation's capital. Pretty thin."

— + Sat R of Lit 21:20 Ja 20 '40 30w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 7 '40 120w

ROSTEN, NORMAN. Return again, traveler; with a foreword by Stephen Vincent Benét. (Ser. of younger poets) 88p $2 Yale univ. press

811 40-33326

This work, issued as one "long poem," is made up of a large number of short sketches of men and events in American history. The book is the 1940 prize winner of the Yale series of younger poets.

"One of the better books of poetry of this season. . . The long connected poem tells of the growth of America, and it is a good poem. One feels that some of the parts excited the poet more than others. It is mildly revolutionary, a voice for the little people." John Holmes

+ Boston Transcript p9 D 16 '40 200w

"Certainly, 'Return Again, Traveler,' is Whitmanesque in conception; it also may be said to echo the spirit and some of the diction associated with Carl Sandburg and Archibald MacLeish. That is not to say it is merely derivative. It is derivative but it is not imitative. It is the kind of poetry, uneven though it may be, that lifts the heart of the reader and turns the mind toward the future. Mr. Rosten is a young poet who combines sincerity and emotional balance to a degree unusual in a person of his years." John Ritchey

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 D 28 '40 400w

"Throughout, the book is nothing but prose. It reflects a cub-reporter sympathy for the poor and struggling, a pumped up Americanism, an 'America was promises' aura, with no glimpse of talent in it. Stephen Vincent Benét's foreword reads like an apology."

— Living Age 359:293 N '40 80w

ROSVALL, TOIVO DAVID. Finland, land of heroes. 272p il map $2.50 Dutton

947.1 Finland—History. Finland—Description and travel (W) 40-27284

An informal history of the land of the author's forefathers, combined with anecdotes of his travels and descriptions of Finland's cities and towns. Index.

Booklist 36:304 Ap 1 '40

Reviewed by Agnes Rothery
Books p22 Mr 3 '40 600w

Reviewed by E. B. Schriftgiesser
Boston Transcript p11 Mr 1 '40 360w

Christian Science Monitor p11 Je 22 '40 160w

Foreign Affairs 18:759 Jl '40 10w

Reviewed by Esther Johnston
Library J 65:166 F 15 '40 110w

"As an introductory close-up of Finland, this timely book is competently done. The illustrations by Tibor Gerley are typical and therefore appropriate, though rather more severe in style than the Rosvall text."

+ Living Age 358:194 Ap '40 180w

"A well written, sympathetic, personal travelogue."

+ New Repub 102:417 Mr 25 '40 40w

"Toivo Rosvall is an American of Finnish parentage. Born in Fitchburg, Mass., he has visited the country of his ancestors and looked at its present and its past. Indeed, he has mixed present and past together, to some extent, in his impressionistic and exceedingly vivid book, so that one may find one's self slipping over a thousand years, back and forth, in a few paragraphs. But perhaps that is not an unfitting way to look at Finland."

+ N Y Times p9 F 25 '40 800w

"Charming travel diary."

+ New Yorker 16:63 Mr 2 '40 40w

"Rosvall succeeds in imparting flavor and in sharing a genuine insight, but even those who are familiar with Finland will find the result a trifle confusing—geographically, chronologically, and artistically." Agnes Rothery

+ — Sat R of Lit 21:10 Mr 2 '40 90w

Springf'd Republican p8 F 27 '40 450w

Wis Lib Bul 36:98 My '40

Reviewed by Waino Nyland
Yale R n s 29:853 summer '40 430w

ROTH, CECIL. The Jewish contribution to civilization. 420p $2 Harper; Union of Am. Hebrew congregations [7s 6d Macmillan]

296 Jews—Civilization 40-8883

Outlines the part which the Jewish people have taken in the development of Western civilization. Partial contents: The revival of learning; The great voyages of discovery; The Jew in letters; Art, music, stage; The Jew in European thought; Scientific progress; Medicine; The economic sphere; Public life. Dr Roth is a Fellow of the Royal Historical society, a contributor to the Cambridge Medieval History, and the author of historical works. Bibliography. Index.

ROTH, CECIL—Continued

"Dr. Roth's work is thorough, complete and authoritative." H. U. Ribalow
+ Books p43 N 10 '40 450w

"Here is a timely book which will probably be unread by those who most need it. One desiring the truth will find adequate coverage by a competent scholar. Many a prejudice will be exploded; many a surprise will be met. . . Anyone wishing to have quotable data at hand to refute the silly charges of anti-Semites will find this volume valuable. It is fair, challenging, comprehensive and exceedingly interesting." C. S. Knopf
+ Christian Century 57:856 Jl 3 '40 430w

"For all who have an open mind the book should be a valuable corrective of the racial nonsense that is poisoning European thought." N. B.
+ Manchester Guardian p7 Mr 1 '38 340w

" 'The Jewish Contribution to Civilization' amounts almost to a brief history of the Jewish people in Europe. It is very interesting reading on several counts."
+ N Y Times p12 Jl 28 '40 600w

"Dr. Roth's volume summarizes, with a wealth of research, and in superbly lucid style, the rich contribution to the fabric of civilized life, of a little people whose numbers are less than one percent of the population of the Western world." A. L. Sachar
+ Sat R of Lit 22:19 Jl 6 '40 450w

"Dr. Roth has well fulfilled his task, and no unbiased reader can put down the book without realizing that the existence of the Jewish people has enriched our civilization and benefited humanity as a whole. It is possible in the process of evaluation to criticize the inclusion of some of his personages and the exclusion of others. There are other slips in the work due apparently to haste in its compilation, which greater leisure would have prevented."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p423 Je 18 '38 380w

ROTHENSTEIN, SIR WILLIAM. Since fifty. 346p il $5 Macmillan [21s Faber]

B or 92 Artists—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. (W)

The third installment of the author's memoirs covers the years, 1922 to 1938. The book is filled with recollections of his famous friends, among them Kipling, Sargent, Yeats, Shaw, Hardy, T. E. Lawrence, Max Beerbohm, and many others. For earlier volumes see Book Review Digest, 1931 and 1932. Index.

Atlantic Je '40 190w
Booklist 36:344 My 1 '40

"This is a brave, hopeful book, the book of a painter whose austerity in his own productions has not lessened his joy in artistic adventure and freedom. It is well illustrated, with plates from his portraits and pictures. The most engaging portrait in it is the one which, all unconsciously, he draws of himself as his narrative proceeds." Royal Cortissoz
+ Books p2 My 5 '40 1300w

"A good deal of plain oatmeal is mixed with [the] plums, but the book has a real plum-pudding quality. The 36 illustrations, of course, enhance its charm." Lewis Gannett
+ Boston Transcript p11 Ap 23 '40 850w

Reviewed by Ashton Sanborn
Boston Transcript p2 My 4 '40 450w
Cath World 151:372 Je '40 600w

"Sir William has some illuminating remarks on contemporary art, village crafts, and related matters, but, on the whole, he is a trifle shy of obtruding his reflections. It is his friends who make the book; a gathering who seem to constitute almost the complete firmament of leading lights, who glow so warmly, and who, incidentally, cast such a pleasant radiance on his own personality." Eric Forbes-Boyd
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Ja 6 '40 380w

" 'Since Fifty' covers the period during which Sir William Rothenstein was principal of the Royal College of Art, London. It is a goodly book for a pleasant recreation, for who is not interested in personalities? Here we have many revealed to us through the friendships of the author. For instruction too—every exchange of ideas is instructive—this book could be conversation with Sir William himself. The same courtesy and wide sympathies, and the same insight which does not 'spare the rod,' so well known to his students, are here shown presenting ideas on art, international relations and people." Sister Mary of the Compassion, O.P.
+ Commonweal 32:22 Ap 26 '40 440w

"Sequels are apt to be disappointing, but this one . . . succeeds in preserving the continuity of temper and vision that went to the making of the earlier scenes, and shows the author at the close of his long survey, still eager and capacious for friendship, as interested as ever in judging the world about him, and no less generous in his appreciation of the work of other artists." L. H.
+ Manchester Guardian p3 N 17 '39 490w

"This new volume, like the two that preceded it, tells a good deal that is entertaining and occasionally something that is valuable about such people as Sargent, Max Beerbohm, A. E. Housman, Yeats, Arnold Bennett, Kipling and Shaw. . . . But if you try to read very much of it at a time, you presently drop it with a slight dissatisfaction, as if the fare provided from the acquaintance with so many distinguished people had proved a little more on the side of sawdust than one could have imagined possible." Edmund Wilson
+ — New Repub 103:194 Ag 5 '40 600w

Reviewed by Clive Bell
New Statesman & Nation 18:964 D 30 '39 480w

"Compared with the other most copious memoirist of his time—the late Ford Madox Ford—Sir William's recollections are generally more accurate and objective. Mr. Ford was impressionistic, Mr. Wells is certainly ideological, and William Rothenstein is simply realistic, painting people as they were or as they are; and I think his Recollections will be consulted as the best record of the characters and the turn of events in the Victorian-Edwardian-Georgian cycle of history." P. M. Jack
+ N Y Times p5 Ap 21 '40 1650w
New Yorker 16:96 Ap 20 '40 30w
Sat R of Lit 22:21 My 18 '40 350w

"A wit, a good talker, and ample correspondent himself [the author] has provoked an exchange from his sitters; he has instigated friendly celebrations of genius and merit; he has endeavoured, with occasional success, in the stodgily indifferent world of our rulers, education-mongers and wealthy Philistines, to obtain public employment for painters. A sympathetic observer of the human comedy and sedulous mourner over its tragic frustrations, he is too tolerant of susceptibilities to give full play to his native verve in description of character or criticism of current artistic follies." D. S. MacColl
+ Spec 163:688 N 17 '39 1150w
Springf'd Republican p7e Je 2 '40 250w
Times [London] Lit Sup p642 N 4 '39 1050w

ROTHERMELL, FRED. Ghostland. 341p $2.50 Lippincott

40-30889

An American family, living on relief in Brooklyn, are suddenly given new hope when the father's brother offers them the old family farm in the Ozark mountains. The story, as told by the oldest son, an out of work newspaper reporter, follows them on the trip west to their first keen disappointment in the run down farm, their attempts to make it go in spite of the drought, and finally Ned's participation in a farmers' sit-down strike.

"There are harsh and ugly aspects to the novel; but there are warm and human ones as well. As well as a strong story, it is a reminder that the work of relief and rehabilitation will have to go on no matter who administers it." F. T. Marsh

+ Books p10 S 29 '40 750w

"This is a serious book, well done, but it can hardly stand the inevitable comparison with the works of Steinbeck."

+ — Nation 151:310 O 5 '40 80w

New Repub 104:158 F 3 '41 50w

"It is an interesting book, especially in its hardly recognizable Ozark dialect, but it is not, by a long way, another Steinbeck." P. M. Jack

+ — N Y Times p20 O 13 '40 800w

"A rather grim story with nothing but family solidarity to lighten the gloom."

New Yorker 16:77 S 28 '40 80w

"'The Ghostland' is obviously propaganda fiction. Drought conditions have made Mr. Rothermell so indignant that the three and one-half hundred pages of his volume are a long crescendo of mounting and unmitigated misery. . . It is not so, however, that great fiction is achieved. It is not so that moving propaganda fiction is achieved. The secret of propaganda fiction was learned long ago by Charles Dickens and Harriet Beecher Stowe, but it is a secret which our modern novelists are mostly too proud to learn." H. M. Jones

— + Sat R of Lit 23:13 N 16 '40 410w

Time 36:84 O 7 '40 240w

ROTHERY, AGNES EDWARDS (MRS H. R. PRATT). South American roundabout; il. by Carl Burger. 242p map $2 Dodd

918 South America—Description and travel (W) 40-31869

Description, history, social life and customs of each of the South American countries, taken in geographical order. For grades five to seven. No index.

Booklist 37:124 N 15 '40

"It is a good-neighbor book (apparently without trying to be) and for that reason all the more effective in creating a sympathetic attitude, and when or if the young reader does go on a cruise he will surprise Papa by the number of things he knows enough to expect." M. L. Becker

+ Books p8 D 15 '40 280w

"Such a well written and picturesque account of the fascinating countries below the Isthmus that we are only sorry it is not a little longer, particularly the chapter on Bolivar." E. V. W.

+ Cath World 152:381 D '40 60w

Reviewed by F. B. Sloan

Christian Science Monitor p12 N 27 '40 110w

"Pleasantly and informally written, this book will add much to one's acquaintance with South America." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk M 17:34 Ja '41 90w

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin

Library J 65:855 O 15 '40 20w

"A child ten to fourteen who is keen about geography and travel will read the book with interest. The style is uninspired, the make-up fair, and the book lacks an index." Dorotha Dawson

Library J 65:927 N 1 '40 80w

"This timely book, save for a tendency to written-down prose and an occasional indefiniteness about specific names of interesting plants and other objects, might well stand as a model travel book for younger readers." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p10 D 8 '40 260w

ROTHERY, AGNES EDWARDS (MRS H. R. PRATT). Virginia, the new dominion; il. by E. H. Suydam. 368p $5 Appleton-Century

917.55 Virginia—Description and travel. Virginia—Social life and customs (W) 40-27455

"[This volume] is an expression of what is significant in the state of Virginia today, recalling enough of the past to afford comparison between the old and the new. The rich detail of restored Williamsburg, the charm of Jefferson's home at Monticello, the panorama of the Shenandoah valley are described and interpreted. Miss Rothery states in her preface: 'To write a book about the new dominion of Virginia is to tell of farms and forests and fisheries: of great seaports and shipyards: of schools and factories: politics, roads, and parks: of a contribution whose importance can hardly be overestimated, to our national defense on the sea, on the land, and in the air.'" (Springf'd Republican) Index.

Reviewed by L. J. Cappon

Am Hist R 46:483 Ja '41 210w

"The Rothery-Suydam book on Virginia is marvelous to behold and fascinating to read. . . Mrs. Rothery has made certain errors in her delightful text, but they are so blithe and well-intended that criticism goes limping and somewhat shamefaced after her." G. W. Johnson

+ — Books p5 Ap 28 '40 1300w

"A contribution to the annals of our country which every public library should add to its 'popular' shelves. . . While uniform with a dozen other books on the American scene illustrated by E. H. Suydam, it is a book to be respected and enjoyed in its own right and not merely as part of a series." Mary Clark

+ Library J 65:396 My 1 '40 290w

"It is a book which ought to serve a good purpose. It will inform alike the tourist and the Virginian. And if it is not always quite accurate, who among us in writing such a book could have avoided a slip or two?" H. I. Brock

+ — N Y Times p6 Je 2 '40 1050w

New Yorker 16:91 Ap 27 '40 30w

Springf'd Republican p7e My 5 '40 200w

ROTTSCHAEFER, HENRY. Handbook of American constitutional law. (Hornbook ser) 982p $5 West

342.73 U.S.—Constitutional law 39-11789

"One of the Hornbook Series, designed to serve as a textbook in constitutional law, the study is developed in accordance with the thesis that constitutional law is 'a body of judge-made law assuming the legal form of a series of judicial interpretations of the several written constitutions that compose our constitutional system' (p. 1). The author's objective is to present 'a systematic statement of the formal legal principles, doctrines, and theories which the courts have employed, and still employ, in the process of giving constitutional provisions concrete applications' (p. 3), trusting that, with such a statement at hand, the student will be more likely to recognize the contribution of 'non-legal factors' to the development of constitutional law." Am Pol Sci R

Reviewed by A. L. Powell

Am Pol Sci R 34:574 Je '40 500w

"In a net appraisal it may seem ungracious to suggest that Professor Rottschaefer might have put more into a volume already unusually rich in information and discriminating comment. His is plainly the best book in its field, and sets a standard of performance not likely soon to be bettered." Willard Hurst

+ — Harvard Law R 53:350 D '39 850w

Reviewed by E. S. Corwin

Yale Law J 49:1143 Ap '40 1250w

ROUGEMONT, DENIS DE. Love in the western world; tr. by Montgomery Belgion [Eng title: Passion and society]. 308p $3 Harcourt [12s 6d Faber]

177.6 Love. Marriage. Tristan. Courtly love. Literature, Comparative 40-32161

"The book is a study of the theory and practice of love as exhibited in Western literature from the myth of Tristan down even unto this day; or, as the author describes it, it is 'a kind of outline-history of the cult of passion.'" Atlantic

---

Atlantic S '40 260w

"This is a book for mystics, for psychologists and for literary detectives; it also may be a book for religious scholars, but it is not a book for lovers." Lorine Pruette
Books p21 Ja 26 '41 430w

Reviewed by R. M. Green, M.D.
Boston Transcript p1 S 14 '40 550w

"This book is a worthy essay in fundamental Christian moral apologetic. I should think it might well stir many and convince at least a few. For the thing at stake, as the author rightly observes in trenchant final chapters, is nothing less than the whole of civilization. . . I may add that M. de Rougemont is an extraordinarily able writer. His pages have spice as well as meat. Once again a book about love proves interesting." G. N. Shuster
+ Commonweal 32:392 Ag 30 '40 700w

Reviewed by H. I'A. Fausset
Manchester Guardian p6 My 20 '40 320w

Reviewed by Stephen Spender
New Statesman & Nation 20:94 Jl 27 '40 800w

"This book is not easy reading. Its material is crowded and complex. Its theories are quite possibly over-simplified, and one may well disagree with them. But it is enormously provocative, and it makes some interesting contributions of historic fact, as well."
+ — N Y Times p34 O 20 '40 420w

"If I may be allowed to forget its last forty pages (which treat of modern marriage more gaseously than anything I can remember since the flatulent Keyserling), I must report that Denis de Rougemont's 'Love in the Western World' interested me about as much as any book of non-fiction I have read this year. . . I recommend this startling book—for it is startling—not so much to professional practitioners of passion as to serious students of the social and religious myths on which the mind structure of modern Europe still rests, though not too securely." Clifton Fadiman
+ — New Yorker 16:60 Ag 17 '40 430w
Time 36:64 S 2 '40 330w

"This is a brilliant book with unusual qualities of penetrative vision and a lively style; and whether readers agree or not with the writer's deductions from history, they are going to find it stimulating. A great deal of what M. de Rougemont says is fair statement in the light of scholarship, and fair comment in the light of psychology."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p210 Ap 27 '40 700w

ROURKE, THOMAS, pseud. See Clinton, D. J.

ROWNTREE, LESTER. Flowering shrubs of California and their value to the gardener; all phot. by the author. 317p map $3 Stanford univ. press

582.17 Shrubs. Botany—California 39-27997

Descriptions and practical information on the cultivation of flowering shrubs native to California. The author maintains that the list is not complete, but is a "sort of first reader" in which she has "put down what [she has] gleaned from personal observation of the habits of these shrubs in the wild and of the behavior under cultivation of those which [she has] grown in California during the last twelve years." (Pref) List of hardy and semihardy California shrubs, and an index.

Booklist 36:128 D 1 '39

"A volume of unusual value. There probably is no one as well qualified as Mrs. Rowntree to write of these plants as they grow in the wild and as they behave (or misbehave) under cultivation. . . She has packed a vast fund of real information into her pages without their ever losing a certain buoyant and thoroughly enjoyable vitality. One would search a long time before finding another gardening book as well worth reading and keeping." R. S. Lemmon
+ Books p22 Mr 3 '40 200w

ROX, HENRY, pseud, il. Banana circus [told by Margaret Fisher]. [48p] $1.50 Putnam 40-32644

"Henry Rox with considerable adroitness has fashioned from bananas a family of eight (arms modeled from plastic material have been added) —Bill and Bella, Bim and Bum, Tim and Tom and the twins, Ban and Ana. This banana family, being a playful lot, decides to present a family circus. Photographs show them performing their various 'acts'; there is the strong man, the tight-rope walker, an Indian fakir, acrobats and clowns and others." N Y Times

---

"Margaret Fisher, by means of brief text, has given the series of photographs some continuity. The ingeniousness of the artist in humanizing these inanimate objects may intrigue some adults and a few children. Large libraries may wish to have the book represented in their collections because Mr. Rox is an artist with a growing reputation. The story value of the book is secondary." Claire Nolte
Library J 65:662 Ag '40 180w

"Both the banana folk and the photographs are clever, but one is inclined to wonder just how much appeal this series of pictures, with a brief text that is hardly more than captions for the photographs, will have for the average child of picture-book age. . . No doubt children and adults as well who have watched Mr. Rox constructing his banana characters have been delighted with them, and though as a picture book these photographic records are lacking in charm, they may possibly prove suggestive to older boys and girls interested in puppets and puppet plays." A. T. Eaton
N Y Times p10 S 15 '40 280w

ROYAL INSTITUTE OF INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS. Nationalism; a report by a study group of members. 380p $3.75 (12s 6d) Oxford

320.1 Nationalism and nationality

"This important study of the idea of nationality by a group of authorities comes at a time when an idea which was much favored by nineteenth-century thinkers is considered suspect, if not even definitely harmful, by many people today. . . The subject is dealt with through the historical approach, the reasons for the rise of national feeling in the different peoples of western Europe being explained, in particular the effect of the Hundred Years War on that development in France and England." Christian Science Monitor

---

Reviewed by H. B. Calderwood
Am Pol Sci R 34:1040 O '40 420w

Reviewed by Sigmund Neumann
Am Soc R 5:975 D '40 550w

Reviewed by E. M. Sait
Ann Am Acad 210:148 Jl '40 480w
Christian Science Monitor p11 My 11 '40 440w

Reviewed by C. D. Burns
Ethics 50:470 Jl '40 750w
Foreign Affairs 19:251 O '40 50w
New Repub 102:481 Ap 8 '40 70w

"A group study, brilliantly conceived and executed. . . It is also extremely well written and well edited, and throughout there are brilliant passages, paragraphs that shed a fresh bright light on national processes. Yet an 'unbiased scientific examination,' such as this study claims to be (p. v) should by definition be scientific, that is to say, objective, international, without distinct class, sex or national bias. This study contains sentences and sections which are unmistakably upper-class and British." Tom Harrisson

+ — New Statesman & Nation 19:342 Mr 9 '40 1000w

Social Studies 31:328 N '40 190w

"There was room, certainly, for a comparative study of modern nationalism. This book, by a Chatham House group under the chairmanship of Professor E. H. Carr, contains a mass of knowledge, fairly assessed and lucidly analysed; yet it is in some respects an unsatisfying, sterile work." W. Arnold-Forster

+ — Spec 164:83 Ja 19 '40 1400w

ROYAL INSTITUTE OF INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS. Shanghai and Tientsin; with special reference to foreign interests, by F. C. Jones; introd. by Harold M. Vinacke. (Inst. of Pacific relations. Int. research ser) 214p maps $2 Inst. of Pacific relations. Am. council [7s 6d Oxford]

951 Tientsin. Shanghai

"Study of the origin, extent, and present importance of international rights and interests at Shanghai and Tientsin, their relation to the national rights of China, and the effects upon them of the present Sino-Japanese conflict." Times [London] Lit Sup

Am Econ R 30:616 S '40 30w

Reviewed by W. C. Johnstone

Am Pol Sci R 34:1027 O '40 300w

Foreign Affairs 19:263 O '40 20w

"The student of urban geography can profit from a perusal of the reliable and timely description of the nature and administration of the foreign settlements and national political concessions; but the locational and site features are inadequately handled." E. G. Mears

+ — Geog R 31:167 Ja '41 280w

"In spite of some errors and omissions, this study with its useful appendices should be valuable to the interested general reader. It presents nothing unfamiliar to the student of these problems and the need for a comprehensive investigation of foreign rights and interests in these two cities as affected by the Sino-Japanese war still remains. W. C. Johnstone

Pacific Affairs 13:90 Mr '40 700w

Times [London] Lit Sup p190 Ap 20 '40 170w

RUBEY, HARRY; LOMMEL, GEORGE EDWARD, and TODD, MARION WESLEY. Engineering surveys. rev ed 321,141p il maps $3.50 (15s) Macmillan

526.9 Surveying. Logarithms 40-14616

"Enlarged and revised to make it more practicable for teaching, with an appendix of student field notes, which makes possible the use of the book for either the complete project method or the functional exercise method." (Booklist) The earlier edition appeared in 1934. Index.

Booklist 37:219 Ja 15 '41

Eng N 125:77 D 19 '40 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 25:40 Jl '40

RUCK, BERTA (MRS GEORGE OLIVER). He learned about women. 242p $2 Dodd [3s 6d Mills & Boon]

40-33366

The story of a nice English boy, growing to maturity between the World war, and the present time. He falls in love first with one woman, then another, and ends up with the childhood sweetheart, whom he once had thought was "that beastly little Vyva."

Reviewed by Lisle Bell

Books p32 D 8 '40 80w

"The people figuring in the story are pleasant, their conversation is natural and the whole story provides an entertaining light diversion." Charlotte Dean

+ N Y Times p24 N 3 '40 180w

RUCK, BERTA (MRS GEORGE OLIVER). It was left to Peter. 238p $2 Dodd

40-4504

Peter, a gay young Englishman, inherited a gloomy Welsh estate over which hung a curse. Then his bride sensed the presence of ghosts and wanted to leave the place. A lucky fire and Peter's bravery changed all that.

"For your early spring garden of romance, here is a tall tale with a deep root." Lisle Bell

Books p23 Mr 3 '40 120w

Boston Transcript p2 My 18 '40 80w

Reviewed by Charlotte Dean

N Y Times p28 Mr 10 '40 190w

RUCK, BERTA (MRS GEORGE OLIVER). Money isn't everything. 268p $2 Dodd

40-10301

Traces the course of an English middle-class family from poverty to wealth and back again. Their luck changed when the father, a hardworking insurance man, won some money on a sweepstakes ticket and turned that into more money. The Smiths were happy for just a little while, and by the time the market crashed, leaving them penniless, they had discovered that "money isn't everything."

"It's not what you would call an unblazed trail in fiction, but the author winds along it at considerable pace and with amusing results." Lisle Bell

Books p12 Je 23 '40 180w

Boston Transcript p2 Ag 3 '40 150w

"Miss Ruck makes a jolly family story out of the Smith tribulations. For entertainment she provides a very British pageant." B. S.

+ N Y Times p16 Ag 11 '40 310w

RUDMAN, HARRY W. Italian nationalism and English letters; figures of the Risorgimento and Victorian men of letters. 444p $3.25 Columbia univ. press [18s Allen, G]

820.9 English literature—History and criticism. Literature, Comparative. Italy—Nationality

Study of "British and Italian intellectual relationships during the Risorgimento. The struggles of the Italians against their oppressors found notable expression in the work of a great many writers from Wordsworth to Meredith, and in many poems, plays, novels and pamphlets of ephemeral interest or value. The output was so great that Mr. Rudman has attempted no more than a cross-section of it. But he has included in this all that was outstanding, and representative samples of much that was not. His emphasis throughout is literary rather than political or biographical. In Part II of his book, however, Mr. Rudman has given detailed sketches of a dozen important Italian exiles, including Ugo Foscolo, Gabriele Rossetti, Panizzi and Orsini, and also an account of the prisoners of King Ferdinand of Naples, whom Gladstone championed. He concentrates chiefly, however, on Mazzini, Cavour and Garibaldi." (Times [London] Lit Sup) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by G. M. Young

Spec 165:39 Jl 12 '40 850w

RUDMAN, H. W.—Continued

"Events have given a particular interest to this able and richly documented study."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p316 Je 29 '40 700w

RUDY, ABRAHAM. Simplified diabetic manual; introd. by Frederick M. Allen. 2d ed 216p il $2 Barrows

616.33 Diabetes. Diet in disease. Cookery for the sick 40-30660

"A revision of Practical Handbook for Diabetic Patients [Book Review Digest, 1930]. Now included are recent developments in the treatment of diabetes, especially problems arising out of the use of new types of insulin. The principal emphasis is on diet, and recipes for Armenian, French, German, Italian, and Jewish, as well as American, dishes are given." (J Home Econ) Indexes.

Booklist 37:120 N 15 '40

J Home Econ 32:632 N '40 60w

RUE, ELOISE, comp. Subject index to books for intermediate grades. 495p $4 A.L.A.

016 Catalogs, Subject. Children's literature —Bibliography (W) 40-27498

Companion volume to the author's Subject Index to Readers (Book Review Digest, 1938). This index is planned to meet the needs of grades four to six, and includes subject material in trade books as well as texts. The volume covers some 1300 titles, and contains some 4,000 subjects and about 20,000 entries.

Booklist 36:375 Je 1 '40

"Aside from its general usefulness as a short route to the contents of some 1,300 books, the Index has value as a general reference tool, as a book-selection guide, and as a cataloging aid. . . Particularly significant is the methodology employed in the book's compilation, which included an examination of courses of study in order to ascertain activities and units of work and to determine subjects based on curricular needs. Although it is not made clear whether the instructional units or the books selected finally determined the subject headings, we may assume that the former, more realistic, method prevailed. Teachers, students, and librarians should find the Index helpful." Frances Henne

+ Library Q 11:121 Ja '41 340w

RUKEYSER, MERRYLE STANLEY. Financial security in a changing world. 272p $2.50 Greenberg

332.67 Investments. Finance—U.S. 40-11649

A discussion of the average American's problems of investment, personal and household budgeting, and business undertakings in view of the influence of the present war on economic conditions and the possibility of worse to come.

"If one seeks in this book a specific choice of securities or a cut-and-dried program for 'financial security' he will be disappointed. The easy and readable style is clearly that of a financial columnist who is addressing a large audience, intent on popularizing old principles rather than discovering new ones." C. C. Bosland

Am Econ R 30:623 S '40 550w

Cleveland Open Shelf p14 Jl '40

Management R 29:387 O '40 20w

RUMSEY, ADELINE (MRS JOSEPH MARX). When the bough breaks. 338p $2.50 Simon & Schuster

40-30407

Story of three sisters, one who married for convenience, one who married for love, and one who wanted a career, not marriage. The story, laid in New York, covers the period from 1919 to the late 1930s. Each of the sisters comes to realize that she has made a mistake, each misses Mama who died when Libby, Julia's daughter, was born, and all three are bound together by memories and hopes for Libby.

"My objection would be that the characters are not sufficiently in contrast—they suffer from too much family resemblance; and as a result no one of the trio is strong enough to keep the story in motion. The parts of this book are better than the whole." Edward Weeks

+ — Atlantic O '40 180w

" 'When the Bough Breaks' has some penetrating observation in it of human foibles and weakness; its writing is crisp and direct and often clever. Few of the characters are pleasant but Miss Rumsey succeeds in making most of them real. . . Best of all in this book is the defining of relationship between the three sisters, the close meshing which at the same time binds them and irritates them." Rose Feld

+ — Books p6 Ag 25 '40 600w

Reviewed by R. C. Searles

Boston Transcript p2 S 7 '40 410w

"Where many a novelist would relentlessly explore the somber labyrinths beneath the surface, Miss Rumsey prefers to highlight the ludicrous antics of her people, in the Meredithian tradition of the comic spirit. Without the final chapter, in fact, three out of five readers might blithely pass over the serious implications of 'When the Bough Breaks' and find it simply a vivacious story, delightfully told." L. B. Salomon

Nation 151:222 S 14 '40 400w

"A careful, touching and quite effective job."

+ New Repub 103:362 S 9 '40 60w

"Knowing her three sisters wholly, piercing with lucid humor behind their evasions and pretensions, Miss Rumsey has fashioned a wry comedy out of their dingy lives which is delightful chiefly because of its detail. Abby, remembering that at least she had a caterer for her wedding; Julia, inventing excuses to keep Henry at a distance; Grace, striving to extract glamour from the tea shops of the Village—it is in casual moments such as these that the author really shows her mettle. 'When the Bough Breaks' is not an important book, but it does what it does to near-perfection and with a cool, dry wit." E. H. Walton

+ N Y Times p7 Ag 25 '40 800w

New Yorker 16:65 Ag 24 '40 90w

"The novel is well written and consistently interesting. While the reader may become impatient with the people in it, he will never find them dull. The author has penetrated deeply into the lives and minds of the three sisters, and she has drawn their characters with skill and clarity."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e S 8 '40 400w

RUNYON, DAMON. My wife Ethel; drawings by Josef. 242p $1.75 McKay [7s 6d Constable]

40-7426

Collection of stories about the daily life and arguments of Joe and Ethel Turp, of Brooklyn, New York. The stories purport to be written by Joe, about his pretty but persistent, dumb wife, Ethel.

"Damon Runyon is a tolerant observer of his fellow man and his fellow man's wife; he never writes about the human race without contributing to its merriment."

+ Books p10 My 19 '40 120w

"An anatomist of humor could no doubt tell why such sensible people seem so preposterous. The rest of us will read and laugh."

+ Boston Transcript p2 My 4 '40 50w

"Mr Runyon's speech in the mouths of Joe and Ethel has been happily labeled 'slanguage,' and punctuation never troubles Joe as he records these episodes. But beneath the slang there is a rich vein of commonsense philosophy, applicable to society in general, and it is this human touch that makes the book specially worth while."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e My 26 '40 260w

"As it deals with more peace-loving characters its language is less startling than that of some of Mr. Runyon's other stories, but it runs on in the same flowing present tense which exercises such an evil fascination on the reader."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p702 D 2 '39 410w

RUPPIN, ARTHUR. The Jewish fate and future; tr. by E. W. Dickes. 386p $4 (21s) Macmillan

296 Jews—Political and social conditions. Jews. Jewish question [40-14641]

"Dr. Ruppin, who is professor of Jewish Sociology at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem, is the recognised master of his subject. And this book forms the conclusion of a tetralogy which he has written during the last 35 years about the social conditions of the Jews. . . He brings to his subject a large practical experience, because for over 30 years he has been the head of the Agricultural Settlement Department of the Zionists in Palestine. In his last book he has a practical as well as a scientific purpose. A serious attempt must be made at the end of the war to solve the Jewish question as part of the new world order. And he contrives to supply accurate knowledge from which just and comprehensive conclusions may be drawn." (Manchester Guardian) Index.

"The nature and scope of the volume necessarily limit its style and appeal. It is neither eloquent nor dramatic. The author makes no attempt to intrigue the reader. He is the clinical technician, and he retains stoical control. Even the chapter which discusses the impact of Nazism on modern Jewish life does not raise his literary blood pressure. The volume, therefore, may not appeal to the average reader, but it is indispensable for the student, the historian, the publicist, all who require a scientific basis for their conclusions about the Jews in the contemporary world." A. L. Sachar
+ Books p19 N 3 '40 1000w

"In all his judgments he is lucid and dispassionate. He knows the causes of the ills which visit his people; and he knows also of the constructive and creative efforts by which they are fighting for life. Convinced Zionist that he is, he does justice to other proposed solutions of the problem, and he writes with understanding of the Arab opposition. In this book, which is well translated, any person who wishes for a clear understanding of a world problem will find the essential facts clearly presented without attempt at eloquence but without incursion of sentiment or passion." Norman Bentwich
+ Manchester Guardian p7 Je 3 '40 280w

Reviewed by P. S. Bernstein
Nation 151:578 D 7 '40 240w

"The author knows his subject inside out. A great merit in his book is that probably 80 per cent. of it is facts and only 20 per cent. argument or opinion. A high proportion of the facts is statistical. This does not make it easy or particularly entertaining reading, and any one who wants merely a discourse about the fate and possible future of the Jews should go elsewhere. But if you want to know the actual facts which will show you what has been happening to the Jews in the last few hundred years, then Professor Ruppin is your man." Leonard Woolf
+ New Statesman & Nation 19:706 Je 1 '40 700w

"Professor Ruppin's book, despite its promising title, can hardly claim to be a contribution towards solving or, at least, clarifying the mystery of Jewish fate. The author . . . treats his subject in a detached, accurate and scholarly manner, without ever succumbing to the temptation of a personal interpretation of the phenomena concerned and the problems involved. He does not, however, conceal his unreserved sympathies with the Zionist movement, of which he is one of the more prominent exponents."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p414 Ag 24 '40 950w

RUSSELL, BERTRAND ARTHUR WILLIAM RUSSELL, 3d earl. Inquiry into meaning and truth. 445p $3.75 Norton

121 Truth. Language and languages. Knowledge, Theory of. Meaning (psychology) 41-1280

"In 1938 Bertrand Russell gave a course of lectures at Oxford on 'Language and Fact,' the subject-matter of which was used in the seminar courses at the University of Chicago in 1938-39 and the University of California at Los Angeles in 1939-40. The book itself consists of the William James Lectures given at Harvard University last Fall." (N Y Times) Index.

"Professor Russell would have a right to dismiss this review as irrelevant and incompetent, for it is not written by a professional philosopher, and is not addressed to professional philosophers. Yet the very fact that a layman read the book with fascination and presents it to other laymen must be accepted as a tribute. The title itself holds forth a promise which appeals to all thinking men. The humblest searchers among us crave for an answer to Pilate's query." Albert Guerard
Books p6 F 2 '41 1200w

Reviewed by A. C. Pegis
Commonweal 33:285 Ja 3 '41 500w

"The meaning of meaning, as well as of truth, has had many meanings, even for Russell, whose theories from their earliest formulation have been subject to re-examination and development, with acknowledged influences contributing no little, but with patient testing of hypotheses as the principal factor. In the long succession of his works on the subject, we have not inconsistency, the easy cry of little critics, but growth, a development that does not hesitate to discard when new theories give greater promise. Even this imposing treatise is offered as a tentative expression of a view most closely akin to the position of the logical positivists, but not without marked differences. The true scientific temper of the author gives promise of fresh advance in future works." L. E. Denonn
+ N Y Times p15 Ja 19 '41 1000w

Reviewed by Hugh Walpole
Sat R of Lit 23:10 Ja 25 '41 900w
Time 36:101 D 16 '40 350w

RUSSELL, MRS CHARLOTTE MURRAY. I heard the death bell. 270p $2 Doubleday 40-13555

Detective story.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p10 Ag 4 '40 210w

"It's a good story and has enough laughs to offset the hysterics. Swell plot, with a neat twist at the end." Marian Wiggin
+ Boston Transcript p2 Ag 10 '40 70w

"There are so many people who might have done the foul deeds that the reader who enjoys doing his own sleuthing has a wide field to choose from. The solution, when Jane Amanda finally produces it, is rather far-fetched, but the story is such good entertainment that this may be forgiven." Isaac Anderson
+ — N Y Times p13 Jl 28 '40 300w

"Antics of Edwards family and outspoken maid more interesting than crime-solving which concludes in old cliché. Enjoyable."
+ — Sat R of Lit 22:19 Ag 3 '40 40w

RUSSELL, JOHN DALE, and JUDD, CHARLES HUBBARD. The American educational system; an introd. to education. 554p $2.25 Houghton

370.973 Education—U.S. 40-12407

"The general purpose is to give an overview of the characteristic features of the American educational system and some explanation of the forces that have affected its development. Designed for (1) those who are intending to enter teaching service and who need as a part of their basic preparation an orientation in the American educational system; (2) those who have already had considerable professional preparation in education and who need to broaden their general acquaintance with the American educational system and to integrate the knowledge they have obtained; (3) those who are not especially interested in professional preparation for educational service, but who are concerned with general social problems and desire some acquaintance with the educational system as one of the important social institutions." (School & Society) Index.

"The authors are exceptionally well qualified, through teaching experience, earlier writing, and participation in the projects of numerous survey staffs and commissions, to prepare an overview of the problems of the American school system. . . The book should serve well many persons, other than beginning students of education, who desire a broad treatment of the characteristics of the American school system." C. V. Good

+ El School J 41:149 O '40 390w

School & Society 52:16 Jl 6 '40 130w

RUSSELL, MARY ANNETTE (BEAUCHAMP) RUSSELL, countess (ELIZABETH, pseud). Mr Skeffington. 330p $2.50 Doubleday [9s Heinemann]

(W) 40-4224

At fifty the once famous beauty, Lady Frances Skeffington, suddenly awoke to the fact that her beauty was waning. Frantically she went from one admirer to another hoping for a solution to her loneliness and despair. Each of them seemed settled in his own little niche, none of them leaving room for her. It was her divorced husband, blind and terrified of the things he had endured in Austria, who saved Fanny.

Atlantic My '40 50w

Booklist 36:326 Ap 15 '40

Bookmark 2:14 Ja '41

"The heroine's psychology is so deftly, so delicately established, her tale is so cleverly told that one almost accepts the impossible and rather horrid denouement. It would be impossible to be more elegantly skillful than is Elizabeth, even when she writes as here in a minor key and of such a profoundly spoiled, selfish and useless heroine. . . But it is not a very gay tale: one hopes that not even a famous beauty really has to perform such desperate and painful gyrations as poor Fanny does when she realizes that middle age has inexorably come to stay." Iris Barry

+ Books p3 Ap 7 '40 850w

"The lady who never calls herself anything but 'Elizabeth' planted a German garden once upon a time. Only those who have always adored her books ('The Enchanted April,' 'Vera,' etc.) know how completely charming she can be—how wicked, brilliant and downright funny she is. In 'Mr. Skeffington' she is at her best. You need to be told nothing more." Olga Owens

+ Boston Transcript p2 Ap 6 '40 900w

Cleveland Open Shelf p8 Mr '40

Commonweal 32:154 Je 7 '40 60w

"The story is of slight importance, but the character delineation is 'Elizabeth's' satirical whimsy at its best. Her gentle joust with the hypocrisies of the idle rich of Fanny's very English circle runs especially true to form. Nowhere near as good as Enchanted April, but affords absorbing reading which women will or will not enjoy depending on the point of view." S. E. Sherman

+ — Library J 65:256 Mr 15 '40 320w

"'Elizabeth' knows her job and the novel is adroitly constructed to the richly satisfying invention of its ending, which is unstrained pathos. Had Skeffington not been a Jew that ending's sad happiness would have lacked something of finest flavour. And the manner of his return justifies the whimsey of calling Fanny's novel by the name of the husband she had divorced." Harold Brighouse

+ Manchester Guardian p3 Ja 30 '40 230w

"As for the style in which all this is fashioned, it reminds you of what Fanny must have been at her best: decorative and gay and deceptively artless—its preparation no more in evidence than those secret sessions put in at Antoine's. If it isn't precisely the prose style you'd choose to live with forever, you can't imagine a more cozy one for a brief and incredibly well managed affair." Miriam Borgenicht

New Repub 102:736 My 27 '40 270w

"Mr. Skeffington is sentimental: that is, it is a novel of feeling, as distinct from reason or physical emotion. It is a book with a conventional moral, it suspects rather than explores psychological deeps, and will not, one imagines, appeal to the younger students of the Serious Novel. It is, however, a very careful and clever piece of work, and reminds us that novel-writing can still be one of the fine arts." John Mair

+ New Statesman & Nation 19:109 Ja 27 '40 650w

"A story deliciously light and courageously penetrating, broad in reach and ironic in wisdom, delicately echoing alike in laughter and tenderness. It is scarcely necessary to point out that this is an entrancingly witty novel." Katherine Woods

+ N Y Times p1 Ap 7 '40 1300w

"One can never really describe the charm of a book by 'Elizabeth.' It is too evanescent to be pinned down in a phrase. In your more rigorous moments you feel you should not be taken in by it, for it is moist with sentimentality, it is basically snobbish, it is—but there's no use: Charm's charm, and 'Elizabeth' has it." Clifton Fadiman

+ New Yorker 16:89 Ap 6 '40 260w

"Elizabeth is a highly civilized writer, blest with wit enough to give pungency to her social satire and sensibility enough to give it feeling. And she is an admirable stylist, graceful, economical, with a knack for happy characterization and a barbed phrase, and the ability to tell a tale with swiftness and vivacity. Like all of her books, 'Mr. Skeffington' is delightful entertainment." Amy Loveman

+ Sat R of Lit 21:22 Ap 6 '40 600w

"Is it the weather, or is it the European situation, which, as Fanny herself says, always did have something the matter with it? Or why does one feel a little embarrassed all of a sudden before 'Elizabeth's' sweet artificiality? This book, Mr. Skeffington, is confident, assured and complete. It shimmers with jokes and charming half-jokes. . . Altogether somehow I felt a bit queasy over Mr. Skeffington." Kate O'Brien

— Spec 164:154 F 2 '40 220w

Time 35:100 Ap 15 '40 360w

"This is Elizabeth at her best, and only those who have for so many years waited impatiently for each new book know how very good that can be."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p43 Ja 27 '40 250w

Wis Lib Bul 36:99 My '40

RUSSELL, SYDNEY KING. Proud universe. 112p $2 Putnam

811 40-5567

Volume of lyrics and sonnets, some dealing with country scenes, some with the city, others with portraits of fictitious characters.

"These are simply written lyrics, conventional in form with heavy leanings on the sonnet. An opening group on the seasons of a beneficent earth are too patently edged with stock poetic phrases that just miss the distinctive turn, the original touch. . . The merits of Mr. Russell's work rest in his genuine gift for composition in musical terms, his exact ear for lyric cadence."
+ — Books p13 My 19 '40 130w

"Mr. Russell is most skillful in the sonnet, but, too often, it is only skill which survives. The form triumphs and the author loses; all that remains to comfort the poet is a sonorous anonymity. When Mr. Russell trusts himself to the more tenuous lyric he is less 'important' but more persuasive." Louis Untermeyer
Sat R of Lit 21:13 Mr 30 '40 90w

RUSSELL, WILLIAM FLETCHER, 1915- Falconry; a handbook for hunters; drawings by W. D. Sargent and phot. by the author. 180p $2.50 Scribner
799.25 Falconry 40-8803

A modern American book on falconry, which defends the sport against traducers, describes the various birds that can be used in this country, and gives technical directions for their training and care. Glossary. Bibliography. Index.

"Mr. Russell's book is a good one, on the whole. It is informative, certainly. Its illustrations are pleasing." G. M. Sutton
+ Books p13 Ag 7 '40 600w
N Y Times p10 Jl 28 '40 270w

RUTLAND, HARRIET. The poison fly murder. 269p $2 Smith & Durrell 40-9904

Detective story.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p12 Je 16 '40 140w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p16 Je 9 '40 190w

"Very nice puzzle, humorously written."
+ New Yorker 16:80 Je 8 '40 50w

"Good grade."
+ Sat R of Lit 22:18 Je 29 '40 40w

RUTLEDGE, BRETT, pseud. See Paul, E. H.

RYAN, MRS MILDRED (GRAVES). Cues for you [guidance on manners, appearance, and personality growth; drawings by Malkin West]. 300p $2; student's ed $1.50 Appleton-Century
395 Etiquet (W) 40-11009

A book of advice addressed to both boys and girls of high school age on points of etiquet, on good grooming and personal appearance, on contacts with family and friends. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 36:425 Jl 15 '40
J Home Econ 32:566 O '40 60w

"The illustrations are both attractive and pertinent, ranging from 'before-and-after' photographs to cartoons. This book should find extensive use both for school guidance and for extra-school reading of high-school pupils." P. R. Pierce
+ School R 48:552 S '40 330w

RYAN, PHILIP ELWOOD. Migration and social welfare; an approach to the problem of the non-settled person in the community; written on special commission from Social work year book department. 114p pa 50c Russell Sage 361.60973 Migration of workers. U.S.—Social conditions 40-7656

"Following a brief historical survey of migration in this country since colonial times, Mr. Ryan described the causes, types, extent, and character of the modern migratory movement. The longest of his eight chapters traced the effects of the migrant upon the various social institutions of the local community. Other chapters dealt with proposals and experiments to meet the migrant problem, with laws and agencies, both public and private, and with plans for a coördinated national policy. A long bibliography was appended." (Social Studies) Index.

Reviewed by J. J. Sippy
Am J Pub Health 30:831 Jl '40 160w

"Useful study. . . A topical bibliography and an adequate index add to the value of the publication." Mona Fletcher
+ Am Pol Sci R 34:600 Je '40 160w

"This monograph will be welcomed by the more mature students of social problems as a handy summary of the problem of the 'non-settled person in the community.'" Morris Wolf
+ Social Studies 31:233 My '40 140w

RYAN, THOMAS. Men in chains. 328p $2.50 Random house [8s 6d Davies]

These twelve stories, ranging in time and place from North Africa about 7000 B.C. to western America in the far future, are all concerned with men in bondage of some sort—to fate, heredity, temperament, or vice. Three of the first six historical tales have each as central character, Spartacus, Tiberius Cæsar, and Bloody Mary. Five of the stories have their setting in modern America.

"'Men in Chains' is a thought-provoking collection of stories and observations. It treats of tragedy, but the total effect is not tragic, but oddly hopeful." Lorine Pruette
+ Books p11 F 4 '40 900w

Reviewed by Mark Schorer
Boston Transcript p2 F 17 '40 360w
New Repub 102:286 F 26 '40 50w

"Mr. Ryan has an original talent, but he lacks original ideas. He is erudite, he is a good and, at times, poetic observer of life, but as a story teller he is on the dull side. . . It's a new technique in story-telling, but not a very good one." Rose Feld
— + N Y Times p21 Ja 28 '40 480w

"A dozen didactic, skillfully written, and often affecting short stories on the subject of man's inhumanity to man."
+ New Yorker 15:63 Ja 27 '40 70w

"The end effect of most of these stories may seem to be a revelation of the vileness of the human race, but what is not to be ignored is that their bitterness and contempt are not unmingled with pity and understanding. That is essentially why 'Men in Chains' produces, at its weakest, merely didactic allegory, at its best, narratives of depth and power." M. R.
+ — Sat R of Lit 21:19 F 3 '40 320w

"Whatever Thomas Ryan's failings, he does not lack for ambition. In ten stories, prologue and epilogue, he tries to nail Man to the map in terms of his leading forms of bondage and self-martyrdom. There are quite a few writers more maturely qualified for such a task but disregard of that fact is one of Ryan's naïve virtues, which he shares with most first and some second-rate writers. So in spite of its inadequacies, his rawboned, cornfed volume carries much to be respected in itself."
Time 35:67 F 5 '40 200w
Times [London] Lit Sup p657 N 11 '39 200w

RYDER, ARTHUR WILLIAM. Original poems; together with translations from the Sanskrit [with an introd. by George Rapall Noyes]. 186p $2.50 Univ. of Calif. [12s 6d Cambridge]

811 Sanskrit poetry—Translations into English 40-210

"The present book contains (1) original poems (and one prose essay) published by Professor Ryder many years ago, mainly in the University of California Chronicle; (2) a few translations from the Sanskrit, and one from the French, which also appeared for the most part in the University of California Chronicle; (3) some translations from the Sanskrit, hitherto unpublished; (4) reprints of Women's Eyes and Relatives, two small volumes of 'verses translated from the Sanskrit' that are now out of print and difficult to obtain. 'Pot-ear's Awakening,' one of the translations in the latter volume, has been expanded by the addition of verses found among Professor Ryder's papers." Editorial note

"Professor Ryder was a poet in his own right and his own verse, given here, is well turned and of its kind excellent. Most of it is witty and philosophical reflection. But undoubtedly Professor Ryder is greatest as a translator. I must take Sanskrit scholars' statements for the poet's correctness in rendering the meaning. What interests me is that this is living English verse, modern in language and idiom and seldom padded. . . Professor Noyes introduces the works of Professor Ryder with a biography which is a brief but penetrating account of the man's character and of his slightly eccentric but amusing way of leading his own life." E. L. Walton

+ N Y Times p2 N 19 '39 360w

Reviewed by Leonard Bacon

+ Sat R of Lit 21:13 Ja 20 '40 750w

Springf'd Republican p8 Ag 8 '40 500w

S

S. M. C. See C., S. M.

SABATINI, RAFAEL. Master-at-arms. 418p $2.50 Houghton

(W) 40-11450

Cloak-and-sword romance of the time of the French revolution. The hero is Quentin de Morlaix, head of a famous fencing school in London; the heroine is Germaine de Chesnières, who urged Morlaix to return to France in an attempt to regain his heritage.

Booklist 37:13 S '40

Reviewed by Lisle Bell

Books p8 Jl 7 '40 500w

Boston Transcript p2 Jl 20 '40 240w

"It is all quite warming to the cockles of the heart, and as sheer romance there is little lacking in 'Master-at-Arms.' But there is a great novel to be written about chouannerie in Brittany during the French Revolution. There is a great story, too, to be written about General Lazare Hoche, who is a character in 'Master-at-Arms.' But Mr. Sabatini has written neither of them." Herbert Gorman

+ — N Y Times p15 Jl 7 '40 600w

SACHANEN, ALEXANDER NICHOLAS. Conversion of petroleum; production of motor fuels by thermal and catalytic processes. 413p $6 Reinhold

665.5 Petroleum 40-10541

"The book contains only seven chapters, the longest, Thermal and Catalytic Reactions, comprising about a quarter of the volume. Other chapters are: Factors of Cracking, Factors of Hydrogenation, Cracking Equipment, Cracked Gasoline, Treatment of Cracked Gasolines, and Cracked Products Other than Gasoline. The treatment of these subjects is in general a tying together of the results of various researches." Chem & Met Eng

"The reader interested in thermal and catalytic treatment of hydrocarbons is given much food for thought as well as direct information." L. M. Henderson

+ Chem & Chem Eng N 18:673 Ag 10 '40 440w

"In these days of rapidly changing technology, every petroleum engineer or chemical engineer concerned with petroleum would do well to read this book and let it take its proper place on his reference shelf—between his organic chemistry text and Nelson's 'Petroleum Refinery Engineering.' " M. E. Clark

+ Chem & Met Eng 47:508 Jl '40 600w

Reviewed by E. F. Armstrong

Nature 146:508 O 19 '40 190w

N Y New Tech Bks 25:38 Jl '40

SACKVILLE-WEST, VICTORIA MARY (MRS HAROLD GEORGE NICOLSON). Country notes; with phot. by Bryan and Norman Westwood. 219p $3.50 Harper [10s 6d Joseph, M]

824 Country life 40-7532

Short essays on country life and country living, many of which have appeared in the New Statesman and Nation. Much of the material has to do with the English countryside, but there are three longer essays on French Savoy, Burgundy and Tuscany. Illustrated with photographs.

Reviewed by D. C. Peattie

Books p13 My 19 '40 350w

Reviewed by Sarah Chokla

Boston Transcript p2 Ap 20 '40 470w

"Few writers can communicate their vision of nature, and the emotion consequent on it, quietly and yet effectively, without ever falling to whipping up our feeling with an adjectival ardor that only teases them into intransigence. But Miss Sackville-West succeeds triumphantly. She manages to be vivid without being effusive, to be knowledgeable and yet not boringly technical, and to press the beauty of gardens and flowers and the English countryside between her pages without leaving it desiccated. Her woods are fresh and her pastures new—an effect not only of her style, but also of her observation." Eric Forbes-Boyd

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Mr 2 '40 190w

Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Jl '40

Reviewed by L. M. Kinloch

Library J 65:352 Ap 15 '40 130w

"The longest essays are generally the most entertaining, but, although several are so slight as to be mere thumbnail sketches, they are grouped together according to their subjects and are grave and witty, reminiscent and sentimental in turn. The sentimental is perhaps the author's predominant mood, and at times the world of nature seems to be a mirror which reflects her feelings." A. W. B.

+ Manchester Guardian p3 D 29 '39 240w

"Miss Sackville-West has not only a poet's romantic love for birds and flowers, and a gardener's practical knowledge and experience, but a deep, as it were mystical feeling for the slow, often uncouth or cruel processes of Nature. She sometimes allows herself to be sentimental, but she never falls into the townsman's or week-end cottager's illusions about the country life."

+ New Statesman & Nation 18:906 D 16 '39 310w

"This is V. Sackville-West's own book, suggestive and beautiful. It is decorated—rather than illustrated—with seventy-eight charming photographs. It is a book for sympathetic readers to own and to love."

+ N Y Times p28 Ap 7 '40 450w

New Yorker 16:91 Ap 6 '40 30w

"This book, lavishly decorated by photographs whose charm and value have been almost obliterated in reproduction, is typical of a certain contemporary fashion in books on the countryside. . . Its main quality is charm, sometimes grave, occasionally witty, more or less abstract; the charm exercised by a talent of great sensibility in interpreting the beauty of beautiful things. There is no ugliness or rancour, little mention of poverty or injustice in this book; the most important and pressing problems of country life, the drift from the land, the fertility of soil, the complex mass of agricultural economics, are not touched." H. E. Bates

SABATINI (sä'bä-tē'nē)

+ Spec 163:836 D 8 '39 550w

Springf'd Republican p7e D 31 '39 490w

"There are few, very few, writers living today who can successfully capture in print the elusive spirit of the English countryside. . . The very desire to pin it down is in itself almost sufficient to ensure its doom. . . To capture it alive and undamaged, to display it with unfaded colours, is a miracle; a miracle that is only to be achieved by humility, simplicity, a sharp sense of humour and a practical, working knowledge, subtly concealed, of country matters. Again and again in 'Country Notes' Miss Sackville-West accomplishes this miracle."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p697 D 2 '39 750w

Wis Lib Bul 36:96 My '40

SADLER, WALTER CLIFFORD. Legal aspects of engineering. 631p $4 Wiley [24s Chapman]

620.07 Engineering law 40-4620

"Primarily a collection of cases, with an appended glossary for the convenience of the non-legal reader. In his preface the writer disclaims any attempt to equip the reader for the practice of law; he does aim to give a general understanding of certain branches of law pertinent to various business and professional aspects of engineering. . . The material is divided into five parts covering professional and industrial problems, aeronautics, property and business." (Eng N) Glossary. Index.

"[The book] can be recommended as a pleasant excursion along some of the highways of engineering law. Inevitably it neglects the less known and therefore more treacherous byways, and makes it once more necessary to warn the unwary that a little knowledge is a dangerous thing." Alexander Haring

+ Eng N 124:79 My 23 '40 300w

N Y New Tech Bks 25:35 Jl '40

SADLER, WILLIAM SAMUEL, and SADLER, MRS LENA (KELLOGG). Growing out of babyhood; problems of the preschool child. 350p $2.50 Funk

649.1 Children—Care and hygiene. Child study (W) 40-27772

Directions for the care and training of children of pre-school age, in all respects except physical hygiene. Partial contents: Feeding problems; Obedience; Play activities; Habits—good and bad; Sex problems; Parent-child relationships. The advice is addressed particularly to parents. Includes case histories. Reference books. Index.

Booklist 37:113 N 15 '40

"The Sadlers have adopted a middle-of-the-road course between the austere physiological psychology and overemphasis of the importance of affording the child a full feeling of security in the parental affection. 'Growing Out of Babyhood' contains both a serviceable bibliography and index."

+ Springf'd Republican p6 S 30 '40 360w

SAERCHINGER, CESAR. The way out of war; maps by Emil Herlin. (Peoples lib) 125p 60c; pa 25c Macmillan

940.5 Europe—Politics. War. European war. 1939- (W) 40-27116

Brief study of the forces that make for war, and what can be done to prevent war. It is the author's contention that the way out of war can be found thru the establishment of a workable "federal union" in Europe.

"The book is simply written and yet it is not patronizing. It is interesting without being sensational. It is characterized by a point of view about the cure of war, and yet it is not merely argumentative or propagandist." M. L. Degen

+ Ann Am Acad 210:145 Jl '40 400w

Booklist 36:286 Mr 15 '40

Bookmark p17 N '40

Christian Century 57:251 F 21 '40 30w

Foreign Affairs 18:751 Jl '40 50w

"In a short volume of short chapters, short paragraphs, short sentences, and even short words, Mr. Saerchinger ticks off half a dozen of the principal causes of war, both general and specific. . . Some of the chapters read like self-sufficient little essays; others follow a vaguely chronological pattern. Gradually but a bit jerkily, the story comes down to the outbreak of the present war and finally gets around to the subject indicated in the title." Quincy Howe

Forum 103:204 Ap '40 150w

Reviewed by I. F. Stone

Nation 150:340 Mr 9 '40 140w

New Repub 102:222 F 12 '40 40w

N Y Times p18 F 18 '40 420w

Springf'd Republican p10 Ap 26 '40 500w

Reviewed by Hans Kohn

Survey G 29:307 My '40 30w

Time 35:88 F 19 '40 60w

Times [London] Lit Sup p310 Je 29 '40 180w

Wis Lib Bul 36:44 Mr '40

SAFFORD, HENRY BARNARD. Tristram Bent. 311p map $2.50 Coward-McCann

40-6705

Tristram Bent, altho English, had been brought up in Holland, and spoke Dutch like a native. By chance he came to the attention of Oliver Cromwell, who had known his father, and Cromwell decided to use him as a spy upon the Dutch in the New World. The greater part of the story is of Tristram's trip to America, his adventures among the Indians and Dutch, and his return to England with his report. The time is 1632 and thereafter.

Booklist 36:365 My 15 '40

Reviewed by Lisle Bell

Books p10 Mr 31 '40 350w

" 'Tristram Bent' ought to be taken as an adventure story, with a hero who excels most in physical combat and uses the tricks of the wrestler on many occasions—with English rowdies, New World pirates, and Indians. Better yet, he talks like a living person and not like an ancestral portrait. Readers who enjoy action with an historical flavor, described with simple gusto, are likely to find pleasure in the adventures of Tristram Bent." W. K. R.

+ — Christian Science Monitor p11 Je 15 '40 500w

"Dr. Safford writes with Yankee zest and gay good humor concerning incidents of power politics which do not reflect much credit in Puritan morality. Aside from his failure to bring into clear focus the fact that the encroachments on New Netherland were indefensible on any ground of law or ethics, he shows a commendable spirit of fairness toward the Dutch colonists. . . While there is a thread of romance running through this tale of pioneering adventure, its main interest for the general reader lies in its evocation of an epoch when England, France and Holland were rivals for the political and trade domination of America's North Atlantic coast." Drake De Kay

+ N Y Times p21 Mr 24 '40 750w

"Admirers of the sturdy tradition of American historical fiction should like this book; it has few surprises. Perhaps the Indians are a little unexpected. They rather suggest Sir James M. Barrie's. But the prose is pure Fenimore Cooper." G. M.

SAERCHINGER (serch'inj-er)

SAFFORD, H. B.—Continued
+ — Sat R of Lit 21:21 Mr 30 '40 290w

"'Tristram Bent' is an entertaining if somewhat sketchy story. Mr Safford obviously knows his historical background thoroughly, even though he has not chosen to develop it in detail. The story moves smoothly, and some of the characters are excellent, notably Wouter Van Twiller. The period is one that has not been overdone in fiction."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 14 '40 400w

SAGE, BRUCE HORNBROOK, and LACEY, WILLIAM NOBLE. Volumetric and phase behavior of hydrocarbons [by the authors] associated with Research project 37 of the Am. petroleum institute. 299p il $5 Stanford univ. press [30s Oxford]

547.2 Hydrocarbons. Phase rule and equilibrium 40-2931

"It is the purpose of this volume to set out for consideration the fundamental principles and some of the facts relating to that type of hydrocarbon behavior which does not involve chemical reactions or changes in the molecular species present. The treatment is also limited to cases characterized by the absence of solid phases. The portion of the subject thus chosen for discussion finds application in the processes of petroleum and natural gas production and transportation, of natural gasoline manufacture, and of certain parts of petroleum refining." (Pref) Index.

"This book is admirable in its self-sufficiency. . . No quantitative data or correlations that can be used in making volumetric or phase behavior calculations are presented. This will no doubt be a disappointment to many. However, the fundamental principles presented in this volume will be quite helpful to the physical chemist and chemical engineer in developing such correlations from data already available and in revising them as new data become available. In this respect the book should prove to be of much industrial and academic value." W. C. Edmister
+ — Am Chem Soc J 62:1632 Je '40 200w

"Despite its lack of quantitative correlation, the publication of this book marks an important milestone in the path toward the ultimate goal of a sufficient background of experimental data, coordinated by sound quantitative principles, to permit reliable prediction as to the complete behavior of a complex system of specified composition. Congratulations are due the authors for admirably clarifying a field in which many false concepts existed." K. M. Watson
+ Chem & Chem Eng N 18:168 F 20 '40 850w

"The authors are to be congratulated on a well written, logical, useful book." R. W. Miller
+ Chem & Met Eng 47:581 Ag '40 550w

"This little volume is a gem of clear exposition and explanation." B. T. Brooks + J Phys Chem 44:680 My '40 350w
N Y New Tech Bks 25:35 Jl '40

SAILE, OLAF. Troubadour of the stars. 344p $2.50 Piest

Kepler, Johann—Fiction 40-33220

A fictionized biography of the seventeenth-century German astronomer, Johann Kepler.

"A sincere and often eloquent fictionalized biography."
+ Books p39 N 10 '40 120w

"The book is interesting, sometimes moving, and the famous astronomer emerges from its pages as a modest, warm-hearted, lovable and radiant personality, one of those rare human beings who strengthen your faith in humanity." L. M. Field
+ N Y Times p7 D 15 '40 900w

ST CLAIR, LABERT. I've met the folks you read about. 308p $2.50 Dodd

B or 92 Journalists—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 40-6841

Autobiography of a successful newspaper man who started life in Veedersburg, Indiana. He got his start as a reporter in Indiana and in Danville, Illinois; worked in Chicago on the old Inter Ocean; covered the Jeffries-Johnson fight; was in the thick of several political conventions; and finally got to Washington. Index.

"It is a pleasant, friendly sort of book, especially to be recommended to young men who suspect that they are cut out to do newspaper work, which may or may not be the case. Mr. St. Clair has been through it all, and he knows the answers." Stanley Walker
+ Books p16 Ap 14 '40 380w

"Mr. St. Clair is more candid, and therefore more convincing, than most reporters when they come to write their reminiscences." E. D. C.
+ Christian Science Monitor p12 Ap 13 '40 220w

Reviewed by T. L. Stokes
Sat R of Lit 21:9 Ap 6 '40 600w
Springf'd Republican p8 Jl 5 '40 600w

ST JOSEPH, ELLIS. A passenger to Bali; a play in three acts. 139p $2 Little

812 40-7560

The time of this play is "shortly after Germany and Italy became dictatorships; shortly before Japan invaded China. The entire action passes on a small tramp steamer—the Roundabout—flying the British flag and trading in the South Sea Archipelagoes." The play concerns the battle waged between the captain of the ship and a sinister passenger.

"'A passenger to Bali' has come and gone on the stage. An author's note in the text seems to imply that he thinks its failure was caused by some cutting of his lines. It wasn't. It was caused by the confusion of the audience, who could not fathom his symbolism, nor could particularly see why this story was a happy vehicle for symbolism. The printed text does not remove the objections." W. P. Eaton
Books p21 Ap 28 '40 70w

Reviewed by John Van Druten
Boston Transcript p1 Je 15 '40 1150w

"I found Ellis St. Joseph's play one of the most interesting things of the year: the theme provocative, the writing skilful. . . It is evident that it is Mr. St. Joseph's intention to make Mr. Walkes a symbol of the sort of leader that either communism or fascism spews to the surface, but it is not necessary to take him this way to enjoy the play. The symbolism is implicit, or at least only definitely voiced in a few speeches." Grenville Vernon + Commonweal 31:493 Mr 29 '40 400w (Dramatic criticism)

SALMINEN, SALLY (MRS JOHANNES DYRKOPP). Mariana; tr. by Barrows Mussey. 345p $2.50 Farrar

(W) 40-27352

Simply written story of a Finnish woman's life from childhood to womanhood. The scene is the Aland Islands. The heroine is Mariana Nilsson, youngest daughter in a middle-class farm home.

Booklist 36:326 Ap 15 '40
Bookmark p14 My '40

"'Mariana' is written simply, unpretentiously, as befits its materials and should be read with pleasure by any one who has neither a taste for the country or an interest in Finnish life. It will be of especial interest also to those who found its predecessor 'Katrina' fresh and appealing." F. H. Bullock
+ Books p2 Ap 14 '40 700w
Cath World 151:382 Je '40 180w

"Miss Salminen is intent on logically depicting Mariana's growth, for she possesses the artist's recognition that a thoughtworthy novel includes a careful delineation of character development. 'Mariana,' due to this sound characterization, draws naturally to its wholesome and satisfying conclusion. It is far above the average romance wherein the author sometimes relies on the expedient of unmotivated transformation to give his narrative a 'happy ending.'" M. W. S.

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 My 18 '40 490w

Cleveland Open Shelf p12 My '40

"Miss Salminen writes very unevenly: at her best capable of sharp insight, at other times as banal as one of the women's magazines. Observant, but rarely subtle, her writing is a paradox, and one is puzzled as to how a person who can write so well at one time, can fail to realize how badly she writes at others." Harry Sylvester

— + Commonweal 32:107 My 24 '40 170w

Nation 150:634 My 18 '40 60w

"The simple routine of life on the Aland Islands thirty years ago, recorded in a style that is likewise simple and unaffected and utterly sincere."

+ New Repub 102:586 Ap 29 '40 50w

"This is not a formal novel and it does not tell a stereotyped tale. Its events are rooted in the everyday affairs of humble lives. Their tragedies are common; their hopes, modest. But out of such lives grows heroism of the kind that has made an admiring world offer deep obeisance to this little nation. Mariana is Finland; nothing finer can be said of her." Rose Feld

+ N Y Times p6 Ap 7 '40 900w

New Yorker 16:98 Ap 13 '40 70w

"This is much more than rental-library escape fiction, for in it common sense keeps an eye on sensibility, and the faults reflect an energetic and observant mind. Miss Salminen has still too much to say, and at the same time she is not sufficiently explicit; she must learn that readers are colder and less creative than she and will not bother to unravel the implications of obscure characters. If she were more selective, and assumed less imagination in her audience, she would find that in 'Mariana' there is material for several novels." I. W. Athey

+ — Sat R of Lit 21:15 Ap 13 '40 390w

Wis Lib Bul 36:100 My '40

SALTEN, FELIX. Renni, the rescuer; a dog of the battlefield; tr. by Kenneth C. Kaufman; drawings by Diana Thorne. 326p $2.50 Bobbs (W) 40-34599

The story of a shepherd dog trained by a kind-hearted young man who refused to employ force in the training. The master relied on Renni's intelligence and on the dog's complete trust in him, and was repaid for his patience when actual war came and he and Renni served together on the battlefield.

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Books p2 N 17 '40 440w

"Felix Salten's sense of the kinship, the innate bond between man and other living creatures, a kinship man has often cruelly abused, has never been more eloquently expressed. . . With his familiar charm and limpidity of style, and through the animal characters in whose simplicity and nearness to nature as well as to man his own beliefs and intuitions find clearest expression, he voices his faith in the values of life and the power of its higher possibilities to save it from the force of its own destructiveness." Anita Moffett

+ N Y Times p10 N 24 '40 500w

"Sympathetic and well intentioned, but not in a class with the memorable 'Bambi.'"

+ — New Yorker 16:101 N 16 '40 50w

"Mr. Salten has shown, in other books, that he was at home with the struggle for survival as it manifests itself in the world of nature. But, like many others, his mind cannot cope with this world of warfare; he does not understand it, and neither do his heroes. Bambi, we remember, caught our imagination because he was always so thoroughly master of his difficult environment. But George and Renni are merely story-book figures moving through an unconvincing and strangely innocent shambles." L. J. Halle, Jr.

Sat R of Lit 23:17 N 30 '40 360w

SALTER, JOHN THOMAS. The pattern of politics; the folkways of a democratic people. 246p $2.25 Macmillan

320.973 U.S.—Politics and government. Politics, Practical 40-32730

"Professor Salter has been an ardent student of politics from the point of view of its science and its human interest. In this book he presents the rambling reflections and anecdotes of one who loves his subject. . . He points out that the American voter is an individualist. He often watches the state in the interest of his individual freedom, and he frequently tries his best to get personal benefits from the servants he elects. . . Professor Salter analyzes sketchily the qualities of leadership possessed by Wendell L. Willkie and more in detail those exhibited during the last eight years by President Roosevelt. But his book is mainly concerned with the ward leader, the assemblyman, the mayor. He goes into detail concerning the things that make people follow leaders and bases his conclusions on his contacts with politicians and speculations about them." (Books) The author is associate professor of political science, University of Wisconsin.

"The Pattern of Politics is typical of Salter's books. It is gossipy, conversational, entertaining, and is full of interesting anecdotes and pithy illustrations. Salter is undoubtedly one of the best political reporters in the academic profession. He has been able to collect more human-interest stories about politics than anyone the reviewer knows." H. F. Gosnell

+ Ann Am Acad 213:238 Ja '41 270w

Booklist 37:148 D 15 '40

"The book might have been more valuable if it had been a closely knit essay on politics, but Professor Salter preferred that it should be more informal than that. . . The most stimulating of Professor Salter's chapters is the one on leadership." M. R. Werner

+ — Books p19 O 20 '40 550w

Reviewed by G. M. A. Grube

Canadian Forum 20:288 D '40 300w

"Clearly this book was written more for the interested citizen than for the student of politics. In a sense it was prepared, somewhat hastily in places, for the campaign of 1940. From first to last, however, it is concerned with the role of the voter, the basic problem of democratic government. It offers few novel ideas, much that is homely and ordinary. Yet this treatment of everyday politics has value for him who would read and heed, and its challenge is too important to be ignored." G. L. LaFuze

+ — Christian Century 57:1380 N 6 '40 800w

Reviewed by J. G. Kerwin

Commonweal 33:305 Ja 10 '41 420w

Current Hist & Forum 52:32 N 26 '40 80w

Living Age 359:393 D '40 160w

"'The Pattern of Politics' is a little book which reads so pleasantly and yields so few quotable profundities that one suspects its author favors embellishment of the obvious by wise, witty and human anecdote. . . If one seeks formalized thinking here he'll not find it! Intangibles do not yield to formula. But if the reader wishes to be given a state of mind, Mr. Salter will do so understandingly and engagingly. He may not lead, but he stimulates." S. T. Williamson

+ N Y Times p15 Ja 5 '41 950w

SALTER, J. T.—Continued

"At first I was disappointed. Not that the book is not diverting. It is just that from the dedication right through to the conclusion. . . I know of no one in America indeed who writes of politics with more sprightliness and color than does Mr. Salter. In this regard he is a most unacademic academician. This book maintains that reputation, and maintains it with quickened tempo." T. V. Smith

+ Sat R of Lit 22:38 O 12 '40 750w

"This book is less an analysis of the patterns of politics than a series of lessons from the author's observation of political life. The style in which he has chosen to express these lessons is enlivened by much illustrative material, as if he had a popular audience in mind. His ideas are obviously good, but his method of expressing them has drawbacks." E. N. Jenckes

+ — Springf'd Republican p6 O 5 '40 650w

"The cracks and the cases make this a gay book; its realism, its understanding of voter and politician, its constant return to experience, make it a wise one. The youth who get this kind of Poly. Sci. in our academies will not be taken in by the nightmare forms in Europe. Here is folklore woven into sharp patterns." Leon Whipple

+ Survey G 29:558 N '40 550w

SALVATORELLI, LUIGI. A concise history of Italy, from prehistoric times to our own day; tr. by Bernard Miall. 688p $5 Oxford [21s Allen, G]

945 Italy—History 40-27285

Inclusive history of Italy from prehistoric times to 1938, by an Italian scholar. Bibliography. Indexes.

"I do not hesitate to say that this is the best history of Italy that has been published during the last forty years." Gaetano Salvemini

+ Am Hist R 46:450 Ja '41 280w

Reviewed by Michele Cantarella

Am Soc R 5:826 O '40 210w

Booklist 36:304 Ap 1 '40

"The clarity and the engrossing dramatic quality of Mr. Salvatorelli's narrative, which in more senses than one can be called a masterpiece, depend, as I guess, on his use of the concept of 'people' as a substitute for the ordinary concept of 'state' or 'country.' For Mr. Salvatorelli an 'Italian people' emerges in substantial unity by about the twelfth century of our era. . . From the standpoint of a general reader, Mr. Salvatorelli's 'concise history' might be called the romance of a people. From the standpoint of a scholar it establishes a new, original and, I should say, indispensable orientation for new researches, new accumulations of fact and new simplifications." Arthur Livingston

+ Books p3 Ap 21 '40 2300w

"A remarkably well-written synthesis of the political, social, and cultural history of Italy. It is not only readable but often valuable for its interpretation of important epochs of Italian history. The author never loses himself in a maze of details but tells his story simply and clearly."

+ Boston Transcript p1 Ap 6 '40 90w

Foreign Affairs 18:756 Jl '40 10w

New Repub 102:585 Ap 29 '40 40w

"A superbly organized cultural history, done in scientific factual style. The tolerant treatment of Fascism seems to be discounted by a cryptic note in the bibliography."

+ New Yorker 16:79 F 24 '40 40w

Pratt p21 autumn '40

"The whole volume from first to last, in theme and in treatment, is one of the finest bits of historical writing achieved under the present regime. The translation is adequate but there are occasional slips." G. R. B. Richards

+ Sat R of Lit 22:19 My 18 '40 480w

SALVEMINI, GAETANO. Historian and scientist; an essay on the nature of history and the social sciences. 203p $1.75 Harvard univ press

907 History—Historiography. Social sciences—Addresses, essays, lectures 39-25859

"A distinguished scholar gives here his answer to the question, 'What is the reason for studying history?' Two definitions set the problem. Science is 'the endeavor to ascertain facts and their interrelations'; and history is the 'endeavor to reconstruct past events.' If history can be proved to be an exact science, then it will have the same right to exist as do the other sciences. Professor Salvemini contends that history is a science. . . Included in these pages is an essay, 'What Is Culture?' which argues for the 'right of youth to be ignorant about an infinite number of things.'" Boston Transcript

Reviewed by Carl Becker

Am Hist R 45:591 Ap '40 280w

"The substance of this volume was delivered as a series of lectures at the University of Chicago in December 1938. In style it is informal and colloquial, but in substance it is an appeal for common sense and sanity in the social sciences." H. E. Jensen

+ Ann Am Acad 208:214 Mr '40 410w

Reviewed by Christian Gauss

Books p16 Ap 21 '40 600w

"The thoughtful handling of the problem of the study of history, and the illuminating asides on subjects ranging from Julius Caesar to Pareto and Mussolini, should earn for these readable essays a wide audience not only among historians, but also among all people who enjoy a good book." Richard Schlatter

+ Boston Transcript p2 Ja 27 '40 270w

Foreign Affairs 18:567 Ap '40 20w

Reviewed by W. H. Auden

Nation 151:18 Jl 6 '40 600w

Reviewed by F. S. Marvin

Nature 146:179 Ag 10 '40 1200w

Reviewed by Gaudens Megaro

New Repub 102:311 Mr 4 '40 170w

Reviewed by Jacques Barzun

Sat R of Lit 21:8 D 23 '39 1200w

SALWAY, CECILE, and SALWAY, BILLIE. American children on the map [il. by the authors]. [32p] $1 Garden City pub. co.

40-34874

Colored pictures and descriptive text present children from Peru, Argentina, Brazil, Central America, Mexico, five from the United States, three from Canada, and Alaska. Key to pronunciation of names and countries. For children six to nine.

"Not only a pretty and interesting picture book for seven-year-olds, this is a useful one as well. . . Each is presented as a real child to real children." M. L. Becker

+ Books p32 N 10 '40 100w

Reviewed by D. L. Wood

Library J 66:85 Ja 15 '41 150w

SAMIVEL. Brown the bear; tr. from the French by Katharine Busvine and Peter Quennell; il. in colour by the author. 40p $2 Warne [7s 6d Murray, J]

Picture-story book about a brown bear who caused a great deal of commotion among all classes of people from cottage to hall, until a certain event proved him not so bad as he had been painted.

"The pages are very large but the book is light in the hand; the costumes are those of comic-opera peasantry and the castles scenic. Yet its pantomime quality does not make it unreal, any more than footlights make scenery unreal to small children taken seldom to the theater that they love. The colors are bright and soft, the action spirited." M. L. Becker

+ Books p6 Ja 5 '41 240w

Manchester Guardian p7 Ap 26 '40 20w

"The pictures, whether of medieval castles and town, or woods and cottages, have distinction, and a fine humor that delights 8 to 10-year-olds. Artist-author and translators have evidently enjoyed the making of this spirited and irresistible picture book." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p7 D 29 '40 120w

SAMPSON, RICHARD HENRY (RICHARD HULL, pseud). My own murderer. 241p $2 Messner [7s 6d Collins]

(W) 40-14499

Psychological novel of murder and its aftermath.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p9 Ag 18 '40 150w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin
Boston Transcript p2 Ag 17 '40 80w

"One could wish Mr. Hull would use his conspicuous talents to depict once in a way a not wholly unpleasant character, but it is a tribute to his literary skill that he manages to present extremely disagreeable people in a way that keeps the reader always interested and often chuckling, even though it is only a chuckle at the weaknesses of others." E. R. Punshon

+ Manchester Guardian p4 Mr 15 '40 150w

"The easy stride of Mr. Hull's well-trained prose carries him equally well up and down hill. The result is a hybrid between a crime story and detection, blending confidential intimacy with a touch of the unexpected: admirably written, yet not very exciting." Ralph Partridge

+ — New Statesman & Nation 19:314 Mr 9 '40 150w

"Recommended for readers who like to follow things to the bitter end."

New Yorker 16:56 Ag 31 '40 40w

"Completely unprincipled, sardonically amusing, swift, and smoothly written. Denouement not great surprise but told well. Commendable."

+ Sat R of Lit 22:18 S 14 '40 30w

"The story ends not unexpectedly. But its entertainment value lies less in the elaboration of the fake death than the contrast between the two principal characters: Renwick—reckless, casual and confiding; Sampson—ingenious, self-important, bitter and without any sense of humour. This is the basis of a persuasive and amusing story."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p101 F 24 '40 220w

SAMUEL, MAURICE. The great hatred. 209p $2 Knopf

296 Jews—Political and social conditions
40-32911

A study of the underlying philosophy of anti-Semitism which the author contends has its roots not in sociological or economic causes but in the hatred of a certain type of modern man for Christianity—the gift of the Jewish race.

Atlantic N '40 140w

"That Mr. Samuel has the whole answer, I doubt. He ignores several other simples in this dark brew, among them the fact that hatred is to many people a pleasant emotion, especially when the addict can find a show of moral justification. But his theory is a distinct contribution to the study of that disturbing puzzle, anti-Semitism." Will Irwin

+ Books p10 D 15 '40 700w

"When you read this book, and you will read it because of its timeliness and its incisive judgments regarding matters of universal importance, you may smart under the scourge of its searching judgments, you may rebel against its conclusion that nearly all political ills are traceable to anti-Semitism, but you will gain a new and deeper insight into the raison d'etre of nazi-fascist ferocity, and you may discard the too easy explanation of the current upheaval in Europe as the simple and inevitable outgrowth of the Versailles interlude." L. W. Burch

+ Christian Century 57:1379 N 6 '40 490w

"One of the most eloquent books ever written about the Jewish problem. . . This is a valuable contribution to an understanding of the most stubborn and baffling problem of the ages. However, Mr. Samuel has, I believe, oversimplified the subject." P. S. Bernstein

+ — Nation 151:577 D 7 '40 900w

"A moving, sometimes brilliant book, occasionally marred by overstatement."

+ New Yorker 16:79 O 5 '40 30w

"Mr. Samuel's pen is as sharp as his tongue, and this book proves it. Each word is strong, impressing itself on the reader with the power of a hammerblow. It is a revelation in purposeful, passionate writing. . . This book is in the great tradition of universalism of the Hebrew prophets. They excoriated, they burned with righteous passion but only to cleanse and purify and so save the world from destruction. If Mr. Samuel is listened to, his book will become a first-rate weapon in the program of spiritual and moral preparedness of the American people for the struggle he believes is inescapable." Baruch Braunstein

+ Sat R of Lit 23:18 D 21 '40 700w

Reviewed by J. H. Pollack
Survey G 30:93 F '41 260w

SAND, HENRY JULIUS SALOMON. Electrochemistry and electrochemical analysis; a theoretical and practical treatise for students and analysts. 3v v 1-2 133;149p il ea $2 Chemical pub. co. [v 1 4s 6d; v 2 5s Blackie & son]

541.37 Electrochemistry (40-26854)

"[Volume one] is intended as an introduction to a treatment of electrometric analysis and other electrolytic determinations. The nature of this introduction, however, is such that it is complete in itself as a summary of present ionic theory, treating in turn the passage of electric current through solutions, electrode potentials and irreversible electrode processes." (Chem & Met Eng) "[Volume two] gives laboratory details of apparatus and analytical determinations. Included are gravimetric electrolytic analyses, electrolytic separations using an auxiliary calomel electrode, methods of internal electrolysis, and short chapters on electrolytic micro-analysis and electrolytic Marsh tests." (Chem & Met Eng)

Reviewed by D. J. Brown
Am Chem Soc J 62:2886 O '40 220w
(Review of v 2)

"Well indexed, the volume belongs on the bookshelf as a readable exposition, an authentic summary and a handy reference work." G. F. Kinney

+ Chem & Met Eng 47:271 Ap '40 130w

Reviewed by G. F. Kinney
Chem & Met Eng 47:655 S '40 170w
(Review of v 2)

"The book will be particularly useful to analysts who have to use the electroanalytic methods and have not kept up to date in electrochemical theory, whilst all students will welcome the concise and clear way in which the principles of the subject are discussed."

+ Nature 145:137 Ja 27 '40 180w

N Y New Tech Bks 25:35 Jl '40

SANDERSON, EZRA DWIGHT. Leadership for rural life; foreword by M. L. Wilson. 127p $1.25 Assn. press

301.155 Leadership. Sociology, Rural

Manual on discovering and developing local leaders in rural areas. "It is hoped that this little volume may be useful to teachers of college classes, and to rural ministers, schoolmen, extension workers, and executives of rural organizations who are concerned with the enlistment and development of rural leadership." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

SANDERSON, E. D.—Continued

Booklist 37:148 D 15 '40

"This book will be useful to ministers and to all who have to do with the training of leaders either in rural areas or elsewhere."
+ Christian Century 58:60 Ja 8 '41 60w
J Home Econ 33:113 F '41 50w

SANDERSON, IVAN TERRANCE. Animals nobody knows; il. by the author. 77p $2 Viking

591.5 Animals, Habits and behavior of (W) 40-31501

Pictures and information about the habits of some unfamiliar animals—what they really look like, where they belong in the animal kingdom, what they eat, etc. Partial contents: the aye-aye; the cobego; the tube-nosed fruit-bat; the panda; the kinkajou; jerboas; the mara; the narwhal; the pichiciago; the aardvark; the spotted cuscus; the pig-footed bandicoot; the dik-dik. For young readers.

Booklist 37:76 O 15 '40

"The title of this delightful book is more alluring than accurate; I have myself met an aard vark at the Bronx Zoo, the aye-aye may be found in crosswords, and the spotted cuscus and babirusa, unless my memory has sprung a leak in the Book of Knowledge. . . But this is mere quibbling; practically nobody in the United States knows a jerboa personally, or a bandicoot, or for that matter most of the strange graces that disport under these large fair pages. This is an animal Book of Beauty." M. L. Becker
+ Books p7 S 15 '40 220w
Cath World 152:381 D '40 120w

"The striking drawings of these unfamiliar animals first catch the eye, then dipping into the text the charm and persuasiveness of Mr. Sanderson's style capture the reader completely. . . It is a choice book in every way." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk M 16:346 S '40 80w

"A valuable book which definitely has a place in our juvenile collections. Of interest to all ages beyond third or fourth grade level." A. L. Shea
+ Library J 65:814 O 1 '40 60w

Reviewed by R. A. Hill
Library J 65:853 O 15 '40 20w

"'Animals Nobody Knows' will satisfy the boys and girls already eager to know more of wild animal life, and in others it is likely to arouse an initial interest. . . Beautifully designed and printed, this is a book for all libraries and schools and for a child's personal library; it is also one that many adults will wish to own. For boys and girls from 9 years on." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p12 O 20 '40 400w
New Yorker 16:130 D 7 '40 50w
Wis Lib Bul 36:153 N '40

SANDIFER, DURWARD VALDIMIR. Evidence before international tribunals. 443p $10 Foundation press

341.6 International law and relations. Evidence (law). Arbitration, International 39-8998

"The author [who is] the Assistant to the Legal Adviser of the Department of State shows that the sources of the rules of evidence before international tribunals are the arbitral agreement between the Government parties and the rules of the tribunal and of the customary law not contrary to the compromise. The customary rules are those which have been developed from a long succession of rules of such tribunals. The purpose of the book, it appears, is to state and evaluate the practice in these regards and to try to extract principles therefrom with the aid of analogies drawn from the Civil Law and the Anglo-American system." Columbia Law R

"This is a work of great value and of high merit." Chesney Hill
+ Am Pol Sci R 34:798 Ag '40 360w

"This careful work fills a long-felt want of students and practitioners of international law." L. H. Woolsey
+ Columbia Law R 40:365 F '40 1600w
Foreign Affairs 18:371 Ja '40

SANFORD, FRANK. Electric distribution fundamentals. 242p il $2.50 McGraw

621.31 Electric distribution 40-5998

"Written from a nonengineering viewpoint, this book gives the perspective, development, and economic background of electric distribution as a part of the general system of electric supply. The author outlines features of both the utility distribution, and the industrial and inside wiring branches of service to the outlet. Practical design problems are included, with solutions based on graphical methods rather than on engineering mathematics." (Publisher's note) Index.

Booklist 36:378 Je 1 '40
Cleveland Open Shelf p7 Mr '40
N Y New Tech Bks 25:21 Ap '40

SANGSTER, MARGARET ELIZABETH. Reluctant star. 264p $2 Macrae Smith co.

40-6706

All her adult life Mildred Carey had saved her money and gone without pretty clothes and vacations. At thirty she was told that she had but six months to live. Free at last from years of worry about old age and poverty, Mildred took her accumulated savings and had one glorious time.

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Books p15 Mr 24 '40 110w

"A light and entertaining little story of a 30-year-old Cinderella."
+ Boston Transcript p2 My 18 '40 80w

Reviewed by Charlotte Dean
N Y Times p26 Mr 24 '40 240w
Wis Lib Bul 36:69 Ap '40

SANTAYANA, GEORGE. The realm of spirit. (Realms of being) 302p $3 Scribner [16s Constable]

191 Philosophy. Soul (W) 40-27664

In this volume, Mr Santayana completes and brings to its conclusion his philosophical system. The new volume is the fourth and final one in the series entitled Realms of Being, which includes also: The Realm of Matter, The Realm of Essence, and The Realm of Truth. Index.

Booklist 37:29 O 1 '40

Reviewed by Daniel Cory
Books p22 N 17 '40 1200w

Reviewed by G. A. Cunningham
Churchman 154:18 N 15 '40 240w

"For the general reader it will prove as difficult reading as the other volumes in the series. The reader interested in philosophy in general and in Santayana in particular will welcome the last phase in that philosophy which the author calls 'a discipline of mind and heart.'" O. G. Lawson
+ Library J 65:708 S 1 '40 110w

Reviewed by Sidney Hook
Nation 151:423 N 2 '40 1400w

"In 'The Realm of Spirit' Santayana completes his ambitious series on The Realms of Being, and in this concluding volume he is in his own very special province. There is no one in this generation who could have written with such enchantment and such profundity on what the author calls the internal economy of spirit. To find anything resembling it in literature or philosophy one would have to go a long way back and one would have to reach high; as far back as St. Bonaventura's 'Itinerary of the Mind to God,' and to no less an elevation." Irwin Edman

SANTAYANA (sän'tä-yä'nä)

+ N Y Times p3 S 22 '40 2150w
Springf'd Republican p7e S 15 '40 1000w
Times [London] Lit Sup p362 Jl 27 '40 2650w

SAPIEHA, VIRGILIA (PETERSON) ROSS (PRINCESS PAUL SAPIEHA). Polish profile. 319p $2.50 Carrick [10s 6d] Heinemann]

B or 92 Poland—Social life and customs (W) 40-9195

The author of this book is an American woman, who when a student in Grenoble met and fell in love with a Polish prince. Several years later, in spite of family objections, they were married and this book is chiefly an account of the author's experiences in Poland, her adjustment to a feudal society, and finally of the coming of war and flight across the border.

Atlantic Jl '40 150w
Booklist 36:427 Jl 15 '40
Bookmark 2:11 Ja '41

"The writing is uneven and the incidents lack cohesion but whatever its faults the book succeeds in leaving a vivid and rather unpleasant impression of an almost medieval people." Rose Feld
+ — Books p4 My 26 '40 850w

"Virgilia Peterson Ross Sapieha tells her story well and freshly; it is a poignant and intimately personal picture of a dying world." Lewis Gannett
+ Boston Transcript p11 My 24 '40 1150w

Reviewed by E. B. Gulick
Boston Transcript p2 My 25 '40 700w
Christian Science Monitor p11 S 7 '40 440w

Reviewed by J. S. Roucek
Commonweal 32:152 Je 7 '40 370w
Current Hist & Forum 51:7 Jl '40 280w

Reviewed by G. W. Hill
Library J 65:396 My 1 '40 220w

"This is an extraordinary book, written with great economy and an apparent detachment that takes its strength from the depth of emotion controlled under its quiet surface. Gilly Peterson has learned many things besides the ways of Poland in these six years." Mildred Adams
+ Nation 150:736 Je 15 '40 410w

"The fateful days of Poland are described with restraint, and with no grain of self-dramatization. It is a fine book, written by a gifted writer who understands more than what she merely witnessed." Marianne Hauser
+ New Repub 102:832 Je 17 '40 490w

Reviewed by George Orwell
New Statesman & Nation 20:45 Jl 13 '40 550w

"'Polish Profile' is a fine book, penetrating, pictorial, and written with an apparently effortless narrative skill. . . [The] book can stand, firm and lasting, on its own merits, even apart from its poignant climax of timeliness." K. W.
+ N Y Times p6 My 26 '40 600w

Discussion by Count Anthony Jarnowski
N Y Times p2 S 1 '40 1500w

Reviewed by Clifton Fadiman
New Yorker 16:90 My 25 '40 600w

"'Polish Profile' is a moving memoir of the period it covers. It is filled with the detailed and particular descriptions that give a sense of reality to a way of life with which we are unfamiliar. These Polish people, the titled, the working men and women, and the peasants, come clearly before one in their daily living." Gladys Graham
+ Sat R of Lit 22:6 Je 1 '40 600w

"The Polish mind has always been something of a problem to Western Europe; this attractive and well-constructed book satisfactorily explains many of its characteristics."
+ Spec 165:454 N 1 '40 170w
Springf'd Republican p7e Je 2 '40 900w
Time 35:96 Je 10 '40 190w

"This is a strangely naive book, and its simplicity of style and content is distinctly appealing. That simplicity moreover is not the conscious simplicity of art, but appears to spring from a genuine directness of mind on the part of the author."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p310 Je 29 '40 600w

SAPPINGTON, CLARENCE OLDS. Industrial health; asset or liability. 284p $3.75 Industrial commentaries, 160 N. La Salle st, Chicago

331.82 Occupations—Diseases and hygiene. Hygiene, Industrial 40-1710

"It is the purpose of this monograph to outline the fundamental principles of health promotion in industry and commerce, and to show by tangible illustrations, how a real health service may become an asset, as compared with the many instances where the industrial health problem has been permitted to be a liability—speaking both in terms of men and money." Pref.

Reviewed by B. S. Coleman
Am J Pub Health 30:554 My '40 500w

Reviewed by Dale Yoder
Ann Am Acad 209:226 My '40 370w

"Formerly director of Industrial Health for the National Safety Council and lecturer on Industrial Hygiene at several of our well known universities and medical schools, Dr. Sappington certainly appears more than well qualified to write a book on this his major field of interest. Even after a quick reading two things stand out in this work. In the first place, the author gets right down to brass tacks and tells what specific and practical things industry must do in developing a health program. . . The second outstanding thing about the book is the absence of philosophical dribble."
+ Chem & Met Eng 47:52 Ja '40 440w

"The volume is one that has long been needed, for while there have been good books published on this topic none has been so specific as to methods and costs—two terms that appeal to the business man. Dr. Sappington also points out cogently and plausibly the benefits that accrue from such a program."
+ Management R 29:158 Ap '40 440w

SAPPINGTON, CLARENCE OLDS. Medicolegal phases of occupational diseases; an outline of theory and practice. 405p il map $3 The author, 330 S. Wells st, Chicago

331.8223 Occupations—Diseases and hygiene. Medical jurisprudence 39-18587

"The book is divided into four parts. The first contains headings such as causes of occupational diseases, industrial data, gases and vapors, volatile solvents, control of occupational exposures and the cost of occupational diseases. Part II deals with insurance, some practical problems and the importance of prevention. Part III is an entirely medical section giving treatment and prevention as well as estimation of disability. And finally, part IV, which is all legal, gives occupational disease disability laws, difference between accidents and diseases, witnesses and trends of disability legislation." Chem & Met Eng

---

"As a concise and authoritative statement, based on the experience of an expert in the field, this book should be of value to persons in different professional categories who are concerned with the medical, administrative, or legal aspects of occupational diseases. The

SAPIEHA (sȧp-ē-ā'hä)

SAPPINGTON, C. O.—Continued
legal section would have been enhanced, however, if an attempt had been made to present authoritative statements of the legal principles applicable to the problem, as indicated by the consensus of judicial opinion... The book is well documented, has a comprehensive index, and a table of cases. It is, on the whole, a valuable contribution to the subject, especially for physicians and public health officials." J. A. Tobey

+ Am J Pub Health 30:90 Ja '40 220w

"The book is a clear, concise coordination of the industrial, insurance, medical and legal aspects of the complicated field of industrial hygiene and occupational diseases. There are a great many references of value contained in the extensive bibliographies at the end of each chapter as well as an appendix citing abstracts of legal decisions, individual cases and statistics."

+ Chem & Met Eng 46:723 N '39 130w

SARAWAK, SYLVIA LEONORA (BRETT) BROOKE, rani of. See Brooke, S. L.

SAROYAN, WILLIAM. My name is Aram; il. by Don Freeman. 220p $2.50 Harcourt

(W) 40-34075

Collection of fourteen short stories and sketches, most of which have already appeared in magazines. They all deal with the boyhood of Aram in the Armenian colony at Fresno, California. The author says "As to whether or not the writer himself is Aram Garoghlanian, the writer cannot very well say. He will, however, say that he is not, certainly, not Aram Garoghlanian."

Booklist 37:176 Ja 1 '41

"It may be that 'My Name Is Aram' is not as good a book as Saroyan's 'Trouble With Tigers' or 'Little Children.' Even so there is something of the same tenderness and spontaneity in these stories as there is in every story Saroyan ever wrote. Needless to say, 'My Name Is Aram' is cluttered up by the characteristically egocentric Saroyan foreword, with the usual sophomoric bombinating about his literary career. But even here there is an indication of development, a note of hope. . . The best stories in the collection, and any of them is worth the price of the book and more, are The Journey to Hanford, The Fifty-Yard Dash, The Pomegranate Trees and Old Country Advice to the American Traveler." John Fante

+ — Books p3 D 29 '40 800w

"These Armenian memories are honest and simple and very real. They are written with that combination of bravado and humility that is Saroyan's best charm, and with tenderness for small boyhood's turbulent mistakes and poor people's difficulties." E. V. R. Wyatt

+ Commonweal 33:307 Ja 10 '41 270w

"For a library wishing to add some distinctive work of this author, Saroyan's My Name Is Aram can be recommended as a good choice and typical of his work." I. M. Turner

+ Library J 65:1088 D 15 '40 150w

Nation 151:430 N 2 '40 70w

"To retail the plots of any of these tales would be no more intelligent than to retail the plot of a Marx Brothers movie. It is enough to say that there are fourteen of the stories and that to at least one reader all of them are entirely delightful." Robert van Gelder

+ N Y Times p6 Ja 12 '41 500w

"Mr. Saroyan knows not what course others may take, but as for him, give him ad-liberty or give him death. 'My Name Is Aram,' therefore, may be summarized as a series of extemporaneous remarks, some droll, some a touch dull, based on Mr. Saroyan's recollections of his boyhood in and around Fresno, California, from 1915 to 1925. . . I regret that I cannot see in any of these sketches the 'grown and many-colored artist, the genuine poet in prose, and spokesman for the youth of the world' that Mr. Christopher Morley, for example, sees." Clifton Fadiman

— New Yorker 16:61 D 28 '40 500w

"The events in this little book are all boys' events. . . They are all trivial in themselves, and perfectly delightful. But the solid Armenian life background, with its sets of values and its characters entirely different from what we think of as Californian, are not trivial; and the personality of this Americanizing Armenian who becomes under your eyes, as you read, a new race, puzzling his grandparents even more than his school teachers, is not trivial at all. I prefer the adjectives perceptive, humorous, imaginative, original. I should vote, indeed, for this story of an Armenian boyhood as the most truly American book of the year." H. S. Canby

+ Sat R of Lit 23:5 D 28 '40 600w

"They are in their modest way, the best writing William Saroyan has done. But like all Saroyan's work, they are likable or loathsome, depending on the reader's taste."

Time 36:58 D 30 '40 400w

SAROYAN, WILLIAM. Three plays. 121,200, 146p $3 Harcourt

812 (W) 40-30799

Contents: My Heart's in the Highlands; The Time of Your Life; Love's Old Sweet Song.

Booklist 37:66 O 15 '40

"He writes out of an absorbing love of life which warms and enriches his work even when it deals with the crazy characters he delights in—and makes delightful."

+ Books p22 S 15 '40 300w

Reviewed by Edmund Wilson

New Repub 103:698 N 18 '40 480w

"Saroyan is a poet. His published plays with their prefaces, marginal notes, comments, addenda, prove once more, if the point needs proving, that last year's Pulitzer and Critics Circle prize-winner is above all else a singer of songs. His vivid mind, sensitized to the complexities of the world in which he lives, catches and reflects its varied forms and colors in words and phrases that lift and illuminate. For this reason his particular genius found prompt acceptance in the theatre, once his feckless, carefree method of play construction was accepted." Rosamond Gilder

+ Theatre Arts 24:832 N '40 650w

SASS, HERBERT RAVENEL. Hear me, my chiefs! 256p maps $2.50 Morrow

970.3 Indians of North America. Cherokee Indians 40-31054

Thirteen episodes describing the Indian defence of North America from Chief Sassacus of the Pequots to Chief Joseph of the Nez Percés. Index.

"Mr. Sass has a brightness of narration that gives freshness to his accounts of buffalo herds, feathered game, elk herds, hordes of wild horses and darkening flocks of passenger pigeons in unspoiled America." C. J. Finger

+ Books p20 O 6 '40 850w

"It will be seen that the book lacks organization and pays no attention to chronology. It does, however, recall some almost forgotten episodes of importance, and it does give some telling snapshots of white injustice. The Cherokee legends are lovely."

Christian Science Monitor p11 Ja 25 '41 440w

"The approach is a fresh one. The historian might object to an occasional generalization which seems too sweeping, but the volume is especially interesting in view of the fact that many of the names are new to the general reader, some of the incidents pictured have been ignored by the historian and a large number of the facts are available only in the original source material which the author has utilized so well."

+ Commonweal 33:309 Ja 10 '41 160w

"It is an extremely interesting and often a beautiful book, and in its earnestness and vivid simplicity it leaves us, too, with a comparison which Mr. Sass never forces to articulation: the shame of our treatment of the Indians we long have realized; what strikes us with tragic emphasis in these backward glances is the civilization to be seen among the savages, as compared to the white man's warfare today." K. W.

+ N Y Times p10 O 20 '40 950w

"Told with distinction and economy by a noted student of Indian affairs. A moving book."

+ New Yorker 16:80 O 5 '40 50w

SATURDAY EVENING POST (periodical). Post stories of 1939 [a selection of twenty stories]. 434p $2.50 Little

(37-27266)

Contents: Battle stations! by Alec Hudson; Brag dog, by Vereen Bell; Night in Havana, by Burnham Carter; Tell me a love story, by Paul Gallico; Spring over Brooklyn, by Zachary Gold; Sergeant Bridoon of the Horse marines, by J. W. Thomason, Jr.; The hero, by M. W. Jackson; Now, Ripley, please! by Booth Tarkington; Cocks must crow, by M. K. Rawlings; This business needs a fool, by Joel Sayre; The mountains of the Axis, by J. R. Ullman; Uncle Pete laid an egg, by R. R. Annett; "Soldier from the wars returning . . ." by Alec Waugh; Jeff Raleigh's piano solo, by Edmund Ware; The road that led afar, by Lula Vollmer; The visiting fire-eater, by Philip Wylie; Won't you walk a little faster? by Richard Sherman; Subway fire, by Joseph Harrington; The man who was grateful, by David Lamson; The hunting of the Haggis, by Guy Gilpatric.

Booklist 36:413 Jl 1 '40

"Choosing among 'Saturday Evening Post' short stories is perhaps like deciding how you'll have your eggs fried. You may have them sunny side up, turned over, on toast, with ham or bacon—not a bewildering diversity but ample for most appetites. The same applies to this collection, twenty characteristic pieces out of some 225 that appeared during the year. Most of them are sunny side up, which is a sensible order in these scrambled times." Lisle Bell

+ Books p10 Je 16 '40 390w

"Mixed with [some] excellent stories are a few lemons. These probably are the result of the spirit of all-conquering optimism that must, in all likelihood of necessity, glow in magazines with huge circulations." Robert Van Gelder

+ — N Y Times p7 Je 23 '40 360w

SAUNDERS, MRS ALTA (GWINN), and ANDERSON, CHESTER REED. Business reports; investigation and presentation. 2d ed 468p $3.50 McGraw

651.78 Reports—Preparation. Business

40-35188

"This edition of a book entered in Booklist 26:302, My '30, is a new treatment of the preparation and writing of reports based on research on specific business problems. Some statistical methods are included, with the technique of research and interpretation of data." (Booklist) "To call the new edition of Business Reports a revision is a misstatement which needs explanation. Business Reports is really a new treatment of the subject of investigations and of report writing in the field of business. Business Reports, except for its name, is a new book." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 37:219 Ja 15 '41

Management R 29:456 D '40 50w

SAUNDERS, WILLIAM. Weber. (Master musicians; new ser) 291p il $2 Dutton [5s 6d Dent]

B or 92 Weber, Karl Maria Friedrich Ernst, freiherr von 40-31981

Traces the career of Weber, during the forty years of his life from 1786 to 1826. The last three chapters are devoted to an analysis of his musical works. Appendices contain a calendar of contemporary events in the life of Weber; a catalog of his works; a bibliography; and an index.

"In the critical part of the book Mr. Saunders is careful and judicious, whether or not one always agrees with his pronouncements. And it is a pleasure to find him devoting so much attention to cantatas, masses, songs and music for piano, which some writers might neglect in favor of the operas and their overtures. In particular, he does much to correct the superficial notion that the piano music is shallow and meretricious. On the other hand, one occasionally comes across a statement which afflicts one with a horrid doubt whether Mr. Saunders is really qualified to discuss opera at all." Peter Bowdoin

+ — Books p10 S 15 '40 800w

"Mr. Saunders' book is rather stodgy and lacking in the memorable phrase. His laudable object is to reinstate a neglected master, but, though he has all the facts, he does not marshal them very acceptably. His narrative is monotonous and fails to give a clear picture of Weber himself. It is not, of course, easy to see what the man was like." Edward Sackville-West

— + New Statesman & Nation 20:44 Jl 13 '40 410w

"The division of the book into biography and music is a less satisfactory method than that of the companion volume in the 'Master Musicians' series. . . Moreover, the handling of the music leaves us in some doubt of the depth of the author's own musicianship. . . Failing the 'universal revival' of Weber, which perhaps is too much to hope for, we must look to the scholars of the period for light on the subject, and it must be confessed that Mr. Saunders, for all his good will and painstaking efforts, sheds little. He has, however, produced a handy biography."

— + Times [London] Lit Sup p419 Ag 31 '40 700w

SAVELLE, MAX. The diplomatic history of the Canadian boundary, 1749-1763. 172p maps $2.50 Yale univ. press

327.71 Canada—Boundaries. Great Britain—Foreign relations—France. France—Foreign relations—Great Britain. Seven years' war, 1755-1763 40-35105

"Another volume in the notable series on Canadian-American relations sponsored by the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace. These years in the middle of the eighteenth century were determinative of the later history of the colonies, which played an increasingly important part in European diplomacy during the period. This phase culminated in the Seven Years' (or French and Indian) War." (Christian Century) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by F. H. Underhill

Canadian Forum 20:322 Ja '41 110w

"A scholarly and thoroughly documented study."

+ Christian Century 57:1419 N 13 '40 60w

SAVILE, VENETIA. They come and they go. 338p $2.50 Morrow [8s 6d Constable]

40-30761

After a prelude laid in Denmark, the scene is transferred to a south German health resort. The tale is the love story of Toni, a young girl, half English, half Danish, who accompanies her English grandmother to the sanatorium. There are several adult love affairs which come into the picture, but young Toni's holds first place. The time is before the annexation of Austria.

SAVILE, VENETIA—Continued

Booklist 37:216 Ja 15 '41

Reviewed by Page Cooper
Books p14 O 20 '40 500w

"The atmosphere of Miss Venetia Savile's story, apparently a first novel, in spite of the fact that the scene of the greater part is laid in Germany, is congenial. . . Though her touch is light it is never merely superficial, and the relationships of her heterogeneous collection of characters are indicated with a knowledgeable and sympathetic understanding." Wilfrid Gibson
+ Manchester Guardian p5 Mr 15 '40 250w

"The story does not cut deep into any of the problems presented, but it does present them with a clearsightedness and straightforwardness that is stimulating and enjoyable. 'They Come and They Go' is an interesting book chiefly for the authority of its European background (which has all the fascination of a just-before-the-battle scene); its convincing foreignness; its rich assortment of characters, and lastly for its slight story, it is well written and well worth reading." B. S.
+ — N Y Times p26 N 3 '40 490w

"Except for Alister and Toni the weeks passed in the clinic were hardly enjoyable for the inmates, but the reader at least will find every day full of interest and, getting back to Denmark at the end, will be anxious to know what the future has in store for Toni, whose half-English, half-Danish sturdiness, precocity and sentiment is the most original piece of characterization in the story."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p149 Mr 23 '40 430w

SAVITSCH, EUGENE CONSTANTINE DE. See De Savitsch, E. C.

SAWYER, RUTH (MRS A. C. DURAND). The year of jubilo; drawings by Edward Shenton. 266p $2 Viking
(W) 40-27712

Lucinda, the heroine of Roller Skates (Book Review Digest, 1936), is now fourteen. After her father's death it was discovered that the Wyman money was gone. So Lucinda and three of her brothers went to the summer cottage at Haddock Harbor, Maine, taking their frail mother with them, and there proceeded to earn their living by fishing and gardening. Lucinda was no longer the Wymans' tag, she was a real person.

Booklist 37:76 O 15 '40

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Books p14 N 10 '40 280w

Boston Transcript p2 F 1 '41 30w

Reviewed by F. B. Sloan
Christian Science Monitor p12 N 27 '40 210w

"The Maine background is authentic and the characterization worthy of a very good novel." A. C. Moore
+ Horn Bk M 16:430 N '40 60w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk M 16:442 N '40 120w

"I read with such sheer delight Ruth Sawyer's The Year of Jubilo that I am about ready to set it beside Little Women; it isn't a girls' story but rather a wise and understanding story of a real girl. . . Even minor characters are drawn with crispness and humor. But it is above all the story of Lucinda herself, her impetuousness, her struggle for self-control, her sense of humor, her delightful turn of phrase, her joy in people—but this must be read to be appreciated." M. C. Scoggin
+ Library J 65:859 O 15 '40 110w

"There is an acute awareness of Maine and the effect of the countryside, and the people there, on the characters of the story. For every book collection; will be enjoyed by girls from twelve to sixteen." E. A. Groves
+ Library J 65:880 O 15 '40 230w

Reviewed by Lena Barksdale
Nation 151:456 N 9 '40 10w

Reviewed by E. W. Steele
New Repub 103:845 D 16 '40 40w

"The many friends and admirers of the refreshingly real and winning little heroine of 'Roller Skates,' Ruth Sawyer's story of a little girl in New York of the Nineties, will rejoice that this author has given us a second book about Lucinda." A. T. E.
+ N Y Times p41 N 10 '40 220w

"The new book is a family story in the Louisa Alcott tradition, and in spite of a few mawkish passages and a series of totally incredible literary letters which the fourteen-year-old Lucinda is supposed to have written, the events and emotions of the city-bred Wymans' year of poverty on the Maine coast are described with real perception."
+ — New Yorker 16:129 D 7 '40 100w

"Good with a serious slant." Gladys Graham
Sat R of Lit 23:25 N 16 '40 30w

Wis Lib Bul 36:154 N '40

SAXBY, CHARLES. Death in the sun. 288p $2 Dutton 40-8551

Mystery story.

"This is best regarded, perhaps, as a surprise package with no sleuthing to speak of but several good-sized jolts." Will Cuppy
Books p20 My 5 '40 130w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin
Boston Transcript p2 My 11 '40 70w

"The whole thing is a hopeless muddle from start to finish—rather an amusing one in spots —and the solution of the mystery is unsatisfactory and inconclusive." Isaac Anderson
— + N Y Times p27 My 5 '40 150w

"Brilliant atmosphere, tortuous plot, outlandish characters, wry comedy, and denouement that doesn't get anywhere but is entirely jake. Good."
+ Sat R of Lit 22:18 My 4 '40 40w

SAXBY, CHARLES. Death joins the woman's club. 283p $2 Dutton 40-14500

Detective story.

"A fancier of weird artistic types and loony conspiracies, Mr. Saxby appears to have disciplined his wayward muse to some extent in this story, thus getting a smoother mixture." Will Cuppy
Books p23 S 29 '40 110w

"Fast, sometimes funny, filled with oddly assorted people and frequently really puzzling. Good stuff for bored fans."
+ Boston Transcript p2 S 14 '40 30w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p29 N 17 '40 80w

"Hair-raising confession scene clears up double killing after much bumbling but entertaining detective work by local police chief and helpers. Good enough."
+ Sat R of Lit 22:18 S 28 '40 50w

SAYERS, DOROTHY LEIGH (MRS ATHERTON FLEMING). In the teeth of the evidence, and other stories. 311p $2.50 Harcourt [7s 6d Gollancz]
(W) 40-27171

Collection of stories of detection, some of which have been previously published in magazines. Two stories are about Peter Wimsey, and five about Montague Egg.

Atlantic Ap '40 60w

Booklist 36:284 Mr 15 '40

"Miss Sayers has something special on the ball in each and every item, whether it be an unusual narrative attack, a peculiar mood, or what. A black and yellow streamer around our copy of the volume yells: 'A New Sayers at Last!' That's about the gist of it." Will Cuppy

+ Books p12 F 18 '40 400w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin

Boston Transcript p2 F 17 '40 50w

Christian Century 57:706 My 29 '40 50w

Reviewed by E. R. Punshon

+ Manchester Guardian sup xiv D 1 '39 280w

Reviewed by Janet Thom

New Repub 102:253 F 19 '40 400w

"The authoress is supremely competent in everything she touches, and these lively, well-written magazine stories must revive the universal regret that she has abandoned serious detection." Ralph Partridge

+ New Statesman & Nation 18:936 D 23 '39 50w

"They are truly remarkable short stories, and they will add much to the already great reputation of Dorothy Sayers." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p23 F 18 '40 160w

"Miss Sayers' fans, who have grown nervous and irritable from their forced abstinence, will pounce on these tales for a between-meals snack."

+ New Yorker 16:84 F 17 '40 40w

"Murders, consummated and attempted, some comedy, and finishing touch of quasi-supernatural—all clever enough but somehow empty. Small beer."

Sat R of Lit 21:18 F 17 '40 40w

"Among [the stories] are an amusing account of a barber's brainwave, and an excellent, almost surrealist, story called The Leopard Lady; but the majority of the stories in the book seem to have escaped unwillingly from popular magazines. They have little twists in their tails, but one can almost always anticipate them. Remembering some of Miss Sayers's more elaborate backgrounds, one almost wishes she had supplied a little more padding." Rupert Hart-Davis

+ — Spec 163:880 D 15 '39 170w

"Miss Sayers infuses any tale with intelligent perception and a certain vivacity of observation. Here she is more nearly dependent on mere story telling, and shows that she can do it, though both author and reader might become weary if some of the tales were spun out at greater length."

Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 31 '40 300w

"The only complaint to make of Miss Sayers is that her tales are a little too short. . . Nevertheless—and for this we must be deeply grateful—Miss Sayers does make her characters live. . . We have been waiting eagerly for a new book by Miss Sayers, and if some of her admirers will be disappointed (since they must have read a few at least of these stories elsewhere) they will surely have had their appetites suitably whetted for more."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p675 N 18 '39 250w

SAYERS, JAMES DENSON (DENVER BARDWELL, pseud). Coyote hunter. 277p $2 Doubleday

40-5181

Western story.

"The girl interest is important in this likable tale of nature in the raw." Will Cuppy

+ Books p9 Ja 21 '40 130w

"The telling makes a fairly good Western yarn, with some novel quirks and incidents, but without any particular distinction." G. W. Harris

N Y Times p20 Ja 28 '40 160w

Wis Lib Bul 36:68 Ap '40

SAYRE, FRANCIS BOWES. Protection of American export trade; being the course of lectures delivered at Westminster college, Fulton, Missouri, 1939. 93p $1.50 Univ. of Chicago press [9s Cambridge]

382 U.S.—Commercial policy 40-6824

"Lectures explaining the Hull Trade Agreement Program, by the former Assistant Secretary of State in charge of negotiating them." Foreign Affairs

Reviewed by F. O. Wilcox

Am Pol Sci R 34:610 Je '40 220w

Foreign Affairs 18:753 Jl '40 20w

SCEARCE, STANLEY. Northern lights to fields of gold; il. by R. H. Hall. 390p $3.50 Caxton printers

40-255

Somewhat fictionized autobiography in which the author tells the tale of his adventures and love affairs during the gold rush days on the Klondike forty years ago.

Reviewed by M. D. Waddington

Canadian Forum 20:30 Ap '40 280w

"Many stories, fact and fiction, are interwoven with the author's story, but his own personal experiences, vividly related, form the more readable and substantial part of the book."

+ Springf'd Republican p6 Ja 29 '40 320w

SCHACKNE, STEWART. Rowena, the skating cow; [il. by] Fritz Eichenberg. [61p] $1.50 Scribner

40-35428

Amusing picture-story book for young readers, describing the antics of a prize cow, Rowena, who realized her ambition to become a skater, and found success very dull.

"Both the story and the illustrations place it among the more amusing books for six and seven and even eight-year-olds." Miriam Snow

+ Library J 65:927 N 1 '40 200w

"Pleasant."

+ Sat R of Lit 23:17 D 14 '40 20w

SCHAPP, ADELBERT. Patent fundamentals; a textbook for inventors, executives and students. 176p il $2 Industrial press

608 Patents—U.S. Patent laws and legislation—U.S. Trade marks. Copyright 39-31184

"The title of this book is misdescriptive. Instead of discussing fundamental precepts of our patent laws, the philosophy behind the patent laws, or the fundamental nature of patents, the author discusses and makes clear by many simple illustrations the elementary steps to be taken in securing a patent and the elementary precautions to be used in exploiting or licensing a patented invention. A more correct title would have been 'Patent Elementals'." Chem & Chem Eng N

"Properly classified, the book is an excellent treatise of a difficult subject—that of making clear to novices the elementary steps and precautions which should be taken in securing a patent and in dealing in a business way with patent rights. . . The book is not recommended reading for those who have had their introduction into the patent field, or have had experience in dealing with patent rights; but for those who have had no experience in the patent field, it presents a clear picture of an involved subject in as short a scope as the subject could be faithfully presented." Nelson Littell

+ — Chem & Chem Eng N 18:166 F 25 '40 420w

Chem & Met Eng 46:723 N '39 140w

N Y New Tech Bks 25:9 Ja '40

SCHAUB, EDWARD LEROY. Progressism; an essay in social philosophy. 298p $3 (7s 6d) Longmans

301 Philosophy. Progress

"For his lectures at the University of Calcutta in 1929, Professor Schaub borrowed Bosanquet's rather unlovely label 'Progressism' for the dynamic Western doctrine which he contrasted with the religious monisms of Hindu thought. . . Three of his lectures trace the genesis, development, and varieties of the philosophy of progress, and some of its unlovelier 'cultural expressions' in contemporary American life. A presidential address to the American Theological Society on 'Neo-Ptolemaism in Religion' is inserted as a supplement to the last of these chapters. In his concluding lecture, the author sets over against secular naturalism the rival doctrines of Eucken, Bosanquet, and Royce to the marked disadvantage of 'progressism.'" J Philos

Reviewed by N. F. S. Ferré
Christian Century 57:737 Je 5 '40 850w
J Philos 37:391 Jl 4 '40 150w

SCHAUFFLER, ROBERT HAVEN, ed. Days we celebrate. 4v ea $2.50 Dodd

394 Holidays (W) 40-5256

"These [four] new volumes by Mr. Schauffler are continuations of Our American Holidays series bringing the entire set up to date. The books are suitable for either adults or children. For each holiday the books include plays, poetry, essays, stories, and games. Some of this is old but part is from the works of living authors." (Library J) Contents: v 1, Celebrations for Christmas and Other High Days; v 2, Celebrations for Festivals; v 3, Celebrations for Patriotic Days; v 4, Celebrations for Special Occasions.

Booklist 36:377 Je 1 '40

"Will be heartily welcomed by teachers." M. L. Becker
+ Books p8 Mr 24 '40 180w (Review of v 1)
Boston Transcript p3 Mr 16 '40 60w (Review of v 1)

Reviewed by J. F. Carter
Library J 65:355 Ap 15 '40 140w (Review of v1-2)

Reviewed by J. F. Carter
Library J 65:456 My 15 '40 100w (Review of v3)

Reviewed by Sonja Wennerblad
Library J 65:544 Je 15 '40 80w (Review of v4)
Springf'd Republican p8 Jl 18 '40 170w
Wis Lib Bul 36:45 Mr '40 (Review of v 1)
Wis Lib Bul 36:65 Ap '40 (Review of v2)
Wis Lib Bul 36:110 Je '40 (Review of v3-4)

SCHECHTER, A. A. Go ahead, Garrison! 237p $2 Dodd

41-531

A story of news broadcasting set forth in fiction form as the experiences, the ups and downs, and final success of a young broadcaster, Pat Garrison. Among the events Pat reports on are a submarine accident, a hurricane, an eruption of Vesuvius, and the first raid on Paris. The author is director of news and special events for the National Broadcasting company. He has been in radio since 1931.

Booklist 37:274 F 15 '41

"I never read a career story so fast. It was like hitch-hiking on a comet. . . To call this a career story, however, would quite possibly deprive some of us, old or young, of a book we should not miss. It comes from behind the scenes and tells how news is gathered up and swept into American ears." M. L. Becker
+ Books p10 N 24 '40 240w
Cath World 152:377 D '40 150w

"A. A. Schechter has produced a fast-moving narrative which manages to tell a great deal about the mechanics of news broadcasting without being either preachy or boresome. Not until the final page had been turned did this reviewer notice the classification 'for older boys' on the jacket. Be this as it may, Mr Garrison's volume would prove acceptable to many an adult reader."
+ Springf'd Republican p6 D 2 '40 300w

SCHERF, MARGARET. The corpse grows a beard. 301p $2 Putnam

40-13556

Mystery story.

"The author's nonchalant attitude toward motives struck us as all right and the conclusions also. If she made it all up as she went along, where's the harm?" Will Cuppy
Books p9 Ag 18 '40 130w

"For utter goofiness 'The Corpse Grows a Beard' takes the cake—home-made chocolate cake at that. . . There is poisoning, shooting, body snatching and, finally, a dash of romance. This is a must for slightly batty detectives." Marian Wiggin
+ Boston Transcript p2 Ag 24 '40 50w

"This is Miss Scherf's first mystery story, but one would never guess it. She writes with all the skill of an old hand at vicarious homicide and bafflement." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p17 Ag 18 '40 180w

"Having accepted initial brain-storm of story reader will enjoy adventures of disguised realtor and medico pal. Startling."
Sat R of Lit 22:18 S 14 '40 40w

SCHERMAN, HARRY. Real danger in our gold; how the job you have, the business you are in—and your whole future—are imperiled by the Government's gold at Fort Knox. 82p pa $1 Simon & Schuster

332.41 Gold. Currency question (W) 40-31851

"The real danger in our gold, according to Mr. Scherman, is not that other countries will decide to do without it, thus leaving the United States with a huge quantity of 'worthless' metal, but that its possession by the Federal Government constitutes a temptation to repudiate the national debt through further devaluation of the dollar." N Y Times

Reviewed by D. W. O'Connell
Am Econ R 30:896 D '40 380w

"Harry Scherman's proposed reform is worth serious consideration. I for one am sold on it, and I am grateful to him for drawing my attention so forcibly to an issue I had neglected. But I cannot possibly agree that all our liberties pivot on this issue. 'Government monopoly of gold ownership' is in his eyes the root of totalitarianism; 'it is the one power without which it cannot possibly flourish.' I cannot follow Harry Scherman when he carries this conviction to the extent of calling upon good citizens to neglect all other problems and to vote this year on the sole issue of repeal of the gold prohibition law." Alvin Johnson
+ — Books p1 S 15 '40 1200w
Cleveland Open Shelf p18 O '40

Reviewed by E. C. Skinner
Commonweal 33:153 N 29 '40 550w
Management R 29:388 O '40 50w

Reviewed by M. S. Stewart
Nation 151:222 S 14 '40 600w

Reviewed by H. A. Cone
New Repub 103:593 O 28 '40 950w

"Mr. Scherman evidently set out to explain the complex factors in our present gold situation in language which would be understood by the layman. He has succeeded. There are errors, but they are comparatively unimportant, and his main contentions and conclusions are sound." D. W. Ellsworth

+ N Y Times p3 O 6 '40 1000w

New Yorker 16:70 S 7 '40 40w

"'The Real Danger in Our Gold' throws much needed light on economic problems which have been too long a mystery to the 'ordinary citizen.' But Mr. Scherman has gone too far in simplifying the picture. The prevention of totalitarianism in the United States cannot be accomplished merely by the means he suggests." R. T. Ely

+ — Sat R of Lit 22:7 S 21 '40 1050w

SCHERMERHORN, ELIZABETH WHEELER. On the trail of the eight-pointed cross. 421p il $4 Putnam

929.711 Malta, Knights of 40-11038

History of the military orders of the middle ages, founded originally to shelter pilgrims to the Holy Land, but later used as protectors of the military outposts of Christendom. The greatest of these orders was the Knights Hospitalers of St John of Jerusalem, later known as the Knights of Rhodes, and finally as the Knights of Malta, whose insignia was the eight-pointed, or Maltese, cross. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by S. C. Chew

Books p27 O 27 '40 550w

"In these days when tortured mankind needs aid, it is refreshing to be reminded—in a well-written and beautifully illustrated volume —that in the long ago there were also men willing and eager to assist the poor, the sick and the suffering."

+ Boston Transcript p2 Ag 3 '40 140w

"It is evident that the author has enjoyed her task, to which she has given many years of hard work. She has provided a fascinating account of the actual administration of the Order and its property, which is based on quantities of detailed and hitherto inaccessible information. Unfortunately Miss Schermerhorn's knowledge of and sympathy with the Knights doesn't seem to extend to the Church, for her otherwise excellent book is marred for Catholics by a gratuitous and very offensive comment on the confessional." F. D. Cohalan

+ — Commonweal 32:294 Jl 26 '40 420w

New Repub 103:310 S 2 '40 50w

N Y Times p6 Je 30 '40 600w

"Miss Schermerhorn has studied many of the remains in parchment and stone of the European commanderies, and written a rambling antiquarian account of them, an account usually learned and instructive, based in part on new materials, and sometimes very entertaining. Her exposition of obsolete customs is unforced and admirable; for subjects less in her special line, however, she has a florid prose which strikes the ear like the embarrassingly hollow exuberance of a Tower of London guide." G. M.

+ — Sat R of Lit 22:21 Ag 17 '40 240w

SCHEU-RIESZ, HELENE, ed. Will you marry me? proposal letters of seven centuries. 100p $1.50 Island workshop press, inc, 470 W. 24th st, N.Y.

808.86 Love letters 40-29434

"The letters are not all famous, but most of them are the letters of famous people—Henry VIII, Jonathan Swift, Boswell, Sterne, Scott, Napoleon, Lincoln, Bismarck, Tolstoi, to mention only a few. And not quite all of them are letters of proposal. For example, the earliest is one from the widow of King John of England to her son explaining why she had recently married the man to whom she had been engaged before she married John. There are some snappy modern letters—and telegrams—of proposal." Christian Century

Christian Century 57:1586 D 18 '40 70w

Churchman 158:34 Ja 15 '41 60w

Time 36:60 D 30 '40 500w

SCHILDER, KLAAS. Christ crucified; tr. from the Dutch by Henry Zylstra. 561p $3 Eerdmans

232.96 Jesus Christ—Passion 40-3941

"The author of this large volume on the crucifixion of Christ is one of the outstanding theologians of Europe. He is professor of dogmatics and ethics in the Reformed Seminary of Kampen, the Netherlands. It is not hazardous to predict that this notable work on the crucifixion of Christ will occupy a foremost place in the passion literature. The American translation by Mr. Henry Zylstra, a graduate student in comparative literature at Harvard University and a writer of beautiful English, has furnished American Christendom with a very valuable book on the greatest of all religious themes. The book is a sequel to two previous volumes, Christ in His Suffering and Christ on Trial." J Religion

"Here we have Calvinism faring forth once more in a new robe woven by a modern seer. The author seems to know the answers to most of the questions rising from the relation between God, Christ, and humankind. He appears to explore the divine mind with an assurance bordering on presumption. Nevertheless, as the publishers predict, this study may well come to be accepted as a classic in this field, especially by those who agree with its basic ideas." Rittenhouse Neisser

Crozer Q 17:233 Jl '40 250w

"Christ Crucified is a volume rich in intellectual quality. Whether one agrees with the author's doctrine of the vicarious atonement or not, it is an intellectual treat to read a book of this kind. Many passages must be read more than once to grasp the author's thought, but such effort is richly repaid. The writer is a deep and decidedly original thinker." E. J. Tanis

+ J Religion 20:419 O '40 340w

SCHILLER, FERDINAND CANNING SCOTT. Our human truths. 371p $2.50 Columbia univ. press [12s 6d Oxford]

104 Philosophy 40-2056

A volume of miscellaneous writings, chiefly lectures or essays prepared as lectures, by an English professor of philosophy who taught for a number of years at the University of Southern California. The essays are grouped under five headings: Philosophy; Literary criticism; Philosophy in practice; Political philosophy; Logic. Index.

"This review will not be objectively critical. One takes up the last book of a revered teacher, recently deceased, with reverence, knowing what to expect and finding no disappointment on any page." A. R. King

+ Christian Century 57:417 Mr 27 '40 950w

Reviewed by M. C. Otto

J Philos 37:657 N 21 '40 5600w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 28 '40 120w

SCHILPP, PAUL ARTHUR, ed. Theology and modern life. 297p $2.50 Willett

230 Theology. Rall, Harris Franklin 40-8892

Essays in honor of Harris Franklin Rall, for twenty-five years professor of systematic theology at Garrett Biblical institute, written by eleven of his colleagues and former students. Contents: Harris Franklin Rall, by I. G. Whitchurch; Our immortality, by S. S. Cohon; The significance of critical study of the Gospels for religious thought today, by F. C. Grant; The Christian doctrine of man, by A. C. Knudson; Facing the problem of evil, by F.

SCHILPP, P. A., ed.—Continued
J. McConnell; The realistic movement in religious philosophy, by E. W. Lyman; The meaning of rational faith, by P. A. Schilpp; Interpreting the religious situation, by I. G. Whitchurch; The kingdom of God and the life of today, by C. C. McCown; The church and social optimism, by Shailer Mathews; The church, the truth, and society, by E. S. Brightman; Let the church be the church! by E. F. Tittle. Bibliography.

"A worthy tribute to a notable Christian teacher." W. P. Lemon
+ Christian Century 57:640 My 15 '40 950w

"As is usually the case, the articles are of uneven value and are only loosely wound around the central theme. They make interesting reading. Perhaps the outstanding one is Prof. Chester McCown's treatment of the Kingdom of God." R. C. Miller
+ Churchman 154:18 Je 15 '40 190w

"This work is of value not only as a tribute to Dr. Rall for his long service, but also, and particularly, as a cross-section of present-day, liberal thinking in religious philosophy and theology. There is a freshness about the essays and a clarity of statement which should make them valuable to the minister." G. W. Davis
+ Crozer Q 17:222 Jl '40 260w

"To this reviewer it appears that the writers are happiest when most fully under thrall to the spirit they delight to honor—a spirit, like that of Kant and Schleiermacher, nurtured within and indelibly marked by the intense devotion of German pietism, but also a spirit in which this priceless heritage is happily wedded to the finest intellectual integrity and social passion of the early twentieth century. Several minor modifications would have heightened the book's usefulness. Brief biographical notes on the contributors would have served to introduce them to the reader. Surely any serious work of scholarship, especially so wide-ranging in subject matter, deserves an index." H. P. Van Dusen
+ — J Religion 21:92 Ja '41 550w

SCHLAMM, WILLIAM S. This second war of independence; a call to action. 260p $2 Dutton 940.53 European war, 1939-. Europe—Politics. Democracy 40-32045

The author, who has "declared his intentions of becoming an American citizen," analyzes the mistakes Europe has made in dealing with Hitlerism and warns America against falling into the same errors.

"This book contains much sound material, especially on the defects of European democracy since the first World War. While highly emotional, the author is, after all, relatively reasonable, considering his personal background and experiences." H. E. Barnes
+ Ann Am Acad 213:195 Ja '41 600w

"Here is another version of the collapse of democracy in Europe. William Schlamm, a former editor in Vienna, has subtitled his account, 'A Call to Action,' and he has written it as a challenge to the United States to avoid the errors of France and England. Except for this hortatory mood, most of his book fits the already established pattern for self-analysis by distinguished Europeans. It is essentially an injunction to abandon democracy before Hitler can ferry himself across the Atlantic to crush it. The lesson for Americans to learn from Europe begins, according to this account, with distrust of intellectuals." Joseph Barnes
— Books p3 D 22 '40 440w

Reviewed by A. B. Lindsay
Library J 65:873 O 15 '40 150w

"Mr. Schlamm is an anti-totalitarian by conviction and by experience, and Americans will do well to read and ponder his book very carefully."
+ Nation 151:428 N 2 '40 120w

Reviewed by C. R. Walker
New Repub 103:728 N 25 '40 650w

"Doubtless the discerning reader will find Mr. Schlamm a better diagnostician than prescriber. Whether he shoots on or wide of the mark, he is stimulating; and in the diagnosis section of his book he has written a good handbook for those who waver in their faith—as all realists do now and then." S. T. Williamson
+ N Y Times p16 Ja 26 '41 1350w

SCHLEY, STURGES MASON. My dear Elaine. 401p $2.50 Funk, W.
40-35167

"The villain of this exciting and, in truth, somewhat melodramatic, novel is a man who enjoys hating. The story's hero is . . . John MacWilliams. [Peter du Fresne] does what he can to wreck his marriage. After the death of MacWilliams's wife du Fresne controls his child. The story is told by John MacWilliams in the form of a letter to 'my dear Elaine'—the woman whom he wishes to marry and to whom he must therefore bring the strange story of his life." Books

"The story is not distinguished, but it is original."
Books p14 O 20 '40 280w

"If you like hard-boiled stories, a dash of mystery, changing scene and a large dose of long-frustrated hate, you will find 'My Dear Elaine' a good job and an unusual story." Beatrice Sherman
+ — N Y Times p24 O 27 '40 800w

SCHLEY, STURGES MASON. Who'd shoot a genius? 277p $2 Random house 40-32098

Detective story.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p18 S 22 '40 180w

"You'll just have to read it for yourself. I refuse to be party to the premature revelation of a highly original plot." Marian Wiggin
+ Boston Transcript p2 O 5 '40 90w

"The book's whole precious cargo lists toward the wacky side. Not much of a puzzle. But original at that. You may like it. Some readers will." Kay Irvin
N Y Times p16 S 22 '40 280w

"Deductive ice gets pretty brittle at times, but likable characters, smart background, and extra good conversation save the day. High gloss."
+ — Sat R of Lit 22:38 O 12 '40 40w

SCHMIDT, MRS SARAH (LINDSAY). Shadow over Winding ranch; il. by Rafaello Busoni. 298p $2 Random house 40-34276

David Chisholm tries to restore his family's mortgaged Colorado ranch. He experiments with corn and Karakul sheep, has both triumphs and defeats, and is finally judged the American farmer of the year. For older boys.

Booklist 37:159 D 15 '40

"The sound agricultural background which has marked Mrs. Schmidt's earlier books is again marred by an overabundance of plot, and the meanness, unjust suspicions, and jealousy of the characters. . . Valuable for its description of the aims and achievements of the national organization of Future Farmers of America, it will be inspiring to boys familiar with that work. Recommended particularly for agricultural communities and for readers of fourteen and above." J. L. Sauer
+ — Library J 65:1045 D 1 '40 150w

Reviewed by Robert Van Gelder
Sat R of Lit 23:7 N 16 '40 30w

SCHMIDT, WILHELM. Culture historical method of ethnology; the scientific approach to the racial question; tr. by S. A. Sieber [annot. by W. Koppers; pref. by Clyde Kluckhohn]. 383p $5 Fortuny's

572 Ethnology 40-1476

"This work, a translation of Father Schmidt's Handbuch der Methode der Kulturhistorischen Ethnologie, published in Austria in 1937, is the first modernized and extended statement, in English, of the views of a leading exponent of the Kulturkreis school. . . The enormous ethnological literature produced by followers of the Kulturkreis school remains largely untranslated, and is represented in English only by two compressed works of Schmidt's dealing with primitive religion and not primarily devoted to the Kulturkreis method. The present volume remedies this condition in part, but by no means completely. The Culture Historical Method of Ethnology serves to bring Graebner's Methode der Ethnologie down to date with further developments in the logistic field drawn from the later contributions of Schmidt, Pinard de la Boullaye, Koppers, and others. It contains a critique of the evolutionary method in ethnology, and a sketch of the development of the German historical school." Am Soc R

"Even with a complete recognition of the strictures laid against the Kulturkreislehre by many American students, its intensely stimulating approach and the broad scholarship of its advocates make it worthy of thoughtful consideration and friendly criticism. At a time when so much of the best in European thought and culture seems threatened with annihilation, it is heartening to find an American publisher preserving for the English-speaking world this work of an eminent and respected European scholar. Wilhelm Schmidt has served anthropology long and well, both as editor of Anthropos and as a researcher in his own right. Whether or not there is complete agreement with that school of thought of which he is the most distinguished living exponent, a knowledge of his work is indispensable to all students of culture." L. C. Eiseley

+ — Am Soc R 5:282 Ap '40 1200w

"It is important that this standard work is now available in English to American students. Naturally a work such as this has its more or less praise-worthy sides, for it represents the philosophy of the Roman Catholic Church as applied to studies in any special science. We know the spiritual intensity of all sciences inspired from this source. We know furthermore the special anti-materialistic trend characteristic of this clerical group." Ernst Harms

+ — Books p11 Ja 21 '40 420w

"The excellent discussion of culture as a whole, its meaning and significance, coming from the pen of a student of world renown who is thoroughly conversant with the productions of European scholars, is in itself valuable, apart from the ethnologists' acceptance or rejection of the methodological viewpoint." M. F. Lewis

+ Social Forces 19:142 O '40 440w

SCHNAPPER, MORRIS BARTEL, comp. Public housing in America. (Reference shelf) 369p $1.25 Wilson, H.W.

331.833 Housing—U.S. (W) 39-29417

Selections from books and articles dealing with the public housing programs in the United States. Intended for use as a debater's annual. Bibliography.

Booklist 36:153 D 15 '39

"Although intended primarily as a debater's manual, the collection would be useful in any library used by nontechnical students of housing."

+ J Home Econ 32:181 Mr '40 40w

Social Forces 18:611 My '40 60w

Wis Lib Bul 36:12 Ja '40

SCHNEIDER, CARL EDWARD. The German church on the American frontier; a study in the rise of religion among the Germans of the West. 579p il maps $4.50; to Evangelical & Reformed ministers & lay people $3.50 Eden pub. house

284.173 Evangelical synod of North America. Germans in the U.S. 39-24675

"This is 'a case study' of a single group known as Der Deutsche Evangelische Kirchenverein des Westens, illustrating the religious and social conditions and the important work of a German church on the American frontier at a time when it was characterized by its large immigrant accessions. . . The Kirchenverein was an organization of Protestant preachers, at first coming mostly from the Basel and Barmen Pietistic centers, who tried to realize in the western area of the United States (Missouri, Illinois, Iowa, etc.) the union of the Lutheran and Reformed churches as it had been accomplished in Prussia under Frederick William III in 1817." Am Hist R

Reviewed by A. B. Faust

Am Hist R 45:913 Jl '40 600w

"The author's scientific training in the study and writing of history and his broad sociological interest have prevented this from being merely a denominational history. While it remains a monument to an important religious movement, it is also a social history of an immigrant group making its adjustments to a new environment."

+ Christian Century 56:1078 S 6 '39 110w

"Students of special denominational histories may point out a few inconsequential errors as to fact and may even question some of the judgments expressed by the author, but all will probably agree with Professor Sweet when he says, in his Introduction to the volume: 'The author of this volume is a good example of the trained historian in a church-history professorship, and this book an excellent illustration of the sound historical scholarship which is becoming increasingly frequent in American church-history writing.'" A. R. Wentz

+ J Religion 20:300 Jl '40 900w

SCHNEIDER, GUENTHER EDWARD. See Arnold, E.

SCHNIEBS, OTTO EUGEN. American skiing. 232p il $3.50 Dutton

796.93 Skis and ski running (W) 40-27012

"This book deals with skiing for recreation only, explaining and showing the latest developments in ski technique as taught by the American Ski School. . . [The book] features [the author's] latest visit to Colorado, America's Switzerland, describing the beauty and the possibilities of this great ski country, which is comparatively young and, in its skiing facilities, practically unknown." Author's foreword

Booklist 36:196 Ja 15 '40

"A clear and effective exposition of how to ski." Frank Elkins

+ N Y Times p22 Ja 14 '40 130w

"Regular skiers and Mr Schneibs' special followers will find the book interesting and useful, and the text is also helpful for beginners."

+ Springf'd Republican p12 Ja 1 '40 280w

SCHNITTKIND, HENRY THOMAS (HENRY THOMAS, pseud). The modern self-educator; the easy and direct way to acquire a liberal education. 397p $2.75 Stokes

031 Encyclopedias and dictionaries 40-31495

"This book represents . . . the acquisition of knowledge through questions and answers. . . [It] contains the six most important of the modern educational courses—History, Religion, Philosophy, Literature, Art, and Science. Each SCHNITTKIND, H. T.—Continued of these courses is subdivided into its component subjects (forty-four subjects in all), and each subject is developed gradually, from beginning to end, through an unbroken sequence of questions and answers." Foreword

"What we object to is calling this 'education.' It isn't even 'learning.' It is useful 'information.' . . But the book has value as a jolly way of testing one's general knowledge in a highly popular way. Throwing out the claims made for it on the jacket and in the foreword and subtitle, and taking it for what it is, we should say it might stimulate in some people further reading and inquiry and thus be a step toward gaining a 'liberal education.' " M. J. T.
+ — Christian Science Monitor p9 N 5 '40 180w

"The selection of information for this hoped-for 'liberal education' is inevitably open to disagreement. The author keeps well on the popular side . . . and some of his emphases are sententious while others are trivial. But he has traversed an enormous field, and his book makes the appeal of its short-cut kind to readers who, essentially, are culturally unambitious."
+ — N Y Times p9 S 8 '40 320w

SCHNITTKIND, HENRY THOMAS (HENRY THOMAS, pseud), and SCHNITTKIND, DANA ARNOLD (DANA LEE THOMAS, pseud). Living biographies of great painters; il. by Gordon Ross. de luxe ed 312p $1.98 Garden City pub. co.

927.5 Painters 40-32272

"That knowledge of a painter's life and character adds to the enjoyment of his pictures is the simple principle which is taken as the basis of this work: not merely the chief events of his career but the kind of man he was and something of the background against which he lived and labored." (N Y Times) Contents: Giotto; Michelangelo; Raphael; Leonardo; Titian; Rubens; Rembrandt; El Greco; Velasquez; Goya; Hogarth; Sir Joshua Reynolds; Turner; Corot; Millet; Van Gogh; Whistler; Renoir; Cézanne; Winslow Homer.

"The general reader will meet here a number of very interesting people. And he will find the tales of their lives pleasurable vehicles for taking aboard a cargo of knowledge without labored study. By the same token, scholars would find in these biographies neither new facts nor revelations, and they would probably differ with some of the evaluations. The book is definitely not for them." Frank Caspers
+ — Books p25 O 6 '40 550w

"The book abounds in ambiguous and misleading statements, is easy to read and attractively printed and put together. It looks like a natural for the drug and cigar store trade." W. N. M.
— Boston Transcript p5 S 7 '40 140w

"The biographical sketches are in no way stereotyped. They are written with naturalness and charm. And they are just what the book's title expresses their purpose of being—really alive."
+ N Y Times p9 Ag 18 '40 410w

SCHOBINGER, GEORGE, and LACKEY, ALEXANDER M. Business methods in the building field; a manual of practice in documentary procedure for the development, prosecution and execution of industrial, power and building projects. 350p $3.50 McGraw

692 Building 40-5573

"The title is not descriptive of the full content of the book as it covers all relations of the owner, architect or engineer, and builder, and gives worthwhile suggestions on the interrelated function of each in economic building. The book explains the advantages and disadvantages to the owner of the agency and guaranteed price contracts with their several variations and details of the risks taken by owner and builder under each." (Eng N) Index.

Booklist 36:339 My 1 '40

"A valuable handbook for the architect."
+ Eng N 124:79 My 23 '40 250w

SCHOENSTEDT, WALTER. See Schönstedt, W.

SCHOLES, PERCY ALFRED. A list of books about music in the English language; prepared as an appendix to The Oxford companion to music. 64p 75c (3s 6d) Oxford

016.78 Music—Bibliography 40-8954

"An alphabetical listing giving titles and other bibliographical information about books on music written in English. The book was prepared as an appendix to 'The Oxford Companion to Music.' " Boston Transcript

Boston Transcript p9 Mr 23 '40 30w

"If you are interested in books that discuss modern or contemporary music you will have to guess that they are listed under 'History.' Under 'Criticism' you will find only the writings of the two British critics, Chorley and Davison, who were mentioned in the article in the 'Companion,' and not the music criticism of Bernard Shaw, which you would not have to be told about if you knew enough to look for it under his name. . . Pardonably curious about my own book on the symphony, I found it listed as a book about records under Gramophone; and my book about records is not listed at all." B. H. Haggin
— Nation 150:786 Je 29 '40 160w

SCHOLZ, JACKSON VOLNEY. Fighting coach. 245p $2 Morrow

40-11705

Football story for high school boys. Brick Haley, the hero, is a plucky coach who transferred from a small college to a large one. There he found crooked dealings of several brands, which he fought unsuccessfully until the night he was kidnapped. After that things happened.

Booklist 37:216 Ja 15 '41

"An absorbing boy's story. Each page crammed with fast moving action." Ruth Hadley
+ Boston Transcript p8 Ag 31 '40 70w

SCHONSTEDT, WALTER. The cradle builder; tr. from the German by Richard Winston. 280p $2.50 Farrar

40-2314

"What a German exile who grew up in post-war Germany thinks of the United States. Mr. Schoenstedt's young man marries a Vermont girl, becomes a father, and tries to adjust himself to a strange land." (New Yorker) A sequel to In Praise of Life (Book Review Digest, 1938).

Booklist 36:239 F 15 '40

"Certainly not a profound or brilliant novel, it nevertheless tells the simple story of the beginning of marriage and the realization of the profound meaning of birth in accents that reflect deep spiritual experience. . . Mr. Schoenstedt avoids the sentimental and romantic dangers which lie in the path of such a story, and he gives the impression of a developing, truly intelligent and intuitive appreciation of the good neighbors' life about him." William Soskin
+ — Books p9 Ja 7 '40 750w

"Some readers may find the end of this human and vivid, tender and powerful novel a bit too happy, with Ellen in her country home and the baby in the white cradle and Peter fixing a shelf for 'finds' of antique copper pots. But we must put this against the roaring and shouting about 'new life' in which the official Nazi literature and philosophy glorify death." F. C. Weiskopf

+ New Repub 102:188 F 5 '40 600w

"The translation is well done. The style is simple, muted and effective. There is no spirit of propaganda in the book, and its straightforward style adds to the air of honesty and sincerity." Beatrice Sherman

+ N Y Times p7 Ja 7 '40 900w

"Sympathetically told, though it does read like a translation."

New Yorker 15:63 Ja 13 '40 50w

"The love and marriage of Peter Volkers and his American Ellen are handled very sensitively, with a grasp of the delicate factors of personality and adjustment involved and a careful avoidance of overwriting, which must have been a great temptation. . . It is with Ellen that our reservation appears. . . Mr. Schoenstedt's view of Ellen as an American girl leaves us doubtful that Peter will ever come to know the American mind." N. L. Rothman

+ — Sat R of Lit 21:6 Ja 20 '40 600w

Time 35:80 F 12 '40 60w

SCHORLING, RALEIGH. Student teaching; an experience program. 329p il $2.50 McGraw

371 Teaching 40-14835

"The purpose of this volume is to present a program that will help to correct certain deficiencies in the field of student teaching." (School & Society) Index.

Booklist 37:84 N 1 '40

School & Society 52:96 Ag 10 '40 20w

SCHRIFTGIESSER, KARL. Families. 444p $3 Howell, Soskin

929.2 U.S.—Biography 40-33235

Biographical sketches of a dozen American families which have produced notable figures thru several generations of American history. Contents: The admirable Adams'; God's family: the Beechers; The James': a family of minds; The Lees: statesmen and soldiers; Royal family: Drews and Barrymores; The Astors and the Vanderbilts; The Guggenheims: they ruled the West; The Du Ponts: powder and power; The Rockefellers: oil to Radio city; Roosevelts: big stick and New Deal. Bibliography.

"These short sketches . . . are done with a straightforward, sometimes dogmatic directness. No punches are pulled, and the author's opinions are seldom in doubt. The chapters are readable and informative, if necessarily compressed." R. E. D.

+ Atlantic F '41 70w

Booklist 37:153 D 15 '40

"Mr. Schriftgiesser's book is not notable for its scholarship or its profundity, but it is an effective and interesting way of telling several good stories and an important slice of American history. He has frankly based his work on existing studies and biographies, and there is little evidence that he has gone far into other published material, to say nothing of original sources." R. H. Rovere

Books p25 O 27 '40 500w

"The book achieves considerable success within its limited scope. The author's catholicity of sympathy may be gauged from the fact that such diverse clans as the intellectual Jameses and the feudal lords of Delaware are both given adequate treatment."

+ Nation 151:664 D 28 '40 110w

"In 'Families' Mr. Schriftgiesser is both penetrating and perfunctory, understanding and prejudiced, an enviable turner of phrase and of some occasionally uninspired sentences. His book has value because it is a good outline of what several shelves of biographies have to say about ten of our best-known families—and probably says it better than most of them." S. T. Williamson

+ — N Y Times p36 D 1 '40 1400w

"Remarkable group biography of our dynastic families . . . by a new writer who combines a nice sense of historical balance with a gift for neat and fluent statement. Better take a look at this."

+ New Yorker 16:87 O 26 '40 40w

"This book, 'Families,' might be used as a suggestion for a new type of young people's books on biography. There is one excellent juvenile dictionary of biography on the market, but sketches assembled on some unifying principle might help high school pupils to develop an interest in reading biographical literature. Mr. Schriftgiesser's book is not, of course, a juvenile offering." E. N. Jenckes

Springf'd Republican p6 F 1 '41 900w

SCHROEDER, JOHN CHARLES. Modern man and the cross. 168p $1.50 Scribner

232.3 Atonement 40-7208

"Dr. Schroeder is a young man, Professor of Homiletics and Pastoral Theology in Yale Divinity School, and author of this very interesting study of the cross, enduring symbol of the faith. Something of the direction and the content of his thought is apparent from the title page." (Crozer Q) Contents: The symbol of Christianity; The cross: an event in the lives of good men; The cross in man's history; The cross in the heart of God; The cross and human personality; The cross and human goodness; The cross and man's wisdom; The church and the cross; The cross and the evil men do; The cross and man's salvation.

"One cannot help feeling that a note of pessimism runs as an undercurrent through the entire argument of the writer. The cross is fundamental in Christianity, he tells us, but we can no longer think of it as our fathers did. The question is how to retain the vitality of the symbol, now that the old meaning has gone out of it. The problem is not peculiar to Dr. Schroeder. It runs like a scarlet thread through almost all of our present-day religious thinking. The radical fundamentalists have one answer for it, and radical humanists another; but many devout souls like the author of this book cannot be satisfied with either of the solutions presented by these extremists. For all such folk, Modern Man and the Cross should prove palatable reading and perhaps something more." F. D. Kershner

+ Christian Century 57:739 Je 5 '40 480w

"The most original and stimulating book on the Cross that has appeared for a long time. It abounds in striking and quotable phrases; it stabs the soul awake with its relentless exposure of our unsuspected weaknesses. It is no book for those who seek primarily for comfort. The reading of this book would infuse new life into the preparation of addresses for a Good Friday service." W. L. Caswell

+ Churchman 154:16 Mr 15 '40 240w

Reviewed by W. R. McNutt

Crozer Q 17:149 Ap '40 100w

"Ministers and laymen seeking to interpret the timeless value of the cross in modern terms will find Dr. Schroeder's book intelligent, illuminating, and vital." H. L. Bowman

+ J Religion 20:419 O '40 320w

SCHUCHERT, CHARLES, and LE VENE, CLARA MAE. O. C. Marsh, pioneer in paleontology. 541p il maps $5 Yale univ. press

B or 92 Marsh, Othniel Charles. Paleontology 40-14583

Biography of an American scientist, professor of paleontology at Yale and curator for

SCHUCHERT, C., and LE VENE, C. M.—Continued
the Peabody Museum of Natural History which was his uncle's gift to the university. The book is a labor of love, the work of a colleague and successor of Marsh's in the chair of paleontology, and of a research assistant in the Peabody museum. Bibliography. Index.

Geog R 30:702 O '40 550w

"This excellent, readable biography should revive interest in a figure once so prominent in the American scene, scientific, political and social." G. G. Simpson

+ N Y Times p5 Jl 14 '40 1000w

"This story of a pioneer paleontologist is both well worth telling and well told, a real contribution to American history." J. H. Bradley

+ Sat R of Lit 22:19 Jl 20 '40 380w

"It is unusual to find a biography at once so scientific and also so extremely readable from the layman's point of view. It is a tribute not only to the achievements of Professor Marsh, but also to his two able biographers."

+ Scientific Bk Club R 11:2 Jl '40 500w

Time 36:71 Ag 5 '40 200w

"Marsh was fortunate in that his biography was delayed until most of the echoes of the unfortunate Marsh-Cope controversy had died away. Schuchert and LeVene have treated the subject dispassionately, so that their principal emerges somewhat less scathed than Cope did at the hands of his biographers. They have built up a picture of Marsh the man that stands out as a remarkable piece of delineation." P. E. Raymond

+ Yale R n s 30:181 autumn '40 700w

SCHULTE, PAUL. The flying priest over the Arctic; a story of everlasting ice and of everlasting love. 267p il map $2.75 Harper

277.1 Missions—Arctic regions. Roman Catholic church—Missions. Eskimos. Aeronautics—Flights 41-493

"The Eskimos call Paul Schulte 'The Father who has wings,' which is a soundly descriptive title. He has been flying for twenty years, and in 1927 he founded an organization known as the MIVA—the Missionary International Vehicular Association. In 1930 he was commissioned by Pope Pius XI to take the work of the association to the Catholic missions in the Arctic, for whatever aid his airplane could give to those 'poorest and most isolated of all missionaries.' In this book he tells something of his own work, something of the Eskimos who inhabit the far-flung field of his labors, something of the priests who live in the Arctic all the time." N Y Times

Booklist 37:263 F 15 '41

"Though the style is uninviting and at times positively juvenile, though the good father has annoying propensities for sonorous phrases like 'everlasting love in a land of everlasting ice,' the book is filled with so much odd incidental information from a man whose air experience northwest of Hudson Bay is unique that the narrative has a certain compulsion. The unusually sharp photographs are in odd contrast to the prose." Elliott Merrick

+ — Books p8 D 22 '40 700w

Reviewed by A. L. Jewett

Library J 65:981 N 15 '40 230w

"The chapter in which he pays tribute to the other priests of the Arctic is one of the best in Father Schulte's inspiriting book."

+ N Y Times p4 D 22 '40 360w

SCHULTZ, JAMES WILLARD. Short Bow's big medicine; with il. by Stockton Mulford. 201p $2 Houghton

40-5633

A story of Blackfeet and Crees in the 1870's, their belief in magic, and how a young white trader, unable to shake their belief, is yet able to free his loved one from an evil spell.

"The young trader asks Flying Woman to marry him on the last page, but this is not a love story; it is a story for boys about a genuine belief in the power of magic." M. L. Becker

+ Books p6 Ap 21 '40 450w

"Although the author's representation of Indian attitudes and manners is quite convincing, the issues of the tale are developed with the untroubled simplicity appropriate to a juvenile. Stockton Mulford's illustrations are conventional in conception and execution."

Boston Transcript p3 My 18 '40 120w

SCHUMPETER, JOSEPH ALOIS. Business cycles; a theoretical, historical and statistical analysis of the capitalist process. 2v 448;449-1095p $10 (50s) McGraw

330.1 Business cycles. Economic conditions. Capitalism 39-20970

"An analysis of the causes and the mechanism of business cycles together with a detailed discussion of statistical and historical material covering the past 150 years. These materials are so arranged as to form a series of exercises in diagnosis of business situations and to introduce students and businessmen to the viewpoints and methods relevant to the problems of the day. Primarily, the book deals with the facts and methods pertaining to the study of prosperities and depressions in general and of the incident monetary and industrial processes in particular, the great social problems of unemployment, excess capacity, 'poverty in plenty,' etc. Thus the book constitutes a history and theory of business cycles." (Publisher's note) Index at end of volume two.

Reviewed by Simon Kuznets

Am Econ R 30:257 Je '40 6650w

Reviewed by Hans Neisser

Ann Am Acad 208:205 Mr '40 900w

Reviewed by J. Marschak

J Pol Econ 48:889 D '40 1800w

"'Business Cycles' is a great achievement by one of the half-dozen foremost economists of our time. No serious student of the problems which it treats can afford to neglect it." P. M. Sweezy

+ Nation 150:133 F 3 '40 900w

"This is an important work: a great achievement of a distinguished scholar of unusual brilliance. It is not an easy book to read and it requires determination to go on through more that 1,000 pages of difficult and varied matter, but for either general reader or professional student of economics a reward is guaranteed." Oskar Morgenstern

+ New Repub 102:615 My 6 '40 850w

"In the judgment of the present reviewer, this is one of the three or four most important works in the field of general economic theory that have appeared since Marx's 'Capital'—and, like that and every other great theoretical work, it has direct practical significance." Algernon Lee

+ N Y Times p17 D 17 '39 1500w

SCHUSTER, MAX LINCOLN, comp. A treasury of the world's great letters. 563p il $3.75 Simon & Schuster

808.86 Letters (W) 40-27793

Collection of letters "from ancient days to our own time, containing the characteristic and crucial communications, and intimate exchanges and cycles of correspondence, of many of the outstanding figures of world history, and some notable contemporaries; selected, edited, and integrated with biographical backgrounds and historical settings and consequences." (Subtitle) Index.

Reviewed by Edward Weeks

Atlantic D '40 140w

Booklist 37:113 N 15 '40

"A delectable bundle, and I have no criticism to pass upon what Mr. Schuster has put in or left out. In following his own zestful bent he has made an absorbingly readable collection of letters." Royal Cortissoz
+ Books p1 O 27 '40 1100w

Reviewed by R. H. Perkinson
Commonweal 33:211 D 13 '40 330w

"It is an interesting and valuable anthology: almost as valuable as it is capacious; but not quite. Mr. Schuster's choice of great letters is naturally and frankly, personal, and he explains his grounds of selection in an already beckoning foreword; he has rightly included 'standard' letters and those less well known or more recently given to the public. But some disagreement with his choices there is bound to be." Katherine Woods
+ N Y Times p3 N 3 '40 1300w

"A fine collection and a perfect bedside book for that weekend guest." Clifton Fadiman
+ New Yorker 16:85 O 26 '40 210w

Reviewed by H. M. Jones
Sat R of Lit 23:10 D 21 '40 360w
Springf'd Republican p7e N 17 '40 650w
Time 36:56 O 28 '40 480w

SCHWED, FRED. Where are the customers' yachts? or, A good hard look at Wall Street; il. by Peter Arno. 215p $1.75 Simon & Schuster

332.6 Wall Street, New York city. Speculation 40-27665

An explanation of Wall Street set forth in humorous vein by the author of Wacky, the Small Boy (Book Review Digest, 1939).

Booklist 37:30 O 1 '40

"Mr. Schwed cocks an amused and philosophical eye at Wall Street. He might be—in fact, he hereby is—called the Montaigne of the Money Marts. Withal he appears to be a smart lad and Wall Street could probably do with a lot more such antic philosophers." Frank Sullivan
+ Books p4 Jl 21 '40 850w

Reviewed by Isabel Paterson
Boston Transcript p13 Jl 23 '40 700w
Cleveland Open Shelf p18 O '40

"Let it be said at once that 'Where Are the Customers' Yachts?' is much better in its category than was 'Wacky.' There is nothing that more annoys me than a wisecracking book in which all the wisecracks are just a little bit wet—or corny, if you prefer the adjective. Mr. Schwed has perpetrated no such horror. And those who think Mr. Arno vulgar will find nothing here to change their minds." H. L. Binsse
+ — Commonweal 32:292 Jl 26 '40 550w

"Without its pictures this book might be rated as a sound speculation; Peter Arno's contribution makes it a gilt-edged investment."
+ Nation 151:253 S 21 '40 270w

Reviewed by Beatrice Sherman
N Y Times p3 Ag 11 '40 750w
New Yorker 16:68 Jl 27 '40 60w
Sat R of Lit 22:20 Ag 24 '40 280w
Springf'd Republican p8 Ag 7 '40 750w

SCHWER, WILHELM. Catholic social theory; tr. by Bartholomew Landheer; with a pref. by Franz Mueller. 360p $2.75 Herder

301 Sociology, Christian 40-10645

"The translation of a work high in favor among the Catholics of Germany. The author, formerly dean of Divinity in Bonn University and later professor of Christian social theory there, regards sociology as an empirical science based on the experience of natural reason, which must, however, be harmonized with the theological, philosophical, ethical and sociological principles that make up Catholic social science." Cath World

Cath World 151:764 S '40 160w

"Father Schwer's survey of the social problems of our time is greatly assisted by his comprehensive knowledge of modern sociological literature. He makes full use of the knowledge provided by non-Catholic writers if it is reliable; he does not hesitate to say so if alleged knowledge is not sustained by proper proof, but in his controversies he remains invariably polite. His style is polished, and the translation has managed to preserve its charm. In a book confined to the space of this one it goes without saying that many problems can only be touched lightly, but such a master of precision as Schwer always knows how to bring in the fundamentals. Professor Schwer's book is ideally suited to giving an introduction into the field with which it deals." F. A. Hermens
+ Commonweal 32:133 My 31 '40 460w

SCOTT, CREIGHTON. The Muscovites. 306p $2.50 Scribner

40-10449

Follows the lives and mental processes of three Russian students in the years just before and after the Russian revolution. Ivan, who holds the center of the stage, is in love with a married woman. When she goes South with her husband and children, Ivan, having nothing else to live for, follows her.

"'The Muscovites' paints the Russians bizarrely and with flourishes of an observer who has learned the technique of artistic exaggeration on canvas. His narrative of Russia before and after the outbreak of the Revolution has a touch of caricature, as well as liberal doses of what he calls the 'purely Slavic vices, such as tea and metaphysical conversation.' One thing that Mr. Scott can get into his book that he couldn't get into paintings is the smell of humanity." Lisle Bell

Books p14 Je 16 '40 360w
New Repub 103:38 Jl 1 '40 60w

"Actually, there is no politics in the book, no talk of ideologies, no propaganda. It is a story well conceived, well written, not without tragedy to be sure, but also with chunks of humor and snatches of pathos. If not a great book, it is a very readable one, and truly refreshing among the novels dealing with the Russian Revolution." John Cournos
+ N Y Times p7 Je 16 '40 850w

"In presenting the confusion, the lack of leadership, the uncertain purpose of the early Russian revolution, the writer presents a keen, strong picture. Otherwise one is rather relieved to close the book and be rid of Ivan and his ever-talking companions, and one is distinctly glad to get rid of the smells." M. D.
— + Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 7 '40 650w

SCOTT, ERNEST FINDLAY. The book of Revelation. 191p $2 Scribner [6s Student]

228 Bible. New Testament. Revelation

40-5931

"This is not a detailed, verse-by-verse commentary, but a comprehensive outline of the book, with an illuminating picture of the conditions within and without the church under which it was created, and a helpful chapter on its message for us. Revelation presents a Christian philosophy of history." (Churchman) Index.

"In the renewed interest in the Apocalypse that the present world crisis has created, evident in recent publications, Professor Scott's book will serve as a sound guide. It has the merit not only of cautioning against long standing misconceptions on the part of millenarians and literalists but of correcting more recent views." A. N. Wilder
+ Christian Century 57:545 Ap 24 '40 700w

SCOTT, E. F.—Continued

"This little volume is all the commentary that one needs on Revelation, and it does restore the book to the canon of Christian literature, from which most of us had banished it." W. L. Caswell

+ Churchman 154:17 Ap 1 '40 480w

Reviewed by Gordon Poteat
Crozer Q 17:302 O '40 150w

"This book, I fear, is foredoomed to a sad fate, for the many people who should read it almost certainly will not, while those who will read it with deep appreciation—and they, too, will be many—will not need it and most certainly will find little new. Thus it will probably share the fate of most missionary endeavors. This is far less an adverse criticism of the book than of American Christianity. The volume is a convenient and, in fact, altogether admirable description of the precipitate or useful residue from the many experiments which have been performed upon the luckless Apocalypse." M. S. Enslin

+ J Religion 20:294 Jl '40 800w

Times [London] Lit Sup p740 D 23 '39 750w

SCOTT, JAMES BROWN. Law, the state, and the international community. 2v 613;401p $8.75 Columbia univ. press [45s Oxford]

340 Law—History and criticism. Political science—History. State, The. International law and relations 39-30984

"The present work, the result of long and constant interest in both theory and practice [of law], has the somewhat ambitious purpose of examining the leading contributions to jurisprudence, the theory of the state, and the law of nations from the classic days of Greece to the youthful contribution of the great Grotius at the beginning of what is generally considered the modern era of legal and political philosophy." (Pref) Bibliography and index at end of volume two.

Reviewed by Sigmund Neumann
Am Pol Sci R 34:795 Ag '40 1200w

"So greatly are we indebted to the author for his contribution to the history and growth of international law that it is with reluctance that the regret must be expressed that the survey stops with the beginning of the modern age. . . A third volume, dealing with these issues, would doubly increase the gratitude we already feel for the two volumes now completed." C. G. Fenwick

+ Ann Am Acad 208:200 Mr '40 800w

Reviewed by Chester Rohrlich
N Y Times p26 Ap 7 '40 850w

Reviewed by H. J. Morgenthau
Pol Sci Q 55:261 Je '40 650w

SCOTT, MARY SEMPLE. Crime hound. 254p $2 Scribner

40-32567

Detective story.

"To the best of our knowledge and belief, this is not for advanced puzzlers." Will Cuppy
Books p25 O 6 '40 80w

"This is a clever and amusing, and withal a human and romantic, story. We hope to meet Herbert again. And we are glad to have met the Sheriff, and the Mayor, and the man who keeps a restaurant in his holidays from jail. As for the Countess and the Communists —well, there's more than one thread of incident in this tale." Kay Irvin

+ N Y Times p20 S 29 '40 240w

"Story is told through bumptious and juvenile D.A., making an otherwise good concoction difficult to take. Optional reading."

— + Sat R of Lit 23:18 N 2 '40 40w

Springf'd Republican p7e N 17 '40 200w

SCOTT, WILLIAM BERRYMAN. Some memories of a palaeontologist. 336p $3 Princeton univ. press [14s Oxford]

B or 92 40-1567

This is a full length, personal autobiography of a leading American paleontologist which contains a record not only of his career and of his friends and colleagues in the scientific world, but also the story of his childhood and education, his travels abroad and at home, his marriage and happy family life. The reminiscences, for the most part completed in 1925, were first set down for his children and grandchildren and are here presented in somewhat condensed form for public perusal. Index.

"Altogether this is a delightful book in which Professor Scott has given us good measure, pressed down and running over, proving his belief in the words of John Stuart Mill that 'the successful pursuit of happiness is to have an abundance of work that one enjoys doing.' " M. F. Ashley-Montagu

+ Boston Transcript p2 S 16 '39 800w

"A stimulating collection of memories, which show how wide may be the outside interests of one who devotes himself to palæontology." A. S. Woodward

+ Nature 145:121 Ja 27 '40 700w

SCOTT, MRS WINIFRED MARY (WATSON) (PAMELA WYNNE, pseud). Honey-colored moon. 286p $2 Kinsey [8s 3d Collins]

40-14538

A Riviera pension with its usual collection of exiles and gentlefolk in reduced circumstances is suddenly enlivened by having three legacies left to as many of its inmates. The English girl, Valentine, marries on the strength of her legacy and finds first disillusionment and then happiness.

" 'Honey-Colored Moon' catches the rhythm and the ritual of pension existence remarkably. The plot is sentimental, but the setting is sharply observed and accurately depicted." Lisle Bell

+ Books p15 Ag 25 '40 130w

"A varied and entertaining bit of light reading." C. D.

+ N Y Times p18 S 1 '40 240w

"The story itself is light and sentimental. More solid is the fine depiction of those pensionnaires whose aimless existence is bounded by the gossip of the pension and their mild gambling at the Casino."

+ — Springf'd Republican p7e S 22 '40 240w

SCOTT, MRS WINIFRED MARY (WATSON) (PAMELA WYNNE, pseud). Love's lotus flower. 284p $2 Kinsey [7s 6d Collins]

40-2315

"The story is that of a delicate and lovely English widow of 30, whose lotus flower of love languished and nearly expired in the stuffy village of Market Stacey, but flourished like everything when transplanted to exotic India." N Y Times

---

"Plenty of native atmosphere, with a sprinkling of the sinister and the occult." Lisle Bell
Books p11 Ja 14 '40 100w

"A pleasant throwback to the Victorian novel, in style and matter, in spite of its modern setting. Its manner is leisurely, conventional, rather wordy and given to romantic description." Beatrice Sherman
N Y Times p18 Ja 28 '40 200w

SCRAMUZZA, VINCENT MARY. The Emperor Claudius. 328p map $3.75 Harvard univ. press [16s Oxford]

B or 92 Claudius, emperor of Rome 40-10401

"Professor Scramuzza begins his study with a critique of the historical tradition. . . He passes on to Claudius's personality and draws the portrait which we have now come to accept of a scholarly, intelligent and 'good-natured prince, ill at ease in his sudden splendour.' . . The volume is concluded by studies of Claudius's public works and foreign policy." Times [London] Lit Sup

---

"Professor Scramuzza writes primarily for scholars. . . Unfortunately—perhaps out of deference to non-scholarly readers—he has naïvetés of expression that are a little strange when we place them side by side with such adequacy of research. Equally strange are some of his illustrative phrases. . . Many will doubtless prefer the strong odors and high colors of Robert Graves' 'I Claudius.' No one can question that the Graves book has a brilliancy of style to which this book can make no claim. But there are those who would rather know what modern historians have found out about Claudius and where they find it. They will profit by Professor Scramuzza's exposition." Max Radin
+ — Books p14 Ag 25 '40 850w

"The Emperor Claudius is no longer a minor oddity in the portrait gallery of the Julio-Claudians. . . This process of rehabilitation has gathered pace during the last decade; Professor Scramuzza's book, a careful, well-documented work, carries a stage farther the interpretation epitomized in Momigliano's well-known monograph."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p510 O 5 '40 800w

SCUDDER, DELTON LEWIS. Tennant's Philosophical theology. 278p $3 Yale univ. press [14s Oxford]

201 Tennant, Frederick Robert. Theism. Experience (religion) 40-14172

"Tennant's theodicy, a comprehensive philosophical system of theism, based on the principle that 'the truth of religious belief can be established only by general philosophical argument from the sensorily perceived facts of common knowledge and religion is the volitional response of the self to the theistic hypothesis or idea,' is subjected to a thorough analysis in Dr. Scudder's book. After tracing the Cambridge background of the theologian, his philosophical education and affinities, Dr. Scudder refutes radically his empirical validation of theism. Tennant's criticisms of religious experience and his objections against their 'proof value' are dealt with in a special chapter representing the stamina of Dr. Scudder's critical thought. In his conclusions the author tries to 'set forth the interrelated grounds upon the basis of which our knowledge of God may be reasonably verified.'" (Times [London] Lit Sup) Bibliography. Index.

"A thoughtful and critical examination." G. D. Hicks + Hibbert J 39:102 O '40 180w
J Philos 37:530 S 12 '40 260w

"In the critical portion of the book Mr. Scudder's argument is occasionally ingenious, but it never comes close to dealing a decisive blow at Tennant's main contention that the object of religious experience is not a 'quasi-impressional datum, uniquely apprehended with genuine immediacy, but rather a derived and mediated image or conception which is interpretatively read into perceptual or ideal objects.' " . . . Perhaps the most valuable feature of this book is that it brings into clear focus the problem with which Tennant deals by quoting from many theologians and philosophers who differ with Tennant concerning religious experience. There is also a complete list of Tennant's writings arranged in chronological order." H. B. Jefferson
+ — J Religion 21:72 Ja '41 900w
Times [London] Lit Sup p415 Ag 24 '40 220w

SCUDDER, VIDA DUTTON. Father Huntington. 375p $3.50 Dutton

B or 92 Huntington, James Otis Sargent. Order of the holy cross 40-31477

James Huntington, born into a Massachusetts Unitarian family in 1854, became an Episcopalian priest and later found his life work in the establishment of an Anglican monastic order, the Order of the Holy Cross. This full length biography combines the story of the man's life and a study of the place and meaning of the Order. Index.

"Miss Scudder believes that the lives of the saints are the best evidence of Christianity; that in no generation have saints failed to appear; and while she does not expressly claim as much, it is evident that she holds James Huntington to be a member of that great company. The record she unfolds so lovingly does much to support that view." Mason Wade
Books p24 S 29 '40 900w

"Miss Scudder is perfectly cast in the role of Father Huntington's biographer, as a rereading of her own beautiful autobiography would amply prove even if it were not amply apparent on the face of the present work. She was herself an active participant in those movements which made the Episcopal Church the pathfinder for American churches in organized social work."
+ Christian Century 57:1383 N 6 '40 210w

"Dr. Scudder has done her task with the positive and resolute style characteristic of all her published works." A. L. Byron-Curtiss
+ Churchman 154:19 O 15 '40 1100w
Commonweal 32:474 S 27 '40 150w

"With a rare knowledge of Church History, and a complete sympathy with the ideals of her subject in both the theological and social fields, Miss Scudder has made a real contribution, not merely to American biography. The background which she paints of the closing years of the nineteenth century and the first thirty of the twentieth is of equal value." W. B. S.
+ Sat R of Lit 23:19 N 9 '40 320w

"For Miss Scudder, the writing of Father Huntington's biography has doubtless been a labor of love. The result is a book which will have a far wider appeal than might be expected. Devout Episcopalians, interested in their church history, will read it attentively; indeed, for the benefit of the church historian there is included an excellent index. Even the layman who shuns the usual 'religious' book will find his interest caught by the fact that Father Huntington's period of reform activity corresponds with that of the awakening social consciousness in America."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e S 22 '40 550w

SEABROOK, WILLIAM BUEHLER. Witchcraft; its power in the world today. 387p il $3 Harcourt

133 Occult sciences. Witchcraft (W) 40-31468

A collection of anecdotes and stories relating the author's experiences with various types of witchcraft and magic, black and white, in Europe, Africa, and the United States.

"A mediocre jerry-built affair, apparently conceived at haphazard, poorly executed, vulgar in style."
— Atlantic O '40 110w

Reviewed by Thomas Sugrue
Books p2 S 15 '40 1050w
Christian Century 57:1215 O 2 '40 350w
New Repub 103:426 S 23 '40 70w

"The personal experiences of the author are especially interesting parts of an interesting book devoted to beliefs as old as mankind and theories concerning them now being evolved by modern methods, and sometimes in modern scientific laboratories." L. M. Field
+ N Y Times p6 S 15 '40 700w

SEABROOK, W. B.—Continued
Reviewed by Vincent McHugh
New Yorker 16:68 S 7 '40 650w

"One of the eeriest evenings of reading since 'Dracula' descended on a horror-stricken world. Mr Seabrook is a master journalist, but this book is something more than a journalistic sensation."
Springf'd Republican p8 S 5 '40 1000w

"A mildly entertaining potful of scraps, Witchcraft would be more impressive had Seabrook, like a conscientious warlock, given it double toil and trouble."
Time 36:82 S 9 '40 370w

SEABURY, DAVID. How Jesus heals our minds today. 317p $2.50 Little 248 Psychology, Religious. Mental hygiene. Jesus Christ—Teachings (W) 40-32056

"A discussion of Jesus' teachings considered in terms of the most enlightened clinical psychology. . . [The author] shows how they can help such forms of maladjustment as self-consciousness, worry, slavery to detail, fear of convention and many other ills induced by the pace and confusion of modern life. . . Demonstrates the profound insight of Jesus into human problems." Publisher's note

"As a clinical psychologist [David Seabury] has for years been successfully counseling suffering and baffled people. But his effort to support his theory and practice by appeal to the theory and practice of Jesus is not very convincing. For he seeks to muster that support by rather haphazard quotations from Jesus' alleged sayings, with little regard for their authenticity and even less regard for correct exegesis." C. T. Holman
Christian Century 57:1585 D 18 '40 800w

"Of the many books written on the subject of Christianity and psychology to this reviewer this is one of the most refreshing, thought-provoking. Those who are familiar with David Seabury's writings expect to find readability and pungency. The present volume has this and much more." J. H. Titus
+ Churchman 154:18 N 15 '40 250w

"The book is written in a facile and vivid style, popular, and yet not in the general run of 'self-help' literature, for it is exposition rather than exhortation."
+ N Y Times p24 Ja 12 '41 240w

SEATON, GEORGE W. Cue's guide to New York city. 141p il map $1.25 Prentice-Hall
917.471 New York (city)—Description (W) 40-10872

"What to see for interest, what to do for amusement, what to buy for remembrance." (Subtitle) A concise guide, but filled with touches of humor. Partial contents: How to get to New York; Driving in New York; Some methods of sightseeing; Museums; Amusements; Restaurants; Shopping; Hotels. Index.

Booklist 36:427 Jl 15 '40
Books p37 N 10 '40 150w
Reviewed by Olga Owens
Boston Transcript p2 Je 15 '40 700w

"A guidebook of outstanding excellence. It is so good, indeed, that although it follows the simplest—and therefore the most obvious—guidebook outline it can make the resident feel like a sight-seer himself."
+ N Y Times p5 Jl 7 '40 310w

SEATON, GEORGE W. What to see and do in New England; how to get the most out of your trip. 302p il maps $3 Prentice-Hall
917.4 New England—Description and travel (W) 40-8761

Vacation guide to the New England states, containing information about routes, sightseeing, and hotels, with statistics and historical dates relegated to separate chapters. Small highway maps of each state, and a picture map of New England on end papers. There are suggested tours, lists of winter sports centers and hotels, and an index.

Booklist 36:397 Je 15 '40
Books p12 Ag 25 '40 190w

"This is a tourists' book, written primarily for the non-New Englander who can spend a short or long vacation in these States. But it is so packed with information that even a New Englander could profitably stuff it into his bag." Albert Dietz
+ Boston Transcript p1 Jl 13 '40 320w

"Mr. Seaton is a practical man who has made a practical book. He not only tells what to see and do but how much to pay hotels and what to buy for those who stayed at home. It is a good, uninspired, factual book." Jonathan Daniels
+ — New Eng Q 13:530 S '40 420w

"His book makes no claim to be anything but a vacation guide; it cannot even cover New England completely in one volume. But it points the way with enthusiasm and good sense to as much as the ordinary holiday traveler will be able to see. It is the more to be regretted that the author of so sensible a book falls into the comparison-with-Europe pitfall which usually stamps a book as the reverse of intelligent. To say that you can find in New England everything that you seek in Europe is, quite patently, absurd. What you find in New England you seek for itself."
+ — N Y Times p3 Je 30 '40 340w

SECHRIST, MRS ELIZABETH (HOUGH). Red letter days; a book of holiday customs; il. by Guy Fry. 252p $2 Macrae Smith co.
394.26 Holidays (W) 40-10213

A book for children in which the author traces to their sources some of the customs observed on our holidays and feast days. Contents: Story of the calendar; New Year's day; Lincoln's birthday; St Valentine's day; Washington's birthday; St Patrick's day; Easter; April fools' day; Arbor day; Pan-American day; May day; Mother's day; Memorial day; Flag day; Independence day; Columbus day; Hallowe'en; Armistice day; Thanksgiving day; Christmas; Other holidays. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 36:414 Jl 1 '40
Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Books p5 Jl 14 '40 180w

"A book thoughtfully compiled and skillfully designed. An excellent book for libraries and schools."
+ Boston Transcript p1 Jl 13 '40 150w

"The style is easy and popular enough to recommend the chapters to the children themselves for reading. A book that would be used in any school library, and of interest to families as well."
+ Christian Science Monitor p9 N 12 '40 140w
Wis Lib Bul 36:139 O '40

SECOND mystery book; one full-length novel, one story and four novelettes, by Anthony Abbot [and others]. 471p $2.50 Farrar 40-34868

Contents: About the perfect crime of Mr Digberry, by Anthony Abbot; Puzzle in snow, by Philip Wylie; The clock strikes, by Leslie Ford; The dog in the orchard, by M. R. Rinehart; Mr Pinkerton lends a hand, by David Frome; Bad for business: a Tecumseh Fox mystery, by Rex Stout.

Booklist 37:176 Ja 1 '41

" 'Mr. Pinkerton Lends a Hand,' by David Frome [is] in our opinion the prize exhibit of the volume by a considerable margin. . . When you've finished the other contributions, settle down with the Stout number for an exciting bout of deduction with one of Nero Wolfe's close rivals on the job. What more can you ask?" Will Cuppy

+ Books p28 D 1 '40 320w

"The shortest story in the book is that by Mary Roberts Rinehart, and most readers will probably agree that it is the best. It is not a mystery story in the ordinary sense of that term, for there is no attempt to conceal the identity of the murderer. What makes it notable is the masterly way in which the murderer's fear of discovery is made manifest. The other stories in this volume are excellent examples of the work of their respective authors, all of whom are well known to mystery fans." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p32 D 1 '40 180w

"A good collection. . . Well worth looking into, especially because of Rex Stout's Tecumseh Fox story, 'Bad for Business.' "

+ New Yorker 16:92 N 30 '40 40w

"Mrs. Rinehart's short chiller and Rex Stout's Tecumseh Fox 'novella' are tops. Of the rest the less said the better. Spotty."

+ — Sat R of Lit 23:46 D 7 '40 50w

Time 36:84 D 2 '40 30w

SEDGWICK, HENRY DWIGHT. Madame Récamier; the biography of a flirt. 326p il $3 Bobbs

B or 92 Récamier, Jeanne Françoise Julie Adelaide (Bernard) (W) 40-27353

Biography of a celebrated French leader of society who was born in 1777, and died in 1849. She was married at fifteen to a man almost three times her age; established a salon to which came many of the leading lights of the consulate and empire days. Among her friends were Madame de Staël, Châteaubriand, Constant, and Prince August of Prussia. Mrs Trollope said of her, "of all the ladies with whom I have become acquainted in Paris, the one who appears to me to be the most perfect specimen of an elegant French woman is Mme. Récamier." Brief bibliography. Index.

Atlantic My '40 200w

"Mr. Sedgwick's biography of a woman whose name is still a synonym for feminine attractiveness is appropriately sympathetic. His occasional difficulties with English titles and other European institutions are not very serious defects in a work of this nature, which does not pretend to weight or profundity." Isabel Paterson

+ — Books p3 Mr 17 '40 1450w

Reviewed by Frank Wood

Boston Transcript p9 Mr 23 '40 470w

"Mme. Récamier deserved better than this—something of the loving attention of Ballanche, of the discrimination of Sainte-Beuve. The present book is worth reading, to be sure, but the credit belongs to the subject." W. M. Frohock

— + Commonweal 31:515 Ap 5 '40 390w

"This detailed picture of the life and times of Mme Récamier leaves the central figure as remote as where she reclines upon a directoire sofa in David's portrait." G. E. Brown

— + Library J 65:166 F 15 '40 130w

"Bravely as he has attempted to, Mr. Sedgwick has not quite, though I want to make sure that I do not say that he has not, written a most excellent book. But perhaps Mme. Récamier is too much for any biographer. I—and Mr. Sedgwick in his introduction—compare her to Simonetta. Well, outside of Botticelli's painting, the only time Simonetta came to life was in Maurice Hewlett's lovely story 'Quattrocentisteria.' That was fiction by a skillful novelist, and perhaps fiction is what is needed here, too." T. C. Chubb

+ — N Y Times p9 Mr 24 '40 1100w

"Readable, but sentimental and not very penetrating."

+ — New Yorker 16:107 Mr 16 '40 30w

"Mr. Sedgwick's book is fairly substantial but unpretentious. . . It is neither so journalistic as is suggested by its raucous subtitle nor so scholarly as the presence of bibliography and index would suggest. Scholars will challenge the author's research methods at a few points, and they will wish that the book had been proofread more carefully. But Mr. Sedgwick has not tried to write a challenging book. He does not huff and puff in an effort to demolish earlier theories; he simply tries to recapture the bouquet of a period and the charm of a woman. In this he has been successful; he has written a pleasant, though perhaps not important, book." Alexander Cowie

+ — Sat R of Lit 21:16 Mr 30 '40 750w

"Mr. Sedgwick ably portrays the extraordinary personality of this remarkable woman, capturing as well the spirit of the period through which she moved with her varied and colorful circle of intimates and acquaintances. The result is not only spirited biography, but colorful history for the general reader."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 21 '40 900w

SEELEY, MABEL. The whispering cup. 308p $2 Doubleday

40-9443

Detective story.

Booklist 37:14 S '40

"Miss Seeley has thought up a clever sleuth in Sheriff Eric Maland. Readers should get a salutary mental workout following his researches and wondering about the button, the Norwegian brooch, the cut in Solveig's finger, and the missing pages from the stolen diary." Will Cuppy

+ Books p10 Je 9 '40 210w

"The scenes in the grain elevator set a new high in shivery description. Those of you who liked 'The Crying Sisters' and the 'Listening House' will find this book right up with its predecessors." Marian Wiggin

+ Boston Transcript p2 Je 15 '40 90w

"Besides being an excellent mystery story, 'The Whispering Cup' is a noteworthy novel of human character and emotion set in a community of Norwegian-Americans whose ancestral traits and traditions have been modified but not obliterated by their New World surroundings." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p16 Je 9 '40 290w

"A really spectacular job of writing by a woman who is leading the field in American mystery fiction."

+ New Yorker 16:72 Je 22 '40 40w

SEELEY, MRS VERNITA (SWEZEA). Harmony in interiors. (Whittlesey house publication) 287p il $5 McGraw

747 House decoration. Furniture (W) 40-27182

A book made up of some text—treating the fundamentals of interior decoration—and many illustrations of interiors. The author is a professional decorator and many of the photographs were specially taken to illustrate points in the text. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 36:260 Mr 1 '40

"Mrs. Seeley's style is clear and direct—she might almost be talking to her readers—and while she has designed this book primarily for the amateur decorator, it contains much that will be interesting to the professional as well."

+ Books p13 Jl 7 '40 350w

J Home Econ 32:331 My '40 80w

SEELY, HOWARD FRANCIS, and HACKETT, WILLIAM ARTHUR. Experiences in speaking. 512p il $1.72 Scott

808.5 Speech. Public speaking 40-12000

"A guide for high-school pupils in the acquisition of good speech, ease of manner, SEELY, H. F., and HACKETT, W. A.—Cont. pleasing stage presence and general social deportment." (School & Society) Index.

Booklist 37:66 O 15 '40

School & Society 52:64 Jl 27 '40 20w

Wis Lib Bul 36:135 O '40

SEGELER, CURT GEORGE, ed. See American gas association. Technical section. Chemical committee. Fuel flue gases

SEIDENFADEN, GUNNAR. Modern arctic exploration; with a pref. by Peter Freuchen; tr. from the Danish by Naomi Walford. 189p il maps $2.50 Hale [12s 6d Cape, J]

919.8 Arctic regions. Scientific expeditions (W) [40-14899]

"Mr. Gunnar Seidenfaden is a young Danish natural scientist, who has been a member of several of the expeditions to East Greenland. His chief object in this book is to give some account of how the machine has come to the aid of the Arctic explorer; and, taking in turn each group of specialists, the cartographers, the geologists, the biologists, etc., he explains the working of a few of the ingenius gadgets that now go to equip them." Christian Science Monitor

"[The author] brings the Arctic, its people, its hardships, and the strange routine of life there vividly before us; and does full justice to the glorious but as yet unfinished epic of conquest." Eric Forbes-Boyd

+ Christian Science Monitor p12 Ja 20 '40 270w

Christian Science Monitor p16 Jl 17 '40 550w

"The author, a scientist with firsthand knowledge of this region, writes with a spirit which animates his subject and compels respect for it. He shows that this hitherto isolated area has become linked to the modern world and he gives well based suggestions of the part it may play in the future. It is not for thrill seekers for he refuses to indulge in heroics, but it is nevertheless fascinating. In no sense a children's book, it should appeal to boys over thirteen and men who feel the age-old lure of the Far North." Eleanor Kidder

+ Library J 65:596 Jl '40 210w

"The book is authoritative and readable. . . Illustrations and a somewhat crude map hardly justify the high price of a small volume." R. N. R. Brown

+ — Manchester Guardian p3 D 5 '39 160w

Reviewed by Christopher St John

New Statesman & Nation 18:848 D 9 '39 150w

N Y Times p8 Jl 7 '40 420w

New Yorker 16:71 Je 22 '40 30w

"The author has not only read widely but has himself had experience in the field and his generous attitude to other explorers, his clear, frank method of handling his subject matter, and above all, his enthusiasm for the work that has been done and that which still remains to be carried out make 'Modern Arctic Exploration' readable and informative as well as an excellent reference book." M. A. Peary

+ Sat R of Lit 22:17 Je 22 '40 550w

Times [London] Lit Sup p744 D 23 '39 550w

SEIFERT, ELIZABETH (MRS JOHN GASPAROTTI). Hillbilly doctor. 260p $2.50 Dodd

40-31190

Story of a young doctor's fight to bring health and sanitation into a remote section of the Ozarks, and of the rebuffs and problems he met.

Reviewed by Lisle Bell

Books p8 S 15 '40 400w

"Mrs. Seifert's affection for medical men and hillbillies comes out in a sincerely written book, different in its background from 'Young Dr. Galahad' and 'Thus Dr. Mallory' but similar in its idealism. That it is not a distinguished book seems to be the fault of the three young women who flutter Dr. Mulvaney's pulse. . . All three are stock figures, but the story is not stock. It is honest and original." Charlotte Dean

+ — N Y Times p26 S 22 '40 400w

Sat R of Lit 23:20 D 14 '40 130w

Springf'd Republican p7e S 15 '40 420w

SEIFERT, ELIZABETH (MRS JOHN GASPAROTTI). Thus Doctor Mallory. 311p $2.50 Dodd

(W) 40-6130

"The story of a young man who completely isolated himself from the ordinary world of his contemporaries in order to study medicine. Gradually he fights his way against all the odds that poverty, shyness, and lack of friends or family could put in his path." Publisher's note

Booklist 36:430 Jl 15 '40

"This is a simple tale, and nicely told with a lot of little interwoven plots that may keep you guessing. If you're tired of wars, and sensationalism, and books pregnant with psychological double-talk, read this charming story with a happy ending and a strain of sincere nobility through its pages." D. B. Shapiro

+ Books p11 Mr 10 '40 500w

Boston Transcript p1 Ap 13 '40 150w

"In the continuing flurry of interest in doctors of fiction and biography, Elizabeth Seifert's new novel will doubtless find its quota of appreciative readers. . . This is a better written book [than Young Doctor Galahad] but its story lacks the crusading zeal and melodrama of its predecessor." Beatrice Sherman

+ — N Y Times p21 Mr 17 '40 550w

"Dull is the word for it."

— New Yorker 16:106 Mr 16 '40 70w

Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 24 '40 370w

SEIFERT, SHIRLEY. River out of Eden. 432p $2.50 Mill

(W) 40-7598

Historical novel which dates back to the years just before the American revolution. It is the story of a youthful French adventurer, André Therriot, whose early love for the Mississippi river found an outlet when he accompanied a convoy of boats going up the river from New Orleans to St Anne de Chartres in 1763. After the expedition had left New Orleans André discovered that his best friend and that friend's charming sister were among the passengers, and that both delighted him and made the trip more difficult.

Booklist 36:365 My 15 '40

"'River Out of Eden' has the qualities which have marked Miss Seifert's two previous novels—vividness, a sure sense of drama, command of a style which reflects the mood and background of her stories. Here is a colorful romance with a hero you are apt to like quite as unreservedly as Miss Seifert does herself." Lisle Bell

+ Books p12 Ap 21 '40 550w

"If, instead of introducing an underdeveloped and unnecessary plot, Miss Seifert had been content to allow her story to be a chronicle chinked in with a simple romance her book would have been the better for it."

Boston Transcript p1 My 4 '40 120w

Christian Century 57:515 Ap 17 '40 50w

"Wholesome, dramatic, and well written, it will be read by adults and young people." B. E. Weston

+ Library J 65:352 Ap 15 '40 120w

"A stirring tale of action and romantic adventure." Drake DeKay

+ N Y Times p23 Ap 21 '40 650w

Springf'd Republican p7e My 19 '40 330w

Wis Lib Bul 36:127 Jl '40

SEIGNOBOSC, FRANCOIS (FRANCOISE, pseud). The story of Colette [pictured by the author]. [32]p $1.50 Scribner

40-30540

Picture-story book about little Colette, who loved all animals. She decided to adopt a lot of them with the result that she was soon swamped with them and their children.

Booklist 37:76 O 15 '40

"Here is one of the prettiest picture-books of the year, and you must take my word for it, because a picture must be reproduced, not described, and without their gay, soft colors these large pictures do not look the same at all. . . The pictures are in colored outline, as if drawn with a brush dipped in water color. They have neatness and sweetness that fits the subject, and are genuinely naive, not deliberately so." M. L. Becker

+ Books p6 F 2 '41 240w

Cath World 152:375 D '40 60w

"A fresh and entertaining book by a much loved illustrator." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk M 16:341 S '40 70w

"An attractive addition to the picture book collection for little children." A. L. Shea

+ Library J 65:1044 D 1 '40 50w

"It's hard to put in words the charm of this book. The full-page illustrations are naïve and childlike and carry the story of a little girl who lived alone and adopted many animals." E. W. Steele

+ New Repub 103:842 D 16 '40 50w

"This is just the kind of existence—a little static perhaps—which in the abstract seems so desirable and reasonable to the very young. It is depicted in the style which the creator of 'The Gay A B C' has made her own, borrowing for her own good use the simplicity and directness of children's own drawing, arranging it with cunning sense of design and investing the whole with an air of innocent joviality and good-will." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p10 Ja 5 '41 200w

"Gay and artistic."

+ Sat R of Lit 23:17 D 14 '40 30w

Springf'd Republican p7e D 1 '40 110w

SELDES, GEORGE. Witch hunt; the technique and profits of red-baiting. 300p $2.75 Modern age

323.44 Liberty. Communism—U.S. 40-27853

"[An] exposé of civil-liberties abuses in the United States since the World War. The author charges that red-baiting is an organized economic and political maneuver intended to suppress not only Communism per se but all liberal and labor reform as well." New Yorker

Booklist 37:168 Ja 1 '41

"Just as Dies on Communism is by way of becoming a Bible in Park Avenue, Seldes on Fascism will probably become a Koran in Union Square. If these two authors had set forth their diverse points of view temperately, proportionately and with that due respect for objective truth which marks any good reporter, an uninformed citizen might get light by the process of averaging them up. As it is, they are of little use for that purpose." Will Irwin

— + Books p6 N 24 '40 1150w

Christian Science Monitor p22 D 5 '40 250w

"We cannot help thinking that purely for his own education Mr. Seldes should write a book on fascist-baiting, with sub-sections on the state of that sport before and after the Russo-German agreement; perhaps another book on Trotskyite-baiting; and another on civil liberties in Russia; and just one more on violence and deceit as employed by labor leaders whom Mr. Seldes now seems to hold in great admiration, naïve or otherwise. Life is really not so simple, Mr. Seldes." J. C. Cort

Commonweal 33:284 Ja 3 '41 400w

New Yorker 16:96 N 9 '40 50w

"George Seldes's books seem to be made out of old newspaper clippings, a League of American Writers viewpoint, and the memory of a past in the service of the commercial press, which he despises. As studies of contemporary horrors, they are neither original nor profound, but they have the virtue of a well-kept scrapbook. Perhaps two-thirds of this new book is in quotation marks, and much of the rest should be: this reviewer found a whole paragraph sketchily rewritten from one in an article of his, with parts lifted verbatim and uncredited. Nevertheless, Mr. Seldes does bring together some interesting material, and many of us can agree with him most of the time." R. H. Rovere

— + Sat R of Lit 23:17 Ja 4 '41 490w

"This book, which contains many true statements, loses, unfortunately, through the constant effort of the author to whitewash the activities of the Communist party, and his accusation that all forces opposed to communism must be fascist, thereby starting a witch hunt of his own." Werner Guttmann

Survey G 30:40 Ja '41 200w

SELECTIONS illustrating the history of Greek mathematics; with an English tr. by Ivor Thomas; 2v; v 1, From Thales to Euclid. (Loeb classical lib) 505p $2.50; lea $3.50 Harvard univ. press [10s; lea 12s 6d Heinemann]

510.9 Mathematics—History (39-23451)

"Each selected Greek source is presented side by side with an English translation. Mr. Thomas contributes numerous annotations. The chapters are: Introductory. Arithmetical notation and the chief arithmetical operations. Pythagorean arithmetic. Proclus's summary. Thales. Pythagorean geometry. Democritus. Hippocrates of Chios. Special problems. Zeno of Elea. Theaetetus. Plato. Eudoxus of Cnidos. Aristotle. Euclid." N Y New Tech Bks

"The orderly marshaling of material in this anthology is in itself almost a contribution to the history of culture. Any who with the present reviewer have spent long years wondering how the ancients managed to do sums in Roman numerals may satisfy their curiosity here in short order." G. F. Whicher

+ Books p40 N 12 '39 90w

N Y New Tech Bks 24:58 O '39

SELKO, DANIEL THEODORE. The federal financial system. (Inst. for gov. research. Studies in administration) 606p $3.50 Brookings

336.73 Finance—U.S. 40-13031

"Dr. Selko, a staff member of the Brookings Institution, aims to give us in this volume a comprehensive analysis of the federal financial structure and of the conduct of federal financial operations. The twenty-nine chapters in the volume are grouped under five major headings: Origin of the Federal Financial System, The Budget System, The Revenue System, The Fiscal System, and Accounting and Reporting. In addition to describing financial operations, the author also sets for himself the ambitious task of defining the essential elements of a financial system adapted to our form of government, of bringing to focus the issues presented by current problems of financial legislation and administration, and of offering practical suggestions for resolving the issues." Am Pol Sci R

SELKO, D. T.—Continued

"While some of the material covered has been available in scattered form, Dr. Selko's study is the first in recent years to present a systematic account of the combination of processes which we designate as federal financial administration. Students and teachers of public administration will welcome the study as a useful addition to the tools of their discipline. The author's mastery of the details of financial operations results at times in a little too laborious discussion, and a more generous use of charts and diagrams would be helpful to the reader. The reviewer's chief criticism of the purely descriptive phase of the work is its strictly formal character." M. L. Faust
+ — Am Pol Sci R 34:1206 D '40 1200w

"Despite faults, students of public financial administration will find the work very useful. It is packed with facts and is the result of extensive and scholarly endeavors within the boundaries of the author's restricted approach." Paul Studenski
+ — Ann Am Acad 213:234 Ja '41 400w

SELLING, LOWELL SINN. Men against madness. 342p il $3.50 Greenberg

616.8 Insanity—History. Insane—Care and treatment 40-8828

Traces the progress of the treatment of mental disease from prehistoric times to the teachings of Freud and Adler. The author, who is head of the psychopathic clinic of the recorder's court in Detroit, chooses to make his study one of the pioneers in the science. Index.

"Dr. Selling's flair for sensational phrases leads him to regrettable characterizations of personalities, as well as to sweeping generalizations of dubious validity. The book is also marred by lengthy discursions, some questionable interpretations, and a frequent occurrence of minor but irritating errors of fact." Albert Deutsch
— Am J Pub Health 31:91 Ja '41 250w

Reviewed by Lorine Pruette
Books p21 Ag 25 '40 340w

"The book as a whole has little to recommend it. The story is poorly organized. Pages upon pages are devoted to pointless trivialities, while vital facts are omitted. . . Frequent discursions, deflected emphases, and inaccuracies blur the general picture. Errors in dates and names might be overlooked were they not so many, with the actual facts so easily verifiable. . . Finally, the reviewer regards the book's title as poorly chosen, in spite of its alliterative quality. Men against mental disease have been trying for years to drive the hopelessly-conditioned term 'madness' out of the popular literature of medicine. . . Its use in a title would be deplorable in a lay writer; in a psychiatrist it is inexcusable." Albert Deutsch
— Sat R of Lit 22:20 Je 29 '40 550w

"This book is an excellent one. Its literary form is so varied that one goes from step to step, from name to name, with no sense of arid conformity to a certain style and procedure. It reads like a high type of fiction, yet has the verity of true science."
+ Scientific Bk Club R 11:3 Ap '40 550w
Springf'd Republican p10 Ag 29 '40 800w

"The author does not carry his story beyond the care and treatment of mental disease into the field of preventive psychiatry. . . In stopping short of these important developments, Dr. Selling has lessened the educational value of his book, in that he has left the impression that insanity is a disease entity confined within the individual. He has thereby perpetuated the old belief that the understanding of the mind and the nervous system is the whole answer to the problem of 'madness', and he has failed to show that the understanding of the family and the cultural system is equally important." A. R. Martin, M. D.
Survey 76:308 O '40 390w

SELMARK, GEORGE. Murder in silence. 274p $2 Doubleday [7s 6d Cassell] 40-5190

Detective story.

"Here we have a series of hideous events in Twitten, Hants, thought up by a British baffler new on this side and warranted to please mysteryites of any caliber. Composed, we daresay, in a spirit of fun, the tale is told with a poker face, so that customers may giggle inwardly or sniff the clews in dead earnest, according to their several lights." Will Cuppy
+ Books p16 Ap 28 '40 190w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin
Boston Transcript p2 My 4 '40 100w

"The story has many good points, but the author's vagueness about the sequence of events sometimes makes it rather difficult to follow his narrative." Isaac Anderson
+ — N Y Times p24 Ap 28 '40 170w

"Nice bit of bloodcurdling by a popular English author who is making his début in America."
+ New Yorker 16:92 Ap 27 '40 50w

"Giggling killer guaranteed to make blood run cold, even if yarn is fantastic and overloaded with wickedness. Shuddery."
Sat R of Lit 22:18 Ap 27 '40 40w
Time 35:92 My 6 '40 20w

SELTZER, CHARLES ALDEN. Treasure ranch. 273p $2 Doubleday 40-34429

Western story.

Booklist 37:176 Ja 1 '41

"Sentiment, romance and down-right passion, possibly of the Arizona brand, adorn this Western in somewhat too generous amounts. In other words, here's a treat for readers who have been looking high and low for that sort of fare." Will Cuppy
Books p10 D 22 '40 120w

"As intense, snappy and absorbing a tale as Charles Alden Seltzer has ever written, and he is a veteran of many Western tales." G. W. Harris
+ N Y Times p21 D 15 '40 220w

SENDER, RAMON J. A man's place; tr. by Oliver La Farge. 280p $2.50 Duell 40-33706

In 1910 a young man of little consequence disappears from his native place, a small town in Spain. The effects of this intrinsically unimportant event are far-reaching, one political party is upset, two men are sent to prison for life, several women acquire new husbands or lovers. And then fifteen years later Sabino reappears and the whole town is once more involved in turmoil.

Reviewed by Alfred Kazin
Books p3 N 3 '40 900w

Reviewed by R. B. Rankin
Library J 65:874 O 15 '40 80w

"The story is not told consecutively. The reader is taken back and forth over fifteen years of history. It is inevitable that the philosophical purpose should rob the book of some of that harsh vigor which Antonio Machado, in telling the similar story of Alvargonzalez, achieved. Yet it is well told; the simplicity and rigor of the style more than compensate for the formal disarrangement. The character drawing is near to first rate. . . The harshness and the pity are never separated but pervade every part of the book. The man is not wrenched out of his landscape." Ralph Bates

+ — Nation 151:424 N 2 '40 950w

Reviewed by Griffin Barry

New Repub 104:157 F 3 '41 480w

"The story, for all its implications and suggestiveness, is one that moves rapidly and is very easy, in this perfect and simple prose, to read." F. T. Marsh

+ N Y Times p8 N 3 '40 800w

New Yorker 16:86 N 2 '40 90w

Reviewed by Ernest Boyd

Sat R of Lit 23:11 D 21 '40 270w

"A sardonic tale, with characters and scenes out of Goya, written with power and certainty, and admirably translated by Oliver La Farge." Robert Littell

Yale R n s 30:viii winter '41 140w

SEREDY, KATE. The singing tree; il. by [the author]. 247p $2 Viking

(W) 39-27943

The setting of this sequel to The Good Master (Book Review Digest, 1935) is the same ranch in Hungary four years later, during the first World war. Jancsi's kind father has gone to the war, leaving the young master in charge of the farm, which becomes a refuge for relatives, Russian prisoners and German war orphans.

Booklist 36:117 N 15 '39

Bookmark p9 Ag '40

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Books p11 N 12 '39 300w

Reviewed by Ruth Page

Boston Transcript p5 N 11 '39 50w

"The Singing Tree is a tender, thrilling story, and we can never have too many of Kate Seredy's lovely pictures. . . Miss Seredy has done her native land a service in so presenting it to American children."

+ Cath World 150:377 D '39 50w

"Drawing on her own experiences during the World War, the author-illustrator of this beautiful book makes very real to young readers the life of two Hungarian children during that period."

+ Churchman 153:24 D 15 '39 30w

Cleveland Open Shelf p20 O '39

"It makes a great plea for peace." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk M 15:386 N '39 80w

"A stirring book for those older children who understand its meaning." Irene Smith

+ Library J 64:844 N 1 '39 70w

"The book may not be as popular as its predecessor, as its more serious theme makes it older in interest, but it is an extremely worth while book, timely in its message, and sincere in treatment. Two gay frontispiece pictures of Kate and Jancsi and numerous black and white drawings by the author make the book attractive." Marian Herr

+ Library J 64:1001 D 15 '39 210w

"This is an uplifting book to read at a time when the world is torn by war, for it reminds us that human values transcend politics, and that everywhere individuals are ready to stretch out a hand of friendship to one another when the opportunity offers. The style has a lovely clarity and simplicity and the artist-author's drawings have their usual vitality and charm." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p10 N 12 '39 300w

Sat R of Lit 21:21 D 9 '39 20w

Wis Lib Bul 36:34 F '40

SERLE, AMBROSE. American journal of Ambrose Serle, secretary to Lord Howe, 1776-1778; ed. with an introd. by Edward H. Tatum, jr. (Huntington library publications) 369p il maps $4.50 Huntington lib.

973.38 U.S.—History—Revolution 40-10329

"Ambrose Serle's American Journal for the year 1776-1778, transcribed with notes by Edward H. Tatum, Jr., gives new light on some aspects of the American Revolution, particularly on the attitude of the loyalists. Serle was private secretary to Lord Howe, when the Howes—Richard, Lord Admiral and Gen. Sir William—were at the head of the Commission appointed to settle the revolt of the thirteen colonies. . . Serle's work was to act as intermediary between Lord Howe and individual loyalists, make friends with them, gain information about America, and suggest ways in which they could help the Home Government." Christian Science Monitor

"[Serle's] comments are those of a tenaciously conservative but intelligent man and valuable for their obvious sincerity. Mr. Tatum has done a service in making them available." W. K. R.

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 Jl 20 '40 650w

Reviewed by Carl Bridenbaugh

New Eng Q 13:576 S '40 550w

"This valuable source is excellently produced and admirably edited."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p487 S 21 '40 180w

SERVICE, ROBERT WILLIAM. Bar-room ballads; a book of verse. 169p $2 Dodd [5s Benn]

811 (W) 40-9356

New volume of poems which "includes among other poems in the typical Service vein, a score of new Yukon ballads."

Manchester Guardian p7 My 3 '40 130w

Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 7 '40 400w

"The range of rhyme and rhythm is wide; as applied to the trivial they may constitute a uniform which renders it presentable; they may do more; they may illuminate it with the light of the universal. . . Mr. Service's ballad jingles are an appropriate medium for the tales told in them—humorous, melodramatic, or mock-heroic. Moreover, there is genuine feeling in his denunciations of war; and in several of his lyrics, especially in his response to the beauty of nature, his readers will ascribe to him the poetical conceptions which he shrinks from claiming."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p282 Je 8 '40 320w

SESSIONS, MRS RUTH (HUNTINGTON). The ups and downs of Emily; il. by Peter Larkin. 334p $2 Dodd

40-36110

The heroine, Emily, aged nine, was the daughter of a minister and lived some seventy-five years ago in Boston and western New York. This story of Emily's progress on the road to grace and understanding is based to some extent on the author's memories of her own childhood.

"Mrs. Sessions has traced a child's progress from self-consciousness to social consciousness, gayly, gently, and with sympathy that does not get in the way of moral values. The pictures are so good I looked for the artist's name and found it that of a twelve-year-old boy. Who he is I have no notion, but he will be somebody, if he keeps on like this. Somebody, by the way, a little like Thurber." M. L. Becker

+ Books p6 Ja 19 '41 400w

"The lessons in self-reliance that Emily and her brother and sister learned are what youngsters learn today with changed environment and opportunities. The portrayal of these young people and their times will please young people of our own different times."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e D 8 '40 400w

SESSLER, JACOB JOHN. Saints and tomahawks. 246p $2 Pyramid press (N Y) 40-33707

Historical novel of the Moravian settlements in Pennsylvania during the period 1736 to 1760.

"Dr. Sessler is not a skilled novelist. . . But the material, of which the author has exact knowledge and vivid appreciation, has its own peculiar fascination. Whatever its defects as here set down, this pioneer tale of the Moravian settlers and missionaries is packed with drama, and the love story of David and Rosina is a lyrical adventure. Once again we discover how inexhaustible for purposes of romance are the colonial days of America."
+ — Books p41 N 10 '40 150w

"The same conscientious methods of research which the author applied in his serious historical writing about the Moravians have been used in creating the background for this story."
Christian Century 57:1483 N 27 '40 40w

SETON, ERNEST THOMPSON. Trail of an artist-naturalist; the autobiography of [the author]; with il. by the author. 412p $3.75 Scribner

B or 92 Naturalists—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. (W) 40-34915

Autobiography of the author-illustrator of the famous wild-animal stories: Biography of a Grizzly, Story of Lobo, Wild Animals I Have Known, etc. Index.

"The illustrations are extremely good and interesting, rather more so than the text. A boy with a turn for life in the wilds may find much in the book to stir his imagination, and may profit by many good practical suggestions in the way of woodcraft. Apart from this, the work seems a run-of-the-mine affair, no more pointless than most in the current run of autobiography, and certainly no less."
— + Atlantic Ja '41 130w

Booklist 37:215 Ja 15 '41

Reviewed by W. P. Eaton
Books p7 N 24 '40 900w

"This is a very nice book, indeed. Even if the habits and temperaments of animals hold little fascination for you the autobiography of this busy egotist is worth the time spent on it. It has the two qualities which make success stories readable when told in the first person: candor and self-absorption." Eleanor Godfrey
+ Canadian Forum 20:357 F '41 350w

"In general this autobiography is a gem of sparkling anecdotes, loaded with practical advice gleaned from years of living on the western plains and hills." H. B. N.
+ Christian Science Monitor p16 D 14 '40 400w

Reviewed by E. P. Richardson
Commonweal 33:284 Ja 3 '41 900w

"Although parts of the story are not as vivid nor as carefully written as others, this account of a long and distinguished life should have a place in any library which owns Seton's series of animal stories and his scientific studies." D. F. Lucas
Library J 65:874 O 15 '40 220w

Nation 152:108 Ja 25 '41 110w

"[Mr Seton] meant much to the early generations in this century in teaching the love and knowledge of the out-of-doors. He wrote and lectured dramatically. He organized some rascally boys who were invading his wildlife preserve near New York and founded the Indian Scouts or Wood-craft Indians. His book, without being a revealing masterpiece of autobiography, is worth reading because it tells of these things. The illustrations are beautifully done by the man whose tyrannical father insisted upon his being an artist." R. L. Duffus
+ N Y Times p9 N 17 '40 1450w

"As the record of a colorful, incident-crowded life, and particularly as the record of an American wild scene that is now gone forever with the passenger pigeon and the thundering wild bison, 'Trail of an Artist-Naturalist' is excellent reading." Alan Devoe
+ Sat R of Lit 23:18 D 7 '40 900w

Reviewed by C. B. Moore
Springf'd Republican p7e D 15 '40 1450w

Time 36:98 N 25 '40 600w

SETON, MRS GRACE (GALLATIN). Poison arrows. 304p il maps $3 House of Field [12s 6d Gifford]

915.9 East (Far East)—Description and travel 40-9585

"Starting at Saigon with an opium eater for her only guide, [the author] travelled through the Far East and investigated the customs of little known tribes. . . Concerned primarily with the matriarch system of the Moi tribe, she nevertheless amassed a great deal of material about the manners, customs and rituals of other savage groups as she journeyed through Annam, Cambodia, Siam and the Lotus Isle of Bali." Boston Transcript

"Mrs. Seton does an excellent job when she writes about people and adventure. But when she describes sights and sounds, one gets the impression of reading a guide book. If the locale could be seen, then the description would mean something. As it is, however, the jungle plants remain purely botanical terms. The exotic life is there, presumably. But she does not bring it to you." E. M. Wedrow
+ — Boston Transcript p3 My 18 '40 250w

"Mrs. Thompson Seton had a really interesting story to tell; and the sensationalism for which she has forsaken that real interest is unoriginal, ineffective, and, if the truth be baldly stated, both silly and dull. What might have been a soundly readable narrative becomes thus as insubstantial, and as quickly flat, as an over-inflated balloon."
— + N Y Times p3 Jl 21 '40 390w

SEUSS, DR. pseud. See Geisel, T. S.

SEVERY, MELVIN LINWOOD. The awakening. 472p $2.50 Foster Hope co, inc, 541 S. Spring st, Los Angeles 40-31344

"The heroines of this novel are identical twins, Pauline and Vivienne Leroy. Their father is a plebeian, musician and fencing master, their mother an aristocrat of royal descent and a renowned singer. The girls, devotedly fond of each other, early evince complementary, reciprocal personalities of remarkable character. The essential purpose of the book is to portray the strange effect of the death of Vivienne at 17 upon her surviving sister, and the manner in which the resultant phenomena are finally explained and reconciled. The story running from 1754 to 1793, is laid in France." Boston Transcript

Boston Transcript p2 O 5 '40 550w

Reviewed by J. K. Rooke
Canadian Forum 20:290 D '40 310w

Christian Century 57:1315 O 23 '40 30w

SEWELL, HELEN. Jimmy and Jemima [pictures in color by the author]. [47]p $1 Macmillan 40-34540

When Jemima was born Jimmy thought she was the most beautiful baby sister in the world. That lasted as long as they were little. When Jimmy grew old enough to join the Boy Scouts and Jemima proved herself better at sports than Jimmy, a difficulty arose which was not settled until the day when Jimmy rescued his sister from drowning.

Booklist 37:179 Ja 1 '41

"In the demurest of pictures this tale is told; Jemima's progressive smugness is fine, and so is the growing dismay of Jimmy. The impressions are particularly good when the toiling Scouts reach the top of a mountain and find her sitting there, in a tree. This is true humor, based on child character and understandable by boys and girls alike at an early age." M. L. Becker

+ Books p10 N 24 '40 230w

"Amusing pictures in color and a brief text make their appeal to children of four to six years." R. W. Stewart

+ Library J 65:1092 D 15 '40 140w

Springf'd Republican p7e D 22 '40 150w

Wis Lib Bul 36:171 D '40

SEXTON, WILLIAM THADDEUS. Soldiers in the sun; an adventure in imperialism. 297p il maps $2.50 Military service

991.4 Philippine Islands—History—Insurrection, 1899-1901. U.S.—History—War of 1898 39-32963

"This is an excellent account of our occupation of the Philippines. It covers the period from May 1, 1898, when Dewey destroyed the Spanish fleet, until President Theodore Roosevelt's proclamation of June 20, 1901, transferring the executive authority from the Military Governor to the Chairman of the American Commission, the Hon. William Howard Taft." N Y Times

---

"The most comprehensive and thorough survey which has been published about the operations of our army in the Philippines. The work is well documented and contains copious notes." W. C. Rivers

+ N Y Times p4 My 5 '40 650w

"The book is written in simple, analytic style, so severely repressed that the highlights crash through only by their own weight. But its all there. . . Captain Sexton is to be congratulated upon a valuable contribution to American military history, the first compendium of our early campaigns in the Philippines." R. E. Dupuy

+ Sat R of Lit 22:18 My 18 '40 420w

SEYD, FELIZIA. Romantic rebel; the life and times of George Sand. 286p $3 Viking

B or 92 Sand, George, pseud. (Mme Dudevant)
40-27713

A full-length biography of George Sand relating her life and works to the political and literary movements in France of her day. Index.

Booklist 37:67 O 15 '40

Bookmark 2:10 Ja '41

"In 'Romantic Rebel' Felizia Seyd has written a fascinating fine book of contemporary history, because George Sand had a fascinating life, because Felizia Seyd is a fine writer and because the French 1830's were practically (and even impractically) the 1930's of Paris and possibly New York. . . 'Romantic Rebel' is uproariously funny in spots and witty throughout. . . But it is the serious civilized tableau of France, one hundred years ago, with its illusions, delusions, its small politicians, its great men of talent. . . It is this picture of the poetical and political mutation of the Gauls that makes this book on France yesterday a means of understanding France today." Janet Flanner

+ Books p3 S 8 '40 1400w

Reviewed by Lewis Gannett

Boston Transcript p11 S 10 '40 700w

"Felizia Seyd's study of George Sand has been exhaustive, the result superior. The book is artistic, with its eight illustrations, its French quotations, and its full index. It has been, apparently, a labor of love. Moreover, it is stimulating for us once more to read of 'La Gloire' in France." E. B. Gulick

+ Boston Transcript p2 Ja 18 '41 550w

Commonweal 32:475 S 27 '40 120w

"The author has relied on authentic sources and in an easy and straightforward style presents her subject honestly without apology and without bias. A more comprehensive biography of George Sand than has appeared previously in English. Will appeal to serious readers more than to those who have followed the more popular type of biography that has been in vogue during recent years." A. L. Jewett

+ Library J 65:708 S 1 '40 120w

"As George Sand—this stormy petrel of passion—is transformed into the dove of Socialist peace, Mrs. Seyd in turn attempts to 'vindicate French republican tradition and with it the democratic tradition of Europe.' Yet her book unfortunately neither quite explains nor endears French democracy. . . In its own terms, nevertheless, of colorful and often amusing presentation, 'Romantic Rebel' is a valuable addition to our popular biographies." Maxwell Geismar

— + Nation 151:248 S 21 '40 390w

"Mrs. Seyd, whose style is unassuming and yet always pregnant to the topic in hand, has covered the long years of George Sand's life in a capable and convincing manner. Best of all, she has pictured the period as well as her biographical subject and so given a completeness to her work that many biographies lack. 'Romantic Rebel' is an admirable resuscitation of a personality who can exist today only as a personality." Herbert Gorman

+ N Y Times p4 S 15 '40 1400w

New Yorker 16:83 S 21 '40 70w

" 'Romantic Rebel' is a valuable book because of its historical elements. It commemorates the great ideals of pre-Hitler France in the person of one of the finest representatives of French democracy. It is in substance the clear portrait of a woman of genius against an equally clear background of an appropriately great era." Katharine Anthony

+ Sat R of Lit 22:11 S 28 '40 700w

"The content of George Sand's writings, admirably sketched in this book in relation to her private and public life, constitutes a picture-history of the intelligent, socially conscious, forward-looking mind in France from 1830 to 1870. In so many ways this France was to repeat itself in the twentieth century, the years from Versailles to the debacle of 1940. Romantic Rebel, written by one who can no longer live in her birthplace, Düsseldorf on the Rhine, is therefore unobtrusively informed with the tragedy of 'the deadly parallel'."

Theatre Arts 25:77 Ja '41 320w

Time 36:80 S 9 '40 1650w

SEYMOUR, BEATRICE KEAN (STAPLETON) (MRS W. K. SEYMOUR). The unquiet field. 506p $2.50 Macmillan [9s 6d Heinemann]
40-11755

Long chronicle of four generations of a Liverpool ship-owning family, the Sherrards. The years covered are from 1720 to 1841. The basis of the family fortune was the slave trade, and the story, in part, is the working out of the moral question of slavery.

"A sagacious, a stimulating, a salutary book. . . It reminds us that the world has fallen on evil times before and that it has taken the blood and courage of men of good will and a great deal of time to set it moving forward again." F. H. Bullock

+ Books p3 Jl 7 '40 1100w

Reviewed by E. F. King

Boston Transcript p2 Jl 20 '40 650w

Reviewed by Marguerite Wyke

Canadian Forum 20:220 O '40 750w

"The writer has brought a most interesting period of modern civilization to life, and despite serious shortcomings of overloading with unnecessary detail and secondary characters, the book has vigor and dash and decided literary quality."

+ — Christian Century 57:1001 Ag 14 '40 180w

SEYMOUR, B. K.—Continued

"The characters are well drawn and convincing, but the story is top heavy with social history, and only the reader who is concerned with the evolution of social change will stay with the book to enjoy the family story." Katharine Shorey

Library J 65:592 Jl '40 190w

"A very sound and well-considered novel." J. D. Beresford

+ Manchester Guardian p7 My 17 '40 260w

New Repub 103:126 Jl 22 '40 60w

"As fiction the book would have gained considerably by the elimination not only of Roger's children—a fourth generation—but of several other by no means indispensable figures. The literary and artistic background, which suffers from over-crowding, could also stand being shorn of not a few real-life personalities and allusions. Aside from this, however, there can be nothing but praise for [this] historical novel." J. S. Southron

+ — N Y Times p7 Jl 7 '40 850w

Sat R of Lit 22:20 Jl 20 '40 290w

Springf'd Republican p7e Je 30 '40 110w

Times [London] Lit Sup p229 My 11 '40 420w

Wis Lib Bul 36:138 O '40

SEYMOUR, MRS FLORA WARREN (SMITH). We called them Indians; il. by Edward Caswell. 280p $2 Appleton-Century

970.1 Indians of North America (W) 40-6175

Calling them Indians "was but the beginning of the many mistakes and misunderstandings which have marked the whole story of the dealings between white man and red in our United States of America." Mrs Seymour shows the Indian in relation to the white man from Columbus's day to the present, the background and culture of the different tribes, and famous Indians of history and legend. Index.

Booklist 36:386 Je 1 '40

Boston Transcript p9 Mr 23 '40 30w

"Mrs. Seymour, who spent six years in the Indian Service and was the first woman to be appointed to the Board of Indian Commissions, has written this history, which will also supply an integrated background for the reading of historical fiction... The narrative is remarkably free from bias and from sentimentality, for the author understands their weaknesses as well as their virtues... This is informative and enlightening, if not exactly spirited, reading for the more serious-minded of the 'teen age." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p10 Mr 31 '40 340w

"Good, sober story."

+ Sat R of Lit 23:38 D 7 '40 50w

"This latest volume is well fitted to give a clear and easily remembered picture of the main events in the history of the natives since the white man first came to North America. The characteristics of the principal tribes, so different and in general so hostile to one another, are sketched with simplicity and force. Their best-known leaders, and a few of the most successful modern Indians, are briefly mentioned, along with famous battles and epics of missionary courage and devotion." E. G. Eastman

+ Springf'd Republican p7e My 19 '40 300w

Wis Lib Bul 36:103 My '40

SHAFER, CARLISLE, and SHAFER, CAROL. Life, liberty, and the pursuit of bread. 207p $2.25 Columbia univ. press

330.973 U.S.—Economic conditions. Social problems 40-27411

In the form of letters exchanged between husband and wife, one a social worker, the other a teacher of social sciences, this book discusses urgent problems in American economic life. Contents: Unemployment; Low incomes; Old age; Fatherless homes; Health; Social work. Bibliography. Index.

"The book is designed for the beginning social worker and for laymen interested in social problems rather than for the professional social scientist. As such it is informative and readable. The annotated bibliography should be particularly useful for those who wish to read further in the fields discussed." Ellen Winston

+ Am Soc R 5:840 O '40 130w

Reviewed by R. W. Kelso

Ann Am Acad 210:182 Jl '40 550w

Booklist 36:338 My 1 '40

"For adult discussion groups, especially those in a city setting, who wish to come to grips with the practical social economic questions of the day and also with what social theory has to offer toward their solution and understanding, it would be hard to find a more readable and useful book." J. S. Burgess

+ Christian Century 57:1000 Ag 14 '40 750w

Reviewed by Rittenhouse Neisser

Crozer Q 17:233 Jl '40 180w

"Nothing revolutionary, but intelligent palliatives are suggested on the basis of our present economy. Contains a useful bibliography."

+ New Repub 102:649 My 13 '40 50w

"There is no doubt that this book, despite some noticeable shortcomings, succeeds in giving 'some of the information and knowledge that is necessary for intelligent social thought and action.' It deals with subjects profoundly significant to contempory society, and offers to that element of the public, interested in getting a concise, readable, and intelligent clarification of the fundamentals, an opportunity to satisfy this want. Consequently it should serve well the needs of teachers and students of modern problems." S. M. Levin

+ — Social Educ 4:520 N '40 550w

"An engaging and, on the whole, a well balanced book." R. P. Lane

+ Survey 76:230 Jl '40 270w

SHAFER, LUMAN JAY. The Christian alternative to world chaos. 208p $2 Round table

172.4 Sociology, Christian. Peace 40-4293

In a world at war where peace sentiments are more widely spread than ever before, the author wonders why Christians have failed in their endeavors to eliminate war. He sees the answer in the fact of the growing power of nationalism as against the ideal of universal brotherhood, and considers, as a possible solution, strengthening the work of foreign missions and building an international society on a basis of Christian ideals.

Booklist 36:299 Ap 1 '40

Reviewed by Reinhold Niebuhr

Books p22 Ap 14 '40 1100w

"The author leans heavily on the Madras and Oxford Conference reports, and masses the thinking of some contemporary religious and social thinkers. He brings to this book a background of twenty years' experience in educational missionary work in Japan. At present as secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Reformed Church in America he is well qualified to see this need for a world view. He is at home in the chapters on Christian doctrine and practice, but in dealing with the changed political order is somewhat verbose. His constant repetition tires rather than convinces." F. E. Luchs

+ — Christian Century 57:312 Mr 6 '40 650w

"Dr. Shafer renders a good service. If he were somewhat more explicit in the remedy, his case would be the stronger." A. F. Gilmore

+ — Christian Science Monitor p10 Jl 6 '40 950w

Reviewed by A. L. Murray

Churchman 154:20 Ap 15 '40 200w

SHAKESPEARE, WILLIAM. Under the greenwood tree; songs from the plays selected by Julia Louise Reynolds; il. by Leonard Weisgard. 51p $2.50 Oxford

822.33 Songs

Selection of thirty-seven songs from the various plays of Shakespeare, illustrated in color. No music included.

"One of the loveliest books [of the year] in format and in content is Under the Greenwood Tree. . . Fortunate the child, young or old, who will roam its kingdom of poetry and song." E. Vr. W.

+ Cath World 152:383 D '40 120w

Churchman 154:34 D 1 '40 20w

Commonweal 33:121 N 22 '40 20w

"The illustrations are beautifully done, and the entire book will be enjoyed by readers of all ages. The price seems high for fifty-one pages. This is a luxury item for the average library, and is more of a volume for special collections, or a collector's item." D. L. Wood

Library J 65:814 O 1 '40 130w

"Illustrated in color by Leonard Weisgard, but his drawings are more appropriate to a children's story than to the ineffable verbal music of the Bard of Avon. The typography lacks distinction." E. L. Tinker

N Y Times p33 O 27 '40 70w

SHALLCROSS, RUTH ENALDA. Industrial homework; an analysis of homework regulation, here and abroad. 257p $2.75 Industrial affairs pub. co, 1819 Broadway, N.Y.

331.794 Home labor. Labor laws and legislation 40-12846

"This dissertation [is] based on considerable practical experience on the part of the author among thousands of homeworkers in New York State and in London, Paris, and Berlin. The study is devoted largely to an analysis of the problems arising out of legislative attempts to control industrial homework. Miss Shallcross subjects to careful scrutiny the effects of homework legislation in New York and compares legislative methods in the Empire State with those employed in foreign countries, especially in England and in Germany. In many if not most instances, the methods of approach and the results abroad are given more praise than are those of this country." (Ann Am Acad) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by A. E. Taylor

Ann Am Acad 209:217 My '40 550w

"Dr. Shallcross produces no data to support her contention on wages. . . On the basis of the economic reasoning running through the book, no improvements in methods of production, no raising of industrial standards by law should be encouraged, because they might cause unemployment among marginal workers. . . Even more surprising is the serious consideration given to homework regulations in Nazi Germany, the economy and labor standards of which are certainly no pattern for America. The most valuable feature of the book is the history of the attempts to regulate homework in the United States, both by legislative and non-legislative means." E. S. Magee

— + Survey 76:371 D '40 440w

SHAMBAUGH, BENJAMIN FRANKLIN. The old stone capitol remembers. 435p $3 Iowa state hist. soc.

977.7655 Iowa City, Iowa 39-28332

History and reminiscences of Iowa City, during the first two decades of its existence. The book was prepared to commemorate the one hundredth anniversary of the town's founding in 1839. Index.

Reviewed by H. C. Nixon

Am Hist R 45:728 Ap '40 240w

"Dr. Shambaugh, the learned and indefatigable editor of the State Historical Society of Iowa, has here presented us with a fascinating microcosm of the history of the West. . . Sometimes the narrative slips into a mere catalogue or a reproduction of newspaper clippings, but on the whole the interest is sustained." H. S. Commager

+ N Y Times p2 N 26 '39 370w

"The chapters on frontier life in the forties, the coming of the first steamboat in 1841, and the completion of the railroad to Iowa City in 1856, portray interesting, dramatic episodes in the story of western settlement." Quintus Leatherman

+ Social Studies 31:236 My '40 380w

SHANKS, EDWARD BUXTON. Rudyard Kipling; a study in literature and political ideas. 267p $2.50 Doubleday [7s 6d Macmillan]

B or 92 Kipling, Rudyard (W) 40-31312

A critical study of Kipling's works stressing their revelation of his political beliefs. "Mr. Shanks contends that Kipling's political creed has been largely misunderstood; and this book is an attempt to remedy that, to point out how it led to critical neglect, and to disentangle for us the performance of the artist from that of the propagandist." (Christian Science Monitor)

Reviewed by C. T. Naumberg

Books p23 N 17 '40 550w

"Hugh Walpole thinks this is 'the best book on Kipling so far' and many will agree with him. It is deep and searching after the fashion of a writer who, familiar with a man's outward aspect, seeks his inner content, his real value. . . However, Edward Shanks has attempted an impossible task in trying to differentiate between Kipling the writer and Kipling the political thinker." P. J. Searles

+ — Boston Transcript p3 S 28 '40 270w

Reviewed by Eric Forbes-Boyd

Christian Science Monitor p10 My 25 '40 950w

Reviewed by J. G. E. Hopkins

Commonweal 32:472 S 27 '40 190w

"A smoothly written, pious, but superficial biography of Kipling."

Nation 151:373 O 19 '40 60w

"The book is not a biography. There is a fragmentary sketch of Kipling's younger days which leaves off at the age of twenty-four and is not resumed. The style is that of a causerie, rather than that of a rounded essay. . . The phantom that Mr. Shanks has so suavely evoked is related to the real Kipling about as those empty uniforms hung in military museums with a tin hat hitched drooping over the collar of the tunic are to living soldiers struggling in the dust and thunder of actual conflict." Chauncey Hackett

— New Repub 103:561 O 21 '40 1500w

Reviewed by V. S. Pritchett

New Statesman & Nation 19:464 Ap 6 '40 700w

"Sir Hugh Walpole believes that this is the best book on Kipling for a long time to come, and this may very well be so, with the proviso that there will not be a really good book on Kipling for a long time to come. His reputation is too much in dispute. He has been too much blamed and too much praised. His importance is not denied, since his stories and his verse are told and recited everywhere. But his literary value has not been decided, nor have his political ideas been clarified." P. M. Jack

N Y Times p5 O 27 '40 650w

New Yorker 16:70 S 7 '40 30w

"The value of Mr Shanks's short book lies in its being the first critical commentary written since Kipling's death which does justice to his work. Justice? There is one point at which, I think, even more praise was due: the poetry. . . I could have stood a good deal more explanation on the originality and genuineness

SHANKS, E. B.—Continued
of Kipling's poetry, in which I believe distant posterity will be interested." Desmond MacCarthy
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 25 '40 550w
Time 36:90 S 16 '40 420w

"It was to be gathered from the obituary notices at Kipling's death that his fame was already emerging from the occultation of changing fashion. The literary criticism of this book may be regarded as a leisured and scholarly sifting of the tributes then paid him and of the strictures to which we have referred. In examining his development from the tour de force of his omniscient youth to the symphonic subtlety in technique of his last years Mr. Shanks has furnished the instinctive admirers of Kipling with rational ammunition for defending him."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p160 Mr 30 '40 900w

SHARP, MALCOLM PITMAN, and GREGORY, CHARLES OSCAR. Social change and labor law. 175p $2 Univ. of Chicago press [12s Cambridge]

331.0973 Labor laws and legislation—U.S. Industry and state—U.S. 40-2869

"These lectures were presented informally to students and members of the faculty of the University of Chicago Law school in November, 1938, and February, 1939. Contents: pt. 1. Society and the law, by Malcolm Sharp; pt. 2. Government control of labor disputes, by C. O. Gregory." Library of Congress card

Reviewed by A. T. Helbing
Am Econ R 30:410 Je '40 800w

Reviewed by H. W. Davey
Am Pol Sci R 34:165 F '40 290w

"Few of the notions expounded by the authors are very unfamiliar to the profession. For the casual reader it would be useful to have more complete references to the literature, particularly where the matter under discussion is in dispute. The brevity of the book precludes, of course, consideration of detail on subjects of such large scope. On the whole, Mr. Gregory's share of the book is the better on this score. But, by the same token, his is the less likely to be significant, for he has confined himself largely to a reportorial job." T. R. Witmer
Ann Am Acad 209:224 My '40 450w

Reviewed by H. A. Larrabee
Ethics 51:119 O '40 390w

Management R 28:455 D '39 40w

"The first three lectures by Mr. Sharp, are called, collectively, 'Society and the Law.' That's quite a lot of ground to cover in three lectures, even though Mr. Sharp uses seven league boots with springs on the soles. . . As for the ideas in Mr. Sharp's congeries, although some of them are stimulating, some of them downright silly. . . Mr. Gregory, who contributes the book's other three lectures, set himself a far less ambitious task and consequently carried it off more successfully. . . Mr. Gregory is at his best when he is defending the sit-down strike as a well-meant effort on the part of labor to avoid the open violence of the picket line, and when he is contrasting that effort to the defiant lawlessness of the Liberty Leaguers. He is at his worst, to my mind, when he keeps harping on the eventual removal of labor disputes from the 'arena of coercive selfhelp,' apparently without following the compulsory arbitration idea through to its inevitable conclusion—namely, a strong political labor party, so that labor could trust the arbitrators." Fred Rodell
+ — Yale Law J 49:781 F '40 900w

SHARP, MARGERY. Stone of chastity. 280p $2.50 Little [7s 6d Collins]

(W) 40-31530

Professor Pounce, folklorist, arrives in an East Anglian village to investigate the "Norse and coarse" legend of a stone of chastity. With him he took his prim sister-in-law, her twenty-two-year-old son, and a mysterious, earthy young woman called Carmen Smith. While the investigation was proceeding, the whole village was stirred up, not to mention what happened on the day of the great trial of the ladies of the village.

Atlantic N '40 180w
Booklist 37:91 N 1 '40

"'The Stone of Chastity' is an engaging, if somewhat implausible, piece of light-hearted foolery. It breathes the charm and complacency and rigidity and sweetness of the old English countryside as it once was and can never be again. How Miss Sharp could have written it in these sorrowful times is more than I know: its gaiety is so natural and so spontaneous that one could more readily believe that its author had spent the last few years on an enchanted island of yesterday than that she had contrived this lightsome bubble in the midst of the England of the here and now." F. H. Bullock
+ Books p5 O 6 '40 550w

"Margery Sharp's novels are always highly diverting, because she has a nice wit, originality, and an agreeable style. We can't honestly say, however, that this story is as good as 'The Nutmeg Tree,' or even 'Harlequin House.' A joke that is pretty hoary before she picks it up, becomes a bit of a bore at the end." O. O.
Boston Transcript p1 O 5 '40 240w

Reviewed by Gilbert Norwood
Canadian Forum 20:290 D '40 280w

"Miss Sharp gives the impression of having romped through her story, and she shows a keen understanding of rural mentality." Charles Marriott
+ Manchester Guardian p7 Ag 9 '40 150w

"The Stone of Chastity is a sprightly Bloomsbury joke of the usual sort—daffy yokels, gossiping old women, a dash of Anglo-Saxon naughtiness, a cockeyed view of Merrie Englande from the week-end cottage." Desmond Hawkins
New Statesman & Nation 20:214 Ag 31 '40 130w

"Margery Sharp has written a charming light story about a fairly weighty subject, 'The Stone of Chastity.' This latest novel is in her well-known vein of fun and frivolity, but considerably keener and sharper than its most recent predecessor, 'Harlequin House.'" Beatrice Sherman
+ N Y Times p6 O 6 '40 600w

"An amiable bit of nonsense, as rowdy as it is delightful. . . The complications are numerous, obvious, and highly entertaining."
+ New Yorker 16:78 O 5 '40 60w

Reviewed by J. A. Smith
Spec 165:154 Ag 9 '40 130w
Time 36:86 O 7 '40 80w

"Miss Sharp has a nice wit and a sense of humour, but in her latest book they embroider a joke which is already threadbare before the last stitch is added. . . It is all diverting up to a point; there are amusing twists and turns, and the characters are sharp and original, but the author has distributed the honours between so many of them that there is nothing for it but to concentrate the attention on a Stone, over which, in spite of the Professor's scientific analyses, the author contrives to muddle us in the end."
Times [London] Lit Sup p397 Ag 17 '40 240w

SHARP, ROBERT LATHROP. From Donne to Dryden; the revolt against metaphysical poetry. 221p $3 Univ. of N.C. press

821.09 English poetry—History and criticism 40-12463

Analyses of the forms used in the work of the metaphysical poets from John Donne to Dryden. Contents: Donne and Elizabethan poetry; The course of metaphysical poetry; The faith of the critics: The critical background, Jonson and others; The protest of the poets; The return to nature; New standards; John Dryden. Index.

"The modern interest in John Donne and his immense influence upon recent poetry should procure an audience for this learned little book; and the course of changing tastes in the seventeenth century may perhaps serve as a warning that the present vogue of neo-metaphysicals may not be lasting." Samuel Chew
+ Books p12 Ag 25 '40 550w

"A discerning, though humorless, analysis of poetic form."
+ — New Repub 103:222 Ag 12 '40 50w

"Dr. Sharp's thesis is clearly demonstrated, and his criticism—if one will discount the maidenly kind of frisson which so often results from the juxtaposition of a scholarly mind and one of the more elaborate metaphysical conceits—is sound without being particularly creative: he is no Empson. He has read widely, and with profound intelligence; and the riches that he has discovered in the minor poets of the seventeenth century are engagingly and profusely displayed." Dudley Fitts
+ Sat R of Lit 22:7 S 14 '40 230w

SHARP, WALTER RICE, and KIRK, GRAYSON LOUIS. Contemporary international politics. 840p il maps $4 Farrar

341 World politics. International law and relations 40-10097

"This book is not designed to provide any simple or complete answer to these complicated and perplexing aspects of a new world that through infinite travail is struggling into being. It constitutes, rather, an attempt on the part of the authors to explore and examine those fundamental forces which in their view are most responsible for the motivation of foreign policies. Schematically considered, some of these forces create tensions which eventuate in bloody and exhausting wars while others provide a basis for a healthy and pacific international coöperation. We have endeavored to analyze each of these sets of forces, together with the efforts that have been or might be made to control or eliminate the one and to improve and extend the other." (Pref) Bibliographical note. Index.

"It is only with reluctance that criticism can be voiced of a book whose style, whose scholarly presentation, whose illustrative material, is of the high order found in Contemporary International Politics. Yet, if there is little for the expert to find fault with, the teacher has certain grounds for complaint. Surely, an introductory textbook, which must point the way to the literature no less than to the elements of a given discipline, should supplement even a liberal use of footnotes with something more than a 'bibliographical note.' That is one point. A second is the need for marginal or paragraph headings. So great is the wealth of material presented in each chapter that it would be of no small aid to the student if he had been provided with more pointers than four or five sub-titles to a chapter." J. T. Watkins
Am Pol Sci R 34:806 Ag '40 270w

"This volume is easily among the best general surveys. It seems to the reviewer to be capable of meeting the demands of students who want a sure foundation in the field of international politics, and also of intelligent readers who are willing to take the time to read and ponder its nearly eight hundred pages of text in order to appraise the swiftly moving events of a great world drama." F. M. Russell
+ Ann Am Acad 211:199 S '40 550w

SHATTUCK, RICHARD. The wedding guest sat on a stone. 262p $2 Morrow 40-7805

Mystery story.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p19 Ap 14 '40 170w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin
Boston Transcript p2 Ap 20 '40 130w

"A story so hilariously funny that the mystery is almost lost sight of, and that is, in one way, a pity, for it is a real mystery, and the solution of it is something of a masterpiece, even though it, too, has its comic aspects. Entertaining is much too mild a word to describe this book." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p24 Ap 14 '40 140w

"Possibly the drinkingest tale on tap. Delirious."
Sat R of Lit 21:18 Ap 13 '40 50w

SHAW, CHARLES BUNSEN, comp. List of books for college libraries, 1931-38. 284p $6 A.L.A.

016 Bibliography—Best books. Libraries, University (W) 40-27354

"An excellent list of basic books, published 1931-1938, suitable for undergraduate liberal arts students for study or for recreational reading. The books were selected by college teachers, specialists, and advisers, from the Swarthmore college purchases of the past eight years and from titles in reviewing journals in each field. The list supplements rather than revises A List of Books for College Libraries [Book Review Digest, 1932]; it has approximately the same classified arrangement as the former volume. A new feature is the citation of reviews for most titles." Booklist

Booklist 36:317 Ap 15 '40

"Two unfortunate features make the book a little less practical than its two predecessors to use. No sheets are available, and one who would like to buy an extra copy to tear up into subject sections for the use of various departments of instruction, is thwarted by the fact that ten sections begin on even-numbered pages, backing up to previous sections. . . Page numbers are omitted from cross references in the index, a doubtful economy in editing and printing, and an obstacle to quick use. . . The appearance of the volume is highly pleasing. It is one of a series of attractive A.L.A. publications designed by Harold English. Searchers will rejoice to find that the paper takes fountain pen ink and pencil notes well, and that there is more generous provision of space for classmarks or other annotations." C. F. Gosnell
Library J 65:531 Je 15 '40 1250w
Pratt p3 autumn '40

SHAW, MARGARET. Inherit the earth. 438p $2.50 Bobbs [9s 6d Dent] 40-6915

This novel of the years just before and during the American revolution, centers in the adventures of Désirée Phinney. When her father is forced to leave England, Désirée (or Deserah) agrees to become an indentured servant in order to follow him. Her experiences in the new world include two marriages, the second one to a Loyalist with whom, tho she is a Whig, she goes to Nova Scotia.

"Miss Shaw has written a vivid historical chronicle with as spirited a heroine as the eighteenth century could reasonably produce." George Conrad
+ Books p9 My 19 '40 550w

"Miss Shaw's story of Colonial America is distinguished in the plethora of historical novels on the same period by its heroine, one of the most perverse, self-willed and silly girls of this or any season. The terrible misfortunes that she brings upon herself try her companions' souls more than her own. We rather wish they had thrown her to the Indians."
Boston Transcript p2 Je 15 '40 190w

"This year's best historical fiction theme, partly spoiled by the lack of effective motivation and the author's relish for melodrama."
+ — New Repub 102:833 Je 17 '40 70w

SHAW, MARGARET—Continued

"Because it is so frankly a romance, and a pretty baroque one, one must perhaps excuse some of the excesses in Miss Shaw's story. 'Inherit the Earth' is, after all, a distinctly lively novel—vivid, highly colored, full of excitement. Considering, however, how deftly it is written, there seems to be little excuse for the blatant theatricality which mars Miss Shaw's narrative at each step in its path." E. H. Walton

+ — N Y Times p18 My 19 '40 1000w

Springf'd Republican p7e My 26 '40 500w

SHAW, MARGARET, and FISHER, JAMES. Animals as friends and how to keep them; with a foreword by Julian Huxley. 271p il $2.50 Dutton [6s Dent]

636.08 Animals, Habits and behavior of. Pets 40-27456

Introductory manual for the amateur who keeps birds and small animals for pets. The authors give instructions for about fifty household pets, from common ones like dogs, cats, and guinea pigs, to such unusual ones as weaver birds, mongooses, badgers, mynahs, axolotls, etc. The book is of English origin. Index.

Booklist 36:361 My 15 '40

"A fascinating and practical book for the child who enjoys unusual pets." R. A. Hill

+ Library J 65:853 O 15 '40 50w

Manchester Guardian p7 My 16 '39 230w

Reviewed by E. W. Steele

New Repub 103:846 D 16 '40 50w

"The majority of publications listed in the bibliography are by British authors and are difficult to procure in America. The terminology in some places is confusing, especially when the weights of animals are described in grams rather than pounds. There are a few misleading statements in 'Animals as Friends,' which, no doubt, have originated in a deficiency of first-hand contacts with certain animals. After rearing young alligators for over 10 years, this reviewer would hesitate to feed them only twice a week, as the authors suggest. The mortality rate would be far too high." C. B. M.

Springf'd Republican p8 Mr 13 '40 370w

"The information given on habits, food, breeding, housing, diseases and so on is practical and conveniently arranged."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p378 Je 24 '39 110w

Wis Lib Bul 36:64 Ap '40

SHAW, THEODORE L. Art's endurance. 249p il $3 Humphries

701 Art—Philosophy. Esthetics 40-8294

Beginning with the premise that everything in life is Art, the author attempts to show that the persistence of pleasure in a work of art depends upon its degree of "rareness."

Reviewed by R. M. Ogden

Am J Psychol 54:156 Ja '41 130w

Boston Transcript p10 My 4 '40 170w

"Here and there useful esthetic insights emerge, but for the most part they are submerged in pseudo-scientific jargon. The author's thoughts are well masticated but ill-digested." J. S.

— J Philos 37:475 Ag 15 '40 200w

SHEARING, JOSEPH. Aunt Beardie. 316p $2.50 Harrison-Hilton [9s Hutchinson]

40-7921

"The publishers have labeled this book as a mystery novel, and that is quite correct, but it is not a mystery of the [usual] type. It does not begin with a murder; it ends with one, and all that has gone before has led up to that murder.. In most mystery stories the mystery arises out of the murder; in this one the murder provides the solution to the mystery. The story begins in France at the time of the Revolution." N Y Times

"Fans who have heard of the Shearing cult and who may wonder if 'Aunt Beardie' is too subtle for common consumption, are advised that Mr. Shearing has built this story on a firm mystery foundation, working toward one of the most whopping surprises in fiction, and that he has filled it with the kind of questions most addicts love to ponder." Will Cuppy

+ Books p17 Ap 21 '40 340w

"'Aunt Beardie' is sometimes hysterical instead of historical, but the conclusion compensates." Marian Wiggin

Boston Transcript p2 Ap 27 '40 40w

Reviewed by Eleanor Godfrey

Canadian Forum 20:124 Jl '40 130w

"There is material enough here for an excellent novel of its type, but the author's narrative skill has not been quite equal to the task of holding the reader's attention to the end." Isaac Anderson

N Y Times p24 Ap 28 '40 400w

"As in most of the Shearing books, the plot is founded on fact and a lady does the murder. Recommended for readers who prefer their murders neat."

New Yorker 16:92 Ap 27 '40 50w

"With a movement slow enough for apprehension and rapid enough for suspense, the action mounts to its climax, a thoroughly satisfactory one. That is unfortunately more than can be said for the conclusion, a sort of postscript which seems unnecessary and unmotivated." Basil Davenport

+ — Sat R of Lit 22:16 Je 8 '40 600w

"The author tells his story simply and unpretentiously, and, though it offered opportunities of which he has not availed himself to the full, it holds our interest to the end."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p161 Mr 30 '40 280w

SHEDD, GEORGE CLIFFORD. Rustlers of the Basin. 276p $2 Penn

40-7252

Western story.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Books p17 Ap 21 '40 80w

Boston Transcript p2 Jl 20 '40 20w

"The author, whose name is new to us, appears to know pretty well the country and the life of which he writes, but his story is poorly organized and curiously uneven and spotty, while his writing is often amateurish in both content and style." G. W. Harris

— + N Y Times p23 Ap 28 '40 200w

SHEEN, FULTON JOHN. Freedom under God. 265p $2.25 Bruce pub.

323.44 Liberty. Sociology, Christian. Communism 40-5795

An exposition of the Roman Catholic stand on Communism. The author is a well-known Catholic writer and educator.

"The present book, while popular in its theme and development, as demanded by its audience, shows in its Footnotes the scholarship of the author. . . The Catholic Book Club is to be congratulated on taking this latest volume of Monsignor Sheen as its selection of the month." D. M. O'Connell

+ America 63:51 Ap 20 '40 300w

Booklist 36:320 Ap 15 '40

Boston Transcript p1 My 18 '40 20w

Cath World 151:635 Ag '40 130w

Reviewed by C. H. Moehlman

Christian Century 57:734 Je 5 '40 650w

SHEEN, FULTON JOHN. Whence come wars. 119p $1 Sheed

261 War and religion. Roman Catholic church 40-11520

Radio addresses on the necessity of morality and religion, mainly from the point of view of the Roman Catholic.

Reviewed by Agnes Lyons
Boston Transcript p1 Ag 3 '40 430w
Cath World 152:123 O '40 210w
Christian Century 57:857 Jl 3 '40 50w

"The special value of the book is that it helps the reader to think clearly about issues that are vital but too often cloudy, and it shows anyone who studies it carefully a way of approach to answering difficulties raised on every side." Mother Mary Lawrence
+ Commonweal 32:255 Jl 12 '40 200w

SHELDON, WILLIAM HERBERT; STEVENS, STANLEY SMITH, and TUCKER, WILLIAM BOOSE. The varieties of human physique. 347p il $4.50 Harper

573.6 Man—Constitution. Personality. Somatology. Psychology, Physiological 40-14402

"In this 'introduction to constitutional psychology,' Dr. Sheldon presents . . . an analysis of one of the most baffling problems in the study of mankind. Are the psychological aspects of human behavior related to the morphology and physiology of the body? Are definite personalities correlated with definite physiques? Attacking this problem, Dr. Sheldon and his colleagues attempt 'to lay the foundation, in morphological description, for a systematic study of those aspects of human beings important to personality and to clinical problems. Variables for the classification and description of human physiques have been identified, practical methods for scaling these variables have been devised, and a beginning has been made in the correlation of these variables with other aspects of human behavior.'" (Scientific Bk Club R) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by Louis Berman, M.D.
Sat R of Lit 22:17 S 14 '40 900w

"Written primarily for psychologists, anthropologists, and medical men, this book will be of interest to a much wider audience than thus specified, even though no effort was made to avoid technical terminology."
+ Scientific Bk Club R 11:2 My '40 350w

SHEPHERD, ERIC. Murder in a nunnery. 183p $1.75 (6s) Sheed [40-11341]

Detective story.

"One of the most delightful mystery novelties in a month of Sundays. Should the title lead you to wonder if things have come to such a pass, et cetera, just calm yourself and give this wholly charming yarn a chance to blow away your foolish fears." Will Cuppy
+ Books p10 S 1 '40 440w

"It contrives to do several things remarkably well. It tells a mystery story that keeps one guessing until the end; it treats a thing horrible in itself with suave sanity and yet without insensitiveness; it creates at least two memorable characters; and last in an ascending scale, it gives that rare thing, a true picture of convent life."
+ Cath World 152:122 O '40 230w

"This tale sparkles from beginning to end with nimble and ingratiating (sometimes also deliberately pointed) wit. . . The author knows and loves his convent scene, and he can use a happy chuckle as the expression of both knowledge and love. The story's choice of suspects is limited, but the discovery of the murderer's identity is the least important feature of this original and amusing book." Kay Irvin
+ N Y Times p21 S 8 '40 200w

SHERMAN, HENRY CLAPP, and LANFORD, MRS CAROLINE (SHERMAN). Essentials of nutrition. 418p il $3.50 Macmillan

612.39 Nutrition 40-33077

"This book, in which Dr. Sherman's daughter collaborates, covers much the same ground as his well-known earlier ones on nutrition but with a somewhat different approach and emphasis. The approach is through the relations of food to health and efficiency, and the emphasis is on the points in our present knowledge of human nutrition which the ordinary educated layman needs to understand if he is to attain and maintain health and efficiency. The material is arranged in a way to make it usable by college classes but does not presuppose the student's familiarity with any special sciences or any special method on the part of the teacher. Each chapter ends with 'exercises' and 'suggested readings.'" J Home Econ

Booklist 37:133 D 1 '40

"The purpose of this book, as stated, is to offer its readers a thoroughly adequate and up-to-date view of the essentials of human nutrition. This it does, in brief, readable, generally wise, and highly discriminating style." E. B. Forbes
+ — Chem & Chem Eng N 18:957 N 10 '40 950w
J Home Econ 32:696 D '40 200w

SHERRILL, LEWIS JOSEPH. The opening doors of childhood. 193p $1.75 Macmillan

268.6 Religious education of children 39-23875

For descriptive note see Annual for 1939.

Boston Transcript p2 Mr 23 '40 60w

"This is a book for parents and teachers who accept the idea of God as a final resting place for all inquiry. It persuades by its kindly spirit rather than by its argument, which seems somewhat inconclusive on such subjects as right conduct, the social nature of conscience, and the necessity for a theological basis for Christian living." M. H. Bro
+ — Christian Century 57:316 Mr 6 '40 370w
Cleveland Open Shelf p19 O '40

"Dr. Sherrill is the author of a number of books. I rate this one his best. It is delightfully and simply written, and is just the book you can put into the hands of parents of young children. Herein they will find sound and understandable counsel about the child's unfolding religious life and how they, as parents, may guide and nurture that development." W. R. McNutt
+ Crozer Q 17:158 Ap '40 130w

"This is the best book yet written on the problems of developing significant meanings for religion in childhood. The author is dean and professor of religious education in Louisville Presbyterian Seminary. He knows children and is well acquainted with modern studies in child psychology. . . The book is written primarily for parents because of the belief that the home is primarily responsible for the integration of religious attitudes into life. Ministers and church-school teachers will find it stimulating as home and church seek to work together at a common task." E. J. Chave
+ J Religion 20:215 Ap '40 170w

SHERWOOD, ROBERT EMMET. There shall be no night. 178p $2 Scribner

812 (W) 40-27741

A play based on the Russo-Finnish war of 1939. Produced by the Theatre Guild in the spring of 1940 with Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne in the principal parts.

Booklist 37:87 N 1 '40
Bookmark 2:7 Ja '41

Reviewed by W. P. Eaton
Books p31 D 8 '40 140w

SHERWOOD, R. E.—Continued

"Never has the value of technical skill been better demonstrated than in this great play composed in a few weeks when Mr. Sherwood wrote straight from his heart and could rely on the subconsciousness of his craft to form the material. If technical errors do exist, one almost welcomes them; the contention of some reviewers that Valkonen's speeches are overlong seems to insult the intelligence of the audience." E. V. Wyatt

+ Cath World 151:343 Je '40 1150w (Dramatic criticism)

"Mr. Sherwood is too near to the subject to get its full proportions or true focus. Moreover he has written the play too rapidly. He has given it no time to pass through the fires of his imagination, but only through the flames of his indignation. This latter fact has resulted in some eloquent passages, passages which glow with righteous fervor, but the play as a whole seems inchoate, and even the character of the scientist is at times a little nebulous." Grenville Vernon

— + Commonweal 32:62 My 10 '40 800w (Dramatic criticism)

Dramatic criticism by J. W. Krutch

Nation 150:605 My 11 '40 1450w

"In reading the play it helps to imagine the Lunts acting it across the page, helps but isn't necessary; the lightning of Mr. Sherwood's introduction strikes by itself. A good book." Lewis Nichols

+ N Y Times p40 N 10 '40 400w

Reviewed by E. N. Jenckes

Springf'd Republican p6 Ja 4 '41 1150w

"The play is rich in wisdom and pity because it deals honestly with the elementals of life. Here are not the decisions of one family, or of Finland, but of us all, revealed in a pattern deep enough to include the words of Goethe and St. Paul." Leon Whipple

+ Survey G 29:408 Jl '40 700w (Dramatic criticism)

Dramatic criticism by Rosamond Gilder

Theatre Arts 24:399 Je '40 1050w

Theatre Arts 24:548 Ag '40 160w (Dramatic criticism)

Reviewed by G. R. Kernodle

Yale R n s 30:423 winter '41 240w

SHINING tree, and other Christmas stories [by Hildegarde Hawthorne and others]. 268p $2 Knopf

Christmas stories (W) 40-32979

Collection of Christmas stories ranging from Colonial America to present-day England. Contents: The shining tree, by Hildegarde Hawthorne; Christmas at Mulberry lodge, by Angela Thirkell; Day of work and no cheer, by Lois Lenski; The young Hans Christian Andersen, by Elizabeth Yates; Christmas at the Old Place, by C. S. Bailey; The tailor's Christmas guest, by Marcel Brun and Betty Bowen; Sudden Mary and Christmas, by E. L. Brock; Mister Skip, by Irene Smith; Evacuation Christmas, by M. L. Robinson; The best Christmas, by Adele de Leeuw; A brand of his own, by H. C. Rubicam, Jr.; Christmas in the mountains of Kentucky, by Jean Thomas.

"I would not have believed beforehand that twelve brand-new stories by as many well known authors for adults and young people could approach Christmas by so many new paths and with such good results. This is what it set out to be: a book to be read aloud to the whole family during the holiday season. Besides, these stories are not tied so fast to December as to be entirely out of date in warm weather." M. L. Becker

+ Books p10 N 10 '40 250w

"Will provide pleasure for the whole family." F. B. Sloan

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 D 16 '40 110w

"Many can be used with groups of older children and adults. Satisfactory make-up." Marian Herr

+ Library J 65:880 O 15 '40 70w

"Varied in interest and age appeal, this book will please readers from 10 years on. It can be read with pleasure at any season and will prove a useful and attractive addition to the Christmas bookshelf." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p10 D 1 '40 230w

SHIRK, JEANNETTE CAMPBELL. Mr Baxter's dandelion garden; il. by [the author]. 60p $1.50 Dutton

40-4098

Mr Baxter spared no expense on his garden, but nothing ever grew except dandelions, until a circus elephant with an enormous taste for dandelions appeared. For young readers.

"The best of the book is its pictures, which have humor, design, and a spontaneity that arouses my interest in whatever the artist may do next." M. L. Becker

+ Books p7 Mr 10 '40 110w

Cleveland Open Shelf p12 My '40

"The book has humor; gives dandelion legends and superstitions of all countries; and is one which can be read many times by children of all ages."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e F 2 '41 80w

SHOHL, ALFRED THEODORE. Mineral metabolism. (Am. chemical soc. Monograph ser) 384p il $5 Reinhold [30s Chapman]

612.3926 Metabolism. Physiological chemistry 40-2672

"This book was written for readers with a background of biochemistry and was not prepared primarily either for the specialist, or for the neophyte. It is a summary of 'the rôle of the minerals in the structure and function of the human body.' . . The wide range of subject matter is illustrated by the following random selection of topics: Body water; electroneutrality; osmotic equilibrium; alimentary secretions; urine; ductless glands; muscle contraction; buffer systems of the blood; Donnan equilibrium; acid- or alkaline-ash values; fasting." Am J Pub Health

---

"This monograph will be cordially welcomed by workers in the chemistry of nutrition. It is valuable both as a summary of present knowledge and as a stimulus to further research. . . The book ends with a discussion of the interrelations of calcium intake, growth, and nutritional well-being. Here the present reviewer feels that the reader might possibly be misled by part of Shohl's discussion on calcium intake and growth." H. C. Sherman

+ — Am Chem Soc J 62:1886 Jl '40 900w

"The book should be especially useful to physicians, physiologists, biochemists, and to those interested in any aspect of the nutrition of man or animals. The type is clear, the format attractive, and there are very few typographical errors. It is the only publication of the kind, and it is exceedingly well done." A. G. Hogan

+ Am J Pub Health 30:553 My '40 200w

"As the author implies in his preface, the book makes no pretense to be exhaustive and in some fields is inadequate. While praising the attempt, attention should be called to errors in chemistry, especially in formulas, but even with these drawbacks the volume should be useful to dieticians, pediatricians, possibly to practitioners of medicine, and, from its extensive references, to research workers in the field of mineral metabolism." M. X. Sullivan

+ — Chem & Chem Eng N 18:207 Mr 10 '40 300w

N Y New Tech Bks 25:49 O '40

SHORT, LUKE. Hard money. 267p $2 Doubleday 40-5399

Western story.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p14 Ap 7 '40 140w

"This new writer of Westerns deserves watching." G. W. Harris
+ N Y Times p22 Mr 31 '40 230w

SHOTWELL, JAMES THOMSON. What Germany forgot. 152p $1.50 Macmillan

940.343 Germany—History. European war, 1914-1918—Germany. European war, 1914-1918—Economic aspects (W) 40-27183

The thesis of this study is that Germany has forgotten the war which preceded the Treaty of Versailles, and the economic readjustment necessary after any great war. In looking for a scapegoat on which to blame their vast postwar depression the German militarists picked on the one thing tangible: the treaty.

Reviewed by B. E. Schmitt
Am Hist R 46:410 Ja '41 550w

"Valuable and timely." G. H. Stuart
+ Am Pol Sci R 34:610 Je '40 290w

"Few will challenge the authority with which Dr. Shotwell deals with his subject. It is a pity that his volume was not written years ago. It is to be hoped that it will command a wide circle of readers today. Versailles is still with us. Professor Shotwell's work will help to remove it from the realm of myth into that of reality." H. N. Howard
+ Ann Am Acad 209:202 My '40 400w

Booklist 36:262 Mr 1 '40

Bookmark p8 N '40

Reviewed by Joseph Barnes
Books p6 F 11 '40 260w

"Professor Shotwell brings to his task a rare qualification. He is a historian of great renown, he has been the editor of momentous publications about the World War, and he has himself played an active part in developments following the war. He combines the critical judgment of the scholar with the experiences of a trained observer. Out of this background he has written a book which needed writing and which comes at a most opportune time. . . This instructive book can be of greatest help to dispel the confusion prevailing in many minds, a confusion which has been the most potent factor in facilitating the coming of the present war." Hans Kohn
+ Boston Transcript p1 F 17 '40 70w

Cath World 151:125 Ap '40 190w

Christian Century 57:609 My 8 '40 330w

Christian Science Monitor p20 Ap 26 '40 450w

Foreign Affairs 18:755 Jl '40 70w

"It is not easy to overrate the great value of Professor Shotwell's book. He proves with the dispassionate argumentation of the historian and the scholarly comprehension of a sociologist that the war itself, Germany's war-time economy, its continuation in the Hindenburg program of heavy expenditure, the devastating inflation, the 'false recovery' based on the 'miracle' of the Rentenmark, the tariffs of the post-war period, and other economic fallacies, rather than the treaty, produced that morass of despair from which eventually rose the miasma of Nazism. This is not only 'what Germany forgot,' but what insistent propaganda in this country kept Americans from perceiving." Rustem Vambery
+ Nation 150:425 Mr 30 '40 700w

New Repub 102:417 Mr 25 '40 40w

"Professor Shotwell has performed a public service in straightening out the record. There is no reason why the non-Nazi world should forget that before the treaty there was the war." Emil Lengyel
+ N Y Times p4 F 18 '40 1100w

"A fresh analysis."
+ New Yorker 15:80 F 10 '40 50w

Reviewed by D. H. Popper
Sat R of Lit 21:13 Mr 16 '40 550w

Reviewed by W. M. Franklin
Social Educ 4:587 D '40 950w

"This is unquestionably a book of historic importance, for though details of its argument may be contested it is hard to see how the main conclusion can be." Wilson Harris
+ Spec 164:813 Je 14 '40 700w

Springf'd Republican p12 Ap 12 '40 550w

Reviewed by Hans Kohn
Survey G 29:306 My '40 80w

Time 35:91 F 26 '40 250w

"One of the most illuminating of studies of the economic consequences of the Four Years' War."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p562 N 9 '40 480w

Wis Lib Bul 36:67 Ap '40

SHOTWELL, JAMES THOMSON, and DEAK, FRANCIS. Turkey at the Straits; a short history. 196p map $2 Macmillan

949.6 Dardanelles. Bosphorus. Eastern question (Balkan). Turkey—Foreign relations (W) 40-27412

Short sketch of the struggle for possession of the Straits which connect the Black Sea with the Mediterranean, beginning with ancient and medieval periods and ending with the Franco-British-Turkish mutual assistance pact. Bibliography; a chronological index of treaties, conventions, and agreements; and a general index.

Reviewed by H. N. Howard
Am Hist R 46:369 Ja '41 650w

"Although this is hardly the definitive work on the subject, and undoubtedly was not so intended, the authors have performed a useful function in providing for the first time a compact and scholarly summary of the Straits question. Inclusion of the texts of the abortive Treaty of Sèvres, of the Lausanne Convention, of the Montreux Convention, and of the Mutual Assistance Pact, together with a selected bibliography, a sketch map, and a chronological index, adds to its value." P. W. Ireland
+ Am Pol Sci R 34:1026 O '40 550w

Booklist 36:343 My 1 '40

Bookmark p9 N '40

"As a reference book it is invaluable. As a textbook it should have an honored place in every class on European history. Incidentally, if it serves as a model to other historians of how history can be intelligibly and readably presented, it will do much to make authoritative information on complex problems easier to understand." Nicholas Roosevelt
+ Books p6 My 19 '40 500w

Boston Transcript p1 My 11 '40 250w

Christian Century 57:514 Ap 17 '40 170w

Reviewed by Norman Cousins
Current Hist 51:5 My '40 170w

Foreign Affairs 18:761 Jl '40 20w

"A valuable volume for those who have to know and understand the genesis of any conflict that may break out in the Balkans in this war." Walker Matheson
+ Living Age 358:291 My '40 1100w

New Repub 102:585 Ap 29 '40 30w

"This monograph, for its clarity and conciseness, should be rated both as a standard work in its special field and an outstanding piece of diplomatic history. It should be in every public and academic library and on the shelves of all students of world politics and the affairs of Western Asia." D. E. Webster
+ N Y Times p14 Je 9 '40 1150w

Pratt p22 autumn '40

SHOTWELL, J. T., and DEAK, F.—Continued
"Professors Shotwell and Deák have not attempted to prophesy as to what is going to happen in the Balkans and the Near East. Nor have they tried to forecast what role the Dardanelles may play in the war. What they have done is to give us an excellent historical background against which to project our own theories." H. C. Wolfe
+ Sat R of Lit 22:16 My 18 '40 310w
Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 7 '40 350w

"The authors provide a clear guide through what Lord Birkenhead described as a weary diplomatic tangle."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p364 Jl 27 '40 650w

SHRADER, JAMES HOUSTON. Food control, its public-health aspects. 513p $4 Wiley
614.3 Food supply. Public health 39-25566

"A manual for regulatory officers, food technologists, and students of the food industry." (Subtitle) A preliminary section is devoted to the relation of food and food control to public health. The remainder of the book contains discussions on specific foods such as milk and other dairy products, eggs, fish, meat, cereals and bakery products, fruits and vegetables, and canned and preserved foods. Chapter bibliographies. Index.

"Since food poisoning cases and infections due to contaminated foods are, unfortunately, much too prevalent in this country, the facts marshalled in this well printed book will be most useful to public health and food officials, and also to food manufacturers, in their common endeavors to protect the health and welfare of all consumers. The book should, in fact, be in the library of every regulatory official and every purveyor of food, and should be frequently consulted." J. A. Tobey
+ Am J Pub Health 30:293 Mr '40 320w
Booklist 36:146 D 15 '39

"A person not familiar with food-control work, who accepts an executive position of that character, will be greatly benefited by a careful and thorough perusal of this book. The food chemist or the food bacteriologist, however, will find but little with which he is not familiar by reason of his education, his experience, and his study of the current literature." H. C. Lythgoe
+ Chem & Chem Eng N 18:208 Mr 10 '40 380w
J Home Econ 32:330 My '40 90w

"Although Dr. Shrader's volume is written primarily for the American reader and is concerned mainly with United States public health administration, it will be welcomed by many in Great Britain as a valuable and concise manual. The author surveys a very wide field and, on the whole, does so with commendable balance and sense of proportion. In most respects his treatment is up to date." J. C. D.
+ — Nature 146:385 S 21 '40 280w
Pratt p10 winter '40

SHRIBER, MRS IONE SANDBERG. The dark arbor. 307p $2 Farrar 40-31345

Detective story.

"[Mrs] Shriber leaves few if any changes unrung as she proceeds steadily toward a watertight solution. Lieut. Grady pronounces the killer the cleverest in his experience. This is a literate, fairly credible and well plotted tale, with emphasis upon love and its tortures." Will Cuppy
+ Books p30 D 8 '40 180w

"The detective in charge of the case is Lieutenant Grady, who gets results without blustering and without browbeating. If you read Mrs. Shriber's 'Head Over Heels in Murder' you have already met him. If not, now is the time to make his acquaintance and to discover for yourself the high quality of Mrs. Shriber's mystery stories." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p38 D 8 '40 200w

SHRIBER, MRS IONE SANDBERG. Head over heels in murder. 335p $2 Farrar 40-8318

Detective story.

Booklist 36:413 Jl 1 '40

"We're not saying that Mrs. Shriber comes anywhere near her model [Mary Roberts Rinehart] in general merit, but her story of a fatal week end at Hilltop House makes for satisfactory entertainment and may be used either as a mild thriller or as a love story with casualties." Will Cuppy
+ Books p16 Ap 28 '40 150w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin
Boston Transcript p2 My 4 '40 90w

"This book is one of the runners-up in the Mary Roberts Rinehart Mystery Novel Contest and is the author's first work in this field. It is such a splendid job of bafflement that one hopes it will not be her last." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p24 Ap 28 '40 190w

"Nice enough story, told in the first person by a new author whose style is acutely feminine."
New Yorker 16:92 My 4 '40 40w
Sat R of Lit 22:18 My 4 '40 40w

SHUSTER, CARL NATHANIEL. A study of the problems in teaching the slide rule. 103p $1.85 Teachers college
510.78 Slide rule 40-34044

"This is the first experimental study in English on the teaching of the slide rule. By examining students who had been taught the slide rule by the usual methods, four types of errors in slide rule computation were found to occur very frequently. New methods of teaching the slide rule were then devised and tried out experimentally with the result that the number of errors was greatly reduced. These new methods are explained in detail." Publisher's note

---

"Aside from constituting a new approach for any student desirous of learning how to use this essential scientific or engineering tool, this little book is also fine for the teacher who must frequently include supplementary instruction in the use of the slide rule. The first two chapters are actually interesting and the whole text is a concise, clear, and logical presentation of a vast amount of experimental teaching." J. L. Bray
+ Chem & Chem Eng N 18:1047 N 25 '40 300w
School & Society 52:272 S 28 '40 20w

SHUSTER, GEORGE NAUMAN. The English ode from Milton to Keats. 314p $3 Columbia univ. press
821.09 Odes. English poetry—History and criticism 40-35668

Traces the development of the ode in English poetry from pre-Miltonian times to John Keats. Contents: The ode prior to John Milton; Milton and the metaphysical poets; Crashaw, Cowley, and the Pindaric ode; John Dryden and the restoration; Ode writers of the Augustan age; Collins, Gray, and the return of the imagination; Lesser ode writers and the romantic trend; The ode and the blue flower. Index.

"A scholarly monograph of this kind could easily be made into a mere ant hill of erudition, and it is very much to Mr. Shuster's credit that he has done a great deal more than compile information. He has sifted his data with critical discrimination and has thought about ode writing from the standpoint of the poetic technician, so that he enters into the solution of technical problems with a finely sympathetic penetration. His scholarship is catholic in both the general and the specific senses of the word, and in both respects greatly to his advantage. . . The pleasantest surprise for the reader of these genuinely learned pages is the added grace of witty comment which constantly illuminates whatever it touches." G. F. Whicher

+ Books p14 Ja 19 '41 650w

"This work shows an unflagging zest in what is a really valuable subject. It is with the hand of a practiced journalist that a sound scholar operates. . . I should be inclined to question whether Dr. Shuster has settled the primary problem as to what an ode really is. . . However, my admiration is ample enough to leave room for a certain amount of disagreement. After all, probably no two people would agree on this subject. There can be no disagreement that George Shuster has given us an intelligent and richly documented discussion of an important phase of literary history." Theodore Maynard

+ Commonweal 33:259 D 27 '40 650w

SHUTE, NEVIL, pseud. See Norway, N. S.

SIEGEL, MORRIS. Population, race and eugenics [a study with special reference to feeble-mindedness and degeneracy]. 206p $2.50 Stechert

575.11 Eugenics. Feeble-minded [40-5002]

"This treatise is divided into two books of five chapters each. Book I, devoted to eugenic devices of a positive nature, treats of such topics as the birthrates in the various strata of society, the causation of the greatly reduced rate in the higher strata and the less reduced rate in the lower strata, constructive recommendations by which to achieve a reversal of the birthrate tendency, various racial theories as related to eugenics, and a defense of rational or intelligently planned marriages based on eugenic considerations. Book II treats of negative or constrictive eugenic schemes, notably sterilization, to prevent the hereditary transmission of feeble-mindedness, manic-depressive psychoses, dementia praecox, and epilepsy. It ends with general conclusions arrived at throughout the entire treatise. The work refers to a bibliography of 72 articles, books, and reports." Am J Psychol

"The reviewer is wholly sympathetic to the author and to his point of view. . . He regards this work, however, as containing little new or valuable matter of interest to professional psychologists. Obviously the author, a general practitioner of medicine, is versatile and erudite, but his book will be valuable chiefly to lay readers." H. R. Crosland

+ — Am J Psychol 53:156 Ja '40 400w

"It is not over-dogmatic nor is it as biased as is often the case when the occasional writer tackles general questions of this kind. It can be heartily recommended to the general reader who would like to get a bird's-eye view of the eugenic situation." W. S. Thompson

+ Am J Pub Health 29:1163 O '39 150w

"This book gives the impression of having been written by a person of strong intellectual vigor, but of inferior scholarly equipment. It covers a number of questions in the fields of population and eugenics, but covers none of them with the closeness of reasoning and careful weighing of evidence that marks a work of the scholar. . . Its viewpoint is that of the convinced eugenist; and the recommendations for a positive and constructive public policy are certainly not without interest." F. H. Hankins

— + Am Soc R 4:892 D '39 120w

SIEGFRIED, ANDRE. Suez and Panama; tr. from the French by H. H. and Doris Hemming. 400p maps $3 Harcourt [10s 6d Cape, J]

386.42 Suez canal. Panama canal. Lesseps, Ferdinand Marie, vicomte de (W) 40-27666

Outlines the history and studies the importance of the world's two most famous canals. "We shall examine the two canals from many and varied points of view in an attempt to ascertain just what each implies. In this study we shall touch on geography and history, politics and finance, administration and hygiene, commerce, public works and maritime activity." (Pref) Contains many maps and graphs. Index.

"Mr. Siegfried has produced one of the best books of the year in this account of the world's two principal artificial waterways. It is as interesting as it is sound and thoroughgoing; Mr. Siegfried somehow manages to make even its statistics interesting."

+ Atlantic O '40 140w

Booklist 37:30 O 1 '40

Bookmark p9 N '40

"Mr. Siegfried has an unfailing sense of dramatic values, a gift for making his characters—the magnificent De Lesseps, the dynamic Theodore Roosevelt, the resourceful Bunau-Varilla, and a score of others—step from the pages with the flush of life on their faces, and to construct tangible, three-dimensional settings for their acts. . . There is honest admiration in this book, there are merited rebukes, but there is no rancor." Geoffrey Bruun

+ Books p3 S 15 '40 750w

"'Suez and Panama' is a long overdue, serious work by a competent authority." P. J. Searles

+ Boston Transcript p1 S 14 '40 220w

Christian Century 57:1383 N 6 '40 150w

"M. Siegfried so enlivens even familiar facts about the two great canals, and adds so many anecdotes, that the skimmer of his pages soon settles down to enjoy the full flavor. Personal foibles of Egyptian rulers; the ancient canals linking the Nile to the Red Sea; intrigue and counter-intrigue; courageously independent financing by De Lesseps when bankers scoffed at Suez—these are skillfully told in a rarely rich historical narrative." R. H. S.

+ Christian Science Monitor p18 N 6 '40 480w

Reviewed by E. W. Mandeville

Churchman 154:22 S 15 '40 150w

Reviewed by W. J. Marx

Commonweal 32:531 O 18 '40 200w

"The translation of this book has been done most efficiently, and in spite of its containing a great many facts and figures it is easy to read." G. T. Garratt

+ Manchester Guardian p7 Je 17 '40 500w

Nation 151:400 O 26 '40 80w

New Repub 103:457 S 30 '40 30w

"This is emphatically a book to consult if one wishes to understand the importance of Suez in the present war or the significance of Panama to our own national policies. The author is not quite as much at home in this hemisphere as in the other." R. L. Duffus

+ — N Y Times p16 O 20 '40 1250w

New Yorker 16:70 S 7 '40 50w

Reviewed by H. J. Trueblood

Sat R of Lit 22:13 S 7 '40 550w

"Never in the past twenty years would a book of this kind have been read with greater interest. There is an unmistakable distinction about every product of M. Siegfried's pen, and his latest volume manifests it to the full. . . The value of M. Siegfried's book lies in its twofold character. It makes its appeal to the political economists no less than to the general reader. . . A book which in a rare degree combines accuracy and lucidity of presentation with brilliance of narrative and description. An eminently satisfying piece of work." Wilson Harris

+ Spec 165:42 Jl 12 '40 550w

SIEGFRIED, ANDRE—Continued
"A treatise which is nothing if not comprehensive, yet without a trace of the dullness which too often results from that quality."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p287 Je 15 '40 650w

SIKES, EARL RAY. Contemporary economic systems; their analysis and historical background. 690p $3 Holt

330.1 Economic policy. Collectivism 40-11650

An analytical and historical survey. The book is in five parts: The criteria for evaluating economic systems; Background and theoretical development of radical movements; Russian communism in practice; Italian and German Fascism; The cooperative movement and economic planning. The author is professor of economics at Dartmouth college. Index.

Reviewed by M. M. Knight
Am Econ R 30:848 D '40 260w

"Contemporary Economic Systems ought to prove extraordinarily valuable to political scientists. So far we have had only Loucks and Hoot's Comparative Economic Systems as a guide through the competing contemporary economic systems and their political implications. The volume by Professor Sikes is not only briefer and more concise in its analysis, but in addition takes cognizance of the more recent developments in the theory and practice of economic issues and institutions." William Ebenstein
+ Am Pol Sci R 34:1227 D '40 900w

"Economic and political crises have naturally stirred in recent years an increased interest in 'other systems.' The work before us is one of a number of recent textbook treatises or surveys in this field. With reference to its purpose, it may be highly commended. It is well written and arranged in logical order." F. H. Knight
+ — Ethics 51:115 O '40 700w

Reviewed by Mildred Adams
Survey G 29:518 O '40 190w

SILVANIE, HAIG. Responsibility of states for acts of unsuccessful insurgent governments. 223p $2.75 Columbia univ. press [11s King]

341.3 International law and relations. Debts, Public 39-25545

"In this study . . . an attempt has been made to state the rule of international law dealing with state responsibility for acts of unsuccessful insurgent governments and to point out changes, past developments, and the present tendencies in the law." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

"Dr. Silvanie is to be commended for his clarity of both style and thought. He has gone through a great collection of frequently confusing and apparently contradictory cases and has emerged with conclusions that are as clear as they are sound. This is a splendid monograph." P. S. Wild
+ Am Pol Sci R 33:1132 D '39 230w
Foreign Affairs 18:565 Ap '40 10w

SILVER, ABNER, and BRUCE, ROBERT. How to write and sell a song hit; foreword by Sigmund Spaeth. 203p il $2.50 Prentice-Hall

784 Songs, Popular—Writing and publishing 40-27117

Explains the technicalities involved in writing popular songs, and the intricacies of ways of making a living thereby. Index.

Booklist 36:235 F 15 '40

"A thoroughly competent fulfillment of its title. Aimed principally at the amateur, the would-be song writer, it explains simply and clearly not only the writing of the lyric and words but the difficult business of getting to a publisher. Its analysis of numerous popular songs supplies adequate information for the beginner. The advice on song-sharks and illegitimate publication rackets is something no future Irving Berlin should pass up." Roy Lamson, Jr.
+ Boston Transcript p3 D 2 '39 100w

SIM, GEORGES. See Simenon, G., pseud.

SIMENON, GEORGES, pseud. (GEORGES SIM). Maigret abroad; tr. from the French by Geoffrey Sainsbury. 315p $2 Harcourt [8s Routledge]

(W) 40-31041

Two Inspector Maigret novels: A Crime in Holland; At the Gai-Moulin.

Booklist 37:92 N 1 '40

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p17 Ag 25 '40 150w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin
Boston Transcript p2 S 14 '40 40w

"Both the author and his fascinating hero are at their best in the two novels included here. The atmosphere—small towns in Belgium and Holland, their respectable middle-class inhabitants, and the seamy side of their outwardly placid lives—is evoked with masterful ease; and Maigret's disgust with human nature is once more rewarded by sharp psychological insights."
+ New Repub 103:362 S 9 '40 60w

Reviewed by Ralph Partridge
New Statesman & Nation 19:678 My 25 '40 390w

"These two stories are excellent examples of the work of Georges Simenon, who has been called the French Edgar Wallace because of the rapidity with which he turns out his detective tales. There the resemblance ceases, however, for Simenon never relies on swift action and excitement for his effects. His Inspector Maigret is about the calmest detective known to fiction, but he is none the less effective for all that." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p22 Ag 25 '40 290w

"Simenon is still the man to read even if you don't like murders."
+ New Yorker 16:68 Ag 24 '40 50w

"Shrewd sleuthing of both tales overshadowed by realistic and psychological passages—but it's there in bountiful measure."
+ Sat R of Lit 22:18 Ag 31 '40 50w

"A Crime in Holland, recounts one of the Inspector's quieter adventures, but the very drabness of the story serves to bring out Monsieur Simenon's descriptive and narrative gifts. . . From its thrilling first chapter to the inevitable round-up [of the second story] the accelerator is kept firmly down; this is the most exciting Maigret story yet translated. Mr. Sainsbury's translation is excellent as ever."
+ Spec 164:696 My 17 '40 200w
Springf'd Republican p7e O 6 '40 310w
Time 36:84 S 9 '40 60w

SIMENON, GEORGES, pseud. (GEORGES SIM). Maigret travels south; tr. from the French by Geoffrey Sainsbury. 308p $2 Harcourt [8s 3d Routledge]

40-9595

Two detective stories: Liberty bar, and The madman of Bergerac.

Booklist 36:413 Jl 1 '40
Bookmark 2:15 Ja '41

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p12 My 19 '40 310w

"The second story in this latest volume, 'The Madman of Bergerac' is excellent. But it is the first, called 'Liberty Bar,' which is really outstanding. It is delicately and at the same time revealingly told. Definitely a MUST." Marian Wiggin

+ Boston Transcript p2 My 25 '40 90w

Churchman 154:35 Je 1 '40 20w

"If Maigret Travels South is a fair example, M. Simenon is going to make a great many English friends. He may not be the equal of our Mrs. Christie, but he trounces the tedious prolixity of our second-class writers. He may even by his example introduce into our detection a new era of brevity and sincerity. But one might as well hope that the Expeditionary Force will come back liking French cooking!" Ralph Partridge

+ New Statesman & Nation 19:184 F 10 '40 430w

"Both these stories show Simenon to be a master of the mystery craft and a keen and sympathetic student of human character." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p22 My 19 '40 310w

"Recommended for everyone in this country who has sense enough to spell out words."

+ New Yorker 16:95 My 25 '40 50w

Sat R of Lit 22:20 My 18 '40 40w

"After reading the English versions of four Simenon novels, one is struck principally by the subtle but amazingly successful evocation of town and countryside, by the economy of words and description, and by the psychological accuracy of the character drawing. Even Maigret's domestic life is a relief after the uxorious bathos again naming no names, of some of our British stalwarts. Maigret Travels South is, if anything, better than its predecessors." Rupert Hart-Davis

+ Spec 164:338 Mr 8 '40 400w

Springf'd Republican p7e Je 16 '40 430w

Time 35:80 Je 3 '40 80w

"The two cases related in this book have uncommonly good plots, and we look forward to their successors with more than ordinary interest."

Times [London] Lit Sup p149 Mr 23 '40 80w

SIMENON, GEORGES, pseud. (GEORGES SIM). The patience of Maigret; tr. from the French by Geoffrey Sainsbury. 311p $2 Harcourt [7s 6d Routledge]

(W) 40-4891

Two detective stories translated from the French: A Battle of Nerves, and A Face for a Clue. This is the first in a series of this author's works to be published in America.

Atlantic Ap '40 50w

Booklist 36:326 Ap 15 '40

"M. Simenon, sometimes known as the French Edgar Wallace—and rightly in our opinion—has been published in seventeen different countries, in the language appropriate to each, and is now made available to readers of English in an excellent translation by Geoffrey Sainsbury." Will Cuppy

Books p26 Mr 3 '40 420w

"For any mystery fan who is feeling somewhat jaded with recent detectives, Maigret has at last come to America. This delightful French detective [has been] long a favorite in his native land and in some 17 other countries." Marian Wiggin

+ Boston Transcript p2 Mr 9 '40 80w

Christian Century 57:185 F 7 '40 60w

"Two excellent detective stories." G. E. S. Jr.

+ Churchman 154:35 Ap 1 '40 40w

"You don't expect Rolls quality from a Flivver plant but each new model has enough variations to attract buyers; it can take you to new places and persons and situations. And M. Sim's characters and plots have a roundness and wit unusual in the genre." B. E. Bettinger

+ — New Repub 102:319 Mr 4 '40 420w

"Simenon's stories grip the attention through mystery rather than adventure; they offer some psychological interest or twist; they send a single detective hero through a long series of exploits, and they are written with a skill which is really remarkable in such mass-production work. This volume's two short novels are excellent thrillers of their kind." Kay Irvin

+ N Y Times p16 Mr 3 '40 380w

"Seems incredible that these fine stories . . . have not been published here before. Should be your most exciting mystery discovery of the year."

+ New Yorker 16:64 Mr 2 '40 40w

"Interesting more as gallery of odd characters than as detective stories, though French sleuth's highly individual method may please. Readable."

+ — Sat R of Lit 21:19 Mr 2 '40 40w

"Simenon's romans policiers have snap, speed and no padding. If the succeeding volumes are as well selected and translated as this one, they will find their place in many an Anderson snuggery." Rupert Hart-Davis

+ Spec 163:556 O 20 '39 160w

Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 3 '40 410w

Time 35:76 Mr 4 '40 30w

"The stories are well translated, but somehow lack sparkle or excitement in English. They will not disturb the ghost of Edgar Wallace, whose detectives had humour and who knew how to envisage an exciting situation. Maigret is conceited without being comic and persevering without being perspicacious. The proper place for patience is on a monument and not in a thriller."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p627 O 28 '39 130w

SIMKHOVITCH, MRS MARY MELINDA (KINGSBURY). Group life. 99p $1 Assn. press

301.1523 Group work. Sociology 40-14517

"[Study] of the characteristics of various 'group' relationships, the responsibilities which they imply and the conditions of their satisfactory functioning. The treatment covers such groups as family, school, play groups, clubs, committees, vocational groups, labor organizations, consumers' cooperatives and churches, as well as such wider or less organized groups as race, class, neighborhood and nation." (Christian Century) Bibliography.

Booklist 37:112 N 15 '40

"A very competent and suggestive study."

+ Christian Century 57:926 Jl 24 '40 80w

J Home Econ 33:43 Ja '41 180w

"The book is useful to volunteers and new workers in group work agencies primarily because it shows the many facets of group work, and suggests by implication the groups with which the social worker, always emphasized as a good citizen in the community, should be identified. . . The book is beautifully written, simply and clearly, but its flowing style would have gained by the omission of distracting footnotes." F. G. Cassidy

+ Survey 76:276 S '40 360w

SIMMONDS, LESLIE. The framework of faith. (Teaching of the church ser) 262p $2.50 (8s 6d) Longmans

230 Christianity

"This is the first volume of 'The Teaching of the Church' series under the general editorship of Canon Roger Lloyd. In it Mr. Simmonds discusses the general outline of Christian dogma bringing it into relation with the issues raised by modern thought." Times [London] Lit Sup

---

SIMMONDS, LESLIE—Continued
"Like the curate's egg, the book is good in spots. The first five chapters on the nature of God and man are indeed excellent. But the last five are sadly disappointing. Mr. Simmonds is clearly not at home in the New Testament. . . It is sad to think that this sort of thing is going out as 'The Teaching of the Church.' " F. J. Moore

— + Churchman 154:17 Ap 1 '40 260w

"It is the kind of book that should be useful especially to theological students or the younger clergy for Mr Simmonds has thought it all out for himself and has a very firm grasp of the way in which the framework hangs together and of the structure which should result."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p691 N 25 '39 90w

SIMMONS, ALMO BEALS. I write in anguish; the vivid true-life story of an American family and a boy refugee portrays the human drama of a European tragedy. 102p il $1.25 The author, Provo, Utah

296 Jews—Persecutions. Refugees, Political 40-1347

Story, told in letters, cablegrams, and telegrams, of a young German-Jewish refugee, residing in Czechoslovakia. An American family living in Utah interested themselves in the youth and tried every way possible to get him into the United States. At date of publication all their efforts have failed.

"Juvenile, one might almost dismiss it as puerile, were it not for the obvious sincerity of the correspondence and the tragedy back of the boy's futile efforts to escape the scene of persecution." W. C. Lehmann

Am Soc R 5:454 Je '40 120w

"It is a story of hope deferred and again deferred, but one lays it down feeling that so much persistence and good will cannot be wasted; and that Johann, if he can survive his present perils, will one day find the home that is awaiting him out in Utah." J. C. Colcord

+ Survey 76:118 Mr '40 140w

SIMMONS, ERNEST JOSEPH. Dostoevski; the making of a novelist. 416p $3 Oxford

891.73 Dostoevskii, Fedor Mikhailovich 40-13927

"The present book—a study of the works of Dostoevski—is an attempt to throw some light on those factors that influenced his creative process and his religious, political, and social thought. Biographical material is used only when it seems to contribute to this general purpose. . . Quotations from Dostoevski's fiction have been based on the admirable translations of Constance Garnett, but in every instance these have been compared with the originals, and, when it seemed advisable, changes have been made. All quotations from Dostoevski's non-fictional works—letters, notes, and articles —have been translated, with very few exceptions, from the Russian." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 37:134 D 1 '40

"For the sake of his argument, Dr. Simmons tones down, or ignores, many of Dostoevski's traits, experiences, and conceptions. . . Many readers prefer their Dostoevski raw, unpasteurized, with all his microbes, germs and bacilli. [His] book, strictures aside, is a splendid achievement in the growing field of Dostoevskiana. The non-Russian reader, in particular will be grateful for the new data on the man and his work, culled from Soviet sources, and clearly analyzed. The pages on Dostoevski's early works are especially stimulating, in suggesting the embryonic traits of his later masterpieces." Alexander Kaun

+ — Books p17 S 15 '40 1000w

Cath World 152:365 D '40 550w

Christian Science Monitor p11 S 28 '40 550w

Reviewed by F. W. Dupee
Nation 151:197 S 7 '40 550w

Reviewed by Avrahm Yarmolinsky
New Repub 103:636 N 4 '40 800w

"The two best books on Dostoevski in English have so far been Avrahm Yarmolinsky's life of him, rich in biographical materials, and Edward Hallett Carr's biography, superb on the interpretative side. To these must now be added Mr. Simmons's excellent study which, while overlapping now and then on the biographical data of the two volumes, provides a new approach to the genius and mentality of the great Russian." John Cournos

+ N Y Times p30 D 1 '40 1100w

New Yorker 16:72 S 7 '40 30w

"This prodigious task is accomplished with enthusiasm and expresses the critic's admiration for the supreme realist of exaggeration. Mr. Simmons does not enter deeply into the flaws of Dostoevski's art. He is content to mention now and again that Dostoevski's characters were pathological cases, and proceeds to build up his hero, and to expound Dostoevski's Christianity. . . A fine contribution to our knowledge of a great and enigmatic Russian figure." Manya Gordon

+ Sat R of Lit 22:18 S 14 '40 1400w

Time 36:66 S 2 '40 500w

SIMMONS, HARRY. New roads to selling. 235p $2.50 Harper

658.8 Salesmen and salesmanship 40-9161

"In effect the book is a working manual of tested rules and methods boiled down into new sales angles. Here Mr. Simmons shows what sales strategies and opportunities have developed as a result of the introduction of scores of new products and services in the last 10 years, and he shows how and under what conditions salesmen must revise their tactics to get maximum results. New perspectives on old ideas are provided in numerous interesting anecdotes." (Management R) Index.

Booklist 36:409 Jl 1 '40

Management R 29:194 My '40 240w

SIMON, CHARLIE MAY (HOGUE) (MRS JOHN GOULD FLETCHER). The faraway trail; il. by Howard Simon. 213p $2 Dutton

(W) 40-3364

Story for children of nine to eleven. The time is the 1850s and the Blair family travels by covered wagon from Tennessee to Arkansas and settles there, builds their cabin, and tills the soil. Some of the members of the family go farther afield, but eventually they return to Arkansas.

Booklist 36:266 Mr 1 '40

"A trail story must now be pretty good to make me read it through. This one is; it is concerned less with going somewhere than with staying there. . . [It is a] good, useful record of an American beginning." M. L. Becker

+ Books p6 F 18 '40 470w

"It's a quiet, gentle story, set against a lovely background, about an appealing family and their kindly homey neighbors, with interesting happenings, with never a dull moment for the reader. We heartily recommend the book to both girls and boys and for family reading aloud." F. B. Sloan

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 F 26 '40 210w

Cleveland Open Shelf p8 Mr '40

"Though the tale in essence has been told many times over, this one brings an unusual freshness and simplicity to its pages and the happy side of pioneer life as seen through the eyes of a little girl is admirably portrayed. The chapter headings and illustrations by Howard Simon, as well as the large type, help to make the book an attractive one." Florence O'Gara

+ Library J 65:214 Mr 1 '40 100w

Reviewed by R. A. Hill
Library J 65:850 O 15 '40 30w

"In this, her sixth book, Charlie May Simon returns to the background of her first and happiest writing, bringing to it an even deeper felicity of phrase, a keener delight in the beauty of the piney woods of Arkansas and in the affectionate understanding and loyalties which enrich family life." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p10 F 4 '40 290w

New Yorker 16:97 My 18 '40 40w

Springf'd Republican p7e D 8 '40 160w

Wis Lib Bul 36:142 O '40

SIMON, ELLEN. The critter book [il. by the author]. [48p] $1.50 Holiday

680 Handicraft 40-13222

Suggestions for making small toys out of cork, nutshells, twigs, string, paper, cones, etc. The text is illustrated with colored pictures scattered thru the text.

"As nothing to be made can be called useful, the urge to make it will be stronger; it is a book for a real holiday. You may emerge from it with a menagerie, a shop, a country fair complete, or just with a collection of critters like Rube Goldberg's best, but you'll have something gay and lively." M. L. Becker
+ Books p7 S 15 '40 200w

Churchman 154:35 D 1 '40 30w

"Good for days and weeks of activity."
+ Commonweal 33:121 N 22 '40 40w

"One cannot help but wonder if making queer looking 'critters' is the best use to which they might be put. Small fingers would have difficulty in handling many of the tiny objects and larger fingers would ordinarily be about more active and satisfying pursuits than making a gronkey, gringiggle, a cork critter, a conical critter, a doll critter or even a whole critter town. However, a chance for making a convalescence or a rainy day less tedious is here." Miriam Snow
Library J 65:715 S 1 '40 100w

SIMON, GEORGE THOMAS. Don Watson starts his band; foreword by Benny Goodman. 303p $2 Dodd

40-33458

Story of the career of a young band leader who gets his start in high school, and continues until he and his band are playing for the Red network of the N.B.C. For older boys.

"Apart from its valuable setting out of the difference between amateur playing for friendly audiences and playing professionally, the most useful feature of the story is its elucidation of the 'new music' of the hour. For this is a book from the inside. Experts trying to explain it to middle-aged musicians too often blind them with excess of light. Mr. Simon shows a youngster's band in action, making the crossing that boys now make so soon, between amateur and professional performance, and the result is an enlightening account of a new profession." M. L. Becker
+ Books p6 Ja 12 '41 320w

"A solid realistic job." Robert Van Gelder
+ Sat R of Lit 23:7 N 16 '40 30w

SIMON, YVES. Nature and functions of authority. 78p $1.50 Marquette univ. press

323.4 Authority 40-32727

"This is the Aquinas Lecture for 1940 under the auspices of the Aristotelian Society of Marquette University. It is a scholarly and well articulated discussion throwing much light on the attitudes of modern Thomists and Aristotelians toward authority. Its criticisms of liberalism and liberals are particularly pungent." Christian Century

Christian Century 57:1282 O 16 '40 120w

"Dr. Simon handles an important problem with unusual competence. The excellence of his present effort is diminished only by his having had to confine his exposition within the narrow limits of a single lecture." David Dalrymple
+ Commonweal 33:85 N 8 '40 240w

Reviewed by K. D. Benne
J Philos 38:54 Ja 16 '41 420w

SIMONE, ANDRE, pseud. J'accuse! the men who betrayed France; introd. by Carleton Beals. 354p $2.50 Dial press

944.08 France—Politics and government. European war, 1939—France. Statesmen, French (W) 40-27667

A popularly written, rapid survey of French domestic politics and international policies from 1933 to June 1940. Among those the author accuses of betraying France are Bonnet, Laval, Weygand, Sarraut, Daladier, Reynaud, Petain, and Chautemps.

Atlantic N '40 140w

Booklist 37:33 O 1 '40

"A fascinating book, which fully describes the figures and tendencies behind France's tragedy." M. W. Fodor
+ Books p4 S 15 '40 1400w

"Mr. Simone's story is certainly not the penetrating and understanding history of France's fall, which cannot be written yet. It is a story written in an understandable anger and indignation, nevertheless, it is a revealing story, and it is a story with a lesson." Hans Kohn
+ — Boston Transcript p1 S 28 '40 140w

"Here is a brilliant, bitter, well informed, highly partisan, absorbing, and at times irritating book." W. H. Chamberlin
+ Christian Science Monitor p10 O 5 '40 750w

"Aside from many errors in fact, aside from its absurd title, lurid style and some comic over-simplifications, there is something exceedingly spurious about this account of venal politics in France in the years just preceding the outbreak of war and the ten months before the capitulation. . . In style, this ostensible translation is about as French in its locutions as Damon Runyon's." Lamar Middleton
— Living Age 359:190 O '40 900w

"André Simone's lucid account of the tragedy should find a host of avid readers. They will not be disappointed. The 'white heat of anger' promised on the jacket will be found in these pages; but also something of far greater value —the restraint of a disciplined mind." Albert Guerard
+ Nation 151:247 S 21 '40 950w

Reviewed by Norbert Guterman
New Repub 103:392 S 16 '40 1100w

"In 'J'Accuse' it is the accusing finger which dominates, and dominates in an aggressive way which puts any man acquainted with the tragedy of France and how it came about into an antagonistic frame of mind even when he admits that some of these accusations may be justified." P. J. Philip
N Y Times p9 N 10 '40 370w

New Yorker 16:82 S 21 '40 40w

Springf'd Republican p10 S 6 '40 800w

Reviewed by Lindsay Rogers
Survey G 29:626 D '40 200w

Time 36:82 O 7 '40 240w

SIMONS, IRVING. Unto the fourth generation; gonorrhea and syphilis; what the layman should know; with il. by M. Emanuel. 243p $2.50 Dutton

616.95 Gonorrhea. Syphilis

A discussion of gonorrhea and syphilis written in terms suitable for the lay reader. Index.

"In view of the author's scientific competence and his deep seriousness of purpose, it is a matter of real regret that his book is so badly

SIMONS, IRVING—Continued
written that the reader is constantly distracted by confusion and repetition, and his perception of the invaluable knowledge that the author has and wishes to convey is inevitably dulled." H. M. Parshley
+ — Books p22 Mr 3 '40 350w

Reviewed by J. D. Barney, M.D.
Boston Transcript p11 F 29 '40 320w

SIMPSON, ALYSE. The convent. 311p $2.50 Knopf [8s 6d Dent]

271.9 Convents and nunneries (W) 40-3942

Account of the author's experiences as a young novice in the convent of the Mystic Rose in the Swiss mountains. After suffering two years of hardship and unhygienic conditions the young nun came to realize that she had mistaken her vocation and returned to the world.

"This is no lurid Maria Monk affair. This narrative has no scarlet passages of passionate sin, no flesh for flesh's sake, no crime, no tragedy, and absolutely no humor. It is just a dull, colorless account of a personal experience. And yet, because of publishers' blurbs and prejudiced reviewers, the book is capable of doing untold harm." Adrian Peyton
— America 62:553 F 24 '40 500w

" 'The Convent' is a convincing and beautiful chapter of autobiography by reason of the gentleness and understanding that the author brings to it. . . In her telling the book becomes not merely an account of convent life but also a commentary, interwoven with wisdom, tragedy and humor, on hopes and fears that stir human beings both within and without the monastic life." Mary Ross
+ Books p2 F 4 '40 1000w

Reviewed by M. E. Smith
Boston Transcript p1 F 17 '40 400w

"To an experienced observer the conglomeration here presented looks more like a distorted image than a true photograph. One's suspicion is strengthened by the fact that the author (as revealed by her own words) seems to be a very mundane egotist, with no equipment for an intelligent understanding of the basis of the religious life. . . In tone and style she shows neither sympathy nor familiarity with Catholic viewpoints and Catholic usage." C. A.
— Cath World 150:754 Mr '40 500w

New Repub 102:321 Mr 4 '40 90w

"A moving and penetrating book, surprisingly dispassionate, possessed of a sincerity which is unmistakable. It has a fresh charm, a gentle irony and humor which are exercised frequently at the author's expense." E. H. Walton
+ N Y Times p4 F 4 '40 1200w

Discussion by Sister Mary Claire, O.S.F.
N Y Times p27 Mr 3 '40 1600w

New Yorker 15:80 F 10 '40 20w

"The book is well written, though it sometimes sounds a little like a translation. The daily life in the convent is carefully described. The account is detailed but certainly not dispassionate, nor impartial. It would be interesting to hear the other nuns' side of the story." R. C. Benét
Sat R of Lit 21:11 F 24 '40 750w

"The description of individual nuns is good in the early pages, but as the book progresses they tend to lose their identity—perhaps as they did in life." Anthony Powell
+ — Spec 163:225 Ag 11 '39 240w

"If it were only for its unusual theme this book would be remarkable. Not only, however, has the author something new to say—few books have been written with first-hand knowledge of convent life as it appears to a nun—but she says it with grace and competence. It does not need the publishers' assurance to convince us that 'The Convent' is authentic autobiography, though it approximates in form to a novel. . . The characters of the three friends and of the various nuns are drawn with unusual understanding. A sad air of truth hangs over this record of unnecessary discomfort, hysterical outbursts, and sentimental attachments to a handsome chaplain. So few of these women ever attain to the peace for which they strive so painfully. The story of their strivings would be absorbing merely as an authentic account of a way of life that is strange to most of us, but it is told with a skill and a sympathy that raise it to the higher level of tragedy."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p408 Jl 8 '39 400w

SIMPSON, HELEN DE GUERRY (MRS D. J. BROWNE). Maid no more. 322p $2.50 Reynal [8s 3d Heinemann]

(W) 40-11562

Story of the adventures of two English women evangelists and an Oxford don on board the Nonsuch, sailing for Barbados in the days of Oliver Cromwell. Mary Askill, who had been whipped thru the streets of Oxford for her "testifying" is the strongest character. It was mainly thru her common sense measures that the ship survived storm and mutiny, and reached its destination. There new dangers surrounded them, and there too, Mary became the leader, this time of the slaves released from the hold of the Nonsuch.

Booklist 37:13 S '40

"Miss Simpson is, on the whole, a conscientious writer and such of her descriptions as the Negro method of snaring a snake or the tribal dance to invite fertility are no doubt completely authentic. She is authoritative, too, in the use of quaint and obsolete language which fits the period though, to the casual modern reader, such words as duppy, rix and gaggle may seem more decorative than understandable." Muriel Chatain
+ Books p8 Jl 28 '40 650w

"The tale is written in a style that is scented faintly with the old fashioned, yet just misses being artificially quaint. The love story is moving, if inconclusive, the drama of the struggle between romance, as it is conceived today, and piety, as it was conceived three centuries ago, takes life from the author's understanding of an unusual theme." E. B. Schriftgiesser
+ Boston Transcript p2 O 5 '40 320w

Christian Century 57:977 Ag 7 '40 140w

"This is a novel to be hailed with gratitude." Charles Marriott
+ Manchester Guardian p3 Ja 23 '40 280w

New Repub 103:198 Ag 5 '40 50w

"Every scene is alive in itself and also an integral detail in the whole full-packed picture, and every incident seems to intensify contrast or conflict or development. The tale's pace is never quickened, the teller's voice is never raised, the characters never step out of their time and place: relentlessly the physical and spiritual drama proceeds to its climax, in a story which is told with the beauty of perfect fitness and absorbed skill." Katherine Woods
+ N Y Times p7 Jl 21 '40 850w

New Yorker 16:63 Jl 20 '40 60w

" 'Maid No More' is good fantasy. True, there are times when its characters, forgetting that they do not belong to a real world, threaten to become mountebanks or moralists; there are times when the prose loses its simplicity and strives for those effects which can be achieved, perhaps, only by the Sylvia Townsend-Warners and the Virginia Woolfs of this world. At such times, the whole story is in danger of dissolution. The fact that it does not dissolve, that it never sinks into the commonplace or the nonsensical, is sufficient proof of the restraint and skill of its author." George Dangerfield
+ — Sat R of Lit 22:10 Jl 27 '40 550w

"The story, in its outward events, is exciting, and beautifully, imponderably set against tropic light, and in thin air. But the book's great quality, for some readers, will lie in its presentation of long-drawn, subtle, generous conflict of sense and spirit between those unexpected lovers, the Cavalier and Mary Askill. The interaction of the two is beautifully written; a high and brilliant flight of imagination. It is witty, mystical, true and touching." Kate O'Brien

+ Spec 164:153 F 2 '40 380w

"The story has depth and originality and is told with lively skill; after the first over-adroit move Miss Simpson's hand never falters. . . It is a finely conceived and wittily allusive story, in which imagination, in Shelley's words, assumes flesh for the redemption of mortal passion."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p43 Ja 27 '40 850w

SIMPSON, JOHN ERNEST. Into my storehouse; a treasure chest of stewardship materials; with graded memory course by W. J. Harper McKnight. 192p $1.50 Revell

248 Stewardship, Christian 40-35807

"This 'treasure chest of stewardship materials' is probably the most extensive and varied collection of material dealing with the relation of the Christian to his possessions. It includes sermon outlines, citations and analyses of biblical teachings, illustrations, stewardship plans and programs, and a graded course of instruction for youth of all ages." Christian Century

---

Christian Century 57:1282 O 16 '40 50w

Churchman 154:35 D 1 '40 50w

SIMS, DOROTHY (RICE) (MRS PHILIP HAL SIMS). Curiouser and curiouser; a book in the jugular vein; il. by the author, and with a foreword by George S. Kaufman. 203p $2 Simon & Schuster

B or 92 (W) 41-470

Frank, humorous autobiography. Mrs Sims, wife of P. Hal Sims the bridge expert, has several claims to fame in her own right, beginning as one of the famous Rice children "who never heard 'don't.'" Later she studied art and was one of the founders of the Independent show. She was also one of the early women aviators of the country. And finally, as the wife of a bridge expert, she invented "psychic bidding."

"Truth is not only stranger than fiction, it is funnier. An honest autobiography proves that, but this one, being a new high in honesty, is also a new high in humor. Honesty—a supernal, cosmic honesty—is the point of the book, and the point is so delicately placed that it will tickle you into voluntarily slitting your throat from ear to ear with laughter." Thomas Sugrue

+ Books p18 D 8 '40 1000w

"What Dorothy wanted from an early age, she says, was a career. From an early age she made, as frankly, a career of witty exhibitionism. Using her family and her friends, as well as herself, for material, she has turned all this in her own inimitable fashion to the uses of a book which can stand alone as surely (though not for the same reasons) as whipped cream. We shouldn't be surprised if some one described it as 'most unique.'"

+ N Y Times p6 D 22 '40 550w

Springf'd Republican p7e D 22 '40 700w

SIMS, MRS MARIAN (MCCAMY). The city on the hill. 357p $2.50 Lippincott

40-32625

The city of the title is in North Carolina. The story is of a young lawyer's fight against bigotry, corruption, and general inertia, which ends in his public discrediting. His course is complicated by his own father's stern, censorious attitude toward his attempts at city reform.

Atlantic D '40 120w

Booklist 37:91 N 1 '40

"Miss Sims does an able job of portraying the backstairs life of politics. That Steve does not emerge as the white-haired lad of Medbury is tribute to her ability as an artist and realist. 'The City on the Hill' makes good reading. Steve is real, likable and human. The narrative is swift, and dialogue brisk and colloquial." Rose Feld

+ Books p2 O 27 '40 440w

"Mrs. Sims knows how to make her characters seem real people. The reader has a feeling of having really known Steve, his father, Kate, Jean, Alan, and Susan. The story might be too realistic for some libraries, but it is a good addition to the year's output of social novels." Margaret Winning

+ Library J 65:808 O 1 '40 300w

"There are some excellent portrayals of familiar human types. The story has zest and its leading figures easily capture the reader's sympathy. No doubt it will appeal to many readers who enjoy a well-told tale that reflects an aspect of contemporary American life." Drake de Kay

+ N Y Times p7 N 3 '40 500w

"Marian Sims is a superb reporter. These courtroom scenes were never devised in her imagination. They are too sharp for that. She was there. She saw them. Her characters are real, flesh and blood. She set herself a stiff assignment and turned in a swell job." J. F. Dinneen

+ Sat R of Lit 23:18 O 26 '40 500w

SINCLAIR, MRS BERTHA (MUZZY). See Bower, B. M., pseud.

SINCLAIR, HAROLD. Westward the tide. 359p $2.75 Doubleday

Clark, George Rogers—Fiction (W) 40-33068

Historical novel about George Rogers Clark in the earlier years of his life. The story is told as the reminiscences of one Philip Guard who was a member of the expedition to capture Vincennes, which opened the way to Detroit, and the territory between the Alleghenies and the Mississippi.

Booklist 37:156 D 15 '40

"Mr. Sinclair's style is direct and unaffected, as if this were indeed a soldier remembering what he saw and did, in great days, under a great leader. And the thread of Philip Guard's own love story runs charmingly and naturally through the novel's larger events." John Patton

+ Books p6 O 6 '40 600w

"There is a hooked-on love story that may be ignored; otherwise this is stirring stuff told with simplicity, directness and a nice regard for history."

+ — New Repub 104:62 Ja 13 '41 50w

"George Rogers Clark is not, to be sure, an obscure hero. But the energetic red-headed Indian fighter . . . has never before been presented half so effectively in the pages of a novel. With shrewd dramatic sense . . . Mr. Sinclair has limited the scope of his action. We take leave of the great frontiersman when the tide of his glory is just coming into flood." Margaret Wallace

+ N Y Times p7 O 6 '40 1000w

"Mr. Sinclair has a quietly persuasive manner of describing a period and the persons in it, whether actual or fictional."

+ New Yorker 16:101 O 12 '40 60w

"Harold Sinclair reveals himself again as a sound, realistic, and excusably romantic-minded historical novelist." Herbert Gorman

+ Sat R of Lit 23:15 N 9 '40 380w

SINCLAIR, HAROLD. The years of growth, 1861-1893. 415p $2.75 Doubleday
(W) 40-5192

Continues the story begun in American Years (Book Review Digest, 1938). In this phase of the development of a town—Everton, Illinois—the chronicle covers the years between 1861 and 1893.

Booklist 36:307 Ap 1 '40

"It's a plain, unadorned tale, this town's remembrance of things past with its mood of nostalgia at the end, a careful re-creation of a patch of history. It also makes a good American novel." F. T. Marsh

+ Books p5 F 18 '40 650w

"Partly historical novel, partly novelized history, partly the study of one individual, partly the study of all classes, the book is a fine bit of Americana." D. C. Thompson

+ Boston Transcript p3 Mr 2 '40 900w

Cleveland Open Shelf p12 My '40

"If it's a little short on dramatic highlights it has more than its share of humor and genuine nineteenth-century flavor strongly to recommend it."

+ New Repub 102:354 Mr 11 '40 50w

"Lovers of the American tradition will find in the reading of this book, with its evocation of a dramatic and colorful period, a stimulating adventure." Drake de Kay

+ N Y Times p7 F 25 '40 700w

New Yorker 16:77 F 24 '40 70w

"Mr. Sinclair's writing is rarely distinguished or exciting. It is never invertebrate or shoddy, never sensational or meretricious, but there is a jogging commonplaceness which is often too soothing, and which dims the brilliance of his fine pageant of the years."

+ — Sat R of Lit 21:10 F 24 '40 550w

SINCLAIR, UPTON BEALL. World's end. 740p $3 Viking
(W) 40-7427

An historical novel dealing with Europe and Americans in Europe from 1913 to 1919. The hero is a young American, illegitimate son of a munitions manufacturer and a famous beauty. With his mother Lanny lives chiefly in Paris, traveling in other countries, meeting many of the famous people of the day. When his father visits Europe he draws Lanny into the international intrigues of the armament makers, while a revolutionary uncle shows him the other side.

Booklist 36:430 Jl 15 '40

"It is Upton Sinclair's biggest and most ambitious novel. It is also very likely his best story—superior as a novel to 'Oil' and 'Co-op.' It may puzzle you because of its artistry (plain though that be): because of its subtlety—because it is not hard-hitting, as was 'The Jungle,' but a here-'s-the-picture-make-of-it-what-you-will study. But it shouldn't puzzle us." F. T. Marsh

+ Books p3 Je 16 '40 1050w

"'Every business man is something of a revolutionist, whether he knows it or not,' a Swiss diplomat once told Lanny. Perhaps that is the real moral of Mr. Sinclair's novel. Whether it has a moral or not, it has the likely narrative quality which Upton Sinclair has given even his most religious Socialist Sunday-school tracts, and it has a range and perspective attained in no other of his novels. It could not be more timely." Lewis Gannett

+ Boston Transcript p11 Je 18 '40 900w

Reviewed by E. B. Gulick
Boston Transcript p1 Je 22 '40 750w

Reviewed by Marguerite Wyke
Canadian Forum 28:188 S '40 490w

Cath World 151:503 Jl '40 800w

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison
Christian Century 57:1079 S 4 '40 900w

Reviewed by G. E. Shipler, Jr.
Churchman 154:20 S 1 '40 120w

Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Jl '40

"The canvas of his work is large. He creates suspense over the central problem of the work, whether anything can be done about the awful mess. But the movement is considerably slackened in the latter part of the book by taking the emphasis away from the hero and placing it on the historical narrative. But it is brilliantly written. What it completely lacks is any understanding of ultimate truth." W. J. Grace

— + Commonweal 32:234 Jl 5 '40 500w

Reviewed by Wilfrid Gibson
Manchester Guardian p6 Ag 30 '40 280w

"If you want an easy, fairly encyclopedic history of the World War period, with side glances at London slums, New England picket lines, the New York theater, a castle in Silesia, and the foreshore of the Côte d'Azur, 'World's End' serves its purpose. But it is not fiction in the finest sense of the word; there is practically no interaction of character, no intense plumbing of the personal, even as it is affected by the sociological." John Chamberlain

Nation 151:54 Jl 20 '40 1000w

"Lanny for all the shrewdness that goes into portraying him, is a kind of fairy-tale figure, a brilliant invention for the author's purposes but never independent of them. None of the characters, for that matter, is deeply conceived, but to demand that kind of greatness is asking too much, not merely of Sinclair but of the genre he has chosen. On its own level 'World's End' is a job it would be hard to beat." Granville Hicks

+ — New Repub 102:863 Je 24 '40 700w

"Anyone who thinks he would like to read World's End should remember that Mr. Sinclair's style is hardly sparkling or concise. . . But such failings are not of very great consequence, and there is a quantity of out-of-the-way information and political scandal to make up for it. The Briey Basin affair, for example, is excellently outlined, and takes its place in the story with considerable effect. Finally, few people of sense will quarrel with the conclusions Mr. Sinclair, and Lanny, derive from twentieth-century history." Brian Howard

+ — New Statesman & Nation 20:243 S 7 '40 460w

"Mr. Sinclair emerges as the successful painter of an epoch, as a first-class mingler of fiction with historic fact, even, after all these years, as a humorist." R. L. Duffus

+ N Y Times p1 Je 16 '40 1550w

"Though 'World's End' is a failure, it's readable and surprisingly free of Mr. Sinclair's usual didactic touch. Not that it's expertly written. On the contrary, it exhibits that heavy energy which is the hallmark of Mr. Sinclair's style, and the prose at its worst is mid-Victorian." Clifton Fadiman

— + New Yorker 16:68 Je 22 '40 1050w

Pratt p24 autumn '40

"Most of the book represents Upton Sinclair at his energetic best—the episodes of romance and adventure, together with the whole sweeping world-picture, provide our own difficult days with absorbing and thought-provoking reading." H. T. Moore

+ — Sat R of Lit 22:5 Je 15 '40 800w

Time 35:92 Je 24 '40 1200w

"No better-intentioned person than Mr. Upton Sinclair exists, but there are better novelists and as a propagandist he is, at least for a British audience, five or perhaps ten years out of date. . . The waging of one war is hardly the aptest moment for conducting an inquest on the one before it, unless of course some constructive suggestion emerges, but that is what Mr. Sinclair's story signally lacks."

Times [London] Lit Sup p409 Ag 24 '40 300w

Wis Lib Bul 36:127 Jl '40

SINGMASTER, ELSIE (MRS HAROLD LEWARS). Stories to read at Christmas. 231p il $2 Houghton

Christmas stories (W) 40-32568

Seventeen stories for reading and telling at Christmas. They have been cut from the original stories, which appeared in magazines, and arranged in order according to the time required for reading aloud. The shortest requires eleven minutes; the longest twenty-five.

"This is an attractive book, useful for young and older people, will serve as a gift and will carry happiness and the feeling of Christmas into individual homes and to community groups." F. B. Sloan

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 D 19 '40 150w

"A collection of the best of Miss Singmaster's many Christmas stories which have so long delighted the hearts of children. That is a sufficient guarantee of the merit of this pleasant volume."

+ Churchman 154:4 D 15 '40 30w

"Fresh, unhackneyed Christmas stories for reading and telling are hard to find, so Miss Singmaster's book . . . is very welcome." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p10 D 1 '40 230w

SITWELL, OSBERT. Escape with me! an Oriental sketch-book. 322p il $3 Smith & Durrell [12s 6d Macmillan]

915 Indo-China—Description and travel. Angkor, Cambodia. China—Description and travel. Peking—Description (W) 40-14026

The main objectives of Mr Sitwell's travels in the Far East were Cambodia in Indo-China and Peking. With many digressions, autobiographical and personal anecdotes, literary and philosophical comments, he sets down the impressions he received of the beauty and wonder of these ancient civilizations. Index.

Booklist 37:10 S '40

"The subtitle to 'Escape With Me' is 'an Oriental sketch book' and that, rather than a travel book, is precisely what it is, and as such it is wholly delightful. It would not serve as a guidebook to either Angkor Vat or Peking, and I doubt whether it would give any one who had never visited either place a very clear idea of either as a whole; but it should be of great help to any ordinary mortal who has seen either or both, for it will probably tell him better than he has ever understood why he was so profoundly impressed by them." Rodney Gilbert

+ Books p2 Jl 14 '40 1000w

Reviewed by Isabel Paterson

Boston Transcript p11 Jl 18 '40 650w

Reviewed by J. C. Skinner

Boston Transcript p1 Ag 3 '40 420w

"I do not hesitate to say that this is one of the best travel books I have ever read." Eric Forbes-Boyd

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Ja 13 '40 480w

Current Hist & Forum 51:4 Ag '40 450w

"There is very little, in this book, of the preciosity for which the Sitwells have popularly been noted. There is instead an accuracy and fitness of word and tone which is amazingly sustained, considering the temptations of Peking and Angkor Vat." Margaret Marshall

+ Nation 151:95 Ag 3 '40 650w

Nature 145:809 My 25 '40 260w

"This is a beautiful and interesting book which Osbert Sitwell has written about Angkor as a city of centuries ago and an experience of today, and about Peking of an immediate yesterday and perhaps still of tomorrow. . . The Chinese people are observed with perspicacity and appreciation. And as the book is one of taste and a scholarly interest, it has room none the less for compassion and mordant wit. 'Escape With Me!' is, in short, Osbert Sitwell's own book of Oriental 'sketches'—esthetic but unaffected, personal yet not egocentric, a book of travel with the quality of literature." Katherine Woods

+ N Y Times p9 Jl 14 '40 1800w

"'Escape with Me!' is an elaborate book, constructed with care, composed in a slightly orotund, formal prose that has its own grave and studied beauty. From time to time the preciosity that is the hallmark of all the Sitwells emerges too visibly. . . But I feel he is entitled to his mauve passages, for the foundation of this Oriental sketchbook is solid. It is written so that it may be read with no more and no less pleasure ten years from now, for the matters of which it treats are not easily affected by the visitations of new conquerors, having survived those of so many old ones." Clifton Fadiman

+ New Yorker 16:62 Jl 20 '40 650w

"'Escape with Me' is the travel book of the poet and philosopher, of the polished man of letters, who already knows everything and has seen everything in his mind's eye and has the words with which to express it, who is surprised at nothing and delighted with everything, to whom new sights and sounds and smells and incongruities are only further bright examples of the charming illogic of yearning, everlasting human nature." Upton Close

Sat R of Lit 22:7 Jl 20 '40 1050w

Time 36:64 Jl 29 '40 100w

"Mr. Sitwell is, first and foremost, a skilful artist in words and his vivid pen-pictures, like those of M. Hovelaque's 'La Chine,' are interesting and engaging, though because of his unfamiliarity with the human equation in problems Far Eastern his descriptions and reflections are generally more convincing when he deals with landscapes, architecture and art than when concerned with the world of men and mundane affairs. But his preoccupation with aesthetics does not necessarily prevent him from expressing pertinent opinions on things that come within his range of vision."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p656 N 11 '39 650w

SITWELL, SACHEVERELL. Old fashioned flowers; il. by John Farleigh. 193p $6.50 Scribner [15s Country life]

635.9 Flowers [40-8798]

Chapters on the flowers found in English gardens a hundred years ago or more. Contents: The Jacobean florist; The auricula; The old primrose and polyanthus; The old English tulip; Carnations and pinks; Miscellaneous florists' flowers; Old fashioned roses; Fuchsias; The nineteenth century florist. Includes a few cultural notes on some of the flowers, and an index.

"One could wish that Mr. Sitwell had brushed up on the geography of this country. It was sad to learn, too, that Mr. Sitwell considers the greatest peril to English gardens is the invasion, together with that of South Africa and the Far East, of the flora of America. That's enough to make old John Bartram churn in his grave." Richardson Wright

Books p10 D 31 '39 600w

"The volume, of course, is one more for specialists than for the average gardener, and one of its purposes is to attract them to what Mr. Sitwell describes as 'probably the easiest and cheapest form of antique collecting.' Mr. Farleigh's illustrations in colour are presented as 'one of the most ambitious experiments of lithography since the great days of floral prints in the earlier part of the nineteenth century.'" B. L.

+ Manchester Guardian p3 D 5 '39 300w

"It is difficult to review this book in a short space; one would like to have three thousand words to express the feelings of exasperation and fascination with which it alternately inspires one. But even in so limited a space mention must be made of an enchanting passage dealing with the occupation and writings of one Shirley Hibberd, whose Rustic Adornments for Homes of Taste was published in 1856. This passage is really the bonne-bouche of the book, since Mr. Hibberd was evidently made for Mr. Sitwell and Mr. Sitwell for Mr. Hibberd. One wishes that Mr. Sitwell could be induced to write a complete biography of this absurd and delightful personage."

SITWELL, SACHEVERELL—Continued

+ — New Statesman & Nation 18:588 O 21 '39 450w

Springf'd Republican p7e O 29 '39 600w (Reprinted from Times [London] Lit Sup)

"Mr. Sitwell's book is practical as well as romantic, and though he tells us that he has had no long experience of growing these old flowers, he gives a good deal of information about how to obtain and cultivate them. Mr. John Farleigh's coloured illustrations are suitably precious and refined, but a few reproductions of old prints of flowers would also have been welcome."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p581 O 7 '39 700w

SIZOO, JOSEPH RICHARD. Not alone. 99p $1.25 Macmillan

248 Christian life 40-32977

Collection of thirteen addresses or sermons for a world at war. They are based on the thesis that the Christian is not alone; that God is not only with the Christian, but is a source of inspiration and power. The author is minister of the Collegiate church of St Nicholas, New York city.

"The very stuff out of which great preaching is made—moral urgency, courageous faith, and an intelligent survey of man's needs and spiritual resources."

+ Christian Century 57:1216 O 2 '40 20w

"This book might be of great value as short sermons to be read by lay readers." H. J. S.

+ Churchman 155:34 Ja 1 '41 60w

Reviewed by W. R. McNutt

Crozer Q 18:80 Ja '41 100w

SKEHAN, JAMES JOSEPH. Modern police work, including detective duty; a book for police officers of all ranks; national in scope. 657p il $3 for sale by Police journal, 1123 Broadway, N.Y.

351.74 Police—U.S. Detectives 39-21432

"A retired captain of the New York Police Department treats the subject from the legal and technical aspects. The sections on clues and laboratory work should delight the heart of the mystery writer. There is a reading list of seventy entries." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Booklist 36:194 Ja 15 '40

N Y New Tech Bks 25:11 Ja '40

SKIDMORE, HUBERT. Hill doctor; il. by Benton Spruance. 307p $2 Doubleday

(W) 40-9447

This sequel to River Rising (Book Review Digest, 1939) follows the career of young York Allen, now a doctor, after his return to his own mountain country. There fighting sickness and poverty, he finds he must also fight prejudice, meanness, and graft but in the end his human enemies are routed and he discovers the source of the typhoid epidemic which threatens the whole community. For older boys.

Booklist 37:20 S '40

"'River Rising' was a good book; this one is better. . . Events and language are stronger than one usually gets in a boys' book, but they both belong to the place, the time and the struggle of strong men to save men's lives in spite of themselves." M. L. Becker

+ Books p5 Ag 4 '40 400w

"A sequel to River Rising, it is a separate story within itself and not dependent upon the former book. While it is certain to be liked by boys, girls will enjoy it, also." D. L. Wood

+ Library J 65:662 Ag '40 120w

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin

Library J 65:857 O 15 '40 40w

"This is a book more worthy of the attention of young people than many of the adult novels about doctors which have been handed down to them in recent years." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p9 Ag 4 '40 450w

Wis Lib Bul 36:128 Jl '40

SKILLING, WILLIAM THOMPSON, and RICHARDSON, ROBERT SHIRLEY. Astronomy. 579p il maps $3 Holt [15s Chapman]

520 Astronomy 39-14777

Textbook covering the whole field of descriptive astronomy, which is written in a graphic style suitable for the general reader. Problems at ends of chapters. Glossary. Index.

"Unfortunately its usefulness [as a complete elementary course] is much impaired by a certain lack of the balance which should characterize a really satisfactory text-book. . . On the other hand, the book certainly contains much up-to-date matter of great interest and value to the student. It is well supplied with illustrations, though some of the diagrams are open to criticism. The text appears, apart from a few minor errors and misprints, to be substantially accurate, but the so-called 'glossary' at the end of the book is so abbreviated as to be practically useless." W. H. Steavenson

+ — Nature 145:445 Mr 23 '40 290w

N Y New Tech Bks 25:19 Ap '40

"Among the many introductory textbooks of astronomy which have appeared during the last two decades the book under review is undoubtedly the one which will be most widely read and appreciated by the layman. . . Valuable as this book will doubtless be for the layman, it would have certain shortcomings if one were to use it as a text. To the present reviewer Chapter II, which deals with coordinate systems on the celestial sphere, has, in class use, been found very unsatisfactory. . . The failure clearly to define terms is not confined to Chapter II but is more or less evident throughout the book. It would seem that if such an excellent idea as a glossary of terms is included it should give complete and concise definitions of all terms used. If it does not do this it had better be left out." S. L. Boothroyd

+ — R of Scientific Instruments 10:278 O '39 600w

"The authors of this book have collaborated with notable success and have here set out the principles of modern astronomy skilfully and attractively, but without evading its difficulties. The book is unusually well illustrated, and is provided with test problems at the ends of chapters, as well as with appendices of constants, &c. Serious students will find it eminently workmanlike and helpful."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p51 Ja 27 '40 70w

SKINKLE, JOHN HENRY. Textile testing; physical, chemical, microscopical. 267p il $3 Chemical pub. co. [15s Macmillan]

677 Textile fabrics—Testing 40-12547

"A text or reference book by a member of the faculty at the Lowell Textile Institute. It consists mainly of technical descriptions or directions of approved methods for the usual tests, with a list of references for each." J Home Econ

J Home Econ 32:566 O '40 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 25:40 Jl '40

SKINNER, CLARENCE RUSSELL. Human nature and the nature of evil. 163p $1 Universalist pub. house

216 Good and evil 40-7914

"This little book gives a . . . discussion of the matter of evil, its nature and results, why there should be evil and can it be overcome?" Churchman

---

Reviewed by J. H. Holmes
Books p11 D 24 '39 100w

Churchman 154:35 Mr 1 '40 70w

SLADE, MRS CAROLINE (BEACH). The triumph of Willie Pond. 370p $2.50 Vanguard 40-7253

Novelization of an American family on relief. It is the story of Willie Pond, his wife Sarah, and their numerous children—decent, self-respecting Americans until the depression hit them. First Willie lost his good job; then he struggled to make a living at any kind of work, including a WPA job. Stricken with tuberculosis Willie is sent to a sanatorium while the family settles down to despair and welfare organizations. Just as they have found help from an understanding welfare worker, and have pulled themselves out of their morass, Willie is pronounced out of danger. When he finds that his recovery means the end of Sarah's "pension" and all security, Willie sees only one way out of the problem and he takes it.

Booklist 36:365 My 15 '40

Reviewed by Mary Ross
Books p12 Ap 14 '40 1200w

Reviewed by Dorothy Gies
Boston Transcript p2 Ap 27 '40 300w

"Though obviously intended to draw attention to the realities of relief—both the giving and the receiving—Mrs. Slade's book makes the travails of the Ponds a warm and absorbing story, not at all like a case history, it poses many disturbing questions. . . The questions are not answered; perhaps they cannot be, but Mrs. Slade deserves a hearty vote of thanks for having suggested them so poignantly in an intensely moving book." L. B. Salomon
+ Nation 150:545 Ap 27 '40 600w

"It is a grim, pathetic, tender, angry story —and even more dreadful in its portentous meanings, I think, than certain other current narratives of subhuman life in this great democracy. I hope it will be read widely, and acted on." Rebecca Pitts
+ New Repub 102:736 My 27 '40 350w

" 'The Triumph of Willie Pond' is an American 'Little Man, What Now?' in many ways a more probing and challenging story. Mrs. Slade has been a social worker and knows her subject thoroughly." Rose Feld
N Y Times p4 Ap 14 '40 1100w

"A terribly pathetic idea, and a pathetic, ironic, and moving book."
New Yorker 16:93 Ap 20 '40 100w

" 'The Triumph of Willie Pond' is a first novel. As such, it is a most impressive work. . . [Mrs Slade's] novel is rich in irony. She spares neither government nor social workers. In fact, she is most sharp in her descriptions of social workers. . . Much these days has been written about the American way of life. Here is a story of Americans, a story of some of the moral and psychological costs of our way of life. It is a story that cannot be ignored. Caroline Slade has given us, in this work, the articulate voice of that political football of election campaigns— 'the forgotten man.' " J. T. Farrell
+ Sat R of Lit 22:14 Ap 27 '40 950w

"The publishers say that the Ponds are 'a Tobacco Road family of the North.' That is not true. The Ponds were a self-respecting, well-intentioned family defeated by circumstance and kicked around by the 'system.' This is much more an American 'Little Man, What Now?' than a 'Tobacco Road of the North.' " Gertrude Springer
+ Survey 76:212 Je '40 550w

Wis Lib Bul 36:128 Jl '40

SLATER, JOHN CLARKE. Introduction to chemical physics. 521p il $5 (33s) McGraw

541 Physics. Chemistry, Physical and theoretical 39-31020

"Aims to train the younger scientists in the modern combination of physics and chemistry and to help the older physicists and chemists understand the theory of chemistry in terms of the newer physics. The author is Professor of Physics at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

N Y New Tech Bks 25:39 Jl '40

"Anyone who has had the privilege of studying under Professor Slater or who has heard some of his lectures knows that any subject he treats is thoroughly understood, well assembled, and presented in a clear concise style. In this book he has lived up to all expectations. . . While the subject matter treated is quite extensive there are other subjects which the reviewer would like to see treated in the same lucid manner in subsequent editions or in a companion volume. Some of these are: semiconductors, adsorption, phenomena which occur at the boundaries between solids, liquids and gases, rectifiers and non-ohmic conductors, magnetic properties, metallurgical problems, and catalysis." J. A. Becker
+ — R of Scientific Instruments 11:154 Ap '40 1400w

SLATTERY, MARGARET. One in seven. 134p $1.25 Harper

242 Christian life 39-34133

Brief inspirational essays, some illustrated with bits of prose or verse taken from all literatures, and each concluding with a biblical reference or two. There are fifty-two essays and they are intended to supply reading for that one day each week when one should find time to be alone.

Boston Transcript p2 Ag 10 '40 50w

Christian Century 56:1512 D 6 '39 10w

"These brief but pointed chapters are written in the simple and beautiful style for which the writer is noted. There is a message here for age and youth, suited to almost every circumstance of life. These messages are revealing, encouraging, stimulating." Rittenhouse Neisser
+ Crozer Q 17:160 Ap '40 80w

"The meditations are exceedingly suggestive; though they are not all of equal worth, most of them show real insight." H. C. Phillips
J Religion 20:320 Jl '40 70w

SLAUGHTER, GERTRUDE ELIZABETH (TAYLOR) (MRS M. S. SLAUGHTER). Calabria, the first Italy. 330p il maps $4 Univ. of Wis. press

945.78 Calabria 40-2778

A history of southernmost Italy, "the toe of the boot," from earliest times down to the beginnings of modern times in the early eighteenth century. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 36:342 My 1 '40

Reviewed by T. C. Chubb
Books p15 Ap 28 '40 250w

"While undoubtedly 'Calabria' is a step further in the progress toward the understanding of this cradle of the first Italy, it cannot be said that this is a fully satisfactory document of its past. It is perhaps too erudite, in its limited scope, to interest the everyday reader and not sufficiently deep to meet with the enthusiasm of the real scholars." Lanfranco Rasponi
— + N Y Times p25 Ja 28 '40 1100w

Wis Lib Bul 36:29 F '40

SLOAN, DONALD. The Shadow Catcher; with il. by the author. 296p $2.75 Doubleday

919.61 Manu'a. Samoan islands 40-9803

The Shadow Catcher was the name given the author by the Manu'a islanders, to designate him as the man who took photographs. This account of his stay in the island, which is in American Samoa, pictures the life and customs of the inhabitants, retells some of their ancient legends, and describes his efforts to learn some of their present ways of living by actual personal experience.

"It is a readable book of mingled excitement, exploration and contentment, and it is happily illustrated with the author's photographs. But some confusion is bound to result from the traveler's confession that he has 'elaborated' his personal experiences and introduced past customs along with present practices into his narrative. He has had no purpose of deception, but we should like to know what belongs to yesterday and what to today." H. M. Shaw
+ — Books p17 S 15 '40 480w

"Descriptions of island life and scenery are as beautiful and as exciting as anything pictured in novels. . . Mr. Sloan's book is a refreshing one, and goes to prove that 'the making of legends here is not of the dead past, but a vital part of everyday life.' " M. van S. Owens
+ Boston Transcript p2 Je 15 '40 340w

"[The author] has tried, he says, to create an accurate picture of Manu'a's untouched life. But his jumbled perspective certainly reduces the book's value, even though it leaves it good reading."
— + N Y Times p8 My 26 '40 550w

SLOBODKINA, ESPHYR. Caps for sale; il. by [the author]. unp $1 Scott, W.R.

40-33530

Picture-story book for the very young, describing the adventures of a peddler who sold caps, and some mischievous monkeys who stole the caps while the peddler was asleep.

"Enchanting pictures with the decorative quality of paper cut-outs illustrate this very funny old folk tale. Highly recommended." E. W. Steele
+ New Repub 103:843 D 16 '40 30w

"From an old folk tale Esphyr Slobodkina has fashioned this bright gay picture book, infusing it with a humor which seems to have sprung from her own hearty enjoyment of the troubles of a peddler with a band of monkeys." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p34 N 10 '40 100w

SMALE, RUDOLPH. There go the ships. 313p il map $4 Caxton printers

910.4 Seafaring life. Voyages and travels 40-29591

Autobiographical record of the author's twenty-seven years at sea. In 1882, at the age of sixteen, Captain Smale left his home in Germany and started his life at sea as a coal passer on a freighter. Ten years later he was first mate on a four-masted barkentine. Twice he has been shipwrecked. After voyages all over the globe he became interested in the west coast trade and made several voyages to Alaska, Mexico and the Gulf of California. He is at present a marine-insurance man in San Francisco.

"It is valuable to have a first-hand record of this service, of which too little has been written. But most of all, it is fine to read again how a man can get on if he has it in him." Lincoln Colcord
+ Books p14 Ja 26 '41 700w

"A devotee of McFee, Conrad, Masefield and the rest will find it very small beer, indeed. Not that the captain has not undergone his share of vicissitudes and had his adventures, but the too simple, too unsubtle approach, the faintly Pollyanna air about the whole book, quickly drains the reader of any curiosity about them." Eleanor Godfrey
Canadian Forum 20:293 D '40 60w

SMALLEY, MATTHEW F., and others. Practical electric metering. 228p il $2.75 Wiley [16s 6d Chapman]

621.373 Electric meters 40-4899

"This book is based upon lessons from a school conducted by a large operating utility company. The purpose of the book is purely educational. The material herein is not expected to serve as a standard practice in making meter installations, but rather to be consulted as a textbook by metermen and others interested in meters in order that they may better understand the equipment used in their work." (Pref) Index.

Booklist 36:302 Ap 1 '40
N Y New Tech Bks 25:21 Ap '40

SMALLZRIED, KATHLEEN ANN. Press pass; a woman reporter's story. 340p $3 Dutton

B or 92 Journalists—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 40-11788

A young woman reporter's description of her experiences on the South Bend (Indiana) News-Times. She wanted "to prove that newspaper work is not exactly what the movies say it is." Her account is filled with details of the behind-the-scenes life of a reporter, whose work consisted of small assignments, but whose enthusiasm never staled.

" 'Press Pass' is not literature, nor is it a profound and significant book, but it succeeds admirably in telling the story of the adventures of a girl reporter in a typical American town. Miss Smallzried has an easy informal way with words and a sense of fun which may in time settle down to a sense of humor. Exuberant is the word for her." Rose Feld
+ Books p12 Jl 7 '40 500w

Reviewed by M. E. Prim
Boston Transcript p1 Jl 20 '40 450w

"The author of 'Press Pass' has written a candid, gay, illuminating book about her experiences . . . and she has struck a note of real distinction in her veracious portrayal of an ordinary newspaper career."
+ N Y Times p5 Jl 14 '40 700w
Sat R of Lit 22:20 Jl 6 '40 420w

"In spite of all the routine hard work [the author] put in on the News-Times, she thinks that newspaper work is fascinating. Her account of it contains a little too much of breathless girlish enthusiasm. However, the book is interesting and often very amusing, and it should be instructive for all journalistically inclined high school seniors who think that being on a newspaper automatically means turning into a glamorous columnist."
+ — Springf'd Republican p10 Jl 11 '40 450w

SMART, CHARLES ALLEN. Rosscommon. 201p $2 Random house

(W) 40-14190

On the eve of the foreclosure sale of his Ohio farm David Macdonald outlined for two of his neighbors, the author and an intelligent unemployed youth, the dream which had haunted him so completely that it had become more real than life. He pictured the farm utopia which his estate, Rosscommon, might have become, developing each detail, while his guests sat entranced thruout the night.

"A sort of anæmic pseudo-philosophic discourse which is enough to make the inhabitants of Brook Farm turn in their graves. There may be a great many people who will enjoy this curious dim blend of Our Town, Erewhon, and just a dash of Otis Skinner in The Honor of the Family. If so, they are people whom, in turn, this reader would in no way enjoy."

— Atlantic S '40 100w

Booklist 37:36 O 1 '40

"'Rosscommon' is a book to be read thoughtfully, appreciatively." F. H. Bullock
+ Books p4 Ag 11 '40 1200w

Reviewed by Ruth Hard
Boston Transcript p1 Ag 24 '40 370w

Reviewed by Kay Montague
Canadian Forum 20:324 Ja '41 300w

"Mr. Smart, the author of 'R.F.D.,' has built up his idea of the Good Life with care. The construction of 'Rosscommon' and the manner in which it is told are not particularly distinguished, prejudiced as one is by the imposing ancestors, Plato to Bellamy, of which this is a modest offspring." Margaret Byard
Commonweal 32:354 Ag 16 '40 280w

"The author may or may not believe that the community he pictures is ideal, but his telling of it is delightful and thoughtful reading for young and old." Lena Ruppert
+ Library J 65:652 Ag '40 80w

Nation 151:139 Ag 17 '40 100w

New Repub 103:310 S 2 '40 50w

Reviewed by L. M. Field
N Y Times p6 Ag 11 '40 750w

"It's a curiously affecting, even heart-warming book, the work of a young writer who is clearly feeling his way toward something quite fine and honest. It's not easy to determine whether you like it because you like Mr. Smart, whose personality somehow seems to pervade the book, or whether it really possesses admirable intrinsic qualities. A good deal of both, perhaps." Clifton Fadiman
+ New Yorker 16:61 Ag 10 '40 360w

Reviewed by Fletcher Pratt
Sat R of Lit 22:6 Ag 17 '40 420w

SMITH, ARTHUR DOUGLAS HOWDEN. Mr House of Texas. 381p pl $3.50 Funk

B or 92 House, Edward Mandell. Wilson, Woodrow. U.S.—Politics and government. European war, 1914-1918—U.S. 40-32767

The author of this work was an intimate friend of his subject for many years, and for some time before Mr House's death had been collecting materials for a biography with the understanding that it was not to be published while he lived. Except for two or three early chapters on Mr House's life up to 1911 or 1912, the volume is devoted almost entirely to political affairs, both domestic and international, during the years which witnessed the "perfect friendship" between Woodrow Wilson and House. Index.

"Mr. Smith's authoritative treatment of many matters gives color to his narrative. But the great virtue of Mr. Smith's book is that rarest of virtues, its disinterestedness, its pervading sense of justice—justice for whom and what one does like, and for whom and what one does not like."
+ Atlantic N '40 650w

"The book is by no means an indiscriminate panegyric of its subject, but it is obviously weighted with an admiration for the Colonel and his works born of intimate contacts, lasting from 1913 until the Colonel's death two years ago, and of indignation over the belittling he has suffered. One should approach it with this in mind. On the other hand, having opened it, few will fail to find in it an absorbing tale, at once educational and highly romantic." W. M. Houghton
+ — Books p3 S 22 '40 1500w

"'This man is a greater American than Theodore Roosevelt.' Howden Smith said to himself as he walked away from the house in East Fifty-third street. That Colonel House was a far greater man than Woodrow Wilson he never doubted; and his book is in part a reply to what Ray Stannard Baker, Edith Bolling Wilson, Walter Lippmann and others have written about the famous friendship. . . Yet it is hard to believe that the mysterious little man would have passed for publication all the grandiloquent claims which Mr. Smith makes for his hero. . . Every detail added to the story has its interest. But most readers are likely to feel that Mr. Smith would have made a more impressive case for his hero had he written less obviously as a hero-worshiper." Lewis Gannett
+ — Boston Transcript p11 S 20 '40 650w

Reviewed by Carlo Sforza
N Y Times p9 O 13 '40 1300w

"Mr. Smith's book is often revealing and, as a whole, is more challenging than if it had been more discreetly written. The author's enthusiasm is genuine, but the real influence that Mr. House exerted was so significant that it hardly needs to be exaggerated."
Springf'd Republican p7e O 6 '40 900w

Reviewed by Leon Whipple
Survey G 29:557 N '40 150w

SMITH, AUGUSTUS H. Your personal economics; an introduction to consumer problems. 651p il map $1.96 McGraw

339.4 Consumption (economics). Investments. Saving and thrift (W) 40-27118

Altho intended as a high school textbook the book "contains much specific information about the problems which concern all consumers. . . Special attention has been given to aiding the young person in building up a background of understanding which will enable him to solve wisely his immediate problems as well as those which he will meet later in life." (Pref) Each chapter has questions and short bibliographies. Contains also a glossary, general bibliography, and index.

Reviewed by Charles Cogen
Am Econ R 30:590 S '40 270w

Booklist 36:231 F 15 '40

J Home Econ 32:253 Ap '40 110w

"Here is a book which should command the attention of those social studies teachers who are looking for an economics text with emphasis upon consumer problems. This book is written in an interesting, understandable, and provocative style. It provides a great wealth of practical materials presented in such a manner as to be understood by all of the pupils." V. E. Pitkin
+ Social Studies 31:239 My '40 210w

SMITH, BERTIE WEBSTER. The world under the sea; a concise account of the marine world. 230p il $3 Appleton-Century [7s 6d Hutchinson]

591.92 Marine fauna. Ocean (W) 40-27355

An "account of oceanic phenomena, followed by a brief general survey of marine life." (Foreword) The author is a member of the Marine Biological association of Great Britain. Index.

Booklist 36:321 Ap 15 '40

Reviewed by H. M. Parshley
Books p14 S 15 '40 100w

Reviewed by G. M. Allen
Boston Transcript p2 Mr 16 '40 550w

"The book should prove a useful introduction to the serious study of marine biology, upon which depends our hopes of intelligent conservation of the wealth of the sea. The illustrations are excellent, though the scheme of their distribution appears to be symmetrical rather than logical." H. G. Maurice
+ Manchester Guardian p3 Ja 23 '40 450w

"When we look out to sea, the author reminds us, our eyes fall only upon a vast roof made of water; until about sixty years ago little was known of what might lie beneath that canopy. Even now 'the unknown immeasurably outweighs the known.' But what is known is strange and fascinating; clear text and striking picture give us an admirable glimpse of it here."

SMITH, B. W.—Continued
+ N Y Times p24 Mr 3 '40 310w

"The author is well qualified by his own research, as well as by his obviously wide acquaintance with the literature of the subject, to describe the wider aspects of the marine world. And the language for the most part will be familiar to the lay reader. . . No better reference book for the library of the yacht or the cottage by the sea could be found."
+ Scientific Bk Club R 11:3 Mr '40 150w

"His writing has a pleasant, informal atmosphere that makes the book extremely readable; and the text is profusely illustrated by excellent photographs and drawings, including a coloured frontispiece that illustrates the gay and brilliant charm of some of the fishes that frequent coral reefs."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p187 Ap 13 '40 100w

SMITH, CHARLES EDWARD. Papal enforcement of some medieval marriage laws. 237p $2.50 La. state univ. press

348 Marriage law 40-12564

"Professor Smith deals first with medieval legislation concerning impediments to marriage and then with the history of papal intervention in the enforcement or relaxation of these laws. Papal dispensations relaxing such laws are found to outnumber the instances of papal enforcement, although these too are numerous and important. Within the general account, some outstanding cases such as those of Lothair II or Philip Augustus are given especially detailed treatment." Ethics

Christian Century 57:515 Ap 17 '40 70w

Reviewed by Marjorie Grene
Ethics 50:480 Jl '40 70w

SMITH, CHARLES EDWARD, and CASE, LYNN MARSHALL. A short history of western civilization. 815p maps $4 Heath

901 Civilization—History 40-13831

Textbook for a college survey course in the history of Western civilization from the days of ancient Mesopotamia and Egypt down to 1939. Index.

"Those instructors who feel the need of a strong factual treatment of political and constitutional history in a survey course in Western European history will find [this] very valuable. They must then realize that they are selecting a basic text for a history course rather than one for a civilization course, in spite of the name of the book." J. H. Landman
Ann Am Acad 211:223 S '40 70w

Cath World 151:763 S '40 80w

"The style is simple and straightforward. It makes the history of each period understandable and interesting. Political history and military history are interwoven in the social and economic fabric. The authors kept in mind not only that they had a long story to tell but that they must continually be answering the question 'Why?' . . The volume has the shortcoming that any such work must inevitably have. The factual skeleton has to be cut to the minimum. Great movements can be pictured only in their general outlines. Many situations that should be treated in great detail have to be passed over. In general, though, the authors have presented a clear, interesting, and readable account of the history of the world. It should be helpful to students and teachers." W. F. English
+ — School R 48:553 S '40 500w

"This work is a contribution to the survey course, presumably for college freshmen. . . Probably every teacher of such a survey course has come to believe that, if he had the time and energy, he could do the job of writing the textbook for his own students better than any other person could. As to whether Messrs Smith and Case have done it acceptably for the rest of us, some doubts may be entertained in spite of the fact that the book is ably written. . . In format, this volume belongs in that newer grist which the publisher's mills are nowadays, fortunately, turning out in larger numbers. Two characteristics of this recent style are good maps, and well chosen illustrations arranged attractively without margins. On both these accounts, this book succeeds admirably." D. C. Babcock
+ — Social Educ 4:439 O '40 550w

Social Studies 31:288 O '40 10w

Reviewed by Carolyn Robbins
Social Studies 31:330 N '40 500w

SMITH, EDGAR LAWRENCE. Tides in the affairs of men; an approach to the appraisal of economic change. 178p $2 Macmillan

330.1 Business cycles. Weather—Mental and physiological effects 39-32961

Exposition of the author's thesis that the economic affairs of men, and particularly the rise and fall of stock markets, are influenced by atmospheric and solar changes. The book is in two parts—part one dealing with the Decennial pattern, part two with Economic response to solar change. Bibliography.

"Only limited familiarity with the literature of the so-called business cycle is revealed and the book is but sparsely documented. Evidence of a desire to analyze scientifically, in spite of hieroglyphic-laden charts, is buried beneath the apparent intent to establish the 'Decennial Pattern.' While Smith may desire to encourage research in this direction, his book will hardly challenge economists." L. D. Meredith
— Am Econ R 30:218 Mr '40 400w

Reviewed by Anne Anastasi
Am J Psychol 53:629 O '40 500w

"The author's thesis is one that will be looked upon with skepticism by many readers; but in fairness to him, it must be said that it is presented with reason and restraint." C. L. Parry
Ann Am Acad 208:206 Mr '40 600w

"This is a book primarily for the student, but it is arresting, original and courageously brought to an indigenous conclusion." Gardner Harding
+ N Y Times p24 Ja 7 '40 1350w

SMITH, EDWARD PERCY (EDWARD PERCY, pseud), and DENHAM, REGINALD. Ladies in retirement; a play in three acts. 232p $2 Random house [2s 6d English theatre]

822 40-27561

Murder play, of English origin, produced in New York in the spring of 1940.

Booklist 36:410 Jl 1 '40

Reviewed by W. P. Eaton
Books p7 Jl 14 '40 60w

"A must for real fans." Marian Wiggin
+ Boston Transcript p5 Je 8 '40 80w

Dramatic criticism by E. V. Wyatt
Cath World 151:211 My '40 700w

Cleveland Open Shelf p11 My '40

"Edward Percy and Reginald Denham have produced a drama which is well written, with a story which, once you have swallowed the initial premise, marches inevitably to the end. The horror comes naturally out of the characters and the situation; there are no clutching hands, moaning voices, or unexplained episodes." Grenville Vernon
+ Commonweal 31:534 Ap 12 '40 250w (Dramatic criticism)

Dramatic criticism by L. C. Cromwell
Forum 103:273 My '40 550w

"An English horror play with the virtues and defects of a genre recently made familiar by such pieces as 'Night Must Fall' and, to cite the best of the lot the eerie 'Kind Lady.' " J. W. Krutch

+ — Nation 150:457 Ap 6 '40 330w (Dramatic criticism)

Dramatic criticism by Rosamond Gilder

Theatre Arts 24:314 My '40 500w

SMITH, LADY ELEANOR FURNEAUX. Life's a circus. 339p il $2.75 Doubleday [12s 6d Longmans]

B or 92 (W) 40-27238

Autobiography of the daughter of Lord Birkenhead, former Lord Chancellor of England. Lady Eleanor stresses her own wanderlust, her lack of conformity to the conventions, and her admiration for Bohemians in every walk of life from circus performers to prize fighters, and traces her interest back to her gypsy great-grandmother.

"The author . . . writes in a dry angular style which for some reason becomes her narrative remarkably well; indeed, she is so matter-of-fact that one sometimes has to think a moment before one sees how amusing her story actually is. It is amusing; mildly so, but amusing, and apparently meant to be no more than that."

+ Atlantic Mr '40 120w

Booklist 36:282 Mr 15 '40

"As a rule this writer is able to cover the shabbiness of her acquaintances with the vivid cloak of her enthusiasm for them. However the final luncheon party—a dealer trying to sell six spotted mules, the landlord's irate agent, a sophisticated dancer, a bull trainer out of work and his weeping wife, the dowager of Seville gypsies, her thieving grandniece, and a stray nomad come to beg—seems like Bohemianism grown self-conscious. But though Lady Eleanor can be frequently annoying and occasionally startling, she is never boring." Muriel Chatain

+ — Books p6 F 11 '40 1100w

"Lady Eleanor's relations with her eccentric and illustrious father are charming." O. O.

+ Boston Transcript p2 F 3 '40 650w

Reviewed by V. S. Pritchett

Christian Science Monitor p11 Ag 26 '39 150w

Cleveland Open Shelf p6 Mr '40

"Life is not a circus, and no good book can be written by thinking it so. Lady Eleanor Smith's book is mildly entertaining because she has a certain amount of enterprise and courage, and a journalist's eye. But a fancy for the circus and the Bull Ring is not enough, so a formidable egotism tries to fill the gap. The best chapter is about her father."

— + New Statesman & Nation 18:258 Ag 12 '39 150w

"For all its assemblage of sensations, 'Life's a Circus,' the record of an artist's whirlwind search through life for a never-captured beauty, is not sensational. It is honest, personal, creative reporting. It is, to this reviewer, the most satisfying work its author has yet produced." J. S. Southron

+ N Y Times p4 F 4 '40 800w

"Tea-and-crumpety in spots, but amusing."

+ — New Yorker 15:71 F 3 '40 40w

" 'Life's a Circus' is a scrappy book, witty and diverting (the author has never ceased looking at the world with the trained journalist's eye), but often teasing in its omissions and abrupt, unexplained jumps from one set of experiences to another. . . The book is not without wormwood. For an attack on the English boarding school as merciless and savage as Lady Eleanor's one would have to turn back to Dickens and Charlotte Brontë, and her remarks about America are almost always abusive." R. A. Cordell

+ — Sat R of Lit 21:12 Mr 23 '40 500w

Time 35:65 F 5 '40 500w

"As long as these memoirs reveal a mind in the making their interest is unfailing. . . To mark [Lady Eleanor's] steady progress as she forms her character and establishes herself as a writer is enthralling; from this point onwards the interest of 'Life's a Circus' slackens, dwindling in the end to troubles with a cook in Spain, which are like troubles with a cook in any country. . . But whatever the response to these later chapters may be, the liveliness of the earlier narrative will satisfy all whose curiosity concerning the author has been aroused by the distinctive quality in her novels."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p424 Jl 15 '39 800w

SMITH, LADY ELEANOR FURNEAUX. Lovers' meeting. 326p $2.50 Doubleday [9s 6d Hutchinson]

(W) 40-13631

"The tale of a man and woman who loved each other across the gulf of an intervening century. . . It was a love that started in the era of radios and bombing planes, when Martina and George ran away from his cold wife and found themselves one midnight in the ancient Belvedere on the Barradale estate [and] that continued in the brilliant world of the English aristocracy three years before Waterloo." Note

Booklist 37:69 O 15 '40

Reviewed by Constance St Onge

Books p6 Ag 4 '40 500w

Reviewed by Iris Barry

Boston Transcript p11 Jl 30 '40 340w

"This is a well-told, highly spiced romance, a good piece of escape-literature to take away on one's vacation." E. B. Gulick

+ Boston Transcript p1 Ag 3 '40 440w

"As a story of reincarnation it is unconvincing, having no basis in such evidence as exists for the general theory. But the detail and the development are all that the representative novel-reader could desire. And although the ending is not a happy one there is no moral." J. D. Beresford

— + Manchester Guardian p5 Mr 8 '40 170w

New Repub 103:198 Ag 5 '40 70w

"The story as a whole, though slight, is very enjoyable. We are shown several versions of the same affaire, amused by the spectacle of a drunken Regency peer affrighted by visions of air raids, and given many chances to show our superiority by spotting anachronisms and inconsistencies. Like Mr. Priestley, Lady Eleanor Smith is unwilling to let well alone, and tends to burden her pleasant fancies with needless metaphysics. But she is too good a novelist to sacrifice fun to philosophy, and Lovers' Meeting remains an unusual and amusing fantasy." John Mair

+ — New Statesman & Nation 19:340 Mr 9 '40 230w

"The suspense is neatly and nervously sustained. The best part of the book is the Regency episode with its historic atmosphere made vivid because seen through the eyes of people of today. Skillful too is the character change in George and Martina due to their changed fortunes. 'Lovers' Meeting' is fantastical and ultra-romantic diversion, a fine prescription for the reader who is tapering off from a diet of historical novels." Beatrice Sherman

+ N Y Times p7 Jl 28 '40 700w

"Harmless, well-patterned flummery."

New Yorker 16:67 Jl 27 '40 40w

Pratt p24 autumn '40

"In spite of its banal title, 'Lovers' Meeting' is fine for light summer reading. It has a good romantic plot." R. C. Benét

+ Sat R of Lit 22:16 Ag 3 '40 330w

" 'Lovers' Meeting' is in Lady Eleanor's best manner, full of verve, with bright characteristic conversations and natural incident that develops the story at a brisk tempo. And if we are prepared to accept the fantasy of that strange reincarnation by a magic that is very briefly indicated the account of life, whether in 1812 or 1938, is admirably realistic and probable."

SMITH, E. F.—Continued
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p121 Mr 9 '40 400w

SMITH, HAROLD S. A yachtman's coast pilot. 213p charts $4.50 Harcourt

656 Pilot guides. Yachts and yachting 40-14512

Outlines in prose and chart four cruises for the yachtsman; three to the New England coast, and one to the Chesapeake Bay; all of them starting from New York. Each day's run is described in full. The first trip—from New York to Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket and return, requires fifteen days; the other three need three weeks. The second trip is from New York to Portsmouth, New Hampshire; the third, from New York to Northeast Harbor, Maine; the fourth, from New York to Chesapeake, Maryland.

" 'Skipper' Smith offers special information and an unusual arrangement that should make his volume valuable to pleasure sailors visiting the New England coast and Chesapeake Bay." E. B. S.
+ Boston Transcript p7 Ag 31 '40 280w

"This is an almost invaluable book for any yachtsman to add to the collection of sea-going books on the shelf at the head of his bunk. It should have been bound in oil-cloth, for it is as useful on deck as it is pleasant to read by the light of the cabin lamp." Harrison Smith
+ Sat R of Lit 22:20 Ag 31 '40 500w

SMITH, JOHN HENRY. Tests of significance; what they mean and how to use them. 90p pa $1 Univ. of Chicago press [pa 6s Cambridge]

311.22 Sampling (statistics) 40-5202

"This study is a survey of the common tests of significance. Its purpose is to present as simply as possible an organized treatment of the fundamental principles of sampling theory which underlie the proper use of measures of unusualness in support of inferences. Its original features are chiefly concerned with organization, emphasis, and simplification of mathematical derivations." (Pref) Selected bibliography.

"Non-statisticians for whom, presumably, this tract was written, will regret the scarcity of examples. On the other hand, the appendix is of high quality. The author's derivations are systematic and good." H. A. Freeman
+ — Am Econ R 30:219 Mr '40 90w

"J. H. Smith's pamphlet is an indication that the teachers of business administration, like those of psychology and education, are becoming aware of the modern movements of statistical thought. The treatment seems clear and sound, and the ground covered is no more than that needed by all students of statistics." R. A. F.
Nature 145:1010 Je 29 '40 50w

SMITH, JOSEPH RUSSELL, and PHILLIPS, MERTON OGDEN. North America; its people and the resources, development, and prospects of the continent as the home of man [with wall map in pocket]. 1008p il maps $6; also separate map 25c Harcourt

330.973 North America—Economic conditions. Geography, Commercial 40-10945

A new edition of a textbook in economic geography, first published in 1925 (Book Review Digest, 1925), now extensively revised and in part re-written in the light of the developments and changes of the last fifteen years. Index.

Bookmark p9 N '40

"There cannot be too much emphasis on the importance of this book. If I were in a position to do so, I should require that it be thoroughly read by every high school student in the United States as a first step toward becoming an adult American."
+ Books p16 Ag 18 '40 700w

"Whether you did or did not 'see America first,' this book cannot be too highly recommended for reading. It is more than just a geography book—it is also an excellent guide book well worth consulting before visiting any section of North America. . . Here is a geography book with an intelligent approach, designed for reading." R. N. Mayall
+ Boston Transcript p8 Ag 31 '40 280w

"The essential point, I think, is Professor Smith's very practical dream of what this country might become if our present knowledge were applied to improving it; the dream of cultivating our resources in common instead of destroying them to create a few great fortunes. Back in 1931, many of us were reading 'New Russia's Primer' because it described the plans and processes of remaking another vast country. This book about our own continent cannot be written in quite such simple terms, considering that our problems are more complicated and that we have not devised the social machinery for solving them, but it has the same qualities of vision and conviction. Possibly it is the most important book of the year; it is new America's primer." Malcolm Cowley
+ — New Repub 103:250 Ag 19 '40 1350w

"Though the book contains 250 pages of maps, graphs, and pictures, it is not a dry, statistical compilation which ignores the element of human interest. Besides outlining the big things that have been done and the big opportunities that still remain, it shows you how people live in various sections, how they earn a living, how they work, and how they play. It might be described as a text book or a reference work, but it is more than either. It is the kind of volume that you cannot pick up and open at random without gaining some valuable bit of knowledge." M. E. Tracy
+ Sat R of Lit 22:40 O 12 '40 300w
Social Studies 31:333 N '40 30w

"Teachers will welcome this new edition. . . It can still be said that the volume has 'great ideas and a truly original style,' and that every portion is as exciting to the imagination of the thinking person as any work of fiction. The critical reader will recognize some errors of fact, although these are less numerous than in the first edition, and should have been eliminated by careful editing. For a sympathetic understanding of man and his life in North America, this work is unequaled." W. E. Powers
+ — Social Studies 32:90 F '41 600w

SMITH, KENNETH MANLEY. Virus, life's enemy. 176p il $2 Macmillan [7s 6d Cambridge]

616.01 Viruses. Virus diseases 41-1673

"Dr. Kenneth Smith is an accepted authority on plant viruses, but this latest work does not confine its allegiance to the plant kingdom. It is a conspectus of virus phenomena, and draws authoritative illustrations with equal facility from animal and plant diseases. . . The first part of the volume discusses the nature of virus; how it was discovered, how it is studied, and what is its nature. Part 2, 'The Virus in Action', discusses methods of infection and the action of virus upon the living cell. It is this section, and that which outlines a range of the more important virus diseases, which justify the volume's sub-title 'Life's Enemy'." Nature

"This is a book which could only have been written by a master of the subject; it is rich in the intangible value of background; it can be read with pleasure in its expression, for it is a contribution to general culture, but it has also the full merit of an exact scientific review." J. Grainger
+ Nature 146:602 N 9 '40 550w

"The author is well known, both in England and the United States, as one of the leading workers in this difficult but rewarding field of research. Both in vocabulary and style it is well designed for the lay reader."
+ Scientific Bk Club R 11:2 S '40 420w

SMITH, LILLIAN H., ed. See Toronto. Public library. Books for boys and girls

SMITH, NICOL. Burma road. 333p il map $3.50 Bobbs

915.13 Yunnan, China (province). Burma—Description and travel (W) 40-5518

An account of the author's experiences and adventures during a trip to and over China's famous "secret" road across the province of Yun-Nan and into Burma. During his travels Mr Smith collected not only photographs and moving pictures but also a great variety of tales, told him by chance acquaintances, and many of these are retold in his book.

"An unpretending, desultory kind of travel narrative, very light and agreeable, written by an ingenuous young American. . . He traveled for pastime, wrote for pastime, and his reader will read for pastime, an honest transaction all round."
+ Atlantic My '40 80w

Reviewed by John Patton
Books p21 Mr 3 '40 600w

"Nicol Smith has undoubtedly read the tales of Marco Polo, who traveled much the same road he did, though considerably earlier. He knows the stuff that travelers' tales are made of, and he is obviously equipped with the sort of enterprise and persistence that provides the material for a picaresque story of modern journeying. Marco Polo wasn't always believed when he related his yarns in Venice; perhaps Mr. Smith will have a little scepticism to overcome, too, but he writes so entertainingly that doubts are easily forgotten." E. B. Schriftgiesser
+ Boston Transcript p3 Ap 6 '40 490w
Cleveland Open Shelf p5 Mr '40

Reviewed by L. B. Bloch
Living Age 358:491 Jl '40 650w

Reviewed by Isidor Schneider
— New Repub 102:582 Ap 29 '40 100w

"Written very directly, with sympathy and a keen sense of drama, this first book of Nicol Smith is an unusually enthralling narrative." L. M. Field
+ N Y Times p4 Mr 3 '40 1100w
New Yorker 16:63 Mr 2 '40 20w

"It is perhaps unfair to criticize a popular travel book for its small value as a serious study of the political, economic, and technical significance of the Burma Road and of the various problems connected with it. Nevertheless, it is to be regretted that the author missed such an excellent opportunity to make an important addition to the scanty material available on China's vital lifeline in the Southwest." W. J. Leaning
— + Pacific Affairs 13:476 D '40 1950w
Pratt p20 autumn '40

"Driving through seas of mud, living with barely-living coolies, fighting both cold and heat as he came down from the mountains, Nicol Smith saw one of the grimmest wonders of our day and has written of it with accuracy and wit. He minimizes nothing, nor does he exaggerate like so many young travelers the dangers he encountered." H. D.
+ Sat R of Lit 21:20 Mr 16 '40 300w
Times [London] Lit Sup p270 Je 1 '40 600w

SMITH, ROBERT AURA. Our future in Asia. 306p maps $3 Viking

950 Eastern question (Far East). U.S.—Foreign relations (W) 40-32518

"A Times man who has spent twenty years in the Far East presents a thorough description of the geography, resources, history, and strategic problems of the South China Sea area, which includes the Philippines, giving special attention to the activities of Japan. He thinks we should defend the status quo in that part of the world, even if we have to do it alone." (New Yorker) Index.

Atlantic D '40 210w
Booklist 37:84 N 1 '40
Bookmark 2:4 Ja '41

"It is not often that the publication of a book is as timely as this one. It is not only the book of the hour, but the book of the moment. It answers scores of questions which the average American is now asking about the Far East; questions to which few individuals can give satisfactory answers." Rodney Gilbert
+ Books p2 O 20 '40 1200w

"On the informative side, the book is fullest and most valuable in its treatment of the Philippines. Here the author's knowledge is first-hand and exhaustive. . . The work is rather sketchier and more disconnected in its treatment of China, Japan, and other Oriental countries; and there are occasional inaccuracies." W. H. C.
+ — Christian Science Monitor p11 N 9 '40 800w

"It is easy to understand why the publishers of Robert Aura Smith's Our Future in Asia whisked this book through the presses at split-second speed. They have on their hands what may turn out to be the book-scoop of the year. For Smith, New York Times correspondent in the Orient, has anticipated today's headlines with an accuracy that is bound to arouse the admiration of newspapermen everywhere." Norman Cousins
+ Current Hist & Forum 52:4 O 22 '40 1000w

Reviewed by Norton Webb
Living Age 359:495 Ja '41 280w

"This is an amazing book. Issued a few days after the German-Italian-Japanese alliance had challenged our fundamental interests in East Asia and thereby brought that area within the zone of our national defense, it has all the freshness of this morning's newspaper. Yet it is no slapdash, journalistic job, rushed through the press to meet an emergency situation. It is an extraordinarily careful and thoughtful survey of America's place in the Far East. It is the first book to deal in any adequate sense with the entire East Asian area from the Dutch East Indies to Japan. Much of its content is, it is true, elementary." M. S. Stewart
+ Nation 151:344 O 12 '40 550w

"Many volumes have been written on the Far East during the past fifty years, but due to the rapidly shifting scene most of them are obsolete. Here is one, timely, up to date, written by a gifted and experienced observer which should be read by every American before venturing opinions on whatever action our Government may take with reference to our interests in the western Pacific." H. E. Yarnell
+ N Y Times p3 O 6 '40 1550w
New Yorker 16:103 O 12 '40 70w

"The most illuminating chapters of the book are devoted to the Philippines, where Mr. Smith was for many years an editor of the Manila Daily Bulletin." T. A. Bisson
+ Sat R of Lit 22:6 O 12 '40 410w

Reviewed by W. H. Chamberlin
Yale R n s 30:413 winter '41 1150w

SMITH, ROY LEMON. Desert democracy. 192p $1.50 Abingdon

933 Jews—History. Democracy 40-1920

"The chapters of the book are masterpieces of story telling; or what may be termed in homiletics expository preaching. There are eight chapters. Each chapter takes some critical period of the history of the Hebrew people,

SMITH, R. L.—Continued
tells its story and without too explicit statement points the moral for them and the world of today." Springf'd Republican

"The story is made more vivid by the author's imaginative treatment of many episodes and by the introduction of some fictitious characters. Altogether, Dr. Smith has written a very exciting and convincing book."
+ Christian Century 56:1547 D 13 '39 130w
Springf'd Republican p8 Ag 27 '40 190w

SMITH, SAMUEL DENNY. The Negro in Congress, 1870-1901. 160p $2.50 Univ. of N.C. press [11s 6d Oxford]

325.26 Negroes in politics. U.S. Congress. Negroes—Biography 40-10436

This study attempts to bring together for the first time the contributions made by the twenty-two Negroes who have served in Congress from 1870 to 1901. The author is associate professor of social studies at the Mississippi State college for women. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by H. C. Nixon
Am Pol Sci R 34:1214 D '40 170w

"To the scholar and the layman with a keen interest in this aspect of Negro life, it is obvious that a well-rounded study even on this narrow subject of Negro political participation must be the result of a more thorough research. An apparent haste to complete the book made the writer an unconscious victim of race prejudices which are obvious in several sections of the book." George Snowden
Ann Am Acad 211:219 S '40 900w

Reviewed by George Streator
Commonweal 32:234 Jl 5 '40 90w

"Of interest are the uninterpreted tables in the introduction on the racial stock, education, profession and previous social status of these men, the occasional hints of the struggle within the Republican Party in the South between Negro and carpetbagger, and of the rôle of the 'black carpetbaggers'—suggestions of the rich material for a fuller book that we hope Dr. Smith may write... Granting that their legislative accomplishments were unimportant, if these men are studied against their origins and their acknowledged handicaps . . . their position would not be as barren of historical significance as the author would have us believe." C. L. Lord
Pol Sci Q 55:637 D '40 420w

"Phases of his subject neglected by Mr. Smith are the Negro politicians' relation to the Independent movement, the Greenbackers, and the Grangers. Preoccupation with racial and political matters gives the work a two-dimensional character lacking in the stuff of realism." C. V. Woodward
Social Forces 19:285 D '40 700w

Reviewed by Alain Locke
Survey 76:278 S '40 240w

SMITH, THOMAS LYNN. The sociology of rural life. 595p il maps $3.50 Harper

323.354 Sociology, Rural. Social problems. Farm life (W) 40-3056

College textbook which brings together data on rural population, rural social organization, and social processes in rural society. The author interprets "rural social relationships in terms of such sociological processes as competition, conflict, cooperation, accommodation, assimilation, acculturation and social mobility." (Editor's introd) Bibliography. Indexes.

"The value of the work lies in its roundness of treatment of American rural life, its commonsense approach, and the willingness of the author to abandon precedent in his analysis." C. C. Zimmerman
+ Am J Soc 46:256 S '40 410w

"In general, this text is well designed to give the student an understanding of the structure and function of rural society. It is crammed with factual information, arranged in a framework of general principles which have been drawn from the facts. It is free from unsupported generalizations and hypotheses which have crept into much of the literature about rural people." Lowry Nelson
+ Am Soc R 5:670 Ag '40 420w

"Dr. Smith has succeeded in his purpose, that of writing a text for sophomores. The reviewer feels constrained, however, to warn students that they will find a treatise that is heavily biased by the author's Southern point of view. Being head of a department at Louisiana State University, naturally he would present a picture that will call attention to the problems of the South. He would have done a better job had he confined his discussion to a sociology of the rural South; then the mistakes he falls into because of faulty national comparisons would have been avoided." G. W. Hill
+ — Ann Am Acad 210:183 Jl '40 460w
Booklist 36:277 Mr 15 '40

"The book has unusual merits as a text, and in the reviewer's judgment puts introductory textbook writing in rural sociology on a new and higher level. It integrates well fact with theory. It is written in a clear, simple, concise style... Characteristics which may limit its usefulness as a text are: It is not well balanced... At several points data lack significance because they deal with total rather than rural situations." P. H. Landis
+ — Social Forces 19:120 O '40 700w

"The treatment of material is thorough, scholarly, and comprehensive. Of the twenty-four chapters, four stand out as superior to anything that has appeared in other rural sociology textbooks: 'Form of Settlement,' 'Land Division,' 'Land Tenure,' and 'Size of Holdings.'" C. C. Taylor
+ Survey 76:147 Ap '40 340w
Wis Lib Bul 36:64 Ap '40

SMITH, THOMAS VERNOR, and GRENE, MARJORIE. From Descartes to Kant; readings in the philosophy of the renaissance and enlightenment. 899p $4.50 Univ. of Chicago press

190.8 Philosophy, Modern 40-34182

"This book—a companion volume to Philosophers Speak for Themselves—is intended to furnish guides and readings in modern philosophy from the Renaissance through Kant. The bulk of the volume is devoted to the major philosophers of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. Wherever possible, whole works have been chosen; but where, as in the case of Locke's Essay or Hume's Treatise, that plan was obviously not feasible, fairly substantial selections have been substituted. In order to set the major works into the intellectual background from which they spring, we have also included introductory chapters on the humanistic and scientific aspects of the Renaissance, with briefer illustrative selections from several authors." Pref.

Booklist 37:235 F 1 '41
Christian Century 57:1345 O 30 '40 60w
J Philos 37:644 N 7 '40 60w

"The book obviously doesn't solve the dilemma of the instructor and one could furthermore quibble about the works included, as for example in the case of Berkeley. In general, however, the editors have made a judicious selection and their anthology represents a useful addition to the library of readings in philosophy for amateur and professional alike." R. B.
+ — Sat R of Lit 23:21 Ja 18 '41 320w

SMITH, WARREN HUNTING. The Misses Elliot of Geneva; il. by Esta and John O'Hara Cosgrave II. 186p $2 Farrar 40-31635

Character sketches of some of the tart elderly spinsters of Geneva, New York, with the Misses Elliot practically always in the lead, with their perfect teamwork. "Miss Candida supplied the gunpowder, and Miss Primrose exploded the fireworks."

Booklist 37:92 N 1 '40

"A very amusing, witty little essay is this 'The Misses Elliot of Geneva.' . . All in all a delicious morsel." F. H. Bullock

+ Books p8 S 29 '40 550w

"If Geneva is sharp tongued, it is also generous and kind-hearted; or was in the day when Miss Candida Elliot was 'a sort of queen dowager to Main Street.' Those days are gone, and gone, too, are the Elliots and their contemporaries, but they all live again in Mr. Smith's delightful gently humorous pages." L. M. Field

+ N Y Times p7 N 3 '40 550w

SMYTH, DAME ETHEL MARY. What happened next. 328p il $4 (15s) Longmans

B or 92 Musicians—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc.

Continuation of the author's reminiscences begun in Impressions That Remained and continued in As Time Went On (Book Review Digest, 1920, 1936). This volume is a record of her daily life, friends, thoughts and musical experiences, year by year, from 1894 to 1908. The complete story of her friendship with Henry Brewster is told here. Index.

"This book is too long, but the author's flair for writing and for the delineation of character lifts her memoirs to a level never reached by the usual type of autobiographies of famous musicians. The reasons and excuses that delayed the performances of her own music are set forth with much humour." G. A. H.

+ Manchester Guardian p6 Jl 19 '40 180w

"There is no sign whatever in the last instalment of Dame Ethel Smyth's memoirs that the vigour which has always distinguished both her literary and musical work has abated with age. . . I guarantee one of those rare visits from the spirit of delight to all readers of these memoirs." Christopher St John

+ New Statesman & Nation 20:92 Jl 27 '40 700w

Reviewed by Edward Sackville-West

Spec 165:96 Jl 26 '40 900w

"Dame Ethel Smyth cannot be said to have been fortunate in the circumstances that surround the appearance of this latest addition to her fascinating autobiography. Nevertheless, it may well be that the very acuteness of our crisis will dispose many readers to seize with avidity this opportunity to forget it, while they share the adventures, the sorrows and delightful humours to which these pages introduce them."

Times [London] Lit Sup p318 Je 29 '40 750w

SMYTH, HENRY DE WOLF, and UFFORD, CHARLES WILBUR. Matter, motion and electricity; a modern approach to general physics. 648p il $3.75 (25s) McGraw

530 Physics 39-23160

"An elementary college text intended to round out the student's high school course and to build adequate foundations for advanced work. The approach is through the various aspects of atomic physics as developed during the last forty years. The first nine chapters deal with atoms, molecules, vectors, the laws of Newton, gravitation, work and energy, friction, temperature and heat, the kinetic theory of gases, and change of state. The other eighteen chapters deal largely with electricity and magnetism. The many practical problems offered for solution do not require the use of the calculus. The authors are professors of physics in Princeton University and Allegheny College, respectively." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

"University teachers of physics who are not fettered by examination requirements and can plan their own courses will find this stimulating volume suggestive and helpful."

+ Nature 145:298 F 24 '40 140w

N Y New Tech Bks 24:61 O '39

"The book is unquestionably a great forward step in college teaching, a much needed break with traditional modes of approach. As such it will be welcomed by many teachers who will pay tribute to the distinguished authors for a distinguished piece of work." L. A. DuBridge

+ R of Scientific Instruments 11:153 Ap '40 1000w

SMYTH, JOSEPH HILTON. To nowhere and return; the autobiography of a Puritan; with drawings by the author. 311p $2.75 Carrick

B or 92 40-33493

This autobiography covers roughly the author's first thirty-five years, his anything but normal childhood, his youth and early manhood as artist, wanderer, drunkard and finally successful short-story writer. In recent years Mr Smyth has been publisher and co-publisher of such magazines as North American Review, Living Age, and Saturday Review of Literature and his book closes with an account of these business ventures and their effect on his life.

"It is something of a shock to realize that the 'lost' generation is almost middle aged. It seems only yesterday that it was running so desperately away from itself, taking literature and a bottle of bathtub gin along for company. Joseph Hilton Smyth is an excellent representative of the period and its people." Thomas Sugrue

Books p21 N 3 '40 500w

"For all its sardonic vein, the book is an excellent antidote for anyone fed up with the current harvest, between book covers, of first-person howling and recriminating over the last twenty years in Europe."

Living Age 359:390 D '40 300w

New Yorker 16:111 O 19 '40 90w

Reviewed by Linton Wells

Sat R of Lit 23:18 D 14 '40 600w

"Written in flippant and provocative style, Mr Smyth's autobiography is a candid narrative of misspent hours—too candid for some tastes, and at times gleefully indecorous. Judged by objective standards, it hardly justifies its mass of reckless confessions by any approach to psychological importance. But in its way it offers a true, if exaggerated, picture of the postwar group of intellectuals who found in the pursuit of literature, or at least of so-called literary society, a means of escape from the prose of life. And the author supplies not a few incisive and witty comments which perhaps interpret the period more penetratingly than his frothy and occasionally indelicate language might lead the reader to suspect." E. N. Jenckes

+ — Springf'd Republican p6 N 9 '40 950w

SMYTH, NATHAN AYER. Lest freedom fail. 138p $1.75 Dodd

323.4 Democracy. Social problems. U.S.—Economic policy 40-5057

"Mr. Smyth is deeply concerned with the menace of authoritarianism in the United States at the present time; but, unlike a merely political writer, he neither blames the New Deal for our dangers nor looks to it for rescue from peril. He thinks that government is encroaching on the freedom of the individual. But the authoritarian trend in the main is, he says, neither the result of an infiltration of alien ideas nor the product of recent political activities. . . The theme of his little treatise is: 'The public good can be realized under individualism only when the individual cares both for himself and for society; freedom can sur-

SMYTH, N. A.—Continued
vive only if the individual carries his share of the burden of social responsibility.' " N Y Times

"Mr. Smyth is no soap-box orator. He knows what he is writing about, and writes with a style that sweeps the reader along with him. His point of view is a sane nonpartisanship that any reasonable person will appreciate." L. B. Bloch
+ Living Age 358:492 Jl '40 120w

"The book is stern and stimulating."
+ N Y Times p4 Mr 24 '40 500w

Reviewed by Jacques Barzun
Sat R of Lit 22:12 Jl 13 '40 750w

"A thoughtful and incisively written plea. . . Mr Smyth's proposals may seem in some respects unduly hopeful, but they are no more so than many plans of social reconstruction based on vastly different premises. His book reveals a wide grasp of economic situations, and his analysis of the strength and weakness of totalitarian theory has subtlety and insight. The language of the book is clear and well modulated."
+ Springf'd Republican p10 Ap 4 '40 650w

SMYTHE, WILLIAM RALPH. Static and dynamic electricity. 560p $6 (40s) McGraw 537 Electricity 39-22705

"This work is for the graduate student who, although 'familiar with advanced electrical theory, is unable to solve the electrical problems he encounters in research if they fall outside the routine types and so must be worked out from first principles.' The reader is supposed to have a reasonable familiarity with vector analysis, the calculus, and elementary differential equations. Any mathematical considerations beyond this point are developed by the author. There are numerous worked-out problems as well as 533 others offered for solution. References are given at the chapter endings. Dr. Smythe is Associate Professor of Physics at the California Institute of Technology." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Reviewed by G. Temple
Nature 146:446 O 5 '40 340w
N Y New Tech Bks 24:55 O '39

"With the increasing importance of field considerations in electron optics and the trend toward higher radio-frequencies and their unconventional types of resonant circuits the characteristics of which must be determined from the more fundamental electromagnetic field theory, this book will supply the answer to the real needs of both engineers and experimental physicists." L. P. Smith
+ R of Scientific Instruments 10:276 O '39 650w

SNEDEKER, CAROLINE DALE (PARKE) (MRS C. H. SNEDEKER). The White isle; il. by Fritz Kredel. 271p $2 Doubleday
(W) 40-33284

The adventures of Lavinia, a Roman girl of noble family, who went into exile with her family in early Britain, and there found romance.

Booklist 37:124 N 15 '40

"As one whose favorite summer pastime for years has been tracing, on the spot, evidence of Roman empire beyond Rome, I can speak for the reliability of the book. Almost any twelve-year-old will enjoy it." M. L. Becker
+ Books p14 N 10 '40 320w

"We heartily recommend this story." E. V. W.
+ Cath World 152:380 D '40 30w

Reviewed by M. A. Whitney
Christian Science Monitor p11 Ja 30 '41 280w

Reviewed by A. C. Moore
Horn Bk M 16:430 N '40 20w

"Once again Mrs. Snedeker has drawn an unforgettable portrait of a Roman girl of long ago. There is something very moving about this story of Lavinia. . . The careful scholarship of Mrs Snedeker traces step by step the route of the Claudia family as they meet friendship and danger, crossing Gaul and coming to the dreaded sea. Beyond that she binds together in this distinguished story the fragrant traditions of the earliest Christians of Britain with the highest culture of the Roman Empire." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk M 16:440 N '40 100w

"In this wholly satisfying book, Mrs. Snedeker has given teen age girls a perfectly splendid picture of everyday life as lived by a Roman girl of thirteen years. . . The book will be read for its exciting story interest and it is so rich in its background of history and customs that it is a 'must have' for all libraries." A. M. Wetherell
+ Library J 65:1045 D 1 '40 200w

Reviewed by Lena Barksdale
Nation 151:456 N 9 '40 20w

"Such a book as this is more effective than half a dozen histories in making real and vivid Roman life, as it stretched in all its provincial variations from the Capitol to ancient Caledonia. It translates Roman family relationships into understandable terms and it brings, too, a sense of old conventions and beliefs being gradually broken down and rebuilt into a new nation which would become in time even greater than its conqueror." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p10 Ja 19 '41 450w

SNEED, JAMES RICHARD. Beyond the facts; with a foreword by Edwin Holt Hughes. 135p $1 Cokesbury press
252 Sermons 40-10688

Volume of sermons by the pastor of a Methodist church in Shenandoah, Iowa. Contents: The tremendousness of the ordinary; Adding something extra; The Christian substitute for worry; Spelling with life's blocks; Demonstrating our religion; The staying power; Beyond the facts.

Reviewed by C. H. Kopf
Boston Transcript p4 Je 22 '40 100w

"There is nothing unrealistic about these sermons, in spite of the title. What that means, one may fairly judge, is 'all the crude facts and then something.' The preacher has the vigor of youth."
+ Christian Century 57:610 My 8 '40 50w

"These seven sermons by a young Methodist preacher are full of interesting illustrations from a modern minister's notebook. They preach religion as the plus quality in life, and do so genuinely if not thrillingly." S. L. R.
+ Churchman 154:34 Jl 1 '40 40w

SNIVELY, ROBLEY DUNGLISON, and SNIVELY, MRS MARY ELIZABETH. Metal work. (Old Deerfield ser. of handicraft manuals) 79p il $1.25 Daye
739 Metal work (W) 40-27457

Small, copiously illustrated volume on the steps in metal work, for amateurs.

Boston Transcript p2 Je 29 '40 60w
Springf'd Republican p6 My 6 '40 70w

SNIVELY, ROBLEY DUNGLISON, and SNIVELY, MRS MARY ELIZABETH. Pottery. (Old Deerfield ser. of handicraft manuals) 87p il $1.25 Daye
738 Pottery (W) 40-27458

"This book is primarily an instructive manual by means of which the photographer who believes that crafts may be learned more easily by making the text illustrate the photographs, rather than the reverse, shows the reader how pottery is made." Publisher's note

Boston Transcript p2 Je 29 '40 60w
Springf'd Republican p6 My 6 '40 70w

SNOW, WILBERT. Maine tides. 135p il $2 Holt
811 Maine—Poetry 40-14605

Series of verses picturing Maine coast village life of a generation ago. There are narrative-descriptive poems of Maine fishing life; verses describing typical Maine coast characters; and a group of lyrics. Illustrated with photographs.

Booklist 37:172 Ja 1 '41

"The two concluding sections of the book—lyrics, and a longer philosophical poem, Tides, add little to the weight of the preceding village sketches. But the salty savor and vitality of 'Maine Tides' as a whole should win more than just New England readers. Illustrated with several fine photographs of the Maine scene by Ray Gibbs Goodman, the volume is a most attractive one to own." Ruth Lechlitner

+ — Books p2 D 8 '40 650w

Reviewed by John Holmes

Boston Transcript p11 S 23 '40 100w

"Mr. Snow's method of making poetry is homespun and simple. He writes with considerable detail and with rather less implication and overtone than one might wish." John Ritchey

Christian Science Monitor p13 N 16 '40 80w

"This is [Wilbert Snow's] favorite subject-matter and he knows the people and the life which he describes. The book has charming photographic decorations by Ray Gibbs Goodman. . . The last and least fortunate section [of the book] is a group of lyrics. These are very obvious observations on beauty or personal moods and prove that Mr. Snow is more a versifier than a poet. His work lacks the imaginative intensity, the distinction of language and imagery characteristic of important poetry." E. L. Walton

+ — N Y Times p5 Ag 18 '40 440w
Springf'd Republican p7e O 6 '40 550w

SNYDER, CARL. Capitalism the creator; the economic foundations of modern industrial society; with 44 original charts. 473p $3.75 Macmillan
330.973 Capitalism. Economics. U.S.—Economic conditions 40-4776

The thesis of this book "is that there is one way, and only one way, that any people, in all history, have ever risen from barbarism and poverty to affluence and culture; and that is by that concentrated and highly organized system of production and exchange which we call Capitalistic: one way, and one alone. Further, that it is solely by the accumulation (and concentration) of this Capital, and directly proportional to the amount of this accumulation, that the modern industrial nations have arisen." (Page 4) Brief bibliography. Index.

"Snyder has made a great contribution to economic methodology. This book is the culmination of his life work in statistical research and is replete with his philosophy of life and of the meaning of mankind's struggle to advance the standard of living. It deserves to be rated as a major contribution to that type of economic thought which seeks to pioneer and to explore new approaches to knowledge." L. D. Edie

+ Am Econ R 30:354 Je '40 500w

"This is an extremely interesting and captivating book, in spite of the fact that it is full of statistics and tables, including forty-four original charts. A book so handicapped by intellectual devices would seem to be doomed to failure in achieving its purpose of making out a popular case for capitalism, but in the hands of Mr. Snyder the statistics and the charts give weight and authority to his thesis." H. F. Fraser

+ Ann Am Acad 213:227 Ja '41 800w
Booklist 36:339 My 1 '40
Bookmark p24 N '40

"This is a good book to read now and to reread in the future. In form it is very unlike a textbook, but it should be required reading for college students—and for teachers as well. It holds much wisdom." W. R. Burgess

+ Books p5 Mr 24 '40 1700w

Reviewed by Russ Nixon

Boston Transcript p2 Mr 16 '40 320w
Cath World 151:369 Je '40 900w
Foreign Affairs 19:253 O '40 10w

"This volume represents Carl Snyder at his most engaging and at his least engaging. The imaginative, erudite, ingenious, and pioneering statistician bogs down before a defender of capitalism who becomes emotional, does not retain his objectivity [and] generalizes far too freely. . . Even if one did not know Carl Snyder, one could tell from the chapter headings alone how much he has enjoyed writing this book. He must have enjoyed penning all those verbless 'sentences.' It is unfortunate that a work that could have been an effective counter-poise to some of the 'new economics' did not turn out as a more cogent and balanced presentation of the sounder theses of the book." F. E. Richter

J Pol Econ 48:589 Ag '40 650w
Management R 29:347 S '40 250w

"Not one of Mr. Snyder's statements is capable of objective scientific verification. Observe them carefully: they are the prejudices and passions that explode in fascism, the ingredients of the theory of the 'élite' which animates its philosophy. I do not believe Mr. Snyder is a fascist. But his ideas may help to bring the storm that will overwhelm him—and Mr. Willkie too." Lewis Corey

— Nation 151:76 Jl 27 '40 1200w

"Mr. Snyder's 'Capitalism the Creator' is frankly and belligerently a defense of capitalism, and as such it is one of the most original and interesting this reviewer has ever seen. Mr. Snyder is one of the country's best-known statisticians; he is full of all sorts of miscellaneous learning. . . He uses epithets freely and he has a habit of deliberately leaving out the verbs in most of his sentences, so that the reader is bumped and jolted rather than carried along." Henry Hazlitt

+ N Y Times p22 Ap 7 '40 700w

"In these times, when men are looking critically at established institutions of all kinds, there has been need for some one to tell simply and effectively the story of what capitalism is, how it functions and what it has accomplished. Snyder has done this wonderfully well—so well in fact that it seems a pity that the book cannot be read by everyone and especially by those who in impatience and discouragement would abandon the system for other systems." G. B. Roberts

+ Pol Sci Q 55:269 Je '40 1000w
Pratt p6 autumn '40

"The book is difficult to appraise because it is loosely organized and written with so much feeling that one is doubtful at times whether Mr. Snyder is speaking as an economist or a soap-box orator. He omits verbs from his sentences and qualifications from his judgments. . . There is no reason why economics should not be discussed with heat and bitterness, but the lasting influence of a Ruskin and a Henry George was based upon the laborious analysis underlying the indignant words." Palmer Harman

— Sat R of Lit 21:18 Mr 9 '40 290w

"Mr. Snyder's claims to have produced absolute proof of his proposition will not be accepted by everyone. There is no agreement as to what constitutes 'proof' in this field. Nevertheless, he has amassed evidence which

SNYDER, CARL—Continued
critics will not easily refute. He brings to his task a breadth of learning in the fields of science and history which is remarkable. His style is easy to read, and he has made a heavy subject entertaining and exciting. The book is an extraordinary intellectual accomplishment and towers head and shoulders above most of the economic literature of the day." L. D. Edie

+ Yale R ns 29:826 summer '40 900w

SOBEL, BERNARD, ed. The theatre handbook and digest of plays; pref. by George Freedley. 900p $3 Crown

792.03 Theater—Dictionaries. Drama—Dictionaries. Actors and actresses (W) 40-27014

This cyclopedia of the theater contains a varied collection of information on matters pertaining to the theater of all time, drama, actors, playwrights, critics and managers. Synopses of nearly 1000 plays are included, histories of the drama in various countries and a useful list of plays classified by subject. George Freedley, curator of the theater collection of the New York Public library has compiled the bibliography.

Booklist 36:196 Ja 15 '40

"'The Theatre Handbook and Digest of Plays' . . . could, if it were better done, be of great value. The idea behind it is a good one—as good as the idea of Grove's Dictionary of Music and Musicians. But it was evidently hastily compiled, and in many cases by people with only the most rudimentary ideas of accuracy. In such a work, inaccuracy is inexcusable." W. P. Eaton

— Books p15 Ja 14 '40 320w

"In general [it] may be set down as a useful pioneering effort of appeal to those interested in the theater as well as to libraries." L. S. Wellstone

+ — Boston Transcript p2 Ja 20 '40 270w

"Should prove extremely useful despite the fact that it is not clear just what principles of inclusion and exclusion were adopted in compiling a 900-page encyclopedia of the theater of all time." J. W. Krutch

+ — Nation 150:54 Ja 13 '40 150w

New Yorker 15:56 D 30 '39 30w

"Mistakes are inevitable in an undertaking of this kind, and omissions as well; moreover, some of the articles are as ephemeral as last week's Sunday supplement, but the book has a breezy, theatrical quality of its own, combining the casual and the eternal, the noble and the shoddy and it serves very well its double purpose of providing information and entertainment." Rosamond Gilder

+ Theatre Arts 24:149 F '40 500w

SOKOLOV, BORIS FEDOROVICH. Unconquered enemy. 198p $1.75 Greystone

616.994 Cancer 40-9675

A survey, written in language not too technical for the lay reader, of the findings of thousands of research workers who are waging the battle against cancer. Index.

Booklist 37:266 F 15 '41

New Repub 103:254 Ag 19 '40 60w

"The average reader may find that Dr. Sokoloff's accounts of the experiments which are the bases for these conclusions are a little too technical for easy reading unless he knows something of biology. Yet it is hard to see how so involved a biological problem could be presented adequately in more simple terms. 'Unconquered Enemy' is the best summary yet published of all that is known today about cancer and its possible elimination. Students, medical social workers, all of cancer's lay army should find it of great interest and value, and a large proportion of medical men could doubtless read it to advantage. Not the least important feature of the book is the appendix of foot-notes that contains with other information a useful bibliography." M. S. U.

+ Sat R of Lit 22:21 Je 15 '40 430w

"Dr Sokoloff's volume is written in a nontechnical way for the layman and succeeds admirably in being an informative, well-rounded discussion of cancer in all its aspects." C. B. M.

+ Springf'd Republican p10 Ag 9 '40 1000w

SOLOMON, ARTHUR KASKEL. Why smash atoms? 174p il $2.50 Harvard univ. press

541.2 Atoms 40-10503

"The first part of the book is a simple and concise discussion of the interior of the atom and the nature of the problem. The second part describes in adequate detail the three major lines of attack. One is the 'voltage doubler,' such as is used for producing artificial lightning. A second is the high-voltage generator designed by Van de Graaff and used at Washington, Wisconsin, Boston and Pittsburgh. The third and most effective is the cyclotron developed by E. O. Lawrence." Books

Booklist 36:426 Jl 15 '40

"The facts are not easy to evaluate and there has been much loose talk on atom smashing. This book by Dr. Solomon is therefore welcome because it is so timely. He has been active in the work at Cambridge University and more recently at Harvard University. His book is a compact and authoritative history of the work in this field during the last twenty years." Gerald Wendt

+ Books p9 Je 23 '40 900w

Reviewed by Albert Dietz

Boston Transcript p2 Jl 20 '40 240w

N Y New Tech Bks 25:25 Ap '40

"It is up to date, nuclear fission is given considerable attention, and a chapter is devoted to medicine. . . The book has many clever and instructive illustrations and also numerous photographs of apparatus." J. W. Buchta

+ R of Scientific Instruments 2:330 O '40 500w

Scientific Bk Club R 11:2 Je '40 460w

"Dr Solomon has done an excellent job of synthesizing the accounts of research work by many investigators in this country and abroad, very modestly keeping in the background himself. The many fine photographs and drawings reproduced in the book enhance it immeasurably. Even though most readers of the work will have completed basic courses in physics, the rather complete glossary is a real aid." C. B. M.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Je 9 '40 1250w

SOOY, MRS LOUISE PINKNEY, and WOODBRIDGE, MRS VIRGINIA. Plan your own home. 228p il $2.95 Stanford univ. press

747 House decoration. Dwellings (W) 40-27287

Informally written chapters giving the basic principles of home planning. Partial contents: The analysis of sites; The comparison of types of architecture; Remodeling an old house; Working out color schemes; Selecting the furniture—at last; What rooms will you occupy most? The single living room; That difficult dining room; Personalizing the bedrooms; Science and entertainment in the kitchen.

Booklist 36:303 Ap 1 '40

Cleveland Open Shelf p7 Mr '40

Pratt p12 autumn '40

SORENSON, HERBERT. Psychology in education. 489p $2.75 McGraw

370.15 Educational psychology 40-12400

"An analysis and application of principles of all schools of psychology, with recommendations for the guidance of the learner from the first school years through college." (School & Society) Glossary. Indexes.

School & Society 52:64 Jl 27 '40 30w

"A few shortcomings are to be noted. In large part the author presents principles and conclusions without describing the supporting evidence or referring to the original producer. This method of presentation, though helpful to some beginners, is unfortunate in a book in which usually no more than six to nine references, sometimes none, are given at the ends of chapters. . . Interesting illustrative cases appear here and there. Best of all are the many indications in the text of mature thought, on the part of the author, concerning the meaning to teachers of the principles of psychology. These he interprets usually with clarity and a wise sense of their usefulness." P. W. Terry

+ — School R 48:791 D '40 750w

SOULE, ELIZABETH STERLING, and MACKENZIE, CHRISTINE. Community hygiene. 218p il $1.75 Macmillan

614 Hygiene, Public 40-32922

"The needs of college health education classes were kept in mind by the authors of this book, whether such classes are found in a physical education, a home economics, or a nursing education department. Consequently, the attempt has been to cover the essential features of the subject clearly and accurately and to refer to other publications for details. The health problems of food and water supplies, housing, communicable diseases, maternity, infancy, and childhood are taken up; and the scope, organization, and administration of public health agencies are indicated." J Home Econ

J Home Econ 32:698 D '40 80w

Reviewed by M. L. McWilliams
Survey 75:374 D '40 180w

SOUTHARD, FRANK ALLAN; SWART, PHILIP FREEMAN, and GENTES, ALEXANDER N. Foreign exchange practice and policy. 215p il $2.50 (16s 6d) McGraw

332.45 Foreign exchange 40-4996

"Combining elementary international finance theory with foreign exchange practice, this book presents a well-illustrated discussion of the instruments and markets of foreign exchange, the determination of foreign exchange rates, and the ways in which foreign traders make use of foreign exchange. Much attention is given to recent developments, and the foreign exchange difficulties facing both traders and governments during the present European conflict are fully anticipated in the discussion." (Management R) Index.

"There is a need for a book to synthesize and bring up to date for the student and for the lay reader the present somewhat sprawling body of information and theory relating foreign trade finance, the foreign exchange market and foreign exchange policy. This Professor Southard has attempted to do, with the collaboration of Mr. Philip F. Swart, Jr., and Mr. A. N. Gentes, both of whom are actively associated with the foreign department of a large New York bank. . . The attempt is not entirely successful, however. The book appears to have been written as an afterthought to the accumulation of a considerable amount of information on foreign trade financing in 1936 gathered from American exporters and importers by questionnaire, which, better organized, would have made a worth-while article. The foreign trade financing chapter of the book is the best, but even here Professor Southard's collaborators do not succeed in dispelling an aura of remoteness from actual contact with the subject. And in the remainder of the book there are a number of errors of reasoning and fact which seriously detract from its value." C. P. Kindleberger

— + Am Econ R 30:889 D '40 750w
Management R 29:195 My '40 100w

SOUTHWOLD, STEPHEN (NEIL BELL, pseud). So perish the roses. 512p $2.50 Macmillan [9s 6d Collins]

Lamb, Charles—Fiction. Lamb, Mary Ann—Fiction 40-31636

Novelized biography of Charles and Mary Lamb, with due emphasis on their many friends, literary and otherwise, and on the many women whom Charles loved; with many quotations from his works.

Atlantic N '40 150w
Booklist 37:69 O 15 '40

Reviewed by G. F. Whicher
Books p16 O 6 '40 600w

"'Here,' says the author, 'is Lamb as he was.' All may not agree to this statement, but at least Mr. Bell has added a different coloring to the portrait of his subject, who appears as the lovable, rather erratic and eccentric person he was. His weaknesses are treated with charity and his activities are presented with kindly understanding."

+ — Christian Century 57:1520 D 4 '40 90w

"So Perish the Roses is a fictionized biography of Charles Lamb which aims to reveal him as a human being rather than the whimsical angel often portrayed. As a result there is perhaps too much emphasis on his weakness for liquor and tobacco and on the strain of insanity running through the family. . . While not likely to be widely popular, this book should be in fairly steady demand in most public libraries." Isabel Douglas

+ — Library J 65:808 O 1 '40 140w
Nation 151:400 O 26 '40 10w

"Neil Bell calls his narrative a novel rather than a biography, and rightly so, for he emphasizes the character of Charles Lamb rather than the facts of his life. And again and again there will be found more between the lines than has crept into print. A penetrating and thoughtful book, it will more than repay reading." Percy Hutchison

+ N Y Times p6 S 29 '40 850w

"Sympathetically told, if you don't mind novels about famous men."

New Yorker 16:81 S 21 '40 40w

"Novel readers unfamiliar with Lamb and his eccentric associates will find the novel too long, for the author treasured his material too dearly to select sparingly. Other readers may be encouraged to pick up the letters again, or the essays, to renew acquaintance with Charles and Mary, two fine people who inspired deep love and confidence among many friends." R. A. Cordell

Sat R of Lit 22:16 S 21 '40 550w

Reviewed by J. A. Smith
Spec 165:44 Jl 12 '40 210w

"Mr. Bell claims that the Lamb he has created is different from the Lamb of the 'Spurious Legend' made by Coleridge, Wordsworth and others who knew him intimately. It is a claim that is justified; this is a Lamb we never knew."

Times [London] Lit Sup p341 Jl 13 '40 70w
Wis Lib Bul 36:167 D '40

SPAETH, SIGMUND GOTTFRIED. Barber shop ballads and how to sing them [with a foreword by Ring Lardner]. 125p il $1.96 Prentice-Hall

784 Songs (W) 40-7556

New edition of a work first published in 1925. "Mr. Spaeth's preface is a history and directory of the institution as it now exists. His book naturally retains the Ring Lardner introduction from the first edition. Otherwise it is substantially a new work, containing a good deal of copyright music. Mr. Spaeth begins with a general discourse on the art and science, then goes through ballad after ballad, with special advice as to how it should be sung." (Books)

Books p26 Mr 31 '40 200w

SPAETH, S. G.—Continued

"We are not the men our fathers were. A tougher nation didn't need to have textbooks containing 'I've Been Working on the Railroad.' But Art has triumphed and Archaeology reigns. The Spaeth manual is a swell book, but it is an ominous portent of national collapse." H. M. Jones

+ Boston Transcript p9 Mr 29 '40 420w

Reviewed by E. L. Tinker

N Y Times p27 Ap 7 '40 100w

SPAETH, SIGMUND GOTTFRIED. Music for fun. (Whittlesey house publication) 259p $2 (10s 6d) McGraw

780 Music—Analysis, interpretation, appreciation (W) 39-29420

"This book tries to stimulate . . . a normal enthusiasm for music. It suggests ways of getting started, for adults and children alike, with practical hints to parents on catching their children early, and suggestions to those who missed the encouragement they should have had in their own childhood." (Pref) Index.

Books p10 D 17 '39 180w

Cleveland Open Shelf p7 Mr '40

SPAFFORD, IVOL OCTA. A functioning program of home economics. 469p $3 Wiley

640.7 Home economics—Study and teaching 40-30069

"A study of what has been done and is being done to build a home-life curriculum—designed for the administrator, the teacher, or the curriculum worker." (Publisher's note) Index.

"Miss Spafford's book combines the values accruing from a collection of reports on many people's significant thinking and experiences with the unity and coherence gained from one writer's organization, interpretation, and evaluation. Proposals for future curriculum building evidence a broad knowledge of the whole field of education. . . Any home economist who is responsible for the development of a program will find this book a rich source of stimulating ideas for herself and particularly helpful for interpreting home economics to administrators and teachers in other fields." Letitia Walsh

+ J Home Econ 32:630 N '40 490w

School & Society 52:80 Ag '40 20w

SPALDING, H. N. Civilization in East and West; an introduction to the study of human progress. 339p $4.25 (15s) Oxford

901 Civilization. Progress. Kingdom of God. State, The [40-13160]

"'To survey the past and to surmise the future' (p. viii), sums up the purpose of this book. The author interprets history as progressive beginning with the biological state of primitive man and passing on through the materialist state, the moral state, the moral-spiritual state, the spiritual state, and looking forward to the coming of the kingdom of God on earth. The process of man's development he finds to be logical and more or less uniform." J Philos

Reviewed by H. E. Barnes

Am Hist R 46:449 Ja '41 260w

"Years of unremitting study and sustained zeal have obviously gone into this book, and the writer has succeeded in conveying both his knowledge and his enthusiasm to the reader. It may be that some persons will quarrel with the scale of values the author holds, but those values are explicitly stated and intelligently defended." Howard Becker

+ Boston Transcript p1 Je 22 '40 300w

"A vast amount of erudition goes into this volume, richly documented from the history and literature of the major civilizations of the world. There is danger of hasty generalization in such sweeping classifications." P. E. Johnson

+ Christian Century 57:704 My 29 '40 900w

"This book by H. N. Spalding, this reviewer places on a relatively small shelf of books that are truly fine and great because of their originality, clarity, purpose, fairness and contribution to both knowledge and enjoyment." A. L. Murray

+ Churchman 154:21 Ap 15 '40 430w

"When an author produces a book that invites all the critic's iconoclastic powers and yet succeeds in gaining the critic's sympathy and admiration, it may fairly be assumed that the theme is an important one and the author's treatment of it unusually able. . . Naturally the work is sketchy, but it is most skilfully done. Debatable academic points are many; but, as Mr. Spalding neatly observes, 'the dogma of one doctor is the howler of another.' One very attractive feature of the book is the author's humility. An index is desirable, although with such a wealth of scholarship to be catalogued one can forgive a compiler for shrinking from the task." G. S. Whitby

+ — Ethics 51:117 O '40 260w

"The book contains a wealth of fact and information drawn from all the world, ancient and modern, oriental and occidental, which is well worth considering in the light of the author's special emphasis." K. P. L.

+ J Philos 37:417 Jl 18 '40 600w

"This is an important book, and I should be glad indeed if anything I can say would induce all men of goodwill to study it. It is food for thought all through; yet it is attractive to read, because it is quite clear." W. H. D. Rouse

+ Manchester Guardian p3 Ja 12 '40 600w

Times [London] Lit Sup p240 My 18 '40 500w

SPEARS, HAROLD. The emerging high-school curriculum and its direction; il. by the author. 400p $2.50 Am. bk.

373 High schools—Curricula 40-5244

Considers changes in the high school curriculum in a list of representative schools, from small, rural, and secondary schools to the metropolitan type, over a wide geographical range. Underlying theories and principles are considered, and organization and practice in special types of schools described. Index.

"This is an enlightening panoramic view of the whole curriculum movement, with forward-looking evaluations and interpretations. A unique feature is the liberal use of humorous drawings executed by the author himself." C. C. Crawford

+ School & Society 52:201 S 14 '40 110w

"This new work on the curriculum will be found helpful and informative to college professors who have not had the opportunity to visit many curriculum programs in action. School administrators will find it valuable as a set of patterns from which to plan the local program and as a warning of pitfalls to avoid. Classroom teachers will find it a stimulating aid to their committee assignments for curriculum reorganization." C. F. Allen

+ School R 48:708 N '40 850w

SPEARS, MRS RUTH WYETH. Home decoration with fabric and thread; illustrations by [the author]. 149p $2.50 Barrows

747 House decoration. Sewing 40-27413

"Starting out with a glossary of materials and processes used in home decoration, the author tells how to plan the decoration of each room in the house and shows how at little expense and with only moderate skill as a needlewoman, the homemaker can make or renovate many kinds of furnishings. The text of the directions is supplemented by working drawings." J Home Econ

Booklist 36:341 My 1 '40

Cleveland Open Shelf p10 My '40

J Home Econ 32:398 Je '40 70w

SPECIAL LIBRARIES ASSOCIATION. Public business librarians group. Business and the public library; steps in successful cooperation; ed. by Marian C. Manley. 83p $2 The association

026.65 Business libraries 40-27357

Study prepared by eleven of the leading American public business libraries. It describes the work of these special libraries, and considers the methods of establishing and promoting business departments in public libraries. It was prepared under the auspices of the Special Libraries association. Appendixes give historical data, a selected bibliography, new book and pamphlet information sources, and guides to special business literature. Index.

Booklist 36:317 Ap 15 '40

Reviewed by J. H. Shera
+ Library Q 10:603 O '40 1350w

"Interesting and valuable little study. . . For executives who are familiar with the wide range of usefulness of a special business library, this book will indicate how effectively they are using such libraries in solving their everyday problems. For other executives it should be highly suggestive of the assistance they may obtain either from a special business library in their own company or from the public library of their city."
+ Management R 29:193 My '40 400w

SPECK, FRANK GOULDSMITH. Penobscot man; the life history of a forest tribe in Maine. 325p il map $4 Univ. of Pa. press

970.3 Penobscot Indians. Indians of North America—Maine 40-9335

An ethnological study of the life and customs of the Penobscot Indians of Maine and eastern Canada. The author states that his researches were made and his book written twenty-five years ago when it was still possible to hear from the lips of old men and women details of a life practically untouched by European civilization. Index

Reviewed by R. H. Lowie
Am Hist R 46:416 Ja '41 550w

"The instructiveness of the book is greatly increased by an intelligent use of illustrations, from authentic Indian collections. Here for many years to come is the source book for Penobscot Indian culture." Elizabeth Ring
+ Books p10 Jl 14 '40 800w

"This book appears to be a sufficiently complete presentation of the whole picture of Indian life as it was lived by the Penobscot and by most of the other woodland tribes which before the settlers came inhabited the New England wilderness. For the lay reader it holds no great interest, but for the student of such matters it will be a useful source book, and for the normal boy it is full of meat as a pudding is of plums." B. A. Williams
+ Boston Transcript p1 My 18 '40 380w
Nature 146:386 S 21 '40 360w

"For [the general reader] the present writer can give Doctor Speck's book unstinted commendation; they will find nothing else as good. For another class, looking for material to fortify generalizations of their own, it has faults which cannot be overlooked. The book, writes the author, was 'the belated product of an undertaking which terminated about twenty-five years ago, both as respects the period of field work and the task of reducing it to writing' The observations were made, 'when, as little more than a boy, I traveled and camped with them by day and by night.' . . There seems no other way to account for some of the statements in the book. . . The book is notably deficient in its natural history and botany, in the information about hunting and fishing, and in genealogical data fundamentally necessary to the section on social organization." F. H. Eckstorm
— + New Eng Q 13:742 D '40 1550w

"For anyone desiring the rich, woody flavor of knowledge acquired by intimate association, for those wishing information about a people who occupied the margin of contact between the dim forest reaches of the north and the pre-Columbian agriculturists of the southeast, this book is as valid today as when its substance was collected. If there are occasional lacunae it is because much of the culture had already perished. The reviewer, in fact, is willing to venture that this will be the last full account of the Penobscot people—a source upon which later writers must inevitably draw." L. C. Eiseley
+ Social Forces 19:283 D '40 700w
Springf'd Republican p6 My 27 '40 150w

SPECTOR, MRS MARGARET MARION (MITCHELL). The American department of the British government, 1768-1782. 181p $2.25 Columbia univ. press

325:342 Great Britain. Secretary of state for the American or colonial department. Great Britain—Colonies 40-12689

"This monograph is a study of the origin, organization, and functioning of the department which, from 1768 to 1782, was responsible for the administration of the colonies and which was largely responsible for the conduct of the American war. Special emphasis has been placed on the personality, work, and influence of the Under-secretaries, in particular, John Pownall and William Knox, who have been almost completely ignored heretofore. It will be obvious to the reader that this work does not pretend to be another history of British colonial policy." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

"Mrs. Spector has gone to the original sources and has done a thorough piece of research. . . This study is a genuine contribution to the history of the period, and will interest not only specialists in colonial history, but also students of public administration." Morley Ayearst
+ Am Pol Sci R 34:1040 O '40 100w

"This is a very welcome and very useful little study. More work should be done upon the subject of British colonial policy, aside from the military and political policies that sprang purely from the war, during the period of the American Revolution. Here is a good beginning." Max Savelle
+ New Eng Q 13:741 D '40 550w

SPEER, ROBERT ELLIOTT. When Christianity was new. 192p $2 Revell

270.1 Church history—Primitive and early church 40-1720

"This volume comprises the lectures delivered as the first series on the T. Verner Moore Foundation at the summer school of the San Francisco Theological Seminary, San Anselmo, California, August 4—9, 1939. The studies of primitive Christianity which they present confine themselves to the literature of the New Testament." (Pref) Contents: The church in the house; Primitive Christianity and social and economic questions; The early church as a fellowship; The early church and the race problem; Primitive Christianity and "other religions"; The place of Christ in the thought and life of the early church.

Books p22 Mr 3 '40 190w

Reviewed by W. A. Marzolf
Boston Transcript p5 Ap 6 '40 140w

"When Christianity Was New is scarcely a contribution toward a better understanding of the early church. The author is not equipped with the requisite scholarship for that. . . Certain chapters, such as 'The Early Church As a Fellowship,' are excellent, and other parts valuable for the insight they give into the meaning of Christianity." J. D. Martin
— + Christian Century 57:737 Je 5 '40 550w

SPENCE, HARTZELL. One foot in heaven; the life of a practical parson; il. by Donald McKay. (Whittlesey house publication) 298p $2.50 McGraw

B or 92 Spence, William H (W) 40-33661

A Methodist minister's son describes his father's career as a parson in Iowa from the early 1900s to the recent past. Father was the practical kind who had "one foot in heaven" and the other firmly planted on the earth.

Booklist 37:153 D 15 '40

"The picture of Mid-West life from the standpoint of a preacher's family is done faithfully and interestingly enough. The anecdotes illustrating the elder Spence's wit and humor are deplorable in their antiquity, but the humor of persons and circumstances is very well done. I like the narrative of the feud between the preacher of a fair-sized Iowa town and its great man. Still, one foot in heaven and the other in politics is about all one can make of the study." Phil Stong

+ — Books p20 N 17 '40 240w

Reviewed by Lewis Gannett

Boston Transcript p11 O 23 '40 250w

Christian Century 57:1519 D 4 '40 200w

Christian Science Monitor p18 D 3 '40 480w

"If Mr. Spence sees his father as a hero, he permits him to be a human one. Like his father's sermons the author's stories of parish affairs, family affairs, and all other affairs are short, pithy, and exciting. Their mood and variety is amazing. In narrative interest they are dramatic and cinematic. Hartzell Spence proves that ideals are the inspiration of normal citizens, that good Americans with one foot in heaven are important to Democracy. Yet the serious implifications of the book never obscure the animation of its pages." D. S. Rankin

+ Commonweal 33:83 N 8 '40 430w

"Books about preachers are likely to be on the sentimental side. Hartzell Spence has not fallen into that error. He is able to view his father in the round, with no illusions as to his small foibles, with clear perception of how the elder Spence mellowed as the years went by, and with admiration, as his subtitle indicates, for the preacher's practical abilities. This reviewer doesn't recall any biography which gives so convincing a picture of the life lived by a small-town and city parson in our own times, and his reasons for living that kind of life." R. L. Duffus

+ N Y Times p4 N 10 '40 1100w

"Pleasantly done."

+ New Yorker 16:87 O 26 '40 30w

"I am sure that William H (without a period, since it stood for nothing) Spence's son intended this life-story as a tribute to a fine father, but in spite of many genuinely hilarious incidents, it misses something of the simple humanity of George Gilbert in 'Forty Years a Country Preacher.'" Edwin Daniels

Sat R of Lit 23:17 N 2 '40 490w

SPENCER, MRS CLARISSA (YOUNG). One who was valiant [as told to] Mabel Harmer. 283p il $3 Caxton printers

B or 92 Young, Brigham. Mormons and Mormonism 40-3943

Biographical study of Brigham Young, the Mormon leader, written by his fifty-first child. The book contains also much historical matter about Utah. Index.

Booklist 36:282 Mr 15 '40

"The book does not pretend to be as objective as Werner's 'Life' nor as comprehensive as the official Mormon biographies, but it is a useful addendum to these, and a possible corrective to the slight salaciousness of Vardis Fisher's best selling 'Children of God.' From it emerges a figure who, though more of a saint than Brigham ever was, must nevertheless have been included in that remarkable leader's complex personality." Earle Birney

+ — Canadian Forum 19:394 Mr '40 330w

New Repub 102:286 F 26 '40 60w

"In being an affectionate portrait of Brigham Young as a daughter remembers him, the book is of necessity more than that: it is a picture of patriarchal life among the Mormon pioneers, and it is strange, quaint and interesting."

+ N Y Times p12 Ja 28 '40 600w

"There are several things besides the title of this book which do not commend it to the skeptical reader. . . But those are only superficial and unimportant aspects of this book. Either Mrs. Spencer, or Mabel Harmer who edited these memories, has a charming sense of humor. . . The result is for me the best book on Mormonism ever written by a Mormon." Vardis Fisher

+ — Sat R of Lit 22:10 My 11 '40 490w

SPENCER, CORNELIA. China trader. 362p $2.50 Day

40-32099

"At the end of the eighteenth century, Nathan Hathaway, playing on the Boston wharves, had dreamed he would be a China trader. This book is the story of the realization of that dream. Nathan, determined to start an American firm similar to the British East India Company, brought his bride, Joan, to Macao, the Portuguese-held Chinese town and the only place in China where foreigners might live. The development of their characters as the trade developed makes the story." Library J

"Told with great clarity and detail. This is a thoroughly careful and studious work, and a good novel besides."

+ Atlantic Ja '41 70w

Booklist 37:92 N 1 '40

Reviewed by Mary Ross

Books p5 O 13 '40 900w

Reviewed by H. R. Burdett

Library J 65:874 O 15 '40 230w

"Rather humdrum story."

New Repub 103:702 N 18 '40 40w

"One is sure that Cornelia Spencer did not set out to write a philosophical novel. Her book is sober, without being heavy, and above all not pretentious. But a novelist cannot write so justly and fully without expressing what amounts to a philosophy, without giving us a fairly complete view of life. The view of life contained in 'China Trader' is not particularly cheerful, but few readers will be able to get far into the story without considering it seriously." Margaret Wallace

+ N Y Times p7 O 13 '40 900w

"Macao and the old Canton 'factories' come to life again in this poignant tale of America's early trading days with China. The story itself is told with rare simplicity and power. It is deeply moving, and authentic in its portrayal of Chinese life and atmosphere." T. A. Bisson

+ Sat R of Lit 23:14 D 21 '40 320w

SPENCER, EDWIN ROLLIN. Just weeds; il. by Emma Bergdolt. 317p $2.75 Scribner

581.65 Weeds (W) 40-27562

Manual of weeds, written for the layman. Full-page drawings of each weed are given, with both informal and technical description, common and scientific name, information about their uses, and directions for getting rid of the obnoxious ones. Bibliography. Index.

"Very attractive and useful."

+ Booklist 36:409 Jl 1 '40

Bookmark 2:5 Ja '41

"Over and above the practical gardening and farming values, the book is interesting to all readers concerned with green and growing things."

+ Boston Transcript p1 Jl 27 '40 330w

Christian Science Monitor p11 Jl 27 '40 470w
Springf'd Republican p8 Ag 27 '40 240w
Wis Lib Bul 36:124 Jl '40

SPENCER, GEORGE BENNETT. How to be a top-flight salesman. 176p $1.75 Appleton-Century

658.8 Salesmen and salesmanship (W) 40-9162

Brief self-study book for beginning salesmen, with stress upon practical psychology and self-confidence. Contains study questions.

Booklist 36:395 Je 15 '40
J Home Econ 32:566 O '40 40w
Wis Lib Bul 36:124 Jl '40

SPENCER, HAZELTON. The art and life of William Shakespeare. 495p il map $3; text ed $2.25 Harcourt

822.33 Shakespeare, William (W) 40-3577

Summary and interpretation of the life and works of Shakespeare, to which is added some history of the Elizabethan stage. The plays themselves are grouped under headings: the experimental comedies; early histories; later histories; trial flights in tragedy; his best comedies; realistic comedies; the four great tragedies; last tragedies; and his dramatic romances. Each play is considered separately. Bibliography. Index.

"For the general reader, one work on Shakespeare is quite enough if he takes this one. Its stage history is sound, its criticism is judicious, its style is excellent, its bibliography is adequate, and its notes are sufficient to guide the special student as far as he wishes to go."
+ Atlantic My '40 100w
Booklist 36:322 Ap 15 '40

"Comparison of this book with Mr. Mark Van Doren's 'Shakespeare,' which appeared last autumn is obvious. Each supplements the other most acceptably. The poet gave us a more profound and more sensitive commentary; but his design was narrower and he had consequently ample space to support his opinions with many exquisitely chosen citations from the plays. His book is primarily a study of Shakespeare's language and various styles. The professor has had to pack into short compass all that we know, together with what may be validly assumed, concerning Shakespeare's life, social and professional environment, technique and achievement; and to all this has added ample bibliographical apparatus. To accomplish this without burying Shakespeare ten fathoms deep under a mass of erudition is a very considerable feat. In Professor Spencer's book, subject, author and readers all remain above ground in fresh air and very much alive." S. C. Chew
+ Books p6 Mr 31 '40 1000w

"Anybody, general reader or scholar, looking for a sound, up-to-the-minute, readable account of the life and works of Shakespeare will find it in this volume, better on this scale than anywhere else now in print, better indeed than it has been done before." G. F. Reynolds
+ Boston Transcript p2 Ap 13 '40 290w

"The very full index is an indispensable part of the apparatus, for this is a volume crowded with matter. A number of illustrations, well chosen and beautifully reproduced, add to the value of this lively, learned, stimulating, and delightful book."
+ Christian Science Monitor p12 Ap 13 '40 700w

"Here is a text-book which seems not quite to duplicate any volume heretofore available. . . No one will claim the book reads like a sensational novel; it is not intended to. But as a straightforward epitome of Shakespeare knowledge it is of ready reference well nigh unique. . . The volume is well worth owning: to own it will save buying some two dozen other 'necessary' books." P. E. Osgood
+ Churchman 154:20 Ap 15 '40 130w

"It is safe to predict that, although it is by no means milk for babes, the book will accomplish its purpose. Readers reared in the romantic bardolatry of the last and the first decades of the present centuries will find here a new and livelier Shakespeare, one who was not a philosopher, moralist, or psychologist of any school modern or medieval, but a masterful playwright and a poet of extraordinary gifts." Charles Donahue
+ Commonweal 31:456 Mr 15 '40 380w

"Copious, beautiful, and informative illustrations, notes that interest and enlighten, and a select critical bibliography that is an excellent guide to further study make this a book which any student of Shakespeare will find interesting and useful. The only defect is that the author sometimes overemphasizes common sense at the expense of more interpretative and speculative writers."
+ Nation 150:287 F 24 '40 80w

"It may be that Mr. Spencer's common sense has lapses. He knows that Spielmann has shown the 'Droeshout original' portrait, long circused at Stratford, to be no original but a copy of the Folio print; yet he gives a full-page reproduction of the hideous effigy. He ignores the very interesting typographic brackets which, in the Quarto, divide the two series of Sonnets—and all that they may, or may not, mean. . . Yet at worst these are minor lapses. The book is by all odds the best compendium of Shakespeareana ever written and is right up to this date of 1940. With the addition of a one-volume edition of the text, preferably Professor Kittredge's, it presents all that the inquisitive layman need know and more than most scholars do." John Corbin
+ — N Y Times p2 Mr 3 '40 900w

"A witty and scholarly book, distinguished by good sense and excellent literary taste."
+ New Yorker 16:79 F 24 '40 30w

"All kinds of people, professional and amateur, learned and ignorant, sane and insane, are studying, speculating, digging, puzzling, and arguing all over the world about who Shakespeare was, what he wrote, and what he meant; and the volume of their publications is so great that frequent siftings and summaries of results are absolutely necessary. The present volume is an admirable example of what such a summary should be and how much more than a summary it can be. . . It is no disparagement of the criticism in this book to say that it at times provokes dissent. . . In general the evaluation of the plays is sound and penetrating and the author's own, and is based on a scholar's knowledge of the relevant facts. The style of the book is clear, vivacious, and at times eloquent." W. A. Neilson
+ Sat R of Lit 21:5 Mr 9 '40 500w

"Some twenty pages of illustrations enhance a study which is not only useful as a reference but stimulating as a text."
+ Theatre Arts 24:763 O '40 260w

"Hazelton Spencer is a scholar who knows how to write human English without being indecently 'popular.' . . Where there are no facts he makes no effort to invent any. His own remarks are distinguished by unusual common sense. . . There have been more brilliant and more monumental studies of Shakespeare. But for the general reader this is an almost ideally useful, informative companion volume to the plays, and guide to further reading."
+ Time 35:92 F 26 '40 60w

"Though the writer of this book is an American professor, it is neither dry-as-dust nor sprightly. It is vigorous, witty and warm, the work of a critic with an imagination, one who uses his heart as well as his head, both of them powerful and well equipped."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p294 Je 15 '40 1100w
Wis Lib Bul 36:124 Jl '40

Reviewed by G. C. Taylor
Yale R n s 30:418 winter '41 240w

SPENCER, ROBERT NELSON, bp. The seer's house. 151p $1.50 Scribner

252 Sermons 40-10018

A volume of "interpretations and meditations," essay-sermons, by the Episcopal Bishop of Western Missouri. "The substance of these chapters was spoken on noondays in Lent, in Saint Bartholomew's Church, New York; in Saint Paul's Church, Baltimore; in Christ Church, Houston, and in the Harris Theatre, Chicago. They have been rewritten and prepared especially for publication, though here and there much of the freedom of the spoken word has been allowed to stand." (Pref) Index.

"If these 'interpretations and meditations' were never preached, they ought to be, from many pulpits, for there is in them the root of the matter that all good preaching is about. They flow smoothly and limpidly, like urbane essays, with no homiletical 'firstly, secondly, thirdly,' but their substance is rugged."

+ Christian Century 57:641 My 15 '40 50w

Reviewed by M. L. Eglinton
Churchman 154:16 My 1 '40 80w

Reviewed by Gordon Poteat
Crozer Q 17:241 Jl '40 30w

SPENGLER, OSWALD. Today and destiny; based on the text of the auth. tr. of Charles Francis Atkinson. 364p $2.75 Knopf

901 Civilization—History 40-32038

Collection of "vital excerpts" from The Decline of the West by Oswald Spengler (Book Review Digest, 1926), arranged with an introduction and commentary by the editor, Edwin Franden Dakin.

"One misses, of course, some of the quality of any work if one does not read it through without abridgment. But for the vast majority even of the educated classes who will never read Spengler from cover to cover Mr. Dakin has done a useful job of intelligent abridgment."

+ Atlantic Ja '41 220w

Booklist 37:172 Ja 1 '41

"Because the rapid rhythm of modern life allows little time for careful study, Mr. Dakin has eliminated some 85 percent of the original text and organized the remainder so as to present Spengler's thesis in a compact, readable form. Not only does he appear to have performed this task admirably, but his own contributions, an introduction and a biography of Spengler, together with a clever journalistic interpretation of the present situation, are extremely interesting." T. M. Avery, Jr.

+ Commonweal 33:108 N 15 '40 650w

"While Oswald Spengler completely negates many of the finer ideals and values of life and enthrones force, the combative instinct, and the will-to-power, still some of his predictions (writing before the fact, as he did) have been so quickly and tragically realized that his theory deserves to be studied by every thoughtful person. . . The most convenient form in which to read it is 'Today and Destiny' . . . a single book that embodies the gist of Spenglerian philosophy condensed from his two great volumes. . . Edwin Franden Dakin, its able editor, supplies a chapter of his own, indicating the mysterious German philosopher's probable reactions to the events of today." E. L. Tinker

+ N Y Times p15 D 22 '40 1900w

"Mr Dakin's selections from this famous and somewhat baffling work will help to familiarize the public with Spengler's conception of the rise and decline of civilization and with many of his incidental views. As the editor suggests, there seems to be less time for studious reading than even 20 years ago. There is justification for a collection of extracts from any major work of abstruse character, and Mr Dakin chooses passages that are significant in themselves and are not distorted by separation from their context." E. N. Jenckes

+ Springf'd Republican p6 O 12 '40 1450w

Time 36:95 O 21 '40 750w

SPERRY, ARMSTRONG. Call it courage; il. by the author. 95p $1.75 Macmillan

(W) 40-4229

"Conditioned in infancy to terror of the sea, a Polynesian 'Boy Who Was Afraid' flees his island people who worship courage. Adrift with his dog in an outrigger canoe, he is cast by a furious storm on the uninhabited Sacrifice Island of the cannibals. There, naked and empty-handed, he wrests food, clothing, shelter, fire, and weapons from ocean and jungle." Library J

Booklist 36:309 Ap 1 '40

"The struggle on the island is fierce enough to hold a boy's attention, and the pictures in dark blue, emphasize the loneliness, the sense of smallness against the vast sweep of nature, that was his chief trial. The story is wild enough to be remembered, and it cannot be remembered without doing good." M. L. Becker

+ Books p8 F 25 '40 500w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk M 16:271 Jl '40 160w

"Boys will like the 'Crusoe' theme of this thrilling adventure. . . Vocabulary for fifth or sixth grade." Maude Adams

+ Library J 65:260 Mr 15 '40 150w

Reviewed by R. A. Hill
Library J 65:853 O 15 '40 10w

"Whether this author is telling of clipper ships, of the days of the covered wagon, of the South Sea Islands, he writes always with imagination and integrity. 'Call It Courage' is a Polynesian legend which Mr. Sperry retells with sympathy." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p10 Mr 24 '40 400w

Springf'd Republican p7e My 12 '40 90w

Wis Lib Bul 36:71 Ap '40

SPERRY, WILLARD LEAROYD. What we mean by religion. 177p $1.75 Harper

248 Christianity 40-33268

"This volume is the first of a series of annual lectures to be delivered at the Florida Southern College, designed to stress religion as an essential element of a liberal education. . . His five lectures deal with religion, faith, prayer, morals and God." (Christian Century) Index.

Booklist 37:211 Ja 15 '41

"That Dean Sperry knows college students and how to win their confidence is obvious. He certainly cannot be charged with understating their religious difficulties. These he faces frankly and discusses in language unmistakably clear." W. E. Hammond

+ Christian Century 58:19 Ja 1 '41 750w

Reviewed by R. C. Miller
Churchman 154:18 D 1 '40 180w

SPICER, EDWARD HOLLAND. Pascua, a Yaqui village in Arizona. 319p il maps $3.50 Univ. of Chicago press [21s Cambridge]

970.3 Yaqui Indians 40-12408

Pascua is a village near Tucson, Arizona, containing 60 households and a total population of 429, 90 per cent of which is Yaqui Indian. The Indians are not a closely united group historically, but some of the ancient traditions and ceremonials survive. This study attempts to picture the problems of the Indians, who earn their living as ranch hands, cotton pickers, adobe makers, and try to carry on their ancient rituals besides. The numerous public ceremonies sometimes amount to 171 in a single year. Bibliography. Index.

"The problems presented and Spicer's keen awareness of them should make this book of interest to sociologists and anthropologists alike." W. C. Bennett
+ Am Soc R 5:795 O '40 330w
Christian Century 57:879 Jl 10 '40 90w

SPITZ, ARMAND N. The pinpoint planetarium; drawings by G. Carter Morningstar. 86p $2 Holt

520 Astronomy. Planispheres 40-9113

Guide to the stars for amateur astronomers. At the back of the book there are twenty-four charts, two for each month, with instructions for getting them in order for use. Glossary-index.

"This neat explanation of the elementary facts of astronomy is anyone's vade mecum. . . The whole brand-new approach to the subject is enthralling for amateurs of any age, and not without real use to people who already think they know all there is about astronomy."
+ Atlantic Ag '40 70w

"Speaking from experience, I heartily recommend the use of star-books for summer in the country; this one has a trick that makes it especially useful for children at any time of year. The pages are wide; the book has chapters on stars, constellations and sky sights, and plenty of small drawings." M. L. Becker
+ Books p7 Jl 7 '40 310w
Boston Transcript p2 Je 29 '40 40w
Nature 146:350 S 14 '40 290w
N Y New Tech Bks 25:19 Ap '40

"The book is a useful novelty for use at home or by amateur study groups."
+ Springf'd Republican p6 My 20 '40 380w

SPIVAK, JOHN LOUIS. Shrine of the silver dollar. 180p il $2 Modern age

B or 92 Coughlin, Charles Edward 40-27239

"Careful investigation and well documented evidence result in serious charges against Father Coughlin as a fascist organizer, a Nazi propagandist, a stock market gambler with money donated to his church, a defrauder by mail, and a briber in a plot against unions. Factual material, well presented without emotionalism." Booklist

Booklist 36:305 Ap 1 '40
Reviewed by E. T. Buehrer
Christian Century 57:315 Mr 6 '40 700w
Reviewed by James Van Zant
Churchman 154:20 Ap 15 '40 90w

"There is a serious limit to the value of these revelations. Spivak writes like a detective with a social conscience; and detective stories rarely depict characters in their full dimensions. It is important to see Coughlin in the drab garments of a finagler who has a lawyer. But it is just as misleading to see him as no more than 'Silver Charlie' as to see him as the 'microphonic apostle'—Coughlin's description of himself. . . Coughlin's real crimes are far more serious than those Spivak has revealed, and far less susceptible of reprisal. His rhetoric is the triumph of half truth and falsehood; and the invocation of postal laws against him is a puny sort of reply. Spivak has explained how Social Justice is financed. That is worth knowing. But it does not explain why Social Justice is read, and why Tommy Gallagher hawks it on the streets." James Wechsler
+ — Nation 150:658 My 25 '40 700w
New Repub 103:222 Ag 12 '40 50w
New Yorker 16:64 Mr 2 '40 30w

SPRIGGE, ELIZABETH (MRS MARK NAPIER). The raven's wing. 446p $2.50 (8s 6d) Macmillan

Elizabeth, consort of Francis Joseph I, emperor of Austria—Fiction (W) 40-33598

Fictionized biography of the Empress Elisabeth of Austria, wife of the emperor Franz Josef. Except for a closing chapter the story ends with the suicide of Elisabeth's son, Rudolf.

Booklist 37:241 F 1 '41

"It is a well told story, and full of incident against its splendid background. It all seems legendary now. It was anachronistic before it reached its end. But the novel's romantic quality, like its appealing interest, is in the character of its heroine, the action that sprang naturally from her character, the events that were in opposition to it." John Patton
+ Books p16 O 27 '40 600w

"Miss Sprigge has done remarkably well in her character delineations but often she becomes drippingly sentimental and melodramatic. Her historical background is good and vividly presented. The story runs smoothly—and it is a relief to see her go ahead with history and leave out politics!" B. E. Nelson
+ — Boston Transcript p2 Ja 4 '41 400w
Christian Century 57:1617 D 25 '40 140w

"Those who turn to novels for history and enjoy it, well seasoned with courtship and court intrigue, should find this book to their liking. The author has already written a play, Elisabeth of Austria, which was produced in London, and knows her subject. She writes well, but her skill as a novelist seems best displayed in an original theme such as The Old Man Dies." Catherine Van Dyne
+ — Library J 65:809 O 1 '40 100w

"Stylistically, the book is graceful, gentle and written with the sensibility that, despite the heady romanticism of the time and place it describes, never lapses into sentimentality. The Raven's Wing is, to force an image, a sort of hippogryph which the wings of fiction strive unsuccessfully to pull off the ground of fact. In other words, the facts prevent it from being a good novel, and the fancies hinder it from being reliable history. It is, to revert to the hippogryph, a pleasant hybrid that doesn't come off." John Mair
+ — New Statesman & Nation 20:362 O 12 '40 190w

"The book is vital, interesting and well integrated. Although there is no paraphernalia of bibliography the writer has, quite evidently, steeped herself in her subject and period. It is unlikely that any one will want to question her historical data. But not every one will agree with the interpretations on points that are still debatable." J. S. Southron
+ N Y Times p7 O 27 '40 900w
Springf'd Republican p7e N 3 '40 100w

"The book is skilfully constructed, and the phases of Elizabeth's development are clearly distinguished, while the long imaginary conversations in which the Empress's views are set forth, and her story partly told, succeed in avoiding tedium, though sometimes by a hair's breadth. But, on the whole, her personality remains a shadowy one, and we are left regretting her tragic inadequacy to cope with the situation in which a less egotistical and childish woman might have done such signal service to her country and to Europe."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p493 S 28 '40 350w

SPRING, HARRY MORTIMER. Boiler operator's guide; construction, operation, inspection, and maintenance of steam boilers, with 310 typical steam engineer's examination questions and answers. 353p il $3 McGraw

621.184 Boilers. Steam engineering (W) 40-27532

"A practical manual on all types of boilers. Included are questions and answers suitable for those preparing for a license examination. The chapters cover general construction, stress calculations, fire-tube boilers, watertube boilers (straight and bent tube), boiler appliances and auxiliaries, boiler-plant management, problems of plant operation, and a glossary of boiler terms." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

SPRING, H. M.—Continued

Booklist 36:395 Je 15 '40
N Y New Tech Bks 25:40 Jl '40

SPRING, HOWARD. Fame is the spur. 726p $2.75 Viking [9s 6d Collins]
(W) 40-33709

"A boy brought up in a lower-middle-class, [English] chapel-going family resolves to get on in the world, and with the help of a pleasing manner, a touch for florid sentiment, and unceasing application to business eventually becomes a wealthy and respected National Labour peer. Yet, although he wins material success, he loses his youthful integrity, and drops his old comrades, like worn-out stepping stones, one after another by the wayside. At last, very old, famous and lonely, he begins to realise that fame, after all, is not the only thing in life." New Statesman & Nation

Atlantic D '40 410w
Booklist 37:137 D 1 '40

Reviewed by Mary Ross
Books p5 N 17 '40 1100w

"This is one of the most notable of the season's novels. Etched on a broader canvas than the popular My Son, My Son!, it has the same grace of style, the same narrative skill, the same, if not so sustained, a poignancy. The interest never flags from the first to the last of its 726 pages."
+ Cath World 152:635 F '41 360w

Christian Science Monitor p10 D 21 '40 500w

"Mr. Howard Spring has managed to get away from the artificiality and the somewhat assertive erudition of his characters in 'My Son, My Son'; in the present work, he has written a great novel. Perhaps this is because he believes so intensely in what his book has to say. . . Mr. Spring's characters are real men and women whose reactions are based on thought and experience. It is for this reason we feel for and understand them; we are moved by their condition and we are sorry for their mistakes and for their disappointment." J. G. E. Hopkins
+ Commonweal 33:354 Ja 24 '41 700w

"An absorbing novel, its interest sustained from the first page to the last, sure to be a best seller and recommended for all libraries." G. W. Hill
+ Library J 65:874 O 15 '40 160w

"A novel which provides both a splendid story and a superb panorama of English social history during the past century. . . 'Fame Is the Spur' is history alive and breathing, peopled with Mr. Spring's most vivid character creations." L. B. Salomon
+ Nation 151:538 N 30 '40 600w

"Fame is the Spur is old stuff but none the worse for it; we have swallowed the mixture often before, but it still produces the accustomed stimulation; the first sips seem crude, but the flavour improves with tasting, and the dose ends by exciting all the simpler emotions. . . It is lively, dramatic, often arresting; and although its characters are somewhat typical of the genre, they are delineated with an almost Dickensian verve." John Mair
+ New Statesman & Nation 20:68 Jl 20 '40 300w

Reviewed by Harold Strauss
N Y Times p5 N 17 '40 1450w

"Mr. Spring gets everything in, writes energetically, has humor, much power of observation, and a very keen sense of the lives of the poor, yet he does not, with all this, tell us anything we do not know. It is an extraordinary thing that such long, careful, detailed novels as this and Upton Sinclair's 'World's End' should, for all their quality, make so meagre a final impression upon us. Their failure is not so much a matter of defective craftsmanship. It is, I think, due to the fact that their authors are mentally not much in advance of their audiences." Clifton Fadiman
— + New Yorker 16:99 N 16 '40 650w

"The character of Hamer Shawcross is well and shrewdly organized; but I doubt if it could be called organic. As so often happens with the characters in long political or historical novels, Hamer is a number of personal episodes rather than a person. He might have been conceived by Arnold Bennett in a very tired mood; there is something about him that is second-hand. . . One has to admit however, that, beside the mere energy of good story-telling, another and more obscure force can be discerned in 'Fame Is the Spur.' The novel is a complaint against the past. With this extrinsic force to give it momentum, 'Fame Is the Spur' becomes something more than just a piece of competent writing. It rather looks as if Mr. Spring had another success on his hands." George Dangerfield
+ — Sat R of Lit 23:7 N 23 '40 800w

Reviewed by Kate O'Brien
Spec 165:22 Jl 5 '40 170w

Reviewed by L. C. Rich
Springf'd Republican p7e D 1 '40 1100w

"It is all very well done in its flowing fashion of reportage—a good deal better than the run of competent novels of this type. The large canvas is organized with excellent judgment, there are arresting blobs of dramatic colour and neat little portraits of authentic personalities such as Engels and Keir Hardie. The hero of this story, who is always a cross between a sincere romantic and a practised windbag, lacks something of body—perhaps inevitably so—but is interesting enough for most of the time."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p313 Je 29 '40 700w

SPRING, HOWARD. Tumbledown Dick; all people and no plot; with 16 il. from pen drawings by Steven Spurrier. 262p $2 Viking [6s Faber]
40-6697

The adventures of an English boy, whose father had a truck farm not far from Manchester. Dick's mother fell ill, and the boy was sent to Manchester, to stay with an uncle who kept a pet-shop. There he met again little Mr. Tubbs, the magician; the Lady Mayoress; Aunt Maria, who looked like a robin; and others as quaint and charming as characters out of Dickens.

Booklist 36:401 Je 15 '40

"The subtitle of the new book by the author of 'My Son, My Son!' comes right out with the fact that it's 'all people and no plot.' Thanks to this fact, anybody can listen to it or read it, whatever his age, and enjoy every minute. For every minute is charged with something warm, alive and unsentimentally sympathetic, about people who are poor and don't know it." M. L. Becker
+ Books p5 Je 9 '40 450w

"This is a spring book in the sense that it feeds a natural desire to go somewhere and see fresh things and people. Boys and girls in their teens will like it—its vivid characterization cannot help but increase their literary appreciation—and it will be read by adults too." E. M. Mack
+ Boston Transcript p2 My 25 '40 400w

Reviewed by M. A. Whitney
Christian Science Monitor p9 Ag 29 '40 240w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk M 16:272 Jl '40 120w

"A fine book for every library and an ideal stepping-stone to Dickens." Florence O'Gara
+ Library J 65:544 Je 15 '40 140w

Reviewed by R. A. Hill
Library J 65:852 O 15 '40 50w

"Throughout the book there is kindliness, humor and human nature in such abundant measure that the older reader will be reminded of Dickens, while the young reader who has not yet sampled Dickens will perhaps realize for the first time, as he reads Mr. Spring's story, that there is a fun that laughs with instead of at, and a kindly way of observing and enjoying the absurdities of mankind. 'Tumbledown Dick' is a book with the flavor of real literature and one that boys and girls from 12 to 15 should not miss." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p10 Je 2 '40 360w

"If there is no plot, there are plenty of unexpected events. The author of 'My Son, My Son!' knows boys and does not 'write down' for them." K. S. W.
+ New Yorker 16:99 My 18 '40 60w
Wis Lib Bul 36:128 Jl '40

SPROUT, HAROLD HANCE, and SPROUT, MRS MARGARET (TUTTLE). Toward a new order of sea power; American naval policy and the world scene, 1918-1922. 332p il maps $3.75 Princeton univ. press

359 U.S.—Navy—History. Sea power. Disarmament

Continues the discussion of American naval power begun by the authors in their Rise of American Naval Power (Book Review Digest, 1939). The present volume has for its central interest the Washington Naval conference of 1921. The period covered by the book is 1918 to 1922. Contains the text of the Washington treaties. Index.

" 'Toward a New Order of Sea Power' should be read by every American citizen. The new order is one in which our country is fated to play the leading part; and it is a new order which will be the bulwark of freedom against the 'New World Order' of the totalitarian states, the one shield their weapons cannot penetrate, the sword whose blows they cannot parry." G. F. Eliot
+ Books p1 Ja 12 '41 1550w

" 'Toward a New Order of Sea Power' represents real intellectual vigor and a nice sense of selectivity, and the Princeton University Press has done the book justice with a readable, clear and handsome make-up." H. W. Baldwin
+ N Y Times p3 Ja 26 '41 1900w

"Readable and evidently authoritative."
+ New Yorker 16:94 N 23 '40 60w
Social Studies 32:46 Ja '41 20w

SPRY, MRS CONSTANCE. Garden notebook. 226p il $3 Knopf

635.9 Gardening. Floriculture. Floral decoration 40-6750

A chapter for each month of the year, and one on decorations and the care of cut flowers, by an English author. She writes on planning and planting of both flower and vegetable gardens, their care, and their uses. The illustrations are photographs, mainly of elaborate flower arrangements. Index.

Reviewed by Robert Lemmon
Books p11 Je 9 '40 150w

"Mrs. Spry's book is both interesting and valuable. It is delightfully informal." W. H. Clark
+ Boston Transcript p1 Mr 9 '40 280w

Reviewed by F. F. Rockwell
N Y Times p5 Je 9 '40 310w
Springf'd Republican p12 Mr 15 '40 550w

"Gives several unusual recipes for the woman who is interested in the cooking and preserving of her garden produce. The book does not deal with the wartime aspect of the garden, but although the recipes cannot all be said to be appropriate to the times we live in, they will help to stimulate that sense of close relationship between garden and kitchen which is so essential to good housekeeping in the country. The photographs of flower arrangements which illustrate the book are all excellent."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p379 Ag 3 '40 140w

STACE, WALTER TERENCE. Nature of the world; an essay in phenomenalist metaphysics. 262p $4 Princeton univ. press [14s Oxford]

110 Metaphysics 40-8303

"The present work by Profesor Stace, who is lecturer under the Stuart foundation at Princeton, is in the nature of the last member of a tetralogy, supplementing his distinguished contributions to aesthetics, epistemology and ethics by an essay in pure metaphysics. He presents his subject as a purely theoretic speculative activity, directed towards the framing of an ultimate hypothesis which must in the nature of the case remain insusceptible of proof and of which no more should be demanded than that it may provide an explanation of the universe on phenomenalist and empirical lines which does not conflict with the deliverances of experience and which can be shown in this respect to compare favourably, or at least not unfavourably, with other competing hypotheses." Times [London] Lit Sup

Reviewed by S. C. Pepper
J Philos 37:581 O 10 '40 2150w

"The whole construction works itself around to the usual metaphysical problems, including value and God, but is much too complicated to allow for elaboration here. No one who is not familiar with the works of Moore, Montague, Price, Russell, and Whitehead should make an attempt to read it. In fact, no one should have made such an attempt to write a 'histological' metaphysic without coming to terms with John Dewey, if only to salvage his own problems from the obsolescence to which Dewey has consigned them." R. B.
Sat R of Lit 22:20 Ag 24 '40 200w

"Professor Stace writes as a critic of Idealism and as a resolute opponent of Realism. . . The positive worth of his own constructive theory is hardly to be evaluated in a moment. The easy grace and perspicuous vigour of his style make it as difficult to challenge him on a ground of vantage as to challenge Hume; but the seed of a metaphysical hypothesis, such as Berkeley's, Hegel's or McTaggart's, must germinate in the corporate philosophic soul before the nature of the harvest becomes apparent, though it is perhaps possible at once to hazard this conjecture that Professor Stace's fundamental concept of the ontological parity of data and consciousness may prove a hard saying."
Times [London] Lit Sup p420 Ag 31 '40 900w

STAGGE, JONATHAN, pseud. See Webb, R. W., and Wheeler, H. C.

STALEY, WILLIAM WESLEY. Introduction to mine surveying. 275p il $3.50 Stanford univ. press [16s Oxford]

622.14 Mine surveying 39-29422

"Assuming that the student has had basic training in surveying, the author gives little space to theory. Includes brief chapters on bore-hole surveys and coal mine surveying. 'Although the author is modest in his selection of his title he covers in a very clear and concise manner a good deal of ground, the book containing something valuable on all those subjects that are usually treated in a textbook on mine surveying. In a uniformly good book, Chapter 7, which contains lucid descriptions of methods for transferring the meridian underground, is outstanding. The text is a most valuable contribution to mine-surveying and can be most warmly recommended to the student and to the practicing mine surveyor who requires a handy book of reference.'" (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

STALEY, W. W.—Continued

Booklist 36:146 D 15 '39
N Y New Tech Bks 25:13 Ja '40

STALIN, IOSIF. Stalin's kampf; [his] credo, written by himself; ed. by M. R. Werner. 358p $2.50 Howell, Soskin

947.084 Russia—Politics and government. Russia—Foreign relations. Communism—Russia. Stalin, Iosif (W) 40-27459

A collection, topically arranged, of excerpts from Stalin's speeches and articles, which, the editor believes, reveals the man's nature and his purposes. In addition to simple bibliographical footnotes, the editor has supplied a number of other footnotes commenting upon or clarifying statements in the text.

Booklist 36:361 My 15 '40
Reviewed by Sidney Hook
Books p6 Ap 7 '40 1500w

"As the title suggests, the intention is to produce a work analogous to Hitler's 'Mein Kampf.' On the whole, the attempt is not successful, although something of the failure is implicit in the refractory nature of the material itself. The development of Stalin's policy, as reflected in his writings, has little of the forthright direction and uncompromising deliberateness of Hitler's. . . As a substitute for the more voluminous works, however, this handy compilation will serve a practical purpose. . . The chief virtue of such a compilation should be frequent explanatory annotations, and in this respect the book leaves much to be desired." E. J. S.
— + Boston Transcript p2 Ap 13 '40 280w

"The book is an interesting and historically valuable compilation of selections from Stalin's written and spoken words, but it contains little that is sensational and almost nothing that need cause embarrassment to American communists. . . Stalin is not as frank as Hitler. It is not so easy to condemn him out of his own mouth."
+ — Christian Century 57:482 Ap 10 '40 210w

"That additional material from the original Russian was not included in the volume is a source of some disappointment. Yet the analyses of Soviet domestic and foreign policy gain considerable clarity through the editor's careful selection of relevant passages from various speeches and official pronouncements."
+ — Christian Science Monitor p10 Jl 6 '40 550w

Foreign Affairs 18:758 Jl '40 40w
Reviewed by M. M. Colum
Forum 103:260 My '40 230w
Manchester Guardian p7 O 15 '40 220w

"'Stalin's Kampf' reminds me of the Book of Mormon; for both in style and subject matter Stalin's 'book' is to the Marxian scriptures as the Book of Mormon is to the Bible—a dull caricature. The sharp polemic and brilliant phrase of those sophisticated Europeans, Marx, Lenin, and Trotsky, appear here as bludgeoning attacks and crude sentences. There are sections in which the only readable paragraphs are those in which Stalin quotes from Marx or Lenin, and in general the book is so thoroughly devoid of any integrating logic, let alone style, that one searches in vain for the 'blueprint of Communist ambitions' and 'statement of world aims' which the jacket promises." Margaret Marshall
Nation 150:451 Ap 6 '40 650w

"Trotsky once described an important volume by Stalin as a 'codification of ideological rubbish, an official manual of imbecility, a collection of numbered platitudes.' There is little in 'Stalin's Kampf' to contradict this unkind judgment. Mr. Werner has, on the whole, performed his exacting task extremely well. He is not to be blamed if Stalin's writings, to quote Trotsky again, 'give the physical sensation of thinly chopped bristle.' 'Stalin's Kampf' nevertheless should be read, because a realization of the intellectual caliber of the leader is essential to an understanding of the Russian situation." M. T. Florinsky
N Y Times p14 Ap 7 '40 900w

"Excellent compilation."
+ New Yorker 16:75 Mr 30 '40 20w

"As for Mr. Werner's work, it is good. The selections are representative and fairly chosen. . . On the other side of the ledger, there is no index; the arrangement is confusing; the juxtaposition of passages from various times and places obscures Stalin's development. By the editor's admission 'the sectarian squabbles of the Communist groups have been omitted,' though they happen to be indispensable to full understanding. The tone of the Foreword, moreover, as well as the quotations from Trotsky, the curious appendix on Stalin's police record, and the too frequent footnote quotations from Boris Souvarine's unreliable 'biography' all suggest that Mr. Werner leans toward the devil theory of the Red High Priest." F. L. Schuman
+ — Sat R of Lit 21:10 Ap 6 '40 800w
Discussion by Sidney Hook
Sat R of Lit 21:9 Ap 20 '40 290w
Reviewed by E. H. Carr
Spec 165:391 O 18 '40 700w
Springf'd Republican p8 Ap 17 '40 380w
Times [London] Lit Sup p490 S 28 '40 1500w
Reviewed by Michael Karpovich
Yale R n s 29:820 summer '40 120w

STANLEY, LEO LEONIDAS, and WELLS, EVELYN. Men at their worst. 322p il $3 Appleton-Century

365 California. State prison, San Quentin. Crime and criminals—California. Criminal psychology 40-32316

Memoirs of the twenty-seven years the author spent as Chief surgeon of San Quentin, the largest penal institution in the world.

"Summing up is hard for Dr. Stanley; he doesn't seem to have that kind of mind. His book is anecdote and moralizing—on the level of a principal keeper or other law-enforcing officer. Not even Tom Mooney becomes interesting in his description." W. D. Lane
Books p44 D 1 '40 360w

"'Men at Their Worst' is altogether a memorable book by an extraordinary physician." S. G. Kling
+ N Y Times p9 D 22 '40 490w

"A most engrossing story. Dr. Stanley's practical experience should guarantee him an audience not among sensation seekers, but among thoughtful people who are really concerned with the prison problem. He takes a middle course between the extremists that gives an air of common sense to his many deductions. One cannot escape the fact that the many anecdotes and case histories that fill the pages are astonishing, but they point to sober, medical, and sociological conclusions."
+ Scientific Bk Club R 11:4 O '40 600w

STARK, FREYA MADELINE. A winter in Arabia [il. with the author's photographs]. 328p maps $5 Dutton [16s Murray, J]

915.34 Hadramaut, Arabia (W) 40-34529

In the winter of 1937-38, this notable woman traveler spent several months in Hureidha, a town in southern Arabia. Her book contains the day by day record of her impressions and observations during her visit there, and also an account, not in diary form, of her return trip to the coast thru almost unknown territory. Index.

Booklist 37:151 D 15 '40

STALIN (stä'lēn)

Reviewed by S. C. Chew
Books p3 N 17 '40 1000w

"Her writing has wit and vivacity, and no little beauty; and once again she has given us some magnificent photographs. I found the whole book enthralling." Eric Forbes-Boyd
+ Christian Science Monitor p10 Ag 17 '40 650w

Reviewed by H. W. Nevinson
Manchester Guardian p6 Jl 1 '40 650w

" 'Winter in Arabia' is a treasure of rare distinction among travel books, in text and photographs."
+ N Y Times p4 N 10 '40 500w

"Miss Stark's work has a brilliant precision that appears to be both scientific and poetic."
+ New Yorker 16:103 N 16 '40 50w

Reviewed by Linton Wells
Sat R of Lit 23:14 N 30 '40 360w

"Faraya commands an ease and flexibility of idiom and expression which floats into one's consciousness like delicately spun silk. At least the equal of Lady Anne Blunt and of Gertrude Bell as a traveller, as a writer she is superior to both: taking her place effortlessly with the little band of great interpreters of the Near East led by Doughty, Lawrence and Sir George Adam Smith. It is a delight and a reassurance that such a book, embodying such a spirit, can still be published in this black June of 1940." Ronald Storrs
+ Spec 164:867 Je 28 '40 800w

Springf'd Republican p7e N 24 '40 1150w

"Here, for once in a very long while, is a book upon which the miser of superlatives may pour out his hoard of praise. . . To read such work, albeit hurriedly and in a press of anxiety, is to be proud and thankful. For here is a lovely charity and calm courage, vivid gaiety, the strong peace of truth and understanding; and quietness. It is for this and its like that our defences are now set up."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p318 Je 29 '40 800w

STARRETT, VINCENT. Books alive. 360p $3 Random house

804 Literature—Addresses, essays, lectures. Books and reading (W) 40-27791

In his foreword the author says: "This is not a history of literature; it is a book of gossip. . . [It is a] chronicle of literary endeavor and literary misdemeanor." Partial contents: The fellowship of books; Of castaways and islands; They wrote in jail; Of books and burglars; The fine art of forgery; From Poe to Poirot; Romance with a key; Some doctors of literature; Speaking of ghosts; Partners in print; Who wrote these pieces? Christopher Morley supplied the "unconventional index."

"Savor his flow of spicy anecdote, of odd things he has picked up about plagiarism, theft, and literary hoax—all of this made appetizing by a most unconventional index prepared by Christopher Morley." Edward Weeks
+ Atlantic N '40 260w

Booklist 37:131 D 1 '40

" 'Books Alive' is the most titillating blurb for all the best and most curious books, and most amusing column of gossip about authors and bookmen, the quick and the dead, that I remember ever to have read." Ernestine Evans
+ Books p12 D 22 '40 650w

"Mr. Starrett has, apparently, written without any serious intent: he succeeds admirably in giving us an entertaining book. It is a volume of literary gossip, a book not for students or bibliographers, but for those literary ladies—and gentlemen—who appreciate a fund of anecdote and chatty comment. The anecdotes are not, by any means, new; in fact, their familiarity is the chief charm of some: known trivia have a power of solacing by again distracting, which, especially today, many a reader will find welcome." Alastair Guinan
+ Commonweal 33:186 D 6 '40 420w

"It revives fond memories of favorite stories and reminds one of the many books whose reading has been postponed. Highly enjoyable with its chatty gossip about authors, and will fascinate all who have a fondness for books and reading." J. A. Sohon
+ Library J 65:761 S 15 '40 130w

"An amiable freshet of literary gossip, a sort of modern supplement to the elder D'Israeli's 'Curiosities of Literature.' "
+ New Yorker 16:104 O 12 '40 30w

" 'Books Alive' is not written in a haphazard fashion. For a trafficker in gossip and anecdote the author is disturbingly tidy in his organization, and he is sometimes—as in the chapter on desert islands—alarmingly instructive. Mr. Starrett is that rara avis, a true amateur of letters; he should not imperil his status by wandering too far into scholarland, where he is in the two-fold danger of being nipped by professional sharpshooters for venial offences and of losing speed and sparkle, his best assets in this volume." Alexander Cowie
+ Sat R of Lit 23:15 D 28 '40 600w

STARRETT, VINCENT, ed. 221B; studies in Sherlock Holmes, by various hands. 248p il $2.50 Macmillan

823 Doyle, Sir Arthur Conan—Sherlock Holmes 40-4356

"Sixteen studies in the Sherlock Holmes lore, some very ingenious, by Christopher Morley, Elmer Davis, Vincent Starrett, and others, including a fragment by A. Conan Doyle. '221B' is, as you should know, Mr. Holmes' address on Baker Street." New Yorker

---

"A delightful book. Mr. Morley's ingenuity with the question whether Holmes was an American is in step with the best Shakespearean biography."
+ Atlantic Ap '40 150w

Booklist 36:279 Mr 15 '40

"In this branch of biography nobody ever uses the word definitive. It is an appetite that grows as it eats, and Holmesians will not only feed upon but fall upon this feast, opening the book with a gesture like tucking a napkin under the chin." M. L. Becker
+ Books p18 Mr 31 '40 480w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin
+ Boston Transcript p3 F 24 '40 100w

"Entertaining and convincing essays of a quasi-biographical and critical nature."
+ Christian Century 57:250 F 21 '40 60w

"These are delightful 'studies,' brought to us with a captivating gravity and an irresistible élan."
+ N Y Times p3 F 18 '40 700w

New Yorker 16:83 F 17 '40 40w

Reviewed by R. E. Roberts
Sat R of Lit 21:10 F 17 '40 2300w

STEAD, CHRISTINA. The man who loved children. 527p $2.75 Simon & Schuster 40-33108

An analysis of family life as evidenced in one family, the Pollits, living near Washington, D.C. Sam Pollit, the father, a scientist employed by the government; Henrietta, his second wife, a whiny neurotic always in debt; their five children; and Sam's oldest daughter, the only child of his first marriage, are the characters. Altho he thinks of himself as a great and good character, Sam, with his invented language, and his possessiveness almost amounting to incestuousness, is the chief contributor to the ultimate tragedy which overtakes the family.

"It is a difficult book to evaluate. Her writing is various, sometimes shot with light, sometimes drowned in sodden darkness, her characterization so deeply probing that at times it is painful. One is fascinated by her development of evil living under the mask of good. At the same time, there is something in this novel which keeps it from being completely satisfying. Sam Pollit is an American but he doesn't quite seem an American; the scenes are laid in Washington, Baltimore and Annapolis but they lack the essential qualities of these cities; there are places where the thread of the tale weakens, where the motivation seems artificial. In spite of these drawbacks, 'The Man Who Loved Children' is an unforgettable experience in reading." Rose Feld

STEAD, CHRISTINA—Continued
+ — Books p2 O 13 '40 1200w

Reviewed by J. K. Rooke
Canadian Forum 20:324 Ja '41 280w

"The book is really a tense, admirably written study of blighted personalities, far less somber in its general tone than the above summary indicates. Miss Stead has an almost superhuman skill in recording the vagaries of family small talk. And while I have every reason to hope that Sam Pollit is an exaggerated figure, he is drawn convincingly enough to make a lot of men want to crawl away into a corner and die. But of course the Sam Pollits never know when a barb is aimed at them." L. B. Salomon
Nation 151:399 O 26 '40 480w

"This is not the first time the unconscious hypocrite has been stripped naked. What is 'original' and 'extraordinary' in Miss Stead's treatment is the fearful, disordered vindictiveness with which she pursues her character. . . At first the reader is seriously shocked and repelled; then he is moved to doubt and hot denial, and finally, like the Pollit children again, he becomes indifferent, and the author is obliged to pile up a whole heap of Gothic horrors at the end to attract his numbed attention." Mary McCarthy
— New Repub 104:61 Ja 13 '41 950w

"Sam is a figure of truly gigantic dimensions, painted over-size, put down in the baroque, exuberant manner which is the reflection of his very self. Many readers might find him too much of a caricature; yet this is precisely what he is. There is nothing sane about him, or his house, or his wife. . . Deliberately Miss Stead tells one of the most devastating stories a writer could possibly conceive, and yet her novel is in many spots amusing, witty, and in its description of the eldest daughter's nostalgic, adolescent love for her school teacher ever delicately gentle. . . In parts the novel makes slow reading, and I doubt whether I could take a million words of it. Some of the dialogue seems endless, despite its always striking originality, and even if the narration is not exactly repetitious it grows often monotonous, turning round and round in spirals. Yet these weaknesses are somehow inseparable from the best in the book, which is one of the criteria of a good novel." M. H.
+ — N Y Times p7 O 20 '40 700w

"The book is 'Little Women' rewritten by a demon. . . There is some extraordinary writing —Sam's letters from Malaya, for example, are astounding. But the book as a whole does not come off. The baby talk helps to weaken it; the minor characters are dullish, even though portrayed with Michelangelesque energy; the thing goes on for too long. There is another weakness. Miss Stead, an Australian, has lived among us only four years. Her powers of assimilation are like an ostrich's, but are not equal as yet to the task of completely digesting an American background." Clifton Fadiman
— + New Yorker 16:104 O 19 '40 900w

Reviewed by N. L. Rothman
Sat R of Lit 23:12 N 16 '40 550w

" 'The Man Who Loved Children' is not a pleasant story, but it is a powerful one. The chief characters, Sam and Henny and Louisa, are faithfully and cruelly presented, and even the minor characters are fascinating though distinctly unlovable. The author understands people, she can dissect them and lay bare all their strengths and weaknesses and show why they act as they do, but she has very little sympathy with them. A cold, impersonal tolerance seems to be her warmest emotion and she bestows it impartially on all her characters."
+ — Springf'd Republican p7e O 20 '40 850w

STEARNS, DAVID M. Sniffy, the story of a skunk; il. by Sharon Stearns. [64p] $1 Farrar 40-30723

"The simple little story relates the events in the first year of Sniffy's life, as he develops from a whimpering baby to a self-reliant little skunk, able to forage for himself. The book itself is a convenient size to be easily handled." Library J

"Though the little animals of which Mr Stearns makes his happy little books—this is the third—are given names so a little child has something to call them, they are not made to talk or act like human beings. This is just natural history, with special interest in such creatures as approach a camp." M. L. Becker
+ Books p10 N 24 '40 160w

Reviewed by Claire Nolte
Library J 65:770 S 15 '40 150w

"As he follows Sniffy's story the young reader is not only entertained but is encouraged to observe wild creatures at first hand. This will make an admirable addition to a child's library. For boys and girls from 8 to 10." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p7 D 29 '40 220w

STEARNS, MRS MARTHA (GENUNG). Homespun and blue. 96p il $3.50 Scribner
746 Embroidery 40-9473

Study of American crewel embroidery from Colonial days in New England to the Deerfield revival and the recent interest in early American arts and crafts. Illustrated with photographs of old pieces of embroidery and designs. Index.

Booklist 36:409 Jl 1 '40

"The author is an authority on the subject of needle-design and her book is the fruition of years of collecting and research in this field. . . She has gone to many sources, museums and private collections to obtain photographs, and all of these show fine discernment for both variety and artistry."
+ Springf'd Republican p8 Jl 17 '40 380w

STEARNS, RAYMOND PHINEAS. Congregationalism in the Dutch Netherlands; the rise and fall of the English Congregational classis, 1621-1635. (Studies in church hist) 151p $3 Am. soc. of church hist.
285.8 Congregational churches in the Netherlands. British in the Netherlands 40-34456

"A record of what was perhaps the earliest attempt by churches of the congregational order to form an organization wider than the local church. Here is one possible source of an influence on early New England Puritanism. Half of the volume consists of documents hitherto unpublished and unused by historians." Christian Century

Christian Century 57:1587 D 18 '40 60w

"The book is a solid contribution to the field, and becomes indispensable for an understanding of how and why New England was colonized." Perry Miller
+ New Eng Q 13:755 D '40 490w

STEBBINS, MRS LUCY (POATE), and STEBBINS, RICHARD POATE. Enchanted wanderer; the life of Carl Maria von Weber. 345p il $3.50 Putnam
B or 92 Weber, Karl Maria Friedrich Ernst, freiherr von 40-7555

Biography of Carl Maria von Weber, based upon some new material tracked down in newspaper files, contemporary diaries, letters, and German theatrical histories. Von Weber was an early champion of German opera, and his own work, Der Freischütz, holds the record for total operatic performances in Germany. Bibliography. Index.

"This maudlin title disguises one of the best books of the season on one of the best of subjects, the life of a great musician, Carl Maria von Weber. It is scholarly, thorough, admirably organized, admirably written, its good taste is unfailing, and its critical judgment is sound to the core."

+ Atlantic Jl '40 160w

"A rich feast, a happy collaboration of authors. Richard Stebbins is an historian and musicologist; Lucy Stebbins, his mother, has published six novels. In spite of colorful descriptions and the easy style in which the book is written, no word can be doubted. The documentation is impressive, although one could wish the authors had included more yearly dates." C. D. Bowen

+ Books p2 Ap 21 '40 1600w

Christian Science Monitor p10 Ag 3 '40 490w

"The admirers of Weber's music have long been waiting for a life of the master which should do all that is required without falling into these attendant pitfalls, and the Stebbinses—mother and son—have gone a long way toward fulfilling the requirement. Their work is scholarly, sympathetic, and readable. . . Unfortunately, there is not quite enough about music itself." Jacques Barzun

+ — Nation 151:96 Ag 3 '40 750w

"A maze of tedious detail and sentimentalized eulogy effectively smothers any sensible appraisal of Weber's character or of his position in the musical world. Only fair in any rating."

— + New Repub 102:866 Je 24 '40 50w

"This new biography of Carl Maria von Weber is impressive both for its readability and its scholarship. The authors have been scrupulous as to details but have not been bogged down by them. They have tried to seek out the truth, and they have managed to see the character and achievement of Weber with balance and maturity of judgment." Howard Taubman

+ N Y Times p5 Je 16 '40 1000w

New Yorker 16:91 Ap 6 '40 30w

"One wonders why, among all their sources, the authors found a few bon mots of Ernest Newman alone worth quoting, whereas the many excellent special studies devoted to Weber's music do not seem to have influenced their judgment. There are many other details, some of them technical, such as the seating of the orchestra, etc., that are open to criticism. Were it not for these shortcomings, the 'Enchanted Wanderer' would have ranked as an outstanding contribution to American musical literature. As it is now, it is an uncommonly well presented serious biography, invaluable to every student of the music of early romanticism." P. H. Lang

+ — Sat R of Lit 22:10 Jl 6 '40 650w

STEEDS, WILLIAM. Mechanism and the kinematics of machines. 319p il $5 (18s) Longmans

621.81 Machinery, Kinematics of

"In this book the author has endeavoured to provide an adequate treatment of the kinematics of machines and the study of mechanisms as mechanical contrivances, while avoiding excessive detail and encyclopædic comprehensiveness; he has endeavoured to steer a middle course between unduly academic treatment on the one hand and excessively detailed descriptive treatment on the other hand. It is hoped, therefore, that the book will be of use not only to students at engineering colleges and technical institutes, but also to practising engineers, designers and draughtsmen." (Pref) Index.

N Y New Tech Bks 25:37 Jl '40

"It is the reviewer's belief that this book should prove of considerable interest and value to designers and engineers, particularly those who have to do with the design of machines involving complicated mechanisms." A. M. Wahl

+ R of Scientific Instruments 2:236 O '40 500w

STEEGMAN, PHILIP. India ink [Eng title: Indian ink]. 246p $3 Morrow [10s 6d Cobden-Sanderson]

915.4 India—Description and travel.

(W) 40-8511

In this book, a young English artist who went to India to paint portraits, draws pen pictures of persons and places and describes many strange experiences with every variety of people, both British and Indian.

Booklist 36:280 Mr 15 '40

"Philip Steegman, a young English artist who spent two years painting in India, enjoyed himself tremendously. It is not unkind to say that he enjoyed himself more than he enjoyed India—for the reader does the same. His book is lots of fun and it is too bad he will never go back, for he most certainly will never be able to if some of his hosts—and more particularly his hostesses—recognize themselves in his irreverent account of their houses, their taste, their manners and their social ceremonies." Agnes Rothery

+ Books p5 F 11 '40 1200w

"Mr. Steegman himself is primarily a painter, having a lively eye and a quick brush stroke in words. He has also the happy attributes of wit, intelligence and an excellent grasp of character. His prose, however, sometimes degenerates into an irritating flipness, of which the deplorable pun in the title is a minor indication. But for the most part Mr. Steegman relies on his brush and his own perspicacity, and the result is a sensitive and exciting picture of India and the East." John Bovey

+ — Boston Transcript p2 Mr 2 '40 360w

"This is a crowded, uneasy, 'young' book, full of portraits from the lyrical to the ribald." V. S. Pritchett

Christian Science Monitor p11 Mr 18 '39 150w

Forum 103:269 My '40 260w

"This is a strange book; written by a painter, it has not a single picture, although there are descriptions both of persons and of places which make us want pictures very much. The writer had introductions to everyone of importance, and he succeeded in getting work in painting many great personages, culminating in the great ruler of Nepal. But the book is not meant to interest us in these, except by the way. It is full of stories, all readable, some mysterious." W. H. D. Rouse

Manchester Guardian p7 F 21 '39 600w

"Towards the end of the book the author doffs the jester's habit, which he wears brilliantly, and adopts the more sober raiment of the pilgrim. In Nepal Mr. Steegman finds something big enough to distract his attention from himself, and his descriptions of the Valley of Kathmandu are magnificent. Good books about India are few, and although this does not rank among the best informed, it deserves to be among the most popular. Mr. Steegman can write well and amusingly. Often he reveals himself in an unsympathetic light, but one cannot but enjoy, and finally admire, this unusual and attractive book."

+ — New Statesman & Nation 17:396 Mr 11 '39 150w

"The writer's running comments on painting as a practical art, ranging, as they do, from the nature of beauty itself to surrealism, are of special interest to artists. But 'India Ink' is essentially a layman's book. As such it is both fascinating and entertaining. A book, too, that opens wide avenues to thought." J. S. Southron

+ N Y Times p9 F 18 '40 1300w

STEEGMAN, PHILIP—Continued
"Despite the punning title, a really superior book about India."
+ New Yorker 15:79 F 10 '40 20w
Pratt p20 autumn '40

Reviewed by I. A. R. Wylie
Sat R of Lit 21:12 F 17 '40 450w

Reviewed by Anthony Powell
Spec 162:316 F 24 '39 210w

"For the four-fifths of the book in which Mr. Steegman is conducting his investigations in British India, there is much entertainment but such conflict in the conclusions drawn that he appears to be wandering in chaos."
Times [London] Lit Sup p136 Mr 4 '39 800w

"The book contains no discussion of the momentous question of the march of social, economic, and political revolution in India, which has affected 350,000,000 people of the country, the whole of the British empire, and the rest of the world. It is rather the notebook of a clever traveller and artist, whose notes are lively and sometimes subtle." Taraknath Das
+ — Yale R n s 29:643 spring '40 650w

STEEL, KURT, pseud. See Kagey, R.

STEFANSSON, VILHJALMUR. Ultima Thule; further mysteries of the Arctic; il. by Alexander Popini. 383p $3.50 Macmillan
919.8 Arctic regions (W) 40-36113

"The distinguished explorer examines the records of the early voyagers, who claimed to have reached Ultima Thule (probably Iceland) and compares their accounts notably those of Pytheas and Columbus, with modern findings." (New Yorker) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 37:215 Ja 15 '41

" 'Ultima Thule' leaves one with a stirring sense of something very vital, and new, and powerful, trying to break through the walls of our present-day social and geographical dogmas. Despite the fact that Stefansson hangs all his arguments on the limited pegs of historical and geographical thinking with regard to one of the world's climatic zones, I believe that he will some day be known as one of the great exponents of hope and work for something very clear and very much better, in our present dark day of groping through unutterable confusion." E. P. Hanson
+ Books p5 D 1 '40 1150w

"With all his scientific attainments and skill, Stefansson is still a simple, readable author, who has produced another worthwhile book about the lands he knows best." P. J. Searles
+ Boston Transcript p2 Ja 18 '41 280w
Christian Century 57:1555 D 11 '40 140w

"For readers who enjoyed Unsolved Mysteries of the Arctic, this latest book will be a distinct pleasure." Lena Ruppert
+ Library J 65:808 O 1 '40 130w

"Mr. Stefansson is not merely a wily writer and a scholar of caution, but a soundly scientific explorer who knows by contact the lands whereof he writes." Hassoldt Davis
+ Nation 151:640 D 21 '40 240w

"A technical but fascinating blend of conjecture and history."
+ New Yorker 16:95 N 23 '40 70w

"Presents in an informal but scholarly way many of the theories of early Icelandic and Scandinavian exploration and weighs them impartially. . . 'Ultima Thule' is abundantly illustrated with maps and half tones showing typical northern sailing and row boats. An excellent bibliography has been compiled dealing with the Arctic voyage of Pytheas, and the work is well indexed." C. B. M.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e D 1 '40 850w

STEFANSSON (stā'făn-sŏn)

STEGNER, WALLACE. On a darkling plain. 231p $2 Harcourt
(W) 40-27119

Story of a young Canadian, victim in body and mind of the World war, who seeks solitude and a reason for living on the prairies of far western Canada.

Booklist 36:239 F 15 '40

" 'On a Darkling Plain' begins with as bitter and cynical overtones as any realist could wish, and yet reaches, before it ends, a note of affirmation that is moving and convincing. There is, to be sure, no more peace in the world than there was before; it is still a darkling plain swept by warring confusion and ignorance, but one man has found in it something capable of stirring his deepest sympathies and commanding whatever help he can give." Milton Rugoff
+ Books p2 F 11 '40 700w

"For various reasons the book escapes the excellence and importance such a theme should give it and dwindles into a slightness and naivete which Mr. Stegner could not have desired or was powerless to overcome. . . The story is told simply, smoothly. Mr. Stegner's eye for landscape is sharp, his way of describing what he sees is unhackneyed, and technically the book has unity. Yet unity is not enough. It must have emphasis—of incident and character. And the absence of both deprives the work of weight and reality." A. B.
— + Boston Transcript p2 F 17 '40 550w

"The central character comes easily to life, and the adolescent farm girl is sketched with delicacy. The other figures are few and shadowy, for the technique is still the novelette, with the focus almost continuously upon the hero. There is some monotony in this, but it is relieved by the author's close attention to the varied aspects of the prairie background. The style is clear and unaffected, seldom flat and occasionally vivid." Earle Birney
+ Canadian Forum 20:28 Ap '40 360w
Christian Century 57:321 Mr 6 '40 120w
Christian Science Monitor p12 Mr 23 '40 500w
Churchman 154:35 Ap 1 '40 40w

"To take a man coming out of the first World War, with an injured body and a misanthropic mind, place him in the all but uninhabited plains of western Canada, choosing to live in a sod-hut by himself, and to finally account convincingly for his reconciliation, is a writing job requiring a skill Mr. Stegner does not possess. . . On top of these things Mr. Stegner does not write well and has gone in for the undergraduate trick of using Matthew Arnold's 'Dover Beach' as his theme song throughout. It is a pretty bad performance from a prize-winning writer." Harry Sylvester
— Commonweal 31:388 F 23 '40 200w

Reviewed by M. G. Lehman
New Repub 102:284 F 26 '40 550w

"It's a short novel, too soon over, a little story of honest appeal. There's no nonsense about it for all its youthful Weltschmerz and genuine sentiment. And Mr. Stegner's young heroine is something new under the sun in the world of romantic fiction." F. T. Marsh
+ N Y Times p6 F 11 '40 650w
New Yorker 15:79 F 10 '40 50w

"Stegner manages to use these shopworn materials of fiction with an integrity and sincerity that compensate for any lack of originality. . . 'On a Darkling Plain' occasionally just misses skidding into bathos." R. A. Cordell
+ — Sat R of Lit 21:7 F 10 '40 450w

"As a study of youth struggling to attain a firm footing in his mental attitudes after the chaos of war, 'On a Darkling Plain' has something of merit. As a presentation of the commonplace futilities of an egocentric youth, barely beyond adolescence, it is as uninspiring as it is presumably accurate."
— + Springf'd Republican p7e F 11 '40 320w

STEIN, AARON MARC. The sun is a witness. 274p $2 Doubleday 40-33710

Detective story.

"Mr. Stein populates his tale with a varied group of scientists, Navajos and sundry, two or three of them highly suspect. There's a workable plot and the solution is by Tim Mulligan, a smart young archeologist with a bent for logic. Solar evidence gives him the final bit of the jigsaw. For those who prefer matter to manner." Will Cuppy
Books p24 N 17 '40 110w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p18 N 10 '40 160w

"Highly recommended."
+ Sat R of Lit 23:20 N 16 '40 50w

STEIN, EMANUEL, and DAVIS, JEROME, eds. Labor problems in America, [by] Emanuel Stein [and others]. 909p $3.50 Farrar

331.0973 Labor and laboring classes—U.S. Trade unions. Labor laws and legislation
(W) 40-27499

"A broad examination of labor conditions in the United States intended primarily for use by the student. It is divided into six books, each dealing with a different aspect of the problem: labor's environment; the development of the labor movement; the contemporary situation in the trade union movement; the part of the employer in labor problems; the relation of government to labor; foreign labor movements." (Management R) Supplementary readings and questions at ends of chapters. Index.

Reviewed by G. S. Watkins
Am Econ R 30:629 S '40 850w

"It should be emphasized that this is by far the best textbook on labor problems that has been published recently. . . It might have been desirable to present some subjects in more detail. . . Also, the discussion of democracy in unions appears a little unreal; actually, in most unions there is tremendous pressure by the members for democracy. . . One of the considerable values of the text is the excellent correlation of decisions of the National Labor Relations Board, and the findings of the La Follette Civil Liberties Committee, with general labor activities. The student should derive more than a mere smattering of knowledge from the study of this book." F. L. Ryan
+ Ann Am Acad 211:233 S '40 550w
Booklist 36:377 Je 1 '40
Bookmark p25 N '40
Cleveland Open Shelf p18 O '40
Management R 29:272 Jl '40 60w

Reviewed by Arthur Feiler
Survey G 29:520 O '40 110w

STEIN, GERTRUDE. Paris France. 120p $1.75 Scribner [7s 6d Batsford]

914.4 National characteristics, French. France—Social life and customs
(W) [40-27586]

Impressions of the France which she has known and loved since 1900, written by a well-known American author. The book was published on the day that Paris fell into German hands.

"It is a curiously feminine testament of love, written in a noble monotone which is never monotonous, and in which the unconventional punctuation has the effect of subtly sustaining rather than diffusing the attention. It leaves one with an impression crystal-clear; an affirmation of faith by one who knows the meaning of French civilization and loves France—as it was, is, and ever shall be, in war, in peace, and in the revolutionary periods between."
+ Atlantic Ag '40 600w
Booklist 36:427 Jl 15 '40
Bookmark 2:9 Ja '41

"What Miss Stein has to say in 'Paris France' can not be read in competition with news but as an anterior, integral part of it. As she herself says, the way everything about a country is remembered is by the writers. Gertrude Stein has unforgettably remembered France." Janet Flanner
+ Books p1 Je 23 '40 1300w

"[This] is a love letter to France, written in the perfectly intelligible and effectively rhythmic English of which Miss Stein, when she wishes to be understood, is capable. But it was written, of course, when the war was not yet war but only war time, and in a faith that the 20th century was at last emerging into civilization; and nothing which was written eight months ago seems to stand the sun today without fading." Lewis Gannett
+ — Boston Transcript p11 Je 14 '40 1200w

Reviewed by E. B. Gulick
Boston Transcript p2 Jl 20 '40 700w

Reviewed by Eleanor Godfrey
Canadian Forum 20:190 S '40 340w

"Miss Stein has, as most people know, a style of writing peculiar to herself; but those who dislike this need not be discouraged, for it is not carried to any great lengths here. It is true that she shows an aversion to punctuation marks, some disregard of syntax, and a delight in repetition, and that the result is apt to seem a breathless babble, whose charm I found elusive; but her meaning is never obscured, and, though my mind's ear grew tired, my interest did not flag." Eric Forbes-Boyd
+ — Christian Science Monitor p11 Jl 13 '40 500w

Reviewed by Katherine Brégy
Commonweal 32:373 Ag 23 '40 490w

"The book is full of charm, a very personal charm, and humor. . . With all its charm and flavor and superficiality, 'Paris France' is a pathetic little book. It is pathetic because, obviously designed as propaganda of the nicer sort, it fails to achieve its end. The larger public having been frightened away by the author's reputation and style, it will be read and enjoyed only by the initiates, the small minority who know both Miss Stein and France. And in view of Gertrude Stein's patronizing attitude toward her subject, this will be no loss." Justin O'Brien
+ — Nation 151:76 Jl 27 '40 650w

"For its literary quality, for its nostalgic pictures of life in France, and for the lesson to be learned from the fallacies of an intellectual class and the weaknesses that democracy has tolerated, 'Paris France' is a book you should read." Dorothy Chamberlain
+ — New Repub 103:123 Jl 22 '40 800w

"This is a scrupulously true and in its essence a happy book about France, and lovable as it is delightful, original and deeply felt. . . It was published here as the Germans marched into Paris. It should be read throughout this country, in its truth that is undying, even when the happiness has been destroyed." Katherine Woods
+ N Y Times p1 Je 23 '40 1250w

"Dilettante in spots, though much of the book seems fresh and sagacious. Not hard reading."
+ New Yorker 16:68 Jl 13 '40 40w

"For once Miss Stein is concise, forthright, clear, and articulate—almost as if she hadn't time to bother to be anything else, almost as if she had forgotten to be literary." H. E. Stearns
+ Sat R of Lit 22:6 Jl 13 '40 950w
Springf'd Republican p7e Je 30 '40 1000w
Time 36:69 Jl 8 '40 500w

"Although Miss Stein deliberately disregards punctuation, and can tease with a comma, confound with a fullstop, and make a challenge out of a capital letter, yet once these innocent conceits are dismissed the value of her insight remains and her integrity is untouched.

STEIN, GERTRUDE—Continued
Flowers grow in crevices and in unlikely places, and so does the beauty of words without context and with an apparent irrelevance of sequence. No fit of irritation or long-standing prejudice should deter the readers of 'Paris France'; there is so much to be plucked and to be treasured that might otherwise be lost if the will to read and to discriminate between the essential and non-essential falter on the way."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p252 My 25 '40 500w

Wis Lib Bul 36:136 O '40

STEIN, GERTRUDE. What are masterpieces. 95p il $2.50 Conference press, 440 N. Harper av, Los Angeles

818 40-33328

Collection of the author's Oxford-Cambridge lectures: Composition as explanation; An American and France; and What are Masterpieces; with some of her poems and portraits.

"Charming, but principally a Stein item." Jerome Mellquist

+ Commonweal 33:148 N 29 '40 50w

"It is perhaps superfluous to say that Miss Stein's writings not only are stimulating but actually mean something."

+ Nation 151:512 N 23 '40 60w

"At this late date there is very little to say about Miss Stein, and Miss Stein will say it." Clifton Fadiman

New Yorker 16:107 O 19 '40 70w

STEIN, HERBERT. Government price policy in the United States during the World war. 138p $2 Williams college, Williamstown, Mass.

338.5 Prices—U.S. European war, 1914-1918 —Economic aspects 39-32438

"In this compact little volume is given a critical survey of the government's methods of dealing with the complicated problem thrust upon it by our entrance into the war, of transforming quickly a peace-time economy into a war economy with as little disturbance as might be of the living standards of the community, and without unduly increasing current war costs or creating burdensome debt services on the return of peace. Mr. Stein views his subjects broadly and because of the close relation between prices, money costs and the use of credit, both governmental and private, he reviews the policies adopted by the government of financing its own extraordinary operations and in controlling the use of credit for private enterprise. About one-half of the book deals with this aspect of his subject." Am Econ R

Reviewed by G. O. Virtue

Am Econ R 30:424 Je '40 700w

Foreign Affairs 19:256 O '40 10w

STEINACH, EUGEN. Sex and life; forty years of biological and medical experiments; the scientific values adapted to the lay reader by Josef Loebel. 252p il $3.75 Viking

612.602 Sex. Rejuvenation (W) 40-7682

"This record of the author's 'forty years of biological and medical experiment' contains . . . [an] account of his 'rejuvenation' research and of the 'vasoligation' technique which has apparently been successful in the reactivation of the sex glands." (New Yorker) Bibliography. Index.

"The book is well and clearly written, and is illustrated with numerous exceptionally clean-cut photographs showing experimental animals, inside and out, and microscopic sections." H. M. Parshley

+ Books p20 Ap 28 '40 500w

Living Age 358:394 Je '40 200w

"Dr. Steinach's fine book is a contribution to our knowledge of great questions. It will correct many misconceptions, provide a sound background for intelligent discussion of medical questions, and undoubtedly serve as a healthy stimulus to further research and more effective scientific control of numerous hitherto baffling diseases." Harold Ward

+ New Repub 102:383 Mr 18 '40 500w

"A full, calm, and unsensationally written account."

+ New Yorker 15:79 F 10 '40 40w

Springf'd Republican p7e F 4 '40 150w

Times [London] Lit Sup p595 N 23 '40 200w

STEINBERG, MILTON. As a driven leaf. 480p $2.50 Bobbs

Elisha ben Abuyah—Fiction 40-2698

Story of Elisha ben Abuyah, Jewish rabbi of the second century, whose passion for a reasonable faith led him to renounce his religion and betray his people into the hands of the Roman governors during the great Jewish persecutions in Palestine.

Booklist 36:265 Mr 1 '40

"It is a rare and moving book, creative in its thought, sensitive, scholarly without being a document. If it creaks a little, if Mr. Steinberg's diction is occasionally stiff, it has a warmth of conception and an intellectual intensity that are exciting." Alfred Kazin

+ Books p3 Ja 28 '40 1650w

Christian Science Monitor p11 F 24 '40 750w

Reviewed by Isidor Schneider

New Repub 102:551 Ap 22 '40 220w

"A novel which, while grandiose, ambitious and somewhat abstract, is nevertheless learned and thoughtful and remarkably effective." Harold Strauss

+ N Y Times p7 Ja 28 '40 1050w

"Convincing historical and scholarly background and a good deal of philosophical discussion—and very interesting, too."

+ New Yorker 15:70 F 3 '40 70w

"Unfortunately for most readers, the frame in which this really fine story is cast is that of the traditional Jewish fiction biography—a saga form which follows the subject from cradle to grave. This makes, in the first place a long book; and in the second, one which jumps from scene to scene, often across a span of years, and with many events telescoped into the form of synopsis." Fletcher Pratt

+ — Sat R of Lit 21:14 F 10 '40 330w

STEINBERG, SIGFRID HEINRICH. Historical tables; with a foreword by G. P. Gooch. 256p $3.50 (16s) Macmillan

902 Chronology, Historical [40-4425]

"Students and studious readers of history will use this as a desk-book rather than a shelf-book. The period covered begins with the Roman Empire. Each double-page spread is divided into six columns. The headings vary as the scene changes, but these run through many centuries: western Europe; central, northern and eastern Europe; Islam and Asia; ecclesiastical history; constitutional and economic history; cultural life. Later, 'countries overseas' becomes a category. Still later 'America' has a column of its own. 'Ecclesiastical history' drops out at 1657." Christian Century

Am Hist R 46:451 Ja '41 70w

Christian Century 57:642 My 15 '40 130w

"It is a unitary book, giving increasing space to happenings as the present is approached and prepared chiefly for British and American students. It performs a definitely useful service in forcing an inquirer who looks up a certain event concerning one place and one sphere of interest to notice almost automatically the contemporary happenings in at least six divisions of interest." Philip Burnham

Commonweal 33:28 O 25 '40 220w

Manchester Guardian p4 O 13 '39 110w

STEINER, H. ARTHUR. Principles and problems of international relations. 835p maps $3.75 Harper

341 International law and relations. World politics. International cooperation 40-11202

Textbook on international relations, which is divided into five parts: Structure and forces; Policy, law, and war; Economics and politics; The League system; Contemporary political problems. Bibliographies at ends of chapters. Index.

"Although [the book] sets out to analyze the international scene by a functional interpretation of the many elements involved, the last two hundred pages would seem to belong more properly in a modern history textbook. Admittedly, this very feature will prove a boon where courses in recent history are not offered. Nevertheless, a good case can be made for the political scientist's 'sticking to his last.' . . The chapters are broken down into sections and sub-sections and paragraphs, with the subject-matter so clearly labeled that even the slowest student will easily follow the argument." J. T. Watkins

+ — Am Pol Sci R 34:806 Ag '40 270w

"Professor Steiner's book is a well-written, well-documented, scholarly piece of work filled with useful information. . . This work conforms to the best standards of American textbook writing in the field of international relations." B. W. Maxwell

+ Ann Am Acad 212:248 N '40 600w

Reviewed by J. A. D. Haas

Harvard Business R 19:243 winter '41 120w

STEKEL, WILHELM. Technique of analytical psychotherapy; tr. by Eden and Cedar Paul. 408p $5 Norton [21s Lane]

131.34 Psychoanalysis. Psychotherapy [40-6485]

Exposition of this Viennese doctor's technique illustrated with many case histories and comments upon them. Glossary.

"It should be [said] in fairness that if 90 per cent of this book is not only ethically but scientifically unacceptable, 10 per cent is intuitively wise and sound. This 10 per cent is scattered through the text and pops up at the most unexpected places. But to find and identify these spots is not worth the trouble of wading through the other 90 per cent." Karl Menninger

— + Nation 150:547 Ap 27 '40 260w

Times [London] Lit Sup p543 S 16 '39 70w

STEPHENS, WALDO EMERSON. Revisions of the Treaty of Versailles. 285p $3 Columbia univ. press [15s Oxford]

940.3141 Versailles, Treaty of, 1919 40-1933

"This volume examines the first attempt of modern states to achieve revisions of the peace treaty within a definite field of international organization. Mr. Stephens deals with the period following the World War, when governments sought to employ accepted procedures, other than war, for the revision of their contractual obligations incorporated in the Treaty of Peace between the Allied and Associated Powers and Germany." (Cath World) Bibliography. Index.

"It is a shame that the excellent work of this monograph was directed so slightly at the relevance of 'revision' that it makes no real contribution. In saying this, the reviewer hails Mr. Stephens himself as a genuine and capable scholar." D. P. Myers

Am Pol Sci R 34:146 F '40 490w

Cath World 150:636 F '40 90w

Commonweal 31:290 Ja 19 '40 60w

Foreign Affairs 18:565 Ap '40 10w

"An instructive and scholarly piece of legal investigation."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p199 Ap 20 '40 150w

STEPHENSON, NATHANIEL WRIGHT, and DUNN, WALDO HILARY. George Washington. 2v 473;596p il set $10 Oxford

B or 92 Washington, George (W) 40-27358

Narrative biography of the first president of the United States in which "the purpose has been to make Washington the central figure on the canvas, the focal point of all the narrative, indeed the presiding genius of American liberty and American nationality." (Pref) Index at end of volume two.

"The authors are a little hard on Washington's contemporaries, particularly Franklin and Jefferson. The amount of space given to the eight years of Washington's presidency at Philadelphia is inadequate. There is no evidence that the authors have used the priceless collection of letters of the military and political figures on both sides of the American Revolution in the Clements Library at Ann Arbor. The work is an example of good bookmaking and fine writing. Running through it like a golden thread is a knowledge of literature and a sense of nature. It should be required reading for every college senior." P. M. Cuncannon

+ — Am Pol Sci R 34:615 Je '40 280w

Reviewed by Merrill Jensen

Ann Am Acad 211:224 S '40 650w

Booklist 36:324 Ap 15 '40

"It is the merit of the Stephenson-Dunn biography that, for the most part, it does present Washington in his own terms, against his own background. There is, to be sure, some hyperbole, some moralizing, some evasion, but on the whole the biography recommends itself to us as straightforward and persuasive. It is not an ambitious work, either in scholarship or in philosophy. It is not exhaustive, in the sense that Freeman's Lee is exhaustive; it is not interpretative, in the sense that Wilson's Washington is interpretative. It is what it purports to be—a narrative biography, substantial, detailed, critical, accurate, moderately objective." H. S. Commager

+ Books p3 Ap 14 '40 1650w

"Washington was great as a character, and it should be said that the biographers have done ample justice to his patience, his fortitude, his courage, and his genius for refusing to admit defeat. Their work, so far as the general reader is concerned, has its chief importance in this regard. And in a day when biographers are more concerned about personality than about character, it is important to be reminded that there is such a quality as moral grandeur." H. M. Jones

+ Boston Transcript p1 Ap 13 '40 1250w

"So much has already been written on the life and times of Washington that any new biography must at the outset overcome the problem of satiety. Professors Stephenson and Dunn have remembered this in trying to present their picture of Washington. They have not tried to glean any new material from this well worked field, but have sought to show the man himself, from the individual and personal point of view. . . Dr. Dunn and the late Dr. Stephenson remain primarily scholars, and their approach to the subject remains primarily academic rather than literary. In organization and fullness of detail, however, their work is excellent." W. F. Swindler

STEPHENSON, N. W., and DUNN, W. H. —Continued
+ Christian Century 57:580 My 1 '40 550w

Christian Science Monitor p18 N 20 '40 110w

"American biography acquires a new importance through the Stephenson-Dunn life of Washington. Here is brilliant evidence of a new scope of skill in arranging the results of research, a new dexterity of technique in presenting material, a new beauty of literary style. Douglas Southall Freeman's recent remark that we have no satisfactory life of Washington has lost its unhappy meaning." D. S. Rankin
+ Commonweal 32:15 Ap 26 '40 2000w

"The mass of inconsequential facts given in this work—many of them hardly worth recording—is so overwhelming that one is dazed and lost in them as in a wilderness. . . But on the other hand the economic causes of the American Revolution are discussed with such casual brevity that a reader who is not already well-informed will be puzzled as to how it came about. . . Notwithstanding its obvious shortcomings, this biography is an impressive book, and in some ways a valuable one. It is scholarly, accurate, and full of facts. But it is quite evident that its authors were overwhelmed by their vast accumulation of data, and that they lack the gift of story-telling." W. E. Woodward
— + Nation 150:486 Ap 13 '40 850w

"The proportions of the book are bad. . . The misstatements of fact are almost innumerable. . . It would be impossible in the compass of this review to demonstrate the injustice of the conventional charge—here repeated—that Congress plotted to bring Washington into disgrace. . . In fairness to the memory of Professor Stephenson it should be noted that he died before he had completed his manuscript and that he saw none of it in proof. It may be assumed that he would have drastically revised it before it reached the publication stage. Perhaps Mr. Dunn, his posthumous editor, did not feel at liberty to do so." Bernhard Knollenberg
— New Repub 102:542 Ap 22 '40 2000w

"As a whole the narrative is singularly lucid; and, though written in profound admiration of a great character and great achievements, it is in the main admirably candid and admirably critical in the true sense of the word. . . As a collection of annalistic fact and an interpretation of Washington the statesman the work is valuable and significant; but those who are after 'a literary portrait' would best go back to Washington Irving's 'Life.'" John Corbin
+ N Y Times p3 Ap 14 '40 1100w

"Quite calmly and successfully old-fashioned. . . No novel twist is given either to the interpretation of Washington's character or to the manner of presenting his life. The authors have been content to follow his history, from forebears to funeral, with scrupulous accuracy and classic fullness, achieving a portrait in narrative that has something of the calm magnitude of its subject. . . Seems slated for Pulitzer Prize honors." Clifton Fadiman
+ New Yorker 16:97 Ap 13 '40 130w

"The authors do not mean to exploit color and vivacity at the expense of probability, and they do not intentionally do so. But their language, though often suggestive and persuasive, sometimes has a surplus of rhetoric or interpretative subtlety. . . There are some imperfections in the book. Yet it has an underlying solidity at variance with its superficial incongruities. The reader who takes it for what it is—a 'portrait in narrative'—will be surprised to find how much of the essential Washington . . . he has absorbed."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 14 '40 1000w

Time 35:90 My 6 '40 140w

Wis Lib Bul 36:98 My '40

"The first third of the biography (which takes Washington's story up to his career as Commander-in-chief of the Continental Army) is a superb achievement despite its flaws. . . But when Washington becomes Commander-in-chief, the text begins to falter, and after he becomes President, it is really feeble. In the midst of the excellent prose, there are many overwritten passages; and despite the general acumen of the text, there is a strain of adulation that is most uncritical." Frank Monaghan
— + Yale R n s 30:206 autumn '40 550w

STERN, MRS EDITH (MENDEL), and COBB, META R. Betty Blake, O. T. [il. by Alice Harvey]. 302p $2 Dodd
(W) 40-32071

A vocational story for older girls, describing Betty Blake's search for a profession, and her joy in her work when she settled on occupational therapy.

"An excellent story for an ambitious, career-seeking girl."
+ Boston Transcript p2 Ja 11 '41 30w

Cath World 152:380 D '40 100w

"It is well written with enough plot to sustain interest and enough fact to be informing. The print is good and there are occasional pen sketches by Alice Harvey. Junior high school girls will enjoy it and some may be inspired to join the profession." E. T. Dobbins
+ Library J 65:880 O 15 '40 90w

Reviewed by Beulah Amidon
Survey 77:28 Ja '41 250w

STERN, GLADYS BRONWYN (MRS G. L. HOLDSWORTH). A lion in the garden. 311p $2.50 Macmillan [8s 3d Cassell]
(W) 40-11563

"Norman is a widower who, many years ago, weeding his garden, had turned to find a lion crouched beside him. He 'enviggles' the lion into the kitchen and safety but it alters the whole course of his life. In his dreams he sees himself as a paladin but unfortunately his knightliness has no outlet save the prolongation—or perhaps creation—of a feud between his employer and the next-door neighbour." Times [London] Lit Sup

Atlantic Ag '40 130w

Booklist 36:413 Jl 1 '40

Bookmark 2:14 Ja '41

"The tale is tenderly, fastidiously written, with the apparent joyousness of a multi-colored bubble held aloft with a breath that may expire at any moment." F. H. Bullock
+ Books p3 Je 30 '40 550w

"None would suspect the author of 'The Matriarch' and 'The Ugly Dachshund' of so much clever nonsense." E. B. Gulick
+ Boston Transcript p2 Jl 6 '40 400w

"Miss Stern writes wittily and deftly, and never allows her skill to become condescension toward human nature."
+ Christian Century 57:826 Je 26 '40 80w

"There are nice turns of phrase and not a little pathos, but there is, also, much promise unfulfilled, some unnecessary dialect to hurdle and too much stilted phraseology. All right for light summer reading, but not the author at her best." L. M. Kinloch
+ — Library J 65:500 Je 1 '40 140w

"Although some of the situations are incredibly absurd, Miss Stern keeps her story throughout on the plane of comedy without lapsing into farce, her characters remaining recognisably human even when performing the most preposterous antics." Wilfrid Gibson
+ Manchester Guardian p7 My 3 '40 170w

"Unless you insist on brooding without interruption these days, pack this pleasant bit of gossamer in your week-end bag."
Nation 151:38 Jl 13 '40 60w

"Here at a new peak of democracy's fight against an inhuman humorless foe, comes this heartening English reminder of one of democracy's most human, most ingrained characteristics. Wodehouse may be, temporarily, out of it; but G. B. Stern has debonairly assumed his mantle. 'A Lion in the Garden' is reassurance that the spirit of free peoples cannot be killed! Never was a glad, salty book more defiantly, insouciantly timely." J. S. Southron

+ N Y Times p7 Je 30 '40 650w

"One of those playful English novels that right now are, understandably, not too easy to read. . . A clever job."

+ New Yorker 16:70 Je 29 '40 70w

Reviewed by John Marks

Spec 164:496 Ap 5 '40 160w

"Polly Brooks and Norman dominate this story, and they are refreshing, delightful characters. The other characters serve merely as a background. If, as one suspects, G. B. Stern found much pleasure and amusement in writing this story, the reader is equally amused and pleased."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Je 30 '40 750w

"This is a diverting book, light, easy and kindly, with no problems and no propaganda."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p161 Mr 30 '40 260w

STEUART, ROBERT HENRY JOSEPH. The four first things. 86p $1.35 (3s 6d) Longmans

230 Religion. Christian life

"Father Steuart writes here of knowledge of God, knowledge of Christ, faith and prayer, calling them the four first things, not by a merely arbitrary selection, 'but because they set out in detail the duties of knowing, loving, and serving God, for which, as we have been taught, our lives have been given to us in the beginning.'" Cath World

+ Cath World 151:758 S '40 290w

"Again Father Steuart gives us a precious little book—eighty-five pages of compact, lucid, charming disquisition." Richard Flower

+ Commonweal 31:479 Mr 22 '40 120w

STEVENS, MRS FRANCES MOYER (ROSS) (CHRISTOPHER HALE, pseud). Witch Wood. 279p $2 Doubleday

40-5400

Detective story.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Books p14 Ap 7 '40 150w

"Lieutenant Bill French has to investigate the case and he goes at it in his usual efficient manner. Our only quarrel with the lieutenant is that he holds out on his public. At least three times in the course of the story we are told that he has made a discovery and apparently an important one, but we are not told what that discovery is. What chance has the armchair sleuth to match wits with the book detective against such odds? It isn't right. There ought to be a law." Isaac Anderson

N Y Times p19 Mr 31 '40 200w

"Logical, sensible story, with no false clues to drive you crazy."

+ New Yorker 16:76 Mr 30 '40 50w

"Well drawn characters, ample love interest, elusive killer, scenic background, and rather surprising finish. Satisfactory."

+ Sat R of Lit 21:32 Ap 6 '40 30w

STEVENS, WILLIAM OLIVER. The patriotic thing; or, What it means to be an American. 174p $1.50 Dodd

323.6 Citizenship. Patriotism. U.S.—Politics and government (W) 40-9993

"This little book undertakes to define the American ideal, to examine frankly into the nation's various evils, and to stimulate good citizenship. It is distinctly unpartisan, forthright, and informal. An index and up-to-date topics for discussion at the end of each chapter add to its usefulness for class or forum use. For high school and junior college age." Library J

"Mr. Stevens has provided precisely what our boys need; what is more, he puts it into a form they will take. Best of all, at the end of each brief chapter is a pause for discussion with subjects for it suggested in terms sure to make such discussion lively and pertinent. If you disagree at any point, you get your say between chapters, but I think few of us will disagree with what he says." M. L. Becker

+ Books p5 Je 16 '40 340w

Boston Transcript p1 Ag 3 '40 10w

Cleveland Open Shelf p14 Jl '40

Reviewed by Maude Adams

Library J 65:545 Je 15 '40 210w

STEVENS, WILLIAM OLIVER. Pistols at ten paces; the story of the code of honor in America. 293p il $3 Houghton

394.8 Dueling 40-34083

History of dueling in the United States. In colonial days the institution was almost unknown, but during the Revolution the practice was introduced from France, and a few decades later it became popular in this country. Altho there were relatively few duels in the North, the South chose dueling as the favorite method of avenging an insult. The book traces the course of the rise, flowering, and decline of the practice in this country during the nineteenth century. Seven famous American duels are fully described. Index.

Reviewed by Richardson Wright

Books p2 D 22 '40 1100w

"Mr. Stevens does not always curb his emotions in writing his history, but his book is scarcely less interesting for that."

N Y Times p31 N 17 '40 550w

"It is to be wished that Mr. Stevens had gone more fully into the rather complex group of forces which made dueling as much an anachronism as the medieval tournament. But he has written a useful as well as entertaining book, embodying a dark page in the general history of American civilization." Albert Neville

+ — Sat R of Lit 23:18 N 23 '40 480w

Social Studies 32:47 Ja '41 30w

Springf'd Republican p12 O 25 '40 1100w

STEVENSON, DOROTHY E. (MRS JAMES REID PEPLOE). The English air. 317p $2.50 Farrar

(W) 40-10777

Franz von Heiden, son of a high Nazi official and an English mother, visits his English cousins in a serene little village. The time is the eve of the second European war, and Franz's mission is to learn the exact temper of the English people. The course of the youth's gradual awakening to the beauty of England, and an understanding of Nazi duplicity, is traced.

Booklist 36:430 Jl 15 '40

"Miss Stevenson's novel is an earnest and sometimes touching narrative of wishful thinking, one of the many which we shall probably have expressing the might-have-beens of the disastrous present." Lisle Bell

Books p8 Je 30 '40 460w

"The author of 'Miss Buncle's Book' has grown up. Without losing any of her charm or effortless wit, Miss Stevenson has written a story of depth and satisfying strength. It is about the war, and the situation has roots and horizons. The book is both exciting and appealing. . . D. E. Stevenson makes the English 'heroism without fuss' a poignant reality, even were it not in conjunction with

STEVENSON, D. E.—Continued
present news. Her book is not propaganda, but the genuine outpouring of individual belief and experience. In no current novel have we found the ideals and ways of living implicit in the word 'democracy' so delicately yet sharply implied. This timely story provides escape, without the prerequisite of packing your intelligence away in moth balls." Olga Owens
+ Boston Transcript p1 Je 29 '40 650w

Reviewed by M. H. Burns
New Repub 103:60 Jl 8 '40 470w

"Miss Stevenson is a good story teller, an acute observer of manners. Yet there is more here than a good story, or a shrewd and honest study of national character. It is next to impossible, at this moment, to say how much more. Our own sentiments and prejudices are too closely involved. One does know that Miss Stevenson's confidence in the future (as of last February) gives a special sense of pain and urgency to 'The English Air.' " Margaret Wallace
+ N Y Times p7 Je 30 '40 850w

"At the moment, British gallantry and heroism need no proof. Miss Stevenson's sugar-coating seems irrelevant, immaterial, and a mite silly."
New Yorker 16:66 Jl 13 '40 50w
Sat R of Lit 22:21 Ag 3 '40 230w

"The book is pleasantly written, and the general tone, although a little ingenuous, kindly and sympathetic—indeed, very much in accord with the feelings of most people of the class the author depicts."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p421 Ag 31 '40 250w

STEVENSON, DOROTHY E. (MRS JAMES REID PEPLOE). Mrs Tim of the regiment; leaves from the diary of an officer's wife. 378p $2.50 Farrar [7s 6d Cape, J]
(W) 40-3038

Six months in the life of a British officer's wife as set down in her private diary. The entries include items of regimental gossip and the doings of two highly individual children, marital misunderstandings and trouble with servants, the first flutterings of a flirtation and the sympathetic observations on another's love affair.

Bookmark p14 My '40

" 'Mrs. Tim of the Regiment' is akin to the Buncle chronicles, and should be equally popular. It is unequivocally feminine in its outlook and its humor, with the same tolerance toward men—those creatures who mean well and are indispensable, but something of a trial in domestic crises. The domestic crises of Mrs. Tim are not particularly serious, and the story is quite on the gay side." Lisle Bell
+ Books p11 Ja 14 '40 250w

"This novel, which is infinitely better than the title would give one any reason to expect, is cast in the form of a diary, and for the purposes of Miss Stevenson's talent and of Mrs. Tim's wit, the form is perfect. . . The diary is full of trivialities, wittily recorded; of amusing and sometimes appalling side-glances into the life of army men and their wives, and of biting satirical sketches of characters both central and incidental to the whole. Mrs. Tim doesn't miss a trick, and it is to be hoped that anyone who is looking for a light novel about pleasant people doesn't miss Mrs. Tim." Ruth Page
+ Boston Transcript p13 F 1 '40 170w

"Miss Stevenson never seems to work at being funny, but she has spiced this tale of British army life with an unobtrusive, effortless wit which often proves deceptively sharp. . . In any case, the shop talk of the officers is well worth the price of admission. It is devoutly to be hoped that readers will not be misled by the slightly Wee Willie Winkle flavor of Miss Stevenson's title." Margaret Wallace
+ N Y Times p7 Ja 14 '40 500w
New Yorker 15:71 Ja 20 '40 40w

" 'Mrs. Tim of the Regiment' reminds one pleasantly of the Provincial Lady, although it has less of the tart astringency that marks Mrs. Delafield's work. And it has to be admitted that in the last section Miss Stevenson goes unjustifiably romantic on us by letting two men become enamored of Mrs. Tim, which causes the diary to become all too coy for a time. Mrs. Tim is at her best when busy about the daily terrors of home and neighborhood life." G. G.
+ Sat R of Lit 21:19 Ja 20 '40 240w
Wis Lib Bul 36:101 My '40

STEVENSON, DOROTHY E. (MRS JAMES REID PEPLOE). Rochester's wife. 335p $2 Farrar [8s 3d Collins]
(W) 40-12360

Tho personally unknown to each other, it was Rochester's wife who arranged that the brother of her friends the Stones, Christopher Stone, should accept the position as assistant to old Dr Peabody of Minfield Village. After a bit the two met and in due course fell in love. But Jack Rochester was an unhappy man and his wife was determined to stand by him until in the end a happy solution was found for all their entanglements.

Booklist 37:176 Ja 1 '41

"A thoughtful and dramatic story, as fluently written as the Miss Buncle books, but with much more substance." Lisle Bell
+ Books p9 D 22 '40 280w

"Intriguing characters; lively sparkling narrative. By the author of Miss Buncle and other charming novels." L. N. Felpel
+ Library J 65:923 N 1 '40 90w

"Miss Stevenson has shown herself a gifted story-teller before now. 'Rochester's Wife' has plenty of entertainment value, with complications just sufficiently grave to hold the reader's attention. It remains, however, a pleasant and rather tepid little love story, with none of the timeliness and little of the wit which has distinguished some of her other works. Undoubtedly, it will be welcomed by dyed-in-the-wool Stevenson fans." Margaret Wallace
+ — N Y Times p18 D 8 '40 600w
Times [London] Lit Sup p75 F 10 '40 70w

STEVERS, MARTIN DELAWAY. Mind through the ages; a history of human intelligence; il. with line drawings by Hal and Jean Arbo and the author. 521p maps $3.75 Doubleday

901 Civilization—History. Intellect
(W) 40-33620

"The story of mankind from the dawn of history to the present day, told in terms of man's concrete achievements in all the arts and sciences which enable him to survive against the destructive forces of his environment and his own nature." (Publisher's note) Index.

Booklist 37:172 Ja 1 '41

Reviewed by Regina Flannery
Commonweal 33:236 D 20 '40 390w
New Yorker 16:103 N 16 '40 50w

"Mr. Stevers has made a real contribution by appraising our system of life in the light of its social and psychological suitability. He points to the deficiencies in civil and criminal law and in education." A. H. Compton & others
+ Scientific Bk Club R 11:1 N '40 1600w

STEWARD, MRS ANN. Let the earth speak. 470p $2.50 Macmillan 40-33599

Poetically written novel in which the author expresses the love of man for the land by means of the lives of an assortment of people living on or near a large estate in Kentucky.

Over the book, as over the land, broods the spirit of the man known for two generations as Old Hayes, the man who first carved out Hayes El Farm.

Atlantic D '40 70w

"The stories of these people grow with some difficulty from the novel's rather obscure soil. The author is so determinedly analytical as almost to defeat the ends of clear analysis, and her style is less recondite than it is merely overelaborate. The substitution of dashes for quotation marks, too, makes the book no easier reading. But the novel is interesting, nevertheless; and it is written with an almost passionate earnestness." John Patton

+ — Books p14 O 20 '40 450w

"Ann Steward's unusual novel [is] a richly flavored, poetic study of a family whose members typify all men when, at some time of their life, 'their wars and their wanderings over, they come home to the earth and the care of its creatures.'" M. W. S.

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 O 26 '40 500w

"Ann Steward will not be a popular author, judging by her novel 'Let the Earth Speak,' but she undoubtedly will attract and hold a small critical audience. Those caught by the rhythm and mysticism of her expression will return to rereading of her pages as to a volume of poetry. . . Mrs. Steward succeeds brilliantly in charging the book with its strange mood; her words capture the essential quality of her unique characters and of the things they live by, whether it is of the richness of the earth or the elusive core of impulse or conviction. There are realism and mysticism and symbolism in 'Let the Earth Speak,' and Mrs. Steward makes them one in an absorbing and unusual book." Rose Feld

+ N Y Times p6 O 13 '40 1350w

Sat R of Lit 23:20 D 14 '40 280w

"Though the book is concerned with motives, personalities are never slighted, and the reader is happy or distressed, as the case calls for, by what concerns the characters. Never are they easy to understand. The story of 'Let the Earth Speak,' if romanticized, has substance. It is packed too full for approximate understanding."

Springf'd Republican p7e O 20 '40 900w

STEWART, ALFRED WALTER (J. J. CONNINGTON, pseud). The four defences. 290p $2 Little [8s 3d Hodder]

40-13052

Detective story.

"Mr. Connington displays his customary ingenuity in ringing the changes on standard themes, and you'll like the story all the more if you care for Mark, the Counsellor, a persistently gay type." Will Cuppy

Books p10 S 1 '40 150w

"A good mystery and a good mental exercise combined." Marian Wiggin

+ Boston Transcript p8 Ag 31 '40 80w

"A pity that Mr. Connington shows little skill in characterisation, so that his personages have no more individuality than chess pieces, and that he has but small care for the niceties of style. But it is difficult to believe that a more carefully constructed or more puzzling problem has often been offered for the amateur detective to try his skill on." E. R. Punshon

+ — Manchester Guardian p7 Ag 13 '40 220w

Reviewed by Ralph Partridge

New Statesman & Nation 20:337 O 5 '40 170w

Reviewed by Kay Irvin

N Y Times p16 S 1 '40 270w

"Fairly bulging with plot, shrewd villainy, keen deducing and bright conversational byplay—all making up for paucity of movement."

+ — Sat R of Lit 22:18 Ag 31 '40 40w

Spec 165:68 Jl 19 '40 30w

Times [London] Lit Sup p329 Jl 6 '40 300w

STEWART, DAVID SMITH. Influence lines, their practical use in bridge calculation; with a foreword by Sir Thomas Hudson Beare. 215p il 12s 6d Constable [English publication]

624.1 Structures, Theory of. Bridges, Iron and steel [39-32460]

"A text-book suitable for civil engineers, structural engineers, municipal and county engineers and students at universities and technical colleges." (Subtitle) "Except in the final chapter, which deals with influence lines for deflections and the use of graphical integration, the author, who is a lecturer in the University of Edinburgh, has dispensed with the calculus." (N Y New Tech Bks)

Reviewed by H. E. Wessman

Eng N 124:69 F 29 '40 480w

N Y New Tech Bks 23:36 Jl '39

STEWART, DONALD OGDEN, ed. Fighting words. 168p $1.50 Harcourt

029 Authorship (W) 40-30022

"This is a merging of speeches from more than 40 authors made at the 1939 congress of the League of American writers. They treat of the various problems of the writer such as technique of writing, the role of the Negro in literature, writing for the radio or for the movies, the need for organization to protect author rights, etc." Standard Catalog

"The book is far better than its cheap title, and better than the rather chatty and desultory method of presentation. In a very intelligent, at times in a very searching manner, it raises and defines all the major problems that face a contemporary writer. It is a complement and a challenge to the time-honored conceptions of literature. It brushes aside the conventions which are still ruling university teaching and academic criticism." Albert Guerard

Books p5 Ag 4 '40 1350w

Christian Century 57:418 Mr 27 '40 110w

Christian Century 57:1345 O 30 '40 150w

"The report of the third American Writers' Congress has finally appeared. . . Coming when it does, more than a year after the congress was held, the book has the air of being a memorial to someone or something that has died; and like most memorial volumes it is unlikely to have many readers. That is a pity, for the congress was an extraordinary affair and Mr. Stewart has managed in 168 pages to suggest its diversity and excitement." Malcolm Cowley

New Repub 103:219 Ag 12 '40 480w

"Being a symposium the book is naturally of somewhat uneven quality; and being a collection of addresses from a convention, it naturally—although not completely—stresses one point of view."

N Y Times p10 Jl 28 '40 490w

STEWART, GEORGE. A face to the sky. 96p $1 Assn. press

264.1 Prayers 40-10021

Book of prayers for many occasions. They are grouped under headings: for the day's work; as the seasons change; for our own needs; for our benefactors and protectors; for all kinds and conditions of men; for institutions dear to our hearts; for our families; for the church.

Christian Century 57:354 Mr 13 '40 60w

"A book of prayers in rhythmical prose, poetic imagery and with beauty of thought." H. J. S.

+ Churchman 154:34 Ap 1 '40 70w

STEWART, GEORGE. I met them once. 283p $2.50 Caxton printers

940.3144 European war, 1914-1918—Influence and results 40-5727

Short articles on various aspects of life in the different countries of Europe just after the

STEWART, GEORGE—Continued
World war. The author describes the people he met and talked with as he traveled about the continent as a leader in student relief work.

"A fine and unusual piece of anti-war propaganda; as you read you begin to wonder how long such books will be allowed to circulate in this country. Stewart writes in an easy, flowing style, though there are a few repetitions of phrase in the early part of the book that would be better mended. He has a keen eye for detail, a novelist's ability to recreate scenes —and seemingly an astounding memory. Some of the episodes are really gripping, and if you don't find yourself occasionally with a catch in your throat you're not easily moved." Jean Faiseur

+ Canadian Forum 20:30 Ap '40 180w

"It is a well-written book, open-eyed, earnest, and always humane."

+ N Y Times p19 Mr 17 '40 440w

STEWART, GEORGE WOODBRIDGE, and STEWART, ELEANOR (WARREN). I have a book. 64p il 50c G. W. Stewart, 67 W. 44th st, N.Y.

749 Shelves. Libraries, Private 40-8574

"Some people have a big room, just for books. Some people have a little room, just for books. Other people have books in every room—or would, if they could find space for them. It is this third group which George and Eleanor Stewart address in a slim but stimulating volume: they explain how space can be found, or made, for books everywhere." N Y Times

N Y Times p24 Ap 7 '40 320w

Wis Lib Bul 36:97 My '40

STEWART, JEFFREY R. National paint dictionary; a handy reference volume for chemists, production managers, purchasing agents [etc]. 154p 150 il $5 Chemical pub. co; Stewart research laboratory, Franconia, Alexandria, Va.

667.6 Paint—Dictionaries 40-27184

"A comprehensive glossary of the materials and technical devices used in the manufacture of protective and decorative coatings condensed into 154 pages. The material contained herein appeared monthly in 'Drugs, Oils & Paints' starting with May 1937 and running until September 1939. Mr. Stewart then took this series of articles and supplementing it with the new materials and devices which are continuously appearing in a progressive industry compiled this dictionary." Chem & Met Eng

Booklist 36:260 Mr 1 '40

"The dictionary is attractively and durably bound. It will be a worthwhile addition to the libraries of all who are interested in paints and varnishes." R. W. Kewish

+ Chem & Chem Eng N 18:261 Mr 25 '40 210w

Chem & Met Eng 47:139 F '40 130w

N Y New Tech Bks 25:9 Ja '40

STEWART, JOHN INNES MACKINTOSH (MICHAEL INNES, pseud). A comedy of terrors. 241p $2 Dodd

40-10304

Detective story.

Booklist 37:14 S '40

"What we personally call the better fans will fall heavily and en masse for this top-notcher." Will Cuppy

+ Books p10 Je 23 '40 200w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin

Boston Transcript p2 Je 29 '40 70w

"The interest of the story lies mainly in the contrasting and conflicting personalities of the men and women involved. As for the mystery, a less skillful writer than Michael Innes would scarcely have dared to present one which is such a strain on the imagination, but Innes is in a class by himself and can compel belief where others would encounter only ridicule." Isaac Anderson

N Y Times p17 Je 23 '40 330w

"Lots of words in this one for highly educated readers who find them soothing, but featherbrains may fall asleep."

+ New Yorker 16:72 Je 22 '40 50w

"Shuttlecock of suspicion kept constantly in air by battledore of brilliant badinage. Sam Coleridge finally shows learned sleuth way out. Tour de force."

+ Sat R of Lit 22:20 Je 22 '40 40w

Springf'd Republican p7e S 1 '40 240w

STEWART, ROBERT BURGESS. Treaty relations of the British Commonwealth of nations; with a foreword by W. Y. Elliott. (Bur. of int. research of Harvard univ. and Radcliffe college. Publications) 503p map $5 (21s) Macmillan

327.42 Great Britain—Foreign relations. Great Britain—Colonies 39-20370

The author "has fully documented the history of the treaty relations of the British Commonwealth and the treaty making powers in the Commonwealth from the beginnings of 'self-government' in the Dominions up to 1938, in one of the best discussions in print of the international status of the Dominions and the nature of the Commonwealth." (Pacific Affairs) The appendix contains important documents and a selected bibliography. The author is an instructor in Harvard university. Index.

"Dr. Stewart has done an excellent piece of work on the specific phase of the subject which he has chosen. . . While the setting and the implications of many of the principal episodes in the development of Dominion treaty relations might perhaps have been more clearly expounded, the author has presented us with a very serviceable and timely contribution. The various phases of a wide subject are treated in well-organized fashion within one volume. Especially valuable are his data on the forms and techniques of treaty-making. An appendix of almost a hundred pages comprises examples of the chief instruments in use, and there is a brief bibliography." A. G. Dewey

+ Am Hist R 46:402 Ja '41 900w

"Mr. Stewart has written with great care. The book is singularly accurate. In a more technical review it would be possible to point out slips and errors, but none of these are of vital importance, and they do not detract from the general practical utility of a book which ought to do much to clarify situations singularly difficult for foreign students." W. P. M. Kennedy

+ Ann Am Acad 210:159 Jl '40 420w

Reviewed by J. R. Baldwin

Canadian Hist R 21:317 S '40 210w

Reviewed by A. W. Knauth

Columbia Law R 40:1123 Je '40 1250w

Foreign Affairs 18:380 Ja '40 10w

"The book immediately takes its place as an authority." J. P. Humphrey

+ Pacific Affairs 13:237 Je '40 350w

Reviewed by R. L. Schuyler

Pol Sci Q 55:472 S '40 500w

Reviewed by Phillips Bradley

Yale Law J 49:605 Ja '40 440w

STICKLES, ARNDT MATHIAS. Simon Bolivar Buckner; borderland knight. 446p il $3.50 Univ. of N.C. press

B or 92 Buckner, Simon Bolivar. Kentucky—History 40-6008

The subject of this biography was born in Kentucky in 1823. Graduated from West Point in 1844 he took part in the Mexican war, and later chose the Confederate side in the Civil war. After the war he engaged in business and journalism and then entered the political field, serving four years as governor of Kentucky (1887-1891) and later running for United States senator and vice-president. Bibliography. Index.

"Professor Stickles has written this book in a clear though undistinguished style. He searched for every scrap of evidence bearing on Buckner, and he found much, using various manuscripts and newspapers to good advantage. Though there is an oversupply of detail and a dearth of that interweaving of local into the national background, Professor Stickles has nevertheless produced a biography of sound scholarship." E. M. Coulter

+ — Am Hist R 46:479 Ja '41 260w

Christian Science Monitor p18 Ja 25 '41 200w

"Too crowded with unimportant details to be of interest to the general reader."

New Repub 102:513 Ap 15 '40 50w

"In general, better organization and the elimination of unnecessary and frequent repetition would have made this book a more satisfactory account of General Buckner's life and service. All things considered, however, this account is a worth-while addition to the growing list of biographies of secondary characters in the great struggle." T. R. Hay

+ — N Y Times p16 Je 2 '40 700w

STIDGER, WILLIAM LE ROY. The human side of greatness. 231p $2 Harper

920.073 U.S.—Biography 40-34060

"In a series of seventeen sketches of well-known contemporary men and women written originally for True Story Magazine, Dr. Stidger has endeavored to describe the person behind the accomplishments from which their fame has come, the formative influences as the individual has recognized them, and something of their work. It is a gallery containing various portraits in juxtaposition—Henry Ford, Charles Connick, Roland Hayes, Martha Berry, Cecil B. DeMille, Edgar Guest and Angela Morgan." Churchman

---

"Much of the author's own abundant energy and resourcefulness appears in these pictures of personalities. They are both entertaining and inspiring."

+ Christian Century 57:1314 O 23 '40 60w

"Life makes strange bedfellows and so does Dr. Stidger. While the faces differ, the technique of the artist remains the same—chatty, informal, intimate, and minimizing questions of the ultimate importance. Sentimentality looms large and constantly the emphasis is on home, mother, friends, and hard work as the foundation for success—which with faith in oneself and courage lead inevitably to fame." R. C. B.

Churchman 155:34 Ja 1 '41 150w

STIERI, EMANUELE. Woodworking as a hobby. 268p il $3 Harper

684 Woodwork (W) 40-1961

Detailed instructions in the use of various tools and methods for the man who has a home workshop. The greater part of the book is given over to detailed description of the tools with many diagrams and illustrations: several chapters at the end, however, give help in building some simple pieces of furniture with working drawings and lists of materials needed. Index.

Booklist 36:233 F 15 '40

"Reliable and practical manual."

+ Books p18 Mr 17 '40 80w

Reviewed by M. A. Whitney

Christian Science Monitor p9 Ag 29 '40 90w

N Y New Tech Bks 25:14 Ja '40

Wis Lib Bul 36:64 Ap '40

STILL, JAMES. River of earth. 245p $2.50 Viking

40-27120

"This is a story of the hills and coal camps of Kentucky, seen through the eyes of a boy and told with realism and sensitive imagination. It is episodic, it takes things as they come along rather than trying to weave them into the tight framework of a plot, but it leaves a sharp impression of living and breathing Americana." Books

---

"Vivid, beautifully phrased story. The homespun mountain people lead their hard lives on the earth or in it. The essential poetry of their living is told here, quietly, for those who wish to understand."

+ Atlantic Mr '40 40w

Booklist 36:239 F 15 '40

Bookmark p14 My '40

"Though this is not a long novel, as novels go, Mr. Still has been able to pack a great deal of life into it. It is rich with sights, sounds and smells, with the feel and taste of things. And it is rich, as well, with salty and earthy speech, the soil of ballad and legend and tall story. Yet . . . this is a contemporary book, not merely a string of boyhood memories. You can call it regional writing if you like—but to say so is merely to say that all America is not cut off the same piece." S. V. Benét

+ Books p4 F 4 '40 500w

"If anyone were to ask what 'school' of writing this novel belongs to, the answer would have to be, 'Elizabeth Madox Roberts'.' But that is only another way of saying that Mr. Still, like Miss Roberts, is enough himself to be a school of his own. His language, his people, his skill in conveying the immediacy of noises and colors and smells are comparable to hers, but he is fully her equal in fusing the most realistic objectivity with the most intense inwardness of mood." Ann Springer

+ Boston Transcript p1 F 10 '40 420w

Christian Science Monitor p10 Mr 2 '40 480w

"This is a better than average novel of the hill people of the South. . . Mr. Still has distinguished himself principally in his restraint, avoiding Jesse Stuart's often faked heartiness and the cheap, easily written incidents which merely shock but which Erskine Caldwell thinks are good writing. Not that Mr. Still has made many compromises with reality. The poverty of the people he writes about is dire and almost inescapable. But he has brought considerable objectivity to his writing." Harry Sylvester

+ Commonweal 31:387 F 23 '40 200w

Reviewed by Keith Hollingsworth

New Repub 102:319 Mr 4 '40 170w

Reviewed by Rose Feld

N Y Times p6 F 4 '40 750w

"Mr. Still now lives among the same hills he writes about; he can render the mountain speech with impressive fidelity, and his people are no less real for being strange. What he needs is more plot; his tale is episodic and shapeless in spite of its authentic background."

+ — New Yorker 15:79 F 10 '40 40w

"Mr. Still's book is the novel that one would expect from the author of that fine volume of poems, 'Hounds on the Mountain.' Its material is drawn from the mountains of Kentucky, and the story is told with the same clarity and strength born of restraint that characterized the earlier book. It is a first novel, but the economy of its style and the directness of its aim give evidence of a mature and intelligently used talent." W. J. Gold

+ Sat R of Lit 21:5 F 3 '40 480w

Social Forces 18:617 My '40 80w

Time 35:64 F 5 '40 550w

Wis Lib Bul 36:49 Mr '40

Reviewed by Robert Littell

Yale R n s 29:x spring '40 40w

STILLMAN, ALBERT LEEDS. Drums beat in old Carolina; il. by Thomas Fogarty and Thomas Fogarty, jr. 244p $2 Winston 39-23412

Jamie Hill, the narrator, is a fifteen-year-old English boy sentenced to be sold as an indentured slave in the colonies. His adventures began on shipboard and continued when he landed in the Carolinas, where he was sold to a rich nobleman engaged in manufacturing gunpowder. The time is the 1770s. For grades six to eight.

Booklist 36:266 Mr 1 '40

"Mr. Stillman has woven an exciting romance, and, for all its homespun background and masculine humor, one in the cloak-and-sword tradition. It sometimes stretches credulity but it fires the imagination, by focusing on a seldom-considered phase of the Revolution. For the 'teen age." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p22 N 12 '39 60w

STIMSON, MRS MARY (STURDIVANT). Marijuana mystery. 234p $2 Dorrance 40-11564

Detective story.

"This may not be as knowing as some shockers in spots, but it contains food for thought (with a moral), an attractive amphibious background and a bunch of lifelike people in addition to the whodunit values." Will Cuppy
+ Books p10 Jl 7 '40 250w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin
Boston Transcript p2 Jl 6 '40 50w

" 'Marijuana Mystery' has a few exciting moments, but not much bafflement." Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p10 Je 30 '40 160w

Springf'd Republican p7e S 1 '40 190w

STOCKS, JOHN LEOFRIC. Reason and intuition, and other essays; ed. with an introd. by Dorothy M. Emmet. 259p $4 (12s 6d) Oxford

192.9 Philosophy—Addresses, essays, lectures 39-23891

Contents: Reason and intuition; The kinds of belief; Religious belief; Conflicts of belief; The eclipse of cause; Materialism in politics; On the need for a social philosophy; Can philosophy determine what is ethically and socially valuable? The philosophy of democracy; The principles and limitations of state action; Leisure; Locke's contribution to political theory; Jeremy Bentham; The empiricism of J. S. Mill; Is a science of theology possible? Will and action in ethics.

"Miss Emmet is to be congratulated on the arrangement of the essays, and the Introduction with which she furnishes the collection is admirable." G. S. Whitby
+ Ethics 50:360 Ap '40 1700w

Manchester Guardian p7 Mr 31 '39 270w

New Statesman & Nation 17:948 Je 17 '39 340w

"This book is a collection of essays full of that sort of wisdom which is gathered by a man who was both an able philosopher and an executive with many active duties. It has the solid, English quality of a writer whose thoughts are never far from matters of human relationships and government." S. C. Pepper
+ N Y Times p25 Mr 10 '40 370w

"The essays reprinted in this memorial volume were written by Dr. Stocks in the years preceding his premature death. They are not chapters of the great book which he might perhaps have written had he felt that his practical work was done; but they are illustrations, from various angles, of the specific contributions which he sought to make to thought. Put in philosophical terms, this contribution was a restatement of the Aristotelian formal cause, and Miss Emmet, in her scholarly introduction, assesses its specifically philosophic value. Her essay would have pleased Stocks himself."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p212 Ap 15 '39 650w

STOCKUM, HILDA VAN. See Van Stockum, H.

STOCKWELL, GAIL. The candy killings. 312p $2 Greystone 40-30184

Detective story.

"This pipe-dream could do with some pruning." Will Cuppy
Books p18 S 22 '40 110w

"The murders—three of them—aren't nearly as interesting as the people involved. . . Not to be missed, any of them." Marian Wiggin
+ — Boston Transcript p2 S 21 '40 70w

"The story is wordy, but it holds the attention, and the surprising end is not illogical." Kay Irvin
+ — N Y Times p19 S 15 '40 200w

"Passable."
Sat R of Lit 22:18 S 28 '40 40w

STODDARD, THEODORE LOTHROP. Into the darkness; Nazi Germany today. 311p $2.75 Duell

943.085 Germany—Nazi movement. European war, 1939—Germany (W) 40-13722

The author went to Germany in October, 1939, as a correspondent for the North American News Alliance, and left in January, 1940. "What he accomplishes, with real success, is to give vivid pen-sketches of the various Nazi leaders, including Hitler, whom he saw during his stay in Germany, and of the war developments he observed in such diverse fields as agriculture, industry, women's activities, socialized health, and the work of the Nazi party. Mr. Stoddard voices neither condemnation nor adulation for the Nazi system." (Books) Index.

"Whether intentionally or not, Mr. Stoddard has written a book from which both Nazis and anti-Nazis can derive comfort. It must, therefore, be read with more than the usual skepticism." P. H. Odegard
Ann Am Acad 213:201 Ja '41 550w

"Mr. Stoddard makes no pretense of offering a documented and extensive thesis on the theory and practice of the Nazi state. . . He knows too much of Germany right after the first World War to indulge in unqualified denunciation. Yet his approach to his task is too critical to permit acceptance of all Nazi claims at face value." V. M. Dean
+ — Books p2 Jl 7 '40 600w

"On some topics Mr. Stoddard writes with assurance. But his prediction as to the outcome of the war deserves a prize for champion hedging. He thought that 'if Germany launched a western offensive in the current year, it would indicate either great strength or great weakness.' " Lewis Gannett
Boston Transcript p11 Je 21 '40 270w

"The book is a more than passable survey of the Third Reich at war. It stays mostly on the surface of things, like the platitudinous interviews Mr. Stoddard quotes at length; yet it has a good deal of information that deserves not to be ignored, particularly by Americans now." R. H. Phelps
+ Boston Transcript p1 Je 29 '40 850w

Cleveland Open Shelf p13 Jl '40

"A salutary tonic, which should be prescribed rigorously for every head-in-the-sand-sticking American. If its lessons are properly and promptly learned, it should go a long way toward achieving the much needed powerful and efficient western-hemispheric democratic counterpart to the eastern-hemispheric totalitarian political and economic set-up that appears to be now in the making. If its facts had been realized fully and in time by the leaders of the Allied cause, it might have altered the course of history's most disastrous war. Splendid reading, aside from its serious import." L. N. Feipel

+ Library J 65:591 Jl '40 110w

New Repub 103:198 Ag 5 '40 60w

Reviewed by Katherine Woods
N Y Times p9 Jl 7 '40 1200w

"The author seems to have been fairly easily impressed. Not much new material."
New Yorker 16:72 Je 29 '40 30w

"Mr. Stoddard's book suffers from a number of limitations. First of all he rarely goes very far below the surface, and as he himself admits, conflicts exist in Germany which do not appear in the light of day. Only infrequently does he approach the penetrating analysis of the Nazi system which Otto Tolischus has been making in recent years in the New York Times. 'Into the Darkness' also is handicapped by the fact that its author spent only three months or so in the Reich, from October, 1939 until February or March, 1940. . . In describing Nazi accomplishments he fails to show the importance of terror in the Hitler scheme of things. . . Once this has been said, the worst has been said. In its calm presentation and for some of its factual information, 'Into the Darkness' is worthy of study." Shepard Stone

+ — Sat R of Lit 22:10 Je 29 '40 1150w

Time 36:68 Ag 12 '40 70w

STODDART, JANE T. Psalms for every day; with a thousand illustrations from life and literature. 382p $3.50 Cokesbury press [10s 6d Hodder]

223.2 Bible. Old Testament—Psalms 40-11015

"A vast amount of illustrative and collateral material, quite different from the usual contents of a commentary, is here assembled. It is not a commentary, but a companion and supplement to the reading of the Psalms." (Christian Century) Indexes.

Christian Century 57:250 F 21 '40 30w

"On the whole the book is more serviceable for devotional than continuous reading." L. W. Batten
Churchman 154:17 Ap 1 '40 70w

Reviewed by H. S. Coffin
J Religion 20:421 O '40 110w

"It is important to observe that Miss Stoddart's collection of material is not so much an interpretation of the Psalms as a volume of illustrations designed to benefit the reader spiritually. . . Those readers who would search more deeply into the exact meanings of the Psalms will have to look in other quarters."
Times [London] Lit Sup p500 Ag 26 '39 350w

STOKES, THOMAS LUNSFORD. Chip off my shoulder. 561p $3 Princeton univ. press

973.9 U.S.—Politics and government. Journalists—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. (W) 40-27242

The author is a Washington newspaper correspondent working for the Scripps-Howard papers, and recipient in 1939 of the Pulitzer Prize for excellent reporting. His book reviews American politics and government from 1921 to 1939. Index.

Atlantic Je '40 240w

Booklist 36:282 Mr 15 '40

"Mr. Stokes has used the columns of the temple of Karnak to adorn the portico of a charming suburban residence. His opening chapter is an apostrophe to the South which is immense; after which one passes into the autobiography of a Washington correspondent, a book that is always interesting and frequently delightful, but minuscular by comparison with its colossal entry." G. W. Johnson
Books p3 Mr 3 '40 1100w

Reviewed by Benjamin Bowker
Boston Transcript p2 Mr 9 '40 300w

Christian Science Monitor p12 Ap 13 '40 240w

Current Hist 51:8 Mr '40 50w

Reviewed by Marian Carnovsky
Library Q 10:457 Jl '40 420w

Nation 150:401 Mr 23 '40 70w

New Repub 102:649 My 13 '40 60w

"After watching and listening for nearly two decades Mr. Stokes is disillusioned but hopeful. His book is a mature and interesting explanation of how he arrived at this state of mind. As hinted above, it could be much shorter and still be as good or better, but in this campaign year it is certainly an advised if not required piece of reading." R. L. Duffus

+ — N Y Times p19 F 25 '40 1500w

New Yorker 16:91 Mr 9 '40 30w

"Mr. Stokes's story does not furnish any 'revelations.' No good newspaper man's book should do so; any news gathered should be written for his newspaper when it is fresh. But his characterizations of the national figures with whom he was in such close contact are interesting and revealing, and such material does not belong in objective news reports. His volume is a good source book on democratic processes. He is not uncharitable to near-statesmen who are merely human, but he reserves his admiration for men of courage and conviction who fight for what they believe to be the common welfare." C. McD. Puckette

+ Sat R of Lit 21:6 Mr 16 '40 390w

Springf'd Republican p12 My 10 '40 550w

Reviewed by Leon Whipple
Survey G 29:193 Mr '40 180w

"Where Mr. Stokes is a reporter of what he saw and heard, he is both readable and important; where he is only commenting he is still readable, but not important except as a witness to the merits and limitations of a first-class newspaperman."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p486 S 21 '40 420w

STOLL, ELMER EDGAR. Shakespeare and other masters. 430p $4.50 Harvard univ. press

822.33 Shakespeare, William—Criticism and interpretation. Drama—History and criticism. Literature, Comparative 40-34152

"Nearly all the articles here gathered together have already appeared in one or another literary periodical or learned journal. But they have been revised and enlarged and are now arranged in a fairly logical sequence which presents the reader with a coherent whole." (Books) Contents: Prologue: the critic as sleuth; The dramatic texture in Shakespeare; 'Reconciliation' in tragedy: Shakespeare and Sophocles; Shakespeare and Jonson: characterization and tradition; Hamlet the man; Othello the man; Othello and Oedipus: Corneille, Rymer and Voltaire; Iago; The tempest; Phèdre; Tartuffe, Falstaff, and the Optique du théâtre; Art and artifice in the Iliad: or the poetical treatment of character in Homer and Shakespeare; The tragic fallacy, so called; Appendix to 'Hamlet the man'.

Reviewed by S. C. Chew
Books p41 D 1 '40 750w

"To the prima facie view, what Professor Stoll has given us is a series of essays which, though centering upon Shakespeare, range from Aeschylus to Ibsen, Shaw and Eugene O'Neill. As such, the book deserves and will doubtless receive wide favor. At once acutely critical and solidly sensible, it is prompted everywhere by the most delicate perception and inspired by a whole-souled delight in all that is best in drama and in literature." John Corbin

STOLL, E. E.—Continued
+ N Y Times p34 D 8 '40 1300w

"By and large, the book, as Montaigne has it in another connection, 'puts us to our plunges,' compels us time and again to revise our bland traditional assumptions, and acts as a healthy force in criticism the world over." G. C. Taylor
+ — Yale R n s 30:419 winter '41 490w

STOLPER, GUSTAV. German economy, 1870-1940; issues and trends. 295p $3 Reynal

330.943 Germany—Economic policy. Germany—Economic conditions (W) 40-13176

A survey of the economic development of Germany from 1871 to the outbreak of war in 1939. While disclaiming any intention of proving a thesis, the author presents as his central idea that: "The totalitarian regime of the Nazis is merely the climax of the expansionist tendencies and responsibilities of governmental power over the destinies of the German people." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

Atlantic S '40 170w

Booklist 37:7 S '40

Bookmark p14 N '40

"It is a useful guide and handbook; it contains a great deal of information not readily available elsewhere and it brings out some pertinent facts which are often overlooked." Walter Millis
+ Books p5 Jl 14 '40 800w

Reviewed by R. H. Phelps
Boston Transcript p2 Ag 10 '40 360w

"It would have been worthwhile to broaden the basis of the book, and to attempt a description of the future interrelationships of a multitude of totalitarian economic systems. There are also some theoretical shortcomings. . . But despite these and similar shortcomings, the book will prove very helpful for the student of German economic and social development."
— + Commonweal 32:334 Ag 9 '40 480w

"No one is better qualified to interpret the economic history of modern Germany than Dr. Stolper. . . He combines a meticulous scholarship and a journalist's feeling for readability with a keen political sense."
+ Foreign Affairs 19:258 O '40 100w

"It is a hard job to outline German economic history from Bismarck to Hitler vividly, but accurately, on a few hundred pages. Dr. Gustav Stolper, a former liberal member of the German Reichstag and an authority on European economics, is the first to succeed in such an ambitious undertaking to a considerable extent. His book is based on a thorough understanding of the tendencies inherent in the turbulent development of German industry and finance." F. E. Hirsch
+ Library J 65:591 Jl '40 110w

Nation 151:400 O 26 '40 140w

"Dr. Stolper could draw upon ample and varied experience in writing what may well come to be regarded as the definitive economic history of modern Germany. It is a book intended for the general public, and this may explain why the discussion is limited to the traditional fields of financial writing: trade, finance and industry. Political and social factors, while not completely neglected, receive only scant treatment. Whatever the book may have lost in comprehensiveness it has gained in readability. Particularly well done is the last section, with its account of the economic structure of the Nazi state." P. F. Drucker
+ New Repub 103:252 Ag 19 '40 950w

Reviewed by R. L. Buell
N Y Times p3 Jl 21 '40 900w

"Scholarly, but not difficult."
New Yorker 16:64 Jl 20 '40 30w

Reviewed by Robert Strausz-Hupé
Sat R of Lit 22:17 Ag 3 '40 600w

"Mr. Stolper's account, while occasionally it could be better by expansion of detail, assembles valuable information, and will be found of use to the thoughtful reader."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 28 '40 1000w

Reviewed by C. T. Schmidt
Survey G 29:624 D '40 360w

"The author of this interesting and valuable book is a well-known German economist and former member of the Reichstag who left Germany in 1933 for the United States, where he became an American citizen."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p556 N 2 '40 850w

STOLPER, JOEL. Patches [il. by the author] 100p $1.50 Harcourt
(W) 40-32072

"Here is an animal few American children see at all—unless they live near a large Zoo or on the line of the circus—but for which we all have a wondering liking. A giraffe can combine the incredible and the affable like no other creature. . . Such is Patches, an angular newborn baby when the tale begins, a museum specimen when it closes. The story sticks closely to actual fact and does not personify or humanize any of its animals." Books

Booklist 37:141 D 1 '40

"There is something so ingratiating in these pictures of a baby giraffe that the book will not be read until they are all examined, and when it is the story will be found to have the same ingratiating quality." M. L. Becker
+ Books p7 S 22 '40 260w

"Mr. Stolper's studies of the giraffe in yellow and black are distinctly worth while and it is pleasant to know that the insatiable curiosity of giraffes makes them very happy tenants of a Zoo." E. V. W.
+ Cath World 152:374 D '40 100w

Reviewed by F. B. Sloan
Christian Science Monitor p9 Ja 27 '41 50w

Churchman 154:5 D 1 '40 20w

"This unvarnished story with its arresting pictures contains much information about wild animals in Africa, seen as a gentle young animal might see them." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk M 16:440 N '40 80w

"Will make popular and informative reading for the fourth to sixth grader. Not as colorfully illustrated nor as extravagantly fictionized as Raffy by Rita Kissin, but children will enjoy them both." A. L. Shea
+ Library J 65:814 O 1 '40 80w

"The book is full of interesting information, and the drawings are both decorative and accurate." R. A. Hill
+ Library J 65:853 O 15 '40 20w

STONE, FRANK. So they crucified Him. 94p $1 Scribner [3s 6d Skeffington]

232.9 Jesus Christ—Crucifixion

"These 'thoughts of a modern on an old execution' are especially suitable for Lenten reading. They will be medicinal alike for those who normally shun all contemplation of the sacrifice on Calvary and for those whose contemplation habitually takes conventional and liturgical forms that lull them into complacency." Christian Century

Boston Transcript p7 Mr 30 '40 30w

+ Christian Century 57:283 F 28 '40 60w

Reviewed by W. L. Caswell
Churchman 154:17 Mr 1 '40 40w

Reviewed by W. N. Pittenger
Living Church 102:11 F 21 '40 80w

STONE, HARLAN FISKE. Public control of business; selected opinions; ed. by Alfred Lief. 324p $3.50 Howell, Soskin

380.168 Industry and state—U.S. U.S.—Constitutional law 40-9420

Collection of the opinions on law and industry written by Mr Justice Stone, the last of the "big four" of which Justices Holmes, Brandeis, and Cardozo were the other members. The collection contains opinions on competition and monopoly, employer obligations to labor, sit-down strikes, regulation by states, and public utility rate-making, among others. Index.

Booklist 36:425 Jl 15 '40

Reviewed by Joseph Calderon

Commonweal 32:152 Je 7 '40 700w

Management R 29:272 Jl '40 50w

"Holmes and Brandeis [have been dealt with] by this same Mr. Lief in a way to create confidence in the adequacy of treatment of any other jurist he might select for discussion. That confidence is justified in the book at hand, and from the wise selection and arrangement of and commentary on, the material pulled out of the Supreme Court Reports, the general reader gets the picture of a jurist of towering intellectual power, of great practical wisdom, of prophetic discernment of the course of the constitutional stream that nourishes the welfare of the people of the nation." J. P. Pollard

+ N Y Times p7 Je 2 '40 2000w

Sat R of Lit 22:22 Ag 3 '40 220w

Springf'd Republican p6 Je 19 '40 220w

STONE, HAROLD ALFRED; PRICE, DON K., and STONE, MRS KATHRYN H. (MEYERS). City manager government in the United States; a review after twenty-five years. (Social science research council. Com. on public administration. Studies in administration) 279p $2.50 Public administration

352 Municipal government—City manager plan (W) 40-10323

Summarizes the results of the city manager plan in fifty cities. Based on a nation-wide investigation made during 1937 and 1938. The book is divided into three sections: The development of city manager government; Administration; Politics. Index.

"It should be said for this volume that it is the first in a long time to try to tell us something objectively about the progress of the manager movement. Such a review was necessary, and every student of urban affairs will want to see it. It will be the handbook of manager government for some time to come." C. A. Dykstra

+ Am Pol Sci R 34:1004 O '40 600w

Reviewed by H. G. Hodges

Ann Am Acad 212:258 N '40 650w

Booklist 36:407 Jl 1 '40

STONE, IRVING. False witness. 275p $2 Doubleday

40-6545

When John Annister established the community church in the rich California valley which he discovered, he had a motto from his New Hampshire home incorporated in its foundation: "Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor." The valley had been a peaceful, prosperous place for many years when John's competitor for the leading role in the valley began his subtle campaign. Following on the heels of the theft of fifty dollars from a poor widow, the valley became the scene of local strife, which did not end until after John's death.

Booklist 36:365 My 15 '40

"Although his theme might have been illuminated with profit, Mr. Stone unfortunately casts little light. The virtues he recommends are drawn in black and white. His people either have them or haven't, and their action and diction is appropriate to their baseness or their magnificence." M. G. Lehman

Books p8 Ap 21 '40 310w

Reviewed by Harry Sylvester

— Commonweal 32:44 My 3 '40 300w

New Repub 102:586 Ap 29 '40 50w

"The story's style is appropriately simple and direct. The characterization of Annister is forceful. The tempest in the flour barrel endures so long, and has so many ramifications, the reader is almost ready himself to chip in to make up the $50 and call quits. But this is exactly the feeling which led the Mission Valley folk into trouble and discord—and here is the lesson Mr. Stone is sedulously driving home." Beatrice Sherman

N Y Times p5 Ap 14 '40 800w

New Yorker 16:94 Ap 20 '40 70w

"'False Witness' has its virtues, but they are more moral than literary." J. S. M.

Sat R of Lit 22:20 Ag 17 '40 250w

STONE, MRS MICHAEL (SCOTT). Neither sun nor storm. 374p $2.50 Raley

40-9865

Gerald Benton, after his graduation from college, left his humble home in Texas, and went to New York, intent on his ambition to become wealthy. The story follows the course of his rise to riches, and shows the part played in his life by three women—a demure little school teacher; a New York heiress; and Janet, who really loved him.

Reviewed by Lisle Bell

Books p18 Ap 28 '40 130w

"An unreal story where presidents of companies consort with lesser employees, introducing them to first-night, lords of the realm, and glamour-girl heiresses."

— Boston Transcript p2 Je 1 '40 50w

"Miss Stone tells a good story, one that is deftly put together, easy to read and that gives the effect of being 'true to life.'" F. T. Marsh

+ N Y Times p7 My 26 '40 650w

STONE, WILLIAM S. Teri Taro from Bora Bora; with il. by Armstrong Sperry. 135p $1.75 Knopf

40-10197

Story of a nine-year-old boy who lived on a South Sea island. He and his friend Tutu fished, climbed the mountain, went ghost hunting by moonlight, and finally had an unexpected adventure with a great shark. For ages eight to eleven.

"There is plenty of action in this story of Polynesian Island life and boys will take 'Teri' to their hearts." F. B. Sloan

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 N 11 '40 80w

"The book's charm lies in its simple, pleasing style and the friendliness and lovableness portrayed in the characters of the two boys. Format is most attractive, the illustrations in color and black-and-white by Armstrong Sperry. For eight to eleven years." Florence O'Gara

+ Library J 65:814 O 1 '40 130w

Reviewed by R. A. Hill

Library J 65:848 O 15 '40 20w

"In the beginning of the book the writing seems somewhat self-conscious and wordy, but the author's style steadily improves, and the climax of the tale is vivid and dramatic. Moreover, as the story proceeds Teri Taro and his friend Tutu emerge as very real and human small boys who will strike a sympathetic chord in readers from 8 to 12. Armstrong Sperry's spirited and authentic pictures add atmosphere and reality to the tale." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p10 S 15 '40 250w

STONG, PHILIP DUFFIELD. Hawkeyes; a biography of the state of Iowa. (Sovereign states ser) 300p map $3 Dodd

917.77 Iowa (W) 40-14626

A native Iowan writes this character sketch of his state with humor, knowledge, admiration, and a great amount of pride. He deals with the country store, native art and literature, joining lodges and sororities, Iowa justice, schools and churches, picnics and county fairs, the joys of country living and eating, and the people who make these institutions and customs.

"This first in the proposed series of forty-eight 'biographies' of the States sets a very high mark for the authors of the remaining forty-seven volumes to shoot for, however distinguished they may be. With all the vigor, cynicism, affection, and understanding which marked State Fair, Phil Stong has told the story of his native land in a way to make totalitarian rulers blench and anæmic builders of Utopias-on-paper lay down their quill pens."

+ Atlantic O '40 180w

Booklist 37:33 O 1 '40

"This first volume in a series of projected biographies of our several states sets a standard of surpassing excellence. . . Mr. Stong frequently exaggerates the case for and against his people; but his criticisms, in the main, are sound and generously offered, and his delight in living in Iowa is positively dithyrambic." Thomas Craven

+ Books p5 Ag 18 '40 1000w

Reviewed by Lewis Gannett
Boston Transcript p11 S 25 '40 110w

Reviewed by Francis Downing
Commonweal 32:434 S 13 '40 550w

Reviewed by Paul Engle
N Y Times p5 S 1 '40 1800w

"Mr. Stong dispenses little information but draws a lusty, humorous, unsentimental portrait of the folkways of a state rich in murals as well as corn. Sets a high mark for the series to maintain."

+ New Yorker 16:67 Ag 24 '40 50w

"Mr. Stong's true story [is] told illuminatingly and unsentimentally, with flashes of humor and philosophic insight. The general poise and hard-headedness of the Iowa farmer impress the writer and he argues for them valiantly. . . Mr. Stong does not linger long over Iowa's geography, its long, cold winters and short, hot summers, its beauty and general topography. His primary concern is, properly enough, with the essentially agricultural character of the state. He treats the cities flippantly and superficially, on the whole, and his understanding presentation of farmers and farm life in the specific community is the book's most vital contribution." Rose Henderson

+ Sat R of Lit 22:10 Ag 24 '40 700w

"Mr Stong has done a good piece of reporting, but in some cases has been too severe with his state's foibles, as well as too indignant about some persons he doesn't like. . . 'Hawkeyes' brilliantly starts off the 'Sovereign States' series."

+ — Springf'd Republican p6 S 3 '40 800w

Wis Lib Bul 36:136 O '40

STONG, PHILIP DUFFIELD. If school keeps; with decorations by F. E. Warren. 267p $2.75 Stokes

B or 92 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. Education—U.S.

(W) 40-27668

History of the author's school years from first grade, in the Keosauqua, Iowa, public schools, thru high school and college, including his own teaching days in Minnesota.

Booklist 37:34 O 1 '40

"The book has abounding vitality. It is very honest and very funny; it is also very prejudiced. You may not agree at all with what Mr. Stong thinks about 'The Cloister and the Hearth,' (a mediocre historical romance!) or Shakespeare or the Bible. But you can never say that he didn't tell you his opinion frankly." Rosemary Benét

+ — Books p6 S 22 '40 750w

"This is a lively book on teaching, to add to that meager section in the vocational guidance list." F. A. Boyle

+ Library J 65:808 O 1 '40 140w

Reviewed by A. L. Seeling
N Y Times p4 O 6 '40 400w

New Yorker 16:83 S 21 '40 40w

STORM, HANS OTTO. Count ten. 623p $2.50 Longmans

(W) 40-32626

"'Count Ten' is the command given Eric Marsden, parachuting to safety as his father falls to death. The scene is California before the first World War; the time extends into the depression. Eric, adventurer-philosopher, lives fully and freely, parachuting from one livelihood to another, jailed as conscientious objector, caught in labor trouble, attracted to strange women. Much of the story is of the sea. Then prosperity, happiness, misfortune again, and final security." Library J

"Sometimes the matter-of-factness and the economy of style seem excessive, but for the rest 'Count Ten' is a scrupulously shaded record conspicuously without hypodermic injections of fanfare or excitement—a skeptical, ruthlessly inquiring, socially grown-up novel of contemporary American life." Milton Rugoff

+ Books p6 O 6 '40 1000w

Reviewed by D. G. Stevenson
Canadian Forum 20:290 D '40 270w

Reviewed by E. V. R. Wyatt
Commonweal 33:106 N 15 '40 290w

"Extravagant of incident but well-told and readable." Catherine Van Dyne

Library J 65:762 S 15 '40 100w

"Mr. Storm writes with easy familiarity about sailing, mining, electrical engineering, hospital work, airplane building and flying; and he packs into the book's 625 pages a rich cargo of mature, seasoned reflection, skilfully imbedded in an absorbing narrative. . . 'Count Ten' is forceful and stimulating, but definitely not for the slothful reader." L. B. Salomon

+ Nation 151:306 O 5 '40 550w

"To the surprise of Mr. Storm's readers, this book has turned out to be very much inferior to the ones that have gone before and to show what seems internal evidence of having been written earlier than they. 'Count Ten' sounds like one of those autobiographical attempts at fiction that young men begin in college and that they carry around in old trunks for years. . . The characters encountered by the hero of 'Count Ten' have a goofy unreality which lets us down in an embarrassing way after the pretty well observed social types of Mr. Storm's other novels; and the book is full of violent incidents which occur, as it were, offstage." Edmund Wilson

— New Repub 103:784 D 9 '40 1000w

"It is not only safe, it is necessary now to say that Hans Otto Storm has become one of our first-rank writers. His new novel, 'Count Ten,' is one of the finest books of fiction produced in America for more than a decade. . . It has been a long time since a writer of the caliber of Hans Otto Storm has appeared on the American scene. He has absolute individuality of style, a searing wit and a vital sense of humor. His characters are fully fleshed; his evocations of place, although built up impressionistically, come alive distinctly." W. J. Gold

+ N Y Times p1 O 6 '40 1250w

"A formless but extremely intelligent development novel, probably autobiographical. . . Mr. Storm's continuous play of irony and his swift, clean use of the American language lift the book above others of its class. This is certainly one of the more significant novels of the season."

+ New Yorker 16:78 O 5 '40 90w

"If Mr. Storm has not actually produced the big work that some critics have foretold for him he has, at any rate, given further evidence that it is to come, and restated the terms of his own talents. . . There are all the materials for that rich, promised book here: ideas, people, scenes, crises, and a writer of rare integrity. The failure is a matter of technics, of form and arrangement, pruning, choice. Incidents great and small seem too often to be equally accented. In the appearance and disappearance of many characters, in the telescoping of events, the book's direction is lost. It comes down to this, that the mind of Eric is the only reality in the book, which is rather a miscalculation in a book so patently meant to study environment." N. L. Rothman

+ — Sat R of Lit 22:15 O 12 '40 360w

"Throughout the book Eric is a flesh-and-blood character. His doubts, his wanderings, his failures and successes have a rare quality of humanness about them—rare, that is, in fiction. Mr Storm has a strong and steady style, which extracts the most from every situation and does not fall down when it attacks the inner psychology of the man. Mr Storm does not become involved in Freudian concepts, but his psychological insight is none-the-less comprehensive. And the book has its sociological import as well, not concealed and not accentuated, but treated with every-day casualness."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e O 6 '40 550w

STORY, MARGARET (MCELROY-FROST) (MRS CHESTER B. STORY). Individuality and clothes; the blue book of personal attire; rev. by Catharine Oglesby; il. by Hjördis Ethel Anderson. 428p $3.50 Funk

646 Clothing and dress. Beauty, Personal (W) 40-27460

Revised edition of a book which appeared ten years ago (Book Review Digest, 1930). "Some of the chapters have been entirely rewritten, and have been brought into line with current styles. All the half-tone illustrations are new. [A new feature is] advice on beauty essentials, health rules, diet, exercises, and the wise and proper use of cosmetics according to present-day standards of fashion. The central theme of the new book, as of its predecessor, is Individuality of Style—skill in the selection of clothes that will best express the wearer's own individual self through the magic of Style." (Publisher's note) Index.

Booklist 36:367 My 15 '40

Boston Transcript p2 Ap 20 '40 50w

Reviewed by E. L. Tinker

N Y Times p27 Ap 28 '40 380w

STORY of the Bible, told by living writers of authority: Rev. H. Balmford [and others]. 4v artcraft binding $19.30; cl $15.30 1939 Waverley bk. co, London; distributed in the United States by Wm. H. Wise & co.

220.95 Bible. Whole—History of biblical events 40-35380

"The purpose of this set is 'to present a geographical and historical background to the places and events of the Bible.' It is planned 'to meet the needs of the man and woman in the pew, the lay-preacher and the Sunday school teacher, the Bible class leader.' The articles are signed by the 65 contributors, all British scholars or clergymen of recognized standing, representing many Protestant faiths. . . The point of view of the contributors is conservative, but not narrowly dogmatic. To each book of the Bible taken in regular order, three chapters are devoted. In the first, a clergyman tells the story of the book. The next is concerned with the date, authorship and circumstances in which the book was written. Conflicting interpretations, such as the identification of the Pharaoh of the oppression, are stated fairly. With these comments is an interpretation of the book's religious message. The third of the chapters about each book is an account of its historical, geographical, social, economic and political background." Subscription Bks Bul

"The scope of the work is both broad and deep. No attempt is made to interpret the scriptural text in the light of the 'higher criticism.' The authors have for the most part kept away from the possibility of strife over denominational teachings, and the presentation is always from the orthodox standpoint, yet often with a liberal interpretation of doctrine. . . It may be said with certainty that the reader of these volumes will gain much knowledge of the background of the Bible and a deepened insight into its precious messages." A. F. Gilmore

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 O 14 '39 750w

"The volumes are paged continuously, with an excellent index to the set, in the fourth volume, giving pronunciation of difficult words. The books are well bound, with adequate margins. The type is clear and the maps and pictures have informative captions. The set is interesting to all readers who have a background of Bible knowledge and is useful for reference work with laymen, students of the Bible, ministers and teachers of Sunday school classes. It is recommended for home or public libraries."

+ Subscription Bks Bul 11:8 Ja '40 650w

STORY parade [silver book]; a collection of modern stories for boys and girls by noted authors, Hildegarde Hawthorne [and others]; introd. by Eloise Ramsey; il. by Alexander Key [and others]. 379p $1.75 Winston

40-34869

Partial contents: Spike to the rescue, by Jack O'Brien; Lovina's apple pie, by Alice Dalgliesh; Song of the ship's cat, by Elizabeth Coatsworth; Wind's a-blowing, by May Justus; Exploring bird creek, by Cornelia Meigs; Indian games and sports, by Jacqueline Overton; The fire fighter, by H. B. Lent; Light ahead, by Nora Burglon; Castaway bears, by Henry Beston; Beethoven, master of the symphony, by R. M. Jones; Gunshot messenger, by Hildegarde Hawthorne; Baboushka, by Katharine Gibson. Classified index.

"By this time these excellent anthologies should have established themselves in the affection of parents providing general family reading for children under ten; all it is necessary to say is that this one is quite up to standard and in spots over it." M. L. Becker

+ Books p6 Ja 5 '41 120w

"The book provides much reading pleasure for boys and girls eight to twelve. The illustrations are in black and white, the work of such artists as Flavia Gag, Kurt Wiese, Henry Pitz, and others." J. E. Stormdahl

+ Library J 66:85 Ja 15 '41 150w

STOUT, REX. Over my dead body. 293p $2 Farrar

40-2200

Detective story.

"An opus that no fan in his senses will overlook among the new thrillers—it has everything a Nero Wolfe story should have. . . This is a major Stout, with all the trimmings." Will Cuppy

+ Books p13 Ja 7 '40 200w

"There is something about Archie Goodwin that would make the dullest book lively. He alone carried me through the rather slow beginning of 'Over My Dead Body.' After the first few chapters, however, the story picked up interest and speed and the rest was so fascinating that I couldn't read it fast enough." Marian Wiggin

+ — Boston Transcript p2 Ja 13 '40 70w

Reviewed by E. R. Punshon

Manchester Guardian p7 D 10 '40 110w

STOUT, REX—Continued
Reviewed by Ralph Partridge
New Statesman & Nation 20:390 O 19 '40 180w

"The book is full of surprises for everybody concerned, including not only the reader but also the police, Archie and even Nero Wolfe himself. Read one chapter of this book and you will need no urging to go on with it." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p17 Ja 7 '40 200w

"Loosely constructed story involving two pretty Montenegrin ladies who might or might not be up to a little spying. Mr. Wolfe's Watson, Archie Goodwin, brightens the corner where he is most of the time."
New Yorker 15:64 Ja 6 '40 50w

"Stooge Archie Goodwin at funniest, and two murders plus transplanted Balkan intrigue can't get him—or his boss—down. Swell."
+ Sat R of Lit 21:19 Ja 6 '40 50w

Reviewed by Nicholas Blake
Spec 165:424 O 25 '40 140w
Time 35:68 F 5 '40 50w

STOUT, REX. Where there's a will. 272p $2 Farrar 40-9866

Detective story.

"Rex Stout goes right to the head of the class again with a new Nero Wolfe story which we can only describe as superb. It is Stout at his best, Nero Wolfe at his peak and mystery in a Grade A package." Will Cuppy
+ Books p10 Je 9 '40 270w

"Not only is Archie Goodwin's humor tops, but the Hawthorne sisters and their friends and relatives give an added verve to Wolfe's usually serene way of life." Marian Wiggin
+ Boston Transcript p5 Je 8 '40 90w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p16 Je 16 '40 230w

"Nice for the warm days."
+ New Yorker 16:116 Je 15 '40 50w

"Good as ever."
+ Sat R of Lit 22:20 Je 15 '40 40w
Time 36:72 Jl 1 '40 40w

STOW, HESTER HARRINGTON. Greek athletics and festivals in the fifth century. (Museum extension publications. Reconstructing the past; illustrative set) 29p 40pl map pa in portfolio $5; to subs $4 Boston museum of fine arts

938 Greece—Social life and customs. Athletics—Pictorial works. Festivals—Greece—Pictorial works

"This is a portfolio, attractively presented, containing a series of large reproductions of Greek art in the Classical period, and a [24] page text on the history and significance of athletic festivals. The Museum of Fine Arts plans a hundred illustrative sets, to be published in uniform size and prepared by a specialist in each field of knowledge. The project is designed to supply good illustrative material for teachers in secondary schools or colleges, and will cover most aspects of cultural history, from prehistoric man of the Stone Age to World Unity." Social Studies

Booklist 36:321 Ap 15 '40

"The text, like the plates, takes in a great deal of territory and is distinctly intended for laymen. Flaws may be found in text and captions, but they are well written and should be satisfactory for their purpose. The typography is not commonplace." F. P. Johnson
+ — Class Philol 35:453 O '40 230w

"This seems to us the ideal aid for integrating art and history, and will be an invaluable aid in secondary schools, colleges, art schools, or professional studios."
+ School Arts 39:8a Je '40 100w

"Both artistically and historically, these plates are excellent, depicting the five events of the Pentathlon, by vase paintings, bas-relief, and sculpture in the round." B. C. H.
+ Social Studies 31:92 F '40 190w

STRACHEY, AMY (SIMPSON) (MRS EVELYN JOHN ST LOE STRACHEY). Borrowed children; a popular account of some evacuation problems and their remedies; with a foreword by Amabel Williams-Ellis. 149p 75c Commonwealth fund [2s 6d; pa 1s 6d Murray, J]

649.1 Children—Management. European war, 1939—Evacuation, Civilian 40-33516

"This little book is concerned entirely with the problems of evacuated children of school age. It is not intended for the trained psychologists, the trained educationalist, or the practised social reformer. Its intention is to give intelligent, untrained people, deeply concerned with the welfare of the Nation's children, a picture intimate in its detail of the first months of evacuation and of the unforeseen problems which immediately arose." Introd.

Books p16 D 8 '40 100w
Christian Century 57:1314 O 23 '40 40w

"Perhaps the chief value of the work lies in its indication of the vastness of the problem and the work that will have to be done if a satisfactory solution to a major social upheaval it to be found." J. R.
Christian Science Monitor p12 N 23 '40 250w
J Home Econ 33:43 Ja '41 130w

"Let anyone who is still tempted to talk about 'the failure of evacuation' read Mrs. St. Loe Strachey's little book, Borrowed Children. In the first three chapters, from the unedited source of foster-mothers themselves, lies their answer. Here also is to be found the answer to some of the real, as opposed to many of the exaggerated, stories of evacuees' behaviour problems. By its realism and sympathy Mrs. Strachey's book should be most useful and most encouraging to teachers and foster-parents, and to all caring for evacuated children." Peggy Jay
+ New Statesman & Nation 20:240 S 7 '40 230w
School & Society 52:344 O 12 '40 10w

"The first part is perhaps a little smug and sentimental, but it is difficult to write about children without letting this note creep in. The book takes on a more interesting note when Dr. Moodie begins to appear in its pages." Gwen St Aubyn
Spec 165:66 Jl 19 '40 480w

"The soundness of this little book rests to a large extent on the author's equal identification with child and hostess. At no time does she let it be felt that a cloud of angels settled over the quiet villages of rural England. On the other hand, she reduces to the simple, reasonable inevitabilities of anxiety and strangeness, the behavior that was so baffling to hostesses who were doing all in their power to make the children happy. . . To emotional soundness Mrs. Strachey adds searching thoroughness in surveying the problems of evacuation, describing the mental health facilities that are and should be available, and analyzing alternatives to the billet plan." M. D. Gutman
+ Survey 77:27 Ja '41 400w

"Reading [this] human account by Mrs. Strachey, one can only feel wonder that a scheme so hurriedly put into action under conditions of severe urgency should have worked so well. . . This book does much to counteract the rather sensational Press reports made last autumn about the manners, psychological peculiarities and physical condition of evacuated children."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p414 Ag 24 '40 300w

STRACHEY (strā'chee)

STRACHEY, EVELYN JOHN ST LOE. A programme for progress. 303p $3 Random house [7s 6d Gollancz]

330.9 Economic policy. Socialism (W) 40-27587

"The thesis of [this] book is that it lies within the power of all progressive governments to raise the standard of life among their people. How this desirable end can be achieved is developed by means, first, of an analysis of our present economic system and an examination of the crucial problems it has created. War, unemployment, insecurity, monopoly, the stagnation of markets, the failures of production and the fluctuations of purchasing power are considered realistically. As a scientific economic policy for a period of transition, Mr. Strachey advocates a modification of capitalism in the direction of the widest possible expansionism." (Publisher's note) Index.

Booklist 36:425 Jl 15 '40

Reviewed by Sidney Hook

Books p5 Jl 21 '40 1400w

Reviewed by Isabel Paterson

Boston Transcript p11 Jl 17 '40 500w

Reviewed by R. H. Phelps

Boston Transcript p1 Jl 27 '40 950w

"Mr. Strachey has unquestionably made an able diagnosis of the world's economic situation. A few years ago it would have been thought highly revolutionary. Since nothing could be more revolutionary than Europe's present condition, and economists are searching far afield for the new order—even the Archbishop of York is campaigning for some form of profit control—the work must be taken seriously and may well contribute some helpful ideas in the great task of reconstruction." H. J. S.

+ Christian Science Monitor p18 S 13 '40 700w

"Mr. Strachey presents his arguments in precise and orderly form, in a style clear-cut and forceful." L. R. Etzkorn

+ Library J 65:591 Jl '40 150w

Reviewed by L. B. Bloch

Living Age 358:585 Ag '40 1000w

Reviewed by J. R. Hicks

Manchester Guardian p3 Ap 2 '40 600w

Reviewed by Lewis Corey

Nation 151:116 Ag 10 '40 1000w

Reviewed by Granville Hicks

New Repub 103:698 N 18 '40 850w

"Mr. Strachey is as firmly Marxist as ever; his deductions, admirably argued and supported by close economic analysis, have changed. He examines the dilemmas of capitalism since the last war and the problems it still has to face, and he condemns the Nazi solution of a slave and military economy. . . Now that Mr. Strachey has discovered what British as opposed to Russian Socialism might be, perhaps he will add to the great service he has rendered in this book by actively helping to create a practical British Socialist movement here, which we shall need during the war, and after it, whether it ends in victory, defeat or stalemate." Kingsley Martin

New Statesman & Nation 19:436 Mr 30 '40 850w

New Yorker 16:64 Jl 20 '40 60w

"I regard this as Mr. Strachey's best book since 'The Coming Struggle for Power.' It is not surprising that it has been severely criticized by the English communists. For it shifts the basis of discussion not only of Marxian economics but of progressive political action. I have two essential criticisms of this. One is that while Mr. Strachey has developed as an economist, he has not equally developed as a political realist. . . My second criticism is that in his analysis of Nazism, as also in his analysis of progressive democracy, Mr. Strachey is not enough of a psychologist; he omits therefore the factors of social allegiances and hierarchical authority which have come recently to cut across economic life." Max Lerner

+ — Sat R of Lit 22:6 Ag 3 '40 1500w

Reviewed by Honor Croome

Spec 164:256 F 23 '40 650w

Time 36:80 Jl 22 '40 1000w

"Mr. Strachey provides a clear and forcible exposition of the idea of expansionism and of the attempt to apply it in America. Many will disagree both with his principles and with his practical proposals. But what he writes is well worth consideration; and it is presented in a form which lends itself readily to discussion."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p60 F 3 '40 470w

STRANGE, JOHN STEPHEN, pseud. See Tillett, D. S.

STRANGE, MICHAEL, pseud. (MRS BLANCHE MARIE LOUISE [OELRICHS] TWEED). Who tells me true. 396p il $3.75 Scribner

B or 92 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. (W) 40-8237

The autobiography of Michael Strange, born Blanche Louise Marie Oelrichs, whose second husband was John Barrymore. She begins with an account of her mother's aristocratic Austrian family, tells of her childhood days in Newport, her youthful love affairs, and her three marriages. Thru the whole book are threaded stories of the great and near-great whom she has numbered among her friends.

"The book as a whole is extremely successful in giving a portrait of the poet as she sees herself. That it becomes a palimpsest which portrays her in ways not intended is part of its charm." Rose Feld

+ Books p4 My 5 '40 1300w

Reviewed by Lewis Gannett

Boston Transcript p1 My 9 '40 500w

Reviewed by J. K. Hutchens

Boston Transcript p2 Je 22 '40 650w

Cleveland Open Shelf p11 My '40

"The special triumph of the book is its style. Most of the people are superficial. The style is carefully superficial to match. Its chronology skips. It gives the impression of extreme frankness, still it never panders to public curiosity. . . The book will have wide appeal." M. N. Baker

Library J 65:256 Mr 15 '40 200w

"The author . . . writes in a style that is intensely sincere, takes itself very seriously, and never uses one syllable when four can be crowded in."

New Repub 102:769 Je 3 '40 60w

"'Readable' is quite specifically the word for this book. It may even hold the attention of the indifferent and critical. It has the faults one would expect, but it has also an interest which is not wholly casual. Its point of view is egoistic; its writing is pretentious and involved, more diligent in effort than objectively successful; its author's mind is apparently allergic to simplicity. Yet sincerity the book does possess." Katherine Woods

+ — N Y Times p9 My 12 '40 1400w

Springf'd Republican p7e Je 2 '40 1150w

Wis Lib Bul 36:126 Jl '40

STRASSER, OTTO. Hitler and I; tr. by Gwenda David and Eric Mosbacher. 249p $2.50 Houghton [8s 6d Cape, J]

B or 92 Germany—Nazi movement. Hitler, Adolf (W) 40-31076

Described as Hitler's Enemy No I, Otto Strasser was at one time an associate of Hitler, later broke with him, and for years has been a leader of the secret forces in Germany working against Der Führer. This book combines a character sketch of Hitler, an account of the early development of the Nazis, and stories of Strasser's own adventures. Index.

STRASSER (shträs'ĕr)

STRASSER, OTTO—Continued

Atlantic O '40 250w
Booklist 37:66 O 15 '40
Reviewed by Walter Millis
Books p6 Ag 25 '40 1050w
Reviewed by Lewis Gannett
Boston Transcript p11 Ag 21 '40 600w

" 'Hitler and I' is a scrappy book, part autobiography, part accusation, part self-defense; it seems honest, but it does not qualify to rank with the two or three basically important works on Nazism by Konrad Heiden and Hermann Rauschning." R. H. Phelps
Boston Transcript p1 Ag 24 '40 600w
Cleveland Open Shelf p13 Jl '40
Reviewed by C. O. Cleveland
Commonweal 32:414 S 6 '40 600w

"The book is passionately interesting—alive. It is written with total sincerity, and with no concern for 'literary art.' For the first time, the extraordinary social ferment in which Nazism was born becomes clear." Genevieve Tabouis
+ Current Hist & Forum 52:4 O 22 '40 480w

"Though Strasser's story has already been told in Douglas Reed's Nemesis, this personal account has sufficient vitality and interest of its own to be recommended for library purchase." G. W. Hill
+ Library J 65:652 Ag '40 200w
Living Age 359:91 S '40 60w
Manchester Guardian p7 Jl 23 '40 70w

"There is enough excitement in Otto Strasser's 'Hitler and I.' The book reads almost like pulp fiction, partly because it deals with Hitler, partly because its level is not much above Hitler." Franz Hoellering
— Nation 151:224 S 14 '40 190w
Reviewed by Paul Wohl
New Repub 103:358 S 9 '40 240w

"There is little evidence in this book that Strasser cares for individual liberty or for the democratic system. It is hardly conceivable that the British would seek to do business with this quasi-Nazi as leader of Germany if they win this war and reshape Europe on democratic lines. It is still less conceivable that a liberated German people would ever choose a post-war leader who had not lived among them and shared their present trials." Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
— N Y Times p4 S 8 '40 1050w
New Yorker 16:67 Ag 24 '40 20w

"Much in his book remains mere outline, and occasionally there are even misinterpretations. It is worth reading because its highly personal and colorful style throws much light on the beginnings of National Socialism." Heinz Pol
— + Sat R of Lit 22:18 S 7 '40 600w
Social Studies 31:335 N '40 20w
Reviewed by E. M. Carroll
Social Studies 31:374 D '40 350w
Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 25 '40 700w

"Readers may wish that the book contained less about Author Strasser, more about the activities of his Black Front, more about the political orgies of the Nazi inner circle, less about their personal debauches."
Time 36:63 Ag 26 '40 380w

"The book has value chiefly because it is Strasser's own record. Not only is it a well-written and engrossing narrative; it is a revealing document of the man, and the character of the man counts for much. . . Yet one may feel some doubts about his practical judgment and his political wisdom. . . Doubts about Strasser's powers of realizing his plans do not extend to the plans themselves."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p370 Ag 3 '40 600w

STRATTON, CLARENCE. Handbook of English. (Whittlesey house publication) 352p $2.75 McGraw

428.3 English language—Idioms (W) 40-27185

Guide to the correct usage of English, arranged in dictionary form, and written from the American viewpoint. The author is lecturer in English, Western Reserve university, and directing supervisor of English in Cleveland high schools.

Booklist 36:277 Mr 15 '40
Boston Transcript p1 Mr 2 '40

"This book is at its best when it differentiates between words of similar sound or meaning and when it states a clear rule of grammar or usage."
N Y Times p18 F 4 '40 100w

STRATTON, ELENORE. The wild pasture; pictures by Weda Yap. [32p] $1.50 Harper 40-5389

Picture-story book for the very young, about a little girl who had been very bad, and felt she had to run away. She ran as far as a wild pasture, where she spent a night all alone. The next day, after a few quiet adventures, she decided that home was the best place for her.

"I do not know what a city child would make of this, or if, indeed, any child will get, at so early a stage of its development, all the gentle beauty of the experience. But any one who has spent the day quite alone in an upland pasture and there has felt the strain of life loosen under its warm and living breath will know the story is true." M. L. Becker
+ Books p14 My 5 '40 210w

"This, I think, is a book which adults will enjoy almost more than children, for there is too little incident to hold the attention of the robust-minded child, but for the poetic imaginative reader of any age here is recaptured with crystalline simplicity the essence of brief despair, escape and reconciliation; and here too is the loveliness of a wild place and, like a refrain, the names of things which country children remember with enchantment all the rest of their lives." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p10 My 12 '40 260w
Wis Lib Bul 36:172 D '40

STRAYER, PAUL JOHNSTON. The taxation of small incomes; social, revenue, and administrative aspects. 210p il $3 Ronald

336.24 Income tax—U.S. 39-31886

"Paul J. Strayer has presented much-needed information on the social, revenue, and administrative aspects of the problem of extending income taxes to the lower brackets. Estimates of yields resulting from various possible changes in exemptions are given, and the limitations of such estimates are noted. The ideal and actual distribution of tax burdens is discussed, and the case for and against tax consciousness. Finally, the administrative problems arising from the taxation of small incomes are presented, with particular consideration of the relation of income taxation to social security taxation, and an account of administrative procedures used in taxing small incomes in Great Britain, Australia, and Germany." Am Pol Sci R

Reviewed by A. G. Buehler
Am Econ R 30:196 Mr '40 370w

"Considering the book as a whole, the presentation of material is exceptionally clear and objective, and it is an important and timely contribution to the literature of income taxation." Mabel Newcomer
+ Am Pol Sci R 34:179 F '40 120w

"The book is written in an unusually clear style and constitutes a valuable contribution to the discussion of an important public issue in American taxation." Paul Studenski

+ Ann Am Acad 208:210 Mr '40 600w

"Dr. Strayer's book exhibits the taxonomic skill characteristic of sound scholarship. It is a thorough and objective study of the problems raised by current proposals to reduce income tax exemptions. . . So much valuable light is thrown upon each facet of the matter, that one could wish to see a copy of this book in the hands of every intelligent student of public affairs, and particularly in the hands of some national leaders who have rushed impetuously into print." E. N. Cahn

+ Columbia Law R 40:361 F '40 950w

"Although one may find oneself at variance with the recommendations implicit in The Taxation of Small Incomes, Dr. Strayer has rendered an exceedingly useful service in stating the relevant issues clearly and in arranging whatever pertinent evidence is available at this time. As he proceeds with his argument, he quite incidentally removes a goodly bit of preconceptional debris which obstructs the thinking of many low-exemption income tax advocates." P. H. Wueller

+ — Harvard Business R 19:249 winter '41 550w

Harvard Law R 53:1074 Ap '40 300w

"Some shortcomings were observed in the book, but they are for the most part minor. The quantitative data are taken almost entirely from previously published sources. It is not shown how present exemption levels compare with the costs of maintaining various standards of living as estimated by governmental and private agencies. . . In its presentation of the major facts, experience and arguments relating to the imposition of taxes on small incomes, the book throws a great deal of light on the desirability and feasibility of such taxation." Roy Blough

+ — Yale Law J 49:1148 Ap '40 700w

STREATFEILD, NOEL. The secret of the lodge; il. by Richard Floethe. 233p $2 Random house

(W) 40-13522

Mystery story for young readers.

"The story pleases children by the reliance it places on children's quick wits and bravery, but it does not overestimate either; children really are quick and brave. Ten-year-old excitement in such English and such humor is worth noting." M. L. Becker

+ Books p30 N 10 '40 210w

Reviewed by R. A. Hill

Library J 65:851 O 15 '40 30w

Reviewed by E. W. Steele

New Repub 103:845 D 16 '40 50w

"Like all Miss Streatfeild's characters, these are real boys and girls, terse-spoken, given to family wranglings, but fiercely loyal, and much of the interest depends upon their individual reactions to crisis. . . This is an intelligent and timely mystery-adventure story, which avoids the cheaply sensational in an entirely plausible manner."

+ N Y Times p9 Ag 4 '40 400w

"Good exciting story." F. G. Wells

+ Sat R of Lit 23:6 N 16 '40 40w

STRECKER, EDWARD ADAM. Beyond the clinical frontiers; a psychiatrist views crowd behavior. 210p $2 Norton

301.15 Social psychology. Psychology, Pathological. Mental hygiene 40-27121

An examination of the resemblances between the behavior of crowds—mobs, fanatic sects, followers of leaders of totalitarian states—and the behavior of individual patients in the psychiatric wards of our hospitals. The author is professor of psychiatry in the undergraduate and graduate schools of medicine, in the University of Pennsylvania. Bibliography.

Reviewed by W. T. Root

Am J Psychol 53:636 O '40 360w

"We agree that this book needs to be read, and can be read, with advantage, by many classes of society. It is not easy reading, not a book to be taken up casually in a spare moment. It must be read, marked, learned, and inwardly digested to attain its full value." M. P. Ravenel

+ Am J Pub Health 30:1252 O '40 950w

Booklist 36:231 F 15 '40

Reviewed by V. P. Williams, M.D.

Boston Transcript p11 F 29 '40 250w

Reviewed by L. B. Bloch

Living Age 358:92 Mr '40 1100w

Reviewed by B. D. Lewin, M.D.

Sat R of Lit 21:16 Mr 23 '40 350w

Scientific Bk Club R 11:4 F '40 210w

Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 3 '40 1500w

Reviewed by Adolf Meyer

Survey G 29:308 My '40 430w

STREET, CECIL JOHN CHARLES (JOHN RHODE, pseud). Death on the boat train. 282p $2 Dodd 40-2891

Detective story.

Booklist 36:284 Mr 15 '40

"You'll hardly find better sleuthing, or more of it for your money, than in this criminous tale." Will Cuppy

+ Books p13 Ja 28 '40 180w

"Highly enjoyable, in spite of a fairly transparent plot." Marian Wiggin

+ Boston Transcript p3 F 3 '40 40w

Reviewed by E. R. Punshon

Manchester Guardian p7 Ap 29 '40 110w

Reviewed by Ralph Partridge

New Statesman & Nation 19:567 Ap 27 '40 260w

"This is more like the early Priestley stories and much better than most of the recent ones." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p22 Ja 28 '40 120w

"Good formula job."

+ Sat R of Lit 21:18 Ja 27 '40 40w

Springf'd Republican p7e My 26 '40 160w

"Mr. John Rhode never writes a bad detective story and his latest effort, 'Death on the Boat-Train,' is as ingenious as ever."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p185 Ap 13 '40 180w

STREET, CECIL JOHN CHARLES (JOHN RHODE, pseud). In the face of the verdict. 276p $2 Dodd

(W)

Detective story.

Booklist 37:176 Ja 1 '41

"Mr. Rhode provides a multitude of minute details in this slow but sure number. Thing to do is to stick to directions like grim death and try for a solution. In our opinion, Dr. Priestley can do no wrong, but his working material in this story is no more than average." Will Cuppy

+ — Books p19 O 13 '40 160w

"'In the Face of the Verdict' is far more satisfactory than some of the recent Priestley stories have been." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p29 N 17 '40 160w

"Fun—but fatiguing."

+ — Sat R of Lit 23:17 O 26 '40 40w

Time 36:84 N 4 '40 40w

STREET, CECIL JOHN CHARLES (JOHN RHODE, pseud), ed. Line-up; introd. by A. A. Milne. 378p $2.50 Dodd
(W) 40-13737

Collection of short detective stories by such English writers as: A. A. Milne, E. C. Bentley, J. D. Carr, Agatha Christie, G. D. H. and M. Cole, J. J. Connington, Carter Dickson, R. A. Freeman, Dorothy Sayers, Hugh Walpole, and others.

Booklist 37:92 N 1 '40

"This collection is a honey." Will Cuppy
+ Books p9 Jl 28 '40 220w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin
Boston Transcript p2 Ag 3 '40 100w

"Not all of the contributions in this book are, strictly speaking, detective stories, and one of them, 'The Perfect Close,' by Hugh Walpole, is not even a crime story, but all are excellent examples of the storytellers art, and at least half a dozen of them might with justice be called masterpieces." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p11 Ag 4 '40 430w

"Just about the best detective story omnibus you could ask for. And two of the tales are tops. Don't miss it!"
+ Sat R of Lit 22:21 Jl 27 '40 40w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 11 '40 240w

STREET, CECIL JOHN CHARLES (JOHN RHODE, pseud). Murder at Lilac cottage. 279p $2 Dodd 40-10305

Detective story.

"Detecting is the main thing here, with Superintendent Hanslet and even Harold Merefield helping out—and Sir Julian Wantage also comes into the picture. Sufficiently fast, amusing and downright educational. You have a good chance to find the fiend yourself, too." Will Cuppy
+ Books p10 Je 23 '40 230w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin
Boston Transcript p2 Je 29 '40 90w

Reviewed by E. R. Punshon
Manchester Guardian p7 O 15 '40 220w

Reviewed by Ralph Partridge
New Statesman & Nation 20:337 O 5 '40 170w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p10 Je 30 '40 130w

"Detectives field-work more believable than scientist's armchair elucidation. Solution slightly over-mechanized but convincingly worked out. Average."
+ — Sat R of Lit 22:18 Je 29 '40 40w

Reviewed by Nicholas Blake
Spec 165:320 S 27 '40 120w

"Mr Rhode plays so fair with his readers that some mystery addicts may suspect the guilty person before the last chapter, but, even so, they will be well entertained with an ingenious yarn."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Je 30 '40 220w

Times [London] Lit Sup p440 S 7 '40 80w

STREET, ELWOOD. The public welfare administrator. 422p $4 McGraw

361.6 Charities. Charity organization. Social work
40-7947

"Based on years of experience by the author in public and private agencies, the material in this book deals with the things that the administrator 'ought to know to do his job well, and it describes that job in terms of its responsibilities, opportunities, extent, and limitations.' Following a brief discussion of the development of public welfare administration, problems of organization, personnel procedure, records, and local administration are among those considered in the 23 chapters, while an appendix gives suggestions for using the book as teaching material together with a helpful bibliography. Many illustrations of typical forms are given." (Am J Pub Health) Chapter bibliographies. Index.

"This is not only a useful manual or text for administrators of social work, staff members of organizations, teachers and students of social work, but it should be found a practical reference book for public health administrators in view of the interrelationships of health and welfare work." I. V. Hiscock
+ Am J Pub Health 31:95 Ja '41 200w

"While much interesting concrete material is offered in illustration of the various problems discussed, concreteness is diffused by efforts to keep the discussion general enough to cover a wide range of situations. Consequently the usefulness of the treatment for the administrator is diminished. . . If the welfare administrator has reached his position without previous training in the theory of his functions, this book should be suggestive and helpful. A volume of this kind, however, will perform a disservice if it is used as a short-cut to a position which should be based on a far more adequate grounding in public administration." Harvey Pinney
— + Ann Am Acad 211:239 S '40 550w

STREET, JAMES HOWELL. Oh, promised land. 816p $3 Dial press
(W) 40-27414

A long historical novel dealing with the Old Southwest—from Georgia to the Mississippi—during the years from 1794 to 1817. The chief characters are brother and sister, Sam Dabney and Honoria, and the story follows their fortunes from the grave of their father and mother killed by Indians, to their final separation.

"The author has explored almost virgin ground and has illuminated what is, for most of us, a confused period in our history. His book will give pleasure and information to many. A grand tale and a contribution to that steadily growing library which is the epic of America. This is recommended reading."
+ Atlantic My '40 120w

Booklist 36:365 My 15 '40

"I wish Mr. Street had not plotted what is primarily a sweeping historical narrative; or, if he aimed at the more difficult goal of the dramatic novel in an historical setting—an aim I should honor—I wish the dramatic structure had smacked less of the conventional thriller. For he has the storyteller's gift and he's steeped in the color and drama of his background. The 816 pages are never dull." F. T. Marsh
+ — Books p5 Ap 21 '40 1450w

" 'Oh, Promised Land' is by no means a great novel, nor is it even the best novel that could have grown from such fertile material. But if you want a rousing historical romance that comes pretty close to being the final word on the saga of the Southern frontier, 'Oh, Promised Land' is your meat." G. K. Smart
+ Boston Transcript p1 Ap 27 '40 750w

Cleveland Open Shelf p12 My '40

Nation 150:579 My 4 '40 90w

New Repub 102:650 My 13 '40 80w

"Mr. Street's characters are not always true to fiction. . . Yet despite such flaws as these, Mr. Street makes no mistakes about the essentials of his characters. They come to his pages selfish and grasping, fearless and self-confident, ready for every chance, hungry for every opportunity that may double their fortunes, careless and disdainful of opportunities that will not pay out so well as that. Such people as these—and they leave their mark on every period at some place in the world—have rarely been so well presented." Robert Van Gelder

+ — N Y Times p4 Ap 28 '40 950w
New Yorker 16:93 Ap 20 '40 70w
Pratt p24 autumn '40
Time 35:92 Je 17 '40 70w

STRESEMANN, GUSTAV. Gustav Stresemann; his diaries, letters, and papers; ed. and tr. by Eric Sutton. 3v v 3 636p il $6.50 (25s) Macmillan

B or 92 Germany—Politics and government. Germany—Foreign relations (35-30709)

This final volume of the German statesman's papers covers the period from September, 1926 to October, 1929. For earlier volumes see Book Review Digest, 1935, 1936 and 1938. Glossary of names.

Reviewed by B. E. Nelson
Ann Am Acad 212:237 N '40 450w
Reviewed by Lindsay Rogers
Books p2 Ag 4 '40 1950w
Christian Science Monitor p16 Je 19 '40 600w
Foreign Affairs 19:258 O '40 30w

"This final volume, extending from the Thoiry interview to the Young Plan, is as voluminous and as well translated as its predecessors; but it contains little intimate, mostly speeches and documents which have already appeared in the press. Yet no man could maintain so consistent a tone in public and be insincere." A. J. P. Taylor
Manchester Guardian p3 Ap 5 '40 350w
Times [London] Lit Sup p191 Ap 20 '40 600w
Reviewed by Hans Staudinger
Yale R n s 30:207 autumn '40 1350w

STREYCKMANS, FELIX B. Today's young men. 128p il $1 Reilly & Lee

920 U.S.—Biography (W) 40-27415

Brief, informal biographical sketches of seventy young Americans—in their twenties and thirties—who have made themselves successes in business or politics.

Booklist 36:344 My 1 '40
Wis Lib Bul 36:68 Ap '40

STRINGER, ARTHUR JOHN ARBUTHNOTT. The ghost plane. 304p $2 Bobbs

40-13808

An adventure yarn scened in northern Canada. A ghostly plane which the Eskimos hear flying over their settlement is the center of a mystery, which is solved by Alan Slade, an airplane pilot, and Lynn Morlock, a trained nurse, who accompanies her doctor-father on his airplane trips to patients in this bleak territory.

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Books p11 Ag 18 '40 400w

"Mr. Stringer's Ghost Plane is obviously not a ghost to anyone but the author's characters. And as far as the mystery is concerned the book is a dud. But where it does create reader's interest is in the episodes. . . All his evil characters, who should clear up the mysteries satisfactorily, are accidently killed. . . Give us more wild life, Mr. Stringer!" E. M. Wedrow
— + Boston Transcript p1 Ag 24 '40 200w

"Arthur Stringer has staked out a fictional domain of his own in the Canadian Northwest, which he knows intimately, and he writes of it convincingly and entertainingly." G. W. H.
+ N Y Times p28 O 20 '40 250w

"Entertaining."
+ Sat R of Lit 22:18 Ag 17 '40 40w

STRONG, ANNA LOUISE (MRS JOEL SHUBIN). My native land. 299p $2.75 Viking

917.3 U.S.—Social conditions. U.S.—Economic conditions (W) 40-31240

In an ancient borrowed car the author toured America from Los Angeles to Seattle, from the west coast to Detroit, from Michigan to the deep South. Everywhere she went, she interviewed workers and jobless and here records the state of America today.

Booklist 37:84 N 1 '40

"The book's faults lie largely in the fact that Miss Strong is of the Stalinoid persuasion, so that every now and then she feels it incumbent on her to drop a hammer on her reader's toes or hook him in the left hip pocket with a sickle. . . But if the reader is awake to these slants, he will find here some excellent social reporting." W. L. White
+ — Books p5 S 15 '40 900w

"Miss Strong's volume of impressions doubtless has value as an antidote and a contrast to a certain type of uncritically procapitalist writing. But the picture of present-day America that emerges from it is not, to me, a realistic one. Too many of the outlines are blurred; too many important phases of American life are left unmentioned." W. H. Chamberlin
— + Christian Science Monitor p11 S 28 '40 440w

"The first half of the book may be compared to McWilliams' Factories in the Field, but Miss Strong is too full of prejudice against all Republicans and all capitalists to make a really convincing book. Roosevelt, the New Deal, and the Wagner Act can do no wrong. This bias destroys an otherwise excellent plea to save America for Americans." Katharine Shorey
+ — Library J 65:708 S 1 '40 180w
N Y Times p34 O 20 '40 480w
Reviewed by Benjamin Appel
Sat R of Lit 23:16 N 16 '40 550w
Reviewed by L. F. Boyle
Springf'd Republican p7e S 29 '40 900w

"As a picture of struggle against the wreckage, misery, and confusion of capitalism, Miss Strong has done a vivid job. She is personal enough to be always interesting, and she is an excellent reporter. One could only wish that so personal a book might add political candor, by which to season her judgments and her selection of material." R. N. Baldwin
+ — Survey G 30:42 Ja '41 500w

STRONG, DAVID FALES. Austria (October 1918-March 1919); transition from empire to republic. 329p $4 Columbia univ. press

943.6 Austria—History. Austria—Economic conditions 40-8370

"This is a narrative of the transition from imperial to republican régime in the Teutonic remnant of the former Dual Monarchy. The monograph includes an account of the efforts made to provide constitutional and economic foundations for the new Austria, establish a system of administration, fix the republic's frontiers, and develop normal diplomatic relations with other national remnants of the former Habsburg domains and with the victorious Entente powers. The most valuable pages of Dr. Strong's work are those devoted to economic problems." (Am Pol Sci R) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by A. J. Zurcher
Am Pol Sci R 34:391 Ap '40 350w
Cath World 151:508 Jl '40 270w
Foreign Affairs 18:756 Jl '40 10w

"An illuminating and scholarly study. . . The author, who was able to use valuable manuscript material from the Hoover War Library, has made a commendable effort to be fair on controversial issues."
+ New Repub 102:320 Mr 4 '40 40w

STRONG, PASCHAL NEILSON. Wings over Wonder island; il. by Monte Crews. 263p $2 Little

(W) 40-7022

Story of mystery and invention for older boys. On an island off the coast of Maine there is a more or less secret school for inventors. Their prize invention is a rocket engine which can navigate the stratosphere. The eventual crack-up of the engine, and the machinations of an ex-pupil of the school who becomes crazed, provide much of the action.

"Rightly speaking, I should not review this book; Capt. Strong may be putting something over on me; I was once an impassioned aero-design fan, but invention has long since passed me. Yet, as I kept on reading, unable to stop, I remember what boys of an earlier generation read in this field of fiction, and how it held them, and I knew this book had the same clutch. That is what matters. The talk is usually too stiff, the boys are inventors and not much else, but the world to which they take a boy is a world of marvels, some present and some still in the future—a man's world." M. L. Becker

Books p6 Ap 21 '40 550w

"Full of practical atom smashing machines and a number of other devices which will keep the scientific 14-year-old enthralled." Ruth Page

+ Boston Transcript p3 My 11 '40 60w

STRUTHER, JAN, pseud. See Maxtone Graham, J.

STUART, JESSE. Trees of heaven. 340p il $2.50 Dutton

(W) 40-9013

"When Anse Bushman rents ground to a shiftless squatter, Boliver Tussie, he offers an inhuman contract forbidding whiskey-making, fishing, frolics and immoral conduct, on pain of eviction and confiscation of crops. Boliver has to take it or leave the land; he takes it. Living up to it is another matter. The latter half of the novel develops a desperate contest between two types of land-lover —the owner and the enjoyer." Time

Booklist 37:13 S '40

"The story has discrepancies, as though Jesse Stuart had composed in the varying moods of brief fragments—poems, short stories, sketches—rather than on the sustained note of the novel. But in a larger sense all his work thus far is one long, beautifully sustained whole. The novel adds generous measure to what has gone before. And the whole is fresh and original." F. T. Marsh

+ Books p4 My 12 '40 850w

Reviewed by Lewis Gannett

Boston Transcript p11 My 16 '40 950w

Reviewed by John Holmes

Boston Transcript p2 Jl 6 '40 330w

Cleveland Open Shelf p12 My '40

"A good tale well worth reading." Margaret Winning

+ Library J 65:300 Ap 1 '40 180w

Nation 150:763 Je 22 '40 80w

"As a novel the book is monotonous and slow. Both the romance and the struggle are foreordained and forever in coming, and the writing itself is so shiftless and without variety or selection as to seem after a while a parody on The Mountain Boys. . . Except for the fine section of the lambing and some of the fights, you will have to put the book aside every fifty pages unless you are tone deaf. It is a tribute to Jesse Stuart's inclusive gusto, native talent and material, not to any careful thought or writing discipline, that you will more than likely pick it up again later for another fifty." Otis Ferguson

+ — New Repub 102:736 My 27 '40 550w

"'Trees of Heaven' stands up under its defects. It has freshness and vigor and human warmth; it has sensitivity and strength. Above all, it has that quality which marks all that Jesse Stuart has done, the quality that comes out of inner compulsion. This is not a labored book; what is written here wells up as freely as a hill-country spring." J. D. Adams

+ N Y Times p1 Je 2 '40 800w

"Mr. Stuart is by no means a born novelist, but there are some things he can do superbly. He can do you a country frolic, he can whip you up a first-rate picture of sorghum-making. . . I don't think he's much of a hand at characterization. The religious conversion of old Anse, for example, which redirects the plot so that the story ties up at the end into a happy love knot, is completely unconvincing. Also, Mr. Stuart's use throughout of the present tense happens to drive me crazy." Clifton Fadiman

+ — New Yorker 16:94 My 18 '40 500w

"This story of life in a corner of the Kentucky mountains is no more bound to Kentucky than the poetry of Burns is limited to Scotland. But individual Stuart's writing certainly is. It is an exciting book from beginning to end with the promise of more violent drama which never materializes and yet does not disappoint. All together, including his short stories and his autobiography this is the best prose work that Stuart has done. Not much better work is being done by anybody anywhere in America."

+ Sat R of Lit 22:6 Je 15 '40 430w

Springf'd Republican p7e Je 9 '40 550w

Time 35:94 My 13 '40 210w

Wis Lib Bul 36:112 Je '40

STULTS, NEWTON BAUMANN, and KUNTZ, GENEVIEVE MARIE. Learning to swim [il. by Roberta Paflin]. 65p $1 Holt

797.2 Swimming—Juvenile literature

40-27350

The adventures of two children, Dee and Denny, who learn to swim in a community pool. The story is told simply, and illustrations of different positions make the details clear. For beginning swimmers. Grades four to six. Index.

Booklist 36:386 Je 1 '40

"The best book I have yet seen on the principles and practice of learning to be at home in the water, it is good for parents as well as for children as young as the little girl and boy who go through these brief and valuable lessons." M. L. Becker

+ Books p7 Jl 7 '40 210w

"The chief value in a book of this sort is probably the confidence children might gain from it. They would certainly need more help in actually swimming." Josephine Smith

+ — Library J 65:502 Je 1 '40 100w

STURGIS, WILLIAM BAYARD. Fly-tying; drawings by the author. 254p $3.50 Scribner

799.12 Flies, Artificial 40-13432

"This is a textbook on the subject of making artificial lures for the capture of fresh-water game fish. . . Wet and dry flies, streamers, bugs and bucktails, salmon and steelhead specialties, nymphs and hair-bodied flies and moths, artificial crayfish, frogs, grasshoppers and minnows are all included, with every detail of their construction." Books

Booklist 37:32 O 1 '40

"Beginners will be very grateful to Mr. Sturgis for his advice about tools and materials and where to get them, and for the painstaking way he describes his own method of tying. Skilled fly-tyers will want this book for a special reason. The author has pioneered for years in the use of hair for bodies and wings, and since this type of construction is becoming extremely popular just now, too much can hardly be written on the subject." Cy Coggins

+ Books p22 S 8 '40 150w

Reviewed by F. C. Green

Boston Transcript p1 Jl 13 '40 250w

SUGIMOTO, MME ETSU (INAGAKI). Grandmother O Kyo. 306p $2.50 Doubleday
(W) 40-7860

A picture of life in modern Japan, contrasting the character and manners of one of the older generation—Grandmother O Kyo—and the freedom of youth. To the slight thread of story dealing with the approach of Grandmother's eighty-eighth birthday is also added comment on the "incident" in China—one of grandmother's sons has spent forty years there, and a favorite grandson goes to the front, is wounded, and his death is reported at the birthday feast. Glossary.

Booklist 36:384 Je 1 '40

"The book would, indeed, look like the most inept propaganda were it not for the fact that Mrs. Sugimoto is incapable of any such thing. And this it is which makes her plight, like that of other liberals in Japan, so tragic. . . For a picture of Japan today—the blind and pathetic loyalty of its people to the state, the noble sacrifices for a cause we can but deprecate and the attitude of mind which makes such sacrifices not only possible but jubilant 'Grandmother O Kyo' is alone in its field. Its importance as a sign of the times cannot be denied." Bradford Smith

Books p3 My 12 '40 900w

"The story has all the charm and delicacy of a Japanese print. It presents a clear picture of a genteel and cultured Japan. Beyond that it has no aspirations. Evidently Madame Sugimoto did not wish to weight her story with any political or social messages, nor even with any dramatic flashes of color, so it remains the light and graceful tale that it is." Jessica Powers

+ Commonweal 32:154 Je 7 '40 210w

"An addition to any public library collection." Margaret Winning

+ Library J 65:352 Ap 15 '40 150w

"Grandmother O Kyo fails to achieve the charm of Mrs. Sugimoto's A Daughter of the Samurai, with which the author achieved a literary reputation in America. But this is understandable, in that A Daughter of the Samurai was Mrs. Sugimoto's own story while her latest book is merely a tender, charming and graceful little story which poses no problems. The war in China is taken for granted, and its ethics are not discussed."

+ — Living Age 358:589 Ag '40 260w

New Repub 102:737 My 27 '40 50w

"Very delicately, very tactfully, Mme. Sugimoto supplements the headlines—shows one the daily life of her people as they plunge proudly and loyally into what they feel is a righteous war. However mistaken the reader—and possibly the author—may think them, the picture which she gives is a disarming one. We need to remember, perhaps, that even a nation on the march is human and can suffer. . . 'Grandmother O Kyo' is an engaging if somewhat lightweight story. It also partially lifts a veil which has not hitherto been lifted." E. H. Walton

+ — N Y Times p7 My 12 '40 650w

Times [London] Lit Sup p520 O 12 '40 450w

SUGRUE, THOMAS. Such is the kingdom. 375p map $2.50 Holt
40-14502

Life in a Catholic community in a Connecticut factory town in 1909 as seen thru the eyes of Jamie, a small Irish boy. The climax comes with the death of Jamie's grandfather, when all the O'Mahaneys came to the wake.

Booklist 37:156 D 15 '40

" 'Such is the Kingdom' is warm with the knowledge of both worlds, child and adult. And the nature of the Irish and their talk give it special flavor." Rose Feld

+ Books p6 O 13 '40 950w

"There is a memorable moonlight fight between Potatoes Flynn and Big Dermot and a record of the women at a wake that you will not soon forget. At the end Mr. Sugrue steps aside and through the voice of Father O'Moore attempts to sum up Kelly Hill in a bit of philosophy. . . Even Father O'Moore cannot give unity to Mr. Sugrue's scattered book, but he contributes to its genuine charm and distinction." Lewis Gannett

+ — Boston Transcript p11 O 16 '40 700w

Reviewed by A. G. Higgins

Library J 65:762 S 15 '40 110w

"This novel is both promise and achievement. Reading it I get the impression that Mr. Sugrue is holding himself in. More probably he hasn't yet quite achieved the freedom, or shall we call it the courage, to let himself go. Always everywhere there is more surface than depth. Certain characters and scenes are done with more power than the book as a whole, though all is sincere, honest work. The character of the ribald Mrs. McClusky is evidence of power." Horace Reynolds

+ N Y Times p26 O 20 '40 850w

"Because these are careful closeups of people and there is no large amount of action, Mr. Sugrue inevitably invites comparison with James Farrell. Mr. Sugrue is kinder, less firm, perhaps less true, and much easier to read."

+ New Yorker 16:110 O 19 '40 60w

Sat R of Lit 23:20 D 14 '40 140w

" 'Such Is the Kingdom' sparkles from start to finish with a naive vitality that is part of the story of the Irish in America."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e O 27 '40 500w

Wis Lib Bul 36:168 D '40

SUGIMOTO, ETSU (ĕt′sŏŏ sŏŏ-ghē-mō′tō)

SULLIVAN, LAWRENCE. The dead hand of bureaucracy. 303p $2.50 Bobbs

353 U.S.—Politics and government 40-14261

This history of the growth of bureaucracy in the United States from 1800 to the present is mainly devoted to criticism of its extraordinary growth and its practices under the Roosevelt New Deal. Bibliography. Index.

Atlantic N '40 270w

"The great weakness of 'The Dead Hand of Bureaucracy' is not its special pleading in specific cases, but its failure, first, to give any consideration to the forces responsible for the enlargement of government which it denounces and, second, its failure to give any consideration to possible means of reducing the establishment without precipitating upon this country the same sort of economic revolution that has swept every other great nation on the globe. Mr. Sullivan has not in every case established his thesis that bureaucracy is an evil; he has not even attempted to prove that it is an unnecessary evil. For these reasons his contribution to popular comprehension of the American government is not impressive." G. W. Johnson

— + Books p14 S 8 '40 950w

"Despite obvious partisanship and occasional over-reaching, despite—or, perhaps, because of—the axe he whets for New Deal chickens come home to roost, Mr. Sullivan has produced an important and a timely book. . . Mr. Sullivan should be required reading for speech makers, and for speech writers for the speech makers, who feel the need for fresh damning fact with which to wad down their explosive adjectives. Indeed, if they can stand it, the book would be well for New Dealers to inspect. If they have an uneasy feeling that fewer people like them, this volume might tell them why." S. T. Williamson

+ — N Y Times p10 S 1 '40 1300w

SULLIVAN, LAWRENCE—Continued
Discussion by Myrna Siegendorf
N Y Times p2 O 6 '40 900w

"While Mr Sullivan frequently writes with rhetorical purpose to make the most of a telling point, the book as a whole shows understanding of governmental issues and deals with genuine questions."
Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 18 '40 450w

SUMMERS, FESTUS PAUL. The Baltimore and Ohio in the Civil war. 304p il maps $3 Putnam

973.74 Baltimore and Ohio railroad. U.S.—History—Civil war 39-29859

The Baltimore and Ohio was the first railroad to play an important part in war maneuvers. Following a brief statement on the history of the road from 1827 to 1860, the book outlines the part played by the railroad during the Civil war. Bibliography. Index.

"Although the role played by the railroad in the military operations of the Civil War has long been appreciated, this is the first adequate account of any important line within the military zone. It is a valuable contribution to a neglected phase of the history of the period and should lead to similar studies of other roads in both the North and the Confederacy." C. W. Ramsdell
+ Am Hist R 45:925 Jl '40 490w
Christian Science Monitor p18 Ja 30 '40 450w

"In the light of what has developed in transportation of all kinds during the last quarter century, and in the literature of the subject, any considerable addition to the history of the railroad cannot fail to be of interest, not only to those who follow the lore of the iron horse, but to students of history. This book is chiefly, though not entirely, for the latter." E. F. Allen
N Y Times p9 Ja 14 '40 550w

"The author of this book is an associate professor in West Virginia university, and his treatment of railroad history from the West Virginia standpoint is of special significance. Indeed, the book is an engrossing study, though here and there the implications of some incidental topic are not fully traced. There is a considerable amount of new or unfamiliar information in the book, some of it of dramatic interest." E. N. Jenckes
+ — Springf'd Republican p6 O 21 '39 1200w

SUMMERS, HARRISON BOYD, and SUMMERS, ROBERT EDWARD, comps. The railroad problem, with reference to government ownership. (Reference shelf) 308p $1.25 Wilson, H.W.

385 Railroads—U.S. Railroads and state (W) 39-25547

"Whether railroads should be owned and operated by the government or by private owners is one of the most persistent questions which has confronted the American people during the last fifty years." (Foreword) Contains a brief on government ownership, and a selected bibliography.

Booklist 36:113 N 15 '39
Wis Lib Bul 35:183 N '39

SUMNER, WILLIAM GRAHAM. Sumner today; ed. by Maurice R. Davie. 194p $2.50 Yale univ. press

304 Economics

Sixteen essays, addresses, and fragments selected from the works of William Graham Sumner, issued to commemorate his centenary. These papers set forth the main features of his philosophy. Appended to the essays are commentaries by such modern writers as: Charles Beard, Bruce Barton, William Ogburn, A. G. Keller, etc. Index.

"After honor is paid where honor is due, the impression remains that Sumner is definitely out of date, and must have seemed so to progressive minds even when these essays were written."
Nation 151:585 D 7 '40 60w
Reviewed by Palmer Harman
Sat R of Lit 23:13 D 28 '40 750w

SUPER, PAUL. The Polish tradition; an interpretation of a nation. 215p il map $2.25 Norton [7s 6d Allen, G]

914.38 Poland—Civilization. National characteristics, Polish [40-6246]

Historical study of Poland, written before the German invasion, and published without revision. The author, an American who has lived many years in Poland, attempts to analyze the Polish tradition in terms of history, of society, and of the individual approach to life. Index.

Christian Science Monitor p18 F 29 '40 550w
Foreign Affairs 18:759 Jl '40 10w
Manchester Guardian p3 D 15 '39 380w
Reviewed by G. F. Hudson
Spec 164:372 Mr 15 '40 170w

" 'The Polish Tradition' is informative, explanatory and detailed. . . Much, however, of the labour of Mr. Super's research has crept into his style and has weighed down his manner of thought. . . This is a good book, an informative book and a scholarly book—but just a little too consciously scholarly."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p678 N 25 '39 490w

SUTTER, JOHN AUGUSTUS. New Helvetia diary; a record of events kept by [the author] and his clerks at New Helvetia, Calif, from Sept. 9, 1845 to May 25, 1848. ltd ed 165p il col map $7.50 Grabhorn

979.4 California—History. Sutter, John Augustus 40-13110

"A day to day record of events kept by John A. Sutter and his clerks at New Helvetia, Calif, between Sept. 9, 1845, and May 25, 1848. It deals chiefly with the arrival and departure of employees, visitors and immigrants, to the fort. . . Over six hundred persons are listed in the index as having been mentioned. H. B. Van Sicklin supplies, by way of preface, an excellent biographical sketch of the Swiss pioneer, Johann August Sutter." N Y Times

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
Books p15 F 11 '40 600w
Reviewed by E. L. Tinker
N Y Times p14 Je 18 '39 370w

SUTTON, JOSEPH WILSON. The cross, our hope; addresses on the seven words from the cross. 91p $1.25 Morehouse

232.958 Jesus Christ—Seven last words 40-4921

Addresses on the seven words from the cross by the vicar of Trinity Chapel, New York.

Christian Century 57:250 F 21 '40
Reviewed by W. L. Caswell
Churchman 154:17 Mr 1 '40 130w

"Each of the seven last words of our Lord is taken as illustrating some aspect of God's message of hope; and from them Dr. Sutton extracts truths which are as profound as they are simply presented. Especially welcome is the stress laid upon God's will that life should be lived in such a way that through and in its necessary disappointments, sufferings, and sorrows there shines the constant light of a hope which is eternal and strong because it comes from God." W. N. Pittenger
+ Living Church 102:11 F 21 '40 120w

SUYDAM, VERNON ANDREW. Fundamentals of electricity and electromagnetism. 690p il $4.75 Van Nostrand

537 Electromagnetism. Electricity 40-12823

"This book is a development born of necessity. . . The author has for many years been teaching a course in electricity and magnetism. At the outset it became necessary to arrange a system of lecture notes, since there then were no textbooks in this field which, in the opinion of the author, were suitable for a course to follow immediately the course in general physics. These lecture notes have been systematized and amplified, they have been adapted to and tested by actual class instruction, and they are now put into book form. . . It is assumed that the student has completed a course in the calculus." (Pref) List of references. Index.

N Y New Tech Bks 25:34 Jl '40

"The approach to the subjects treated is well planned from the point of view that experimental results are the most important and that the theoretical developments are made for the purpose of correlation. There is thus a better connection made between the phenomena and the theoretical explanations than is found in some intermediate texts. Unfortunately, the author has chosen not to use vector notation and this feature will be missed by many teachers who regard intermediate courses as the logical place to introduce vectors to their students in formal treatment." J. R. Collins

+ — R of Scientific Instruments 2:339 O '40 700w

SVEDBERG, THEODOR, and others. The ultracentrifuge. 488p il $11.50 (40s) Oxford

542.22 Centrifuges

" 'One of the tools developed in recent years for the study of the size and shape of particles or molecules of colloidal size is the ultracentrifuge. . . For the research worker using the ultracentrifuge, this book is a useful handbook of information. It should be of interest to others as well, since it summarizes the methods developed and the results obtained by The Svedberg and his co-workers. The methods of measurement and calculation are given in more detail than has been readily available heretofore, thus giving the reader a better understanding of the accuracy and significance of the results obtained.' The text is divided into four major parts: the first part deals with theory; the second, with the operation and construction of the instrument; the third, with calculations and measurements; and the fourth, with the experimental results obtained." N Y New Tech Bks

"All who are interested in biochemistry or, quite generally, in biology will welcome this extensive monograph on the ultracentrifuge and will find it most useful. The book is not confined to ultracentrifuges of the Svedberg type, but also contains a chapter (by J. H. Bauer and E. G. Pickels) giving a detailed description of the construction and operation of air-driven ultracentrifuges as developed by J. W. Beams, J. H. Bauer, and others." H. Freundlich

+ J Phys Chem 44:952 O '40 420w

"The book as a whole has both the advantages and drawbacks of a composite work. Every detail is written by someone who knows all about it, but despite the strongly unifying personality of Svedberg, it is not one of those books in which every word follows inevitably on its predecessor. There is too much repetition, due partly to the otherwise attractive method of covering the ground first in outline and then in detail, partly to imperfections in the scheme of classification or to different interpretations of it by different authors. But in spite of this, and of the fact that it is a standard work of reference, the book is quite surprisingly easy to read." J. St. L. Philpot

+ — Nature 145:566 Ap 13 '40 1300w

N Y New Tech Bks 25:32 Jl '40

"Svedberg and his collaborators have produced here an absorbing account of the history and uses of these instruments. . . The theoretical aspects are discussed in relation to the various uses of the technique, and the work concludes with a most valuable bibliography."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p139 Mr 16 '40 110w

SVOBIDA, LAWRENCE. An empire of dust; il. with photographs. 203p $3 Caxton printers

630.978 Agriculture—Kansas. Erosion (W) 40-13281

In 1929 the author, Nebraska born of farmer parents, went to Meade county, Kansas, to try his hand at wheat farming. For nine years, with all his courage, skill, and modern equipment, he tried to farm. He fought crop failures from hail, drought, wind, destructive insects, and drifting soil, and finally gave up and moved away from the dust bowl. This story of his experience is told in straightforward prose and illustrated with photographs of ruined farms.

Booklist 37:64 O 15 '40

"The book purports to be a case history, a fair account of what one wheat farmer has been through and what he has observed happening all around him. It doesn't pretend to literary excellence, in fact, the writing is wooden and as dreary as the life it describes. But the bare narrative, with all its repetitious horrors, is highly effective in driving home the fact that here in the United States we have perhaps four million acres of land returning to desert. . . I can recommend this book only to those who really want to read a heartbreaking and apparently honest story of one man's attempt to cope with a problem that is too great for one man, too great for the countless thousands who have gone away, too great, perhaps, even for the resources of a government." S. H. Holbrook

Books p13 Jl 7 '40 900w

"Unless you are interested in the causes and effects of the Dust Bowl tragedy, and in the methods used to combat it—ineffective as they are—don't read the book. If you are you will find it well worth while. It contains, moreover, excellent photographs, which in themselves tell the sad story to good effect." Gwendolyn Pemberton

+ Canadian Forum 20:190 S '40 170w

"Although factual and calm in style, the book is as moving as John Steinbeck's novels."

+ New Repub 103:286 Ag 26 '40 80w

"In the reviewer's opinion, this is easily one of the most important books that has dealt with the Dust Bowl and its problems. Nowhere else can be found such penetrating and dispassionate comments, free from political bias, on the actual workings of governmental agencies in the attempt to deal with cumulative disaster to one-sixth of our national area. And what is said has bearing on problems far beyond the limits of the Great Plains." P. B. Sears

+ Sat R of Lit 22:14 Jl 6 '40 460w

SWANSON, NEIL HARMON. The silent drum. 507p $2.75 Farrar

(W) 40-29472

Continues the stories of Arnett Leslie, and his wife Diantha, and their Dutch bound boy, Frederic Van Buren, begun in The Judas Tree (Book Review Digest, 1933). This is the story of the struggle between traders and settlers, mainly in and around Fort Pitt in the 1760s. Frederic is the central character.

"His book is admirably documented and singularly lacking in the pseudo wisdom of hindsight. He presents with clarity the confusions of a disturbed period. And his characters, if not always wholly convincing, are persons who maintain your interest." R. E. D.

+ Atlantic F '41 120w

Booklist 37:241 F 1 '41

SWANSON, N. H.—Continued

"Any odor of musty research is evaporated from these pages; the style is vigorous and racy and there is enough brisk action and colorful incident to carry the reader along in spite of a tendency among his characters to speak their minds at garrulous length. Perhaps in pioneer times men had more time for talk. You get the impression that these people fully enjoyed life and found it full of flavor, regardless of its hardships and constant hazard." George Conrad

+ Books p8 D 29 '40 320w

"When 'The Judas Tree' appeared unostentatiously on the bookstands a few years past I bought it, read it and cheered lustily at the appearance of a new master of the historical novel. Succeeding volumes have added to Swanson's stature until today he has no superior." P. J. S.

+ Boston Transcript p2 Ja 11 '41 800w

Christian Science Monitor p11 F 1 '41 650w

"The actors of the central drama are interesting personalities; the action is often fast and furious. It is a worthy novel somewhat slowed down by dialect and a tendency to wordiness. A good library purchase in moderate quantities." H. A. Wooster

+ Library J 66:32 Ja 1 '41 210w

Nation 152:81 Ja 18 '41 90w

"A sort of sub-theme of the novel, and a good one, is the emerging of a new country and a new people, Americans. Leslie, himself one of the early ones, explains to a fellow-rebel that the Caughnawaga Indians were the first to recognize the new people and to give them a name, Tulhasaga, meaning 'People of the morning light.' Mr. Swanson's exciting story is filled with the spirit that gave us birth, and which ought to help in our own dark hours to keep us 'Tulhasaga.'" Herschel Brickell

+ N Y Times p4 D 29 '40 900w

"A full-bodied, fast-moving story, readable and interesting."

+ New Yorker 16:55 Ja 4 '41 60w

SWEENEY, THOMAS. Life underwriting as a professional career; foreword by W. J. Roddey. 45p 75c Harper

368.3 Insurance, Life—Agents 40-6461

"A manager of a life insurance company writes this useful volume to 'emphasize the difference between professional life underwriting as against the commercial selling of life insurance.' He sets forth the personal and professional qualifications required in this type of service, and the opportunities it offers promising individuals." Boston Transcript

Boston Transcript p2 My 11 '40 60w

Cleveland Open Shelf p10 My '40

SWIGERT, ARTHUR MELVILLE. The story of superfinish. 672p il $5 The author, 5106 Buckingham rd, Detroit

671 Metal finishing 40-30618

"A collection of information dealing with the industrial development of metal surface finishing, presented for the engineer, foreman, toolmaker, mechanic, and layman. Includes many photographs. The author is director of production research in the Chrysler Corporation, at Detroit, Michigan." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Chem & Met Eng 47:726 O '40 70w

N Y New Tech Bks 25:37 Jl '40

"Mr Swigert's large volume goes into the subject in some detail and presents all angles —lubrication, metallurgy, bearings, engineering, grinding, turning and machining. The work is exceptionally well illustrated and printed and should prove of great value to all interested in machine design and operation." C. B. M.

+ Springf'd Republican p8 S 24 '40 650w

SWINNERTON, FRANK ARTHUR. The reviewing and criticism of books. 43p 75c Oxford [1s 6d Dent]

804 Books—Reviews

"Mr. Swinnerton's address, undelivered because of the war, has been printed as the ninth Dent Memorial lecture. This series of annual lectures was established in London in memory of J. M. Dent, who had, among his other glories, the credit of establishing the Everyman's Library. Mr. Swinnerton sketches the history of book reviewing in the last hundred years, says that Arnold Bennett rescued reviewing from the low state into which it had sunk, discusses the 'star system' of book reviews, and ends with some comment on the faults of book reviewing and on cures for these errors." Boston Transcript

Reviewed by H. M. Jones

Boston Transcript p1 Mr 30 '40 1050w

Reviewed by Eric Forbes-Boyd

Christian Science Monitor p11 F 3 '40 420w

Reviewed by Raymond Mortimer

New Statesman & Nation 18:931 D 23 '39 1200w

"Mr Swinnerton's lecture is pungently phrased and provocative—as discussions of critics by professional authors and dramatists frequently are." E. N. Jenckes

Springf'd Republican p6 Ap 6 '40 1100w

SWINNERTON, FRANK ARTHUR. The two wives. 367p $2.50 Doubleday [8s 6d Hutchinson]

(W) 40-27288

Story of little Sam Barnabas, "England's best loved comedian" from his fifty-fourth to his fifty-fifth birthday. In the course of the year many things happened to Sam—the loss of two wives, the birth of a son, and the tragedy and death of his brother Hugh.

"Through all tribulations he preserves a constructive sanity, good humor, and a kind of innocence."

+ Atlantic My '40 70w

Booklist 36:307 Ap 1 '40

Bookmark p14 My '40

"Writing, as I have said, in a tradition which invites rich and colorful characterization, Swinnerton presents his famous English comedian in full, sympathetically building up his eccentricities and generously illustrating his drollness and innocence, his bustling resourcefulness, his native wit and even his preening and smugness. He is a well rounded character, always credible, very much alive. . . Swinnerton is a competent storyteller and 'The Two Wives' is a good example of his craft." Milton Rugoff

+ Books p3 Mr 17 '40 650w

Christian Science Monitor p10 Je 1 '40 320w

"This is the story of the effect which several unimportant women had on several unimportant men. All speak their lines in a shoddy story, as weak and worthless as some of the vehicles written for Sam Barnabas." J. E. Tobin

— Commonweal 31:497 Mr 29 '40 260w

Reviewed by M. E. Clark

Library J 65:167 F 15 '40 120w

Reviewed by Charles Marriott

Manchester Guardian p3 S 19 '39 500w

"Not modern, but finished and with a few nicely aimed swipes at the intelligentsia."

+ — New Repub 102:386 Mr 18 '40 50w

"Some may say that 'The Two Wives' inclines in plot a little to the melodramatic side. That is possible. But so does Hamlet. It is the test of a novelist's power, as it is of a dramatist's, that while suggesting the possibilities of melodrama he nevertheless keeps his actual fabrication under control. Mr. Swinnerton has his novel at all times under control. He has done an amazingly fine piece of work. And not only that; he has written a novel that will be pursued to the end with breathless excitement." Percy Hutchison

+ N Y Times p7 Mr 10 '40 1100w

New Yorker 16:90 Mr 9 '40 50w

"A possible, if rather ungenerous criticism of 'The Two Wives' is that Mr. Swinnerton has given us too much. . . Still, here is a fine novel, in which observation and comment are most skillfully combined, in which humor is used as an ingredient not a side-dish, in which a rare and sympathetic intelligence is brought to play on ordinary men and women, the workers and the idlers of London, the decent, the shiftless, and the desperate." R. E. Roberts

+ — Sat R of Lit 21:10 Mr 30 '40 550w

Times [London] Lit Sup p525 S 9 '39 460w

SYME, RONALD. The Roman revolution; with genealogical tables. 568p $7 (21s) Oxford

937.07 Rome—History—Empire, B.C. 30-A.D. 476. Rome—Politics and government. Augustus, emperor of Rome

"The revolution described in this book is the change by which Augustus created the Roman imperial system. . . Augustus is 'debunked.' He is shown to have been a politician aiming at supreme power for himself with the aid of rich supporters among the merchants and bankers. . . The actual position of Augustus after the revolution was carefully disguised by certain forms, by official propaganda, and by the willingness of those who had a share of power in the new regime to avoid criticism of it." Ethics

"As a book about Augustus, it challenges comparison with the more important modern studies of that extraordinary man, those of Gardthausen, of Hermann Dessau and T. Rice Holmes. To say that it is in scholarship the equal of any of these first-rate books is to give Mr. Syme's book more than its due. But its special quality is not that it is another thorough and competent examination of a much-examined period, undertaken by a scholar who is fully abreast of modern research. Mr. Syme presents a more vivid picture of the man who successfully rode the Roman revolution than any of his predecessors and it is a more human picture, because he has managed to be less befogged by the haze which modern and ancient adulation have contrived to pour around the figure of Augustus." Max Radin

+ — Books p6 Je 23 '40 1150w

"The book is most admirably written and is based upon a genuine scholarship and a deep understanding of political issues." C. D. B.

+ Ethics 50:245 Ja '40 450w

"'The Roman Revolution' is a scientific monograph, written for specialists. The great number of references, quotations and footnotes slacken its pace, and rather tax the reader's patience. But no intelligent layman will regret the patience spent on this book. It is one of those rare historical studies in which the present and the past mutually illuminate each other." Norbert Guterman

+ New Repub 102:282 F 26 '40 1300w

"Mr. Syme affects a sternly realistic point of view. . . Mr. Syme shows little liking for his lean, cold-blooded Augustus, but he warms to something like praise of Pollio, Brutus and Antony. He may, too, seem to believe that in politics personalities and causes do not count. But he is too good a historian to be the slave of any theory, and his work, well documented and well written, extraordinarily persuasive and interesting, is the best book on Roman history that has appeared for many years." C. M. Bowra

+ Spec 163:478 O 6 '39 800w

"The book is of a distinguished and erudite scholarship and of a remarkable depth. It is vigorously written and at the moment wears a topicality (though it is to the writer's credit that he never exploits it) which gives the story a profound significance to the student of modern Europe. It is uniformly well-documented, has an excellent index and a useful appendix of Consular lists, and should remain a standard work of reference for many years to come."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p646 N 4 '39 750w

SYNGE, PATRICK MILLINGTON. Plants with personality; il. with plates from Dr Thornton's Temple of flora and with drawings by John Nash. 244p $3 Dutton [12s 6d Drummond]

580 Plants. Botany. Flowers 40-10865

Chapters describing some of the exotic flowers of Europe, Asia, and the Americas. Contents: Water plants; Magnolias and camellias; Insectivorous plants; Fly-pollinated plants; Sun lovers of South Africa; The gigantic plants of the equatorial mountains of East Africa; Fierce wonders from Chile; Children of the Mexican sun; Cacti and succulents; Blues and purples; The garden in winter. Bibliography. Index.

"Plant oddities are always interesting, but they become doubly so when presented as they are in this accurate and completely excellent book. . . Supported by John Nash's pen drawings and a number of fine prints reproduced from Dr. Thornton's notable 'Temple of Flora,' this is a first-rank contribution to plant lore." R. S. Lemmon

+ Books p13 Je 16 '40 80w

"Mixed with the purple patches, the author contrives to convey a considerable amount of valuable information on the history, distribution and horticultural treatment of his subjects. Mr. Synge's facts are usually accurate. . . As a bedside book for gardeners and botanists, Mr. Synge's volume will no doubt appeal to a wide circle of readers." J. S. L. Gilmour

+ — Nature 145:608 Ap 20 '40 360w

Reviewed by F. F. Rockwell

N Y Times p5 Je 9 '40 100w

Scientific Bk Club R 11:3 Jl '40 420w

"Enthusiasm is as rare in these days as it is valuable. This is a joyfully enthusiastic book; and one can only hope that a similar response will be awakened in all who read it."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p32 Ja 20 '40 550w

T

TABER, GLADYS (BAGG) (MRS F. A. TABER). Harvest at Stillmeadow; decorations by Bertram Hartman. 261p $1.75 Little

630.1 Country life (W) 40-5832

Reminiscences of two happy years spent for the most part on a Connecticut farm. The chapters are arranged month by month, and recount experiences with children, guests, and dogs. The pages are enlivened with favorite recipes. The book is based on the author's column called A Diary of Domesticity, which appears in The Ladies' Home Journal. Index.

Booklist 36:321 Ap 15 '40

"This is a mellow, reassuring record to read at this restless season, in time of war."

+ Books p8 Mr 17 '40 380w

Cleveland Open Shelf p7 Mr '40

"Homely and appealing details of country life are related with humor and relish. . . Mrs. Taber's love of her home and enjoyment of her daily life permeates the book. Similar in appeal to Mrs Della Lutes' Country Kitchen. Should be enjoyed not only by adults but by young people." A. T. Davidson

+ Library J 65:166 F 15 '40 110w

TABER, GLADYS—Continued

"The book as a whole is a miscellany of experience and observation and thought; and its swift changes are sometimes a bit disconcerting, as when we must jump from Shakespeare to soup, or suddenly find ourselves reading recipes which bore us instead of notes on life and dogs and people which we have greatly enjoyed. . . But it is a shrewd and likable book, written with verve, good sense, and bright realism."

+ — N Y Times p22 Mr 10 '40 460w

Sat R of Lit 21:20 Mr 9 '40 180w

TALLANT, EDITH. David and Patience; il. by Dorothy Bayley. 166p $2 Lippincott

(W) 40-31727

Two independent Newfoundland children help to keep their family together thru an exceptionally hard time when their father was supposed to have sunk with his ship. Dr Grenfell is among the characters.

"The characters are natural and the life in the little hamlet of Heart's Ease, with its hardy fisherfolk and their daily struggle with sea and weather, true to that barren land." A. M. Wetherell

+ Library J 65:927 N 1 '40 150w

"Exciting and instructive." Z. C. Durrell

+ Sat R of Lit 23:9 N 16 '40 20w

TARACOUZIO, TIMOTHY ANDREW. War and peace in Soviet diplomacy. 354p $4 Macmillan

327.47 Russia—Foreign relations. Russia—Politics and government 40-29989

"A profusely documented analysis of Moscow's foreign policy set against the background of the rapidly changing international scene and that of the even more unpredictable vagaries in Russian interpretation of Marxian theory." (N Y Times) Dr Taracouzio is a Russian scholar now connected with the Harvard Law School. Index.

"Secretive the Soviet Union certainly is, like all dictatorships. But the general trends of its foreign policy are susceptible to reasonably accurate interpretation by observers who possess a sufficient background of Russian knowledge and experience. Such an observer is Dr. Taracouzio, and his splendidly documented book is both an excellent history and a valuable topical commentary."

+ Atlantic F '41 230w

"In an age when there is too much hasty writing on international affairs one turns with relief and confidence to a work based on such thorough scholarship as War and Peace in Soviet Diplomacy. . . The author brings to his subject a knowledge of original Soviet sources which few American writers could match. He conveys the impression of having almost memorized the voluminous and frequently dry works of Lenin and his knowledge of this source material of Bolshevism is very useful in analyzing the shifts and twists of Soviet foreign policy, and especially the spectacular turn on the eve of the outbreak of the present war from a crusading anti-fascist stand to one of favorable neutrality toward Hitler." W. H. C.

Christian Science Monitor p18 Ja 15 '41 500w

"While Dr. Taracouzio should be given full credit for having assembled a mass of interesting and valuable information on both Communist doctrine and Soviet foreign relations, it is a matter of regret that he did not try to follow in his study the weighty dictum of Lenin which he himself quotes: 'There is no more erroneous or more harmful idea than that of separation of foreign and domestic policies.' " M. T. Florinsky

+ — N Y Times p5 Ja 19 '41 900w

TASCA, HENRY JOSEPH. World trading systems; a study of American and British commercial policies. 172p $1.50 Columbia univ. press [6s 6d Allen, G]

337 U.S.—Commercial policy. Great Britain—Commercial policy 40-8688

"Dr. Tasca examines the trade relations of the United States and Great Britain, exponents of two important world trading systems, with countries subjecting the whole range of external economic exchanges to a high degree of regimentation and control. The technical and economic aspects of these relations are considered in detail with the aim of indicating some of the main issues and difficulties involved in international economic co-operation under present conditions. At the same time the striking contrasts between the American and British methods are brought to light." (Publisher's note) Index.

"This is not a perfect book; defects of organization, particularly frequent repetitions, annoy the reader: but it is a more significant book than many which have been more carefully constructed." P. W. Bidwell

+ — Am Econ R 30:866 D '40 1200w

Reviewed by John Donaldson

Ann Am Acad 210:146 Jl '40 500w

Foreign Affairs 18:748 Jl '40 10w

TAYLOR, DEEMS. The well tempered listener. 333p $2.50 Simon & Schuster

780.4 Music. Musicians (W) 40-27122

This book is based on the author's broadcast talks during the intermissions in the Sunday afternoon concerts of the New York Philharmonic-Symphony orchestra (1937-1939) and on articles previously published in various magazines. The book is divided "into three sections. The first, The Makers, is devoted to discussions of music in the abstract, and from the point of view of the composer. In the second, The Givers, we discuss music with particular reference to its performers and interpreters. The third section, The Hearers, is written largely from the point of view of those who listen to it." (Introd) Index.

Booklist 36:235 F 15 '40

"This book ought to find even more readers than Deems Taylor's deservedly popular 'Of Men and Music' [Book Review Digest, 1937]. . . In the new pages are the same charm, with a still greater variety of depth of thought, and a richer flavoring of that persuasive reasonableness which distinguishes all of Deems Taylor's writing." John Erskine

+ Books p5 F 4 '40 1000w

Christian Science Monitor p10 Mr 30 '40 550w

Cleveland Open Shelf p7 Mr '40

Commonweal 31:518 Ap 5 '40 160w

Reviewed by Robert Offergeld

Forum 103:266 My '40 340w

"These articles, or chapters, occasionally flow out of one another; more often they are independent little essays on problems of musical interest. It would seem that such a book must be choppy and disconnected, but nothing could be farther from the truth, for there is an important unifying force—the mind of Deems Taylor." Howard Taubman

+ N Y Times p2 F 11 '40 800w

"If it is conceded that symphonic broadcasts must have commentators, it is obvious that Mr. Taylor is better suited for the job than anyone else who comes to mind. His tendency to oversimplify the personality of the great men with whom he deals is offset by his broad background, and his method of presentation makes as interesting reading as it does listening. One only wishes that he would be as rigorously true to himself as he is to the medium he serves." Irving Kolodin

+ — Sat R of Lit 21:14 Mr 9 '40 400w

"Mr. Taylor conveys abundant information without a trace of pedantry. He revives and threshes out many a controversy without stuffiness. He delivers strong opinion without becoming doctrinaire. The book is, indeed, like the presumed reader, well tempered; it is the genial product of a roving, acquisitive musical mind." R. D. Welch
+ Yale R n s 29:645 spring '40 320w

TAYLOR, EDMOND. The strategy of terror; Europe's inner front. 278p $2.50 Houghton 940.5488 European war, 1939—Propaganda
(W) 40-11323

A psychological interpretation of the "war of nerves," describing its effect upon European, especially French, morale between Munich and March, 1940. The author is a former Chicago Tribune correspondent in Paris, and his book includes many excerpts from his own diary and that of his wife. Mr Taylor says: "I make no apology for the incoherence of these [diary] notes. This is a rather incoherent war, and it is not strange that human beings react to it incoherently, thinking one thing one day and another the next." Index.

"This reviewer must be ungracious enough to say that the book tells more about Mr. and Mrs. Taylor and their reaction to the onrushing crisis than it does about the dissolution of social solidarity through the employment of psychological devices and ruses. The author wanted to capture a bit of important history in the making and to reduce it to some type of systematic explanation, but his materials have been too close at hand for the attainment of the necessary detachment. Nevertheless, this is a book well worth reading." J. H. Barnett
+ — Am Soc R 5:972 D '40 240w

"The blueprint of the Nazi strategy of terror is now available to us in Taylor's analysis. When the history of the present war is finally written, Taylor's work will be noted for its tremendous impact on our abilities to evaluate the psychological aspects of our modern warfare." J. S. Roucek
+ Ann Am Acad 211:198 S '40 650w
Booklist 37:9 S '40
Bookmark p18 N '40

"It is an attempt to report propagandist and psychological war from the receiving end, and as such I find it not only a fresh but an extraordinarily suggestive approach to a subject about which, I suppose, more nonsense has been written than about any other one aspect of the great crisis in which the world now finds itself. . . Whether this book is really about propaganda or about something much more fundamental in the lives of peoples, its impact, because it is a report and not a theoretical essay, is tremendous." Walter Millis
+ Books p1 Jl 7 '40 2050w

Reviewed by Lewis Gannett
Boston Transcript p3 Je 29 '40 700w

"This book deserves to be widely read. To be forewarned is to be forearmed."
+ Boston Transcript p1 Ag 3 '40 800w
Cath World 152:254 N '40 260w
Cleveland Open Shelf p13 Jl '40

"Like other books by reporters of the international tragedy of our age, it is hastily written; like them, it also is stuffed with piquant gossip, which decidedly adds to its readability; but even when its author was scribbling his reports and his personal diary in the thick of the maelstrom of events, he possessed in his own mind a guiding idea of tremendous importance by virtue of which all his miscellaneous jottings and impressions—and those of his wife . . . are united as parts of an almost appalling study of the theory and practice of the psychology of terror, the real 'secret weapon' by means of which Hitler and his associated dictators have mainly won their stupefying victories." Michael Williams
+ Commonweal 32:289 Jl 26 '40 1000w

Reviewed by Norman Cousins
Current Hist & Forum 51:1 Ag '40 1850w

"Mr. Taylor's study explains what was happening and what necessarily does happen at the receiving end of the Voice of Destruction. The book deserves to be read or reread by every thoughtful American at this moment." Eleanor Van Alen
+ Current Hist & Forum 52:5 F 13 '41 300w

"This is one of the most significant and revealing books yet published about the background of the present war."
+ Foreign Affairs 19:255 O '40 140w

"This collection of hurried, undigested observations is interesting in that they disclose how wrong an intelligent and careful journalist can be proved by the incalculable progression of modern war." L. M.
Living Age 358:490 Jl '40 260w
New Repub 103:62 Jl 8 '40 80w

"Mr. Taylor's book is confident, reasonable, acute and brilliantly written. He tells a good many stories about French politics and the early conduct of the war which deserve permanent record. But its main importance is its description of the technique of psychic Blitzkrieg. The story has formidable lessons for the United States. Don't say that Mr. Taylor hasn't warned us." John Gunther
+ New Repub 103:89 Jl 15 '40 1200w

"Here is a book which deserves careful attention from those who wish to understand the techniques of the psychological war now being waged against us. Here is one of the important books of the day." Shepard Stone
+ N Y Times p1 Jl 7 '40 1450w

"A fresh and enlightening interpretation."
+ New Yorker 16:71 Je 29 '40 50w

Reviewed by Elmer Davis
Sat R of Lit 22:5 Je 29 '40 2100w

Reviewed by O. J. Hale
Social Studies 31:327 N '40 350w
Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 14 '40 650w
Time 36:71 Jl 1 '40 950w

Reviewed by Leo Gershoy
Yale R n s 30:404 winter '41 300w

TAYLOR, FRANK SHERWOOD. Science front, 1939. 301p il $2.50 Macmillan [7s 6d Cassell]
509 Science—History

"This is a readable account of recent developments in various fields of scientific activity, ranging from industrial research to horticultural science and advances in the treatment of diseases. It is written for the general reader and requires no specialised knowledge to be appreciated." Spec

---

"From the scientific point of view a serious criticism of Mr. Taylor's book is that he limits himself almost entirely to British research and seldom mentions discoveries made in this country, even when the first and important work was done here. . . When a book is written from a strictly nationalist point of view and in terms not applicable here, this too should be stated in the title pages for the benefit of the buyer." Gerald Wendt
Books p19 D 15 '40 180w

Reviewed by Albert Dietz
Boston Transcript p2 Je 15 '40 190w
Christian Century 57:675 My 22 '40 140w
Nation 151:199 S 7 '40 70w

"By his industry in collecting material and his assiduousness in collating it, Dr. Sherwood Taylor has made a substantial contribution to extending the range of science. On its merits his book deserves a wide circle of readers." T. H. Hawkins
+ Nature 146:45 Jl 13 '40 650w
New Repub 103:254 Ag 19 '40 70w

TAYLOR, F. S.—Continued

"The reader who is willing to make allowances for Dr. Taylor's discursiveness and for the impossibility of writing any book on general science which is as fresh as today's newspaper will find 'Science Front of 1939' a simple, interesting and informative account of what the natural scientists have been doing in recent years." W. K.

+ — N Y Times p8 My 5 '40 430w

"Dr. Taylor writes simply and is a good expositor, and his book, though not particularly exciting, is interesting and informative."

+ Spec 164:262 F 23 '40 60w

Springf'd Republican p6 Jl 22 '40 230w

"The book is interesting without being sensational, and it can be understood and enjoyed by readers without specialized training. There are eight plates and forty-four helpful diagrams besides a good index."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p79 F 10 '40 70w

TAYLOR, GRIFFITH. See Taylor, T. G.

TAYLOR, IRMA. Perilous journeys; maps by Theodore R. Miller. 232p il $1.50; (Discovery ser) 96c Harcourt

910 Adventure and adventurers (W) 40-4449

Collection of true adventure stories. Contents: A round trip into ocean depths; Up the world's highest mountain; A race against death; Mapping the Gobi desert; First down the Colorado river; The mystery of Paul Redfern; A G-man meets danger; First flight—New York to Paris; A battle with the ocean; Through the heart of Africa; Four hours in a volcano; Around the world in the Graf Zeppelin; Man's highest trip into the air; Hero of the South Pole. Index.

Churchman 154:34 D 1 '40 20w

"The writing has been very carefully revised with the assistance of many boys and girls and moves swiftly, clearly, and thrillingly to the end." Julia Carter

+ Library J 65:814 O 1 '40 140w

Springf'd Republican p7e D 15 '40 140w

Wis Lib Bul 36:150 N '40

TAYLOR, PHOEBE ATWOOD (ALICE TILTON, pseud). The criminal C.O.D. 288p $2 Norton 40-27297

Detective story.

Booklist 36:307 Ap 1 '40

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Books p26 Mr 3 '40 250w

"One of those books you can't put down." Marian Wiggin

+ Boston Transcript p2 Mr 2 '40 70w

"Phoebe Atwood Taylor's murder mysteries can always be depended upon to give her readers a thoroughly amusing time. Asey Mayo, her celebrated Cape Cod detective, is amusing as well as shrewd; and the other Cape Cod folk are amusing whether they are also shrewd or not. . . The story is entertaining and, of course, it is written with some charm; but it is far from this clever author's best." Kay Irvin

+ — N Y Times p16 Mr 3 '40 230w

"Fresh and humorous with some of the best dialogue Miss Taylor has written in a long time."

+ New Yorker 16:92 Mr 9 '40 50w

"Gets under way rather slowly but the rest is well up to amusing and mysterious Mayo specifications. Entertaining."

+ Sat R of Lit 21:20 F 24 '40 40w

"The author outwits the reader at every turn. The enticing atmosphere of the Cape Cod setting, and the genuine naturalness of her delightful characters have never shone more brightly than in this yarn."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e N 3 '40 300w

Time 35:76 Ap 1 '40 40w

Times [London] Lit Sup p619 D 7 '40 240w

TAYLOR, PHOEBE ATWOOD (ALICE TILTON, pseud). The deadly sunshade. 297p $2 Norton 41-37

Detective story.

"As ever, Miss Taylor trifles dangerously with gooseflesh tradition while providing you with laughs, then she brings home the answer in a burst of downright power, or something like that. A refreshing party on quaint Cape Cod, with Asey Mayo, hideous crime and other fun." Will Cuppy

+ Books p28 D 1 '40 200w

"The story has the real Asey Mayo touch and is recommended to those who like a bit of quaint fun with their murders." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p32 D 1 '40 200w

"Asey Mayo is, as usual, momentarily baffled again; this time, though, the details are almost too much to believe. The action is still in Cape Cod, but a plot like this won't do. If you adore Asey Mayo go right ahead and read this, if not, be wary."

New Yorker 16:124 D 7 '40 40w

"Some ludicrous stuff about super-patriotic women, a pair of hard-to-solve murders, and customary dry Mayo wit. Very nice."

+ Sat R of Lit 23:19 D 21 '40 40w

"All the elements of a first-class Asey Mayo mystery story are here, including spicy wit, clever invention and an amusing crew of characters who are at the same time human, with a careless holiday mood masking hidden terror."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e D 29 '40 300w

Time 37:60 Ja 6 '41 50w

TAYLOR, PHOEBE ATWOOD (ALICE TILTON, pseud). The left leg. 275p $2 Norton 40-30892

Detective story.

Booklist 37:156 D 15 '40

"If 'The Left Leg' isn't the funniest mystery in years, this department must have missed the other." Will Cuppy

+ Books p9 Jl 28 '40 280w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin

Boston Transcript p2 Ag 10 '40 50w

"Fun is the right word, for this is, as you have already been told, farce comedy, and the murder is quite incidental. Unfortunately, the comedy is laid on with a trowel and will appeal chiefly to those who like unrestrained slapstick. Alice Tilton is giving her sense of humor too free a rein." Kay Irvin

+ — N Y Times p19 S 15 '40 180w

"Leonidas Witherall, who looks like Shakespeare, gets tangled, and I mean tangled, up in a confusing but amusing mystery. Some funny dialogue and fast movement make this a good one."

+ New Yorker 16:56 Ag 3 '40 30w

Sat R of Lit 22:19 Ag 3 '40 40w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 11 '40 250w

TAYLOR, THOMAS GRIFFITH. Australia; a study of warm environments and their effect on British settlement. 455p il maps $5 Dutton [21s Methuen]

919.4 Australia

College textbook on Australia, describing the physical and human aspects of that continent, its place in the world scheme, and the possible expansion of British settlement. The author is professor of geography in the University of Toronto. Index.

"Valuable addition to a library."
+ Social Studies 32:46 Ja '41 10w

"To produce a university textbook on Australia . . . is no easy task. Professor Taylor's book, which is based on many years' experience and research, and is the work of a scholar who has done a great deal to promote the geographical study of Australia, is a comprehensive survey. . . The book is illustrated by a large number of useful graphs, tables and sketch maps, though some of the latter are too small and overcrowded. The block diagrams and the graphic correlations with the other continents should both help the student to a better understanding of his subject."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p583 N 16 '40 330w

TAYLOR, WARREN CROSBY. Elementary surveying. 236p il $2 Int. textbook
526.9 Surveying 39-25448

"Professor Taylor's book is a text on elementary surveying which admirably achieves its purpose of giving a foundation of surveying knowledge to all engineering students, whether they be mechanical, electrical, civil or any other brand. . . After a brief historical sketch, the first principles of surveying are discussed (chaining, leveling and traversing). Beyond these fundamentals is given an understanding of the various kinds of surveying and mapping with which any engineer might have to deal." Eng N

Booklist 36:340 My 1 '40
+ Eng N 125:80 Jl 18 '40 100w

TEAD, ORDWAY. New adventures in democracy; practical applications of the democratic idea. (Whittlesey house publication) 229p $2 (10s 6d) McGraw 321.8 Democracy 39-28954

For descriptive note see Annual for 1939.

Reviewed by J. R. Commons
Am Econ R 30:436 Je '40 290w

"While it cannot be said that Mr. Tead brings his discussion to full conclusions, it can be affirmed that he is on the right track. There are many points raised which will bear further discussion and elaboration." W. S. Carpenter
+ Am Pol Sci R 34:568 Je '40 500w

Reviewed by J. A. Leighton
Ann Am Acad 208:199 Mr '40 550w

"As chairman of the Board of Higher Education of New York City, Professor Tead is well qualified to outline his idea of a democratically conceived and administered university. . . The discussions covering the fields of public administration and private industry are on a similarly high level. The author's emphasis in the former is on the importance of extending the merit system, in the latter he outlines a challenging plan for self-government in industry. This book, in fact, abounds in stimulating approaches and suggestive material which should be of constructive aid to progressive leaders in all three areas under consideration, but its signal accomplishment is a persuasive demonstration that we have at our disposal the means to make democracy really work." H. J. Bresler
+ Books p13 Mr 24 '40 290w
Cleveland Open Shelf p1 Ja '40

Reviewed by C. E. Merriam
Ethics 50:337 Ap '40 400w
Management R 29:387 O '40 40w

"The author reveals a religious motivation, sometimes by 'sermonizing' and citing secular 'proof-texts,' but more basically by his concern for the unique worth of the individual and his adumbration of the 'twice-born' leader who 'shall make the good appeal to us as desirable.' Mr. Tead's literary style is unfortunately not on an equality with his courage and sincerity." W. E. Collier
+ — Social Studies 31:186 Ap '40 230w

"There is little in the book to suggest that the collective and deliberate judgment of the people themselves may be better than the judgments and decisions of leaders. . . There will undoubtedly be some who read the book who will conclude that Mr. Tead has more faith in 'leaders' than he has in the 'democratic process' as a medium for expressing the will of the people. The line of demarcation between 'administrative procedure' and the assumption of the mind, soul and conscience of the people as a whole by their temporary representatives is not readily distinguishable. Mr. Tead recognizes the dilemma between the claims of 'personal freedom' and of 'organization performance' more clearly when he is on the subject of labor relations or 'economic democracy' than when he is discussing political democracy." R. B. Scandrett, Jr.
Survey G 29:199 Mr '40 360w

TEAGARDEN, FLORENCE MABEL. Child psychology for professional workers. 641p il $3.25 Prentice-Hall
136.7 Child study 40-5289

"This book is designed for social workers, teachers, leaders of parent-education groups, and others who cannot stop with the acquisition of abstract information about children but are obliged to take an active hand in guiding their development. In adapting the subject matter to the immediate needs of an audience of this kind, the author has departed very radically from the conventional organization of books on child psychology. The usual accounts of motor development, language development, learning, perception, reasoning, social behavior, and the like are conspicuous by their absence. Instead, we have chapters on training in fundamental habits such as eating, sleep, elimination, bathing, on the placement of children in boarding homes and institutions, on child adoption, and on special problems relating to the home and school." (Am Soc R) Index.

"For the most part the book is clearly written, although certain chapters are heavily weighted with scientific terms that the majority of its potential readers would be unable to understand without recourse to a medical dictionary. Although the general conclusions and practical suggestions appear sound, a few questionable features appear. . . But these matters are of minor importance when weighed against the exceptionally sane and well-balanced treatment of such topics as sex education and the training of handicapped children." F. L. Goodenough
+ Am Soc R 5:659 Ag '40 350w

Reviewed by W. C. Olson
El School J 41:312 D '40 850w
J Home Econ 33:44 Ja '41 80w

"Although written for 'professionals,' parents and all lovers of children will find this book illuminating and instructive for it is based upon scientific knowledge and presented in non-technical language. The extensive bibliography that follows each chapter is in itself a valuable contribution." E. T. Burr
+ Survey 76:277 S '40 400w

TEAGUE, WALTER DORWIN. Design this day; the technique of order in the machine age. 291p il $6 Harcourt
745 Design. Architecture (W) 40-27361

"Outlines the technique that must be applied to the solution of any problem of design, whether it is a new motor car or a new city or a new environment." (Page 2) Partial contents:

TEAGUE, W. D.—Continued
Sources of form; Fitness to function; Fitness to materials; Fitness to techniques; Unity; Simplicity; Rhythm of proportion; Balance and symmetry; Style. Index.

Booklist 36:322 Ap 15 '40

Reviewed by Gilbert Seldes
Books p1 Ap 28 '40 900w

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison
Christian Century 57:925 Jl 24 '40 1000w

Christian Science Monitor p11 Je 15 '40 310w

Reviewed by G. E. Shipler, Jr.
Churchman 154:17 Je 15 '40 220w

"A well formed and expressive, critical account of modernism in American architecture and the related arts. In addition to being informed with the author's critical awareness, it is both facile and vivacious in style. Less to its credit is the serious treatment given to mechanical aids to creating proportion in buildings and objects and the tendency to over-rate that type of industrial design which savors of an advertising dodge, devised for use in the effort to increase sales. The good qualities of the book, however, are such as to warrant the general attention that may be predicted for it." Barry Byrne
+ — Commonweal 32:45 My 3 '40 550w

"Though 'Design This Day' will be found very useful as a primer, it offers almost nothing for the more advanced student and ought, in fact, to be entitled 'Design Just Yesterday'; such are its viewpoints." Douglas Haskell
+ — Nation 150:489 Ap 13 '40 300w

"A good many of us, perhaps, are scared of the industrial designers, architects and engineers who are changing the face of civilization so rapidly. . . Mr Teague is not so bad as all this. He is reasonable, always stopping on the hither side of dogmatism. He is logical. . . He is not too stark, not too austere, not at all barren. He is tough-minded but at times tenderhearted. . . Yet he has expressed, in very serious and by no means popular or hammock-style prose, his dream of a more orderly, more satisfactory and consequently more beautiful world." R. L. Duffus
+ — N Y Times p3 Ap 28 '40 1600w

"One of our leading industrial designers, who somehow didn't get round to designing a plausible book title, makes a good job of explaining the principles of modern functional form and their possible uses in the building of a more livable society. Excellent illustrations and format."
+ New Yorker 16:99 Ap 13 '40 50w

Pratt p16 autumn '40

"After finishing the volume, we pause and wonder if there is not a certain fusing of ideas obtained when one is burning to set down something in little words; if time is not often an enemy of action and if the sharp spearheads of social movements are not usually worn blunt by contemplation and too much talk. However, taking the book as it comes, the portions that co-relate the various theories of design, from the Egyptians to Henry Ford, make a lucid, workable textbook for any one interested in creating an ordered beauty in an obviously disordered world." Murdock Pemberton
+ — Sat R of Lit 21:11 Ap 13 '40 750w

Springf'd Republican p7e My 5 '40 250w

Theatre Arts 24:612 Ag '40 170w

Wis Lib Bul 36:97 My '40

TEALE, EDWIN WAY. The golden throng; a book about bees; il. with 85 phot. by the author. 208p $3 Dodd

595.799 Bees (W) 40-35142

The author of Grassroot Jungles has here written and illustrated with many photographs a book about bees, in which he has attempted "in addition to recording discoveries of recent years—to bring to the reader, through the eye of the camera, the age-old drama of life in the hive and in the bee's world of flower-filled fields." (Foreword) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 37:170 Ja 1 '41

"Mr. Teale's own text is simple, direct, and informative. It is free of scientific terms, but backed with plenty of scientific information, and it is also free of sentimentalizing." W. P. Eaton
+ Books p4 N 17 '40 440w

"The whole cycle of honeybee life is followed here with a captivating skill and sympathy. The bee's place in legend and literature is looked at, as well as the long course of research that has given us our present knowledge. As for this author's own knowledge—he has his glass-walled hive, and when necessary he opens not only the hive but the cells to observe the maturing creatures within. With equal patience he has taken his beautiful pictures of the bee's life."
+ N Y Times p16 Ja 19 '41 500w

"Mr. Teale has his own observation hive, so that he writes out of a fund of first hand knowledge. He writes with a lucidity and simplicity that are models of the popularization of Nature. And he scatters his photographs with a lavish hand; he is a master photographer of the minuscule in close-up, as well as a most admirably reliable purveyor of scientific facts." D. C. P.
+ Sat R of Lit 23:21 D 28 '40 330w

TEALL, EDWARD NELSON. Putting words to work; a lively guide to correct and vigorous English. 344p $2.50 (12s 6d) Appleton-Century

428.3 English language—Grammar. English language—Rhetoric (W) 40-33873

Discussion of some aspects of English grammar, style, and spelling, with specific information about words and usages. Includes many questions and answers about correct usage based on the author's department in The Inland Printer. Word list. Index.

Booklist 37:132 D 1 '40

Christian Century 57:1282 O 16 '40 120w

"A practical book about English which is valuable to the writer, teacher or businessman. . . Mr. Teall engages in too much quibbling in spots, but by and large his work should prove helpful." G. E. S., Jr.
+ — Churchman 155:35 Ja 1 '41 120w

TEETGEN, ADA B. The waltz kings of old Vienna; with a pref. by Becket Williams. 256p il $3.50 Dutton [12s 6d Jenkins]

B or 92 Strauss, Johann, 1804-1849. Strauss, Johann, 1825-1899 41-1337

Combined biography of the Strauss family: the father who wrote the Radetzky March; Johann, the son, who wrote the Beautiful Blue Danube; with some material on the younger brothers of the second Johann—Josef and Edouard. Index.

"Miss Teetgen casts new light on the English tours of the elder Strauss and the famous American journey of the younger. And her book is readable. On the whole, however, it does not displace Jacob's volume any more than his compares with the analytical and scholarly German biography of Fritz Lange." Claude Simpson
Boston Transcript p1 Mr 9 '40 150w

Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Jl '40

"A chatty book. Though given to the use of such picturesque words as 'gladsome' and 'then-a-days,' she is not unsuccessful in suggesting the individual characteristics of the two Johanns, and the political and social background of their careers." Desmond Shawe-Taylor
New Statesman & Nation 17:792 My 20 '39 130w

"It is the chief defect of this readable, though rather loosely written, biography that it contains no study of this music. The author disarms criticism by saying that her intention is 'rather to tell a story than to present a study.' But she is a sufficiently good storyteller to make the reader wish that this book might have become by the addition of some musical analysis the study of the Strausses which English musical literature still lacks."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p200 Ap 8 '39 460w

TEILHET, DARWIN L., and TEILHET, MRS HILDEGARDE (TOLMAN). The broken face murders. 299p $2 Doubleday 40-7114

Detective story.

"The Teilhets offer a meaty, well done story, complete with diabolical intrigue, excellent puzzle values and more than a little amusement. Altogether, a welcome comeback for the baron and another bullseye for the Teilhets." Will Cuppy
+ Books p16 Mr 10 '40 150w

"The book is a cleverly constructed panorama of exciting incident, though it is just possible some readers may find it a little difficult to remember what it is all about. A little difficult in fact to see the picture clearly through the dust raised by quite so much running to and fro." E. R. Punshon
+ — Manchester Guardian p7 Je 3 '40 140w

Reviewed by Ralph Partridge
New Statesman & Nation 19:808 Je 29 '40 180w

"If you can stand a touch of chaos you will like this one. Things happen so swiftly that your mind must race to keep up with them, and confusion itself is essential to the plot." Kay Irvin
+ N Y Times p26 Mr 10 '40 230w

"Slightly confusing, what with cults and Blue Shirt organizations, but sound enough on the whole."
+ — New Yorker 16:92 Mr 9 '40 40w

"Ramifications of case a bit confusing but it all turns out right and the good Baron Von Kaz comes off better than ever."
+ Sat R of Lit 21:16 Mr 9 '40 40w

Time 35:76 Ap 1 '40 40w

"The Teilhets' novel has both character and atmosphere."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p221 My 4 '40 240w

TEMPLE, WILLIAM, abp. of YORK. Thoughts in war-time. 156p $1.25 (4s 6d) Macmillan

261 War and religion. Sociology, Christian

"In these collected articles, addresses and letters, Dr. Temple lays upon Christians the duty and necessity of facing squarely the social and economic problems of the world at large and of war in particular. He denies that the ideals of the Christian and the practical life of the same person in the role of a citizen must create a tension that will ultimately destroy either the nation or the faith. At the same time the archbishop directs his discussion toward justification for English Christians participating in the European conflict." Christian Century

"Regardless of the comparative merits of either side of the war, this reviewer questions the ground of Dr. Temple's argument." W. C. Christians
Christian Century 57:975 Ag 7 '40 550w

Reviewed by T. F. Opie
Churchman 154:19 S 1 '40 220w

"While Dr. Temple marks very clearly the grounds on which he rejects pacifism, he is mainly concerned in these essays and addresses to save us from the opposite danger, to show how trust in God, submission to God, charity to men, is to be preserved through all the exigencies of the conflict. He leaves it to Canon Streeter's paper at the end of the volume to set out at greater length the argument against pacifism, and, reading again that Oxford Paper written twenty-four or twenty-five years ago, one is struck by seeing how little all the argument for and against pacifism in the last few years has added to the discussions which went on in Christian circles in the earlier months of the last war. The same arguments repeated on either side over and over again! A great deal, of course, of the disagreement is due to confusion or woolliness of thought, and here this little book may be especially useful, with Dr. Temple's exceptional gift for expounding the distinctions which ought to be made and putting things clearly and incisively." Edwyn Bevan
+ Spec 164:418 Mr 22 '40 850w

"The book has a value out of all proportion to its size and price, and forms a notable contribution to the theory and practice of religion in time of war."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p144 Mr 23 '40 450w

TEMPSKI, ARMINE VON (MRS A. L. BALL). Born in paradise. 342p $2.75 Duell

B or 92 Hawaiian Islands—Social life and customs 40-31592

The autobiography of an English-Polish girl born on a large cattle ranch in the Hawaiian Islands. More than half the book tells of her childhood, of her trips with her father over the ranch, or outside on his business connected with it. Glimpses of Hawaiian life and customs mingle with the more personal side of the reminiscences. Glossary of Hawaiian words.

Booklist 37:115 N 15 '40

"The freshness of 'Born in Paradise' is perhaps even accentuated by the lack of pretension in its writing. Miss von Tempski has no great intention of being a serious chronologer, and when she deals with more complex human material she often relies on sentiment rather than reflection. Paradise does not apparently stimulate the analytical processes, but why should it? The simplicity of 'Born In Paradise' belongs to its story, and Miss von Tempski is gay and as charmingly naive as one of her own Hawaiian heroines." Maxwell Geismar
+ Books p12 O 27 '40 360w

"It is a lively story with some poignant passages. For the beauty of the island and the customs of the country it shows due admiration and regard. So generous is the interspersing of Hawaiian words that a seven-page glossary is appended. The writing, however, is not distinguished and for libraries it seems in no way an indispensable book." Catherine Van Dyne
+ — Library J 65:922 N 1 '40 150w

"'Born in Paradise' is a soundly entertaining book in just so far as it draws such concrete pictures from Hawaii's ranch life of forty years ago and from the island scene. There are a number of these pictures, in lively variety. . . Her conversation is not so telling as it ought to be (one suspects that she may have tried too hard). And she falls short of just that clear and selective definition which would give all her scenes a satisfactory pictorial quality. One lays the book down with a sense of some interesting reading which has not measured up to its opportunity, and yet with the feeling of a door having opened, too, on an unfamiliar world." Katherine Woods
+ — N Y Times p31 O 27 '40 1100w

"Very freshly and vividly written."
+ New Yorker 16:87 O 26 '40 30w

"The writing is often lush, and is only for those who can read tranquilly that 'something lawless and passionate, savage and strong, kin

TEMPSKI, A. VON—Continued
to the forces imprisoned in the earth, in the dusk and tidal waves bursting, the taste of European liquors and soft native brews. With them she chased wild bulls along the mountainside, stirred inside me. . .' But even those allergic to adjectives will find the story itself worth while." Hassoldt Davis
Sat R of Lit 23:14 O 26 '40 600w

TEMPSKI, ARMINE VON (MRS A. L. BALL). Pam's paradise ranch; a story of Hawaii; il. by Paul Brown. 333p $2 Dodd 40-14201

Story for older girls about life on a huge cattle ranch in the Hawaiian Islands. The author is an English-Polish girl who spent her childhood on a Hawaiian ranch.

"Paul Brown's horses and dogs are up to standard and the lively plot gives an artist plenty to do." M. L. Becker
+ Books p7 S 1 '40 450w

Reviewed by R. A. Hill
Library J 65:851 O 15 '40 20w

"The book offers a wealth of information about the Hawaiian Islands. Paul Brown's fine drawings of the horses are in keeping with the make-up of the book." A. M. Wetherell
+ Library J 65:881 O 15 '40 150w

Reviewed by E. W. Steele
New Repub 103:845 D 16 '40 50w

"Extra special." Gladys Graham
+ Sat R of Lit 23:25 N 16 '40 40w

TENNEY, HORACE KENT. Let's talk about your baby; with a foreword by Joseph Brennemann. 2d rev ed 115p il $1 Univ. of Minn.
649.1 Infants—Care and hygiene 40-8427

"Here is a series of imaginary conversations between a baby, his mother, and the pediatrician, covering the advice and instruction which pediatricians include in their supervision of babies during the first year after birth." (Survey) The book is a second revised edition of suggestions which Dr Tenney prepared originally for his private patients. Index.

"The book is easy and delightful reading even for a reviewer through whose hands have passed many books of a similar nature. It should prove very helpful to mothers of young children and also save the busy physician many 'night calls.' " R. A. Bolt
+ Am J Pub Health 30:1128 S '40 250w

"The language is simple and direct, the book is pleasant to read, amusing and full of sensible applications of the generally accepted fundamental principles of baby care. Modern fads are conspicuous by their absence. The book is a guide to the middle way between slavish adherence to routine and the equally slavish subjection to the tyranny of a spoiled baby dictator." Hazel Corbin
+ Survey 76:343 N '40 160w

TERHUNE, ALBERT PAYSON. Loot! 289p $2 Harper
40-5401

"To start things at a lively pace, a brave collie tackles a mad bull and saves the life of a pretty girl wearing a red tam o' shanter, which was what infuriated the bull in the first place. The collie belonged to a crusading editor and the tam o' shanter to the sister of his dearest enemy. In the ensuing complications, wherein honest men are framed and corrupt politicians exposed, you can count on Mr. Terhune's collie to see that victory will crown his master's crusade." Books

TERHUNE (tĕr-hūn′)

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Books p23 Mr 3 '40 90w

Reviewed by Charlotte Dean
N Y Times p17 F 25 '40 160w

Springf'd Republican p7e F 25 '40 230w

TERRY, EDWARD M. A Richard Wagner dictionary. 186p $2.25 Wilson, H.W.
782.2 Wagner, Richard (W) 40-27123

A quick reference work on Wagner which arranges in alphabetic order condensed information about his operas and music dramas, lists of original casts, characters, stories of the operas, musical compositions other than operas, biographical sketches of the composer—his family and friends, and other material. Music scores of the leading motifs of the operas are appended, also an 8-page bibliography.

Booklist 36:235 F 15 '40

"A dictionary on Richard Wagner involves the difficulty of casting into alphabetical form all knowledge about one man who was both a composer and a writer. . . The bibliographical problems arising in cataloging such a widespread field are not adequately met. . . It is conceivable that the book may be of some help to radio listeners unfamiliar with Wagner. Unfortunately, it is disappointing to both the librarian and the musician." Siegmund Levarie
— Library Q 10:298 Ap '40 1000w

Wis Lib Bul 36:46 Mr '40

TETLOW, HENRY. On Medlock farm. 272p il $3.25 Morrow
630.1 Farm life 40-7533

The author of We Farm for a Hobby (Book Review Digest, 1938) has been besieged with letters about his farm ever since the book came out. This has been written to answer some of the questions asked and to give sober advice for others who want to take up farming. He attempts to make clear the joys of country living, but also insists that hope and cash are not enough for making money on a farm.

Booklist 36:378 Je 1 '40

" 'On Medlock Farm' is an entertaining and occasionally irritating, an authoritative and perilously inspiring book. It offers temptations to which no one should succumb unless he be certain that he himself is actually another Henry Tetlow." F. F. Van De Water
+ Books p6 Ap 14 '40 750w

"It is stretched out a bit, but done with such zest that you go right along. But much of what Mr. Tetlow does and sees in the country is unique and colorful, recounted with humor." Lenore Friedrich
+ — Boston Transcript p2 Ap 6 '40 900w

"Mr. Tetlow cannot keep entirely away from the practical (must now and then tell you which fruit trees to plant and why) but for the most part nicely sharpened anecdotes rub shoulders with amusing stretches of personal experience. The author is interested in everything in the countryside. He has some good stories to tell about the Pennsylvania Dutch farmers, too." G. G.
+ Sat R of Lit 21:19 Ap 20 '40 220w

Wis Lib Bul 36:96 My '40

THANE, ELSWYTH, pseud. See Beebe, E. T.

THARP, MRS LOUISE HALL. Lords and gentlemen; pictures by Charles V. John. 188p $2 Crowell
(W) 40-4669

The story of a twelve-year-old English boy, who roamed the London docks in 1635. His father had been put in prison for reading the Bible, his mother had died of plague, so Peter felt free to join a shipload of people sailing for Connecticut. His adventures in New England, his capture by the Indians, and his escape in time to warn Fort Saybrook, make an exciting tale for young readers.

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Books p12 My 5 '40 260w

"The plot is not unusual, the characters are more types than individuals, but the author has written in such a direct, simple, and convincing manner that a period of American history is bound to come alive for fifth and sixth graders." Miriam Snow
+ Library J 65:303 Ap 1 '40 150w

Reviewed by R. A. Hill
Library J 65:850 O 15 '40 30w

"Although the story has little to tell that has not already been told about early days in New England, nor is it said with any particular grace, the narrative of action and adventure is well sustained. Charles John's cleanly drawn black and white illustrations add to the attraction of a well-printed book, especially the ship scenes, but Peter is a trifle too bland of countenance for such a rugged young adventurer." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p10 Mr 31 '40 300w

Reviewed by Louise Sigmund
Social Studies 31:239 My '40 120w

Wis Lib Bul 36:140 O '40

THARP, MRS LOUISE HALL. Tory hole; il. by Jessie Robinson. 202p $2 Crowell 40-30718

Story of Connecticut, especially Stamford, during the Revolution. The hero is fifteen-year-old Steven Waring, left in charge of his mother, and brother and sister when the father went to war.

Christian Century 57:1056 Ag 28 '40 20w

"Can be more enjoyed by younger children than most historical novels; excellent for slow readers in the teens. Clear, open style of page, wide margins, illustrations, good paper, attractive binding, but in lightweight cloth not durable enough for the popularity it should enjoy with ages ten to twenty." Maude Adams
+ Library J 65:770 S 15 '40 130w

Reviewed by R. A. Hill
Library J 65:850 O 15 '40 20w

Reviewed by E. W. Steele
New Repub 103:845 D 16 '40 40w

Social Studies 31:335 N '40 30w

Springf'd Republican p7e D 15 '40 120w

THAYER, LEE (MRS EMMA REDINGTON [LEE] THAYER). Guilty! 264p $2 Dodd 40-13557

Detective story.

"Complete with satisfactory sleuthing, comic relief and a touch of pathos." Will Cuppy
+ Books p17 Ag 25 '40 160w

"Highly exciting yarn, but fairly transparent." Marian Wiggin
Boston Transcript p8 Ag 31 '40 30w

"The story makes use of stock characters and emotions, as well as of easy coincidence, but the situation is interesting enough to please Peter Clancy's fans." Kay Irvin
N Y Times p16 S 1 '40 200w

"Plot well worked out and red herrings adequately scattered but some of the chatter is just too cute for words. Average."
+ — Sat R of Lit 22:18 S 21 '40 40w

Springf'd Republican p7e S 22 '40 310w

THAYER, LEE (MRS EMMA REDINGTON [LEE] THAYER). X marks the spot. 269p $2 Dodd 40-3856

Detective story.

"This is a likable and entertaining yarn by a writer whose work is unmarred by fashionable rubber stamps. Yes, Wiggar, the valet, is on hand, too, and the puzzle is more than O. K." Will Cuppy
+ Books p17 F 11 '40 200w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin
Boston Transcript p2 F 17 '40 60w

"Like the other Peter Clancy stories, 'X Marks the Spot' makes fairly good reading." Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p23 F 18 '40 140w

"Easy reading, slightly on the simple side."
+ — New Yorker 16:84 F 17 '40 50w

"Suspicion nicely distributed among interesting characters. Deducing, thanks to supervalet Wiggar, well groomed. Amiable."
+ Sat R of Lit 21:18 F 10 '40 30w

THAYER, VIVIAN TROW; ZACHRY, CAROLINE BEAUMONT, and KOTINSKY, RUTH. Reorganizing secondary education; prepared for the Commission on secondary school curriculum [Progressive educ. association]. 483p $2.75 (15s) Appleton-Century
373 Education, Secondary 39-24290

"A series of publications has resulted from the work of the various committees of this commission, and at least a half-dozen more volumes are in the process of preparation. The key volume in this series of reports deals with the problems of reorganizing secondary education. This book presents the generalizations of the commission's specialized studies as they impinge upon the problem of curriculum organization and provides the basic philosophy and point of view which have shaped the publications of the commission in the various broad fields of the secondary-school curriculum. As the most complete statement which has been made by any of the commissions interpreting the Progressive Education Association's philosophy concerning secondary education, it represents a unique contribution. Further, it is the only report which will be made of the work of the commission as a whole." (School R) Index.

Booklist 36:231 F 15 '40

Reviewed by Theodore Brameld
New Repub 103:877 D 23 '40 60w

Reviewed by G. N. Mackenzie
School R 58:147 F '40 1000w

THEATRE for tomorrow. 397p $3 Longmans
812.08 Dramas—Collections. Damien de Veuster, Joseph (Father Damien)—Drama. Campion, Edmund—Drama. Savonarola, Girolamo Maria Francesco Matteo—Drama 41-562

Three plays on Catholic subjects: Kamiano, the story of Damien, by Emmet Lavery and Grace Murphy; Savonarola, the flame of Florence, by Urban Nagle; "Who ride on white horses," the story of Edmund Campion, by Richard Breen and Harry Schnibbe. In addition the volume contains an outline of the Catholic tradition in drama, and a selected list of Catholic plays. Bibliography.

"All three are in many scenes, with hints of the Living Newspaper technique, and are well paced, lively and full of theatrical situation. They are good theater, especially Mr. Lavery's. But behind that they are conscious of the spiritual forces by which their heroes lived, and by which their authors would say

THEATRE for tomorrow—Continued
the world and its theater of tomorrow must live. This is a heartening book, of which American Catholics should be proud." W. P. Eaton

+ Books p13 D 29 '40 280w

Cath World 152:629 F '41 70w

"'Theatre for Tomorrow' is a book which should be on the shelves of every Catholic institution, as well as in the private libraries of all who are interested in the theatre. The concluding list of Catholic plays is a most welcome addition, and a useful one." Grenville Vernon

+ Commonweal 33:237 D 20 '40 450w

"Although the title is overly bold, the three plays which Emmet Lavery, founder and organizer of the Catholic Theatre Conference, has gathered into one volume demonstrate the talent for vigorous and skilful playwriting which the Catholic theatre movement is fostering."

+ Theatre Arts 25:77 Ja '41 440w

THIELENS, MRS GERRIE (OLLIER). Awake! my heart. 290p $2.50 Harper

(W) 40-27362

Story of a young American girl first in her last year in a Swiss school, then during the first days of her introduction into society in Rome.

Booklist 36:326 Ap 15 '40

"Mrs. Thielens shows ability at selecting her material, but she is not sufficiently mature as an artist to shape it. . . In her effort to confine her tale within the limits of a short space of time in her diary, Mrs. Thielens makes events happen too quickly and with too little motivation. In spite of these faults 'Awake! My Heart' is interesting for its freshness in portraying the state of mind of an exceedingly young and naïve girl." Rose Feld

+ — Books p12 Mr 31 '40 400w

"First novels are often most uncomfortable to read. Even when they are of recognizable merit, they are too often forced, too conscious. So we are pleasantly surprised with the simplicity and skill of this first novel by Gerrie Thielens." Carolyn Fuller

+ Boston Transcript p1 Ap 6 '40 190w

"Gerrie Thielens, a young American woman born in Detroit and living, since her marriage, in Tuscaloosa, Ala., has, with this first novel, scored a distinct success. . . Though barely out of her twenties, she has acquired a style whose lucidity and quiet beauty should serve her well in future literary ventures—and she can tell a story." J. S. Southron

+ N Y Times p7 Mr 24 '40 850w

"There is a fresh and graceful air about it that is very pleasing."

+ New Yorker 16:86 Mr 23 '40 60w

"The style of the novel is exactly right for a story which is supposed to have been written by a school girl. Mrs Thielens has reproduced beautifully the enthusiasms, the shyness and the occasional literary 'preciousness' which mark the diaries of sensitive and intelligent 17-year olds. 'Awake! My Heart,' does not pretend to expound any weighty thesis. It is a light novel and a very pleasant one."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 31 '40 360w

Wis Lib Bul 36:101 My '40

THIRKELL, MRS ANGELA (MACKAIL). Before lunch. 322p $2.50 Knopf [7s 6d Hamilton, H]

(W) 40-6709

A gentle, amusing satire on English "county" life and folk. In this story the chief characters are John Middleton, architect and autocrat, who gives himself airs as a gentleman farmer; his gentle, much younger wife who understands him so well; John's sister Lilian and her two step-children; and his partner, Mr. Cameron. These and other county folk get mixed up in several love affairs but eventually get themselves sorted out so as to promise happiness for the majority.

"An amusing, witty, and pleasant novel."

+ Atlantic Jl '40 80w

Booklist 36:384 Je 1 '40

Bookmark 2:14 Ja '41

"Angela Thirkell's admirers—and they can be counted in the thousands—will welcome her new book, 'Before Lunch.' She has a definite place among American readers. In her own subtle and delicate way she is completely successful in portraying the ridiculous side of the English gentry of the period 'before the second world war.'" Rose Feld

+ Books p3 Je 2 '40 700w

Boston Transcript p5 Je 8 '40 380w

"Unfortunately, in attempting to interpret Mrs. Thirkell's book, I found a difficulty at the outset; for I cannot decide whether she has written a burlesque, a gentle satire, a comedy of manners—or all three. But I am quite certain she has written an extremely amusing novel." Eric Forbes-Boyd

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 F 3 '40 180w

Reviewed by Margaret Williamson

Christian Science Monitor p10 Ag 10 '40 600w

Cleveland Open Shelf p12 My '40

"This book lacks the color and suspense of 'The Brandons,' but it has the same quick wit and shrewd discernment. It is interesting without real excitement, and a first-class satire without a sting." V. C. Perkins

+ — Commonweal 32:172 Je 14 '40 450w

Reviewed by A. L. Graham

Library J 65:500 Je 1 '40 120w

Reviewed by Wilfrid Gibson

Manchester Guardian p3 D 1 '39 270w

"Very humorously and very charmingly the novel depicts a society and a way of life which have of late been violently disrupted, but whether or not that way of life survives the hurricane of war, it is good to have such a fresh, altogether delightful picture of its virtues and its very human absurdities as exists in this new story of the various events which came to a climax 'Before Lunch.'" L. M. Field

+ N Y Times p5 Je 2 '40 650w

"Good summer reading, perhaps even for this summer."

+ New Yorker 16:78 Je 8 '40 50w

Reviewed by Basil Davenport

Sat R of Lit 22:12 Je 22 '40 400w

"Before Lunch makes very pleasant reading, whether you count it as merely a novel for the week-end or as a light dose of humorous patriotism for war-time. It is pure English comedy of the up-to-date pasteurised kind, and nobody does this better than Mrs. Thirkell." John Marks

+ Spec 163:842 D 8 '39 290w

"'Before Lunch' does not attain quite so sharp outlines, either in its situations or its characters, as some of Mrs Thirkell's previous novels. But anybody who appreciates humor and refined sentiment, with flashes of satire and incisive understanding, will find here a fragment of social comedy that might be real."

+ — Springf'd Republican p7e Je 2 '40 460w

"The truth is that something is missing on this occasion, something of wit, of inventive high spirits. Mrs. Thirkell maintains a light and often graceful touch in pairing off Alister and Daphne, Daphne and C. W., Alister and Lilian, Denis and Catherine, and altogether the company go through their sentimental paces with well-bred abandon. But she has in the past brought rather more life and gaiety to the performance."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p699 D 2 '39 500w

THOMAS, CHARLES MARION. Thomas Riley Marshall, Hoosier statesman. (Men of America ser) 296p $3 Miss. Valley press, Oxford, Ohio

B or 92 Marshall, Thomas Riley 40-4552

"By millions of Americans, Thomas Riley Marshall is remembered as the loquacious Vice-President who astounded the Senate by interrupting a legislator's dramatic speech enumerating the needs of the United States with the barbed quip: 'What this country needs is a really good five cent cigar.' But one who spends an evening or two with this book will discover that the 'Hoosier Statesman' was one of the last representatives of the old America —a country lawyer whose delayed 'Horatio Alger' rise in politics after the age of fifty was as dramatic as was his outspoken observations and epigrammatic wit. The book reaches its high-point of interest in the discussion of the crucial post-war period. . . Throughout this period, Marshall's position as Vice-President was as singular as was his refusal to assume presidential powers, and his actions reflect the true character of the man." Harvard Law R

"The author has industriously pieced together Marshall's activities, but the results are not impressive. . . For an understanding of Marshall's own character this book is by no means as revealing as Marshall's Recollections. It is virtually undocumented, although obviously intended as a scholarly study. . . In format the book is far from satisfactory." J. D. Hicks

— Am Hist R 46:488 Ja '41 280w

Reviewed by J. B. Shannon

Am Pol Sci R 34:600 Je '40 150w

Foreign Affairs 19:256 O '40 10w

"To one conditioned to the usual panegyrical style characteristic of a favorable biography, this book, markedly restrained in eulogy, save for condonable lapses, comes as a welcome relief. Although the first forty pages are as dull as most biographical accounts of the early stages of 'our hero's' life, and despite a tendency to repetitiveness, the volume is a pleasant and readable addition to the growing line of biographies of famous Americans."

+ — Harvard Law R 53:1412 Je '40 290w

New Repub 103:94 Jl 15 '40 20w

Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 7 '40 850w

THOMAS, DYLAN. Portrait of the artist as a young dog. 186p $2.50 New directions [7s 6d Dent]

B or 92 40-34154

Prose sketches written by the Welsh poet, describing incidents in the childhood and adolescence of a young Welshman, presumably Mr Thomas himself. The scene is the county of Carmarthen, in Wales.

"All in all it is a slight even though graceful performance and actually closer in idea to 'Dubliners' than to the other volume by Joyce whose title it slyly varies. The subject is less a revealing picture of the growth of the mind of a young poet than a sequence of keen, at times dryly humorous sketches—on a background of contemporary South Welsh countryside and seaside towns—of the provincial, odd, frequently bedeviled persons with whom the author spent his childhood and adolescence. Indeed the book is a rather minor 'Dubliners' since the mood rarely is deep, the drama often tenuous. Where it excels is in the intensity of its visualizations and compressed style, in the poetic projection of the fantasy worlds in which both the child and adult characters dwell, and the characteristically solid expression of subconscious feelings and impressions." Paul Rosenfeld

+ — Books p26 N 17 '40 600w

"For many who find the understanding of Mr. Thomas' poetry difficult, these tales of the poet's childhood may serve to reveal some of the motivations back of his verse." John Ritchey

Christian Science Monitor p12 N 23 '40 130w

Reviewed by Barry Byrne

Commonweal 33:307 Ja 10 '41 260w

"I deplore the unnecessary coarseness of some of Mr. Thomas's material, but he is a vivid and highly gifted writer." J. D. Beresford

+ — Manchester Guardian p3 Ap 5 '40 170w

"The book is acutely alive, frankly sensuous yet delicate, racy in its humor but showing also an exquisite spiritual earnestness. D. H. Lawrence would have liked Mr. Thomas. So would Rilke."

+ Nation 151:512 N 23 '40 80w

"There is not a great deal to say of this book except that it is very good. If Thomas' verse is generally baffling in its obscurity, his stories—these stories at any rate—discourage comment by their very transparency." F. W. Dupee

New Repub 103:906 D 30 '40 300w

"As readers of Mr. Dylan Thomas's poetry will know, he is a master of the vivid phrase and in his stories he shows himself to be a skilful writer of prose. Unfortunately his trouble is finding anything to get the machine working; the prose tumbles out with a rich Welsh cadence but it isn't about anything at all. . . On the other hand, disregarding content, the word patterns and the images have a good deal of charm." Anthony West

+ — New Statesman & Nation 19:542 Ap 20 '40 140w

"This volume of short stories by the young Welsh poet defies all traditional rules, following persistently its own strongly individual line. Few of the ten sketches have a distinct plot or a definite climax, and none is built into a frame. They are constructed freely, gaining clarity and form from a complete harmony of style and mood." Marianne Hauser

+ N Y Times p4 D 29 '40 700w

"Slight, but full of salt and humor."

+ New Yorker 16:86 O 26 '40 30w

"The distinguishing qualities of Mr. Thomas's poetry are its singular imagery and its rhythmical vigour. These, together with a remarkable narrative facility, are also the merits of his prose. But his prose is less successful than his poetry. . . Mr. Thomas's poetry is almost always the poetry of an adult; his prose often seems that of a newly emancipated adolescent, celebrating his release from the repression of schooldays and anxious to parade the fact that he has no taboos. In many cases, where Mr. Thomas makes use of the colloquialisms of the streets and of expressions commonly classed as impolite, they are neither necessary nor effective, and appear to be brought in in a hope of shocking, which shows Mr. Thomas to be a little old-fashioned in some of his ideas." Derek Verschoyle

+ — Spec 164:496 Ap 5 '40 490w

"Mr. Dylan Thomas has a way with words and produces a great many clever or unconventional effects in this brief essay in fiction. Whether these effects make up for so bodiless an illusion of experience is open to question. . . The atmosphere of schoolboy smut and practical jokes and poetry is evoked with lingering accuracy but with nothing more; the boys themselves are mere phantoms. A scene in which four people tipple parsnip wine and plan to collaborate in writing a novel contains snatches of dialogue as clever as paint. The final scene mingles beer-drinking at a bar with intimations, perceptions, poetizations of love in a vein of humorous fantasy."

— + Times [London] Lit Sup p173 Ap 6 '40 300w

THOMAS, DYLAN. The world I breathe. 183p $2.50 New directions

828 40-5259

"[This volume contains] a collection of poems and tales by a twenty-four-year-old Welshman who has published three books in

THOMAS, DYLAN—Continued
London, the first in 1934, and who has become as conspicuous in what might be called the Welsh literary awakening as was Yeats in Ireland forty years ago. It would appear that, just as Yeats and his fellows applied the manner of the Continental symbolists to the rich matter of Ireland's past, young Wales is studying symbolism, Freud and surrealism as avidly as Welsh lore and legend." Books

---

"Despite occasional weaknesses like florid rhetoric, excessive alliteration and self-consciousness, Thomas's verse is remarkable for its intensity and magical suggestion. The short stories contain more of Wales, and more quick intelligibility, and more variety. They have the madmen and murders and miscellaneous weirdness of Poe, and the blend of superstition, fantasy and grotesque realism that makes sixteenth-century Scottish ballads interesting." Kerker Quinn
+ — Books p14 F 25 '40 450w

Reviewed by Paul Rosenfeld
Nation 150:399 Mr 23 '40 800w

"Being a Welshman, Thomas has a wicked way with words. That desiccation of ideas and dissonance of music so familiar in the verse of the English lads is wholly missing here. Both the poems and the stories—the latter requiring only abbreviation and meter to become almost indistinguishable from the former—have experienced a rhetorical transformation into something exceedingly rich and strange." Dunstan Thompson
New Repub 102:447 Ap 1 '40 550w

Reviewed by Louise Bogan
New Yorker 15:62 Ja 27 '40 60w

"Mr. Thomas proceeds to pour out such a glitter of magic—magic by itself and for its own sake—as we have not seen since Wallace Stevens published Harmonium. It is the answer, and the right answer, to all the jejune precisionism, and dreary ironic defeatism, of the past generation: it is the return of the gift of the gab, and let us celebrate it. If Mr. Thomas does nothing else—difficult as that may be to believe—he has already given us something priceless by breaking open this door." Conrad Aiken
+ Poetry 56:159 Je '40 700w

"A dozen times on every page one is struck by Dylan Thomas's virtuosity: as a technician in words he must be granted his place with the acknowledged masters of our time—with Pound, with Eliot, with Stevens. He is not, however, like them, a great poet; nor does the substance of 'The World I Breathe' indicate that he promises to be one." D. F.
Sat R of Lit 22:20 My 11 '40 240w

THOMAS, ELEANOR. Becky and Tatters; a Brownie scout story; il. by Gertrude Howe. 100p $1.50 Scribner

(W) 40-27621

"The first Brownie Scout story. Concerns a very realistic little girl and her dog who try to confine their energies to apartment house living. Full of the normal activities and good times of a Brownie troop including camping out and a lively, but unsensational, mystery." Library J

Booklist 37:20 S '40

"Characterization is good. Large illustrations, frontispiece in color, by Gertrude Howe are delightful. Paper pleasing, type small. Vocabulary for age nine, but good reading—aloud for seven and eight—and parents!" Maude Adams
+ Library J 65:715 S 1 '40 90w

THOMAS, HENRY, pseud. See Schnittkind, H. T.

THOMAS, IVOR, ed. and tr. See Selections illustrating the history of Greek mathematics

THOMAS, MRS JEANNETTE (BELL). Big Sandy. 302p il $2.75 Holt

917.69 Kentucky—Social life and customs. Mountain whites (South) (W) 40-13439

"The Traipsin' Woman," as the author is called by her Southern mountaineer friends, describes in anecdotal fashion the life and customs of the descendants of the Elizabethan Americans, living along the banks of the Big Sandy river in Kentucky. She includes the story of the tragic Hatfield-McCoy feud. Index.

Booklist 37:92 N 1 '40

"Jean Thomas has made another—her sixth—contribution to a field of regional writing in which she is very much at home. 'Big Sandy' is entertaining, authentic and singularly human." C. B. Firestone
+ Books p4 Ag 18 '40 480w

"This is a good book, interesting, authentic, well put together. Miss Thomas is no tripper. She has not made a dash through the Big Sandy Country that she might write about it. She has lived there for years, earned the confidence of the regular-featured mountain people, absorbed, not taken down, their culture and their folkways." Horace Reynolds
+ Christian Science Monitor p10 S 28 '40 410w

"Big Sandy is readable in style. As a picture of the mountain people of Kentucky, their singing times, their crafts and their dialect, their way of life, and their thought and tradition, it is of real value to public libraries and a contribution to the popular Americana which public libraries are finding it more and more essential to add to their shelves." M. E. Clark
+ Library J 65:591 Jl '40 100w

"[An] entirely sympathetic and revealing book covering life as it is lived by these simple, unlettered and self-reliant folk. Most readers will be deeply moved by the incidents and the manner in which they are recorded. The vitality of the people portrayed is matched by the vigor of their language, which, as reproduced, is amazingly pictorial." E. F. Allen
+ N Y Times p30 N 24 '40 700w

"Miss Thomas stands out in her field, and this is one of her best books."
+ New Yorker 16:62 Ag 10 '40 90w
Sat R of Lit 22:20 S 14 '40 250w
Springf'd Republican p10 Ag 16 '40 800w

THOMAS, MRS JEANNETTE (BELL). The sun shines bright. 275p $2.50 Prentice-Hall

B or 92

The Kentucky author sometimes known as "the traipsin' woman" tells the story of her own career. Beginning as a court stenographer in the days when that work was not considered quite suitable for young ladies, she made the circuit of the mountain courts, and it was then that she first became interested in the old ballads sung by the mountain people. She records the difficulties she encountered in establishing the American folk song society and the annual song festivals held near her home, and includes many anecdotes of the Kentucky mountaineers themselves.

Booklist 37:215 Ja 15 '41

"It is from the Kentucky mountains that Miss Thomas brings us the greatest interest of her autobiography as well as of her other books. . . Her book is worth reading for what it tells us, anew, of the mountaineers and Miss Thomas's interpretation of them to a larger world."
+ N Y Times p3 Ja 5 '41 280w

THOMAS, JOHN ALUN. House of commons, 1832-1901; a study of its economic and functional character. 176p $2.50 (7s 6d) Oxford [7s 6d Univ. of Wales]

328.42 Great Britain. Parliament. House of commons. Great Britain—Politics and government [40-6259]

"Mr. Thomas has made an important addition to the literature inspired by the economic or 'functional' approach to politics. He does not contend that members of parliament are actuated exclusively by economic motives, but he thinks that 'very little attention has hitherto been paid to the part which economic interest plays in shaping the beliefs and desires of the individual member and of the party to which he belongs'. . . The author deals with the seventeen parliaments of the period 1832-1901 and gives tables to show the economic composition of the two major political parties returned to the house of commons of each of these parliaments and of the minor parties. They are tables of 'interests', classified as landholders, merchants, manufacturers, etc." Am Hist R

"It is evident that a great amount of labor has gone into the compilation of these tables, and for this Mr. Thomas deserves our gratitude. They would have answered more questions than they do, however, if they gave the number of members of each party returned at each of these seventeen general elections as well as the number of interests. . . Mr. Thomas's figures do not always seem to warrant his conclusions." R. L. Schuyler

Am Hist R 45:643 Ap '40 800w

"The study is somewhat elementary, and the approach less novel than the author seems to suppose. The volume will, however, repay some attention from students of problems of representation." F. A. Ogg

+ — Am Pol Sci R 34:800 Ag '40 150w

"Mr. Thomas's tables are useful as reflecting the general character of Parliaments, but they have a strictly limited value. . . The book is rather a collection of statistics than a study."

Times [London] Lit Sup p270 My 6 '39 430w

THOMAS, LESLIE. The story on the willow plate; adapted from the Chinese legend; with il. by the author. 48p $1.25 Morrow 40-11022

Retelling for young readers of the Chinese legend upon which the blue willow china pattern is based. Appeared first in Good Housekeeping.

Booklist 37:141 D 1 '40

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Books p8 O 13 '40 240w

THOMAS, LOWELL JACKSON. How to keep mentally fit. 248p il $2 Howell, Soskin

131.32 Intellect. Mental tests. Information tests (W) 40-31653

The famous radio commentator here presents some suggestions for acquiring a knowledge of one's own capacities and for developing the powers of observation, memory, speech, etc.

Commonweal 32:474 S 27 '40 130w

Reviewed by Wilfred Funk

Current Hist & Forum 52:37 O 22 '40 600w

Springf'd Republican p8 Ja 21 '41 60w

THOMAS, MILTON HALSEY, comp. Bibliography of John Dewey, 1882-1939; with an introd. by Herbert W. Schneider. 2d ed rev and enl 246p $3 Columbia univ. press [15s Oxford]

012 Dewey, John—Bibliography 40-3840

Chronological listing of John Dewey's books, articles, and miscellaneous writings from 1882 to 1939, bringing the 1929 edition (Book Review Digest, 1930) to 1939, and commemorating Dewey's eightieth birthday. Part II consists of a bibliography of writings about Dewey. Index.

"The value of such a compilation to students of philosophy, of the history of thought and of the development of social interests in the mind of a philosopher is obvious."

+ Christian Century 57:115 Ja 24 '40 70w

Reviewed by W. C. Bower

J Religion 20:421 O '40 140w

"On the whole, the book is an extremely useful record for librarian, scholar, and perplexed citizen of the day—whether the interest be in logic and philosophy of science, in democratic education, or in the turmoil of contemporary politics."

+ Library Q 10:463 Jl '40 120w

THOMAS, NORMAN MATTOON, and SEIDMAN, JOEL ISAAC. Russia—democracy or dictatorship? 71p il pa 25c League for industrial democracy

947.084 Russia—Politics and government. Russia—Social conditions. Russia—Economic conditions 40-3708

"This pamphlet offers a brief factual evaluation of Russia today in terms of its professed democracy and its accursed dictatorship. The final judgment of the authors is that there is no semblance of democracy left because of the absolute despotism of Joseph Stalin." Churchman

Christian Century 56:1609 D 27 '39 50w

Churchman 154:34 Mr 1 '40 80w

Foreign Affairs 18:574 Ap '40 10w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 25 '40 430w

THOMPSON, CRAIG, and RAYMOND, ALLEN. Gang rule in New York; the story of a lawless era. 406p $3.50 Dial press

364 Crime and criminals—New York (city). New York (city)—Social conditions. Gangs. Corruption (in politics) 40-27289

"The period covered by this critique covers roughly the last twenty years—that is to say, it begins with prohibition, carries through the main outlines of the dry era, follows up the post-repeal skulduggery, and ends with the dubious and somewhat chaotic present, when the racketeers may or may not be on the run. This book is the most nearly complete summary of this phase of New York life, covering that period, that has yet been published. . . With few exceptions, the facts and incidents related herein have either been published in great detail in the newspapers, or they have been discussed, in part at least, in various books, most of them written by New York newspaper men. The attempt in this book is to bring all this matter together in one coherent study." Books

Booklist 36:300 Ap 1 '40

"This sociological-criminal-political treatise by the Messrs. Thompson and Raymond (two New York newspaper men of high standing) is marred by an appalling number of inaccuracies, most of them, it is true, minor. . . But such lapses do not impeach the essential integrity of this thought-provoking opus. It makes good reading, and it will be a valuable source book for some future philosopher who may wonder why New Yorkers in these two particular decades were tossed around with such ease by picaroons whose station in life ranged all the way from the gutter to the Federal bench." Stanley Walker

+ — Books p13 Mr 10 '40 1200w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin

Boston Transcript p2 Mr 16 '40 120w

Reviewed by Edward Levinson

Nation 150:546 Ap 27 '40 500w

THOMPSON, C., and RAYMOND, A.—Cont.
"Repetitive and wandering at times, the book is still exciting, instructive and gloomy reading."

+ New Repub 102:481 Ap 8 '40 90w

Reviewed by E. F. Allen
N Y Times p9 Mr 10 '40 700w

New Yorker 16:90 Mr 9 '40 30w

Reviewed by S. G. Kling
Survey 76:309 O '40 240w

Time 35:84 Ap 8 '40 1000w

THOMPSON, EDGAR TRISTRAM, ed. Race relations and the race problem; a definition and an analysis; contributors: Robert E. Park [and others]. 338p maps $3.50 Duke univ. [21s Cambridge]

325.26 U.S.—Race question. Negroes. Race problems 39-21842

"[This] symposium is contributed to by eleven writers, two of whom are colored, and about half of the whites are Northerners. It is a study of the American Negro from the biological, economic, and psychological points of view." (Ann Am Acad) Contents: The nature of race relations, by R. E. Park; Competition and the racial division of labor, by E. B. Reuter; The trend of the racial balance of births and deaths, by S. J. Holmes; Racial competition for the land, by R. B. Vance; Patterns of race conflict, by G. B. Johnson; The Negro as a contrast conception, by L. C. Copeland; The plantation: the physical basis of traditional race relations, by E. T. Thompson; A comparative study of American caste, by W. L. Warner and Allison Davis; Race mixture and the mulatto, by E. V. Stonequist; Race relations and social change, by C. S. Johnson. Bibliography.

"No new material is presented; but the focussing of interpretation upon the single racial situation with side glances at the Oriental in the Western States gives peculiar potency to contributions of the authors. . . Two characteristics the essays have in common: each is quite readable and each aids in achieving the purpose of the volume 'to organize a discussion of race relations with special reference to the South in such a way as to throw emphasis upon the relations rather than upon a particular race.' The book should be of value to any reader who is interested in getting within the scope of one volume a survey of the 'race problem' in its sociological and economic setting within the United States." R. A. Allen

+ Am Econ R 30:199 Mr '40 250w

Reviewed by Paul Lewinson
Am Hist R 45:978 Jl '40 120w

Reviewed by G. E. Simpson
Am Soc R 5:458 Je '40 700w

Reviewed by W. E. B. Du Bois
Ann Am Acad 207:255 Ja '40 2400w

Reviewed by Arthur Raper
Christian Century 57:768 Je 12 '40 800w

Reviewed by S. M. Strong
Ethics 50:367 Ap '40 310w

Foreign Affairs 18:749 Jl '40 10w

"This book belongs among the growing body of objective and significant studies on the Negro in America; and students of race problems are indebted to Professor Edgar T. Thompson for securing the coöperation of the ten scholars who made the work possible." E. F. Frazier

+ Pol Sci Q 55:292 Je '40 460w

Reviewed by G. V. Price
Social Educ 4:223 Mr '40 360w

"The book is well planned; the various contributions all have merit, and some of them are of a very high order." I. C. Brown

+ Social Forces 19:284 D '40 360w

"The volume, although scientific in its treatment and grasp of the many phases of a complicated subject, should be of interest to those outside the professional sociological field for its clear statement of an important problem."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e S 22 '40 1000w

Reviewed by Alain Locke
Survey 76:82 F '40 490w

THOMPSON, FRANCIS R. Electric transportation. 427p il $4 Int. textbook

621.33 Electric railroads. Trolley buses. Street railroads 40-27290

"The book has been prepared from the application viewpoint for the engineering, maintenance, and operating personnel of electric-transportation properties, for students in colleges, for design engineers, and for others who are interested in the selection of the proper propulsion equipment for a specific service. No theoretical discussions, such as are found in all direct-current and alternating-current machinery textbooks, have been included; and all mathematical data have been omitted except where necessary to establish performance." (Introd) Index.

Booklist 36:302 Ap 1 '40

N Y New Tech Bks 25:13 Ja '40

THOMPSON, HAROLD WILLIAM. Body, boots and britches [decorations by Margaret Van Doren Bevans]. 530p $3.50 Lippincott

398.3 Folklore—New York (state). Ballads. Legends—New York (state). New York (state)—Social life and customs (W) 40-2174

"A collection of the ballads, folklore and local history of New York State, selected from material gathered by students of Professor Thompson's course in American Folk Literature at the state college in Albany, and set in a historical framework by himself." (New Repub) The title is a Dutchess county idiom meaning "the whole thing." Index.

Booklist 36:232 F 15 '40

Bookmark p7 Mr '40

Reviewed by S. H. Holbrook
Books p3 D 31 '39 1150w

"To those who are interested in folk culture his book can be strongly recommended. It is also much more amusing and instructive than the mediocre fiction which afflicts the present publishing season." H. M. Jones

+ Boston Transcript p5 Ja 6 '40 1200w

New Repub 102:93 Ja 15 '40 40w

"Kit and kaboodle I am for 'Body, Boots and Britches.' Of all books devoted exclusively to the folklore of an American region I can find it the most satisfying. With a patience lightened by the fun he was getting out of it Professor Thompson has been collecting the materials of this volume for several years. Now he has woven them into a sparkling homespun tapestry that every lover of Americana will want to have around the house." Carl Carmer

+ N Y Times p2 D 31 '39 1150w

"A whopping big haul of prime New York State folklore."

+ New Yorker 15:55 D 30 '39 50w

Pratt p8 autumn '40

"Here is scholarship with salt on its spine, and a book that belongs in every library of New York State and on the table of every lover of that State's history." Christopher Morley

+ Sat R of Lit 21:5 D 30 '39 700w

Wis Lib Bul 36:29 F '40

THOMPSON, HOMER COLUMBUS. Vegetable crops. 3d ed 578p il $5 (33s) McGraw

635 Vegetables 39-23018

"This book is the third edition of a standard text-book dealing with the production and marketing of vegetables. Particular attention is paid to vegetables cultivated in the eastern States, and all the subtropical products from limited areas of Florida and elsewhere are omitted. Nine years have elapsed since the previous edition, and opportunity is well taken to bring the text up to date, and to include consideration of recent research, carried out for the greater part at the Cornell Agricultural Experiment Station." (Nature) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 36:72 O 15 '39

"The success of American and British growers in breeding and selecting varieties suitable for their own conditions tends to make this book of somewhat limited use to growers in another country, although its value to students, for whom it is written, is not thereby seriously impaired."
Nature 145:283 F 24 '40 600w

THOMPSON, LAURA MAUD. Fijian frontier; introd. by Bronislaw Malinowski. 153p il maps $2 Inst. of Pacific relations. Am. council

572.9961 Fijians. Society, Primitive 41-1008

"This delightful volume paints a vivid picture of modern life on Kambara, an island of the Lau archipelago in Fiji. Dr Thompson describes sympathetically the customs she observed during nine months of field work in 1933-34. The life of the native from birth to death, the institution of marriage, the political and economic structure, sickness, sorcery, and religion receive varying degrees of attention, and tantalizing bits of behavior, interjected throughout, give life to the description of contemporary Kambaran life; present customs are analyzed to expose the changes which have taken place in the native culture during a century of white contact." Am Anthropol

"The positive contributions of this volume evoke little criticism. Its only defect, in the opinion of the reviewer, lies rather in what it fails to present. Many suggestions are all too briefly treated. Generalizations which seem promising are often hastily brushed aside without careful consideration." C. S. Ford + — Am Anthropol 42:685 O '40 1100w

"Within the short compass of her book, Miss Thompson succeeds admirably in her aim, but the specialist looking for a detailed acculturation study with significant generalizations about native-white contacts will be disappointed. This account is good, but brief, and not sufficiently analytical in presentation. For a short, exceptionally well-written, as well as authoritative account of a people in the throes of change, this book is to be recommended." J. G. McAllister
+ — Am Soc R 5:981 D '40 290w

Reviewed by Clark Wissler
Pacific Affairs 13:357 S '40 900w

THOMPSON, MRS MARY (WOLFE). Blue horizon; decorations by Janice Holland. 222p $2 Longmans

(W) 40-13053

Vocational story for older girls. In order to help her father out of financial difficulties and keep her brother in medical school Janet Mackenzie took a position as junior assistant with an interior decorating firm. Besides information on the work, the story contains a slight mystery, and an incipient love affair.

Booklist 37:20 S '40

"Admirable story for older girls." M. L. Becker
+ Books p20 N 10 '40 250w

"The author writes convincingly about Janet's work. Here is the happy combination of a good story fused with the genuine career interest, a touch of mystery and a romance, for good measure." F. B. Sloan
+ Christian Science Monitor p13 O 31 '40 100w

Reviewed by J. L. Sauer & E. W. Turpin
Library J 65:771 S 15 '40 370w
Social Studies 31:335 N '40 40w

"Another appealing story especially designed for teen-age girl readers with an underlying trend of helpfulness for persons confronted with the problems of living amid modern surroundings."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 5 '41 260w
Wis Lib Bul 36:142 O '40

THOMSON, GEORGE PAGET, and COCHRANE, WILLIAM. Theory and practice of electron diffraction. 334p il $6 (18s) Macmillan

530.1 Electrons. Diffraction 40-6777

"The discovery of electron diffraction furnishes direct experimental proof of the wave-mechanics theory, and provides a means of investigating the structure of matter in surface layers, thin films, and gases. This work by professors in the Imperial College of Science and Technology sets forth experimental technique, mathematical theory, and various applications. Well diagramed and illustrated." (N Y New Tech Bks) Indexes.

"The authors are to be congratulated on having produced a timely survey and appraisal of our present stock of knowledge regarding the diffraction of electrons." C. J. Davisson
+ Nature 145:367 Mr 9 '40 1000w
N Y New Tech Bks 25:10 Ja '40

"The reviewer feels that although this book has gone a long way in describing the material available in this field the authors would have been justified in making it somewhat longer. For example, there are now available enough data on the electron diffraction from gas molecules alone to warrant considerable expansion of the authors' Chapter XVII on this subject. However, this book is highly recommended by the reviewer for physicists working in this field and for others as a reference book." L. R. Maxwell
+ — R of Scientific Instruments 11:155 Ap '40 850w

THOMSON, VIRGIL. The state of music. 250p $2.75 Morrow

780.071 Music as a profession 40-4378

For descriptive note see Annual for 1939.

"The composer who made an operatic succès fou out of 'Four Saints in Three Acts' is no conventional Marxian critic. He seems, at a quick glance, to have dashed off a brilliant profile of the Composer and Society—over a three-quarters candid self-portrait, with some contributory minor sketches of painters, poets and other 'neighbors.' But the effect is deceptive. His witty and apparently discursive tract is a searching analysis of both the ideal music state and the organized world of music. For scope, penetration and emphasis on economic factors, it resembles nothing so much as Trotsky's 'Literature and Revolution.'" Minna Lederman
+ New Repub 102:416 Mr 25 '40 470w

"Mr. Thomson's bump of reverence is small, and he pulls no punches. He has, in fact, written a wise, witty, thoroughly informed and pleasantly hardboiled study of music and most of the allied arts which is an almost unalloyed pleasure to read." E. F. W.
+ Sat R of Lit 21:19 Mr 16 '40 200w
Springf'd Republican p7e N 3 '40 70w

"Mr. Thomson undeniably is an able and talented composer, as witness his Four Saints in Three Acts, and he has much of real interest to say on the subject of creative music; but he mars his writing by an overemphasis on epigrammatic statement. Even the jacket quotes a few 'samples' of what he, or his publishers, or both, deemed striking aphorisms, which do not for the most part stand the test of clear, straight thinking. However, if the reader can overcome an inevitable prejudice against such studied witticism, he may extract a great deal that is worth while from the body of the text with its many pungent and often keen observations on music and musicians." Montefiore

THOMSON, VIRGIL—Continued

+ — Theatre Arts 24:219 Mr '40 440w

THONE, FRANK ERNEST ALOYSIUS. The microscopic world. 245p il $3 Messner

589.95 Micro-organisms (W) 40-31698

"In this book Dr. Thone passes the micro-beasts before us in review and takes us on a hike through the micro-forests of bacteria, molds and algae, and helps us to understand where, how, and why these things exist, what they mean to us, and how we know about them." (Publisher's note) Illustrated with over a hundred photographs, many of them from the collection by Dr George Roemmert, maker of the microvivarium. Index.

Booklist 37:141 D 1 '40

"While its style is admirable for its purpose, the book's main value lies in the illustrations, which occupy about as much space as the letterpress. . . It would be difficult to find a more suitable holiday gift for any one suspected of biological leanings." H. M. Parshley

+ Books p41 D 1 '40 140w

"All in all, a fascinating trip into what is to most of us an unexplored world." H. B. K.

+ Boston Transcript p2 F 1 '41 160w

"The book is easy to read and entertaining, and the illustrations are splendid. When you have finished reading it you will have gained some additional information about many of the things comprising a part of life with which so many are too little acquainted."

+ Chem & Chem Eng N 18:907 O 25 '40 130w

"The interest of this book's text is paralleled—is indeed even rivaled—by the interest of the pictures. The beautiful radiolaria, the variously patterned diatoms, the hydra that spout their offspring like the branches of a tree—these are only a few of the book's strange sights. You will see here also the anthrax bacilli and the malaria germ. But you will remember with pleasure the stylistic forms of protozoan complexity."

+ N Y Times p4 S 29 '40 280w

"Excellent." Raymond Holden

+ Sat R of Lit 23:21 N 16 '40 30w

THORNDIKE, EDWARD LEE. Human nature and the social order. 1019p $4 Macmillan

301.15 Psychology. Social psychology 40-10178

"The book, addressed 'not only to college students of the social sciences, but also to thinking men and women,' includes thirty-eight chapters grouped into two parts. Part I, fifteen chapters, is largely factual material considered basic for policies and practices in human relations, and Part II consists largely of implications of these facts for social science. There is, however, overlapping between the two parts." School R

"Thorndike has written a book that will be of great help to serious students of the larger social problems with which psychology is concerned. But it is written for the person who is able to chew pretty tough food. It is not for the person who has learned psychology from pamphlets or casual reading." F. H. Kirkpatrick

+ Christian Century 58:24 Ja 1 '41 650w

Reviewed by David Snedden

School & Society 52:529 N 23 '40 2600w

"The author deserves much credit for interest and effort in pushing the methods of science into fields of human relationship, thereby hoping to substitute reliable predictions for the guesses—more or less astute—which often prevail. To indicate the possibilities of improving the predictive capacity of the social sciences, Thorndike compares the current predictability in some social sciences with that in an older astrology or alchemy. In places the discussion might have been condensed . . . particularly if one considers the suitability of a thousand-page book for 'thinking' lay readers. Perhaps, too, for such readers less use might have been made of mathematical and scientific symbols. However, most students of human relations and of social institutions will profit substantially from contact with at least part of the chapters." H. H. Punke

+ — School R 48:549 S '40 800w

Social Studies 31:288 O '40 20w

"Every sage must desire to give mankind the testament of his wisdom and to clarify his ideas on the sorry world he has known and the means at hand for remolding it nearer to the heart's desire. One can only congratulate Professor Thorndike on his success in realizing this grandiose ambition in a work of maturity, scholarship and keen insight, a work which is singularly in tune with the thought-currents of his time. Not that a book which ranges so widely as this and quantificates and pontificates so boldly will always command agreement. Even the most friendly critic will find the author occasionally wandering into the eccentric and will tire of the endless juggling of a psychologist's statistics." W. R. Crawford

+ — Social Studies 32:89 F '41 800w

THORNDIKE, EDWARD LEE. 144 smaller cities. 135p $1.50 Harcourt

323.352 Cities and towns—U.S. U.S.—Social conditions. Social surveys 40-31405

"In [this book] Dr. Thorndike does for cities of 20,000 to 30,000 what he did for cities of 30,000 or over in 'Your City' [Book Review Digest, 1939]. He describes their individual peculiarities, assigns ratings for the general goodness of life, and suggests ways and means whereby cities of this size may improve themselves." (Publisher's note) Index.

Booklist 37:84 N 1 '40

Boston Transcript p1 Ag 17 '40 70w

Reviewed by C. L. Willard, Jr.

Churchman 154:5 N 1 '40 200w

THORNE, ANTHONY. Cabbage holiday. 300p $2 Random house [7s 6d Heinemann] (W) 40-27534

It all started because Madame Fifine enjoyed such good health that it began to pall on her. Madame was the proprietress of a French house of the nicest kind but undoubtedly not to be mentioned in polite society. So when a canny doctor recommended "cabbage and tranquillity" for Madame she retired to England for a rest, and established herself in a quiet little village, without mentioning her background. Madame's rest was a complete cure for herself, and quite a stirring-up for the village.

Booklist 36:398 Je 15 '40

Reviewed by George Conrad

+ Books p6 Je 9 '40 550w

" 'Cabbage Holiday' is glib, mildly insane, and frequently wise. It has none of the overtones, or the underlying sadness of Mr. Thorne's earlier 'Fruit in Season.' " Ruth Hard

+ Boston Transcript p2 Je 15 '40 360w

New Repub 102:802 Je 10 '40 50w

" 'Cabbage Holiday' is a pastime story, pleasing, companionable and amusing. . . And Anthony Thorne makes the reader feel that in a dark hour his lightsome novel is worth more than many a weightier volume." Beatrice Sherman

+ N Y Times p18 Je 16 '40 410w

"There are books that make me smile as I read and books that make me stop reading and laugh. The latter are rare. Not since Patrick Hamilton's Impromtu In Moribundia have I laughed so loudly, so long, and so often as I did over Cabbage Holiday. It is as efficient and richly absurd as an Aldwych farce, and it deserves to be equally popular." Desmond Hawkins

+ Spec 164:260 F 23 '40 170w

"A very light novel which is considerably more entertaining and better written than such books usually are."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Je 9 '40 290w

"Mr. Thorne says some very amusing things and manages his puppets with gaiety and speed."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p137 Mr 16 '40 310w

THORNE, DIANA. Drawing dogs; with an introd. by Henry B. Quinan [il. by the author]. 64p $1 Studio

741 Dogs—Pictures, illustrations, etc. 40-33404

A well-known illustrator describes her technique in drawing dogs, and includes numerous sketches of dogs of various types and breeds.

"Diana Thorne's adorable pups and stately grown-up dogs will make it a favorite picture-book. So many breeds are represented that the family pet is likely to be there, and he will be there all alive, ready to jump—unless it is the puppy who has found his beloved shoe and is cuddled up against it with his eyes turned up in retreat from the world." M. L. Becker

+ Books p8 N 3 '40 80w

"If you don't care about learning to draw, this book is more than worth the price for the inimitable drawings with which it is copiously illustrated." M. H.

+ Boston Transcript p2 S 28 '40 80w

THURBER, JAMES. Fables for our time, and famous poems illustrated. 124p $2.50 Harper

817 40-32260

Collection of Thurber fables, illustrated with Thurber drawings; to which has been added several famous poems—Curfew Shall Not Ring Tonight, etc—illustrated in the Thurber way.

Booklist 37:113 N 15 '40

"I regard Thurber as Ohio's gift to the oppressed and downtrodden of all nations and I am just going to continue to be glad that he is around, and the moral of that is: 'Always look a gift horse in the face, especially if Thurber threw it.' " Frank Sullivan

+ Books p4 S 22 '40 900w

Reviewed by J. G. E. Hopkins

Commonweal 32:514 O 11 '40 300w

"In Germany this Aesop in reverse would be burned at the stake as subversive, mad, immoral, decadent, and defeatist. He is also delightful." Margaret Marshall

+ Nation 151:247 S 21 '40 50w

"The fables can be quoted and are, believe me; on the the drawings you're stuck. You say they're good and funny and that you keep going back to them and laughing. Well, I suppose the way tastes vary that could be said of a lot of other artists. But I say Thurber is a special case. He is as unlikely and perfect as the seal in the bedroom; he is not only a Landmark in American Humor and peculiar to this time—in the combination of his prose and picture he is the funniest artist who ever lived and wrote about it too." Otis Ferguson

+ New Repub 103:456 S 20 '40 1150w

"The frontispiece of Fables for Our Time is a sheep tapping on a typewriter: autobiography could scarcely go farther. The fables themselves, three to four hundred words long, and illustrated with page drawings, are delicious, and should make converts even among those who hitherto have turned a blind eye. . . You can read as much or as little as you please into these light and perfectly written little tales." G. W. Stonier

+ New Statesman & Nation 20:632 D 14 '40 1100w

" 'Fables for Our Time' is not so side-splitting as some of the earlier books—for instance, 'My Life and Hard Times'—but it is fine ironical stuff, good for bedtime reading if you don't want to go to sleep. And the famous poems are so patly and impudently illustrated that Thurber's pictures will be bound to replace permanently any reader's childhood images of Barbara Frietchie or the curfew-swinging girl." Beatrice Sherman

+ N Y Times p5 S 22 '40 500w

New Yorker 16:81 S 21 '40 40w

"These tiny stories, in which a wide variety of animals show us humans how we really are, are completely uproarious. That this is so must be placed among the many odd mysteries of risibility. Essentially, the stories are often bitter and cruel; the morals which adorn them cynical (and convulsing). They show, rather conclusively, I am afraid, that at its worst the human race is viciously silly, while at its best, it is just silly." Fred Schwed, Jr.

+ Sat R of Lit 23:17 N 23 '40 450w

Times [London] Lit Sup p11 Ja 4 '41 180w

THURBER, JAMES, and NUGENT, ELLIOTT. The male animal; a play; with drawings by James Thurber. 202p $2 Random house

812 (W) 40-27417

Amusing play about a mid-western college run by a group of people who seem to consider football more important than the classics. The plot thickens when a mild professor of English proposes to read Vanzetti's last letter to his class, and the football lovers think he is going red.

Booklist 36:342 My 1 '40

Reviewed by W. P. Eaton

Books p21 Ap 28 '40 110w

Dramatic criticism by E. V. R. Wyatt

Cath World 150:597 F '40 550w

Cleveland Open Shelf p11 My '40

"Of course a bitter and meaningful play might have been written round this idea, but Mr. Thurber and Mr. Nugent are content to write a merely amusing one. Yet there are moments when real satire thrusts up its head, and the audience certainly is made to sympathize with the young English professor who believes that college students should at least learn how to write." Grenville Vernon

+ Commonweal 31:307 Ja 26 '40 340w (Dramatic criticism)

Dramatic criticism by Otis Ferguson

New Repub 102:116 Ja 22 '40 900w

Reviewed by Lewis Nichols

N Y Times p40 N 10 '40 160w

Dramatic criticism by Rosamond Gilder

Theatre Arts 24:158 Mr '40 1000w

THURSTON, ADA, comp. See Pierpont Morgan library. Check list of fifteenth century printing in the Library

THURSTON, MRS FLORENCE G., and CROSS, HARMON S. Three centuries of Freeport, Maine. 254p il $5 F. G. Thurston, R.F.D. 1, Freeport, Me.

974.19 Freeport, Maine 40-12529

"The authors record the local legends succinctly, critically, and without any aura of romance, giving most of their attention to

THURSTON, F. G., and CROSS, H. S.—Cont. the accurate recording of the fundamental realities of Freeport life, carefully fixing each statement with full names, pertinent genealogical data, exact dates, and clear geographical description. They are not writing for the summer visitor who wants atmosphere, but for the Freeporters and the scholars who will want to lay their hands on facts." New Eng Q

Reviewed by B. A. Williams
Boston Transcript p2 Ag 17 '40 300w

"Like the conversation of a salt Down-Easter, this history is packed with detailed information of local affairs, garnished with absorbing stories of the world of the sea, and told with disregard of the proprieties of literture and the canons of professional historical writing. As an account of the portion of the ancient plantation of North Yarmouth which in the nineteenth century was set off as Freeport, and of the vicissitudes of that town since then, it is a valuable historical document." C. K. Shipton
+ New Eng Q 13:752 D '40 700w

TIGNER, HUGH STEVENSON. Our prodigal son culture; a critical comment on modern culture from the standpoint of the Christian religion. 162p $1.50 Willett

261 Civilization. Christianity 40-29725

"After contrasting the present powerlessness of Christianity with what it once achieved and lost, the writer describes the modern age as one of 'exuberant optimism,' which led men to 'set up golden calves, go off after strange gods, and worship the work of their hands.' Then came the crash, which the author calls 'Crisis in a Far Country,' by analogy with the Parable of the Prodigal Son. After its 'grand spree' the world has awakened with worse than a headache. In stubborn resentment it creates fascism, 'The Crowning Act of Defiance.' How long this will last the writer does not claim to know, but he insists that 'our only hope lies in turning again to the God revealed in Christianity, and in seeking earnestly to learn his truth and submit to his will.'" Crozer Q

"Mr. Tigner has begun well. We shall await with interest his further and future elaboration of the 'structure' which must be fashioned for a habitable house for modern man, who cannot go back but only forward. This book is a refreshing picture of our prodigal modernism." A. W. Swan
+ Christian Century 57:1451 N 20 '40 600w

"Like so many of our prophetic critics, including most of those of the Old Testament, our author makes no attempt to offer a concrete program. But before we can find a way out we must be convinced that we need it, and this book effectively exposes our civilization as a starving prodigal." W. L. Caswell
Churchman 154:16 O 1 '40 330w

"This book illuminates the vital issues of today. It keeps the reader awake, compels vigorous thought, and presses home the conviction that the Christian faith provides the one way of hope for the salvation of civilization." Rittenhouse Neisser
+ Crozer Q 17:306 O '40 390w

TILLETT, MRS DOROTHY (STOCKBRIDGE) (JOHN STEPHEN STRANGE, pseud). A picture of the victim. 268p $2 Doubleday

(W) 40-5193

Detective story.

Booklist 36:307 Ap 1 '40

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p12 Ja 14 '40 150w

"It's finish is so rapid and so dramatic that it appears to be phoney, but examination of the clues show that it is honest, if a bit obscured." Marian Wiggin
+ — Boston Transcript p2 Ja 20 '40 60w

Reviewed by Ralph Partridge
New Statesman & Nation 20:337 O 5 '40 180w

"Those who are familiar with Barney Gantt's methods will not need to be told that it is he who arrives at the correct solution of the mystery—a solution which, if not entirely logical, at least brings an exciting story to a satisfactory conclusion for several of the persons involved." Isaac Anderson
+ — N Y Times p19 Ja 14 '40 160w

"A sound idea for murder pieced together by an author who knows how to handle such things."
+ New Yorker 15:64 Ja 13 '40 50w

"Barring extraordinary privileges allowed amateur detectives, especially in final scene, and rather unobtrusive killer, story presents neat problem cannily solved. Good."
+ Sat R of Lit 21:20 Ja 13 '40 40w
Time 35:68 F 5 '40 40w
Times [London] Lit Sup p377 Ag 3 '40 190w

TILTON, ALICE, pseud. See Taylor, P. A.

TIMASHEFF, NICHOLAS SERGEYEVITCH. An introduction to the sociology of law. 418p $4 Harvard univ. Com. on research in the social sciences, G-49 Littauer center, Cambridge, Mass.

340 Law. Sociology 39-17173

"In this book, prepared with the aid of a grant from the Harvard Committee on Research in the Social Sciences, Dr. Timasheff seeks to analyze the relationship between sociology and jurisprudence. . . To Dr. Timasheff law is not merely the command of sovereignty, but includes everything that regulates human behavior. . . In the principal part of his work under the title 'Ethics' he points out how 'group-conviction' has gradually established rules which cover all of our activities, and at all times guide and control our conduct, whatever the sanctions may be. . . In the following parts he treats of the growth of 'power structures' which in one way or another compel obedience, and which, after ages of development, have come to enforce 'group-conviction' instead of merely personal will, and thus to create 'legal equilibrium.'" Boston Transcript

---

"On the whole the book is so scholarly, so exhaustive and so thought-provoking that one can accept as an understatement the promise on the dust-jacket that it 'will be of interest not only to sociologists and political scientists' but to lawyers and those concerned with the philosophy of law.'" Philip Nichols
+ — Boston Transcript p3 Jl 22 '39 700w

"Those who read Dr. Timasheff's book with the expectation of finding a key to a body of knowledge that may illuminate the social significance of legal rules and institutions will be disappointed. Those, on the other hand, who would like to build such a body of scientific knowledge will find a very useful guide in Dr. Timasheff's survey of gropings and first steps towards a sociology of law." F. S. Cohen
+ — Harvard Law R 53:707 F '40 2000w

"A good introduction to the sociology of law would certainly be a highly valuable contribution to the social sciences. It is a real disappointment, therefore, to find Dr. Timasheff's extremely erudite book a confusing, pietistic, poorly reasoned, poorly disciplined piece of work." Harvey Pinney
— + Social Forces 18:455 Mr '40 550w

Reviewed by H. J. Morgenthau
Yale Law J 49:1510 Je '40 1450w

TIMMONS, WILLIAM MURRAY. Decisions and attitudes as outcomes of the discussion of a social problem; an experimental study. 106p $1.60 Teachers college

301.15 Attitude (psychology). Social problems. Debates and debating. Discussion 40-10644

"In this experiment the author undertook to determine the extent to which high-school pupils studying controversial questions would be influenced toward 'good' decisions by the democratic activity of groups and by individual discussions of those questions." School R

Reviewed by F. S. Chapin
Am J Soc 46:264 S '40 290w

Reviewed by August Dvorak
School R 48:473 Je '40 350w

"While the study is admittedly limited in scope, it was conducted with thoroughness, and is described accurately and logically. All the materials used are included in the volume." L. B. Irwin
+ Social Studies 31:44 Ja '40 100w

TINBERGEN, JAN. Statistical testing of business-cycle theories. v 1-2 164;244p pa v 1 90c; v 2 $1.25 Columbia univ. press [v 1 3s 6d; v 2 5s Allen, G]

380.124 Correlation (statistics). Business cycles. U.S.—Economic conditions. Investments 39-17344;39-32623

"The [first] volume has been prepared with the purpose of submitting to statistical test some of the theories which have been put forward regarding the character and the causes of the business cycle. With a view to illustrating the method of multiple correlation analysis, three examples of its application to economic phenomena have been given: these examples relate to fluctuations in total investments, residential building and net investment in railroad rolling-stock." (Am Econ R) "Volume II applies the system of mathematical analysis described in the first volume to the postwar trade data of the United States. It aims at determining, on the basis of existing statistics and with the help of the multiple correlation method, the more important quantitative relationships that have governed the economic system of the United States of America." (Ann Am Acad)

Reviewed by J. C. Rocca
Am Econ R 29:896 D '39 150w (Review of v 1)

"The methods used by Tinbergen do not and cannot provide an empirically tested explanation of business cycle movements. His methods are entirely appropriate, however, for deriving tentative hypotheses about the nature of cyclical behavior; and from this viewpoint students of business cycles may find Tinbergen's volume of considerable interest." Milton Friedman
+ — Am Econ R 30:657 S '40 1350w (Review of v 2)

Reviewed by J. G. Smith
Ann Am Acad 209:233 My '40 750w

Times [London] Lit Sup p723 D 9 '39 60w (Review of v 2)

TINKCOM, HARRY MARLIN. John White Geary, soldier-statesman. (Pennsylvania lives) 155p $1.75 Univ. of Pa. press

B or 92 Geary, John White 40-11993

First volume in a series of biographies of less famous but important figures of Pennsylvania history. John White Geary was born in 1819 and died in 1873. He was educated as a lawyer and engineer, commanded a regiment in the Mexican war, was postmaster of San Francisco in 1849 and first mayor of the city in 1850, was a territorial governor of Kansas in pre-Civil War days, was one of Sherman's brigadier-generals in the Civil war, and governor of Pennsylvania. Geary began life as an enthusiastic Democrat and ended as a Pennsylvania Republican. Bibliographical note. Index.

"An interesting, valuable biography of an American soldier-statesman. . . The whole fascinating story is told with zest and charm." D. S. Rankin
+ Books p13 S 1 '40 250w

Boston Transcript p2 Ag 3 '40 40w

"On the whole Mr. Tinkcom's praise is discriminate, and he achieves a vivid portrayal of a man who unquestionably possessed energy, bravery, patriotism, and a sense of responsibility in office. This volume launches most auspiciously a new series to be known as 'Pennsylvania Lives.'" J. W. Caughey
+ Social Studies 31:326 N '40 300w

"This book, while not without limitations, shows that Geary's career is worthy to be brought before the attention of Pennsylvanians and other Americans today." E. N. Jenckes
Springf'd Republican p6 Ag 17 '40 1300w

TINKER, CHAUNCEY BREWSTER, and LOWRY, HOWARD FOSTER. The poetry of Matthew Arnold; a commentary. 404p map $3.50 Oxford

821 Arnold, Matthew 40-10816

"This is a companion volume to the forthcoming new edition of Matthew Arnold's complete poetical works which Mr. Tinker and Mr. Lowry have in preparation. The commentary owes its conception to the discovery that the Arnold manuscript volume at Yale—some seventy pages of rough and casual notes—contained a large amount of new information regarding Arnold's development as a poet. . . The general plan is to take up each poem in turn, discussing date, sources, text, and the like. Preceding the comments upon individual poems is some preliminary matter concerning the publication of the various editions, the material in the Yale manuscript, and the lists which Arnold left behind him of poems which he intended to compose." Books

"There is a great deal of interesting information regarding the sources which Arnold used, often without any indication of his indebtedness. For enriching rewarding discussion the reader may turn, for instance, to the pages on 'The Church of Brou,' 'Tristram and Iseult,' 'The Scholar-Gypsy' and 'The Forsaken Merman.'" S. C. Chew
+ Books p12 Jl 21 '40 750w

"This book is especially valuable in presenting source material from Arnold's early years, never before made available." John Holmes
+ Boston Transcript p11 Jl 15 '40 70w

Reviewed by M. D. Zabel
Nation 151:223 S 14 '40 700w

"A scholarly and valuable piece of work." Percy Hutchison
+ N Y Times p2 Jl 28 '40 490w

"From the so-called Yale Manuscript, as well as from other unpublished sources, a great deal of new material has been collected and expounded, and the result is a kind of source book. As such, its value is great. The citations from personal letters, diaries, rough drafts, notes on reading, and so on, are in themselves more provocative than the criticism which the authors have based upon them. . . But it is precisely here, where it might be really acute, that the commentary fails us. Nothing that is said does nearly so much for the poem as the sources themselves. In other words, the very opulence of the material suggests a commentary that could have said, and meant, much more." Dudley Fitts
— + Sat R of Lit 22:7 S 14 '40 240w

Springf'd Republican p12 S 13 '40 440w

"Arnoldians will look forward to the promised edition [of Arnold's poetry] and heartily welcome the present volume. The authors have not attempted to compile an ordinary encyclo-

TINKER, C. B., and LOWRY, H. F.—Cont. paedic handbook for the college student. Instead they have assumed some things and have produced a work of much fresh interest and value for the student and general reader and indispensable to the scholar." Douglas Bush
+ Yale R n s 30:195 autumn '40 1000w

TIPPETT, JAMES STERLING. Counting the days; with pictures by Elizabeth Tyler Wolcott. 66p 75c Harper 40-32647

A collection of children's poems gathered under three headings: My friends and I; I like Christmas; and In my garden. The book is small enough to go into a Christmas stocking.

"Here's a nice book for a Christmas stocking!" F. B. Sloan
+ Christian Science Monitor p6 N 25 '40 50w

"The short verses on the child's daily activities and on Christmas doings with the simple and realistic illustrations will make it popular with small readers. More satisfactory as a home library item than public library because of size." A. L. Shea
+ Library J 65:1044 D 1 '40 60w
Wis Lib Bul 36:169 D '40

TIXIER, VICTOR. Travels on the Osage prairies; ed. by John Francis McDermott, tr. from the French by Albert J. Salvan. (Am. exploration and travel ser) 309p il maps $3 Univ. of Okla. press
970.3 Osage Indians. Louisiana—Description and travel. Missouri—Description and travel 40-9334

"Volume IV of the 'American Exploration and Travel' series, this book is the first English translation of the journal of a young French physician who traveled up the Mississippi in 1840. His experiences included a summer passed with the Osage Indians while they were on their buffalo hunt. So interested in all he saw that he hardly mentions himself, he gives a closely observed description of the Indian country and customs, illustrated by some of his own drawings, and an account of life on the Creole plantations." Nation

"This little-known journal, rescued from obscurity by Professor McDermott, should become one of the valuable sources for the ethnologist concerned with the Plains Indian cultures. It takes a high rank among the narratives of explorers, traders, and travelers through Indian territory." L. H. Fisher
+ Ann Am Acad 211:224 S '40 280w

"Tixier's account is more readable than most for he wrote it for his friends and embellished it with some rather attractive drawings of Indian customs and rituals. An interesting minor item of Americana."
+ Boston Transcript p2 Ag 3 '40 90w
+ Nation 150:763 Je 22 '40 100w

"[This] enthusiastic yet fairly scientific book, extremely rare in French, deserved this revival in an English translation, illustrated by [Tixier's] own sketches. Both editor and translator have done their work admirably." Allan Nevins
+ Sat R of Lit 22:17 Jl 27 '40 250w
Springf'd Republican p6 Je 10 '40 330w
Time 35:95 My 20 '40 500w

TOBIN, HAROLD JAMES, and BIDWELL, PERCY WELLS. Mobilizing civilian America. 276p $2.75 Council on foreign relations
355.2 U.S.—Defenses. U.S.—Economic policy. Industrial mobilization 40-27510

"This book on planned mobilization . . . consists of two parts: the history of the development of plans for mobilizing the industries of the United States in wartime, concluding with an account of the plans as they stood in April, 1940; and detailed sketches of the most essential features of emergency government during war, control of public opinion through propaganda and censorship, methods of recruiting the armed forces, mobilization of labor and business, control of prices and profits, procurement of raw materials, capital, power, fuel, and transportation services for the essential industries. The final chapter is explanatory of the mechanism for putting into action various parts of the plan." (Chem & Chem Eng N) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by Eugene Staley
Am Econ R 30:591 S '40 490w
Reviewed by William Beard
Am Pol Sci R 34:1002 O '40 390w
Booklist 36:393 Je 15 '40
Bookmark p20 N '40
Reviewed by Lewis Gannett
Boston Transcript p11 My 31 '40 1100w

"The book is the result of long and careful study and is well written and thoroughly documented. However, it is too restricted in scope to warrant its title and suffers also from the authors' seeming insistence that at almost any cost private industry and private profit be preserved." P. J. Searles
+ — Boston Transcript p5 Je 8 '40 260w
Reviewed by F. H. Underhill
Canadian Forum 20:153 Ag '40 400w
Cath World 151:764 S '40 120w

"The treatise provides an informative summary of experience in our Nation during World War I. The chapter on propaganda, which acts positively, and censorship, which acts negatively, is particularly well written." W. A. Hamor
+ Chem & Chem Eng N 18:559 Je 25 '40 750w
Foreign Affairs 18:752 Jl '40 30w
Reviewed by Lindsay Rogers
Nation 150:735 Je 15 '40 900w
Reviewed by H. W. Baldwin
N Y Times p1 Jl 14 '40 1500w

"Written by two trained observers and authorities on political science, this book is especially timely in view of the present world situation." H. E. Yarnell
+ Pacific Affairs 13:344 S '40 360w
Reviewed by Harvey Pinney
Social Forces 19:278 D '40 460w
Springf'd Republican p7e Je 9 '40 1000w
Times [London] Lit Sup p358 Jl 27 '40 600w

TOBIN, JAMES EDWARD. Eighteenth century English literature and its cultural background; a bibliography. 190p $2 Fordham univ. press
016.82 English literature—Bibliography. Great Britain—Civilization—Bibliography 40-1481

Bibliography containing over 7,000 titles, exclusive of diaries, autobiographies, and journals, representing the works of eighteenth century writers and works about them. Part one is subdivided into sections: historical background; social thought; memoirs, diaries, anecdotes; criticism; poetry; prose; journalism; drama; and extra-national relations. Part two contains bibliographies of 169 individual authors, arranged alphabetically. Index.

"To pass an adequate judgment on this bibliographical manual it would be necessary either to spend a month or two checking the items in a first-class library, or to keep the book by one's side for several years checking as the occasion arose. I can give only a cursory examination. On that basis it is possible to say that it contains an immense amount of valuable information, that it appears to have been compiled accurately, but that it has important omissions." T. M.
+ — Cath World 151:504 Jl '40 300w

"This volume is especially valuable for undergraduate as well as graduate students because it lists the editions more readily available and many introductory articles as well as the standard scholarly studies. . . The work is beautifully printed and bound and makes one wish that the other centuries of English literature were likewise so intelligently and practically covered." L. J. A. M.

+ Commonweal 31:437 Mr 8 '40 120w

Reviewed by D. F. Bond

Library Q 10:446 Jl '40 1850w

TODD, HELEN. A man named Grant; il. by John O'Hara Cosgrave. 598p map $3.50 Houghton

B or 92 Grant, Ulysses Simpson (W) 40-13299

Study of Ulysses S. Grant, picturing him as a human being rather than as the general or the president. It begins with the Civil war, with Grant working in the adjutant general's office ruling forms, and follows his career thru all its disappointments and triumphs to his final struggle against disease and death. "Miss Todd reveals the effect that men and events had on him who perhaps was 'created and destroyed by circumstance . . . led blindly forward by other men, by nameless forces, by the demands of history in which he was accidentally given a place.'" (Library J) Index.

"Miss Todd has chosen to embroider this veiled and torpid personality with an imaginative inner life which transforms him into a sort of bearded Ariel. It is a vastly entertaining portrait, this sensitized pixy who dreamed great dreams and gazed in perpetual amazement at the chicanery and greed of the world. But I still wonder how much of it could possibly have been true, and believe none of it was." A. B. Miller

Ann Am Acad 213:207 Ja '41 490w

"Perhaps [the author] will make General Grant more readily understandable to members of Women's Republican Clubs, but her book has an evil portentousness quite out of proportion to its importance."

— Atlantic O '40 230w

Booklist 37:34 O 1 '40

"The novelists, interested in character rather than in historical sequences, have been less perturbed and more successful, and Hamlin Garland, who understood the sons of the middle border, has perhaps best delineated Grant. Miss Todd has taken a fictionalized approach and, by freeing herself from the incumbrances of scholarship and the demands of objectivity and the concern with larger historical issues, she has been able to recreate, in a plausible manner, the character of the man named Grant. Her account is faithful to biography, but is embellished and illuminated by imagination." H. S. Commager

+ Books p2 S 1 '40 1500w

"If Helen Todd's stout book sometimes tends to mother rather [than] to explain Grant, it still brings him very humanly to life. . . Miss Todd's book is conceived and written as a novel, and the story has the drama of fiction. But it is rigidly confined within legitimate boundaries." Lewis Gannett

+ Boston Transcript p11 Ag 20 '40 650w

"'A Man Named Grant' is of problematical authenticity. There is no question as to actual facts; they are firmly embedded in history and Helen Todd takes no liberties with them. She is well informed and has constructed, most competently, a framework of truth (if any history is literal truth) on which to drape an analysis of Grant as a man. It is the analysis which I distrust, not the well-painted background. . . The entire volume is admirably written with a deft and facile pen." P. J. Searles

+ Boston Transcript p1 Ag 24 '40 470w

Christian Century 57:1084 S 4 '40 290w

Reviewed by R. C. Batchelder

Churchman 154:17 O 1 '40 240w

Reviewed by D. S. Rankin

Commonweal 32:431 S 13 '40 600w

Reviewed by O. G. Lawson

Library J 65:591 Jl '40 150w

Nation 151:253 S 21 '40 100w

"Lively and dramatic, it presents a highly sympathetic picture of a man whose defects have often been pointed out by soberer historians. . . Aside from the Parson Weems note, the book is highly readable."

+ — New Yorker 16:66 Ag 24 '40 80w

"Miss Todd's volume is in some ways reminiscent of Hamlin Garland's life of Grant. It is vividly written, with real skill in drawing scenes and characters, with a sense for drama, and with passages of eloquent prose. It is warmly sympathetic, and by making Grant human and appealing it does something to make him understandable. Finally, Miss Todd and Hamlin Garland alike simplify the story of Grant's military feats and his years in the White House in a fashion that the historical expert may frequently deplore, but that the average reader will find pleasing." Allan Nevins

+ — Sat R of Lit 22:6 S 21 '40 550w

Social Studies 31:334 N '40 20w

"Here is a thoroughly delightful book. Lovers of biography who hesitate to tackle the ponderous 'definitive' productions of scholars, but who have no use for the 'smart-alec' work of the debunkers will find this volume a treat, for it is a unique combination of the stuff of history and the style of fiction." P. S. Klein

+ Social Studies 32:40 Ja '41 460w

Springf'd Republican p6 Ag 24 '40 1250w

Wis Lib Bul 36:137 O '40

TOLISCHUS, OTTO DAVID. They wanted war. 340p $3 Reynal

943.085 Germany—Nazi movement. Germany—Foreign policy. European war, 1939 —Germany. Hitler, Adolf (W) 40-14635

The winner of the 1940 Pulitzer prize for distinguished foreign correspondence analyzes Hitler and the Germany for which he is responsible. Basing his observations on his years as Berlin correspondent for the New York Times, the author also explains the situation as it affects the United States. Index.

Atlantic O '40 240w

Booklist 37:9 S '40

Bookmark p14 N '40

"This most interesting volume is a vivid, truthful, most objective and thrilling account of Herr Hitler's preparations for a successful war." M. W. Fodor

+ Books p3 Ag 11 '40 1450w

Reviewed by Lewis Gannett

Boston Transcript p2 Ag 3 '40 700w

Reviewed by R. H. Phelps

Boston Transcript p8 Ag 31 '40 600w

Cath World 152:255 N '40 230w

"The book is uneven. Some chapters seem to be made up of dispatches which have simply been clipped from the files and thrown in any which way, and there are some chapters which are too sketchy to give much information about the subjects they profess to treat. But the book as a whole is as good an account of the Germany which is waging war as is available to American readers." P. H.

+ — Christian Century 57:1082 S 4 '40 450w

"The book is not of uniform quality. Some chapters give internal evidence of having been thrown together more hastily than others, and occasionally the author shows a tendency to fall back rather heavily on journalistic dispatches which, while excellent in themselves, do not always fit well into the structure of the book. But these are minor criticisms. In general

TOLISCHUS (tol-ish'ŭs)

TOLISCHUS, O. D.—Continued
Mr. Tolischus has fulfilled admirably his important task of presenting an up-to-date picture of modern Germany that is at once vivid, soundly informed and notably objective." W. H. Chamberlin
+ — Christian Science Monitor p11 S 7 '40 650w
Cleveland Open Shelf p13 Jl '40
Commonweal 32:414 S 6 '40 420w

"Though the book lacks an inner integration and though the threads connecting the chapters appear none too strong at times, the net impact is full and effective. What appears to be a series of often-unrelated pictures in the beginning falls into focus in the end. . . Even as the record of some of the most distinguished foreign correspondence in the American press, this book is worth reading and worth having." Norman Cousins
+ Current Hist & Forum 52:2 S '40 1500w

"It is difficult to believe that the human animal is capable of such efficiency, such single-mindedness and ruthlessness as Mr. Tolischus makes abundantly clear in They Wanted War. The book is far and away the most revealing blueprint we have had of Nazi Germany, at least in English. Mr. Tolischus makes it enormously effective by his restrained style and, for the most part, by allowing the facts to tell this Nazi tale of horror." L. M.
+ Living Age 359:92 S '40 700w
Manchester Guardian p7 N 12 '40 300w

"There are many books on National Socialist Germany, but none will prove more useful as an introduction to the subject than this volume by Mr. Tolischus; it must, indeed, be read by anyone who wishes to discuss the consequences of the Nazi revolution with intelligence." Hans Kohn
+ Nation 151:177 Ag 31 '40 600w

Reviewed by Lindsay Rogers
New Repub 103:308 S 2 '40 750w

Reviewed by F. R. Fyvel
New Statesman & Nation 21:40 Ja 11 '41 550w

"No recent book more thoroughly deserves the thoughtful attention of American citizens than this volume by Mr. Tolischus. . . Mr. Tolischus is unquestionably the best informed American, probably the best informed foreigner, who has written on German affairs of the past five years. He has given us a vital and exciting book." E. M. Earle
+ N Y Times p1 Ag 4 '40 1900w
New Yorker 16:62 Ag 10 '40 30w

"Mr. Tolischus's exceptionally well-informed, balanced, and lucid articles and dispatches had already proved of inestimable value to the American public. Now some of these articles and dispatches . . . are brought together in a book which should command an even wider and, as a result of recent events, a more understanding audience." V. M. Dean
+ Sat R of Lit 22:5 Ag 17 '40 1300w

"This volume offers an excellent case study, in clear and simple language, of the origin, growth, and ambitions of a major totalitarian movement." W. C. Langsam
+ Social Educ 5:66 Ja '41 320w

Reviewed by Norman Ebbutt
Spec 165:586 N 29 '40 550w
Springf'd Republican p8 Ag 13 '40 750w
Time 36:60 Jl 29 '40 650w

"The general layout is informal and unsystematic, and the choice of topics dictated by accident or personal predilections. But the book contains much information and many acute comments."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p538 O 26 '40 850w

"Otto Tolischus has written a volume that should be placed on the reading list of all citizens who want to understand the challenge to the American way of life posed by the progress of the modern martial spirit whose prophets and disciples have subdued almost the whole continent of Europe." Hajo Holborn
+ Yale R n s 30:165 autumn '40 1050w

TOLLES, WINTON. Tom Taylor and the Victorian drama. 299p $3.50 Columbia univ. press [17s 6d Oxford]
822 Taylor, Tom. English drama—History and criticism

A study of the works of a Victorian playwright. The author "has no startling discoveries to report and no novel theories to advance. He has been content to gather and to present as much information as he could discover that would increase our understanding of the stage for which Tom Taylor wrote and the contributions which he made to its life and growth. Since the book is concerned primarily with the theater, it presents only a minimum of information about Taylor's life." (Pref) General bibliography. Index.

"Mr. Tolles' scholarly and readable study supplies a missing link in the history of English drama."
